

144650

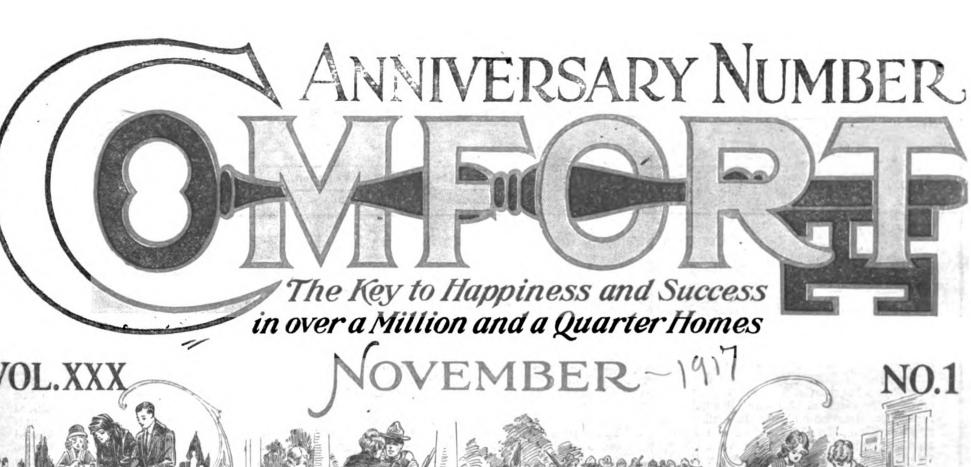

TRANSFERRED

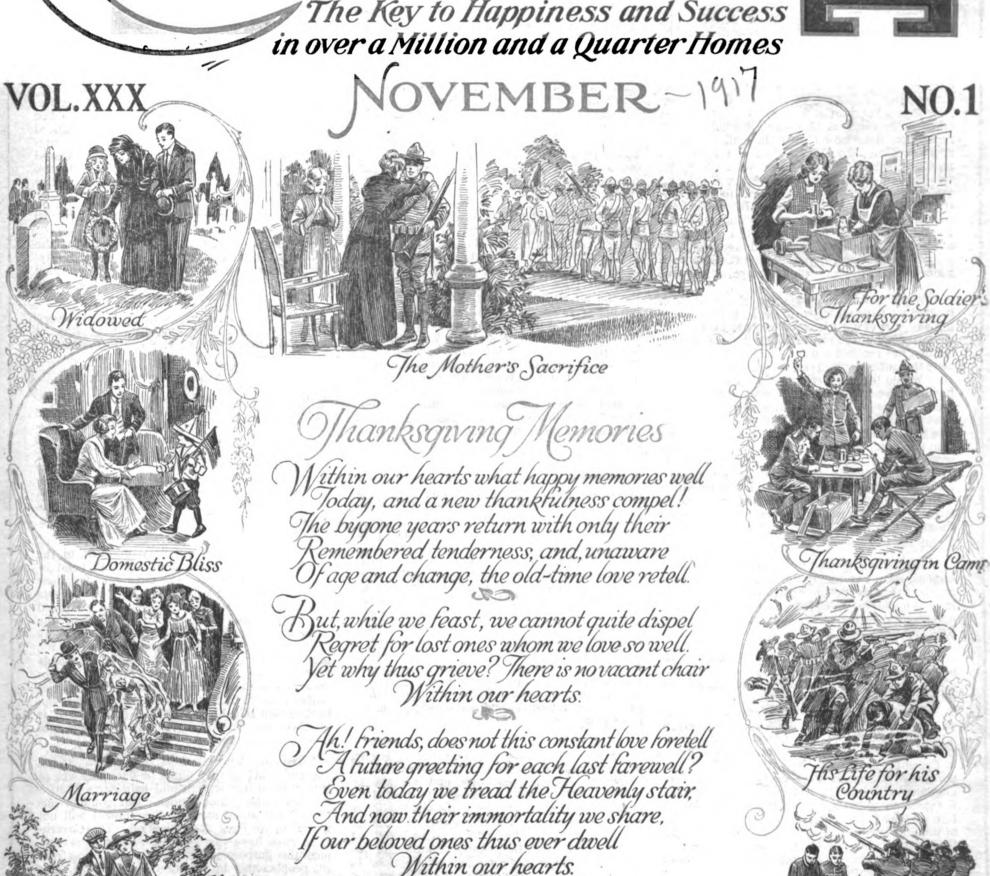

to

HARVARD COLLEGE LIBRARY

Salanda Lasar

	,
	•

Within our hearts.

James Terry White

Childhood

The Vacant Chair

Published at AUGUSTA, MAINE.

Last Honors to a Herc

Congress Strangling the People's Magazines with Zone Postage Rates

'N its inscrutable unwisdom Congress has struck a staggering, if not a knock-out, blow at one of the greatest, most unifying and beneficent educational forces in the country by decreeing a large increase in the magazine and newspaper postage rate and, worse yet, grading it by zones like the parcel post rates. This law becomes operative by installments on several future dates; beginning on the first day of next July with a substantial rise and the application of the zone rates on that date, it establishes a further annual rise on each succeeding July to and including July, 1921, when the rates will reach a maximum that, coupled with the delay, trouble and expenses of sorting by zones and mailing by mail routes, will be well-nigh prohibitive to popular priced magazines which, like Com-FORT, have a nation-wide circulation largely in the distant zones The newspapers will not be much affected because few of them send more than ten per cent of their circulation beyond the first two zones wherein the rate will be comparatively low.

While prices of everything else have been soaring we have struggled to get by without shifting any part of our increased expense over to our subscribers but the continually rising cost of production has reached a point which obliges us to raise our subscription price as announced on page 16. We do this most reluctantly. But we shall have to raise it again to meet even the first increase in second-class postage. which takes effect next July and keep on raising it year by year unless, meanwhile, the people get after their congressmen and induce them to repeal this stupid and destructive piece of legislation, or at least modify it so to make it livable by eliminating the grossly unfair and oppressive zone rate feature which originated in the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives and was railroaded through the lower branch of Congress without giving the publishers a respectful hearing.

The Senate rejected it after long and careful consideration, but the House was so obstinately insistent that the Senate finally yielded and gave it a passage in order to effect a compromise agreement on other contested features of the War Revenue Bill.

Apparently the members of the House, with few exceptions, knew but little and cared less about the character of this measure, their chief concern being to vote as directed by their bosses. It was reported, however, that certain senators secured a postponement of its going into effect until July in order to gain time for reconsideration of the matter at the session which will begin in December This also gives the people an opportunity to impress their views on their congressmen with a possible prospect that their will, if vigorously expressed, may be heeded. Therefore we take pains to explain to our readers some of the injurious effects, ignored or over-looked by their congressmen, which the interests of the people and the welfare of the nation will suffer from this zone innovation.

Did you ever wonder how such a magazine as Confort could be furnished to you for only 25 cents per year? Do you know why it can be delivered at the same low subscription price to its subscribers in all parts of the United States and anywhere in Uncle Sam's territorial possessions? There are just two reasons why this was possible: first, because the second-class postage rate is low, only one cent per pound, and, second, because it is the same, regardless of distance, everywhere in Uncle Sam's dominions even to his remotest island dependencies. In other words the publisher now pays a cent a pound bulk weight on his entire edition mailed to any and all places where "old glory" is the emblem of authority. This gives the magazine a vast field of equal opportunity in which to build up an enormous circulation-more than a million and a quarter copies per month in Comfort's case.

This enables the publisher to do business on a large scale and thereby cut expense of production to the lowest possible figure and operate successfully on a small margin of profit. Even then the subscription price falls short of meeting the cost, for advertising patronage is an important item of revenue without which scarcely any periodical could live. Advertising rates depend on volume of circulation. The benefit of the low second-class postage rate, which has been in effect for forty years or more, has been passed on to the subscriber in the form of a low subscription price. This is as it now is and long has been, but will cease soon after the new zone rates go into operation.

It is evident that, if the postage rate on the magazine is raised enough to wipe out or largely impair the publisher's margin of profit, this increased cost must be passed on either to the advertisers in the form of higher advertising rates or to the subscribers in the form of a higher subscription price Business conditions caused by the war are such that advertisers would not stand for higher rates. The large rise in the price of print paper and the increased cost of all else that enters into magazine production have cut deep into the profits of most publishers and have put a large number of publications out of business during the last two years. The periodical publishing business, as a whole, is not prospering at present and is not in condition to stand up under the added burden of higher second-class postage rates, and therefore must pass it on to the subscribers by raising subscription rates enough to cover the increased expense.

The new second-class postage rates, at their maximum, will add about one hundred thousand dollars a year to the cost of postage for mailing Comfort, and this, with other items of increased expense directly due to the zone rate system which imposes the tremendous task of twice sorting each issue, will have to be borne by our subscribers in the form of higher subscription rates. Please understand that this is entirely distinct from the new letter postage rate which, on and after November first, will be three cents for each letter weighing one ounce or less, and three cents more for each additional ounce or fraction of an ounce in excess, and requires an additional one cent stamp on postal cards. We have not taken this item into account although this fifty per cent increase in the letter rate will cost us three thousand dollars a year for additional postage on our correspondence.

The readers may want to know how it will be a severe blow to the magazines if the burden of the increase in second-class postage rates is to be shifted to their subscribers, and wherein the national welfare will be especially affected by higher subscription rates even though the latter be a hardship to many of the people. If, instead of rising by zones, the increase were level and uniform throughout the country regardless of distance, it would be immeasurably less injurious to all concerned. But the gradation of the rate by zones is an abomination in that it is a barrier to progress toward national unity of thought and aspiration, an impediment to the forces that are striving to overcome local prejudices and substitute nationalism for sectionalism: it is an intolerable nuisance because it discriminates locally with flagrant injustice and ruthless destructiveness.

The magazines that have subscribers in every town and village and on every rural route in the country have to be and are broadly national in their treatment of the issues of the day and are rendering inestimable educational service, not only in the dissemination of knowledge, but in breaking down local prejudices bringing the people of all sections to a better understanding of each other and into a closer sympathy teaching them to be more tolerant in their judgments and leading them in thought and sentiment toward a unity of aspiration and purpose As a natural consequence of the excessive postage rates in the distant zones these magazines will have difficulty in competing in subscription price with local publications in the remote sections and will gradually lose circulation in such localities. The result will be that the ably edited popular magazines, which now are read from coast to coast and from Canada to the Mexican border, will have their respective circulations reduced in volume and localized within areas restricted by zone rates. Reduced circulation means smaller income which, in turn, will compel the publishers to pay less for editorial and literary matter. The crippling effect of zone rates must necessarily tend to lower the quality of the magazines.

The present war has brought into prominence the necessity for the unification of public opinion, and while President Wilson is encouraging the organization of the League for National Unity Congress strikes a blow at the greatest unifying force in the country by hampering the magazines with zone rates of postage.

We trust that Comport subscribers in every State will write their congressmen, at once a strong expression of their views on this subject

The Second Liberty Loan

E regret that the Government's announcement of the second Liberty Loan came out too late to appear in October Comport. The campaign for floating these bonds is in progress as we go to press and subscriptions will close before this edition reaches our readers. Nevertheless, we cannot pass without mention a matter of such vital importance, and we hope that our comments may help in promoting the sale of the third issue of these bonds which will be offered to the public a little later.

We hope our readers have invested to the extent of their financial ability in both bond issues, not only as a patriotic duty but for their own benefit. We trust there are no slackers among our readers: that they need not be urged to do their dollar duty to our country and the cause of human liberty while our young men are going to France to risk their lives and suffer the hardships of trench warfare. Buy the bonds yourselves and do your utmost to induce others to do so, and if those there be among your acquaintances who are unmoved by patriotic appeals appeal to their selfishness and show them that it is for their own interest to put their money into Liberty Bonds.

Tell the dollar slackers that we are in the war and, whether they like it or not, they are in it with us to stay with it and help carry it to a successful and glorious finish. Our country has taken that stand and our Government will not waver in its fixed determination. The Government must have vast sums of money to accomplish this purpose and it has all got to come from the people either by taxation or by loans. War taxes are high and nobody escapes them, for everything we buy or use is taxed But the revenue from war taxes will fall far short of the expenses of the war. War loans are relied on to furnish the remainder but if the Liberty Bonds do not sell in sufficient amounts to provide the requisite funds the difference will have to be made good by still higher war taxes. There is no alternative, no other way out. The Government must have the money Therefore, if the dollar slackers do not wish to pay higher war taxes on everything they eat, wear use, have, earn or spend they muse buy Liberty Bonds. It is a case of necessity, but they can have their choice between lending the Government their money at four per cent interest or having it drafted by taxation—and no interest and no return. Which do they prefer?

COMFORT'S EDITOR.

COMFORT, PUBLISHED MONTHLY BY W. H. GANNETT, PUB., INC., AT AUGUSTA, MAINE.

Subscription price in United States and United States Possessions 25c a year: Canadian subscriptions 50c a year, foreign countries 75c a year. No premiums or prizes will be given on Canadian or foreign subscriptions. Please send your renewal just as soon as your subscription expires. We can not continue sending COMFORT to you unless you do not get your magazine by the 25th of the month write us and we will send you another copy free. Please notify us immediately in case you move, so that we can change your address and see that you do not miss a single copy. Remember that we must have your former address, as well as your new address to make the change. Be sure to send both. We do not supply back numbers.

ANKSGIVING PIES and OTHER PASTRY HOW to MAKE them DELICIOUS and WHOLESOME

By Violet Marsh

Copyright, 1917, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

LTHOUGH Thanksgiving has been celebrated annually in the New England States ever since Governor William Bradford, who led the Pilgrims to this new land, instituted nearly three centuries ago, it was President Lincoln who, in 1864, established it as a national festival. No other holiday has a warmer place in our hearts, and on no occasion does the American housewife plan so elaborately for the enjoyment of those who gather about her table of plenty.

for the enjoyment of those who gather about her table of plenty.

But when we give thanks for the garnered sheaves, the well-filled cellar and storerooms, and the farm and home made snug for winter, this fall, we know that in many homes the Thanksgiving festivities will be saddened by the unusual absence of dear ones called to serve their country, but a parcel from home filled with dainties by loving hands will cheer many a soldier boy in camp with the consoling thought that he is held in fond remembrance in the family circle where he is missed.

INDIVIDUAL CHICKEN OR VEAL PIES.

And nothing can be put into these baskets that will be more appreciated than good home pastry, for "mother's pie" has never yet been equaled. Fill the tarts generously, and use plenty of parafin paper, wrapping everything individually. Mince pie ranks next to turkey in suggestiveness of Thanks: twing.

May success and good cheer attend your efforts.

Pastry Making

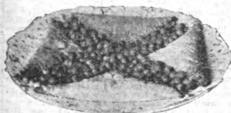

General Rules That Insure Success

General Rules That Insure Juccess

The deliciousness of good pastry is disputed by none, but the unwholesomeness of poor pastry is deplored by many. "Guess measuring," the use of rancid fats "good enough for pie crust" in the eyes of the short-sighted housekeeper, warm materials, and improper oven heat, are the chief reasons why pastry is often unpleasant tasting and indigestible, and unquestionably one of the causes of American dyspepsia.

Pastry is not classed as a food for delicate stomachs; yet, when properly made and baked it is far less difficult of digestion than is generally supposed, its reputation having been unjustly damaged by had cooking.

No housewife can afford to use an inferior fat on her table, yet, in face of the fact that prices have more than doubled, it is a great temptation. The reasonable solution is to eat less pastry and have the best.

ENVELOPE CHERRIES.

Pies are not wholesome the second day, not even when "warmed over." Pie crust dough can be kept on ice, or buried in flour for several days, and it is an easy matter to make a fresh pie with the dough all ready.

Selection and Use of Materials

Lise plastry flour and sift twice.

Prepared shortenings made from vegetable fats lead in wholesomeness, and have the added advantages of being nearly tasteless and making pastry a rich brown. Beef suet tried out also makes a sweet and digestible fat and combines well with butter.

Equal parts of butter and lard is better than all lard. Lard is the least wholesome, yet many prefer it as it, makes pastry tender and soft, and is less expensive. Butter is necessary for puff paste and bakes brown. The flour shortening, and water, should be as nearly ice-cold as possible, and the pastry chilled before throughout the pastry without allowing a paste to be formed with the flour, makes "flaky"

MOLASSES PIE.

Asserty.

Keep the hands cool by frequently dipping them in cold water while handling pastry.

Perforated tin pie plates secure a well-done under crust. The oven should be hot at first, about the same as for rolls, reducing the heat after the crust is firm. Turn occasionally and bake from thirty to forty-five minutes. In making a pie crust shell many are more successful if the plate is inverted, spreading the dough

APPLE TURNOVERS.

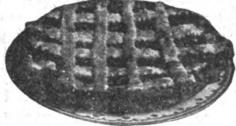

on the underside of a plate and baking with the

How to Line Plate and Put on Upper Crust

Paste should be rolled to about one quarter of an inch thick. Cut under crust a very little larger than the plate, and the upper crust less than a quarter of an inch larger. Cut strips a little less than one inch wide for the rim. Fold lower crust once, placing evenly on one half of plate; then unfold and cover plate. Wet edges with cold water, and cover with the rim, lapping and scaling ends and wetting edges with water. Fill the plate, a little higher in the center to allow for shrinking. Cut small slits in upper crust for escaping steam, and cover pie. Have edges even, pressing lightly together.

When using under crust only, roll paste a little thinner and cut about one inch larger than plate. Lay on plate and fold edge under, and flute by bringing thumb and first finger together and pressing paste between at regular intervals.

Chopped Paste.—Four tablespoons each of butter and lard, half a teaspoon of salt, and one and one half cups of flour. Sift flour again with salt, and chop in the cold butter and lard until it resembles coarse meal. Add cold water, a little at a time, until a very stiff dough is formed. Do not knead, but turn out on a floured board and roll into a long strip, then fold ends toward center, double twice and roll again.

FLAKY PASTE.—One heaping cup of sifted flour sifted again with one quarter of a teaspoon each of baking powder and salt. With a knife, chop in two tablespoons of lard or clean beef fat, and mix stiff with cold water. Do not knead. Roll out, cover with a full quarter of a cup of butter cut in small pieces, sprinkle with flour, and roll over same as a jelly roll. Roll out, fold several times, cut into two parts and roll to fit plate.

fold several times, cut into two parts and roll to fit plate.

EVERYDAY PASTE.—Beat together the white of one egg and one tablespoon of lard, and with the hands work it into one quart of sifted flour till very fine. Mix with one cup of icewater, adding a little at a time. Roll about quarter of an inch thick, and cover with one cup of butter cut in very small pieces. Sprinkle with flour, fold the edges toward center, roll up, and when ready for use, roll out for pies.

Various Pie Filters

MINCE MEAT.—One cup of boiled chopped beef cut from the round, one third of a cup of chopped suet, one and one half cup of brown sugar, scant half cup of molasses, one and one half cup of seeded raisins, one and one half cup of washed currants and four cups of chopped tart apples and one cup of meat liquor. Mix thoroughly together and add two even teaspoons of salt, two even teaspoons of cinnamon, one half teaspoon of powdered cloves, one half teaspoon of mace or nutmeg, and the grated rind and juice of one lemon. Cook in a porcelain lined kettle until the raisins are soft, then add one cup of good apple cider.

PRESERVE PUFFS

Mock Cherry Pie.—Mix together one half cup of chopped raisins and one and one third cups of chopped raisins and one and one third cups of chopped gratevarias.

MOCK CHERRY PIE.—Mix together one half cup of chopped raisins and one and one third cups of chopped cranberries. Add one cup of sugar, one rounding tablespoon of butter and a scant quarter cup of water. Make in under crust and lattice strips to cover from chopped paste.

PRESERVI, PIFFS.—Roll very thin squares from flaky paste. Spread with rich jam or jelly, a speck of butter, and a few drops of lemon juice. Wet edges, draw together and bake fifteen minutes in hot oven, or until brown.

APPLE PIE.—Line pie plate as directed, except, if apples are very juicy, the rim may extend

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 9.)

Helping the Government in the Home

The U. S. Food Administrator says:

"The use of baking powder breads made of corn and other coarse flours instead of patent wheat flour is recommended."

Corn meal, oatmeal and rye flour can be used instead of white flour to make wholesome and most appetizing food, when prepared with

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Try the following recipes which are practical examples:

OATMEAL BISCUITS

1½ cups flour 1½ teaspoons Royal Baking Powder ½ teaspoon salt 2 tablespoons sugar

Sitt flour, baking powder, salt and sugar together. Add oatmeal, melted shortening and enough water to make a soft dough. Roll out this on floured board; cut with biscutt cutter and bake in greased pan in moderate oven about 20 minutes.

CORN MEAL GRIDDLE CAKES

cups corn meal pups boiling water stablespoon molasses to up flour tenspoon aslt tenspoons Royal shortening the stablespoon tenspoon aslt tenspoons Royal Baking Powder cald corn meal in bowl with boiling water; I mils, metted shortening and molasses; ifour, set and baking powder, which have n sifted to other; mix well. Bake on hot ased griddle until brown.

4 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder

shortening 1 tablespoon singer 1 tablespoon singer 2 cups rye flour 34 cup milk

Cream shortening. Add sugar and molasses, beating well. Add half the flour, which has been silted with baking powder, spices and sait. Mix in half the milk, and then add remainder of flour and remainder of milk. Mix well and pour into greased individual cake tins and bake in moderate oven about 20 minutes.

NUT BREAD

11/2 cups milk and water 1 cup chopped nuts (not too fine), or 1 cup raisins, washed and floured 5 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder 114 teaspoons salt 4 cup sugar or corn syrup

Mix together flour, baking powder and salt; add milk and water, sugar or corn syrup, and nutmeats or raisins. Put into greased loaf pan; allow to stand 30 minutes in warm place. Bake in nodectate over 40 to 45 minutes.

RYE AND CORN MEAL MUFFINS

134 cups rye flour 24 cup corn meal 25 teaspoon salt 4 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder 1 tablespoon sugar 4 cup milk and water I tablespoon shortening

Sitt together dry ingredients: add milk and water and melted shortening. Beat well. Bake in gressed much time in hot oven 30 to 35 minutes.

SPIDER CORN BREAD

SPIDER CORN BREAD

1 cup corn meal
5 cup flour
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon sait
1 tablespoon shortening
Beat egg in bowl, and add one cup milk and water; stir in corn meal, flour, sugar, sait and baking powder, which have been sifted together; turn into frying pan, in which shorten ing has been melted. Four remaining milk over it, but do not stir. Bake about 25 minutes in hot oven. There should be a line of creamy custard through the bread. Cut into triangles and serve.

1 cup soft boiled or left over hominy (or other cooked cereal)
1 tasspoon sait 4 taspoons Royal Baking Powder

1 cup corn meal 5 teaspoons Royal 34 cups flour Baking Powder 1 cup milk 1 cup milk 2 tablespoons sugar 4 sour apples 2 tablespoons molasses

Sift dry ingredients together. Add eno mik to make thick batter. Beat well. a apples, chopped fine, and molasses. Bake hot greased gem pans 15 to 20 minutes.

MAPLE LAYER CAKE

2½ tableapoon shortening ½ cup sugar l egg l egg yolk ½ cup milk 3 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder 4 teaspoon salt 1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream shortening, add sugar; add beaten eggs and one-half corn flour and flour, which have been sifted with the baking powder and salt; mix well. Add milk and the remainder of flour; add flavoring. Beat well and bake in greased layer tims in hot oven 10 to 12 minutes. Cover layers and top with the following icing:

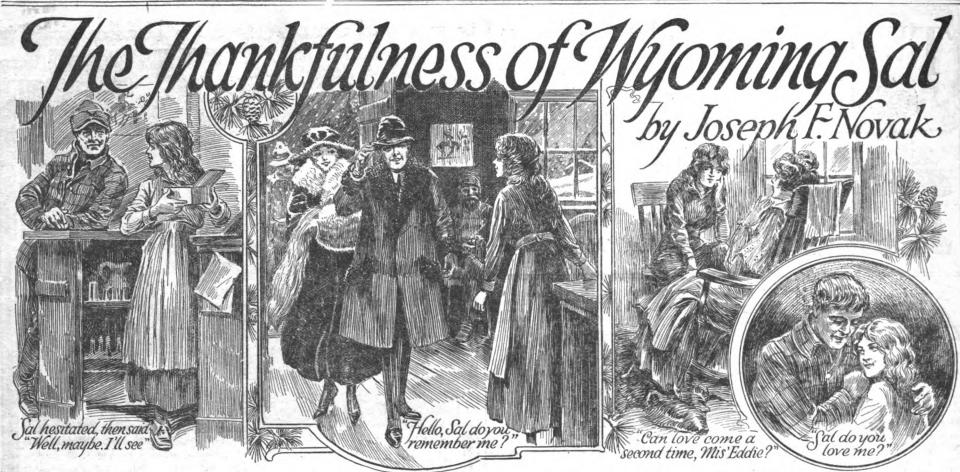

Maple Icing

2 cups maple or corn syrup 1 egg white 2 teaspoons shortening Boil syrup until it spins a thread; add short-ening. Pour slowly over beaten white of egg. Beat until stiff enough to spread on cake.

Our new red, white and blue booklet, "Best War Time Recipes," mailed free on request. Address Royal Baking Powder Co., 130 William St., N. Y.

There is no alum nor phosphate in Royal Baking Powder. Cream of Tartar, its chief ingredient, is of pure fruit origin, and has no substitute for making a baking powder of the highest quality.

Royal Never Leaves a Bitter Taste

Copyright, 1917, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

RICKTOP" PETE entered Wyoming Sal's tavern, a little in advance of the other men who daily took their meals there. He shook the snow from his person, then approached the counter behind which Sal stood, putting things to rights. "Supper ready soon, Sal?" he asked. "Yes, soon's th' other men come," she replied. Bricktop hesitated, evidently at a loss as to how to commence on the topic in mind. Sal observed this as she eyed him. "What's on yer mind?" she asked. "Ye goin' to close up tomorrer like ye did last year, Sal?"

The girl's cheeks reddened.
"Why should I close up, even if 'tis Thanksgivin'? What have I got fer to be thankful fer, I wonder? And dye think I'm goin' to close to morrer so that a colourse to was my fault and I should have had sense enough to know that a sport from th' East like him wouldn't think o' fallin' in love with a critter like me—""
"On't call yerself a critter, Sal," interrupted Bricktop gently.
"I am a critter," she insisted, "to a man like him. I ain't blamin' him at all, though, because he was always a real gent, an' never did nothin' to make me think he loved me, 'cept jest to be kind an' nice an' teasin' an' I thought that was love. But it wasn't, an' I guess 'twas jest as well that I sent him back to th' gal he left down East who he loved."

Her words sent her thoughts leaping backward to that 'Thanksgiving Day, one year agone. How vivid the picture was! She saw herself putting her tavern to rights, her thoughts rose-colored, for on the morrow she was to entertain "Eddie Smith," the handsome timekeeper from down 12 st. And she saw herself preparing the sumptions banquet, saw herself decking herself out in her finery. And then "Eddie" came, not tell her he loved her, as she foundy impast, that he was not the fine was fore in the mountains thereabouts, and that he had simply come there to nurse a wounded heart. But now the girl of his dreams had found out that she was mistaken, had berzed forgiveness for their quarrel and asked him to come back. And would he go? Indeed, he would. H ye'd enjoy the fresh air. Ye work too hard, anyhow."

"It's awful kind o' you, Bricktop, an' I appreciate it, but I don't know. Yer always so good an' kind to me, an' I don't deserve it."

"Oh, yes ye do, Sal, ye on'y think ye don't. But you've been a mighty good gal all th' time, an' many's th' boy that would have been up agin it, when he was sick, if it hadn't been fer you. Now, can't ye make up yer mind to come out tomorrer with me?"

Sal hesitated, then said:
"Well, maybe. I'll see," and as the rest of the men who generally came to Sal's tavern for their meals now came in, the conversation was cut short.

their meals now came in, the conversation was cut short.

Bricktop went in with the others, his heart heavy. He was still a young man, only twenty-nine years, but his hard life in the mountains made him appear much older. His heart was as young as any boy's, and a passion, honest as the stars, was hidden in that big, broad bosom of his. He loved Sal with a lover's fond devotion ever since she had become a young woman. Once or twice he broached the subject, but Sal's interest in him seemed more like that which a girl displays toward her father. For Bricktop had constituted himself her guardian and body-guard when her father had died and left her, a mere child, to shift for herself. To him she had confided the story of "what a fool she had-made of herself" with "Eddie Smith," and because he knew she had loved the handsome young timekeeper with her first love, he dared not try to substitute himself in the place of the more handsome timekeeper. Sal accepted his attentions because to refuse would have been equal to ingratitude, and Bricktop honestly did all he did now," she continued, as through the window for no hope of reward if Sal could not conscientiously pay him as he wished—with her heart and hand.

The Sequel to "Thanklessness of Wyoming Sal"

for no hope of reward if Sal could not conscientiously pay him as he wished—with her heart hand hand.

The loud talking and rough jesting of the men came from the dining-room from time to time. Sal sat alone behind the counter, thinking over Bricktop's proposition. Maybe after all, she ought to go with him. He liked her and liked to do these things to please her. Maybe she ought to close up the place tomorrow, and thus keep Bricktop from suspecting how deep an interest she still maintained in "Eddie Smith." Bricktop knew about the affair, but he hadn't blamed Eddie at all. She liked him for that, for she felt she couldn't bear to have a word said against the man who she had so idolized. It was Bricktop, too, whe explained the affair casually to the men and they didn't realize how hard hit she had been. Bricktop had told them that she had been a little "sweet" on Eddie, but he didn't see it that way and that they were not to torment Sal or joke about it.

They didn't need this warning, for the rough men all loved the girl as they would a daughter. As Sal thought of everything, she determined to oblige Bricktop, and after the men had had their suppers and started to play cards in the tavern, she sought him out and promised to ride with him the next afternoon, if circumstances permitted. His smile of pleasure brought a warm glow to her own cheeks and she felt repaid for her promise.

The next morning she was up early. The snow was still falling, but not heavily, and the day had all the appearance of a holiday. Sal hurried to hew window, from whence she could get a full view of the little flag station and small shelter that had not even enough dignity to be called a "depot."

Who was coming to the camp? Possibly some officers of the Lumber Syndicate were passing through the country and had decided to stop off. She watched, A man descended—and a woman. The man was of splendid physique, tall and straight. He wore a big coat with a high Astrachian collar, a velour hat and white spats upon his feet. The woman was almos The loud talking and rough jesting of the men ways was clewhat bizarre.

what bizarre.

Just then the tavern door opened, and a pleasant, well-remembered voice called out:

"Hello, Sal! Do you remember me?"

Sal, determined not to show how much she remembered him, came forward however, with friendly mien, and outstretched hands.

"Well, I guess you ought to know I don't never forgit any o' my friends. I sure do remember Eddie Emith, an' I'm ever so glad to see you again. I'spect this here is Mis' Eddie Smith, ain't it?" and Sal turned to the lady and gave her her hands. "Pleased to meet ye, ma'am."

There was a little smile in the eyes of the stately lady—a little smile full of tender pity. How women can read each other!

"I am Eddie's wife, Sal," she replied. "We are on our way to California, but I did so want to meet the little girl of whom he always spoke so highly, and who was so kind to him while he was here. So we just determined to stop off and see you. I thought it was so brave of you to make your way as you did here in this lumber camp. I see Eddie wasn't a bit wrong in praising you as he did."

"Oh, Eddie and I was good friends, as good to make your way as you did here in this lumber camp. I see Eddie wasn't a bit wrong in praising you as he did."

"Oh, Eddie and I was good friends, as good as could be, though o' course, I kind o' made a fool o' myself when we parted," said Sal, with an attempt at studied indifference.

"I know about that, Sallie," said Mrs. Griegg, "and I think you did a very noble thing. But we'll talk about that some other time."

Sal's heart leaped up at this, but she only said:

Sal's heart leaped up at this, but she only said:

"Have you folks had your breakfast?"

"No, Sal, we haven't but you can serve us, can't you? And tell me all the news at the same time?" said Edgar.

"I sure can, Eddie," Sal replied. "All th' old boys are still here, an' I guess they'll be glad to meet their sporty timekeeper. Here they come bunkhouse.

In they came with hilarious greetings for "Eddie" and rather awkward ones for "Mis' Eddie," who gave her hand to each and every one as if it were her custom to greet such boisterous people every day.

All filed into the dining-room, Sal going with the rest, and constituting herself waitress for her guests. But womanlike, she observed all that

All filed into the dining-room, Sal going with the rest, and constituting herself waitress for her guests. But womanlike, she observed all that went on.

She noted the grace with which "Mis' Eddie" handled the rough chima, observed the little fastidious attentions the handsome woman bestowed upon her husband with apparently no effort at all. Dimly she realized that these people were not in her class, for though she was their equal truly, being as good a woman as was beautiful. Lorrayne Grieff and as honest as Edgar Griegg, fate had placed her in an environment that made a gap between her and these people that only years of culture could possibly bridge.

Edgar did not seem the same either. He was the same man in form and feature, his voice was as pleasant as of old, and the only change seemed in his clothes. But they made all the difference in the world, for in the tailored garments of down East, his manners fitted his apparel. She never knew he could be so "mice." Unworldly as she was, she did not know that when he first came, he had resolutely cut out those niceties of manner lest he betray himself, while now, as the husband of the regal Lorrayne, his manners were the ones that his breeding demanded.

How could she ever have fancted he loved her? A man of his education and culture? She did not think in these terms, it is true, she thought "a man so swell and sporty" which to her meant the same thing. Heavens, s'pose he would have married her an' brought her to his home where all his friends was like Mis' Eddie? Wouldn't it have been awful fer her as well as fer him? Well, Bricktop sure did know what he was talkin' about that time when he said millionaires on'y liked gals like her to amuse themselves with.

As she thought these thoughts, slowly there crept into her heart a little feeling of shame. If Eddie hadn't been so kind he'd surely have thought her a big fool. But then, Eddie must of talked nice to her or Mis' Eddie wouldn't of wanted to stop off an' see her.

A strange upheaval was going on in Sal's bre sin, sure.

The breakfast was finally over, and Edgar and

The breakfast was finally over, and Edgar and Lorrayne arose.

"While I am here, Sal, I'm going to look over the property of the company a bit, and see how things are, so that I can make a report. As Mrs. Griegg is tired, will you give her a room and take care of her until I return?"

"Why, I sure will. I promised Bricktop that maybe I'd go ridin' with him today, but I said on'y if nothin' didn't come up. But I kin ride any day an' I can't be with Mis' Eddie 'cept today, so I'll give up the ride."

Edgar's eyes roved to Bricktop.

"What do you say, Bricktop?" he enquired.

"S'all right, Eddie, whatever Sal says, goes," he returned.

"But I shall not denrive you of your ride and expecially as today is Thenksgiving Day." be-

"But I shall not denrive you of your ride and especially as today is Thanksgiving Day—" began Lorrayne, but Brickton interrupted:
"Sal an' me kin go any time, an' maybe Eddie'll want me to go with him."
Sal smiled on him generously, for she saw that he knew she wished to stay with the beautiful wants.

woman.

Accordingly the men went off, and Sal, after putting a room into spic and span order invited Lorrayne to it.

Lorrayne sank into one of the comfortable, but need to receive the same sank into one of the comfortable.

"Well, this is really 'Out West,'" she laughed.
"Do you know, Sallie, I was never in a lumber camp before?"
"That so?" Sal commented. "An' I ain't never eamp before?"

"That so?" Sal commented. "An' I ain't never lived in no other place."

"I suppose you are just as happy here as I am at home, happier perhaps?" Lorrayne went on, though how anyone could be happier than herself, she could not imagine. A bride of a few months, life had not settled down into that comfortable, contented humdrum that is the blessing of married life.

"I was always happy 'till Eddie came," Sal admitted, "an' then I began to fall in love with him. I couldn't help it because I didn't know no better an' he was so kind. Bricktop used to say that Eddie'd be kind to the devil. An' so things went on until last Thanksgivin' Day, when I found out that he only meant to be kind to me, an' didn't mean nothin' else. He never kissed me, ner hugged me ner nothin' like that, but he didn't seem th' kind o' feller what 'and do them things. An' then he told me about you, an' I knew that I had make a mistake, an' I sent him back to you. But it didn't make things easier, an' I used to keep a thinkin' o' him, an' you, 'till I was 'most sick. But I guess I was crazy to keep on lovin' him because jest look at you an' me. There ain't nothin' the same about us."

"There is, Sallie," Lorrayne said quietly. "We are both women, and have hearts that can love. Your love honestly given, is not a whit less holy than mine. There was nothing 'crazy' in your loving Edgar, Sallie. He is a man who would attract any girl. But dear, you were not fitted for a man like him. And I am sure, little girl, the time will come when you will forget him entirely and be willing to give your heart and hand to another man who will be more to you than you ever expected Edgar to be."

"Can love come a second time, Mis' Eddie?"

"Yes, Sallie, and a second love can be even stronger than the first."

"You honest think so?" asked Sal, and as she listened to beautiful Lorrayne, and after seeing Edgar a year since the affair, seeing his real self, and as a married man, he did not seem like the same person she had so adored. "Do you honest think so?" she repeated thoughtfully.

"I really do," Lorrayne answered. "And new, Sallie, if you will leave me for a little while, I believe I shall lie down and rest."

Sal accordingly withdrew, and went downstairs to the tavern and behind the counter. A new viewpoint of life seemed opened to her. To remain faithful to a shattered romance seemed unworthy.

"Somehow," she mused, "it seems like Eddie eith themen." Leved will.

remain faithful to a shattered romance seemed unworthy.

"Somehow," she mused, "it seems like Eddie ain't the man I loved at all. I guess I'd kind of be afraid of him if I had married him. I guess maybe I'm beginning to be kind of glad I didn't get him."

The confession came from her with a directness that was startling; she never dreamed that she could ever think that. And it out, she thought of what Lorrayne had said. She might meet someone who would be more to her than she had ever expected Edgar, to be. Who would she meet? Most of the men who came to the lumber camp were married, and generally past the romantic age—and then Bricktop came to her mental vision.

The thought of the kind, unselfish man was mantic age—and then Bricktop came to her mental vision.

The thought of the kind, unselfish man was ever before her throughout the day, and there was something comforting in the thought that she had in him so good and kind a protector.

"Seems like I got a great deal to be thankful fer," she confided, "but what it is, I don't know. I know I didn't feel like this last night—I felt ornery an unthankful. Maybe, though, it's jest because I had such a swell talk with such a grand lady like Mis' Eddie. Ain't she grand, though?"

Edcar and Lorrayne were to stav over night as the next train for California would not stop until the next morning. And so the tavern was very gay that night in honor of the visitors, and the crowd stayed late. But at last they broke up, and went to the bunkhouse, all with the exception of Bricktop. And as he stayed, Lorrayne and Edgar went up-stairs to their room, begging to be excused as they would have to be up rather early the next morning.

"Well, say, this has been some Thanksgivin' Day, ain't it?" remarked Sal. "I ain't never felt so good before in a long time. I guess it's because Mis' Eddie came to visit me. Think o' that, Bricktop, her wantin' to see me, who ain't nothin'."

"Ye ain't nothin'." Bricktop contradicted, "ye "Ye ain't nothin'."

felt so good before in a long time. I guess it's because Mis' Eddie came to visit me. Think o' that. Bricktop, her wantin' to see me, who ain't nothin'."

"Ye ain't nothin'," Bricktop contradicted, "ye are a great deal, Sal, er Mis' Eddie wouldn't of wanted to see you, like she did. Say, Sal," he went on, "did ye ever figger out that I'm ten years older'n ye be?"

"Well, no, I ain't never figgered it," Sal went on, "I don't know as I ever thought whether ye was much older'n me er not. What did ye ask me such a thing for?"

"Ain't ye never guessed, Sal?" he continued, his voice growing low, and his hand with awkward shyness, slowly slid toward hers resting on the counter.

"Well, I know ye once said when I told ye about Eddie Smith an' that I loved him, that you'd be th' better man fer me. I thought ye meant that because ye lived here an' was a lumber-jack like my dad was. Did ye ask me that because ye like me?"

"Yes, Sal, because I like ye. But I more'n like ye, I love ye, an' want to marry ye jest like Eddie Smith married that swell lady he's got. I ain't said nothin' this whole year because I thought yer heart was sore fer Eddie, but ye see ye can't never have him an' honest it wouldn't be right fer ye to think about him now when he's married, would it? Do ye think ye could learn to love me, that way, Sal, so you could come an' live with me, all by ourselves? I'd try an' make ye happy an' then maybe we'd have a little baby who'd be a little bricktop like me or maybe a fluffy-head like you? Do ye think ye could, Sal, do ye?"

As he spoke, his honest love surging within him, Bricktop caught her hands tightly and swung her close to his beating heart. She let him hold her there, not consenting but not repulsing, and all the while the words of Lorrayne Griegg were dancing in her brain. Trembling, but silent, she stood encircled by his brawny arms.

And now all the kindnesses and acts of courtesy that he had bestowed upon her, came to her mind thick and fast. She was tired and the fight with the world was hard. An

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 20.)

This Department is conducted solely for the use of Contour sisters, whereby they may give expression to their ideas relative to the home and home surroundings, and to all matters pertaining to themselves and families; as well as opening a way for personal correspondence between each other.

object is to extend a helping hand to COMFORT subscribers; to become coworkers with all who seek friendship, encouragement, sympathy or assistance through the interchange of ideas.

abuse of this privilege, such as inviting cor-respondence for the purpose of offering an ar-ticle for sale, or undertaking to charge a sum of money for lileas, recipes or information men-tioned in any letter appearing in this depart-ment, if reported, will result in the offender be-ing denied the use of these columns.

ting defined the use of these communs.

Do not ask us to publish letters requesting money contributions or donations of any sort. Much as we sympathize with the suffering and unfortunate, it is impossible to do this as we would be flooded with similar requests.

Do not request souvenir postals unless you have complied with the conditions which entitles you to such a notice. See postal request notice in another column.

we cordially invite mothers and daughters of all ages to write to Comfort Sisters Corner, Every letter will be carefully read and considered, and then the most helpful ones chosen for publication, whether the writer be an old or new sub-

Please write only on one side of the paper, and recipes on a separate sheet.

Always give your correct and full name and address, very plainly written; otherwise your letter will receive no attention.

Address all letters for this department to Mrs.
WHEELER WILKINSON, CARE COMFORT, AUGUSTA

HE Cheerful Cherub of "Boston Post" fame once said something to the effect that whenever she read a beautiful poem she was just as proud and happy as though she had written it herself. These are not the exact words but it serves as an iliustration, for while I lay no claim to being the originator of the Christmas Trench Box (as outlined in letter below) for our boys at the front, I am just as happy over it as though it were my very own idea. There are Trench Boxes in many homes, no doubt, and it seems such a kind and appreciative thing for us to do and while we are about it let's make it worth while by selecting everything with care and discrimination and make each gift count. Don't send the usual Christmas necktie to the soldier who is actually in want of warm clothing and if you do, don't expect a letter of thanks. Start your Trench Box now by eliminating some of the luxuries from the Thanks.iving dinner table and donating the money saved to a better cause.

Just a word of warning though, if you wish the boxes to be received by Christmas they must be sent not later than the fifteenth of November (according to Postmaster Burleson) but if you cannot get them ready then they will be as thankfully received at a later date. And don't confine yourself to giving to the boys in the trenches for we have a great many at home, stationed in the various camps, that are just as deserving, so don't forget them.

CROCKETT, TEXAS.

DEAR COMPORT SISTERS:

I know if all the other sisters are like myself they are very enthwiastic over doing all that is within their power for Uncle Sam's boys but are not financially able, so I will tell you what I am going to do.

I am not going to give any of my friends or relatives Christmas presents this year, only cards, as they must consider that it is one great present from Above to be living in the good old U. S. A., but I am going to have a "Trench Box" and whenever I have any change to spare I'll buy something for my box and a while before Christmas I am going to send it to the Government to be forwarded to the boys in the trenches who have no one to send presents to them, as I am sure there must be some boys there who have no one to remember them and they will feel very lonely and sad at Christmas.

Of course a great many others will do just what sad at Christmas.

Of course a great many others will do just what I have planned to do, but I wanted to write this for the benefit of some of the sisters, who, like myself, are really not able to remember all our dear ones and I feel sure they had rather have us remember the boys at the front in a time like this.

With best wishes to all, Mrs. ALBERT TURNER.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

In my last number of Comport I read some of Cousin Marion's replies and it sounded very much as though some of our girls are not patriotic. Girls! Girls! Do be patriots. Do not think just because your sweetheart goes to war that he does not love you. Do you not realize that it is to protect you? My sweetheart is in the army and I am sure he doesn't love me any the less and I know I love him more for think how terrible it would be to have a coward for a lover. I never could endure a coward. Sisters, I would have been very much ashamed of him had he not enlisted. Of course I cried'a little (who wouldn't?) but I am so proud of him. Believe me, if I were a boy I would never wait to be drafted. I would feel that it was a disgrace. I thank God daily that my boy isn't a coward. Also I pray that His blessings may rest upon him alivays. If he is called to give his life for the country we all love, then I pray it will be given bravely and willingly.

Girls, send your sweethearts away with cheery words and sunny smiles. Our boys have enough to bear without our being "crybables." Be brave for "his" sake, if no other.

I did not even say good by to my boy for he was to bear without our being 'crypapies.

'his' sake, if no other.

I did not even say good by to my boy for he was miles away at the time of his enlistment. But we shall surely meet again, if not in this world, then in the glorious Home on High where there shall be no more partings. His will be done.

May the dear Father's blessings rest upon all our brave boys, is the prayer of a well-wisher of Comfort,

A Soldier's Sweethent.

Soldier's Sweetheart. A few short months ago I vowed and declared that nary a letter would I print unless the writer gave me her name and address, though I would withhold both at her request, and now here I am smashing a perfectly good rule all to little bits just because I want other people to read your letter, especially less patriotic sweethearts—and others.—Ed.

DEAR COMFORT READERS:

I do not agree with the sisters about Lonely One. If she is not willing, may, anxious, to make the necessary sacrifice for a dear one of her own, then she could never be a mother to an orphan child. Dear mothers, what are a few months at home, a few hours' pain, compared with the joy of a dear child of your very own. We have two boys, one nine and one five, and one in Heaven. We lost him when he was four years old and there is a vacant place in our home that can never be filled. I advise all women who can not have children to adopt one or more, according to their means but teach them that they are adopted. It will not lessen their love for you, rather it will atrengthen it. Of all mistakes foster parents make that is the most terrible and causes more heartache among adopted children than anything else. It may be after they have gone from you, but it is sure to come.

Comfort Sisters' Recipes

NLESS one has used a casserole they cannot appreciate how delicious meats and vegetables are when prepared in one, or how economically and daintily left-overs can be served. It not only simplifies the work but even the most inexperienced may be assured of success if they will but try. Confidence in your own ability and a careful following of directions are the most important assets a cook can acquire.

CALF'S Lives EN CASSABOLE.—Fry three slices of fat sait pork until crisp and brown, skim out the pork and to the fat add four sliced potatoes, three sliced carrots, two stalks of celery, sliced, and four small sliced onlons. Cook very slowly until browned, turn into cassecole, cover with calf's liver, cut into slices, sprinkle with sait and pepper, add two cups of boiling water. Cover and cook nearly an hour in a moderate oven.

HAM LN CASSEROLE. Trim the edges from a slice of ham, about two laches thick. Place in casserole, pour over it two cups of tomatoes, half a green pepper and a small onlon, sliced very thin. Sprinkle top with sage and cloves. Cover and bake in a slow oven two hours.

FISH AND MASHED POTATO EN CASSEROLE.—Free fish from bones, break into small pieces and season with sait and pepper. Make a cream sance of one pint of boiled nilk and two small onlons, strain and thicken with one tablespoon of butter. Stir until smooth Season. Line buttered casserole with left-over mashed potato, cover with fish, add part of sauce, cover with buttered bread crumbs and bake fifteen minutes in moderate oven.—Ed.

RICE AND CARROTS EN CASSEROLE.—Boil and chop three medium-sized carrots, and cook enough rice to make a little over a cupful. Place alternate layers of carrots and rice in a buttered caserole, and sauce made of milk, thickened with flour and seasoned. Cover with buttered bread crumbs and bake twenty minutes in a hot oven.

SCALLOPED POTATOES WITH SMOKED HAM.—Pare and slice thin as many potatoes as needed. Wash ham, cut in thin slices, and place in baking dish, put potatoes over ham and cover with sweet milk, add butter, a little sait and pepper and bake till potatoes are done. Mas. M. G. Knispel, St. Joseph, Mo.

BAKED LIVER. - Scald liver as for frying, roll thickly with lour, salt well and put in pan, using one with cover. Cover with hot water and place in oven and bake about two hours or till tender. If pienty of water is kept on it the flour will thicken it and make a delicious brown gravy. Turn frequently to avoid burning.

Ohio Girl, Ohio.

OLD-RASHIONED MACAEONI.—Pour one pint of boiling water over five ounces of macaroni: let stand one half hour, drain off, put in kettle, cover with boiling milk and cook till tender. Drain, add a cup of good sour cream, a tablespoon of brown fried butter, pepper and salt and grate stale cheese over top.

KATHERINE HOZA, Ilse, Colo.

CINNAMON CAKE.—One cup sweet milk, one half cup butter, two eggs, one cup sugar, one and one half teaspoons baking powder, a little salt and one teaspoon of cinnamon. Flour to make like sponge cake batter. Bake in loaf tin and frost with chocolate icing.

GINOUR PUFFS. One cup sour milk, one cup molasses, one cup sugar, one half cup lard and butter, one egg, one tenspoon soda, and one tenspoon of ginger. Flour to make quite stiff Drop by spoonfuls on a greased tin and bake in fairly hot oven.

on a greased the and oase in farty not oven.

Brown Sciar Cookers. One cup buttermilk or sour milk, one and one half cups brown sugar, one cup of melted lard, or any shortening, one heaping teaspoon soda and a little salt. Mix in all the flour they will take up and roll fairly thin. Sometimes I add a teaspoon of ginger.

Mrs. T. C. Ware, Whitefield, Maine.

ROAST PORK WITH BAKED APPLE SAUCE.—The loir nd spareribs are the best for roasting. Wipe pork and spareribs are t and rub with salt, pepper and flour. Put in a pan with a Put in a pan with a ittle water, in a moderate oven, and cook twenty-five minutes to the pound. Baste often. Use less heat than for other meats. Pare and core tart apples, place in an earthern baking dish, with cavities tilled with brown sugar. Bake till sugar. Bake tua very soft, and serve at one side of roast. To make attractive, garnish with pars-ley and rings of Roast po

BRAN GEMS WITHOUT EGGS.—One cup bran flour, he cup whole wheat flour, one cup sour milk, one teasoon soda, one teaspoon salt and one teaspoon baking bwder. Beat well. If too stiff, add cold water.

RICE MUFFINS.—Two and one half cups flour, one cup boiled rice, two rounding teaspoons baking powder, one half teaspoon salt, one cup milk, one egg, well beaten, one quarter cup melted butter. Sift together thoroughly the flour, baking powder and salt, Add rice, working it in with the tips of the fingers and gradually the milk, egg and butter. Bake in gem pans.

MRS. DORA WILT, FOX, Ark.

pans.

Mrs. Dora Wilt, Fox, Ark.

Buttsemilk Cookies.—Put flour in pan—about one quart—two spoons baking powder, cup of lard, one and one half cup sugar, two eggs beaten lightly, even teaspoon soda, one cup buttermilk; add to other ingredients and mix stiff. Sprinkle with sugar before cutting. Nutmeg makes an excellent flavor for these, and one may use sour milk in place of buttermilk, where the latter is not obtainable. Never use granulated sugar even in white cookies—always a soft sugar, a light brown. Subscriber, Middletown, N. Y.

CHICKEN EN CASSEROLE.—Skin and remove any excess of fat from a chicken, then cut into pieces and cook by simmering in just enough boiling water to cover. Remove chicken, and cut into dice two cupfuls. Melt three tablespoons of butter in a sauce pan, and mix in six tablespoons of dry flour till smooth; add one cup of the chicken liquor boiling hot and stir till mail and six panalas as desired and mix so the same considerable. Marmalade have the same energy value as one tablespoon of butter and may be used on bread, toast, muffins or griddle cakes most acceptably at one half the cost. The following is an excellent recipe for marcup of the chicken liquor boiling hot and stir till POTATO CAEL - Two thirds cup butter, two cups sugar, two cups flour, one cup hot, mashed potators, one half cup sweet milk, four eggs, two teaspoons baking powder, one half cup chococlete, one cup chopped walnuts, one teaspoon each cloves, cinnamon, nutmeg and vamilla extract. Cream butter and sugar, add sweet milk and mashed potatoes, sift flour, baking powder, chocolate and spices in and add eggs, chopped walnuts and extract. Hake in an moderate oven.

MRS. MAREL SMALL, Undeau, Cal.

WHITE CASE, SURVINGE, EGGS.

WHITE CARE, WITHOUT EGGS - One cup sugar, one cup sweet milk, three tablespoons of butter, melted, two cups sifted flour, two teaspoons baking powder and a pinch of sait. Bake.

MRS. CLARA L. HOWLING, Ypsilanti, Mich

CHRISTMAS CAKE.—One cup sugar, one egg, butter or lard size of large egg, one cup wine or blackberry juice, pinch of soda, one heaping teaspoon baking powder, one half cup pecan nuts, chopped fine, flavor to taste and flour enough to make a stiff dough. Bake in layers and put together with chocolate filling, or in loaf form as desired.

MES. R. W. JENKINS, Deport, Texas.

PUFF BALLS.— Two eggs, one cup milk, one teaspoon baking powder, one teaspoon salt and flour to make spoon batter. Beat the eggs very light, add milk, flour, baking powder and salt and beat for ten minutes Fry in deep fat, smoking hot Serve with maple syrup.

MES. W. A. HANNES, Mct lure, N. Y.

MOLASSES COCKES.—Boll one cup of molasses about four minutes, add one teaspoon of soda after molasses cools a little. Beat one egg into another dish, add one third cup sugar, a little ginger and salt and one tablespoon of vinegar. To this add molasses and soda and enough flour to roll. Roll thin and bake Roll thin and bak

Graham Cookh's - Two eggs, two cups buttermilk, two cups graham flour, one cup pastry flour, two cups sugar, one half cup melted butter and two even teaspoons of soda. Mix the eggs, sugar and melted butter. Add the buttermilk, soda and flour. Roll out into one eighth inch thick sheets and cut with a square cutter or sharp knife. Bake in a moderate oven in flourdusted tins. one eggan.

ter or sharp knife. Bake m a dusted tins.

MRS. BENJAMIN SCHNIDT, Mt. Vernon, Ind.

MRS. DENJAMIN SCHNIDT, Mt. Vernon, Ind.

OATMEAL COOKIES.—Three cups onthreal, two cups flour, one cup lard, mixed with a little butter, one and one half cups sugar, one cup sour milk, two eggs, one teaspoon soda, one cup raisins or dates chopped fine, one half teaspoon nutmeg and flour to make a soft dough.

MRS. C. LYNCH, Orofine, Ida.

soft dough. Mrs. C. Lynch, Orofino, Ida.
Chocollate Pr. One cup milk, one half cup sugar, butter size of walnut and one and one half tablespoons cores. Put on stove to boll. Dissolve two tablespoons cornstarch in water and stir in the above mixture when it boils. When thick enough pour into a baked crust. Add vanilla when taking off stove This fills one ple.

Pumpkin Pies without Eggs — Two cups of stewed pumpkin, two heaping tablespoons of flour, four teaspoons of butter, one half cup of sugar, two table spoons of molasses, one cup of sweet milk, and spices to taste. This makes enough filling for two pies.

NUT MINCE PIES. -One cup of wainut meats, chopped fine, two cups chopped apples, one cup seeded raisins, one and one half cups sugar, one teaspoon allspice and cinnamon, one half teaspoon cloves and salt, one half cup each vinegar and water. Max well and bake in two pies. MISS AGNES TRAVISS, Platte, S. Dak

APPLE SNOW BALLS - Swell rice in milk and strain Have ready cooking apples, pared and cored. But the rice around them, with a little cinnanou, clove or lemon in each and tie in a cloth and boil until done. Serve with cream or sauce.

RICE PUDDING .-- Wash and scald a teacupful of rice add a cup of sugar and three pints of sweet milk, a little nutmeg and raisins. Bake slowly until rice a little nutmeg and the soft is very soft Mss. C. F. RITCHEL, Center Point, Ark

Snow Pudding.—One plnt of boiling water, three heaping tablespoons of corn-starch; beat the whites of three eggs to a stiff froth, moisten the corn-starch in a little cold water then stir it into the boiling water; while then stir it into the boiling water; while still boiling add a tablespoon of sugar, a pinch of sait and the beaten whites of eggs. Let boil a few minutes to cook thoroughly and pour into mold to cool. For sauce rings of ROAST PORK WITH BAKED APPLE SAUCE. three eggs and Roast pork is more wholesome served cold. pint of milk, sweetened and flavored to taste.

MINNIE O. MACKINTOSH, San Diego, Cal.

MINNIE O. MACKINTOSH, San Diego, Cal.

BERF SUET SHORTENING. (Requested.)—Buy five pounds of beef suct and three pounds of fresh pork, the fat pieces which are used in making sausages are best. Wash the beef suct and let stand in cold salt water two hours to remove the blood. Then put into an iron pot if you have one, cover with cold water and let cook slowly until all the water has been cooked out and the lard is a clear color. Wash the pork fat and cut in small pieces and let stand in salt water two hours. Cook the same as the beef suct and when the fat gets crisp and brown the lard is done. Let cool a little, strain each and mix the lard with the beef lard while it is warm. Pour into your lard pails to cool. This makes a very nice shortening for biscuit, etc. Miss Flora Payne, Irwin, Va.

Chanberry Foam.—Two cups hot water, one cup su-

CRANBERRY FOAM.—Two cups hot water, one cup sugar, two tablespoons corn-starch, juice of one lemon. Cook all together five minutes. Add whites of three eggs and add one quart of cranberries, cooked in one and one half cups cold water. Put through sieve and add as many bananas as desired and mix well together.

MRS. E. L. B., Norwich, N. Dak.

CHICKEN EN CASSEROLE.

it thickens; add three quarters of a cup of soft bread crumbs, haif a cup of rich cream, salt and pepper to taste, a little chopped parsley and finely minced onion, the diced chicken, and simmer fifteen minutes. Add the beaten yolks of four eggs, and fold in the beaten beaten yolks of, four eggs, and fold in the beaten whites. Bake thirty-five minutes in individual or large baking dish.

baking dish.

Fruit Cake.—One pound butter, two pounds raisins, two pounds currants, one half pound orange and lemon peel, three cups sugar, one cup molasses, eight eggs, one cup sour milk, one cup strong coffee, five cups flour, one tablespoon cinnamon, spice and soda, one pound nuts, chopped fine, half a grated nutmeg.

MRS. FAYETTE BRADLEY, Huntington, Ark.

their means but teach them that they are adopted it will not lessen their love for you, rather it will strengthen it. Of all mistakes foster parents make that is the most terrible and causes more heartache among adopted children than anything else. It may be after they have gone from you, but it is sure to come.

I want to shake Mrs. J. M., and hard too. Imagine pourself dead—how would you like to know your husband would deny his love for you to another woman.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 7.)

MRS. FATETTE BRADLEY, Huntington, Ark.

APPLE SAUCE CAKE.—One cup sugar, one half cup butter, one and one half cups apple sauce, one table-spoon soda, one tablespoon hot water, two cups flour, one small cup walnut meats, one small cup raisins, pinch of salt and one teaspoon vanilla. Cream butter and sugar, add apple sauce. Dissolve soda in the tow two cups of the complex of the compl ter and seven cups sugar. Peel oranges, removing all white skin and slice thin. Slice lemon with rind on; cover oranges and lemon with cold water; let stand twenty-four hours. Then boil three hours, add sugar and let boil one hour. Pour into glasses, cool and cover. This recipe makes nine glasses of marmalade. IDELLA NEWCOMB, Los Angeles, 835 S. Olive St., Cal.

IDELLA NEWCOMB, Los Angeles, 835 S. Olive St., Cal. DIVINITY CANDY. (Superior.)—Two and two thirds cup sugar, white granulated cane, two thirds cup Karo (a corn syrup put up in tins, white is best), two thirds cup cold water. Stir these well together, set on stove to boil down to a crackling syrup or until it will thread or harden in cold water. Must not be stirred or jarred while cooking. Have ready beaten to a stiff froth (until one can turn upside down) whites of two eggs on a large cold platter. Stir the hot crackling syrup into eggs beating the mixture with a fork briskly all the while and until cool (not cold); stir in a cup or more of nut-meats (English walnuts most usually used) before too cold and pour onto a buttered platter or large marble (smooth and clean for the purpose) to cool. Nut meats should be rolled or chopped and a few drops of desired flavoring extract and fruit coloring put in while candy is being stirred; heat evaporates extracts.

Easy to make up Jell-O

For making the newest things in desserts and salads, Jell-O is being used by the best cooks as well as by women in millions of homes who do all of the work about the house as well as the cooking.

Cooks use Jell-O because it is more satisfactory than anything else for the finest desserts and salads.

Women generally use

JELL-O

first of all, because better things can be made of it, at the price, than anything

In wealthy homes Jell-O is popular because it is too good to go without.

In homes of people of moderate means is a part of the noon-day meal regularly for the reason that it costs only 10 cents and can be made up into the most delicious and beautiful desserts and other dishes by any woman, cook or no cook, even if she can only "boil water."

Jell-O is sold at the low price of 10 cents a package in all grocery stores and general stores everywhere in America. There are seven different fruit flavors, as follows: Raspberry, Strawberry, Lemon, Orange, Cherry, Peach, Choc-

The new Jell-O Book describes new Jell-O salads, "whips," knickknacks, and dainties of almost unlimited variety. Recipes for everyday salads and desserts are given first place in it, and particularly the new things in fruity Jell-O desserts.

A copy will be sent to you free if you will send us your name and address. a package your name and address. THE GENESEE PURE FOOD COMPANY, Le Roy, N. Y., and Bridgeburg, Ont.

The beating of this candy is what makes it good :{ different from cake frosting; it cannot be beaten too much after it comes off the fire; if made right, it should be smooth and satiny and not grain like sugar.

LILLIE D. ELDRIDGE, Chiricahus. Ariz.

Chocolate Creams.—Two cups granulated sugar, one half cup milk or water; boll hard for five minutes; flavor with vanilla. Stir briskly until it creams sufficiently to mould into size desired. Dissolve chocolate over stemming teakettle, then drop in one cream at a time till covered with chocolate. Lay them on a platter to deep ter to dry.

Miss C. Elizabeth Wiggins, Robertsonville, N. C.

PEANUT BUTTER.—One and one half pound of peanuts, after shells and brown skins have been removed. Grind through food chopper, using finest cutter, and mix with one pound melted butter. Tried and true. MRS. MATTIE E. STEGMILLEE, Belvidere, III.

Pie is the nation's daily dessert and real mince pie is the pie of pies, not only for Thanksgiving and Christmas, but for all good dinners. Use at all times

NONE SUCH MINCE MEAT

"Like Mother Used To Make" It's wholesome—nutritious—delicious.
And in these days of food economy it is good to remember that one piece of None Such Mince Pie goes a long way toward a meal. Merrell-Soule Co., Syracuse, N. Y.

Copyright, 1900, by Street and Smith Scrial rights by W. H. Gannett, Pub., Inc.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Lady Annesley, stepmother to Sir Thomas and Ravenel Annesley, disapproves of Adrian Gordon, who is in love with Ravenel. Receiving an appointment to India Adrian seals his proposal and Ravenel's promise for an early marriage, by giving her a beautiful ring of diamonds and opals. Not daring to wear it she slips it on a ribbon on her neck. Ravenel bids Adrian good by, unconscious that their conversation, held near the edge of a quarry is heard by Lady Annesley's confidential maid. Four days later Ravenel receives a letter from Adrian that he will go to the Duchess of Avonmore's party and names the following day for their marriage. Lady Annesley, apparently anxious for Ravenel to make a good appearance at the party provides her with a new dress. Ravenel is unsuspicious of intrigue, but Sir Thomas, only sixteen, suspects the scheming woman and her designs on Lord Levallion, a former suitor for her hand, as Ravenel's future husband. Going to the party and not meeting Adrian, Ravenel, with a sob in her throat, wanders through the garden, where she meets Lord Levallion, not knowing it is he. Weary and wanting to go home he offers to take her there. Arriving home she hunts for the lost ring. SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

CHAPTER IV. (CONTINUED.)

S Ravenel crept away, utterly hopeless, Sylvia Annesley was standing in the duchess' drawing-room, with a heart that beat high in joyful surprise.

"What!" she cried incredulously, "What!" she cried incredulously, her!"

"I met her," Lord Levallion returned dryly, "during the afternoon. You had decked her out to meet the eye, hadn't you?"

But Lady Annesley did not flinch. Instead, she did not seem to have heard his fleering voice. She had grown pale under her rouge, and she laid a quick, insistent hand on his arm.

"When did you go? What time?" she cried sharply. "And did you meet any one on the road? Was there any one waiting at the Chase when you got there?"

"No. There was not, to my knowledge—any one!" with an exact imitation of her tone. "No one cither met or waylaid us."

So that was the reason of the tears! Madam Sylvia had somehow tricked the girl into coming here, and now was frightened into her little shoes for fear she had not stayed long enough. For Lady Annesley's smile, for once, was absent.

"Tell them to get my carriage, will you?" she said slowly. "I must go, too. That foolish, headstrong girl of mine may be ill. Perhaps you will come over tomorrow?"

Tomorrow Lord Levallion had meant should see him in London. He shook his head for sole answer, but decided to wait a day all the same, I dare say you are wise to get home!" She looked quite old, he saw, in her sudden anxiety, and he wondered cynically just what ailed her, for she scarcely said good by, as he saw her into her shabby fly.

That vehicle seemed to crawl to its impatient occupant. But at last she reached her own door, with as quick a step as Ravenel's own, her room, where the Umbrella sat limply waiting.

"Adams, what time did Miss Annesley get home?" She demanded sharply. "Was there any one here? Quick! Any one?"

The Umbrella rose stolidly.

"Not when Miss Annesley. came." she said slowly, and her hearer thought she did it on pursere

The Umbrella rose stolidly.
"Not when Miss Annesley came," she said slowly, and her bearer thought she did it on purpose. "Everything has been all quite right, my lady. A gentleman called, though, and left his card."

card."
"It dosen't matter," sharely, but she glanced at it with such relief that her head swam, before she tore it to pieces. "It was no one I minded missing."

And if there was the familiar.

missing."

"No, my lady." And if there was the familiarity of a confidante in the woman's tone Lady Annesley did not notice it, nor that she neatly collected the bits of torn card off the floor.

Her ladyship felt really dizzy with fatigue, or emotion, as she flung herself into a chair.

"I'll dine up here," she said slowly. It was all right and her net seemed to have caught Levallion, but such days were aging. She had fought her Waterloo, and she felt the reaction even of victory. Tired to death, the weight of the rings on her slender hands felt unbearable.
Her ladyship rose softly and hastily and locked the gorgeous things away.

all right and her net seemed to have caught Levallion, but such days were aging. She had fought her Waterloo, and she felt the reaction even of victory. Tired to death, the weight of the rings on her slender hands felt unbearable. Her ladyship rose softly and hastily and locked the gorgeous things away.

CHAPTER V.

HER WEDDING DAL.

Half-past two o'clock, and her wedding day. Ravenel Annesley looked at herself in the glass curiously as at another person. She had on a clean white duck dress—having looked with a shudder at yesterday's unlucky silk and muslin—offling of her stepmother's should go to her adorning on her wedding-day! But in her plain white gown she was lovely, and with a keen thrill of joy she knew it. Thank God, Adrian's bride was pretty, even if she went to him in a cotton gown!

And in half an hour she would see him; tell him of her lost ring—for, think as she might, she could not see how either Lady Annesley or her maid could have taken or even seen it; her cotton slip bodice had been carefully buttoned over it—of yesterday's party, and of how she had waited vainly for him. She onened her door and stole through the house. She would not take Tommy. She would go alone to church with Adrian; all alone, would promise and vow to be his always. She hurried through the garden and down to the back gate.

She would go alone to church with Adrian; all alone, would promise and vow to be his always. She hurried through the garden and down to the back gate.

It was early still, and silly to expect him; yet she had a foolish pang of disappointment as she looked up and down the empty white road outside.

"He'll be here in a minute," she said to herself confidently, "and then I'll feel happy again. I hope he won't be angry about that ring, And I wish I knew how I lost it!"

She sat down in the shade just inside the gate and lost herself in a happy dream. Some day—soon perhaps—Adrian would come back from India, and carry her and Tommy off under her ladyship's nose, who could go anywhere she pleased, for the Chase was certain to be sold over her head.

"And I shouldn't care. I've been too wretched here," she thought passionately. And then something startled her.

The stable clock had rung. Why was Adrian late, who was always so early?

"I never knew how awful it was to wait!" she cried, springing up. "I feel as if I couldn't sit still. I'll walk up and down till I count a thousand steps, and a thouthousand steps, and then I'll look at the road again."

But she paced a thousand steps, and a thousand again; there was no sign of Adrian Gordon.

"Oh!" in spite of herself she trembled, "it can't be going to be like yesterday. He must be coming."

Her heart quaking, she wished she had brought Tommy. This was too awful. The tears came to her eyes. She could not walk any longer, yet how could she sit still? She shivered in the hot, how could she sit still? She shivered in the hot, sweet sun.

"Oh, Adrian, hurry!" she whispered childishly, as if he must hear her; and then sat down on the green bank by the road as if she were suddenly weak. For the stable clock had struck four.

It was a long lane, and no one passed by to see a girl in a white frock sitting on the grass, careless of greening the spotless whiteness of her wedding-gown; no one looked with a wondering eye at the sick despair in her face, as she sat dumb and motionless—waiting for the man who by this time should have been her husband.

When the slow clock rang six, Ravenel Annesley got up, steadying herself carefully. She was chilly and stiff, and though she did not know it, broken-hearted.

Truth and honor and love, dead letters to her, she looked once more down the quiet laine to the quarry, where she and Adrian Gordon had kissed with lips that were quick and kind. Well, he had spoken the truth when he said she would have but a poor wedding-day!

She crept home at last, white as her cotton gown. With only one thought—to get unseen to her own room—she went into the house through the open window of the drawing-room, where no one ever sat. But today it was, for once, occupied.

Fairly inside the French window before she had driven her home last evening. Ravenel, by instinct, put up her hand to cover her trembling lip. In her white gown, with her whiter face, she looked like a ghost as she stood staring. Lord Levallion had the grace not to look at her as he came forward, and took her cold, indifferent hand. Lady Annesley put down her cup petrishly.

"Why do you never come in by the door like a Christian?" she said. "You quite startled me. Lord Levallion has come over to ask how you are

Lord Levallion? So this was he. Well, it was all one to her! There was only one man in all the world who mattered to Ravenel Annesley, and he had forsaken her. She turned to go, stumbling on the windowsill.

"Come and sit down. You look tired to death,"

Thank God she could not get any paler! And the Annesleys were ever proud. This one, who was but a child and hurt to the heart, kept her face steady.

"Yes," she said, and her voice sounded quite natural, for she heard it as though it were some one else's. "Why? Was Captain Gordon dull?" "Extremely noisy, on the contrary. Delighted, evidently, to be getting away."

But she heard Levallion's answer through the whirl of a hundred thoughts that seemed to sound and move in her head. Adrian had gone to India!—gone without a word of good by, broken all his promises, forsaken her with a false, lying letter. Oh, Adrian, Adrian!

Desperately, like a savage, Ravenel stuck her steel hat-pin straight into her finger, and the sharp pain steadied her. She must not—dare not—think of him now. Whatever happened she must be brave before her ladyship and Levallion. And that wild cry at her heart was stifling her. Oh, Adrian—Adrian!

"What's the matter? Have you cut your hand?" cried her stepmother shrilly. Levallion was no fool; he had probably put two and two together already! She was thankful to see a tangible reason for the girl's strange pallor and quietude. Ravenel nodded. Not for anything in the world could she have spoken without giving voice to that cry in her soul to Adrian Gordon, who was on the sea.

If Sylvia Annesley had known it, nothing else that cry in her soul to Adrian Gordon, who was on the sea.

If Sylvia Annesley had known it, nothing else in the world would have so softened Lord Levallion's heart to the girl she meant him to marry as the sight of her sitting pale as death and as proud.

"God! there's stuff in the child!" he reflected swiftly. "And I'll help her. Madam Sylvia's been up to some low trick with her, I'll lay my life!" but his voice was cooler than usual as he quietly cut off another question from that muchtried woman.

"That pin has gone through your finger, Miss Annesley, he interposed quietly. "You should go at once and bathe it with hot water. They are nasty things—hat-pins," and he rose composedly and opened the door for Ravenel to leave the room.

and opened the too.

If any one had told her three days ago that she would ever have been grateful to Lord Levallion she would have laughed in their face. But now she looked at him as a caged bird might do when suddenly set free; like the bird, slipped through the door he had opened for her, dumb and dazed, but—thank God!—safe away from careless of greening the spotless whiteness of her wedding gown; no one looked with a wondering eye at the sick despair in her face, as she sat dumb and motionless—waiting for the man who by this time should have been her husband. When the slow clock rang six, Ravenel Annesley got up, steadying herself carefully. She was shilly and stiff, and though she did not know it, broken-hearted.

Truth and honor and love, dead letters to her, she looked once more down the quiet lane to the quarry, where she and Adrian Gordon had kissed with lips that were quick and kind. Well, he had spoken the truth when he said she would have but a poor wedding-day!

She crept home at last, white as her cotton gown. With only one thought—to get unseen to her own room—she went into the house through the open window of the drawing-room, where no one ever sat. But today it was, for once, occupied.

Fairly inside the French window before she saw the two people in the room, she turned whiter than ever.

Lady Annesley, in her best tea-gown, drinking tea; and beside her, the low sun full on his handsome, sneering face, the strange man who had driven her home last evening. Ravenel, by instinct, put up her hand to cover her trembling lip. In her white gown, with her whiter face, she looked like a ghost as she stood staring.

Lord Levallion returned to his seat.

"What have you been doing to that child, Sylvia?" so use trying to foor either than the inquired harshly. "You have delicately suggested you would like me to marry her. but I warn you it is no use trying to force either her or me into it. If I want to marry her I shall, twit is not any too likely. And the more you seem that the wite here or me into it. If I want to marry her I shall, twit is not any too likely. And the more you me into it. If I want to marry her I shall, twit is not any too likely. And the more you me into it. If I want to marry her I shall, twit is not any too likely. And the more or me into it. If I want to marry her I shall, twit is not any too likely. And the more o

"I—we—don't get on! It is a grief to me," she said prettily.

Levallion smiled. Any other man would have laughed outright; but he was not given to laughter. Fancy Sylvia—Sylvia!—scheming and match-making for him. It was better than any play. She had been clever, too, to have found out that he was thinking of marrying. He was forty-seven years old, and had no one to inherit either title or estates but his second cousin. If Lady Annesley had known her peerage better, she might have thought twice of meddling with Adrian Gordon's love-affairs.

"I should advise you to try and get on—while I am here," he broke the pause abruptly. "I do not like jars and tears."

Lady Annesley trembled. She saw her dreams of Levallion's country houses and a comfortable allowance—above all, a position, as Lady Levallion's mother—fading into thin air.

"The girl is dull here," she said. "I can't help it. She wants a change, I suppose, and I can't give it to her."

"Take her to town for a week."

help it. She want can't give it to her.

can't give it to her."

"Take her to town for a week."

Her ladyship looked at him, her beautiful delicate face for once sincere.

"Walk there, camp in Piccadilly, walk home again!" she observed. "What a delightful program! That is the only way I could manage it."

"Perhaps so," returned Lord Levallion equably, and rose to go. He had his own thoughts on the subject, but as yet they did not burn to be made public. He meant to come over again before he went to town himself, but he did not mention that, either. He would not come to see Sylvia, nor did he wish to be considered her ally. Sir Thomas Annesley from a convenient post on the stairs, watched the visitor's exit, and then repaired with haste to his sister's room.

"Ravenel, let me in, I say!" he demanded, pounding on the door.

But he got no answer.

Ravenel, face down, lay on her bed convulsed with rage and shame to think that she should be crying herself sick for Adrian Gordon, who had left her like a dog he was tired of—left her with lying promises he had not cared to keep—and taken the best part of her with him.

"Ravenel, let me in, can't you? I want to speak to you!" Sir Thomas' persistent pounding reached her deaf ears at last.

She got up trembling and began to bathe her stained face with cold water.

"I can't, Tommy! I—I'm washing," she called out angrily.

"Well, hurry up and I'll wait!"

Ravenel, sponge in hand, flung the door open.

"Come in and be done!" she cried. "What is it?"

Her face was plotched and natchy with cry-

"Come in and be done!" she cried. "What is it?"

Her face was blotched and patchy with crying, and the boy's eyes kindled as he saw it.

"What's that brute Levallion been saying to you?" he demanded. "And what's Gordon gone off for like this?"

"He's gone off because he's sick of me; he's thrown me over." She spoke brutally. She was not going to gloss things over to Tommy. "And Lord Levallion hasn't done anything. He's the only decent person I know," with which the door banged once more in Sir Thomas' face.

Gordon sick of her—and Levallion decent! The boy was dumb with amazement. She would be praising her ladyship next. He went slowly away and sought Mr. Jacobs.

"My good dog," he said disgustedly to that villainous animal, "there's going to be trouble!"

CHAPTER VI. A VERY CLEVER PERSON.

A VERY CLEVER PERSON.

Lord Levallion and the Duchess of Avonmore sat at breakfast in the duchess' own sitting-room. It was one of her habits seldom to breakfast with her guests, but to have one chosen companion at her own table. Avonmore was Liberty Hall since the death of the duke, who had not been exactly a comfortable partner for his handsome wife. She never allowed, even to herself, that she was happier without him, but the world knew it, as it knows everything unpublished. She sat now in a Norfolk jacket and a short skirt, making an extensive breakfast. Since seven o'clock she had been tramping from her dairy to her hen walks, as thriftily as any farmer's wife. But her handsome, weather-beaten face, with its shrewd, keen eyes, and her beautifully dressed white hair, made her look dignified, in spite of her short skirts and her full-blown figure.

in spite of her short skirts and her full-blown figure.

Lord Levallion was drinking a cup of teavery slowly—and looking at some dry toast with distaste. He had not been trudging in the morning air, and had had a bad night into the bargain. But the duchess and he were old friends, and he did not trouble himself to make conversation.

She shook her head at him as she saw his untouched breakfast.

"That's not the way to get to a green old age, Levallion!" she observed as she took a second helping of bacon. "But I suppose it's London habits that stick by you. Are you really off this morning?" He nodded.

"Surely you're coming up again soon?" inquiringly, for she had been tempted into the country for a week by the perfect weather, and had stayed to give her yearly garden-party and get it over. "You will be losing the cream of things!"

"I'm going up next week. To tell you the truth, Levallion, I feel lonely when I get to my town house and haven't my dairy and my chickens to amuse me! It's a big, desolate barrack, you know, and I hate it. If I'd had a daughter to bring out it might be different," wistfully, "but without a chick or a child what are town parties to me?"

"Adopt one!" said Levallion, not unkindly.

""Adopt one!" said Levallion, not unkindly. to me?"
"Adopt one!" said Levallion, not unkindly.

"Adopt one!" said Levallion, not unkindly.
The duchess shook her head.
"Too risky! But I thought of having some girl to stay with me, if I could find the right girl."
"You've two nieces!" Levallion was clever; not at one of his uninterested voice betrayed that he had an object in his idle talk.
"Odious brats!" returned the duchess sharply.
They were the late duke's nieces, not hers. "I. couldn't stand either of them for a day. The only girl I've seen and taken a fancy to is that nice-looking child of old Tom Annesley's. But I don't want to have any dealings with that yellow-haired stepmother of hers. I beg your pardon, Levallion! I forgot you were a friend of hers."

Lord Levallion looked up, a curlous expression on his pale, handsome face.
"You need not beg my pardon," he said. "But I assure you Lady Annesley is—a very clever person!"

"She's a detestable one!" retorted the duchess smartly. "And I don't think those children have much of a life with her. I declare, you might have knocked me down with a feather when I saw the girl here in a decent gown the other day! have knocked me down with a feather when I saw the girl here in a decent gown the other day! Usually her clothes are disgraceful; last winter that woman used to let her go about blue with cold." Her grace of Avonmore, being a duchess, did not trouble to talk like one, except to people she disliked. And she had a soft spot for Levallion, in spite of his record.

His lordship hid a grin in his teacup. So he had been correct in his little idea that it was for him Sylvia had prepared her lamb!

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 13.)

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 5.

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 5.

Honor and love him all the more because he did love her. That is past and doad and a dead love can never ham you. But, my dear woman, if you should discover that he loved a living woman then you would know trouble. How old are you. You remind me of a spilled, jealous baby? Be thankful for your good hus band and his love, is my advice and prey that you may always hold it. I have a dear, good husband and I do not fear that he will ever deny that he loves me truly. But if he has another wife after I am gone. I hope he will love her as well as he does me.

With love for all the sisters, A Montana Mother.

Montana Mother. On the title page of this issue is a poem containing these lines;

"But, while we feast, we cannot quite dispel Regret for lost ones whom we love so well. Yet why thus grieve? There is no vacant chair Within our hearts."

And don't you think, "there is no vacant chair within our hearts," a beautiful and comforting thought? I trust you may find it so.—Ed.

DUTCH FLAT, CAL.

Defer Flat, Cal.

Dear Sisters:

To Mrs. J. M. of Montana, I am a second wife and there are two people I would never be jealous of and they are a dead woman or a divorced one. The first wife had her place and time. The past is gone, why live in it. I should say to my husband's sisters, 'She is dead, as she ever will be, so what is the use of talking about her.'' If you make yourself essential to your husband's happiness you need not worry about coming first.

Birth control. Those who are happily married and can afford a large family should have it, but if the care and responsibility falls too heavily upon the children some one must suffer unjustly. It would lessen sin, misery, heartaches, sickness and death of criminals if the sick and drunkards had no children.

Mrs. L. T., your husband has not had the right sort of education. Way not try paying no attention but sometimes say, 'where did you say you wanted this chair?' and ask him so many times he will get tired. Say to him, 'Thid you notice how Mr. Smith always asks his wife's opinion? and he is such a smart man,'' or, 'Tho you notice how Mr. Brown lets his wife have her own way in unimportant things?'' Don't put it on too thick at first but keep it up.

Here is something that amused me so I will pass it on toy ou.

Here is something that amused me so a war part on to you.

How to Train a Husband. Aunt Chloe has had several husbands so she ought to know. "Allus let a man think he's boys, honey," she said. "Allus ask his advice about eberyting, den go ahead and do what suits you best. Neber scold a man. About tree times a year tell him what you tink ob him, in a deep voice. An if he sasses you back, jus bust him on de haid wid whateber you can reach. De rest ob de year, leave him be. Cook him good meals, and laugh at his jokes. If you does dis you can't lose a good man's lub."

Best wishes to you all, Mrs. A. B. Webdwood.

REGAN, R. R. I. N. DAK.
DEAR COMPORT SISTERS AND MRS. WILKINSON:
I think COMPORT is one of the best papers I ever read as it has so many helpful departments. Often I have pondered over a certain question and when I happen to pick up my paper and start reading some of the departments I find an answer that is satisfactory to my mm.1.

have pondered over a certain question and when I happen to pick up my paper and start reading some of the departments I find an answer that is satisfactory to my mind.

A few words about the Baby Outfit, I think "Willi," has very good ideas about the outfit but the outfit the U. S. Dept. of Labor lists isn't within reach of us all. These are what I call the necessary things: Twenty-four diapers, the bird's eye are more absorbent when new than outling diannel; twelve little squares about twelve by twelve for the inner diaper, those used the first three or four days should be burned. For pinning blankets, I took two diapers and put them together and by putting the selvage side together there were no seams and it did very nicely. A baby doesn t need pinning blankets after it is two or three months old and to buy them would be a useless expense. Three outling flannel (fertrade petticoats, five little dresses and two or three salirts. I prefer wool as a baby needs wool over its abdomen till it is at least two or three years old. Keeping a baby's body and feet warm aids in keeping disorders out of the digestive organs and that is essential to a healthy baby. Two pairs of wool stockings, three abdominial bands, wool and a little cotton mixed, five by twenty-seven inches, and by notching sides and ends they do not need to be hemmed as the the least rolled edges on baby assures the most comfort. Three nighties of outing flannel or baby flannel. For the mother to have on hand: Gauze, two five-yard boxes, absorbent cotton, two pounds, one and one half yard olicloth for mattress protector, Castile soap, bed pan, one quart alcohol, if obtainable, one bottle vascline, camphor, for baby's breast. I mention this in particular as many mothers do not know that both boy and girl babies have mikk in their breasts and camplor dries it away.

It is well to have a baby blanket to wrap baby in when handling it, and an old sheet or two for bed pads. Coat, cap, shoes, etc. can be bought or made later.

I have two healthy children, a gir boy weighed nearly that at five and had not gained much at seven months.

I don't like to pry in anyone's family affairs but I believe I agree with Willie in thinking that I would soon show Mr. L. T. who would have the placing of the furniture. The house is a woman's given property to make as pleasant as she knows how. If there is any certain change that a husband would like in the furniture I think it an ill-dispositioned wife who would not please him but if he insists on having the say about everything in the house, he is anything but a loving husband.

LOUISVILLE, R. R. 4, MISS.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND COMPORT SISTERS:

I have wanted to write a letter to COMPORT for several months, to thank the kind editor for publishing my letter in the February number. So many wrote me that, owing to my invalidism, it was impossible to answer all the dear letters received. Everyone wanted me to tell more about myself so, with Mrs. Wilkinson's permission, I'll tell them a little through this corner.

son's permission, I'll tell them a little through this corner.

All made the natural mistake of thinking me a young girl and will, no doubt, be surprised to learn that I am a little widow, with dark brown hair and eyes and fair complexion. Have no children. Live with my mother and younger brother and sister. I have been an invalid fifteen years; and the operation spoken of in my former letter has not proven a success for I am obliged to stay in bed half the time. When able to sit up I do fancy work and piece quilts and I want to thank all who sent me quilt pieces and thread. And also everyone who sent me a letter. Was unable to thank all personally, though I've written to a great many but I want all to know how I appreciated their letters and everything sent me. Compour is a thousand times dearer to me now than ever before, although I've always loved it. It has been instrumental in bringing untold sunshine into my life.

With love and good wishes, I am a loving and grateful friend to all.

Mas. Ludie Griffin.

W. VA.

I have been a reader of the Sisters' Corner for eight years and have been too timid to write but when I read Mrs. J. M.'s letter I just had fo write and tell her how silly and selfish she is. If she is so jealous and silly as to think that her husband should love her better than he did his first wife she doesn't deserve to be loved at all. And I fear if she keeps on doubting his love she will forfeit what love he does bear her.

ing his love she will forfeit what love he does bear her.

I have been married six years to a good man who had been married before and I have never once thought that he should love me better than he did his first wife. He has a dear little daughter whom I love very dearly and although she calls me mamma I have taught her to love and reverence her dead mother's memory and though she loves me I know it is not like the reverent love she bears her mother.

I am twenty-three years old, have dark red har, brown eyes, a freekled complexion and am five feet eight inches tail, so you see I am not a bit pretty. I have always lived in the country and, of course, don't think I would like to live in the city. I have two little boys, five and two years of age.

Contented Second Wife.

American Comment

By Mary Harrod Northend

Copyright, 1917, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

select? In the Choice of foods those contributing starch and sugar in the right amount should be provided, especially where the members of the family are active, where there is muscular activity, such as working on a farm, digging, or severe athletic exercises, active children need it, and the future health of their bodies will suffer, if they are not provided with the proper amount. Under normal conditions the potato is served at least once a day in nearly all American families and in many households it forms a substantial part of all meals. Therefore, last season's scarcity and high price, which changed the potato from the cheapest of foods to a costly luxury, caused nation-wide distress. Fortunately the present crop is the largest ever, and we should use more potatoes than ever in order to save the less bulky food for our soldiers and allies in Europe.

The potato is put on the table, boiled, baked, fried or mashed. There are many cooks who cannot boil a potato, so it will come on the table a snowy, feathery looking ball, ready to fall apart at the touch of a fork.

To boil a new potato properly, scrub it with a vegetable brush (these can be purchased at any general store for five cents, and can be sent by mail to any part of the United States for four cents postage, or a home-made one can be made by cutting an old whisk clothes brush about an inch below the typig). Then scrape off the rest of the skin, placing them at once in a kettle of boiling water. If they are old potatoes, scoop out the eyes with a p-inted knife. Let them soak in cold water for one hour, then put them in boiling water (as all water-soaked vegetables are those put into warm,—not boiling water (as all water-soaked vegetables are those put into warm,—the water for one hour, then put them in boiling water (as all water-soaked vegetables from twenty-five from twenty-nee to thirty-live minutes. Do not boil them fiercely but keep them at a bubbling point. When they are done, drain off the water and sprinkle with salt, and cover tightly. Let them set on the back of the stove for three or four minutes, shaking the kettle gently once or twice, and serve as soon as possible.

The average potato requires from twenty-five to thirty-five minutes. minutes. Do not boil them

After the potato begins to sprout it should be used in some way with seasoning, as no form of cooking can make them light and mealy, for the starch has turnd to sugar.

The sweet potato is not closely related to the white potato, botanically, but it has about the same amount of nutriment value, and should be treated when boiling in the same way. In baking potatoes there is little loss of material, except the water which is absorbed by the heat; both white and sweet are among the most wholesome and easily digested vegetables. The skins should be thoroughly scrubbed, to make them palatable. Break the skins five minutes before they are taken from the oven, allowing the steam to escape, making the potatoes more delicious.

Mashed Potatoes.—To four medium-sized potatoes (bolled), add two tablespoonfuls of hot milk, a piece of butter the size of an English walnut and a saltspoonful of salt. Crush the potatoes with a masher, adding first the butter, then the milk and salt. When the lumps are all removed, beat with a large spoon until velvety. The potato ricer prepares the potato with little work, making it dainty and appetizing, being particularly nice in this form with steak or chops.—One of which is to mix them into a batter by using one egg, and a little hot milk. Flatten this out on a moulding board until il about an inch thick. Cut into inch, squares about an inch thick. Cut into thick. Cut into inch squares and fry in butter or bake in an oven until brown. Another way is to pile the mixture lightly into a well - buttered baking dish, sprinkling the top with grated cheese and c small pieces of butter here and there. Bake until a golden butter here and there. Bake until a golden brown.

French Fred Potatoes.—To properly and wholesomely fry potatoes, one should be provided with a frying basket, so that the fat can be easily drained off, leaving the vegetable, crisp and dry, although a skillet can be used and they can be dried on brown paper. For French fried potatoes the small tubes are best. These being washed and peeled are cut into silces and then into strips, an eighth of an inch or less, all the sections being cut lengthwise of the potato. These should be soaked in very cold water (ice-water if possible) for an hour, then dried on a cloth and fried in deep fat. When they are a rich brown spread on a piece of brown paper and salt. Serve in a dish lined with a white napkin,—these can be cut with any small sharp knife.

There are many similar forms of fried potato cut in different ways, there are Julliene, and shoestring, also the latticed ones, these are cut with a little implement. The first one is a plane with a sharp diagonal blade which may be lowered or raised by a little screw cutting the silces as thin or as thick as desired. For the other two another cutter is used, the same kind for both of them. It consists of a corrugated piece of sharp metal set in wooden frame, with a metal movable guard to protect the hand,—if guard to protect the hand,—if the potato is to be a lattice d one, it is pushed lengthways and then sideways of the potato.

They are all treated after they are cut as the French fried. These can be purchased purcha s e d for the cents in any cents in any a n y DRAIN POTATOES IN COLLANDER ment store. A frying basket costs ten cents, the postage of these three if mailed would be from eight to ten

One way to make a home-made cutter is to One way to make a home-hade cutter is to peel the potato and then take an apple corer, removing the middle of the potato with this, and then cut them into slices,—this gives you rings to fry. The portion removed in the corner can be boiled and used for fish cakes or croquettes.

GERMAN FRIED POTATOES.—Take boiled potatoes, cut them into slices, a quarter of an inch thick and brown in a spider with butter. Just before removing sprinkle with a mixture of a teaspoonful of finely chopped parsley and onion, also the juice of half a lemon, sait and pepper to taste. Stir with a fork so that the mixture reaches every slice. Serve very hot.

POTATO PUFFS.—Beat three eggs without separating the whites from the yolks until very light and gradually beat in two cups of mashed potato (hot or cold) and finally beat in one cup of sifted flour, with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, also a small saltspoonful of salt added to it. Drop from the spoon into hot fat and fry a rich brown. Dry on a piece of brown paper and serve hot.

CEPERAMED POTATORS.—Take either cold or bot

CREAMED POTATOES. Take either cold or hot boiled potatoes and cut into cubes. Then take the milk, and place it in a double boiler and when it comes to a boiling point, thicken with flour, using one tablespoonful to two cups of liquid, also two tablespoonfuls of butter, seasoning with salt and pepper to taste.

DELMONICO.—Take raw potatoes, peel and wash them, slice into a baking dish, covering the bottom with a layer, then cover with bread or cracker bread or cracker crumbs, placing dots of butter here and there, sprinkling light-ly with salt and pepper. Cover with cream, re-peat with alter-nate layers un-til the dish is full, the cracker crumbs covered covered with cream coming on top. Bake in a five hours.

in a moderate BREAK THE POTATO WHILE IN OVEN oven for four or TO SEE IF IT IS MEALY.

Many people do not realize how delicious potatoes are, peeled, washed, and roasted in a pan with roast pork, lamb, or beef, for in this way they absorb the flavor of the meat.

with roast pork, imb, or beef, for in this way they absorb the flavor of the meat.

Franconia Baked Potatoes.—Peel and parboil ten minutes. Drain and place in pan in which meat is roasting. Bake until done. Baste with fat when basting meat. Time required will be about forty minutes.

Sweet Potato Pone.—Boil sweet potatoes until soft, remove the skins. To one quart of potatoes thoroughly mashed add, two well beaten eggs, two tablespoonfuls of cornmeal, one of brown sugar, one of butter, one of salt, and make them into small pones. Arrange in a baking dish and brown in the oven. Serve with roast beef.

Baltimore Sweet Potatoes,—Boil, peel and slice lengthwise the potatoes desired. Place in a baking pan, a generous coating of butter, then a layer of sweet potatoes, covering these with a layer of granulated sugar with bits of butter. Repeat with three layers, having butter and sugar on top. Add about two tablespoonfuls of weter and place in the oven until sugar is brown and melted. These are delicious served with chicken.

I am twenty-three years old, have dark red hair, brown eyes, a freekled complexion and am five feet eight inches tall, so you see I am not a bit pretty. I have always lived in the country and, of course, don't think I would like to live in the city. I have two little boys, five and two years of age.

OKLAHOMA.

Dear Mrs. Wilkinson:

I have long been a reader of Company years I have since I could read at all and for many years I have been a regular subscriber. I always thought I could

Three Years to Pay for the beautiful

MEISTER PIANO and a guaranteed saving of

$100 to $150

Eight exquisite styles to choose from and the one you select will be sent to you on

30 DAYS FREE TRIAL ALL FREIGHT PREPAID

If you like the piano we will sell it on

Small Monthly Payments AS LOW AS $1.00 PER WEEK

No cash deposit asked. No interest on payments. No extras of any kind. Stool and scarf FREE.

Write today for our 100-page catalog illustrated in the natural colors of the wood Rothschild & Company, Dept. 114-A Chicago, Ill.

not write well enough for publication but since reading Mrs. J. M.'s letter I have decided to make an effort. I am surprised that anyone should feel as she does. I, too, was a second wife and I believe that I can truthfully say that I never had one jealous thought toward the first wife. My husband loved her, I am sure, and I am equally sure he loved ms but which one he loved most I cannot fell for I never asked him and he did not tell me. I, too, had people tell me how happy they were together and how much he seemed to love her and I think that was one thing made me love him for I haven't much of an opinion of a man that marries a woman he doean't love. Had he told me he loved me most I don't believe it would have made me any happier. I knew that he had been married before I married him and I considered all these things well.

Sister, when you are inclined to feel unhappy over it, just put yourself in the dead wife's place. How would you feel if you knew that some day when you were gone forever your husband would tell another woman that she was dearer to him than you ever were? Or, If at some future day you (of course you will say it will never be) should marry another man. Would you tell him that you love him more than you did your first husband? Then never grieve your husband again by asking these foolish questions. Drop the first wife from your mind and see if you are not much happier. With best wishes to Mrs. Wilkinson and sisters,

DEAR EDITOR AND SISTERS:

It has been a long time since I have written to Composer. How much I would like to write to each sister who has a letter printed or, better still, to meet said talk with you all.

I have been canning fruit. As sugar is so expensive just now I am canning fruit juices and some fruit to make into jelly, jam and marmaniade later when sugar becomes cheaper. Have learned some new ways of caring for fruit and vegetables from the bulletins sent out from Washington, D. C.

There has been so much said on country and city life that I can say no more. I have lived in both but (CONTINUED ON PAGE 9.)

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 9.)

Swing No. 1. $1.25

It's strong and durable. Has strel frame and heavy washable duck basket.

PERFECTION MFG. CO., 2807 Montgomery St., St. Louis, Mo. DEALERS:-Write For Proposition.

RED, WHITE AND BLUE FLAG BUTTONS! Without obligating you in any way and at absolutely no cost to you, olely for gaining wider circulation for our world-famous Diamond, Watch of Jewelry Catalog—we will mail you this 244-page Book and one of these leauthful enameled American Flag Buttons free, if you mention this nagazine. Positively no "strings" to this offer.

"SIBYL'S INFLUENCE;

or, Love's Hardship'

HEN in the furtherance of self-interest and personal ambition a woman, by crafty intrigue and treacherous machinations, parts true lovers and supplants her rival, let her tremble, even in her hour of victory, for the consequences of

To what wicked devices will she not resort in her desperate effort to hold the

She knows her triumph is insecure and that she has to fight against fate because of the mysterious attraction which is ever drawing together the hearts of true lovers. The success of her scheme would mean the wreck of three lives, her own included. Exposure before the irrevocable sealing of the vows at the altar would bring on her own head just retribution for her sin and restore happiness to the hearts of the other two. "Sibyl's Influence," with an elaboration of interesting detail and thrilling incidents, tells the hardships and trials of two true lovers harassed by such a plot. This splendid romance, written in Mrs. Georgie Sheldon's best style, is strong throughout, tragic in parts and dramatic in its conclusion. Don't miss the first three chapters in December COMFORT; then you will surely read the rest with increasing interest as we shall print it serially in succeeding issues. Send 30 cents to renew your subscription two full years. Two-year renewal rate

The precious jewel of love is more easily stolen than held.

By what artifice can she conceal her deception?

will be 40 cents on and after the first day of next January.

treasure of which she has robbed the other woman?

The Masked Bridal

By Mrs. Georgia Sheldon

her.

Had an outsider been present at the interview he would have been impressed by the perfect love, and loyalty, and understanding that existed between mother and daughter.

Edith had scarcely finished speaking of the man she loved when there came a knock on the door man she loved when diete candidor.

Itising, she opened it, to find a servant standing without and waiting to deliver a card that lay upon a silver salver.

Mrs. Stewart took it and read the name of Royal Bryant, together with the following lines, written in pencil:

"Will Mrs. Stewart kindly excuse this seeming intrusion of a stranger? but I understand that Miss Allandale is with you, and it is necessary that 1 have a few moments' conversation with her.

R. B."

Miss Allandale is with you, and it is necessary that I have a few moments' conversation with her.

"Show the gentleman up," the lady quietly remarked to the servant, then stepped back into the room and passed the card to Edith.

A few moments later there came another tap to tell her that her dear one was awaiting admittance, and she herself went to receive him.

"Roy! I am so glad you have come!" she exclaimed, holding out both hands to him, her face radiant with happiness.

The young man regarded her with astonishment, for she had never greeted him so warmly before.

Edith saw his look and met it with a blush. She took his hat, then led him directly to Mrs. Stewart.

"Roy, you will be astonished," she remarked, "but my first duty is to introduce you to—my mother."

With a look of blank amazement, the young man mechanically put out his hand to greet the beautiful woman who approached and graciously welcomed him.

"That was rather an abrupt and startling announcement, Mr. Bryant," she smillingly remarked, to cover his confusion; "but pray be seated and we will soon explain' the mysterious situation."

"Pardon my bewilderment," said the young man, as he bowed over her extended hand; "but really, ladles, I am free to confess that you have almost taken my breath away."

"Then you will know how to sympathize with us," cried Edith, with a silvery little laugh, "for we have both been in the same condition during the last few hours."

"Indeed! Then I must say you look very bright for a person who has not breathed for hours," he retorted, as he began to recover himself.

"Well, figuratively speaking, our respiration has been retarded many times, during a short interval, by the strangest developments imaginable," Edith explained. "But how did you trace me to the Supremacy?"

"I had something important to tell you, so ran up to Nellie's to see you, but was told that you had accompanied Mrs. Stewart thither," Roy explained. "I hope, however, I shall be pardoned for interrupting your interview," he concluded, with an apolog

"Roy, this is even more wonder than any in the already told you," she gravely remarked.

"Read it: it will explain itself better than any words of mine can do."

"He drew the contents from the envelope, and began at once to read the following confession:

"For the sake of performing one right act in my life, I wish to make the following statement, namely: I hereby declare that the marriage of my brother. Emil Correll, to Miss Edith Allen, which are settled as my community to the settled as my community to the settled as my community to the settled as my community."

Import of Anna Correlli's, confession, he turned to Edith with a radiant face and open arms. "My darling! nothing can keep us apart now!" he murmured, in tones vibrant with joy, "you are free—free as the air you breathe—free to give yourself to me! Come!"

With a smile of love and happiness Edith his breast.

"Oh, Roy!" she breathed, "all this seems too much joy to be real or to be borne in one day!" "For the sake of performing one right act in my life, I wish to make the following statement, namely: I hereby declare that the marriage of my brother, Emil Correlli, to Miss Edith Allen, who, for several weeks, has acted as my companion, was not a legal ceremony, inasmuch as it was accomplished solely by fraud and treachery. Miss Allen was tricked into it by being overpersuaded to personate a supposed character in a play, entitled 'The Masked Bridal.' The play was written and acted before a large audience for the sole purpose of deceiving Miss Allen and making her the wife of my brother, whom she had absolutely refused to marry, but who was determined to carry his point at all hazards. Motives of affection for him, and of jealousy, on account of my husband's apparent fondness for the girl, alone prompted me to aid him in his bold design. I hereby declare again that it was all a trick, from beginning to end, and it was only by my indomitable will, and by working upon 'Miss Allen's sympathies, that I was enabled to carry out my purpose." (Then followed a detailed account of the plot of the play and its concluding ceremony, after which the document closed as follows): "I am impressed that I have not long to live; and wishing, if it can be done, to right this great wrong, and make it possible for the proper officials to declare Miss Allen freed from her bonds. I make this confession of a fraud that weighs too heavily upon my conscience to be bourne. Indomitable will, and by working upon Miss Allen's sympathies, that I was enabled to carry out a finy circlet of fold in which there blazed a my purpose." (Then followed a detailed account of the plot of the play and its concluding ceremony, after which the document closed as follows): "I am impressed that I have not long to live; and wishing, if it can be done, to right this great wrong, and make it possible for the proper officials to declare Miss Allen freed from her bonds. I make this confession of a fraud that weighs too heavily upon my conscience to be borne. Anna Correlli Godard."

The above was dated the day previous to that of madam's death, and underneath she had ap-

CHAPTER XXXVI.

"MY DARLING YOU ARE FREE."

S the two sat band in hand. Mrs. Stewart told her daughter how she had left Italy and had instituted her search for her daughter. She also told her of entering the Goddard home in disguise and by careful observation had discovered the hiding place of the document which meant so much to her. When Mrs. Stewart had finished her recital, she turned to Edith and asked her daughter to tell of her adventures since leaving Boston. Edith recited everything that had occurred, but at the mention of Royal Bryant's name, she blushed rosily, and in that blush the mother quickly read the secret of her daughter's heart.

Edith also mentioned the efforts that Mr. Raymond had made to locate her, and of the fact that he had settled a large sum of money upon her. Had an outsider been present at the interview have seen, he afterward became so strangely agitated.

We know how he had hurriedly removed from his former elegant home to a habitation on another street; after which, instead of going abroad, as the papers had stated, he had gone directly to New York, upon the same quest as Emil Correlli, but with a very different purpose in view—that of giving to Edith the precious document that was to declare her free from the man whom she loathed.

He could get no trace of her, however; unlike Correlli, he had no knowledge of her acquaintance with Royal Bryant, and therefore all he could do was to carry the letter about with him, wherever he went, in the hope of some day meeting her upon the street, or elsewhere.

One day he was out at Central Park, when he suddenly came upon a former friend—Mrs. Wallace—who immediately announced to him her intention of arranging a charitable art exhibition and solicited contributions from him to ald her in the good work.

Thus the appearance of that bit of old "Roman Wall" is accounted for, as well as the presence of Mr. Goddard himself, who was particularly re-

Wall' is accounted for, as well as the presence of Mr. Goddard himself, who was particularly requested by Mrs. Wallace to honor the occasion, and allow her to introduce him to some of her friends.

It would be difficult to describe the terrible shock which the man sustained when he heard Edith addressed by and respond to the name—Miss Allandale.

Like a flash of light it was revealed to him that the beautiful girl was his own daughter!—that, in her, he had, for months, been "entertaining an angel unawares," but only to abuse his privilege in a way to reap her lasting contempt and aversion.

This blighting knowledge was followed by a ing an angel unawares." but only to abuse his privilege in a way to reap her lasting contempt and aversion.

This blighting knowledge was followed by a sense of sickening despair and misery, when, also for Correll's bigamous exploit, and then startled most at the same moment, he saw Isabel Stewart start forward to claim her child and lead her tents of the late Mrs. Goddard's confession, from the room, when he knew she must learn the current of the late Mrs. Goddard's confession.

her turpitude.

Fiorini, and told her that I was searching for her, at your request. She almost wept at the sound of your name, and eagerly inquired where she could find you. I took her to my office, where to do her what I wished to prove regarding her relations with Correlli, and that, if I could accomplish my purpose, it would give her and the child a claim upon him which he could not ignore. She at once frankly related her story to me, and stated that when they had first arrived in New York from Italy, Correlli had taken her to Madam Leblanc's boarding house, where he had made arrangements for himself, wife and child "Oh, then that settles the question of her claim upon him!" Edith here interposed, eagerly, "Yes—if we can prove her statements, and I think we can; for, when I told Giulia of my visit to made me and how I had failed to elicit the literature and how I had failed to elicit the.

made arrangements for himself, wife and child

"Oh, then that settles the question of her claim upon him!" Edith here interposed, eagerly.

"Yes—if we can prove her statements, and I think we can; for, when I told Giulia of my visit to madam, and how I had failed to elicit the slightest information from her, she said that she knew where one of the servants who was in the house when she went there—could be found, for she had stumbled across the girl in the street and learned where she is now living. She gave me her address, and I went immediately to interview her. Luck was in my favor—the girl was at home, and remembered the 'pretty Italian girl, who was so sweet spoken and polite!' she also knew where her previous fellow-servant could be found, and asserted that they would both be willing to swear that madam herself had told them to 'always to be very attentive to the handsome Italian's wife, for she made more out of them than out of any of her other boarders.' So, I flatter myself that I have gathered conclusive evidence against the man." Roy added, in a tone of satisfaction. "I shall interview Monsieur Correlli at once, and perhaps, when he realizes that his supposed claim upon you is null and vold, he may be persuaded to do what is right regarding his wife and child."

The lovers then fell to talking of their own af fairs, Edith relating what she had so recently learned from her mother, and concluded by mentioning the plan of readoption, suggested by Mrs.
Stewart, in order to avoid the gossip of the world.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

A CHAMPION OF RIGHT.

The morning following his conference with his betrothed, our young lawyer went early to seek an interview with Emil Correlli.

He was fortunate enough to find him at the hotel where he had told him he gould be found if sign."

He drew them forth as he spoke, spreading them out upon the table, after which he arose and touched the electric button over the mantel.
"What is that for?" curtly demanded his com-

"What is that for?" curtly demanded his companion.
"To summon witnesses to your signature to these documents."
"Your assurance is something refreshing," sneered the elder man. "How do you know that I will sign them?"
"I feel very sure that you will, Mr. Correlli," was the quiet rejoinder; "for, in the event of your refusal, there is an officer in waiting to arrest you upon the two serious charges before mentioned."

The batiled man snarled in impotent rage; but before he could frame a retort, there came a knock on the door.
Roy answered it, and bade the servant without to "show up the gentlemen who were waiting in the office."

Five minutes later they appeared, when Emil Correlli, without a demur, signed the papers which ity shad brought and now read aloud in their presence.

presence.

His signature was then duly witnessed by them, after which they withdrew, Mr. Bryant's clerk, who was one of the number, taking the documents with him.

after which they withdrew, Mr. Bryant's clerk, who was one of the number, taking the documents with him.

Roy, however, remained behind,
"Mr. Correlli," he said, as soon as the door closed, "I have one more request to make of you, before I leave; it is that you will openly acknowledge as your wife the woman you have wronged, and thus bestow upon your child the name which it is his right to bear."

"I will see them both——"
"I will see them both——"
"Hush!" steenly interrupted Roy, before he could complete his passionate sentence, "I simply wish to give you the opportunity to do what is right, of your own free will. If you refuse, I shall do my utmost to compel you; and, mark my words, it can be done. That woman and her child are justly entitled to your name and support, and they shall have their rights, even though you may never look upon their faces again. I give you just one week to think over the matter. You can leave the country if you doose, and thus escape appearing in court; but you doubtless know what will happen if you do—the case will go by default, and Gulia and Ino will come off victors."

"Do your worst—I defy you to the last! And now, the quicker you relieve me of your presence the better I shall like it."

The young lawyer took up his hat, bowed politiely to his defeated foe, and quietly left the room, very well satisfied with the result of his morning's work.

All the necessary forms of law were complied with to release Edith from even a seeming alliance with the man who had been so determined to win her.

An announcement was inserted in the Boston papers explaining as much as was deoued.

liance with the man who had been so determined to win her.

An announcement was inserted in the Boston papers explaining as much as was deemed necessary, and thus the fair girl was free!—free to give herself to him whom her heart had chosen.

Then she was formally adopted by Mrs. Stewart, the old schoolmate of the late Mrs. Allandale, and a little later, when they were settled in their elegant residence on one of the fashionable avenues, society was bidden to a great feast to honor the new relationship and to congratulate the charming hostess and her beautiful daughter.

At the same time Edith's engagement to the young lawyer was announced, and it seemed to the happy young couple as if the future held for them only visions of joy.

True to his promise, Roy gave Emil Correlli the week specified to decide either for or against Giulia; then, not having heard from him, he instituted proceedings to establish her claim upon him.

Correlli did not ennear to defend himself corre upon him.

Correlli did not appear to defend himself, consequently the court indorsed her petition and awarded her a handsome maintenance.

CHAPTER XXXVIII.

CONCLUSION.

Three months after the incidents related in our own mother?" she had questioned, with smiling but tremulous lips, when this matter was being discussed, together with other preparations for the wedding.

Edith was delighted with the idea, and thus it was carried out in the way described.

The party was met at the chancel by Roy, accompanied by his best man and the clergyman, where the ceremony was impressively performed, after which the happy couple led the way from the church with those sweetest strains of Mendelssohn beating their melodious rhythm upon their ears and joyful hearts.

It was an occasion for only smiles and gladness; but, away in a dim corner of that vast diffice, there sat a solitary figure, with bowed head and pale face, over which—as there fell upon his ears those solemn words, "till death us do part"—hot tears streamed like rain.

The figure was Gerald Goddard. He had read the announcement of Edith's marriage in the papers, and, with an irresistible yearning to see her in her bridal robes, he had stolen into the church with the crowd, and hidden himself where he could see without being seen.

But the scene was too much for him, for, as he watched that peerless woman and her beautiful daughter move down the aisle, and listened to the reverent responses of the young couple, there came to him, with terrible force, the consciousness that if he had been true to the same vows which he had once taken upon himself he need not now have been shut out of this happy scene, like some lost soul shut out of this happy scene, like some lost soul shut out of the had once, and no one dreamed that the father of the beautiful bride had been an unbidden guest at her wedding.

In giving Edith to Roy Mrs. Stewart had beg-

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 12.)

Make Sure by Renewing Your Subscription Today

day which I thought you ought to have, since you are her attorney, without any unnecessary delay."

"Oh! it is most wonderful, Roy! This is it," said the young girl, producing it from her pocket. "But first I must tell you that in Mrs. Stewart I have discovered mamma's old friend—the writer of those letters of which I told you. She did not die in Rome, as was feared."

"Can that be possible?" exclaimed Mr. Bryant. "Yes, dear. It is a long story, and I cannot stop to tell it all now," Edith went on, eagerly but I must explain that she has discovered an important document that proves what makes me the happiest girl in New York today. We met addressed me as Miss Allandale, when she instantly knew that I must be her child. Isn't it all too wonderful to seem true?"

After chatting a little longer over the wonderful revelations, he suddenly remembered the "important communication" which Mrs. Stewart had mentioned.

"What was the matter of business which you felt needed early consideration?" he inquired. Instantly Edith's lovely face was suffused with blushes, and Mrs. Stewart, thinking it would be wise to leave the lovers alone during the forthcoming explanations, excused herself and quietly slipped into an adjoining room.

Edith immediately went to the young man's side and gave her letter to him.

"Roy, this is even more wonderful than what I have already told you," she gravely remarked.
"Read it: it will explain itself better than any words of mine can do."

"At a constant and constant and constant and poen arms.

"My darling! nothing can keep us apart now!" words of mine can do."

"Oh, Roy!" she breathed, "all this seems too much joy to be real or to be borne in one day!"
"I think we can manage to endure it," returned her lover, with a fond suile. "I confess, however, that it seems like a day especially dedicated to blessings, for I have other good news for you."
"Can it be possible? What more could I ask, or even think of?" exclaimed Edith, wonderingly.
Roy smiled mysteriously, and returned, with a security of the min bis core.

roguish gleam in his eyes:

"My news will keep a while—until you give me the pledge I crave, my darling. You will be my wife, Edith?" he added, with tender earnestness.

"You know that I will, Roy," she whispered; and, lifting her face to his, their mutual vows were sealed by their betrothal caress.

The young man drew from an inner pocket a tiny circlet of fold in which there blazed a a tiny young man drew from an inner pocket a tiny circlet of fold in which there blazed a flawless stone, clear as a drop of dew, and slipped it upon the third finger of Edith's left hand. "Now for my good news," he said, after Edith had thanked him, in a shy, sweet way that thrill-ed him anew, while he gently drew her to a seat. "I met Giulia Fiorini on the street this after-noon."

the lawyer emphatically added, "allow me to inform you that your sister was never the wife of Mr. Gerald Goddard, as that gentleman had been married previous to his meeting with Miss Correlli. It was supposed that his first wife was drowned in Rome, but the report was false, as the woman is still living."

"I do not believe it," angrily exclaimed Emil Correlli, and yet, in his heart, he felt that it was picions. "I tell you it is all a lie, for Goddard himself told me, only two days after my sister's geath, that, if I chose to look, I would find the record of his marriage to her in the books of the "That is true; Mr. Goddard supposed the marriage to have been legal, because, at the time he deserted his lovely wife for Miss Correlli, he did not know that he was lawfully bound to her. But, later, both he and your sister learned the truth, and the secret of their unfortunate relations embittered the lives of both, especially after they discovered that the real Mrs. Goddard is still living," Roy exclaimed.

"How do you know this?" demanded his companion.

"I have recently seen and conversed with Mrs. Goddard, and all the facts of her history are in Goddard, and all the facts of her history are in Edith was delighted with the idea, and thus it

"I have recently seen and conversed with Mrs. Goddard, and all the facts of her history are in my possession."

"Who is she? Under what name is she known?"

"That is a question that I want to be a factor of the converse."

"Who is she? Under what name is she known?"

"That is a question that I must refuse to answer, as the revelation of the lady's identity cannot affect the case in hand; unless—it should come before the courts and the truth be forced from me," Roy replied.

"Then why have you told me this wretched story?" cried the man, almost savagely.

"A lawyer, in fighting his cases, is often obliged to use a variety of weapons," was the significant response. "I thought it might be just as well to warn you, at the outset, that your sister's reputation might suffer in the event of a lawsuit, during which much might be revealed which otherwise would remain a secret among ourselves."

To convince Correlli of the truth of his disclosures Mr. Bryant announced that he had in his possession, at that moment, a copy of Mrs. Goddard's confession, and proceeded to read it, having first declared that the original was in his

Modern Methods of Cleaning

By Alice Ward

Copyright, 1917, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

RANDMOTHER kept her home spotless from garret to cellar. Her brasses were always shining, her floors highly polished, there was never a flager mark on the paint and the kitchen table was scoured to a snowy white soft her day and had to rely principally on "elbow grease." And this, as everybody knows, is only another way of saying that back-breaking rubbing, scourering and polishing was necessary to keep things in proper shape. Nowadays there is no need of so much hard labor and any woman can keep a spotless house and all in it bright and shining if she is progressive enough to use some of the modern inexpensive methods of cleaning.

The best and easiest way to scrub floors and clean painted woodwork is to dissolve a heaping tablespoonful of washing powder in a small quantity of hot water and add this solution to each pailful of water used. This powder also makes dishwashing easy and is indispensable for use with greasy pots and pans. For this from one teaspoonful to a tablespoonful should be added to each dishpan full of hot water. One of the most important purposes of dishwashing is to sterilize each article so that all germs will be destroyed and each dish will be sanitary to use for the next meal. This result can best be accomplished with hot water and a grease cutting agent like the washing powder just referred to.

Never place dishes or utensils which have contained custard, gelatine, egg. or starchy food directly into hot water; always scrape thoroughly first, and rinse in cold water; then wash in hot water.

hot water.

hot water.

To clean a tea or coffee pot which has a rim of deposit inside, fill the pot with warm water to which one half teaspoonful of washing powder is added. Let stand until the next meal; pour off, rinse in clear, hot water and lay with top off in the air and sun.

To cleanse vinegar cruets and other glassware on which unsightly deposits have accumulated, fill the bottle with a half-dozen buckshot or small pebbles, and warm water to which is added a pinch of baking soda and a sprinkle of washing powder. Shake vigorously. If the deposit is very thick, leave over night. Then rinse thoroughly with clean, hot water.

Sitting down while at work makes dishwashing sitting down while at work makes dishwashing much less fatiguing. The drainboard should always be at the left of the sink, and high enough to prevent stooping at work. Have stacking surface to the right. Wash dishes of same size together.

ways be at the left of the sink, and high enough to prevent stooping at work. Have stacking surface to the right. Wash dishes of same size together.

Don't rub the hands almost off to get dish towels clean or to remove dirt spots from clothes on a Monday morning by using ordinary soap for the purpose when for about the same price you can get a soap containing that great cleansing agent, naphtha. Naphtha takes the place of muscle. You simply wet whatever you want to wash, rub the soap on it, roli it up and let it soak for twenty or thirty minutes in cool or warm water, rinse and hang it out to dry. That is all that is necessary for clothes that every much soiled. Anything that is just ordinarily dirty need only be soaked for a few minutes before rinsing. This soap is also a wonderful aid in washing off olicloth or linoleum. For very fine laundry work or for woolens, slik waists, chiffon, slik underwear or anything like that soap flakes are the best as they do not shrink woolens or turn white slik or satin yellow. Pour boiling or very bot water over the soap flakes, and whisk into a lather. Dip the clothes up and down and work them about in this creamy lather. Do not rub. It is rubbing cake soap on fabrics, and more rubbing to get the dirt out, that wears out your nice things. The flakes dissolve instantly, so there is no solid soap to stick to the threads, to yellow or weaken them, and the thick lather is so cleansing that the dirt comes out absolutely without rubbing.

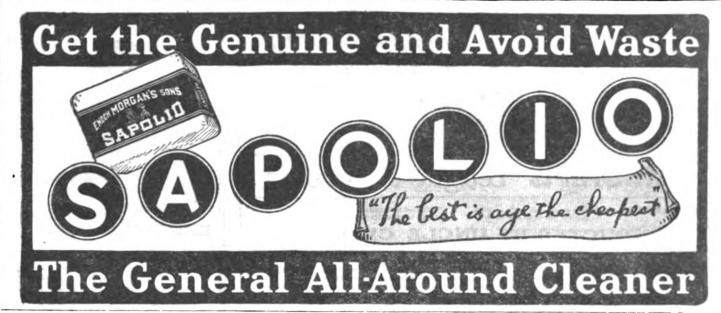

Among the oldest and the very best of the real labor-saving cleaners is the hard cake of scouring material, It literally cleans everything and it is to be found in a handy place beside the sink of practically every efficient housewife of today. Its steady use makes a spotless home. It takes smut from the bottom of pops and pans as if by magic, it cleans the sink faultlessiy and is ideal for getting dirt off bath tubs, zinc, nickel and aluminum and it is best of all for scouring the top of kitchen tables, set tubs and the like and it is used by ma with nickel, aluminum, brass and all kinds of white wood work.

For cleaning the kitchen stove it is best to use blacking either in liquid or cake form. This can be put on with a brush or a mitt that comes especially for the purpose and protects the hands from smuts and soil that is hard to remove.

It does not pay to take chances with homemade floor or furniture-polishes for such concetions are more or less sticky mixtures that require any amount of rubbing to give even mediocre results and when the price of each ingredient is reckoned cost more in the end than a scientifically compounded polish that can be bought ready made. On hardwood floors, highly polished furniture, planos, mahogany dining tables or anything of the sort it is fatal to use any polish that contains mineral oil for this will soften, 'darken or discolor a brilliant finish and spread a greasy film that catches dust and dirt and ruins all clothing that comes in contact with it. To clean and polish all kinds of furniture so that it has a high luster, wet a cloth in a little of the polish that leaves a surface like the finest sort of veneering and go over the furniture a few times. This is all that is necessary.

To clean hardwood floors, wet a bit of cheese.

a wainscotting, a dusty picture frame by simply going over them with a cheese-cloth duster moistened with polish.

An upholstered chair can have the stuffed portion cleaned and greatly improved in appearance by laying a large bath towel over it and then whipping the upholstery lightly with a rattan rug- or cushion-beater. Shake out the towel whenever it shows any dust and continue beating until all the dust is out of the chair. Then brush the chair thoroughly with a bristle clothestor bonnet-brush. If there are any tuftings in the back and inside the arms of the chair, wipe them out with a bit of cotton tied on the end of a skewer and covered with a piece of an old silk rag. Next wipe quickly over the upholstery of the chair with a piece of clean white flannel that has been wrung out of hot water until it is nearly dry and follow this immediately with a cloth wet with alcohol. Change the cloths at once for fresh ones if they grow dirty and be particularly careful about this if the covering is in pale blue or in any delicate shade.

If there are grease spots on the wall paper An upholstered chair can have the stuffed por-is in pale blue or in any delicate shade.

If there are grease spots on the wall paper they can often be removed by placing over them a piece of white blotting paper or even manila paper such as parcels are wrapped in and applying a hot iron to this which will draw the grease into the paper. If this does not work try mixing a thick paste of flour and water and spreading it on the paper just as dry as it will stick. Leave this on, until the next day and then brush off carefully. Sometimes a very greasy spot needs two or three applications. Naphtha is also used for cleaning wall paper but it is best to put a light chalk mark about it so that it will not leave a ring. The chalk can later be rubbed off. On very light wall paper French chalk can be used.

used for cleaning wall paper by the its best to put a light chalk mark about it so that it will not leave a ring. The chalk can later be rusbed off. On very light wall paper French chalk can be very light wall paper French chalk can be very light wall paper by the content of the content of farative so that it has a high luster, wet a cloth in a little of the polish that leaves a surface like the finest sort of veneering and go over the furniture a few times. This is all that is necessary.

To clean hardwood floors, wet a bit of cheese-cloth with the polish and simply rub over the wood lightly. This removes all dust, dirt, marks and scratches and brings up the grain. You can, with no more trouble than the usual dusting, clean anything from a kitchen chair to a piano, clean anything from a kitchen chair to a piano,

Comfort Sisters' Corner

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7.)

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7.)
prefer the country and, better still, the mountains.
To the sisters who live in the mountains, don't you think we live in God's own country? Is it not grand to be able to sit in a cozy home, just as comfortable as any city home, and only turn our heads to gaze where "The hand of man has never been. Where the foot of man has never trod." And to fill our lungs with the spicy, life-giving breath of the pines? But any girl with good common sense and a strong will can be a good helpmeet for her husband, no matter where she was raised, if she loves him and makes up her mind to do what is best. But she should decide all these things before she is married.

Mrs. l'ete, I would like to hear from you and learn what success you are having with your home-loving, husband. If he has read any of the letters in Comroor regarding him he surely must be a very different man by now.

How many of our sisters are working for our coldier.

rogarding him he surely must be a very different man by now.

How many of our sisters are working for our soldier boys? If the one million five hundred thousand knitted suits are to be made some of us must get busy. I am at present twenty-seven miles from the Red Cross class so I am going to use all of my spare clothes that I can in making garments for children. If every woman would use her cast-off clothes to help some poor child it would prevent much suffering when the cold days come.

days come.

I hope this will not bring begging letters to me.

I pity the poor for I am one of them, but what little I can do I will do near me for I will go to town for the winter and the poor children are to be seen everywhere. I regret I cannot help all of them. The future seems dark and cheerless to many but per-

"If we could see beyond today
As God can see;
And all the clouds should roll away,
The shadows flee,
O'er present griefs we would not fret,
Each sorrow we would soon forget,
For many joys are waiting yet
For you and me,"

ELNORA ST

FLEMING, OHIO.

PLEMING, OHIO.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND COMPORT SISTERS:

It hasn't been so very long since 1 was with you but I'm writing to thank those who sent me letters and cards in response to my request, and if I have neglected to answer any, picase remind me of it.

I will tell you what I plan to do through the winter months, I am going to make a United States quilt and pattern it after the United States' map and work in the name of each state. I don't mind the work but I'm wondering if I will be fortunate enough to get pieces from every state in the Union. I want to keep a record of each piece sent so I can have the name of the sender. I will use calico or gingham in plain colors and as many different colors as possible. I will let you know later if I succeed in getting enough pieces.

Wishing you all success and much love, and especially Mrs. Wikkinson for carrying on her good work,

Your sister through Comport,

Mrs. H. L. Carpenter.

Thanksgiving Pies

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 2)

half the width over the edge and after putting on upper crust, may be brought over that to in a sure a whole edge. Use water between all edges, well at center, it I spilled to the property of sugar, a pinch of sait, one fablespoon of butter, pinch of cinnanon, and a little grated of butter, pinch of cinnanon, and a little grated on butter, pinch of cinnanon, and a little grated should be found that the property of sugar, a pinch of sait, one fablespoon of butter, pinch of cinnanon, and a little grated should be for the property of the property of sugar, a pinch of sait, one fablespoon of butter, pinch of cinnanon, and a little grated to cover. See the property of th

FREE STEEL SHOE BOOK SAVES $20

Address: RUTHSTEIN, Steel Shoe Man, Dept. 35, RACINE, WIS

LEAGUE RULES:

To be a comfort to one's parents. To protect the weak and aged.

To be kind to dumb animals.
To love our country and protect its flag.

CONDUCTED BY UNCLE CHARLIE

COMFORT for one year and admittance to the League of Gousins for only 30 cents. Join at once. Everybody welc NEVER send a subscription to Uncle Charlie, nor to the Secretary of the League.

NEVER write a subscription order or application for membership in the body of a letter. Write the order a separate sheet from the letter, and then both may be mailed together in the same envelope.

ADDRESS all letters to COMFORT Augusta, Metace. See Instructions at the close of this Department.

NVER and a sub-rejace on U-rale Charle, nor to the Secretary of the Leaver.

NVER with a substration of ore explacions for emmbership in the body of a letter. Write the order on a sub-regard order or explacions for emmbership in the body of a letter.

ADD 422-8 distrate to CODYT Assess.

See lateractions at the close of this Department.

The control of the control

one can please and satisfy for twenty-nine out of one's thirty years of roth vore for relate to account of the control of one's thirty years of roth vore for relate to account of the control of the con

The Time Has Come to Deal With Corns in a Scientific Way

This Man's Methods

Not This Man's

Let An Expert Deal With Corns

Ask who makes it before you use a method for ending corns.

Harsh methods are not sanctioned now. Mussy methods are unnecessary. Soreness never need occur.

Blue-jay was invented by a chemist of high repute. It is made by a con-cern of world-wide fame as a maker of surgical dressings.

Its action is gen-tle and results are sure. It acts on the corn alone, not on the healthy tissue.

Apply it as you wrap a cut finger. That ends all pain, all discomfort.

two days the corn disappears. Sometimes an old, tough corn needs a sec-ond application. But no corn can re-sist this method. It is sure to go.

Millions of people know this. At the first sign of a corn they apply a Blue-jay. Corn pains never bother Blue-jay. them.

You will always do likewise when you see the results. One trial will convince you. It means so much, and costs so little, that we urge you to make. it now.

Deal with one corn tonight.

BAUER & BLACK Makers of Surgical Dressings, Etc. Chicago and New York

Stop Pain Instantly End Corns Completely 25c Packages at Druggists

Blue=jay

Corn Plasters

How Blue jay Acts

A is a thin, soft pad which stops the pain by relieving the pressure.

B is the B&B wax, which gently undermines the corn. Usually it takes only 48 hours to end the corn completely.

C is rubber adhesive which sticks with-out wetting. It wraps around the toe and makes the plaster snug and comfortable.

Bine-jay is applied in a jiffy. After that, one doean't feel the corn. The action is gentle, and applied to the corn alone. So the corn disappears without soreness.

let our good American friends speak out as your daddies of old spoke, and let us know and in no uncertain tones that you are with us in our fight for right and righteousness with all your heart and soul, loyal and true to the very end. For every traitor we have lost let ten patriots join our ranks. Don't hesitate, but rally to our support here and now. God speed and God bless you on this the greatest and most momentous Thanksglving we are ever destined to sec.

Don't forget that Uncle Charlie's four wonderful books may still be had. Start in at once to obtain them,—they cost you no money, only a very little time and effort,—and keep at it until you have the entire set. The book of Poems is beautifully bound in ribbed silk stiff covers; the Story Book is bound in two styles, the one in ribbed silk stiff covers like the Poems, the other in paper covers; the Song Book is bound only in heavy paper covers and the Picture Book in handsome stiff covers, either one for a club of four subscriptions; the Song Book or the Story Book in handsome paper covers or the Picture Book in pretty stiff covers for a club of only two subscriptions; the Song Book or the Story Book in handsome paper covers or the Picture Book in pretty stiff covers for a club of only two subscriptions. These four books are a library of endless joy and merriment, the best Christmas gifts in the world.

My picture book, too, has started a deluge of inquiries: Is Billy the Goat my daughter, is Maria her Ma? Is there an Aunt Charlie? Is they had a little leaflet specially printed answering all these questions fully, and those who are interested will find the same in every copy of the four Uncle Charlie Books sent out this senson.

Now for the letters.

BONHAM, TEXAS.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

I am a little ten-year-old girl. I am going to school and I am in the third grade. My little sister, Bernice is in the second grade. Santa Claus brought me a doil last Christmas. Bernice and I have twenty-five doils to gather. Bernice's and my little dog died yesterday. We have one of your books with poems in it and one with songs in it.

So by, by. From your little niece, BONNIE HYATT.

in it and one with songs in it.

So by, by. From your little niece, Bonnie Hyatt.

That was awfully kind of Santa Claus, to bring you a doll Bonnie, and I hope he got it down the chimney without mussing up Dolly's flaxen curis and fashionable skirt, which I suppose to be strictly correct begins at her ears and finishes at her neck. I remarked to a young lady the other day, "That's an exceedingly pretty ribbon you have around your neck," and she transfixed me with a look of scorn and said: "That's not a piece of ribbon, that's my skirt." Did you ever? Santa Claus being a nice, respectable old gentleman, must feel his cheeks blaze with shame when he delivers some of the modern feminine attire. I know a young lady who wears pumps in the winter and furs in the summer, and thinks she ought to vote; but then too I know a man who drinks a barrel of beer every day, cusses the President and the United States and wants to put the Kalser in the White House, and he not only thinks he ought to vote, but he "as got a vote. So you see the lady with the furs is less dangerous than the fat man with the hyphen. So Bonnie, you and Bernice have twenty-five dolls to gather. That's quite some doll family and I hope you will succeed in gathering them. What's that Billy the Goat? She means together, not to gather. That's quite some doll family and I hope you will succeed in gathering them. What's that Billy the Goat? She means together, not to gather. That's quite some doll family and I hope you will succeed in gathering them. What's that Billy the Goat? She means together, not to gather, in the some child's peculiar ability to scatter things in all directions, tabulating, collecting and herding a flock of twenty-five folicsome, charming, young, sawdust stuffed doll chickens, and keeping the whole bunch coralled and under proper control must be some task. Bonnie I wish you joy of it.

INDIANAPOLIS, R. R. M. 2, Box 342, IND.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLE:

I am eleven years old and in the seventh grade. I live with my sister seven miles south of Indianapolis. I work in a big garden and pull weeds out of a good-sized potato patch. I wash dishes churn butter and run errands on my wheel. I eat breakfast, dinner and supper and have some time to play.

I would like to be making some extra spending money. Could you tell me how Uncle Charlie?

Hoping to see this in print I will close with good wishes from STANLEY G. SATTERFIELD.

Hoping to see this in print I will close with good wishes from Stanley G. Satterfield.

Stanley, the world needs more boys of your type, for the whole future of the race depends on such bright lads as you, who want to work, earn and save and be helpful and useful. In the past we have been breeding and rearing too many boys whose one ambition has been to smoke cigarettes, break windows, torture animals and practise the vices of their elders. I'm glad you help sister, but say you must be some clever boy to be able to wash dishes churn butter set the table and run errands on your wheel. You ought to go into vaudeville if you can do all those stunts on your wheel. It seems to me it must be very uncomfortable and require a great amount of skill to manipulate a bicycle while washing dishes. Now as regards making some extra spending money. I'll see that you get a billion dollars if you'll go over to Europe and capture the two Kaisers, Wille and Charlie, the Clown Prince and other members of the House of Hohenzollern; the only family in Germany with six sons that has not had at least one of its members killed in this war. If the Kaiser had a million sons, not one of these royal parasites, by the way, would ever go to a warrior's grave. Then there is another million if you will gather in old wild boar Hindenburg, ferocious old Von Tirpitz, the German anarchist spy Lenine, and half a million of those patriotic Russian socialists who are always talking or running away when they ought to be fighting, and who have demonstrated the warmth of their love for their native land, by quarreling among themselves, killing their officers (the only men among them who had any sense or real patriotism) turning the whole country into a nutty house, accepting German bribes, and stabbing democracy (of which they so frantically prattled) in the back in the very presence of the enemy. The task is a little too much for you eh? Well here's an easier one. I'll see you get a million dollars if you'll take La Follette, Bill Stone, the Mayor of C

The Pretty Girls' Club

Conducted by Katherine Booth

we love so well, let us stop to think a minute.

To begin with, this is not a time to load our tables—our soldier boys need food, the soldiers of our allies need food, the starving women and children of Europe need food, and where is it to come from if we eat more than our bodies really need? So, for that reason, we will all be cutting down on our Thanksgiving tables, but even if we didn't have this very good reason, I could give you another one which is important enough to make you stop and consider.

Do you occasionally see on chin or cheek or forehead, as you look in the mirror, some very unbecoming and unpleasant red blotches? "A pimple coming and unpleasant red blotches? "A pimple again!" you say, and wonder why.

EAT A LAXATIVE PASTE AT NIGHT.

But I know the answer!

You have been eating too many sweet or rich things—too many doughnuts, too much ple, fried potatoes, gravies, greasy meats, cake, candy! Perhaps, even too much butter on bread and potatoes and other foods. The latter is not so likely, however. Probably the butter you are eating is not a bit too much if you weren't eating all the other rich things.

I know you don't like the ugly red spots in the least, so set about to get rid of them today.

First, you should take a laxative of some kind to carry off as many impurities as possible. A good one to use is made as follows:

A Pleasant Laxative

Chop fine one ounce of senna leaves, half a pound of raisins, half a pound of figs. Add half a pound of raisins, half a pound of figs. Add half a pound of sugar and a cup of boiling water. Cook over a slow fire for half an hour. Line a square tin with greased paper (not too much grease) and pour the mixture out on this. It should be about an inch thick. When cool cut into inch-square pleces and take one or more of these squares at bedtime. Try just one piece, and if the effect next day is not sufficient, increase the amount at night.

Then you must help the eliminating processes by drinking three or four glasses of hot water (not scalding, but just agreeably warm) every day, in addition to three or four glasses of cool water, and in the morning, at least half an hour before breakfast, a glass of (1 water into which you have squeezed the juice of half a lemon.

which you have squeezed the juice of half a lemon.

All these measures will carry away so many impurities from the body, aided by your daily body bath and rub, that the pimples which now bother you will speedily vanish. A daily milk bath for the face is another way to keep the skin in good condition.

But that is not enough. You must keep them from returning, so remember, this Thanksgiving time, not to eat too many sweets or fats. Nobody likes mashed potato and turkey gravy better than I, so I know that sometimes it is difficult to be self-denying, but if you have pimples and want to get rid of them so that they will not return, self-denying you must be! Eat a dish of stewed prunes occasionally—two or three times a week—and be sure they have first been washed, then soaked over night, and finally cooked slowly in the water in which they soaked. The ordinary sweet prune does not need any sugar.

And eat oranges and grapefruit, whenever pos-sible, not forgetting, also, that "an apple a day keeps the doctor away."

Answers to Questions

Violet.—Your hair is a light brown. You are making it lighter by using borax in the water in which you wash it. A little borax does no harm, but too much dries the hair. The "frown" in your brow is not a scrious matter, at lifteen. You can do away with it by cultivating pleasant expressions of the face, and never giving way to temper. It is not a permanent affair, and will not be so unless you make it so by facial habits. The coarse pores in the hands may be from washing the hands in very hot water, and not properly rinsing after. Wash the hands in warm, not hot, water, with soapsuds and scrub them thoroughly when they need it; always rinse in several waters, and last of all in cold water. Do not use soapsuds except at night or when the hands are really dirty enough to need it; but be sure to keep them clean and to dry them carefully after each washing. Here is a good whitening lotion for the hands:

The Why and Wherefore of Pimples

OW that Thanksgiving time is here with its mince pies and pumpkin pies, its furkeys, its big fat doughnuts, and all the other rich and indigestible things we love so well, let us stop to think a minute.

To begin with, this is not a time to load our tables—our soldier boys need food, the soldiers of our allies need food, the starving women and children of Europe need food, and where is it to come from if we cat more than our bodies really need? So, for that reason, we will all be cutting down on our Thanksgiving tables, but even

A Good Leg Exercise

With hands on hips, fingers forward and thumbs back, hold chin up, drop shoulders, keep back erect. Standing with heels together, rise slowly on the toes until you are on their very tips; then slowly lower the heels again until they touch the floor; repeat many times; then rising, as before, keep back straight but bend knees and sink to squarting position, keeping heels from floor. Rise slowly again, sink to floor, and repeat many times.

The formula you give for a cream contains a proprietary product, and I cannot pass an opinion upon it for that reason. Here is a good cream:

Orange-flower Skin Food

White wax, one half ounce; spermaceti, one half ounce; cocoanut oil, one ounce; lanoline, one ounce; sweet almond oil, two ounces; orange-flower water, one ounce; tincture of benzoin, three drops.

Put the first five ingredients over the fire in a kettle and melt, then remove, and drop in the benzoin and the orange-flower water, whipping it with an egg whip until it is thoroughly cold. The habit of biting your knuckles would, of course, cause them to harden and toughen, and grow thick in appearance. Your remedy, now, is to let them alone, except for rubbing them daily with olive oil or a good cold cream, massaging them back and forth and round and round five minutes at a time. To clean the teeth and make them white, brush on rising, after every meal, and before going to bed, using a good tooth paste or powder. You have probably neglected your teeth, my dear, how about it? The large pores on your face are the result of not washing the face properly. Do what I am constantly recommending to my girls—buy yourself a camel's-hair complexion brush—don't get a brush miless it is of camel's hair, or it will be too stiff for your skin—and scrub the face nightly with warm soapy water, rinsing, afterwards, many times in warm water, finally in cool and cold water to close the porces. Do not use soap on the face during the day, but only tepid water, and always rinse in cool water. Your pores will close up under this treatment, if you are careful to take plenty of exercise every day, outdoors and in, and to keep the bowels active by eating plenty of ruits and vegetables, drinking lots of water, chewing your food thoroughly, and avoiding to many sweets. As to a good soap, avoid highly perfuned soaps or strong soaps. Castile or any of the mild white soaps are good for your skin, as well as the standard advertised facial soaps which are not white. Your eyes and hair harmonize all right, and as to dressing your hair read the directions recently given in CoMronr by me.

Oklahoma.—I am sorry it is against the roles of this departme

Oklahoma.—I am sorry it is against the rules of this department to answer letters by mall. As you did not give me any pen name, I am adopting one for you and hope you will understand this answer is for you. To develop the bust, exercises are best. Massage with cocon-butter or olive oil is all right. Bathe bust in hot water, then rub the cake of cocon-butter round and round the breast, with a circular motion, following the outline of the breast. The cocoa-butter can be held over a lighted candle to slightly melt it before applying. A good exercise for the bust is as follows:

To Develop the Bust

Standing erect, with heels together, chin up, back straight, bring the arms out in front on a line with the shoulder palms touching. Now throw them violently back, keeping them as nearly on a level with the shoulders as possible, and apparently trying to make them meet in the back. Of course they won't meet, but you must make just the same effort as if they could. Repeat this fifteen or twenty times, and practise daily. The big point is to maintain the shoulder level, and to make the movement a quick vigorous one.

Mrs. J. P. V.—Sorry all letters have to be answered in these columns, but very glad to give you the information you want. Probably the milk diet is exactly what you need. The first week after reading this, follow this plan: Put half-a-dozen prunes to soak at night, and the next morning drink the prune juice and eat the prunes, chewing them thoroughly. Do this fifteen minutes after rising and drinking a cup of hot water or two cups of hot water. Half an

A MILK FACE BATH IS GOOD FOR THE COMPLEXION.

For Dainty Hands

Rosewater, two ounces; Orange-flower water, two ounces; boras, one quarter dram; spirits of benzoin, one haif dram; bruised atmonds, one haif ordine. Mix the rosewater, orange-flower water and almonds, and the haif ounce. Mix the rosewater, orange-flower water and almonds, and the stand for twenty-flower benzoin, one haif dram; bruised atmonds, one haif ordine. Mix the rosewater, orange-flower water and almonds, and let stand for twenty-flower benzoin, one will dissolved, then drop in the benzoin, one drop at a time, shaking constantly. I gave a pretty say for a girl of fiftees to dress the hair, in a recent number of Commons and recent subject of the constantly. I gave a pretty say for a week. At the end of that time, drop this up-for a week. At the end of that time, drop this up-for a week. At the end of that time, drop this up-for a week, the constantly. I gave a pretty say for agirl of fiftees to dress the hair, in a recent number of Commons and are only five feet three, and forty pounds and are only five feet three, and sixteen years old, you weigh one hundred and forty pounds and are only five feet three, and sixteen years old, you weigh too much. You need to reduce fifteen or twenty pounds. You ask how to reduce fifteen or twenty pounds. You ask how to reduce fifteen or twenty pounds. You ask how to reduce fifteen or twenty pounds. You ask how to reduce fifteen or twenty pounds. You ask how to reduce fifteen or twenty pounds and are only five feet three, and to get your weight down the following pounds and are only five feet three, and to get your weight down to reduce fifteen or twenty pounds. You ask how to reduce fifteen or twenty pounds. You ask how to reduce fifteen or twenty pounds. You ask how to reduce fifteen or twenty pounds. You ask how to reduce fifteen or twenty pounds. You ask how to reduce fifteen or twenty pounds. You ask how to reduce fifteen or twenty pounds. You ask how to reduce fifteen or twenty pounds. You ask how to reduce fifteen or twenty pounds. You ask how to after meals it would help—I do not mean lie down and go to sleep; I mean sit down and real the paper or just relax. It would even be better for you to darn stockings or mend for half an hour after meals than to move about rapidly, doing your dishes or any other active work. You do not want to be tired when you sit down to eat, and you must not be any more active immediately after eating than you can help. Addie H.—See answer to "Mrs. J. P. V." You keep the milk diet until you weigh as much as you active immediately after eating than you can help.

Addie H.—See answer to "Mrs. J. P. V." You keep up the milk diet until you weigh as much as you want to.

A Curly-Headed Girl.—The pimples which come every month are rather hard to get rid of. You can help, however, by being careful just before the time they usually appear, not to eat sweets or pastries or gravies, but only simple foods, chewing them thoroughly. Each month you may find that your stomach does not take care of its food at certain times as well as the rest of the month, so give it less to do and simple things to do. Do you see? This will help about the pimples, and so will keeping your bowels open. Drinking water, especially hot water morning and night, will help in this latter. The reason your hair comes out is because the scalp is full of dandruff. I don't imagine the dandruff makes "small sores" as you say, except when you scratch the scalp with either your nails or a comb? How about that? When you read this, get some olive oil and wet the scalp with it at night. Part the hair first in one place and then another, and pour on oil, rubbing it in with the fingers, until every particle of the scalp has been covered. The the head up in a heavy towel, to save your pillow cases from disaster, and in the morning, shampoo the hair thoroughly with a soap jelly made by shaving half a cake of white laundry soap into a quart of boiling water and letting stand over the fire until dissolved, then cooling slightly. It will be liquid at first, and you can use it in this form, but later, as it cools, it will jelly. Four on the hair and lather thoroughly when you shampoo your hair, that it may not reinfect the scalp; wipe it off after every using, and give it a soap and water washing every week, dipping it afferward in a rinsing bath of borax and water. Dry in the scalp; wipe it off after every using, and give it a soap and water washing severy week, dipping it afterward in gent end with the hair norbraided. The more air you can get to the scalp, the better. It

VELLASTIC RIBBED FLEECE UNDERWEAR Makes the whole family happy VELLASTIC makes everybody happier and healthier because it is comfortable and warm. It's comfortable because the ribbed fabric stretches with your every movement. It's warm because the fleece lining holds the Features natural heat of your (1) Elastic Ribbed (2) Fleece Lining Doctors call it The (3) Great Tensile Strength Happy, Healthy Underwear. They know, for (4) Form-Fitting (5) Comfort Crotch they see it worn by (6) Fitted wrist and ankles millions of men, women and children. (7) Flat Seams Buy VELLASTIC at (8) Strong pearl your dealer's-and insure (9) Careful sewing the warmth, comfort, health (10) Triple Inspecand happiness of the family. Union or separate garments at popular prices. Write for Bodygard booklet No. 7. Utica Knitting Co., Makers Salesrooms 350 Broadway, New York

Worried Anna.—You are not much over weight—not at all, if you were older, but at fifteen a girl is usually not up to the weight prescribed for her height. See answer to "A Curly-Headed Girl" in regard to the monthly pimples. The bjackheads you should let alone and not squeeze, because you are merely irritating them and spoiling your skin. They come from not enough attention to the face—you probably have not been in the habit of giving the nightly scrubbing. I am always recommending to my girls. See what I say to two or three other girls this month, and follow the advice. That will do away with your blackheads. But you must, of course, have a body bath daily, also, and rub the skin well with a rough towel. You do not need a bathtub for this; you can stand on a folded bath towel, and rub the body all over quickly with a wash-cloth, warm water and soap; or you can wash an arm, rinse and dry it, cover it up; then wash the other arm, dry it and cover up; and so on, only unovering a small portion of the body at a time, and washing it quickly with a brisk rubbing following. All this will stimulate the facial skin to throw off the impurities which collect in the pores. Then, of course, you must n't forget that the bowels simply have to move thoroughly every day of your life.—you can't have a good complexion, let alone good health, unless they do: so eat lots of fruits and drink plenty of water, and exercise, and exercise.

Address all letters containing questions to KATHERINE BOOTH, care COMPORT, AUGUSTA, MAINE.

Plays All Disc Records

Victor, Columbia, Edison, Pathe, Emerson, Little Wonder A Dime a Day Pays for this Symphonola

Desk SCT 1117, Buffalo, N. Y.

DAYSON'S INDELIBLE INK

It makes a clear mark that will not spread or wash out and will protect cotton, linens and heavier fabrics from confusion or loss. A household necessity for eighty-two years. Ready for use with a common pen. Stationers and Druggists sell it in the old-fashioned red and vellow wrappers, or it will be sent prepaid for 25 cents by Payson's Indelible lak Co., 28 Henslaw Are., Northampton, Mass.

Pro 10 2 64 19 19 19

The Masked Bridal

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 8.)

ged that she need not be separated from her newly recovered treasure—that for the present, at least, they would make their home with her—or, rather, that they would take the home with her—or, rather, that they would take the home with her—or, rather, that they would take the home, which was to be a part of Edith's dowry, and allow her to remain with them as their guest.

This they were only too glad to do; therefore, after a delightful wedding trip through the West, they came back to their elegant home, where, with every luxury at their command, the future seemed to promise unlimited happiness.

Poor Louis Raymond had failed very rapidly during the spring months; indeed, he was not even able to attend the marriage of the girl for whom he had formed a strong attachment, and who had bestowed upon him many gracious attentions and services that had greatly brightened his last days. He passed quietly away only a few weeks after their return to New York.

One day, a couple of months after her marriage. Edith was about to step into her carriage, on coming out of a store on Broadway, where she had been shopping, when she was startled by excited shouts and cries directly across the street from her.

Turning to see what had caused the commotion, she saw a heavily loaded team just toulling

Turning to see what had caused the commotion, she saw a heavily loaded team just toppling over, while a man, who had been in the act of crossing the street, was borne down under it, and, with a shriek which she never forgot, apparently crushed to death.

and, with a shriek which she hever lorgot, apparently crushed to death.

Sick and faint with horror, she crept into her carriage, and ordered her driver to get away from the dreadful scene as soon as possible.

That same evening, as she was looking over the Star, a low cry of astonishment broke from her, as she read the following paragraph:

"A sad accident occurred on Broadway this morning. A carelessly londed team was overturned by its own top-heaviness as it was rounding the corner of Twenty-ninth street, crushing beneath its cruel weight the talented young sculptor, Emil Correlli. Both legs were broken, one in two places, and it is feared that he has suffered fatal internal injuries. He was taken in an unconscious state to the Roosevelt Hospital, where he now lies hovering between life and death. The surgeons have little hope of his recovery."

Edith was greatly shocked by the account, not-

"There is hardly a ray of hope for him," he remarked; "he is still unconscious. Do you know anything about him or his family?" he asked, with sudden interest.

"Yes, I have had some acquaintance with him," Roy returned.

"The wrote and wrote but she never answered and he stopped writing and now after all this go, and is remarkably handy in assisting the nurse while how self-or while how

"Yes, I have had some acquaintance with him, Roy returned.
"Do you know his wife?" the man pursued. "A woman came here last evening, claiming to be his wife, and insisting upon remaining by his bedside as long as he should live."
"Yes, he has a wife," the young man briefly returned, but deeply touched by this evidence of Giulia's devotion.

"Is she a dark, foreign-looking lady, of medium height, rather handsome, and with a slight accent in her speech?"

"That answers exactly to her description,"
"I am glad to know it, for we have been in some doubt as to the propriety of allowing her to remain with our patient. We tried to make her leave him, last night, even threatening to have her forcibly removed; but she simply would not

CONTENTS

		Page
Editorial	•	2
Thanksgiving Pies and Other Pastry-How to Them Delicious and Wholesome Violet M	Make arsh	3
The Thankfulness of Wyoming Sal Joseph Novak	ph F. -	4
Comfort Sisters' Corner	•	5
Comfort Sisters' Recipes	•	5
The Girl He Loved (continued) Adelaide Sti	rling	6
Various Ways of Serving the Potato Mary rod Northend	Har-	7
The Masked Bridal (concluded) Mrs. Ge	orgie -	8
Modern Methods of Cleaning Alice Ward	•	9
Comfort's League of Cousins Uncle Charlie	•	10
The Pretty Girls' Club Katherine Booth .	•	11
Pop Littleton's Love Letter Huub .	•	12
Crumbs ot Comfort		12
The Kingdom of Our Birthright		13
Thanksgiving Decorations Ella Gordon .	•	14
Poultry Farming for Women Mrs. Kate 1	7. St.	15
Cubby Bear's Thanksgiving Plum Pudding B. Ellingwood	Lona -	16
In and Around the Home Conducted by Wheeler Wilkinson -	Mrs.	17
The Modern Farmer		18
Information Bureau		19
Home Dressmaking Hints Geneva Gladdin	g -	20
Veterinary Information		21
How to Trap Skunk, Civet, Raccoon and Ope	ossum	22
Children's Happy Hour	-	24
Manners and Looks		25
Talks with Cirls		27
Family Doctor • •	•	29
Home Lawyer - · · ·		30
Four Wheel Chairs in October		30
The Emporium of Bargains and Opportunities	-	31
Comfort's Comicalities • • •	_	31
Connoct's Connectities • • • •	•	21

Pop Littleton's Love Letter
By Huub

Coppright, 1917, by W. H. Ganacti, Pablisher, Inc.
while there came today a long letter telling how be has done well but that he is all the were the control of the Edith was greatly shocked by the account, notwithstanding her aversion to the man.

She had not supposed that he was in the city, for Roy believed that he had left the country, rather than appear to defend himself against Giulia's claims, and to escape paying the damages the court awarded her, after proclaiming her his lawful wife.

The woman had since been supporting herself and her child by designing and making dainty costumes for children, a vocation to which she seemed especially adapted, and by which she was making a good living, through the recommendation of both Mrs. Stewart and Edith.

The day after the accident Roy, on his way home from his office, prompted by a feeling of humanity, went to the Roosevelt Hospital to inquire for the injured man.

The surgeon looked grave when he made known his errand.

"There is hardly a ray of hope for him," he
"There is hardly a ray of hope for him," he
"West."

"All right mother!" he stopped and looked across at her with a half smile—then at Nelly and saw the glint of a little tear of disappointment in her bright eyes.

"But you prom—" she began.
"Oh, yes, I promised! Yes, I did" (and he got up and shook himself), "so I did. And it's Thanksgiving!—Well, seeing it's Tanksgiving and sure I've so much to be thankful for—specially mother!

Nelly ran off.
"Say mother, what's the matter with Nelly—she's as bright as a new peony?"
"Well Pop dear, it's this way. You know she and Tom Hughes was awful fond of one another only that they had a spat when Tom went away West." "John, dear! John, dear!" came a sweet voice of entreaty.

"All right mother!" he stopped and looked across at her with a half smile—then at Nelly and saw the glint of a little tear of disappointment in her bright eyes.

"But you prom——" she began.

"Oh, yes, I promised! Yes, I did" (and he got up and shook himself), "so I did. And it's Thanksgiving l—Well, seeing it's T anksgiving and sure ter I've so much to be thankful for—specially mother!
—and you Nelly—there, get your things on—I'll abid go, and is remarkably handy in assisting the nurse, while her self-control is simply wonderful."

Roy wrote a few lines on one of his cards, saying that if either he or Mrs. Bryant could be of any service at this trying time, she might be free to call upon them.
This he gave to the surgeon to hand to Giulia, and then went away.
The following evening the woman made her applied.

former pastor and church one and who was wrong matters not, but ever and and who was wrong matters not, but ever and who was wrong matters not, but when the church on his evening pipe and a chat.

Then came Nelly, his daughter, with face all beaming with smiles and approaching her father somewhat timidly, held out her hands to him.

"Pop—I want you to do me a favor—will you—a really great favor?"

"Well, Sunshine, what is it?"

"No-o, you must promise first!"

"Well, it must be something good to make my Nelly look so happy!—Yes—Till promise!"

"Er-o-Pop—tomorrow's Thanksgiving ! and—and there's a Thanksgiving prayer meeting up to the church tonight and I do—want—to—be of and I want you to go with me!"

Then a cloud came over John Littleton's face and he loosened the hands he held and asked:

"Why do you ask me that, Nelly—you know that has been settled long ago. Can't I serve the Lord in my own way? Isn't it good enough for you?—what's wrong?—whose ox, or whose ask have I taken'? Did you ever know me to cheat or—"

"John, dear! John, dear!" came a sweet voice of entreaty.

"All right mother!" he stopped and looked across at her with a half smile—then at Nelly across at her with a half smile—then at Nelly across at her with a half smile—then at Nelly across at her with a half smile—then at Nelly across at her with a half smile—then at Nelly across at her with a half smile—then at Nelly across at her with a half smile—then at Nelly across at her with a half smile—then at Nelly across at her with a half smile—then at Nelly across at her with a half smile—then at Nelly across at her with a half smile—then at Nelly across at her with a half smile—then at Nelly across at her with a half smile—then at Nelly across at her with a half smile—then at Nelly across at her with a half smile—then at Nelly across at her with a hal

They all walked home in happy silence and when the door was shut John Littleton gathered them to him and said:
"Mother dear, Nelly, I too have had a love letter tonight; pastor was the postman. It was from the dear Lord Himself and He says: 'Come back to my people and let Me come back to you and abide with you always—for I have loved thee with an everlasting love,' and I want you to join with me in sending Him His answer. Let us kneel. Now just one word, dear Lord Come! Even so come Lord Jesus!"

And they bowed their heads.
They could say no more.
Their hearts were too full.
And a still voice within whispered to each, "I have loved thee with an everlasting love!"

streaming eyes. She loved him still, in spite of everything, and she must remain with him while he breathed.

he breathed.

Edith willingly received Ino, saying she would be glad to keep him as long as was necessary: then Giulia went immediately back to her sad vigils beside the man who had caused her nothing but sorrow and shame.

But Emil Correlli did not die.

Very slowly and reinfully he

The following evening the woman made her appearance in their home with her child, whom she begged them to care for "as long as Emil should live."

It could not be very long, she said, with to be.

But Emil Gorrelli did not die.

Very slowly and painfully he came back to life—to an existence, rather, from which he would gladly have escaped when he realized what it was to be.

COMFORT December

will be brimful of Christmas cheer, with something of special interest to every member of the household. Also it will contain the first three chapters of our new serial, "Sibyl's Influence," by Adelaide Stirling, special mention of which appears on page 8. The following will be some of the Special Features for December

"Around the World with Santa"

This profusely illustrated story describes and pictures how Christmas is celebrated in all parts of the world in many peculiar ways, and tells the variety of strange forms which Santa Claus, according to current legends, assumes in different lands. Instructive and entertaining to young and old.

"What to Send Our Soldiers"

Gives a list of articles best suited for gifts to soldiers at the front and tells how to pack and send them.

"What We Share"

A delightful Christmas romance charmingly told, with front cover illustrations. The real

"Christmas Tree Decorations"

A useful article telling how to make and arrange the pretty ornaments that give the home an air of holiday cheer.

stuff that makes the heart throb.

"Christmas Cakes and Home-Made Candies"

Economize this season by making your own Christmas confectionery—tells how.

2-Year Renewal to Cost 40 Cents January First

See the announcement of advance in subscription rates on page 12 and explanation on page 2.

If the number over your name on the wrapper on this magazine is 350 or any less number, it means that your subscription needs to be renewed at once.

The present low renewal rate will continue in force until the last day of next December, which gives our present subscribers an opportunity to renew their subscriptions

2 Full Years in Advance for 30 Cents.

Avail yourself of this privilege immediately. 10 cents is worth saving.

Send 30 cents today to renew your subscription two full years. If you want the Comfort Home Album send 10 cents extra, 40 cents in all for your 2-year renewal and the Album. Even if your subscription is paid some months ahead, renew now at special low renewal rate and we will extend your subscription two full years beyond date of expiration. Use the coupon below.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES are: 25 cents a year, 50 cents for three years, 30 cents for a TWO-YEAR renewal, in U. S. and Cuba. (In Canada 50 cents a year or 75 cents for a two-year renewal.)

SUBSCRIPTION COUPON FOR RENEWAL OR EXTENSION ONLY Publisher of COMFORT, Augusta, Maine. I enclose cents for renewal and extension of my subscription full years from date of expiration. If you want the Album, send 10 cents extra, and be sure to mention it. (Album will not be sent to foreign countries.) DateName, Street Postoffice and No. R. F. D. No. :..... Box No...... State

"You!" he exclaimed in surprise, while, with sudden discernment, he remarked a certain re-fined beauty in her face that he had never ob-served before.

studen discriment, he remarked a certain refined beauty in her face that he had never observed before.

Then he added, with a sullen glance at his useless limbs, a strange sense of shame creeping over him.

"Do you still care enough for me to take that trouble?"

"I am willing to do my duty, Emil," she gravely replied.

"Ha! you evade me!" he cried, sharply, and piqued by her answer. "Tell me truly, Giulia, do you still love me well enough to be willing to devote your life to such a misshapen wretch as I shall always be?"

"I told you, Emil, that I was willing to do my duty. I bear your name—you are Ino's father—my proper place is in your home; and if you see fit to decide that we shall all live together under the same roof, I will do my utmost to make you comfortable, and your future as pleasant as possible. More than that I cannot promise—now."

"And you really mean this, Giulia?" he quespossible. More than that I cannot possible. More than that I cannot will make the possible of the possible of

"And you really mean this, Giulia?" he questioned.

"Yes, if my proposal meets with your approval, we can at least make the experiment. If it should not prove a success, we can easily abandon it whenever you choose."

He knew that he could not do without herknew that she had become so essential to him that he was appalled at the mere thought of losing her, while the sound of that magic word "home." around which clustered everything that was comfortable and attractive, opened before him the promise of something better than he had ever yet known in life.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 26.)

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 26.)

Crumbs of Comfort

Beware the fury of a patient man.

Words are the leaves of the tree of language Invention is the talent of youth, judgment of age. Great men stand like strong, solitary towers in the city of God.

He that permits mischief that he might hinder, becomes

None are so fond of secrets as those who are never mown to keep them. It is better to have a lion at the head of an army of sheep, than a sheep at the head of an army of lions.

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGE-MENT, CIRCULATION, ETC., REQUIRED BY THE ACT OF CONGRESS OF AUGUST 24, 1912, OF COMFORT, PUBLISHED MONTHLY AT AUGUSTA, MAINE, FOR OCTOBER 1, 1917.

Editor, A. M. Goddard, Post-office address, Augusta, Maine, Managing Editor, William H. Gannett, Post-office address, Augusta, Maine.
Business Managers, W. H. Gannett, Bus. Mgr., Guy P. Gannett, Assist. Bus. Mgr., Post-office address, Augusta, Maine.

2. That the owners are: (Give names and addresses of individual owners, or if a corporation, give its name and the names and addresses of stockholders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of the total amount of stock.) Owner: W. H. Gannett, Publisher (Incorporated), 20 Willow St., Augusta, Maine.—Stockholders:—W. H. Gannett, Augusta, Maine; Sadie H. Gannett, Augusta, Maine; Guy P. Gannett, Augusta, Maine.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and

H. Gannett, Augusta, Maine; Guy P. Gannett, Augusta, Maine.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of total amount of bonus, mortgages, or other securities are: (If there are none, so state.) No outstanding bonds, mortgages or other securities.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company but also in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other flucinry relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bonn-fide owner; and this affant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.

WILLIAM H. GANNETT, Bus. Mgr. Soutenets 1917

WILLIAM H. GANNETT, Bus. Mgr.
Sworn to and subscribed before me this 27th day of September, 1917.
(NOTARIAL SEAL) FRANK E. SMITH,
Notary Public
(My commission expires February 25, 1922.)

Asthma, Sore Throat Coughs, Bronchitis, Colds, Catarrh.

Colds, Catarrh.

Don't fail to use Cresolene for the distressing, and often fatal affections for which it is recommended.

It is a simple, safe, effective and drugless treatment. Vaporized Cresolene stops the paroxysms of Whooping Cough and relieves Spasmodic Croup at once.

In Ashma it shortens the attack and insures comfortable repose. The air carrying the antiseptic vapor inspired with every breath, nales breathing easy, soothes the sore throat, and stops the lough, assuring restful nights.

Cresolene relieves the bronchial complications of Scarlet Fever and Measles and is a valuable aid in the treatment of Diphtheria. Cresolene's best recommendation is its 38 years of successful ise. Send us postal for Descriptive Booklet.

For Sale by Druggists

THE VAPO-CRESOLENE CO. 62 Certlandt St., New York or Learning-Miles Building, Montreal, Canada

High School Course In Two Years Learn at Home In Spare Time

for Lost

Time!

Don't Stop Growing! Makeup Keep on poing! Train your brain! Broaden your mental vision! A high school educa-tion multiplies your changes for success in

High School Book Free

Send your name and address on a letter or post-card and get our new 24-page lilus-trated Book. No obligation. It is abso-lutely free. Write today. American School of Correspondence Dept. P3048 Chicago, Illinois

The Girl He Loved

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 6.)

"Miss Annesley looked hopelessly unhappy in her fine clothes," he said smoothly, "but extraordinarily handsome, in spite of her tears." He pulled himself up sharply as if the last word had slipped out unawares.

"Tears!" The duchess stared at him. "What do you mean? I remember now. She never said good by to me. I don't like to think of Tom Annesley's girl crying at my party. How do you know?"

"Saw her," laconically. "Gave her some good advice and drove her home. She never spoke to me the whole way."

know?"
"Saw her," laconically. "Gave her some good advice and drove her home. She never spoke to me the whole way."

A light dawned on the duchess.
"So that," she observed slowly, "was where you went to! You're not a good friend for any girl, Levallion, and I won't have it with Tom's daughter. Mind that! I shall drive over and see that child this afternoon. I've been a neglectful old woman not to have looked after her before."

She pushed away her empty plate and got up. Levallion strolled meekly to the window, where he lit a cigarette. The duchess was a good woman, and Sylvia Annesley was—otherwise! But it was the latter who had discovered he was ready to marry and settle down at last. The duchess only remembered the women he had compromised; it never struck her that he might actually think of marrying a little country girl of eighteen. If it had, she would probably have put a spoke in his wheel; to have known Levallion for thirty years was not to envy his future countess.

Yet to marry Ravenel Annesley was the only thought the man had. The day before he had cleverly evaded Sylvia and paid an impromptu visit to Annesley Chase by the back gate; a piece of diplomacy for which he was rewarded by coming straight on Ravenel in the garden.

She was alone; her little chin had lifted angrily when she saw him, but the next moment she was ashamed. After all, he had been kind to her twice. She had nothing against him except that he was a friend of Sylvia's.

Levallion was too wise to stay long, though there were no tears—and no hat-pins!—today. Her face was as cold as his lordship's own, and her indifference more real. He might go or stay as he liked—and he knew it.

But he carried away with him the memory of her strangely quiet face, uncannily, clearly pale as she walked up and down the garden paths.

"There goes Lady Levallion!" he thought, as certainly as if she stood by him at the altar. "And the sooner she is away from that devil Sylvia the better. Sylvia was always a genius at making people miserable, and the girl old friend must not think she was begging. "I just can't,"

"Do you want to come?" slowly.
No answer. The girl's lip was trembling at the kindness of the motherly voice.
The duchess looked at her.
"You do! then that's all right," cheerfully. "As for gowns, I mean to give you those. I haven't got any one to spend my money on except some horrid chits of nieces who don't need it. That will be half the pleasure of having you. And I'll settle it with your stepmother."
But Ravenel was crying—sobbing from her sick heart against the duchess' smart shoulder.
"My dear, I know," said that soft-hearted lady incoherently, muttering to herself things about "that woman, who did not know how to treat Tom's child." And che had, like Levallion before her, never an inkling of Adrian Gordon's part in the play.

though she beat her!"

In spite of his acuteness, he never thought—or, perhaps, would not have cared if he had—that another man had been the cause of that white face and somber eyes; nor that he himself had never seen the real Ravenel Annesley, all life and laughter, but only the ghost of a girl whose youth was dead in her. It annoyed him to fall in with Sylvia's schemes, but, after all, that was a trifle; and he knew how to cut her claws a little. Therefore, with security and determination, Levallion laid slege to the duchess; and she smiled calmly as she bade good by to him.

and she smiled calmly as she bade good by to him.

"Au revoir till next week," he said, as they shook hands.

"Humph!" her grace coughed dryly. "I'll send for you when I want you, my dear Levallion."

Levallion chuckled when he got, rather stiffly. Into the carriage. He was warned off. That meant Tom Annesley's daughter was to be asked to Avonnore House. His lordship was more pleased than by a dozen cordial invitations.

The duchess, the instant his back was turned, proceeded to Annesley Chase in state, though she would far rather have gone on her bicycle. Lady Annesley was, providentially, out. Miss Annesley—Adams did not know.

"Then find out, my good girl," remarked the duchess calmly sweeping by her into the house. She was not to be turned from Tom Annesley's door by the servant of his twopenny second wife. "And fetch Sir Thomas," majestically.

But Tommy had seen her coming and arrived hastily on the scene. He looked worried, and the duchess saw it.

"Where's your sister, Tommy?" she said kindly.

The boy looked at her. She was the oldest

The boy looked at her. She was the oldest friend they had, but even so, his sister's secret

But for me he never would have seen his pinkand-white doll."

She threw the duchess' letter on a table, where it hit a pile of other letters—blue envelopes, ominous—and sent them rustling to the floor. They were merely the quarter's bills from the butcher and the wine-merchant for those luxuries Sylvia Annesley could never deny herself, but she picked them up with a vicious hand.

"It's well for you, Levallion, that I haven't a penny to pay these, or you might whistle for my lovely stepdaughter!" she said aloud. "But I can't stand five more years like this before Tom comes of age. Five more years of duliness, of skimping, without a soul to speak to, and then the prospect of turning out of this and living on nothing a week in lodgings—no! it's not to be done!" "She's in the garden; she's not very well," he returned loyally. If Ravenel were fretting for Gordon there was no good in saying so. "Shall I call her for you?"

done!"

"Suppose we go to her!" slipping a stout arm through his. "Not well? What's the matter with her?"

Tommy was appalled for one instant. "Dyspepsia," he said stoutly, with a flash of genius.

"Oh!" commented the duchess dryly. "Very like a whale in a butter-boat," she added to herself, as she glanced at Ravenel, who rose from her knees in the garden as she heard the rustle of the duchess' slik-lined skirts on the gravel.

"I beg your pardon for not coming in," the long way I shall ever see it again. He shall

The Kingdom of Our Birthright

In running this series we are not advocating belief in astrology or faith in the pretended talismanic charm of birth-stones, although these beliefs have persisted from remote antiquity and have not a few devotees even in this present age of reason. Yet as myths and superstitions that have dominated through the ages they possess historic interest and educational value. Miss December will appear with a pleasing message next month.—EDITOR.

MISS NOVEMBER.

system.

According to this conception, persons born during the period when the influence of this sign is in the ascendent are by nature physically stronger than those who enter who those who enter any other period of the year. Moreover they live close to Nature's heart and have a strong love of all the works of the Great Creator, and whatever their occupation, their thoughts and acts proceed from the immutable principles of justice. Instinc-

"Why not? Because you've nothing to wear?" shrewdly.
"No!" with no truth and a red face, for her old friend must not think she was begging. "I

> CHAPTER VII. HER LADYSHIP SHUFFLES THE CARDS.

The November Birth-Stone is the Topaz

Friendship, the substance of which is love and esteem is symbolized by the November birthstone, the topaz. Attachments are often quickly formed, but true friendship is of slower growth, giving new life and ambition to the object of its regard. True friends can forgive each other's little fallings, and will remain loyal through the wear and tear of adversity, for they meet as equals at heart, putting away formalities and dissimulation, and with simplicity and wholeness speak to each other. Husband and wife must ever be friends if through life they would continue sweethearts.

from the immutable principles of justice. Instinegirl faltered. "I thought you were Lady Annesley." She looked doubtfully at her earthy hands and the visitor's smart, white gloves.

The duchess, in spite of her parting words to Levallion, had not come with any definite purpose; but the sight of the girl's white face and hard-set lips—more than all the glance of shuddering aversion she had given her, thinking she was her stepmother—brought a sudden rush of motherly tears to her kind, worldly-wise eyes.

"Never mind your hands!" she cried, sitting down on a wicker chair that creaked under her;
"Nor Lady Annesley either. I didn't come to see her—I suppose there's no one about to hear such treason!" with a hasty glance behind her.
"I came to see you. I didn't think you looked well the other day at my house"—really, the girl's fresh beauty had astounded her—"and I came to ask you and Tommy to take pity on a lonely old woman and come to London with me for a month," with a nod at the two which set the green and pink feathers on her smart bonnet wagging. "What do you say?"

"Oh, my eye—rather!" Sir Thomas forgot his manners in his joy. But the duchess was looking at Ravenel. She had not been prepared to see such a change in the pale, sick face.

To get away from Lady Annesley and the place that had grown hateful to her for a whole month—she and Tommy! A slow red burned into her cheeks at the thought, but a second after her face fell again. She could not go; she had no clothes fit to wear. Tommy was different; a boy did not matter. But she herself had not so much as a desent pair of gloves to wear up in the train.

"We—that is, I can't!" she blurted out miserably.

"Why not? Because you've nothing to wear?" marry her if I have to swallow my pride ten times over. He'd have to give me an allowance that would not disgrace Lady Levallion's mother! Ravenel shall go to the duchess: Levallion will take care no other man gets a chance at her'-in spite of her rage with him, she was secure in her old knowledge of his cleverness—"and I will stay here and try to help things on!" with a pale smile.

She went to the door and locked it then to her

She went to the door and locked it, then to her dressing-case and dragged out a photograph. For a minute she stood and stared at it, biting her a minute such that it is a such that it is the such that it is anything with it," she thought angrily, "And I daren't trust any one—but—"With swift inspiration a thought had come to her.

her.
"Hester Murray!" she cried half-aloud. "Hester can tell her a bit of—truth! The silly old duchess will never imagine that Hester and I are Adler's Down-Free Trial Adler Offer Organ Your Own Time to Pay My Remarkable Offer Breaks all Sales Record to your home, without paying a cent down, for a FREE 30 Day Trial Send no money. Have it a to keep it. then pay me in Small Easy Payments No Interest—No Collectors. —No Burden To You Stycer Guarantee. I nave you $48.75, because I sell direct from $1,000,00 Adder Organ Factory (greatest in existence) wiping out all in-between profits.

C. L. ADLER, Pres, ADLER ORGAN CO., 2045 W. Chestnut Street

SAVE MONEYON SHOES

NATIONAL ALUMINUM SHOES

old acquaintances—Hester, who runs in and out of Avonmore to help me; if she doesn't I'll make an unpleasant squall in the Murray mansion. This match-making," with a little laugh, "Is most amusing."

Her ill humor gone utterly, she sat down at her writing-table and constructed a letter to make her old friend shake in her shoes, in spite of its affection. She sealed up her letter and the photograph, for Hester might not have one, and then turned her attention to something else.

"I have a great mind to get rid of Adams," she thought, "She is getting beyond herself. But I'll wait a little; she might talk. And, after all, 'better a devil you know than a devil you don't know!" forcibly. "Though I doubt if Hester will think so," with a curious look, as if something had come back from the past and pleased her.

"Well" she said half-aloud. "I suppose the "Well," she said half-aloud. "I suppose the duchess will deck out my deaf stepdaughter in purple and fine linen, but unless I want to look a beast, I suppose I ought to provide her with at least one gown. I, who haven't two coins to rub together nowadays. She wouldn't wear my (CONTINUED ON PAGE 19).

Don't Be A Wall Flower!

No longer need the ability to play music be shut out of your life! Now at last you can learn music—how to play any instrument—at home—yet without having a teacher at your elbow. By our wonderful home study method we have made it easy for you to play by note the Piano, Organ, Violin, Banjo, Mandolin, Guitar, Cornet, "Cello, or learn Sight Singing.

No tiresome, "dry" exercises, no inconvenience, no trick music, no "numbers," yet simple, wonderful, easy for even a child. Now you can bring into your own life and the lives of others endless pleasure and happiness through your music. Instead of being a forsaken "wall flower" you will be the most popular person in your set. By our new plan more than 200,000 gentlemen, ladies and children in all parts of the world have learned to play successfully and skilfully.

Lady Annesley sat in speechless fury over the note that arrived from the duchess the very next morning.

About her was spread her whole wardrobe, which she had been looking over with the eye of a born milliher, quite certain that Levallion's hints about London had meant he would give her the money to take Ravenel there. And this—with a vicious glance at the duchess' letter—was their real meaning!

"For, of course, it's all Levallion!" She drummed angrily on her knee with slim, white fingers. "I have half a mind to checkmate him. He might, considering everything, have sent me to town. But for me he never would have seen his pink-and-white doll."

She threw the duchess' letter on a table, where

WONDERFUL LESSONS FREE

We want to have one pupil in each locality AT ONCE to help advertise our wonderful, easy system of teaching music. For a limited time we are therefore making a special advertising offer to give you music lessons in your own home, absolutely free. The ONLY cost is for postage and sheet music, which averages only 12½ weekly. We can do this because our course makes friends—pupils recommend it to others and then we make our profit. We make this offer on condition that you give them our

SEND NO MONEY MAIL COUPON TODAY

Learning music successfully by our Home Study method is a positive, proven fact. The lessons are so interesting it is more like a game than a study. Thousands who never knew one note from another before taking the lessons have developed into expert musicians. The average yearly enrollment for the past few years has been over 25,000 pupils. We grade you before you start and fit the instruction to your special needs. A beginner gets entirely different lessons than one who has had lessons.

Let us send you our new 24-page book, which describes the secret principles of our wonderful New System of Music Teaching som from beginning to end, and contains scores of letters from pupils who have become expert players as a result of the Course. How to Write to-day. Mall coupon or postal.

U. S. School of Music

Dept. 411 Brunswick Bldg., New York

FREE COUPON FOR LESSONS

U. S. School of Music, 411 Brunswick Bldg., New York

Please send me your free book, "Music Les-sons by mail," explaining bow I can learn to ay for 12½c weekly. I would like to learn to play the

Copyright, 1917, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

OVEMBER brings us the day of general thanksgiving, when scattered families group together; when hearts are set with one another in feasting and rejoicing; when we give thanks for our manifold blessings.

It is also a season when we should be devoutly thankful for our friends, the old and the new, and to those far from home extend whatever hospitality we can. Though the cheer be small, the welcome can make a merry feast.

Miss November, in her very appearance, suggests happy faces and a bounteous repast, and where there are young people to make the effort, appropriate decorations can easily be managed. Miss November's picture is seen on another hage illustrating "The Kingdom of Our Birthright."

Ripe corn on cob, tied together in bunches by the husks turned back, and used as a sideboard decoration, makes an effective setting for high dishes of nuts, fruits and desserts. A centerpiece is made by hollowing out a pumpkin, leaving only the yellow shell, lining it with white paper, and placing it on a large circle of green paper. This pumpkin holds a gift for each one seated at the table. Wrap each article very neatly in white tissue paper, and tie with bright colored ribbon, leaving one end long enough to reach from pumpkin to plate. At a word from the hostess, the guests, one at a time, pull the ribbon at their plate, and out comes their Thanksgiving souvenir, which must immediately be unwrapped. After this ceremony, the pumpkin is replaced by a half pumpkin filled with fruit. The gifts may be jokes or otherwise. If jokes, the seeds from the pumpkin will create laughter; also two (beau-) knots of ribbon, designed for two lover guests. A tiny mince pie made in a doll's plate, a nut, a wishbone, a candy gobbler, etc. If personal hits can be made with the souvenirs, fun will not lag.

A bunch of red-eared corn, tied with grive the mistletoe suggestion. If autumn leaves have been gathered as they fell, waxed and pressed and strung on threads, and the bright red berries of the white alder, you have the makings of garlan

Comfort's League of Cousins

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 10.)

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 10.)

13. Il Hohenzollern. I note that Henry Ford is patriotic and has come to his senses and even Bryan is waking up, so you needn't take them along. If these jobs are a little too much for you Stanley, you can go into the chicken business and sell eggs at sixty cents a dozen all the year round. With feed at its present price you probably would starve to death on a proposition of that kind. Why not start a newspaper route? You might use that wheel to run errands for your ambitions and don't overwork for a while. You need plenty of play and plenty of rest for the next two or three years. Let your body gain strength that your brain and shoulders may be able to bear the burdens that will come in later years.

BETHANY, ILL.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

I am a girl ten years old I have brown hair and blue eyes. I have a sister Beulah and a little brother Lloyd. My little brother will be five years old in November. I have been reading the Comport for three years, and I always read the letters from the nelces and nephews and often wish that I could see one of mine in print. I go to school and I am in the sixth grade.

I am in a class by myself and get a hundred every day in spelling. My teacher's name is Miss Mary Wallace. There are only ten children that go to our school. So you see we have not got a very big school. I can play the organ. I can iron tat crochet and milk the cow. I have strong eyes so you see I can do a lot of fancy work.

Hoping Billy the goat don't eat this letter I remain your loving neice, Thelma Davis.

I can play the organ. I can iron tat crochet and milk the cow. I have strong eyes so you see I can do a let of fancy work.

Hoping Billy the goat don't eat this letter I remain your loving neice, THELMA DAVIS.

Glad to hear from you Thelma. So you are in a class by yourself and get a hundred every day in spelling. Well you won't get a hundred in Uncle Charlie's class until you learn to spell "niece" correctly. The only time I was in a class by myself was when I was locked up in a room with a nice attack of mumps and measles. If its rather dangerous to be in a class by oneself. There is the Kaiser and his son the Clown Prince, and the Prussdan Junkers, and the German language press, which says that everything that is printed in English is a lie, and Herr La Follette and Herr Stein (I mean Stone) not forgetting Herr Wilhelm Hearst, the Mayor of Chicago and Tom Watson; all these individuals are in a class by themselves and theirs is a class the world could just at present do very well without. We are all interested in knowing that you can iron tat crochet and milk the cow, Thelma. It seems however it must be pretty tough on the cow to have to be the recipient of these extraordinary attentions on your part. I wonder how cow's milk tastes after the poor animal has been torocheted and tatted, not forgetting ironed. Possibly the cow is anæmic and that is why she gets ironed. Anyway Thelma, you are a live, ambitious girl and that is the kind of girl the world needs.

I am as ever your neice, Florata Turner.

Glad to know Florra, that you are learning fast. Keep it up. Keep your mind on your studies and don't let it go wandering. The screen of such and don't let it go wandering. The screen of such and don't let it go wandering. The screen of such and don't let it go wandering. The screen of such and don't let it go wandering. The screen of such and don't let it go wandering. The screen of such seeds you can concentrate the rays of the sess concentration. Note bow with a magnifying glass you can concentrate the rays of t

WORDESTER, 38 Tatman, St., MASS.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

I am sixteen years old, five feet and nine inches tall, weigh one hundred and twenty-nine pounds, have gray-blue eyes, dark brown hair and very homely. I have very few friends in Worcester as we have not been living here long. I am often very lonesome. I am very fond of reading. I am studying French now and I love it. I like to read novels, too. Will you please tell me of some good books for girls to read? In spare time I draw, make artificial flowers and write short stories for my friends. I just love to write stories. I have a tiny little garden in the back yard. I have planted some beets, carrots, peas and corn. I was born in the country so I am used to farm work. I just love Compost. It has been in our family ever since I can remember. Your niece,

ALVHIL V. HOLM.

ful girl like you could or should read. I suppose you have read all the best known and most popular of the works of the great authors of chastifiction. You ought to read Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter," Bret Harte's short stories, which are wonderful, and Poe. How many of you boys and girls know anything of Poe except that he wrote "The Raven," a poem which but few of you like or understand. You should read his "Tales of Mystery and Imagination," "The Gold Bug," "The House of 'Usher." Poe is the greatest literary genius this country ever produced. No one ever handled the supernatural and filled his stories with such an atmosphere of terror and wonder as did Poe. Then there is Mark Twain. His "Huckelberry Finn," "Tom Sawyer," A Connecticut Yankee At the Court of King Arthur," and "Innocents Abroad," are delightful. Every girl as well as boy should read one or more of Fenimore Cooper's romances; and too don't forget Washington Irving. Among more modern worthwhile authors are Jack London, and O. Henry, but don't touch them until you have dipped into the classies. Read "Ivanhoe" by Sir Walter Scott, Thackeray's "Vanity Fair," and all of Dickens' works, if you have the time, they are so intensely human, interesting and appealing. Stevenson's "Treasure Island" will delight you. Kipling and Thomas Hardy are the greatest of living English authors. Read Hugo's "Les Miserables," Eugene Sue's "Wandering Jew," a marvelous, hair-ralsing story and Tolstoy's "War and Peace." This however is only skimming one tiny section of the sea of literature. Fact is stranger and more interesting than fiction. History and popular science, the lives of great men and famous women, stories of travel, and ancient life history of the earth and its races, should form the largest and most important part of one's reading. No, one can read a millionth part of the world's literature, but in convenient, condensed form in a score or so of volumes you can get the heart and soul of nearly all the greatest works that men have written in every field of lite

OENAVILLE, R. R. 1, Box 67, TEXAS. HELLO UNCLE

OENAVILLE, R. R. 1, Box 67, TEXAS.

HELLO UNCLE:

How are you and all the cousins, I have been reading your talks for a long time. I like them fine. I live about six miles from the nearest P. O. We have not got many cattle. We have only three mules, two cows, a calf and five hogs. Uncle I am five feet tall, weigh seventy pounds, have dark red hair, cat eyes and I am sure pretty, don't you think so? Well Uncle I will tell you what I can do. I can cook milk and clean up the house. Uncle Charlie I am twelve years old and am getting letters from a boy about the same age. Will you give me some advice? I am too young to be writing to the boys. Will you tell me what to do? Uncle I can't do much work in the field I can pick one hundred and eight pounds of cotton a day. Well Uncle I will close, would like to hear from all the cousins.

Your niece,

ALICE GREGORY.

So Alice, you can cook milk and clean up the house can you? You must be some cook if you can do all that. We should all love to see you milking the house. It would be interesting to know how you go about the job and still more interesting to watch you while you are about it. I never drank any house milk, but should imagine it would be tasty stuff. Billy the Goat says he would like you to send him a couple of gallons for inspection. It would be interesting too, to see you cooking the house. I suppose you souse it with kerosene and touch it off with a match, or maybe you load it on to the fryin" pan. Fine cooks are scarce and when we do strike a fine one such as you, Alice, we find her engaged in cooking material no one can eat except a goat. There is no harm in your corresponding with that boy as long as you show the letters you write and also those you receive from him to your mother, and that is something you probably will not do. If this boy is writing mush to you and you are writing slush to him, the sooner your mother stops the correspondence and boxes your ears the better for you. If you can conduct a correspondence along rational, sensible lines, do so, for the more practise you have in writing the better for you, and you certainly need some practise.

THROCKMORTON, TEXAS.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

I am a little girl only thirteen years of age. I have dark hair and gray eyes. I am five feet tall. I go to Oak Grove school. I love to go to school. I love to go to school am in the fifth and sixth grade and I learn fast. We have a man teacher, his name is Mr. Poke Mc. Mayhon. School hasn't started yet, but I will be glad when it starts. I have two sisters and one brother. We have been picking cotton. I don't like the job. I want to make you cousins if you will please send me the song entitled the "Sailor Boy."

I am as ever your neice,

FLORRA TURNER.

DEAR UNCIE CHARLLE.

I am a Southern (Georgia) girl through and through, and have only been in St. Louis a little over a year. Since being here, I have graduated from business college; in fact, I graduated twice within nine months, from high school, Georgia, last May and from college here in February, and I am now working. I like my work very much. I am fond of all kinds of music, I play the piano, and used to sing, but my voice is so "squeaky" now that I don't sing any more by myself. I have a friend that accompanies me on the piano with a drum, and we sure have "some music." I go down the Mississippi river quite often, on the Majestic most of the time (a Tennessee steamer) and certainly enjoy the music and watching the people dance. I dance sometimes myself.

I am twenty years of age, and am going to register for any kind of work that the Government may see fit to place me in. I don't see why a soldier has to be a man. Wouldn't a girl do just as well?

CORINE ROBERTS.

Alvhil, it would take a whole edition of Com-FORT to tell you of the books a bright, thought- UNCLE CHARLIE'S BOOKS make the best Xmas gifts.

If you will please note what a lot of so-called soldiers (Germans) have been doing in Belgium you will realize that vast numbers of them have been beasts and brutes instead of men. If you will also note what a lot of Russian soldiers, extreme socialists, anarchists, pacifists and traitors have been doing, thousands of them surrendering to the enemy, selling their native land and stabbing the democratic nations in the back, ourselves included, you will see how necessary it is that a soldier should be a man, and not a cur, a dog and a reptile. When the Spartan went to war, his mother addressed him thus: "With your shield or on it." He was to bring that shield back a victor, or be carried on it to his grave. The best and noblest women in Russia address their soldier men thus: "Until you march against the foe and enter his towns and capitals with flags flying and overturn with your bayonets the throne of Wilhelm of Prussia, we have no word for you but cowards, traitors and Judases." I hope every mother in the United States will address her son thus. The women of Russia, too, are forming battalions of death. They are going to the trenches with guns on their shoulders shouting: "Beware of the tigress mothers of Russia." Patriotism at the time I am writing seems temporarily at least to have dried up in the veins of the Russian soldier, but it is coursing like fire through the veins of the women of Russia. The liberty that is license; socialism that in the minds of the simple and gullible quickly begets anarchy, and blighting ignorance generated by centuries of oppression, quickly turn heroes and soldiers into poltroons, cowards, dreamers and jackasses. These men may escape the cannon, but they cannot escape the lash of the conquering Prussian slave master. Go ahead Corine and serve your country, there are plenty of male slackers, shirkers, traitors, loafers, ingrates and poltroons who need the stimulus of your example.

NEOSHO, Mo.

Dear Uncle Charle:

I hear you wrote a good many poems and my sister has a book of them. I want to know what you had to do before you became a poet. Do I have to go to high school? If so please let me know as I should like to become a poet. I rhyme a good deal. I wrote five piecse this morning I like your appearance well. I don't know how you will like mine. I am almost sixteen years old and I am in the 8th grade and expect to finish this year. I am a farmer's son and have about as good a time as the rest of farmers boys. I never swear. I know a good deal about animals, birds and things. I suppose I'll close for this time.

From your everlasting friend,
RAYMOND PHILLIBER.

P. S.—Flease tell me about what I'll have to do to become a poqt. One of the peices is about being good.

P. S.—Flease tell me about what I'll have to do to become a poqt. One of the peices is about being good.

Just what a man has to do to become a real poet outside of starving to death for a few hundred years I do not know. Probably he has to be boiled in oil, dried and run through a meat chopper, fed with lark's tongues and fried hyacinths, washed with dewdrops, steamed with rainbows and other interesting processes of that kind. All I had to do to become a writer of verse was to find myself dead broke on a cot in a hospital, with the knowledge if I did not produce good money in forty-eight hours I would be thrown out on my head. It is a predicament of that kind that makes a man search his soul for time very best that is in him, and produce something marketable or commit suicide. As I had no desire to die I started to write, preferring to kill others rather than kill myself. Poets are born, Raymond, not made. If you are a born poet you won't have to ask anyone's advice how to become one, for you will already have arrived. Rhyming won't help you to be a poet. Rhyming is merely a mechanical process, which anyone can master. To be a poet requires a perfect command of language and limitless imagination. You don't have to be a college graduate, Burns wasn't, but still education is an enormous acip, for the educated man usually knows when he is making an ass of himself, while the uneducated man doesn't. I am both glad and sad to know you do not swear. A man who cannot swear should never try to be a poet. The public does not want poetry and editors won't buy what the public does not want when the editors return your poems with neat little rejection slips and the landlord and the grocery man are camping on the stoop demanding their money, you've simply got to swear or blow your brains out, and if you blow your brains out the landlord will put you in jail for mussing up his property. I know because I have been all through the mill. Fill your soul with poetry, for life without it is but a desert, and write right out of you

LATHAM, Pike Co., R. R. 1, OHIO.

LATHAM, Pike Co., R. R. 1, Ohio.

I am a little girl twelve years old. I have dark curly hair. I am five feet three inches tall. I live among the hills. I go to school about every day and I am a good reader. I am in the fourth grade. I live thirty-seven miles from the Ohio river, which is in the northern part of the United States. I have many pets, I have a kitten, its name is Ribbon and a squirrel, I call it Hipple. I have a bunch of chickens. We get fifty eggs in summer. I ride the horses on the farm. Our nearest town is Latham.

Your affectionate little friend,

VERNA MCVAY.

Verna, we are glad to know that the Ohio river is located in the northern part of the United States. Geographical knowledge its so rare that it always makes me happy when I come across some evidence of it especially in the young. Last week a young lady dropped in to see me. She and four other of her friends had secured positions at nine dollars a week filing away stencils in the office of a magazine. Two of the five girls were foreign born but had been in this country nearly half their lives, the other three were New Yorkers. It appears a heated argument had taken place among them as to whether Chicago was in Indiana or Illinois. Three were for Indiana and two were for Illinois. They did not like to ask the superintendent, so waited until the lunch hour and phoned me. Of course I told them they were all wrong and that it was in Missouri. It is astonishing how little people in this country know about its geography. Nothing teaches geography so thoroughly as does war, but, alas! no one is interested in the war, and ing teaches geography so thoroughly as does war, but, alas! no one is interested in the war, and

Lift Corns out with Fingers

A few drops of Freezone loosen corns or calluses so they peel off

Apply a few drops of Freezone upon a tender, aching corn or a callus. The soreness stops and shortly the entire corn or callus loosens and can be lifted off without a twinge of pain.

Freezone removes hard corns, soft corns, also corns between the toes and hardened calluses. Freezone does not irritate the surrounding skin. You feel no pain when applying it or afterward.

Women! Keep a tiny bottle of Freezone on your dresser and never let a corn ache twice.

Small bottles can be had at any drug store in the United States or Canada. The Edward Wesley Co., Cincinnati, O.

consequently they are learning nothing about geography through the sufferings of others. Nothing is so interesting as to get a map of the United States and go on an imaginary journey from coast to coast. To know next to nothing about the country one lives in, and nothing at all of the world on which one passes one's days, is a tragedy. Take a blank map on which the states are outlined, and if there is one person in a hundred that can fill out more than sixty per cent of the states correctly I'll eat my hat. Try it and see if you do not believe I'm right. I've written a lot about girls and the low wage question. Now of these five girls who were flining away stencils, if they were paid on a basis of efficiency they would hardly be worth five dollars a month. It is schools for adults we need more than schools for children. The world is bound to be full of squirrels, while the majority of people insist on being nuts. We all know how much money we want but how many of us have character and honor enough to render full and (continued on page 16.) (CONTINUED ON PAGE 16.)

UNITED STATES PILLOW TOPS Size 24 x 24. Highest grade wool felt. Color Red. White & Blue. lk U. S. Flag in center. Fringe edge. Price prepaid. 20. JOHN NELSON, STAMFORD, NEB.

New Feather Beds Only $8.40 Full weight 35 pounds, 6-pound New Feather Pillows $1.40 per pair. Satisfaction guaranteed. Write for free catalog. SOUTHERN FEATHER & PILLOW CO., Dept 201, Greensbore, N. C.

FULL WEIGHT 40 POUND. A pair 6-lb. Pillows Selected, New Live, Clean, Sanitary Feathers Best to match, $1.30. Feather-proof Ticking. Sold on money-back guarantee. DO NOT BUY from anyone at any price, until you get the BOOK OF TRUTH, our big, new catalog mailed FREE. Write a post card TODAY. Agents Wanted Everywhere. MAKE BIG MONEY.

American Feather & Pillow Co., Desk 240, Nashville, Tenn.

BY KATE V. SAINT MAUR.

How to Raise Turkeys Successfully

OUNG turkeys have been so difficult to raise during the last few years, that the supply is deplorably short in the markets, and prices correspondingly high, all through the disease known as "blackhead," not being noticed or recognized by the average farmer. I receive many letters every month describing the symptoms of ailing turkeys, complaining of how young turkeys die off, and asking if I can tell the cause and give a remedy.

a remedy.

Few people realize, because the heads of the birds were not discolored, that nearly all these mysterious deaths were caused by blackhead. The name has led people to consider it a disease affecting the head only, whereas it affects the head least, and frequently there is no trace of discoloration, even in the advanced stages of the disease.

Dr. Theobald Smith first ascertained that this head.

The majority of young poults die after a day or two of droopiness. Adults may droop longer and pass into chronic stages of the disease. Refusal to eat and standing apart constitute late symptoms. Starvation in chronic cases produces thinner. So you see once again the importance of exercising strict cleanliness is impressed upon us poultry people.

About two years ago I gave our readers a summary of the work which had been conducted at the Rhode Island Experiment Station by Professor Hadley. The first point strongly emphasized was the necessity for reducing the amount of food usually given to young turkeys. Experiments made during the last fifteen years convinced him that the parasite which causes blackhead can only be developed in the intestines of a young bird, when it has been weakened by indiscreet feeding, which has clogged the bowels, and rendered the tissues susceptible to attack, and that the only frue method of fighting the disease is along the lines of prevention—in other words, keeping the bird's intestines in such a clean, healthy condition that the parasites have no chance to attack them. The second point is, that certain acids materially retard the growth of the parasite, so that in connection with reduced feed, sour milk is the most powerful agent in checking the development of the disease. Beyond which it is probable that beside the effect of the sour milk is talso beneficial to the tissues of the intestines. But Professor Hadley found that milk clabbered in the usual domestic way, or by any of the preparations usually sold for that purpose, does not contain sufficient acidity to be of value in fighting off the parasites. When they have once been introduced into the bird's intestines he recommended the use of a foreign bacterium, but it is a very expensive remedy, and I really believe unnecessary, if you will take means to eradicate the sources of contagion at this season of the year, and so prevent the parasites being in existence on your farm next spring, which of course would effectually prevent any chance of their being introduced into the young turkey's intestines.

As common chickens, as well as old turkeys, harbor the parasites which cause blackhead, and can be so little affected that they show no signs of ill health, tho had good natural drainage, on which we made three enclosures. A rough shelter of slabs and brush was built in each, under which perches made out of sassafras poles were put up, none of them less than nine inches in circumference. This is one of the important items in fixing a place for turkeys. Being heavy, largefooted birds, they are uncomfortable, and positively suffer if condemned to balance themselves on small perches.

I started with ten hens from the Massachusetts farm, and two toms from Long Island, and sent for them early in December, so that they would have time to become thoroughly at home in their new quarters before the mating season, and would give us time to use the methods employed by our Massachusetts friend to keep his stock free from disease. This consists in thoroughly cleaning out the intestines, and then administering an antiseptic to kill embryo parasites and germs.

Knowing that the hens would be in good con-ling an antiseptic to kill embryo parasites and germs.

Knowing that the hens would be in good condition, we turned them into one of the yards on arrival, but not knowing so much about the way the stock was managed on the Long Island farm on which the two toms had been bought, we gave them two tablespoonfuls of Castor oil each, before releasing them from the crates, and did not let them out until three hours afterward. Then they were put into a small chicken house which we happened not to be using just at that time, and each morning they had a mash made by moistening ground oats and corn with Castor oil, and the antiseptic was put into the drinking water every day for three weeks they were kept in quarantine, after which, they were turned into one of the large enclosures, kept there until the first week in March, when mating commenced, at which time a temporary fence of one-inch mesh was run across the yard, until they had all been served.

After a turkey hen has laid a clutch of eggs, become broady and been broady up for two and the product of the served.

After a turkey hen has laid a clutch of eggs, become broody, and been broken up for two or three days, she is turned in with one of the toms for several days before being turned back into the yard to lay.

Dr. Theobald Smith first ascertained that this disease, which is especially characterized by great sores in the creca and liver, was caused by a microbe—Amoba meleagridis. In explaining the character of the disease he compared it to amobic dysentery in the human subject—a disease which also attacks the large intestine and liver.

The ameba is a microscopic animal parasite capable of living within the tissues of the turkey, its host. It can grow and reproduce itself in large numbers, thereby causing irritations, destruction of the tissues, and nearly always death of the invalid turkeys.

Chronic cases furnish a large variety of morbid changes, evidently caused by the inability of the tissues of the patient to overcome and reduce he irritating masses. The liver and cæcal sores are always present in recent cases, and disappear only in the turkeys which have recovered.

The cæcum may exhibit but a minute sore, but the liver, excepting when nearly healed, always which are usualy red in health, become more or less darkened. In acute cases they die so quick-live most farmers, but I assure you, friend, it which are usualy red in health, become more or less darkened. In acute cases they die so quick-live, however, as to leave no impression as to a change of color of the head.

The majority of young poults die

TURKEY AND PUMPKIN PIE FOR THANKSGIVING.

and control the setting period.

The wire around our enclosure was only four feet high. One wing of each bird was cut to prevent them flying over it. Early in March half barrels were secreted among the brush in the yards, so that the hens would become accustomed to their appearance and consider them safe hiding places for their eggs. About the middle of the month we commenced to keep a lookout for eggs in the half barrel, and stolen nests. When one is found, it is purloined, and a china one put in its place; ditto when the second one was taken, but after that no more china eggs were dropped, as two always seemed to satisfy Mrs. Turkey, into matter how long she might go on laying. Until like common hens, turkeys are not attracted to a nest by an egg. In fact, they retain so much of the wild bird that they will not adopt a nest that has been used by any other bird; so never distribute nest eggs as decoys, but only as substitutes for those abstracted.

The matter of feeding the old birds is of great importance, and is the rock most farmers founder on, leaving them to forage for themselves, or at the best, giving them uncertain quantities of corn, which means that they are miserably thin and dilapidated, or outrageously fat. In either case, they lack the components which the egg for hatching should possess. Result, weak youngsters which are doomed to die, no matter how much care is lavished on them. So our turkeys are fed with special reference to supplying the interesting should possess. Result, weak youngsters which are doomed to die, no matter how much care is lavished on them. So our turkeys are fed with special reference to supplying the interesting should possess. Result, weak youngsters which are doomed to de, no matter how much care is lavished on them. So our turkeys are fed with special reference to supplying the interesting should possess. The set of the possess of the po and so prevent the parasites being in existence on your farm next spring, which of course would effectually prevent any chance of their being introduced into the young turkey's intestines.

As common chickens, as well as old turkeys, harbor the parasites which cause blackhead, and can be so little affected that they show no signs of ill health, though their droppings will spread the disease, it is plain that the first step in ridding the premises of the contagion is to keep turkeys and common fowls apart, and the turkeys in restricted quarters during at least some part of the year, so that it will be easy to purify and get them into good breeding condition before the mating season.

Before I started keeping turkeys, fifteen years ago, I visited a large breeder in Massachusetts, who for ten years had been wonderfully successful, and I adopted many of his methods, to which fact I consider I owe much of my own success. He kept his birds in large yards, or rather raclosures, on half an acre each. The land was shallow, but there were plenty of clumps of brush and ferns to afford shelter on hot days. The goot was really waste land, of no earthly value for crops, but perfectly ideal for turkeys.

We utilized a strip of poor brush land which except that we use milk which has either been turned with ordinary household rennet, or just allowed to stand in a warm place until thoroughly congealed, and then broken, strained through cheese-cloth or a fine sieve just as one does when making cottage cheese, catching the whey in a pan, so that it can be used in a drinking fountain, and then feeding the curds mixed with the dre mash.

cheese-cloth or a fine sieve just as one does when making cottage cheese, catching the whey in a pan, so that it can be used in a drinking fountain, and then feeding the curds mixed with the dry mash.

Now to the schedule of reduced feeding, which must be rigidly adhered to. Nothing for the first forty-eight hours; after that, hard-boiled egg, which has been chopped fine (include the shell). The young birds must have only the smallest imaginable quantity. If you have one of the little spoons which come with mixed mustard, use it as a measure, and divide that amount between the birds for a day's feed. If you don't use mixed mustard, or haven't such a spoon, a number nine thimble will do, but be sure it is only half full, and that two birds share the quantity. The fourth day the thimble may be three parts full, and a pinch of finely chopped green stuff added to it (the best green stuffs are tender clover, grass, or the green sprouts of oats.) The fifth day, fill the thimble with the chopped egg, and add a tiny pinch of rolled oats, and a degree more green stuff. Increase the amount about a grain a day, up to the tenth day, at which time the sour milk treatment should commence. At first, give just a few grains, mixed with a still fewer grain of dry mash. Increase slightly each day, at the same time decreasing the amount of chopped egg in such proportions that by the fourteenth day the egg may be entirely discontinued. At this time the birds should be getting one quarter of an ounce of green food, half that quantity of rolled oats, a pinch of dry mash and half an ounce of curds. This is for each bird. Keep whey before them all the time, so that they can drink when they please.

By the third week, rations should be as follows: Two ounces of green food, one ounce of rolled oats, half an ounce of dry mash; half a gill of curds, and not quite half an ounce of small mixed grain. Remember that this amount is for one week's rations, and must be divided for the seven days. Increase at the same gradual rate as before, all t night.

There have been so many letters about turkey raising and diseases, that instead of giving individual answers in this column, I have devoted my entire talk this month to the subject, and I ask you, who have written me, to read it carefully, as it answers all your inquiries more fully and practically than could be done in separate answers to individual questions.

Correspondence

Subscribers are entitled to advice of our Poultry Editor. free, through the columns of this department. Address Poultry Editor, COMFORT, Augusts, Maine. BE SURE to give your full name and address, otherwise your letter will receive no attention.

F. S. L.—The rations are not well balanced. Clover hay, cut into inch lengths, steamed over night, and mixed with ground feed (equal parts of oats and corn). A good proportion is a quart of clover hay after it has been chopped, to a pint of ground feed. Table scraps well boiled, with potato or any other vegetable trinmings can be fed alone or mixed with the hay instead of the feed. Ducks' food should always be sloppy, and consist principally of vegetables; some meat or a little grain. Mix a tablespoonful of bone meal to every quart of mash just now, for it provides the line in eggs which is necessary for the production of strong boned ducklings. I think your birds have been defective in this quality, and your method of feeding has not helped them. Are their sleeping quarters dry? They should be cleaned out and heavily bedded with straw and meadow hay at least once a week. I think natural weakness has developed into rheumatism through neglect in this respect. If other birds should be attacked, remove to a dry coop with lots of bedding, and rub the legs with opium salve. Add fifteen grains of iodide of potassium to every quart of drinking water, or if it is not convenient to get the potas-ing music with this Symphonic. The and your family will have with such to play the best Popular, Patriotic, trailic pieces. You'll always be ready ent's notice. This Player Piano with honic Planos and GRAND Pianos all ano Catalog.

Symphonic Player Piano

Ask Today for Your Piano Book Sent FREE on request. Gives our liberal offers. Easy payms nd over four years' time to pay while enjoying your instrume Vrite for your copy today. Please state whether interested in layer Plano, in the Plano or in the GRAND Plano. DESK CT-1117, BUFFALO, N. Y.

Quickstep Shoe

HAS THE HIGH COST OF SHOES AFFECTED YOU YET?

Join the "Quicketeppers" and save money.

Buy wonsen's aloos direct from the save money and save the s Quickstep Shoe Co., Box 2664, Boots

Health - Comfort - Convenience # m't go out in mightly, germ-br tdoor privy. No

Wolverine Chemical Toilet Endorand by health officials, Odorleas, Sani-tary, Germ Proof. No water, sewer or cesapoot. Easy to install. Upkeep leas than cent a day. Pays for itself many times in a year. Thousands in use, Price remark-nbly low. Write for free book. Dail Steel Products Co., 1011 Main St., Lausing, Mich.

Foy's big book tells all, about it. Contains many colored plates—an encyclopedia of poutry information, poultry houses, feeding for eggs, etc. Written by a man table knows. Sent for 5 cents. Low prices, fowls and eggs. FRANK FOY, BOX 5, CLINTON, IOWA.

Somewhere In France Prom a Brother to his Brother. This letter should be read by everyone. Price 10 cents—postpaid. Write plainly. The Jerome Press Dept. 50, 326 River Street, Chicago

OLD BLUE BACK SPELLERS clean unused copies, 25 cents each postpaid. FRED WILSON, Broughton, III.

Beautiful IM. DIAMOND RING FREE Gold Shell. Given free for sell-ing only 5 pkgs, post cards at 10c each. Easy to sell. We trust you. Order today CIRCLE SALES CO., DEPT. 37, MOLINE, ILL.

Cubby Bear's Thanksgiving Plum Pudding By Lena B Ellingwood

Copyright, 1917, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

UCH a beautiful Thanksgiving morning! Cubby Bear sprang out of bed and ran to the door. He was glad the weather was pleasant, for Mamma Bruin and he were to have a long walk that morning.

They were going to have Thanksgiving dinner with Auntie Bear, and the little cousins, Bonnie-belle and Jackie. Cubby Bear had never seen little Jackie, but he loved Bonniebelle. She was a dear little bear, always sweet and smiley, and she wore a gold locket tied round her neck with a blue ribbon.

They had an early breakfast, and while Mamma Bruin tidied up the house, Cubby Bear ran about excitedly, trying to help. He looked on in delight while Mamma Bruin carefully placed in a birch-bark basket a fine, fat plum pudding, which she had boiled the day before. They were to take this to Auntie Bear, to help on the Thanksgiving dinner. The "plums" in it were dried blueberries, which Cubby Bear had picked in the summer, the day he had gone berrying with Racky Coon, and the bees had

"It is a very good pudding," Mamma Bruin id with pride. "Auntie Bear is a good cook, said with pride. but her plum puddings are not like mine."

"Shall we stay all night?" asked Cubby Bear. "Oh, yes! it is too far to come back the same day! We may stay a week, perhaps. You must be a very good little bear, Cubby. Keep your face clean and your shoestrings tied up, sip your soup quietly, and answer politely when you are Mamma Bruin polished her glasses carefully, and tied on her best white apron. Cubby Bear wore his new green necktie and his red ear-muffs.

"Now we are ready to start," said mamma Bruin. "Here, Cubby you may carry the um-brella. It is a fine morning, but it is always safe to take an umbrella when one is traveling, for the weather may change at any time. I have this large bundle to carry.

Mamma Bruin wound the clock, and fastened the door by placing a large block of wood against it; then she and Cubby climbed out of the window, and closed the shutter behind

Then they started on their way. The air was mild for November, and the pale sunshine threw shadows of the bare trees down on the fallen leaves, which had faded to a sickly yellow, or turned brown like the earth they would soon mingle with. Cubby Bear kicked up the leaves as he walked to hear them rustle.

They had walked a long way, when Mamma Bruis widdenly depended by kindle and these Bruin suddenly dropped her bundle, and threw up both hands.

"Oh, Cubby Bear!" she cried. "Our beautiful plum pudding! We have forgotten it!"
Cubby Bear's little face wore a funny look of dismay. "Our beautiful plum pudding!" he echoed. "Oh, oh! whatever shall we do?"

"I must go back af er it," said poor Mamma Bruin. "You may stay here and watch my

"No, Mamma Bruin," said Cubby Bear. "You stay here, and I will go back for the pudding. I am growing larger and stronger, you know, and ought to be a help to you. It will not tire me as it would you, for I am used to running about all day, at play. Here is a fallen tree—

The two teams have not until I come have." sit down here and wait until I come back.

"What a good little bear!" said Mamma Bruin, as she settled herself comfortably, with the bundle and umbrella on the ground at her feet. "I shall be glad to rest."

next two were wiping their eyes on the backs of their furry paws. The oldest one stared sadly at the others, his paws deep in his pockets, his under lip drooping dejectedly.

So Cubby started off. He did not stop to play in the dead leaves, but trotted briskly on his way back home.

He had gone as far as the dead pine tree which had been killed by lightning one terrible night a few years before, when he heard an unhappy little wail, followed by a burst of loud sobs.

"Who can be crying like that, on Thanks-ving Day!" wondered Cubby. "I must try to giving Day!" wondered Cubby.

"Oh, what is the matter?" asked Cubby Bear.

"Are you lost, Little Badgers?"
The five Little Badgers looked at him.
"Yes, we are lost!" they told him. "Our mamma, Betty Badger, went away yesterday to get our Thanksgiving dinner. She did not come back, and this morning we started out to find her. We are hungry. We shall never find our her. We are hungry. We shall never find our mother, or our home. We shall be cold tonight-perhaps we may freeze! And if we do something good to eat, and then find someone who will take you to your own home. Come, follow me."

When they got to Mamma Bruin's house, Cubby opened the window, helped the Little Badgers in, and then climbed in himself.

He looked all about for something to feed his hungry visitors with, while they watched him anxiously.

But all he could find was that beautiful, fat plum pudding, speckled so thickly with plums, which had been made for Auntie Bear's Thanksgiving dinner!

Could he take that?

What would Mamma Bruin say? He uncovered it, and took it out of the basket. The Little Badgers looked at it longingly.

Clearly, there was nothing else to be done! The Little Badgers must be fed. He was sure Mamma Bruin would give it to them if she were there, and could find nothing else.

Choking back a sigh, Cubby Bear cut into the pudding, and gave generous slices to the hungry Little Badgers.

There came a knock at the door.

"Come to the window!" called Cubby Bear.
"The door is fastened." Racky Coon looked in.
"Why, why!" he exclaimed in surprise "So the Little Badgers are here! Well, well! Betty

Badger is hunting everywhere for them, and I came to ask you to help find them. She is get-ting all the forest people to look."

"Then you will take them home!" said Cubby Bear. "I am so glad you came, for I am going on a visit, and Mamma Bruin is waiting for me. The Little Badgers were lost, and hungry, and I brought them home to feed them."

Racky Coon was looking hard at the pudding.
"Will you have a slice?" asked Cubby Bear politely. "Gladly, thank you!" answered Racky.

When they had finished, not a crumb was left of Mamma Bruin's fine pudding, but the Little Badgers were no longer hungry They started off, smiling and happy, with Racky Coon, for their home at the edge of the West Forest Racky had brought his sled, though there was no snow, and the five Little Badgers had a fine ride, hugging each other to keep from falling off the sled.

Then Cubby Bear fastened the window shutter, and with a light heart went back to where he had left Mamma Bruin.

"How long you have been gone! Why, where is the pudding?" she asked, when he came in sight. "Oh, I should have gone back for it my-self!" And I am afraid she felt a little impatient!

But when Cubby had told her all about the poor Little Badgers, she said he had done quite

"Now we must hurry," she said, "or Auntie Bear will think we are not coming, and we shall get no dinner at all! We have a long way to go, and it is late."

When they reached Auntie Bear's house, Auntie and Uncle and Bonniebelle and little Jackie all came running out to welcome them, Bonniebelle as sweet and smiley as ever, and with a fresh blue ribbon for her locket.

They had a fine dinner after all, and there were so many good things to eat, they did not in the least need the pudding which Cubby Bear, in the kindness of his heart, had given to Betty Badger's hungry children.

"Cubby Bear's Christmas Tree" will tell how Cubby Bear and his forest friends got up a Christmas Tree for old Santa Claus. Renew your subscription now so not to miss it next month in December COMFORT.

CHOKING BACK A SIGH, CUBBY BEAR CUT INTO THE PUDDING AND GAVE GENEROUS SLICES TO THE HUNGRY LITTLE BADGERS.

find out." So he turned in the direction from which the sounds had come, and soon came upon an unhappy little group—the five Little not freeze, we shall starve. YOU will have Thanksgiving dinner, Cubby Bear, but WE shall have nothing!"

The two youngest were crying aloud, their tears pattering down on the fallen leaves.

At this sorrowful picture, the five Little Badgers threw themselves on the ground, and wept together.

"No, no!" Cubby Bear told them, as he picked them up, one after another, and set them on their feet. "You shall not starve, I promise on their feet. "You shall not starve, I promise you that. I will take you with me, and give you

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

We have been reading about the Home fund the subscribers are raising for you and we will help if we can. I have a proposition to make to you. I have a good liniment for rheumatism and I can guarantee it to give satisfaction or money refunded.

I note Charlie I expect you have a great many call-

To give satisfaction or money refunded.

Uncle Charlie I expect you have a great many callers. Would you be willing to help me advertise it for hulf? I will pay all of the expenses and I will send you by express a box of the liniment, by doing this we would both be helping humanity and ourselves too, and all you will have to do will be to hand it to your callers and tell them about it and collect the money. It is put up in twenty-five and fifty-cent bottles. Your profit on one gallon would be seven dollars and fifty cents. If you haven't the time yourself perhaps you have a friend who could sell it for you and give you all or part of the profit. You will find inclosed a label of the liniment, it is guarenteed for what is on the label and it will cure almost any case of rheumatism except one of long standing.

We think this would be a good opportunity to help swell your Home fund.

Hoping to hear from you soon, Mg. Thos.

Hoping to hear from you soon, Mg. Thos.

Tom, it is exceedingly kind of you to want to put me on easy street for the balance of my life by the liniment route, but I fear yours is a proposition that I could hardly accept, as I have had so many made of a much more promising kind. A liniment proposition seems to suggest rubbing it in, and the people of the United States have had pretty nearly everything that is punk and rotten rubbed into them to such an extent that I have not the heart to anoint their hides with even so magic a liquid as yours. You are quite right, Tom, I do have quite a number of callers. After, however, it got noised about that Charles Noel Douglas, invalid, writer, poet, editor, philanthropist, and personal friend of the Czar, the Kaiser, Bill Bryan, and other crowned heads of Europe, had gone into the rheumatism and horse liniment business and was anointing his friends with a miraculous remedy for stiff and sore joints, how many callers do you think I'd have? I know if you don't. I'd have the patrol wagon from the police station and the padded ambulance from the nutty house come and gather

Continued from Page 14.)

i. lequate service for what we receive? The vast hins see of wage earners as a whole are underpaid, but there are piles of inefficient people who are overpaid. Ignorance is dear at any price and half the work of the world alas, is done by those who are densely ignorant. There are numbers of people who believe that there is a lot of work in the world that would not be done at all unless people were kept ignorant. That is all rubbish and piffle. All labor is honorable and dignified. The fine ladies and gentlemen of Europe are working in the fields and munition factories, plowing the fields or making shells. Never again will they look with contempt on the working class. War has given them a new vision. Heaven knows that new vision is sadly needed.

Canton, Iowa.

Canton is a many considered and of my career of my career of the confessor and confidential adviser to make the good people of the U. S. A. Tom, it is all very fine of you to figure out what my profits would be at seven dollars and a half a gallon of the world that would not be done at all very fine of you to figure out what my profits would be at seven dollars and a half a gallon of the world that would not be done at all very fine of you to figure out what my profits would be at seven dollars and a half a gallon of the doctor. I Lave never heard of a liver fine of you to figure out what my profits would be a seven dollars and a half a gallon of your liniment to a return down. As for getting my friends to sell the liniment down. As for getting my friends out with a seven and a half gallon of your liniment to a return down. As for getting my friends out with a seven and that gallon of your liniment to a return down. As for getting my friends out with a seven and a half gallon of your liniment to a return down. As for getting my friends out with a seven and a half gallon of your liniment to a return down. As for getting my friends out with a

2-Year Renewal Rate Goes Up to 40 Cents on January First

The largely increased cost of production compels us to add 10 cents to the price of a two-year renewal subscription to COMFORT. Therefore, on and after January 1, 1918, the price will be

40 Cents for a 2-Year Renewal

For the same reason the yearly subscription rate will have to be raised very soon and definite announcement of it will be made a little later.

The recent action of Congress in raising the second-class (magazine and newspaper) postage rates and putting them on a zone basis, will, unless modified before they go into effect, necessitate the ultimate doubling of our present subscription rates.

Read our editorial (on page 2) explaining the situation. The present low renewal rate will continue in force until the last day of next December, which gives our present subscribers an opportunity to renew their subscriptions

2 Full Years in Advance for 30 Cents.

Avail yourself of this privilege immediately. 10 cents is worth saving.

Send 30 Cents Today for 2-Year Renewal

rheumatic horse liniment every minute of the day as long as the juice held out. For external application there is no money in your liniment, but for internal application there are millions in it, if you know how to mix it properly, and if you don't know how it is easy to learn. I know. Tom, your intentions are of the best. Like everyone else, you are willing to help the sick and humanity generally if you can also help yourself at the same time. Comfort has been deluged with hundreds of letters similar to yours, so many in fact that nearly all its staff have threatened to shoot me on sight. Remember there is many a true word said in jest, and there is more truth than poetry in these apparently frivolous remarks of mine. No matter how lovely the deed or how beautiful the thought of those who are prompted to do acts of love and kindness, there are always thousands of selfish, profit-seeking, two-legged human clams, people devoid of all the finer sensibilities of life, devoid of sense and decency, who butt in and do their level best to spoil the best laid plans of men, women and angels, and fill with disguest all those who are straining every nerve to be kind and helpful. Of course, Thomas, I would not like to suggest that you are one of those individuals, but, believe me, if we ever start a home fund for you and the liniment and salve cranks get wise to what we are doing, their nervy actions will disgust you to such an extent that you will excavate your own grave and fall into it before it is half dug. It is a queer world, but fortunately it contains more good people than people who are otherwise, and not all the schemers in creation can undo all the good work of those who are kind, sweet and Christ like, no matter how hard they try, and the Lord knows they do try. Life is a hard proposition. Tom, but I have not quite reached the stage where I am compelled by dire necessity to peddle liniment. You see, Tom, the well-ordered nicely adjusted mind, recognizes the fact that certain things do not go very well together,

League Shut-in and Mercy Work for November

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least these, ye have done it unto Me."

of these, ye have done it unto Me."

Written references from postmaster and physician must positively accompany all appeals from shut-ins. Appeals unaccompanied by written references will be destroyed.

Fulton R. Lowe, Sheppards, R. R. 1, Box 33, Va. Helpless invalid for many years. Needy and worthy. Send him some of the sympathy that buys bread. Mrs. Kate Coleman, Price, N. C. Invalid for many years. Needs food and clothing. Remember her. Miss Myrtle Eshbaugh. Tionesta, Pa. Helpless for fourteen years. Aged mother her only support. Very needy and worthy case. Send her a dime shower. Ekline Miller, Xenia, R. R. 8, Ohio. Orphan girl, crippled and helpless. (CONTINUED ON PAGE 26.) (CONTINUED ON PAGE 26.)

IN @ AROUND The HOME

Terms Used in Crochet

on. st., chain stitch, simply a series of loops or atitches each drawn with the hook through the preceding one; s. c., single crochet, having a loop on hook, insert hook in work as indicated, draw loop through thread over, and draw through both loops; d., double crochet, thread over hook, insert hook in work, draw loop through, thread over draw through two loops; thread over hook, insert hook in work, draw loop through, thread over draw through two loops; tr. c., treble crochet, thread over hook twice, then work off as in double crochet, there being three groups of two loops to work off instead of two; h. tr., half treble, same as tr. c., only work off two loops, thread over and then through three loops; d. tr., double treble crochet, thread over three times, hook through work, thread over and draw through one loop, giving five on hook, thread over and work off by twos; sl st., slip stitch, insert hook in work, draw loop through work and loop on hook at the same time; p., picot, a picot is formed on a chain by catching back in the fourth st., or as indicated and working a sl. st. r. st., roll stitch, throw that thread over the needle as many times as indicated, insert hook in the work, thread over, pull through coil or roll, thread over, draw through the one loop on hook. The roll when completed is straight, with a thread the length of roll along its side. The length or size of a roll is regulated by the number of times the thread is thrown over; o., over, thread over hook the number of times indicated; k st., knot stitch, draw out loop about one quarter inch, catch thread and pull through, then put the hook between the drawn loop and the thread just pulled through, catch the thread fraw through these two stitches to form the knot; blk, block, a st. in each of a given number of sts., preceded and followed by a space; sp., space a space is formed by making a chain of 3 or 4 sts. and omitting the same number of stitches indicated in preceding row; p. c., padding cord;  stars mean that the

Patriotic Christmas Work

HE new conditions under which the holidays find us this year, should appeal to us each and all so strongly that if we are not already busy we should now make haste to do our part. Children and friends should of course, be remembered as usual, but first and foremost should be the plans and work for our boys in Khaki and the marines, who are now in the Khaki and the marines, who are now in the fight for universal peace and liberty.

Wounds and injuries will not be the only hardships they will have to endure. Being new to the life they will be particularly sensitive to the cold but much of the suffering from this cause can and must be prevented by warm woolen clothes.

tive to the cold out this cause can and must be prevented by warm woolen clothes.

Quantities will be necessary and it is in the providing of these that our women can assist those who fight for their country far from home. Directions for various garments have already appeared in these columns and COMFORT is now doing her bit by offering wool and directions for making some of the garments. Besides these other articles such as wristlets, mufflers, mitts, bandages, etc are also in great demand.

Every moment should now be utilshould now be utilized if work planned is to reach the boys by the holidays, as the Christmas boxes will be started this month from the various wait. from the various units.

Much of the work is

Much of the work is very simple and can be successfully undertak-en by a beginner.

The rules here given are all official. The yarn used for all the work should be either grey, khaki or navy Scotch.

Thumbless Long Wristlets

Materials. One half

Materials. One half hank of yarn 2 steel needles No. 12. Cast on 60 stitches. Knit 2, purl 2 for 16 inches, bind off and sew up leaving a two-inch space, two inches from the top for the thumb. thumb.

Overcast around this space or finish with one row of single crochet to strengthen the work. Catch top of mitt together between WRISTLET. third and little finger; this prevents the mitt from slipping off on the outside side of the hand when one is working The length, 16 inches as here given has also been found to be more practical than a shorter mitt which only of over it thus keeping it up.

THUMBLESS LONG

Short Wristlets

For these knit in the same way until eight or nine inches in length and sew up.

Abdominal Belt

Materials One skein or 2 balls natural or light grey, I pair No 5 amber needles. 1 pair

ABDOMINAL BELT.

No 12 steel needles. Cast on 160 to 200 sts. on steel needles. Knit three inches ribbed (k, 2, p 2.) Knit on to amber needles and knit Cast on from 45 to 50 stitches (width should be 10 inches.) Knit plain, always slipping the first stitch, until scarf is 58 inches long.

Knitted Scarf

Materials. Two and one half hanks varn. Amber needles No. 5.

SCARF FOR PLAIN KNITTING CAN BE MADE BY

Eye Bandage No. 1

Three-ply knitting cotton No. 6, No. 12 steel needles Cast on 12 sts. knit plain three inches; increase one on fourth st., each row until there are 24 sts. Knit four ribs plain, decrease one on fourth stitch each row until there are 8 sts. Knit two ribs plain, increase one on fourth across plain. Work eight inches, knit on to steel needles and rib for three inches. Bind off COMFORT'S Committee, U. S. Navy League, Washington, D. C. who are now planning to supply the men with news from home, in this Waterproof tobacco pouches and COMFORT Waterproof tobacco pouches and COMFORT Kits made of knaki and supplied with safety pins, needles, thimble, buttons, thread, pencils, small pad of paper, etc., can also be made at home for the Christmas boxes.

Any group of women who wish to form a unit of the COMFORT'S Committee have only to write to the U.S. Navy League, 1201, 16th St., N. S., Washington, D. C., or any city in which the League has branch headquarters.

A Twine Bag

Such a bag is always a useful little article and Such a bag is always a useful little article and one that has the advantage of not soiling easily and also being attractive can be fashioned of a small bit of pongee, linen or even dish toweling. A piece six by twelve inches is a good size. Seam up the ends. The top should be finished with draw string without a frill, bottoms simply gathered up leaving a small opening for the cord, around this working in buttonhole stitch. Through the center of the bag insert a row of filet crochet of ecru cotton. A simple block pattern for this purpose can be made as follows. Ch. 26 stitches, turn, 1 d. c. in 9th stitch from

Ch. 26 stitches, turn, 1 d. c. in 9th stitch from 1st row.—Ch. 2, sk. 2 chs., 1 d. c. in third st., repeat making 7 sps. in this row. Ch. 5, turn. 2nd, 3rd, 4th and 5th rows.—7 sps. each with ch. 5 at end of each row. 6th row.-3 sps., 4 d. c. or 1 blk., 3 sps., cb. 5, turn.

7th row.-2 sps., 10 d. c. or 3 blks., 2 sps., ch.

5, turn.
8th row.—1 sp., 5 blks., 1 sp., ch. 5, turn.
9th row.—2 sps., 3 blks., 2 sps., ch. 5, turn.
10th row.—3 sps., 1 blk., 3 sps., ch. 5, turn.
Now five or more rows of all spaces and then another block. Such a bag as this while most simple, still if nicely finished makes a dainty little gift. The insertion looks pretty over a ball of bright cord and it also serves to show when a new supple is needed.

when a new supply is needed.

The same idea and materials can be worked up into a man's handkerchief or collar bag.

MARGUERITE CUSHION.

stitch each row until there are 24 sts. Knit four ribs plain, decrease one on fourth stitch each row until there are 12 sts. Knit plain 15 inches, bind off.

Eye Bandage No. 2

Three-ply knitting cotton No. 8, No. 12 steel needles. Cast on 42 sts., knit four rows, six plain, six purl, then reverse to form pattern of blocks. Should measure two and one half inches in width, eight and one half inches in length. Sew on tapes 15 inches long, one on each corner.

Cap for Convalescent

Materials. One and one half skeins or 3 balls of either natural khaki or light grey, one pair No. 5 or medium size amber needles. Cast on 60 sts. (or 18 inches.) Knit plain until work neasures 18 inches, sew up, gather one edge and finish with small pompom.

Steeping Cap

Materials. One and one half skeins or three balls of natural khaki or light grey, one pair No. 4 amber needles. Cast on 92 sts. Knit 86 rows of ribs. (k. 2, p. 2). Cast off 32 sts., knit 12 rows. Cast on 32 sts., knit 30 rows, knit plain, narrowing every 6 sts. for 1 row; knit 6 rows, narrowing every 5 sts; knit 5 rows, narrowing every 4 sts., k. 4 rows, narrowing every 3 sts. and sew up.

rowing every 4 sts., g. 4 rows, harrowing every 3 sts. and sew up.

This cap may be made on 4 No. 12 steel needles with 100 sts. and knitted round and round like a stocking. May answer for day wear with ribbing turned up.

Bandages of knitting cotton are greatly needed, the work is simple and especially suited to beginners.

to beginners.

Three Yard Bandages.

Three-ply knitting cotton No. 12, No. 12 steel needles. Cast on 45 sts., knit up three balls of cotton.

Nurse's Mitt

Three-ply knitting cotton No. 6, No. 4 amber needles. Cast on 25 sts; k. 75 rows fold over and sew up. Considering that the knitted out-fits will see hard service and must be replaced from time to time, there is work enough map-inch circle for the bottom to which the bag proper should be sewed.

Marguerite Cushion

Rickrack braid for daisies is used for this pretty cushion cover. Sixteen points for each daisy. With yellow silk and fine crochet hook make 1 single crochet in each point.

2nd row.—Using both loops, 1 s. c. in each s. c. 3rd row.—1 s. c. in each of first 2 s. c., * skip 1 s. c., 1 s. c. in next 2 s. c., repeat from * 4th row.—1 s. c. in every other s. c.

With needle and thread draw this last row together. Use the wrong side of the work for the outside. With needle and fine thread on wrong side draw the petals into shape. In joining, sew 2 points of one daisy to corresponding points of next and so on. Finish the corners of the cushion with full bows. This daisy patof the cushion with full bows. This daisy pat-tern may be used also for tidies and of all white for edging doilies, etc.

Tobacco Pouch

The crocheted bag covers an oil silk pouch long enough to allow the top to be rolled over several times before the top of the cover is Conducted By Mrs. Wheeler Wilkinson

round of double with ch. 2, between each for running in the cords.

Christmas Work Bags

In planning gifts for friends this year it is worth while to remember that much of the knitting being done nowadays is on articles which bulk up pretty well as they near completion and therefore while bags of any sorts are always welcome gifts, this year the bigger the bag, the better.

Bag of Ribbon in Dandyke Points

The combination of color has much to do with the effectiveness of this bag, which is suitable for small bits of family work or embroidery or one's own belongings.

Its construction is novel but not at all difficult. One and one half yards of six and one balf inch Dresden and the same amount of plain satin-faced ribbon will be necessary, with three yards of No. 2 satin for drawing strings. The bottom is a five and one half cardboard covered circle. Outside Dresden and inside plain ribbon. Fold balance of the Dresden ribbon into seven equal parts. From one selvege cut up into the center of the ribbon as shown in diagram No. 1.

BAG OF RIBBON

Next overcast selveges of each of these divisions together. That is bring points marked B. and D. together and folding at C. join. Repeat on each division Then starting at A with the ends of both Dresden and satin ribbon, join the selvege of the plain ribbon to edge represented from A. to B. then into the center again and thus around every point When this is complete seam up, sew to bottom, make facing and run in strings. Useful and Artistic Knitting Bag

DIAGRAM OF RIBBON BAG. NO. 1.

This practical bag is made for use and its attractiveness depends entirely upon the materials used in its construction. Flowered cre-tonne lined with plain rep is pictured. It measures 13 inches in width by 18 in length.

USEFUL KNITTING BAG

Creeping Rug

A pretty creeping rug for the baby can be made of double-faced canton flannel. Animals or dolls can be cross-stitched in a border or in groups. Colored linen or printed cottons for children's books may also be used for these decorations.

Shoe Trees as a Gift

A simple gift which is so useful that it would and sew up. Considering that the knitted outfits will see hard service and must be replaced from time to time there is work enough mapped out to keep every woman busy who can report for duty with knitting needles and a ball of wool.

Without slacking up on this main line of work, newspaper and magazine articles of local rather than national interest, may be collected.

eringuite

Kaw-near Cabinet Co.,

BIG ELECTRIC FLASHLIGHT WITH DOUBLE FREE Genuine Electric Flashlight, nickel trimmed, 51-2 inches long, 11-4 inch head, thick lens, 2 cell Delta battery, electric bulb, sliding contact witch, ALL FREE for selling 25 sets Colored Cards and Xmas Novelties at 10 cts. a set.

BLUINE MFG. CO., St., Concord Jct., Mass. 304 Mill St.,

TALKING MACHINE AND RECORD
Reproduces both yocal and instrumental music. Plays Columbia or Victor Records Maching with records FREE selling 20 pkgs. Xmas Cards at 10c. When Feturn $2 and machine eold return $2 and machine and record are yours. KFYSTONE CO. Box — 819 Greenville, Pa.

FREE WATCH and Lady or Gent Thin Model. Many valuable prizes for selling 25 Art and Religious PICTURES at 10c each. Order pictures at once. We give moving picture machines GAIR MFG. CO., Dept. 401, CHIOAGO, ILL.

Four Beautiful Ferns

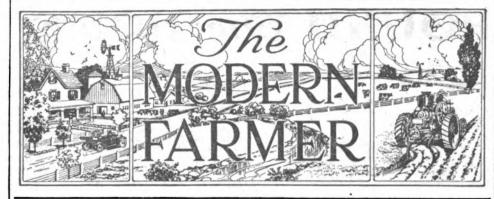

PREMIUM NO. 6112

Given For Two Subscriptions

OF all indoor foliage plants, none give more Insting pleasure and satisfaction than these popular louse ferns. They need but little care and live indefaitely, growing larger and more beautiful year by year. The collection offered you here comprise four of the largest, handsomest varieties ever grown for house culture. They are the Asparagus Plumous or "Lace" fern, the Hoosevelt, the Hoston or Fountain" fern and the Whitmant or "Ostrich plume" fern. They will thrive in any dwelling room near a window and require almost mo attention except a little prinkling of water now and then. These ferns are guaranteed to be absolutely free from all injurious insects or diseases which destroy foliage plants of this type, and they will be packed carefully and mailed to you by Parcei Post so that you will be sure to receive them in just as good condition as though they were freely from the greenhouse. We are able to flustrate only one variety, "The Roosevelt," but member you get all four ferns free on this offer. Club Offer

Club Offer For two one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you by Parcel Post prepaid the above described collection of four beautiful ferns each one of them a strong, healthy well rooted plant ready to pot and guaranteed to grow and develop into a fine specimen beauty Premium No. 6112.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

This department, which is conducted by eminent specialists and experts in the various branches of agricultural science and practical, business farming, will keep our readers posted on the latest scientific discoveries and teach them the best methods of operating in order to obtain GREATER FARM PROFITS AND BETTER HOME LIVING.

Any COMFORT subscriber can have the advice of our Agricultural Staff free on questions relating to farming, live stock and dairying. The answers will be printed in this department and will be interesting and instructive to all who are concerned in farming.

Write your questions plainly on one side of the paper only; give your full name and address, and direct your letter to COMFORT'S MODERN FARMER, Augusta, Maine.

Kitchen Window Garden

HY not grow a garden in your kitchen window? This is the way HY not grow a garden in your kitchen window? This is the way it may be done.

Make a box about eight inches deep and a foot or more in width, according to space, and as long as the window is wide. If there is a double window on the south side of the room so much the better. Should the kitchen not be so located as to have a sunny window of course some other window will have to be used. This box should be set in a tin or galvanized iron bottom at least two inches deep to catch the drainage water. Several holes should be bored in the bottom of the box to provide for this drainage. A coat of paint will add greatly to the appearance of the box. The box may be supported by brackets or on a table or stand made especially for the purpose.

First place a layer of small stones over the bottom of the box and cover with excelsior or straw an inch deep. Fill the box to within an inch of the top with fine garden soil, such as would be used for house plants, and you are ready for planting.

Now transfer to this window garden roots of an inch of the top with fine garden soil, such as would be used for house plants, and you are ready for planting.

Now transfer to this window garden roots of parsley that was grown in the garden during summer and you will have a fine garnish all winter. Onions may be grown from sets and lettuce from seed in this garden, as well as flowers from bulbs.

Plants grown in this window garden should be watered and cared for exactly as house plants grown in pots in the house.

Alcohol from Sawdust

For several years government experimenters have been at work on methods of producing fuel for gas engines from cheap or waste products of the farm. It is now possible to produce a fuel that will run an internal combustion engine from hay, straw, corn-stalks, sugar-cane refuse, sugar beet pulp or sawdust, as well as potatoes or corn. At present prices of farm crops, however, it does not pay to make alcohol from grain or potatoes, but as soon as the methods and machinery are perfected it will be possible to convert hitherto waste products into valuable fuel.

One difficulty that remains to be overcome is the making of a type of carburetor that will vaporize alcohol as readily as it now does gasoline. When these tilngs are done the farmer will "raise his own fuel."

How to Keep Vegetables for Winter Use

People who live in cities find a good deal of difficulty in keeping vegetables in cellars. The reason is that the modern house, heated as it is with some sort of furnace in the basement, has too warm a cellar. Vegetables will not keep well either in too warm or too dry a storage room and the average city basement is both too warm and too dry. For houses heated with stoves the cellar is usually an ideal storage place for vegetables.

PROVIDE VENTILATION FIRST.—The first thing.

PROVIDE VENTILATION FIRST.—The first thing to provide in any storage house is some good system of ventilation. This means opportunity for free circulation of air. It is not necessary that the air be kept flowing through at all times, but it is important that as uniform a temperature as possible be maintained. Forty degrees above zero is about right. When the temperature rises above this the ventilators should be opened and the air changed. Fresh cool air should be admitted and the warm air drawn off. In ventilating care should be taken not to cool the cellar so much as to freeze the vegetables. When the temperature has fallen to 40 degrees again the pipes should be closed.

A THERMOMETER NECESSARY.—For good results

A THERMOMETER NECESSARY.—For good results in storage a thermometer should be hung in the center of the storeroom and be carefully watched. When the mercury runs high the air should be changed, as already described, and the thermometer watched to prevent cooling the cellar too much. The same is true whatever kind of storeroom is used.

Hom to Fix Air Pipes.—The pipe for admitting cold air should open near the floor; the one for drawing off warm air should open near the ceiling. Both should be provided with dampers to completely close them. In severe weather they may be still further stopped off with old rags at both ends. An ordinary six-inch stove pipe or a box made from six-inch fence boards is about the right size. It is a poor plan to try to ventilate through windows and doors. The air changes so rapidly that the temperature is apt to fall too low and freezing will result.

VEGETABLES REQUIRING RATHER WARM DRY

VEGETABLES REQUIRING RATHER WARM DRY STORAGE.—Beans, peas, popcorn and onlons require rather warm dry storage. The attic is the best place for them if it is warm enough to keep the onlons from freezing. Onlons grow best in cool, damp weather and if stored under these conditions may start to grow in storage. It is for this reason that it is best to store onlons in a rather warm and very dry place. Beans, peas and popcorn mold easily in cool, moist air and molding spoils their power to germinate and grow.

How to Prepare Onions for Storage.—
Onions must be well dried when placed in storage. They should be pulled and left on the ground to dry before they are picked up, and the tops removed before they are placed in storage. The best way to store large quantities is to put them in bushel boxes with slat sides so that the air can circulate freely through the boxes. If many bushels are to be stored in this way a large, well-ventilated and heated onion house especially constructed for storing onions should be used.

Preparing Roots for Storage—All roots for Structed for storing onions should be used.

PREPARING ROOTS FOR STORAGE.—All roots for storage should be clean. This means that they should not be pulled or dug in wet or muddy weather. They should have the tops removed but not cut too closely to store well. Beets will "bleed" if tops are cut too close. The "slat onion box" is a good receptacle for all roots. The smaller the quantity placed together the better they will usually keep. It is an old adage that "one rotten apple spoils the barrel" and the same principle applies to roots. The essential things, however, to be remembered are: keep the cellar or storehouse cool and dry, but not too dry, and store only clean, whole, sound roots. Before storage, all unripe, bruised, broken cull, diseased or injured roots should be discarded. They will not keep and they will help spoil the rest.

not keep and they will help spoil the rest.

STORING APPLES.—Apples may be kept in good condition in the root cellar. It must be remembered that the first step in the storage of apples is to be taken at the tree. Unripe, bruised, diseased, scabby or wormy apples or those injured in any way will not keep. Hence all apples for storing must be hand picked. They must not be dropped from the picking basket into sacks and rolled around on the wagon and thrown down the cellar hole. No. Such apples cannot keep. From tree to storage they must be handled with the greatest of care. It is better if each apple is wrapped separately in a piece of tissue paper and packed in box or barrel in which they are to be stored.

STORING IN PITS.—Storing in pits is the pio-

Storing in Pits.—Storing in pits is the pioneer method. For vegetables that are to be kept until spring this gives good results, the disadvantage being the danger from freezing if it is necessary to open the pit during winter. The usual way to store in a pit is to dig a hole in the ground at some elevated place where the drainage is good and there is no danger of water getting into the pit. The hole is made from one to two feet deep and the bottom covered with straw about six inches thick. Potatoes or vegetables prepared as for storage in the cellar, are placed in the pit, a layer of straw about a foot thick spread over them and the whole covered with the dirt that was removed in digging the pit. This should make a layer of earth over the straw at least a foot thick.

Storing Cabbage.—Cabbages to be stored in pit. This should make a layer of earth over the straw at least a foot thick.

Storing Cabbage.—Cabbages to be stored in pits are pulled, a few of the outside leaves removed and stored head down and roots up. The pit is prepared and covered the same as for other vegetables. For storing in cellars two methods are followed with good results. One is to pull, remove outside leaves and hang up in the cellar by a string tied to the roots. The other is to remove all outside leaves and the roots, preparing the head as for market, and store on shelves made of slats, each layer of cabbage on a separate shelf. For large quantities special storage houses should be provided.

The Use of the sand box, which may be used with satisfaction in a limited way. The method is to provide a large and rather shallow box and enough moist—neither wet nor dry—sand. A layer of sand is placed in the bottom of the box, next a layer of vegetables, then another layer of sand is placed in the box is filled. If the sand is kept moist and the box is placed in the coolest part of the cellar, vegetables may be kept in this way, even in furnace heated houses, in fairly good condition all winter.

Storing Dried Fruits and Degetables

Storing Dried Fruits and Vegetables

If dried fruits and vegetables are to keep, two things must be kept constantly in mind:

FIRST: STORE IN A PERFECTLY DRY CONDITION.

—Just before storing place dried material in large dripping pans so that it may be spread out in thin laye and heat in the oven for a few moments to drive off any moisture that may remain. Then store immediately.

main. Then store immediately.

Second: Store in Perfectly Tight Containers are not used flies will get in and lay their eggs and "worms" will result. It is important to keep all insects out, hence containers should be perfectly tight. Glass cans with covers screwed tightly down make good containers. Paper bags with opening pasted up or tied perfectly tight so that it is impossible for insects to get in, are good. Tight cloth sacks may be used but not so good as paper. Special paper boxes made expressly for storing food stuffs are now on the market and may be had at small cost, but whatever kind of package is used, it is well to remember that it must be perfectly dry if they are expected to keep.

HOOSIER

design, guaranteed for years. Write for our big free book showing photographs, describing large assortment of sizes and designs of Steel and Gast Ranges, Cooks, Boft and Hard Coal Heaters, to select from, explaining our free trial. Send postal its good cheer the hogs that have been-specially fattening to supply meat for the farmer's table have to be slaughtered and dire and heart rending are the screams of agony that come from the killing place. Let those sad sounds remind our readers that often there is much thoughtless and unnecessary cruelty in this killing business. Men have done the work so long and in the old-fashioned way that they do not take kindness and humanity into consideration, for the reason that in many instances it has not been brought to their attention. Let us give such men and all who slaughter animals one standard rule to remember and it is this: Every animal that has to be killed to supply man with meat deserves to be killed to supply man with meat deserves to be made unconscious before its throat is cut. Stun or pith the ox before using the knife. Do not scald the hog while alive. These may appear unnecessary reminders; but that is not the fact. Many a hog goes into the scalding barrel before the breath of life is out of its body and who shall say what suffering results. Has not every farm reader of this paper heard the agonizing squealing of the plg that has had its throat cut and then is allowed to bleed to death? Certainly he has; then let there be no more of such cruelty. It is unnecessary. Let us be humane and decent and try to have others, private and public, do slaughtering work humanely.

HOOSIER STOVE CO. 265 State St., Marion, Ind.

The Apple Tree Agent

The nursery agent books his orders early. He must do this in order to make prompt shipment at the time of spring delivery. He is even now abroad in the land. Doubtless he will make you a call. Are you ready for him?

BUY FROM RELIABLE NURSERYMEN.—In the first place, no one should buy fruit trees except from men representing nurseries with an established reputation. Such a reputation is obtained from honest advertising and always living up to it. It is through advertising that most It is through advertising that most up to it.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 23.)

and latest improvements. First order secures Folding Sawing Mach. Co., 161 W. Harrison St., Chi

Overland Aluminum Shoes The world's great farm and creamery shoe. Water-proof, rust-proof, light and durable. Warm in winter, cool in summer.

Best by test, and you pay less. A postal brings free catalog. OVERLAND SHOE CO.

FREE Beantiful Book About Taxidermy
Learn at home by moid to mount birds, animais, tan skins. Be a taxidermist. Delightful art easily learned by men and women. Decorate home and den. Make big profits. Wonderful new art. Write Today for this wonderful Pyes Book and dear amazing offer.

BIC FREE CO When November comes with its cold weather or December makes us think of Christmas and UNIVERSAL SUPPLY CO., Dept. 102, Lewiston, Maine.

Soft Warm Bed Blankets Premium No. 73210 Sent Prepaid For A Club Of Ten

THIS IS an offer which no good housewife can afford to overcomfortable bed blankets as you may need without a cent of expense. These fine double blankets are six feet in length extremely well made and finely finished. The color is white or gray with border. Please notice that they are large enough for any standard size bed being of sufficient length to come up well on the pillow and wide enough so that they may be snugly tucked in at the sides. This is in reality one of the best bargains in a premium we have ever offered due to the fact that we buy these blankets in large quantities direct from the mill at a specially low price and therefore are enabled to offer them for a very small club of subscriptions. When you think of this big warm blanket on your bed or lying on a closet shelf ready for use when wanted, we believe that you will want to start a club at once for the sake of securing one or more of them free of all cost to you. sake of securing one or more of them free of all cost to you. We will gladly send you one or more of these splendid blankets upon the terms of the following

Club Offer. For a club of only ten one-year subscriptions to one of these fine double bed blankets free by Parcel Post prepaid. Prem. No. 73210.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Infantile Paralysis made it impossible for this boy to stand, so he crawled on hands and knees. Four and a half months' treatment at the McLain Sanitarium

"put him on his feet." Read his parents' letter:

We are pleased and very thankful for the improvement our boy has made. When we came to the McLain Sanitarium, March 22, 1917, he crawled on his hands and knees. After four and one-half months' treatment he can stand erect and walk without crutches or braces. Will be pleased to answer letters concerning what you have done for our boy.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. D. Speidel Hanoverton, Ohio

FOR CRIPPLED CHILDREN

me McLain Sanitarium is a thoroughly aipped private institution devoted ex-sivel; to the treatment of Cub Feet, fantile Paralysis, Spinal Diseases and beformities, Hip Disease, Wry Neck, etc., especially as found in children and young adults. Our book "deformities and Paralysis"; also "Book of Refer-ences," free on request.

The McLain Orthopedic Sanitarium 990 Aubert Ave. St. Louis, Mo.

30 DAYS FREE TRIAL

Total cost only to prove to you that thi magnificent Royal has the magnificent Royal has the sweetest. Furest, Loudes and Clearest tone-7.50 by to prove to you that it is as large and handsome as 18 feet as large and handsome as 18 feet at $1.50.00 feet as 18 feet at $1.50.00 feet as 18 feet as $1.50.00 feet as the strongest motor, the sext reproducer and tone arm and the most ingenious devices to start, stop and control the music. Shipped with a supply of 10-inch double disc records record book and other literature. They are free

Pirchase
Plan

START A MOVING PICTURE SHOW MAKE MONEY FAST COMPLETE OUTFIT, MACTINE, THE EVERYTHING FURNISHED, EASY PAYMENT COMPLETE OUTFIT, MACHINE, FILM AND WRITE FOR FREE CATALOG

NATIONAL MOVING PICTURE CO., Dept. 2 B, 537 So. Dearborn St., Chicago.

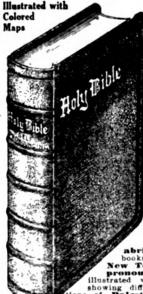

Automatic Fibre Limbs FARY Payments—Do Rature's Work. State Stump Length Above or Below Knee.

FREE FIBRE WORMAN GO. 407 Andrew Rullding.
SAMPLE. WORMAN GO. MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

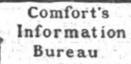

Self-Pronouncing Bible

No. 7444

Given For A Club Of Four

U.S.M Under this heading all questions by COM FORT subscribers on subjects not related to the special departments elsewhere in the paper will be answered, as far as may be. COM FORT readers are advised to read carefully the advertisements in this paper, as they will often find in them what they seek through their questions addressed to this Bureau. They will thus save time, labor and postage.

NOTICE —As the privileges of this Bureau and of all other departments of COMFORT are for subscribers only, no attention will be given any inquiry which does not bear the writer's correct name and address. Initials only, or a flotitious name, it requested, will appear in the published answer, but the inquiry must invariably be signed by the writer's true name.

Mrs. C. S. S., Three Oaks, Mich.—The Huetteman & Cramer to., 666 Mack Ave., Detroit, Mich., are manufacturers of ice-making machinery. Write to them. If they have not what you want, they can tell you where you can get it.

H. B. W., Fristor, Ky.—The genuine Oriental ruby is found in Burma, a British Asiatic Colony, and in several localities in Siam. The Siam stones are darker in color than those of Burma. Rubies of inferior quality have also been mined near Kabul in Afghanis tan, and in lower India. Australia has yielded a few stones. In this country, rubies of pale color have been found in Montana, and some in Macon county, N. C. Rubies must be distinguished from garnets, which are softer stones, having a lower specific gravity, and are far less beautiful in color and brilliancy.

Interested, Fairland, Okla.—The addresses of the Interested, Fairland, Okla.—The addresses of the Soldiers' Homes you ask for are as follows: Lafayette, Ind.: Marshalltown, Iowa; Madison, Ohio; and another at Sandusky in the same state.

Mrs. E. W. M., Cobbs Creek, Va.—Write to the editors of "Retail Druggist," Detroit, Mich. and to "National Druggist," St. Louis, Me., and ask them if they can give you the address of the firm which manufactures the patent medicine you mention. You could then order it direct.

L. L. E., Whistler, Ala, Pracle Southel afterward.

manufactures the patent medicine you mention. You could then order it direct.

L. L. E., Whistler, Ala. Ursula Sonthiel, afterward to be known as Mother Shipton, was born in 1486, during t'e reign of Henry the Seventh, at Knaresborough, England. After a childhood of which many strange tales are teld, she married Tonv Shipton, a poor man, who is said to have hoped to benefit by her mysterious powers. In the days of Henry the Eighth her reputation as a prophetess became so great that she was visited by lords, dukes and cardinals w'e sought her for her oracular utterances. She made, during her long career as a sibyl, many prophecies, some of which were remarkably fulfilled. About twenty three of her predictions are authenticated and well known. Among these are: The downfall of Cardinal Wolsey, the Great Placue and the Great Fire of Lendon: the execution of Lady Jane Gray, and many events during the reign-of Mary and F): aleth, and the time of Cromwell Her most famous prophecy and the one so often queted, is in part as follows:

'Carriages without horses shall go,
And accidents fill the world with wee.
Around the world thoughts shall fly
In the twinking of an eve
Through the hils men shill ride
And no horse or assibe by their side.
Under water men shall walk,
Shall ride, shall sleep, shall talk.
In the air men shall be seen.
In white, in black, in green.
Iron in the water shall float
As easy as a weeden boat.
Taxes for blood and for war
Shall come to every door
The world then to an end shall come In Eighteen Hundred and Eighty-one." died in 1561 after having predicted the

She died in 1561 after having predicted the time of her death.

Miss S. W., Schalia, Mo. No one can tell you so well about a home or sanitarium suitable for a rheumatic invalid as can a physician in your own vicinity. Here in far-off Maine we might refer you to an institution suitable neither to your exact condition nor to your available means. Ask your own, or someone else's doctor, and follow his advice.

someone else's doctor, and follow his advice.

Wm. D., Jr., New Castle, Pa.- Here is a Comfort reader who is trying to locate a poem called, as he remembers, either "The Lost Soul." "The Lost Spirit," or "The Land Where None Remember." We are unable to identify t is poem, and berhaps some Comfort reader may be able to tell the verses needed, and send the true title and author's name to this department. All of our subscribers should stand ready to lend each other a helping hand, and we are sure they do.

Mrs. A. H.. Douglas, Ga.- You should be able to obtain artificial ferns and palms at the department stores of any large city. You might send a letter of inquiry to the Artificial Flowers Decorating Co., 1545 Broadway, New York City.

Mrs. R. F. H. Womelsdorf, Pa.—There is a ready.

SMALL enough to be carried conveniently in the hand or in pocket or hand bag, yet complete and unabridged containing full books of both the Old and New Testaments, is self-prenouncing and handsomely illustrated with colored maps showing different interesting portions of Palestine and surrounding country. It is $\frac{1}{2}\text{ inches and froze the and or inchink, beautifully bound in black leatherette and contains over a thousand pages finished with round corners and red edges. The name 'Holy Bible' is stamped in gold on back and front cover. This is an unequalled opportunity for Sunday School or church to se ure a Bible without cost and we feel that among COMPORT'S readers there must be thousands who have been waiting for us to make just such an offer at this Remember that you are not going to receive a cheap, paper-hound book, but a splendidly made Babie finitely printed, handsomely and durably bound, and absolutely refined and perfect in every detail. We will send to any address this self-pronouncing Bible exactly as illustrated and described upon the terms of the following special Club Offer. Comfort Augusta, Maine.

No 7444. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Alloe James, R. R. 3. Minn I, Okla, writes that she is described upon the terms of the following special club of the proposition to the content of the content of the proposition of the content of the co

Possibly the subject may have been agitated in your state. Inquire of your county clerk.

K. A. Aspinwall, Kirk, Nebr., desires to obtain a second-hand copy of "Around the World on Wheels," a book published in 1899 after first appearing in the Sunday and weekly issues of the Chicago Inter Ocean." Can any of our readers give aid? The book describes the experiences of Dr. and Mrs. H. D. Mc-lirath who cycled ground the world as correspondents for the "Inter Ocean."

The Girl He Loved

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 13.)

clothes if I gave them to her, and I've no desire to part with them. I don't care to interview her, either. She does hate me so!" for her ladyship's wits at least were young still, whatever her eyes might be.
"I must do the best I can," she said thoughtfully; and there alone in the little rose-colored room did a curious thing, for Lady Annesley, not for a women who loved her dead husband's child. She took a ruby ring from her finger and slipped it in a note quiekly written and addressed to her stepdaughter. It was a simple little effort enough, saying merely that she had received from the duchess an invitation for Tom and Rayenel to spend a month with her in London and would accept for them with pleasure if they cared to go.
"As for gowns," it ran, "I will do the best I can for you, but as that may be small just now, I send you this ring, which you can wear of turn into money, as you choose. It is one your father gave me. I would send for you to talk over your frocks, but my neuralgia is terrific to day."

day."

She rang for Adams to deliver the note and waited for her to come back with a curious anxiety. It looked well to be generous, but she hated giving away her rubies. It seemed half a year before the maid returned with -yes—with a note!

Lady Annesley tore it open, and her strained lips grew triumphant. She had been generous at no cost whatever.

"Thank you very much"— Ravenel had written with furious haste, having no mind for any more of her ladyship's gifts - "but I don't want to keep your ring. I send it back in this. You had better wear it yourself.

RAVENEL."

That was absolutely all. Lady Annesley slipped her recovered ring on her finger.

"You can go, Adams," she said carelessly. But when she was alone she laughed a laugh that showed her gums.

"I'll have my, house in town," she gasped.

"You're a clever man, Levallion, but you'll never know who is helping me to get you married. I'll take care that you go on thinking me a fool. But to make Hester Murray help to get you it's too good!" She wiped her eyes where she sat helpless with laughter.

"Hester!" she murmured, "of all people."

. CHAPTER VIII.

"A BIT OF THE TRUTH."

"A BIT OF THE TRUTH."

The Duchess of Avonmore was worried.

She had carried her point and walked off Tom Annesley's children to her big town house in Park Lane. She had given Ravenel such dresses as her own nieces would have sold their souls for, had done her best to make each day more pleasant than the last, and the only result was that one fine morning she sat alone with Ravenel, absolutely at a loss.

Sir Thomas was perfectly hanny, new clothes and a horse to ride having made his countenance to shine as the sun. But Ravenel! the poor duchess stahed.

The girl was pathetically grateful for the benefits showered on her, and showed a clinging affection for the duchess that came near to bringing the tears to that good woman's eyes; but there was no happiness in her face. She went everywhere; she was gay as if by an effort that sapped her strength, for each day she grew paler, her lovely lips more hard set. There was neither elation nor triumph in her eyes when women envied her or men admired her.

"Most girls would be off their heads with pleasure," reflected the duchess. "That woman must have broken her spirit somehow. I wish I could find out what ails her."

Tommy could have enlightened her, but he had been sworn to keep his mouth shut. And in the dark the poor duchess did the very worst thing possible.

"Ravenel," she said cheerfully, "here's an invitation for you Mrs. Wurts. Warts wants you to possible.

"Ravenel," she said cheerfully, "here's an invitation for you. Mrs. Murray wants you to lunch with her today. She is a great friend of mine—poor little woman! She will cheer you un."

slight figure of her hostess in an innocent fawn-colored gown, and wondered why she did not like. Club Offer. For on'y five one-year se her. Lord Levallion could have told her, but so this Set Free by Parcel Post prepaid. her. Lord Levallion could have told her, but so this Set Free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium & far he had not shown himself on the Avonmore 2605. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine

No calesmanship necessory—simply place lamp in bors' homes a few nights—no talking required; they sell selves. Five out of six buy the Laylite the minute they Big. Free Catalog, giving full particulars.

WRITE NOW FOR LAMP—FREE for ten nights' trial. Merelth rigs and autos making # to #15 a day. Tell us if you care ut in all or part of your time, your age, occupation, territory on want and when you can start.

DAYLITE COMPANY, 325 Daylite Building, Chlengo, Illinols

House herizon. She sat down at luncheon almost sullenly, and by degrees, in spite of herself, thawed. Few people had Hester Murray's manner when she chose, and on her success with this listless, beautiful girl her future depended. Sylvia was victously unscrupulous, and the tritle she asked should be done well.

Besides, it was amusing! Mrs. Murray hated girls, and this one looked at the rich appointments of the dining-room far too cleverly when her hostess murmured something about her small means.

"I don't call this poor," Ravenel said calmly.
"You should see us at home."

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 22.)

What 15c will you from Nation's Capital Washington, the home of the Pathfinder, is the nerve-center of civilization; history is being made at this world capital. The Pathfinder is lillustrated weekly review gives you a clear, impartial and correct diagnosis of public affairs during these streamans, epoch-making days. In what for the property of the property of the pathfinder is the pat ing, wholesome, the Pathfinder is yours. If you w dollar bill mailed at our risk will bring you the Pat and we will send the Pathfinder on probation 13 w and we will send the Pathinder on probation 13 weeks. The 15c The Pathinder, Box 79, Washington, D. C. does not repay us, but we are glad to investin new friends. Address

Home Dressmaking Hints

Forecasts for Early Winter Fashions

By Geneva Gladding

ALL PATTERNS 10c. EACH Unless Other Price Is Stated.

Pattern Descriptions

1895—A Very Attractive Set of Clothes for Dolly's Wardrobe.
Cut in five sizes for dolls; 18, 20, 22, 24 and 26 inches in length. The dress requires three quarters yard, the drawers require one half yard, the petticoat requires one half yard, the cape requires three quarters yard, of 36-inch material for a 22-inch size.

1902—For Mother's Baby, Doll's Set of Baby Clothes Santa Claus may bring to mother's girl. Just the thing to please little mothers. There are dolls and dolls, but no doll so dear to the heart of a doll's mother as one dressed in baby clothes.

Cut in three sizes; for dolls 16, 18 and 20 inches in length. It will require two and one eighth yards of 27-inch material for the dress, one and seven eighths yard of 24-inch material for the wrapper, and two and one eighth yards of 24-inch material for the coat, for an 18-inch doll.

and misses. Muslin, batiste, nainsook, lawn, crepe, silk and flannelette, could be used for this model.

Cut in three sizes for misses; 16, 18 and 20 years, and in six sizes for ladies; 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. It will require five and three eighths yards of 36-inch material for an 18-year size, or five and five eighths yards for a 38-inch size.

1998—Dress for Misses and Small Women. The dress has a fitted body lining, to which the skirt is gathered. The outer waist may be finished separately or tacked over the lining.

Cut in three sizes; 16, 18 and 20 years. It requires six and one half yards of 36-inch material for an 18-year size.

2013—Ladies' Apron Dress. Percale, gingham, seersucker, crepe, lawn and alpaca are good for its development.

Cut in four sizes; 34, 38, 42 and 46 inches bust measure. It requires five yards of 36-inch material for a 34-inch size.

2197—A Natty Suit for Mother's Boy. One could make this of linen, linene, drill, khaki, galatea, gingham, percale, serge, velvet and corduroy. The trousers are straight and with side closing.

Cut in four sizes; two, three, four and five years. Size four will require three and one quarter yards of 36-inch material.

2200—A Good Dress for School or General Wear. This style is smart for gingham, percale, lawn, chambray, serge, poplin and voile, also for velvet, corduroy and linen.

Cut in five sizes; four, six, eight, 10 and 12 years. It requires three and five eighths yards of 36-inch material for an eight-year size.

2204—A Dainty Dress for Mother's Girl. Crepe, albatross, or cashmere, serge, messaline, poplin, or voile, and all wash fabrics of soft weave, can be used for this style. The sleeve may be short with a cuff, or in wrist length, finished with a heading.

Cut in five sizes; four, six, eight, 10 and 12 years. Size eight will require three and one half wards of 44-inch material.

with a cuff, or in wrist length, finished with a heading.

Cut in five sizes; four, six, eight, 10 and 12 years. Size eight will require three and one half yards of 44-inch material.

2205—A Practical Work Garment. This will be ideal for house work or for the studio. It may be finished in gingham, linen, khaki, percale, chambray or lawn.

Cut in four sizes; small, 32-34; medium, 36-38; large, 40-42; and extra large, 44-46 inches bust measure. Size medium requires six and one eighth yards of 36-inch material.

2207—An Ideal Work Dress, This is a one-piece model with simple, comfortable lines. It is good for all wash fabrics, for serge, flannel, flan-nelette and brilliantine.

Cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. It requires for a medium size, six and three quarters yards of 44-inch dium size, six and three quarters yards of 44-inch material.

2212—An Ever-Popular Model. Khaki cloth, serge, cheviot, mixed suiting, linene, drill, rep and poplin are nice for this model. The skirt is a five-gored model. The blouse may have long or short sleeves.

Cut in four sizes; eight, 10, 12 and 14 years.

USE THE COUPON

Special Offers. For one one-year subscription (not your mail you any one Pattern free. Or for a club of two one-year subscriptions at 25 cents each we will mail you any three patterns free. The cash price of each pattern is 10 cents (three for 25 cents) unless a different price is stated. Be sure to order by number and give size or age wanted.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

HAT straight lines will prevail a mong autumn models is sery evident when one views the many one-piece models, especially those that hang straight and unbelted shoulder or yoke. new season's styles big waistlines, close loss with the straight lines and straight lines will be styles big waistlines, close loss straight lines will be styles and one eighth yards of 36-inch material.

and other wash fabrics are nice for this style.

Cut in four sizes; 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 16 requires six and three eighths yards of 44inch material.

2217—Waist, 2218—Skirt, A Very Attractive Gown. Satin, velvet, serge, mixed suiting, checks. plaids or Jersey cloth could be used for this model.

Maist Pattern 2217 is cut in six sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure.

The Skirt 2218 is cut in six sizes; 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inches waist measure. If requires eight yards of 27-inch material for a medium size for the entire dress. Two separate patterns, 10c for each pattern.

2219—Waist. 2202—Skirt. A Smart Combination. This is the day of the separate waist and skirt.

Pattern 2219 is cut in six sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40,

Please Fill Out This Coupon And Send It With Your Remittance

COMFORT, Pattern Dept., Augusta, Maine. I enclose $____ subscription and $_____) for which please send me Patterns No. Name __ Street and No.____ R.F.D. No. Box No. Post Office State

If you send subscriptions write names on separate sheet and pin this coupon to it.

42 and 44 inches bust measure, and requires four and one eighth yards of 36-inch material for a 36-inch size.

Skirt 2202 is cut in six sizes; 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inches waist measure. Size 24 requires six and one half yards of 36-inch material. Two separate patterns, 10c for each pattern.

2220—A Smart Dress for Mother's Girl. Linen, galatea, seersucker, gingham, percale, drill, voile, serge, plaid and checked suiting, are all nice for this style.

galatea, seersucker, gingham, percale, drill, volle, serge, plaid and checked suiting, are all nice for this style.

Cut in four sizes; six, eight, 10 and 12 years. Size 10 years requires three and one quarter yards of 44-inch material.

2222—Union Suit with or without sleeves for men-and boys. This model is good for cambric, muslin, linen, jean, fiannel and fiannelette. The sleeve may be omitted.

Cut in six sizes: 28. 32, 36, 40, 44 and 48 inches breast measure. Size 36 requires two and seven eighths yards of 36-inch material, without sleeves. With sleeves, it requires three and one eighth yards of the same width.

2223—A Practical, Comfortable Garment. Cam-

With sleeves, it requires three and one eighth yards of the same width.

2223—A Practical, Comfortable Garment. Cambric, muslin, lawn, dimity, crepe and flannelette could be used for this style. The garment is in one piece.

Cut in six sizes; one, two, four, six, eight and 10 years. Size six requires one and five eighths yards of 36-inch material.

2225—A Simple, Popular Model. The simple gown is the gown of the season. In this model, the lines are pleasing and the development is easy. The pockets may be omitted.

Cut in six sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires six and one eighth yards of 44-inch material.

2229—Waist. 2228—Skirt. A Smart Combination for business or home wear.

The Waist Pattern 2220 is cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. The Skirt 2228 in seven sizes; 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34 inches waist measure. A medium size will require six and seven eighths yards of one material, 36 inches wide. Two separate patterns, 10c for each nattern.

2230—A Simple but Stylish Dress, This will make a splendid dress for business and general wear.

Cut in three sizes; 16, 18 and 20 years. Size make a splendid dress for business and general wear.

Cut in three sizes; 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 16 will require six and one quarter yards of 36-inch material.

2234—A Simple, Practical Apron. Gingham, seersucker, percale, drill, linene and linen are good for this style.

Cut in four sizes; small, 32-34; medium, 36-38; large, 40-42; and extra large, 44-46 inches bust measure. Size medium requires four and three quarters yards of 36-inch material.

2241—A Practical House Dress with long or short sleeves. This style is good for percale, gingham, chambray, seersucker, serge, rep, volle, flannelette, drill, linen and galatea.

Cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires five and five eighths yards of 44-inch material.

ALL PATTERNS 10c. EACH

ALL PATTERNS 10c. EACH Unless Other Price Is Stated

The Thankfulness of Wyoming Sal

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 4.)

bank of uncertainty. Bricktop was pleading with his whole presence.
"Sal, do ye love me?" he queried, his voice low and anxious. "Say ye do, Sal, but don't say it ef ye don't."

The struggle was over. The last doubt swept way. She relaxed and laid her head on his "Love me, Pete," she whispered, "love me, because now I know I love ye. You was th' man that Mis' Eddle said would come, an' who I'd love better'n Eddle. An' I do love ye better'n him, Pete, I do! I guess I jest needed to see him married to see that I was lovin' something that was empty."

was empty."

Joying in his conquest, Bricktop crushed her to his bosom. Sal knew then, as his lips kissed hers that her heart had found its true haven. And she whispered softly:
"I was a thankless critter, th' hull past year, but I guess God knew better what he was doin' when he made Eddie's gal send fer him that time, I certainly got a lot to be thankful fer this Thanksgivin' Day."

And Sal hid her face on his bosom again, happy and thankful as she had never been since that unhappy Thanksgiving Day one year agone.

DUBY'S HAIR COLORING HERBS
THAIR
HERBS

BUBY'S HAIR COLORING HERBS
THAIR
HERBS

Color, beauty and sefures. Prevents the hair from falling out, promote its growth, prevente dandruf, and gives the hair soft, glossy and heating and sticky or dirty, and is composed of roots, herbs, harks and flowers.
Package makes one pint. It will produce the most luxuriant treases from dry, coarse and wiry hair, and bring back the color is originally was before it terned gray. Package postpaid for 35 cents.

YOUR PHOTO ENLARGED LIKE faction guaranteed. Send photos and Se. Circulars FREE M. GREEN ART CO., 25 Third Ave., New York.

BIRTH STONE RINGS FORE 14K Gold filled, guaranteed to give FRE satisfaction, with stone for any month, to introduce our catalogue. Send 12c to cover cost of advertising and mailing. Send size Eagle-Jewelry Co., Dept. 100, East Boston, Mass.

Price of Patterns 12 Cents Each Next Month

For the benefit of our readers we have thus far kept the price of COMFORT patterns down to 10 cents, although the cost to us was advanced a year ago. Now, however, the cost has advanced again and much to our regret we are forced to raise the price to our readers. For this month only the cash price of these patterns will remain at 10 cents each. In December issue of COMFORT the price of all 10-cent patterns will be 12 cents; all 15cent patterns will be 20 cents.

You will save money by buying your patterns now-before the price goes up.

KEROSENE (COAL BURNER OIL) BURNER re a Gas Stove

Wonderful Labor Saver fuel known. Agen Women wild about it langer from Safe, Clean, Odorless, Cheap Low price makes quick sales, Easy Rig profits. Your territory is open. rner Co. 3536 Gay St., Dayton, Office

R. E. CHALMERS & CO., 538 So. Dearborn St., CHICAGO.

Large List, Dialogs, Entert ainments, Recitations, Drills, PLAYS T. 8, DENISON & OO, Recitations, Drills,

PREMO CAMERA

For a Club of Six!

We will also include free of charge one Six Exposure Roll Film Cartridge and a complete Instruction Book. This is the Well-known "Premo" camera, made by the Eastman Kodak Co., therefore you can depend upon it to produce the most pleasing and satisfactory resuits. It takes a picture 1 1-4 by 1 3-4 inches, is fitted with the beat quality Meniscus lens and an automatic shutter adapted for snap shots and time exposures. The pictures may be taken either the long way or the short way of the camera. It uses the regulation roll film cartridge containing six exposures, and this may be put in the camera and taken out again in broad daylight, so that you don't have to go into a dark room every time you want to load the camera. Anybody can make good pictures with this camera. Being small and compact it is just the thing to carry with you to "snap" pictures of your friends, sports, etc., with And remember, we send you not only the camera itself but also include One Six Exposure Roll Film Cartridge and Instruction Book, all packed together in a strong box and sent to you Free by Parcel Post, prepaid, on the terms of the following special

Club Offer. For a club of six one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you by Parcel Post, prepaid, this Fremo Camera with one Roll Film Cartridge containing six exposures and complete Instruction Book. Premium No. 7286.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine,

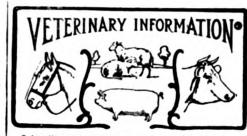

Send Us Only 3 Cents For These Three Beautiful Dressing

Dolls With Nine Dresses And Nine Hats

CHILDREN are delighted with these beautiful new dressing dolls with their bright, happy faces and so many different changes of dresses and hats. For only three cents in money or stamps to pay for postage and labor, we will send you prepaid all three dolls with nine dresses or suits and nine hats, and also tell you how you can get absolutely frees a whole set of doll furniture and a large beautiful doll house complete with yard, flowers, chimney and windows and doors that actually open and shut. Each of these dolls is over six inches tall, printed on thick heavy cardboard in many handsone lifelike colors and has three different dresses or suits and three different hats, so that you can dress and undress them as often as you please and get them ready for any and all occasions such as receptions, at homes, tens, evening parties, calling, shopping, outings, etc. Remember, three cents pay for all—and we will at the same time write and tell you how you can also get a telledid doll house and a complete housekeeping set of furniture for your three dollies absolutely free. This offer good in United States only.

Address COMFORT, Dept. D, Augusta, Maine.

Subscribers are invited to write to this department asking for any information desired relative to the treatment of animal troubles. Questions will be answered in these columns free by an-eminent reterinarian. Describe the trouble fully, sign full name and give your address; direct all correspondence to the Veterinary Department, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

No attention will be given any inquiry which lacks the sender's full name and address, but we will print initials if so requested.

Actte Indication.—My brother-in-law had a horse that was sick about twenty-four hours before he died. He would not eat or lie down. His stomach swelled and there was an offensive odor from the secretions. He breathed hard and died fighting at his throat. What was the trouble and what should we have done? B. T. A.—The horse should have been opened to determine the cause of death, but we suspect that rupture of the stomach may have occurred as a result of distension with gas. Tapping with a trocar and canula would have been indicated for withdrawal of gas and colic medicine also should have been given.

WART.—My colt two and one half years old has a wart on his left knee. It looks like a seed wart. When I drive him it bleeds. I took him to a veterinarian twice and had it cut off. It came back larger than before it was cut.

A.—Apply lard around the growth and then apply nitric acid twice a week with a flat stick. Remove the scab when it loosens. The the colt so that he will be unable to lick or bite the growth.

DISTEMPER.—I have a four-year-old horse that has had the distemper the sevent times of the scale will be dead to the scale of the scale scab when it loosens. The the colt so that he will be unable to lick or bite the growth.

DISTEMPTER.—I have a four-year-old horse that has had the distemper the second time and I believe he is taking it the third. The first time he had a discharge from the nose of a green and yellowish color, a cough and his ankles would swell. Now there is a discharge from the nose and he has a cough. (2) I have a mule that cut her foot on the wire a year ago last October and it is not well. What should I put on it to heal it? (3) I have a horse that cuts his front feet with his hind feet. How can I prevent him from during it?

A.—It is to be feared that the colt has glanders and for that reason we should advise you to have an examination made by a trained veteriarian. An affected horse has to be destroyed according to state law. Under the circumstances we should not feel justified in prescribing treatment. (2) (Tip he hair from the hoofhead and cleanse the wound. Then scrape the wound and wet it with a 1-500 solution of bichloride of mercury. Afterward apply two or three times a day a lotion composed of one ounce of sugar of lead and six drams of sulphate of zinc and one pint of soft water. Label the bottle "poison" and shake it well before use. (3) Have a skilled smith so e the horse to prevent striking and if necessary put on boots.

on boots.

INDIGESTION.—I have a mare eighteen years old, smart and clever in every way, but at times she cats her own manure and then grows poor. When she does not eat it she gets fat. To prevent it I would have to stay with her all the time. I was told to get stump wood and I did, also turned her out to grass.

MRS. F. 1. C.

A.—Have her teeth put in order by a veterinarian. Allow her to gnaw poplar ("popple") bough and stems and allow her access to rock aslt. It may be necessary to muzzle her. Try the effect of pouring a little kerosene on the manure.

Worms.—My dog, three years old, has worms. He is fed well, each day, but falls away. What shall I give him?

A.—Starve the dog for twenty-four hours and then give worm medicine for dogs which you can buy at the drug-store ready for use, or give one to two teaspoonfuls off reshly powdered Kamala in cream or soup and repeat the dose in two weeks.

spoontils off reshly powdered Kamala in cream or soup and repeat the dose in two weeks.

EAR TROUBLE.—I have two cats which seem to have an ear trouble; they are continually scratching their ears, but the trouble seems to be inside where they are unable to reach. One of them quite frequently has his ears bleeding from too much scratching. Nothing shows inside the ear and just lately a few scabs have come on the outside of his head over the eye, but they heal as soon as he stops the scratching. Someone told me to try using sulphur mixed with lard. Can you tell me what this trouble is; is it catching, what causes it and what can I do for them? They are not a year old, yet, and otherwise seem very healthy.

A.—It is possible that in your country spinous ear ticks are the cause of this trouble. They are trouble-some in California and Texas, but we have no data relative to the presence in Alaska. More commonly the trouble is canker of the ear from water getting into the ears, but in that trouble a bad smelling brown discharge comes from the ears. It is common in dogs. On general principles we should advise you to put a little warm sweet oil in the ears and apply sulphur ointment daily to the sores.

PILES.—I have a cow and when lying down small red lumps extend from the rectum. See text seed.

PILES.—I have a cow and when lying down small red lumps extend from the rectum. She is in good condition. Is her milk good to use? A. F. W. A.—There should be no objection to using the milk. It may be necessary to have the tumors removed by a surgeon. Meanwhile try the effect of benzoated oxide of zine ointment applied twice daily and mix two teappoonfuls of sulphur in the feed night and morning.

spoonfuls of sulphur in the feed night and morning.

RINGBONE.—Can you tell me what alls my yearling colt? He is lame and has a bunch on the front leg next to the hoof. If it is a ringbone what would be the cure for it?

A.—Keep cold wet swabs or felt constantly upon the hoofhead and pastern and keep the colt in a roomy, clean, airy, well-bedded box stall. If the lameness does not subside clip the hair from the part and blister two or three times, at intervals of three or four weeks with a mixture of two drams each of binloddied fuercury and powdered cantharides and three ounces of lard. SPRUNG KNEES .- I have a valuable work and saddle

SPRUNG KNEES.—I have a valuable work and saddle horse, weighing about twelve hundred pounds. Something got wrong with him last fall or early winter and he became nearly helpless. He is all right in that respect but he is so badly pitched in his knees that he is of little value.

A.—It is unlikely that treatment will lave much beneficial effect. Let the horse occupy a roomy box stall and feed both grain and hay from the floor level. Also let him graze as much as possible. Hand rub the back tendons of the fore legs three times a day and each time try to force the knees into proper position. At night rub knees and tendons (cords) with druggist's soap liniment.

At hight rub knees and tendons (cords) with druggist's soap liniment.

AZOTURIA.—My father has a mare about five years old. Recently he drove her a distance of seven miles and she had all she could do to get home. She was sweating badly, appeared to be weak and when he stopped her she stood braced. She has a good appetite, but is poor in flesh. She has stemach worms. She is driven about fifty miles each week.

M. L. T.

A.—The mare no doubt had an attack of azoturia caused by a flay or more of idleness during which time the grain feed was not reduced in quantity. In this disease the muscles of the loins, hips and thighs swell and become hard and the urine is the color of strong coffee. In severe attacks the horse goes down paralyzed and in many instances dies. Never let the mare stand for a single day idle in the stable. Stop feeding grain when there is no work for her to do. To destroy the worms mix in the feed night and morning for a week one tablespoonful of a mixture of equal quantities by weight of powdered copperas, salt and sulphur, then skip ten days and repeat the treatment. Omit from if she is pregnant and increase the salt and sulphur.—Please tell me what to do for a cold care.

sulphur.

SPLINTS.—Please tell me what to do for a colt one year old that has lumps inside ber knees, and large as a ben's erg. The lumps are bard and it hurts when I pinch them. The colt walks stiff on her front legs.

H. E. R.

when I pinch them. The colt walks stiff on her front legs.

A.—We suspect that the hard lumps or growths are splints. Twice daily swab them with a mixture of one part of each of tincture of iodine and turpentine and two parts of alcebel. Do not rub it in. If this does not suffice the lumps should be blistered once a month with a mixture of one dram of biniodide of mercury and one ounce of lard.

Sugar 4c a Lb

Only one of the hundreds of Sensational offers in highest-grade, guaranteed quality, Only one of the nundreds of sensational oners in highest-grade, guaranteed quanty, staple groceries in our amazing new Price-Wrecking Catalog. To save all mailing expense and to avoid all waste distribution of this remarkable catalog, we send it ONLY to new customers who send us their order for the SPECIAL "Get Acquainted" assortment listed below. Catalog packed in every shipment.

LOUR Per '960-SUGAR

Stop paying exorbitant prices for groceries. National necessity demands that you buy carefully and waste nothing. Establish yourself with the great Consumers' Wholesale Grocery Co. and cut the high cost of living. Rush your order today. Make your own selections for all future orders—large or small. Sugar 4c future orders — large or small. Sugar 4c a lb.; Flour $9.60 a bbl. with orders. Use the coupon.

YOU CAN SAVE $4.68 We Ship You This $4.21"Get Acquain-ted" Order for $2.58

.16 2 Bars American Family

3 lbs. Our Special Blend Coffee

Coffee

1 lb. Special Pure Baking Powder

½ lb. Black Pepper

½ lb. Cinnamon

1 Bottle Pure Vanilla Extract, 4 oz. .39

Bottom Price $2.53

SICK HOESE.—I have a five-year-old horse that has been sick for three months. He had a large sore under his tongue. His tongue looks as though it was skinned and his throat swells. His hair is rough and his eyes are clear. His nose does not run. Mas. C. J. A.—Have the lorse clipped. Then feed him one quart of blackstrap molasses, night and morning, stirring it up with three quarts of hot water and then among cut hay, wheat bran and corn meal. Feed whole oats at noon and long hay at night. Paint the sore over with tincture of iodine and then swab it twice daily with a two per cent solution of permangarate of potash.

Comfort Sisters' Corner

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 9.) fry fish from ten in the morning till one used to fry fish from ten in the morning till one in the afternoon.

Finally, tired of being single, I married. We get along as well as the average married people do, though we did not marry for love as we read of it in the story books. My husband was a miner until we came to America. We left Liverpool in the ship Saxonia. The first night out a port hole opened and the water came in and washed us out of our bunks. You may be sure we were frightened but the Captain kept us interested during the storm. Before landing he lectured us about America and told us there was a home and work for all, but that we would have to earn every dollar we got, and I have often thought how true were his words. By careful management we have a home of our own, and all paid for, which we never could have expected in England. Very few there own their homes. I like this glorious U. S. A. and would not go back again to the old country to live, but hope to go sometime for a visit.

With best wishes to all, Mrs. Adnes Jackson.

With best wishes to all, MRS. AGNES JACKSON.

Dear Comfort Sisters:

When I was only a little girl I took Comfort and now that I am grown and married I find it still the best paper of all. I always read the Sisters' Corner first as I am always seeking information for I am by no means past taking advice even if I have been married eight years and am the mother of six children, You may know that I have my hands full, but I still find time or rather, take time, to read as I think that is the best way to take one's thoughts away from that it is the best way to take one's thoughts away from the monotonous round of every-day work.

I rather think "Lonely One" should be put in the Slacker class. She should stop worrying so much about herself and realize there are thousands of others doing the same thing she so much dreads when she is only fulfilling nature's law. It looks rather selfish to meprovided one is advised by a doctor that it would not prove fatal—to spare herself and adopt a child some other woman has borne. True, many a child needs a mother but let those who are unable to give birth to one of their own, adopt them. I think any woman who loves and cares for an adopted child is a credit to her race, but in "Lonely One's" case, she is sparing herself and reaping a benefit from someone else. Are there any of us who are too good to go through the ordeal of child birth? I, myself, have been through the by-some-much-dreaded nill fire times (my young-est are twin boys, fifteen months old) and have never worried about it. I am inclined to argue with the sister who wrote advising ready-made clothes for the little newcomer. There is pleasure in making the tiny garments and there is so much time ahead that no one need shirk their household duties nor do they have to deprive themselves of the walk in the open air, which is so essential.

We live on a claim of four hundred and eighty acres, which is not improved much as we moved here only last spring. We have a lot of responsibility on our last spring.

acres, which is not improved much as we moved here only last spring. We have a lot of responsibility on our hands and I realize it is going to be hard scratching for a few years, especially with the war and Increased cost of living we are bound to be in pretty close circumstances, but as "Don't Worry" has always been my motto I am going to stick to it for there is a bright side to everything if we will just look for it.

Real sleeping comfort is found only in high grade, strict v sanitary FEATHER BED-DING—the kind that PURITY makes and sells you direct from the factory at our amaz-ingly low factory prices.

Only new, live feathers which have been made absolutely odoriess and germless so into our Feather Beds and Pillows And the ticking is government standard featherproof material.

In brief, if you want to be real warm and comfy and know that you are sleeping on approved SANITARY bedding, BUY PURITY FEATHER BEDDING.

This is our 45th anniversary and we have issued a spec-ial beautifully illustrated 32 page catalog which will give you a clear idea of all our wonder-offerings. Write for your copy--just your name and address on a card will do--RIGHT NOW!

PURITY BEDDING CO. Nashville, Tenn.

I want to ask a little advice before I close. How can I break my twin boys of eating sand? Every time I let them out of doors they fill their mouths with sand and swallow it. It is injurious as it puts their stomach and bowels in bad shape. I have spanked them repeatedly for it but they do the same thing again as soon as they get a chance. Has anyone else had the same experience?

Sincerely a COMPORT sister, Mrs. FRANK VAUGEN.

Mrs. Vaughn. Don't spank your twinn'es for eating sand. While I'm not an authority on the subject, it is my humble opinion they are not properly nourished and nature is only making her wants known to you in this way. Some necessary element is being omitted from their dietmine. I should say, but ask your family physician about that.—Ed.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 23.)

Driver Agents Wanted Deico ignition—flect, Sig. & Ltg. BUSH MOTOR COMPANY, Bush Tem

LADIES A BEAUTIFUL COMPLEXION FREE particulars write P. O. Box 174, Brunswick, Maine,

Pair Of Turkish Towels

Premium No. 7323

For Three Subscriptions AFTER batting there is nothing quite as fine as a good rub down with a Turkish towel, in fact it is the best towel for all purposes, whether for the bathors such as the purpose of the pu

FREE Make Big Profits From Furs a by Shipping to the World's Biggest Fur House For hig trapping money in cash, send your furs to us at once. We are biggest because we pay highest prices. We need your skins now, while prices are good. Write for new price list on rac-skins, mink, fox, muskrat and other furs, ay top prices and send money same day caive shipment. WRITE FOR FREE BOOK Vrita for FREE Trapper's Guide. Instructions on trappling; Game Laws; prices on stool traps, guas, etc. Send for it. FREE. FUNSTEN BROS. & CO. 220 Funsten Building (2705) St. Leuls, Mo.

MAKE MONEY TRAPPING

THE ART OF TRAPPING'
THE SEST AND MOST COMPLETE
TRAPPERS' GUIDE EVER PUBLISHED
IS IN TRAPPERS' GUIDE EVER PUBLISHED
IS IN TRAPPERS' GUIDE EVER PUBLISHED
IS IN TRAPPERS' GUIDE EVER PUBLISHED
TO THE TRAPPERS' OF THE TRAPPERS' OF THE TRAPPERS' OF THE TRAPPERS' OF TRAPPERS' OF TRAPPERS'
THE SESTIMATION OF TRAPPERS' OF TRAPPERS' OF TRAPPERS'
THE SESTIMATION OF TRAPPERS' OF TRAPPERS' THE SESTIMATION OF TRAPPERS'
THE SESTIMAT

ice is 25c stamps or cain Send for your copy today

A. B. SHUBERT, Inc.
C, 25-27 W. Austin Avo., Chicago, U. S. A.

How to Trap Skunk, Civet, Raccoon and Opossum

Copyright, 1917, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

HE skunk and civet cat are easy to take. They seem to have no fear of springing a bright, new trap that is not concealed. While, therefore, it is not necessary to conceal sets for this animal, I would advise doing so, as one can thus often take a wandering mink or raccoon.

not necessary to conceal sets for this animal, I would advise doing so, as one can thus often take a wandering mink or raccoon.

To conceal land sets, one should scoop out a hole large enough so that the jaws are just below the surface. If fine material is employed, such as dirt and rotten wood it is best to place a wad of cotton or wool under the pen so nothing can get under it and interfere with the action when sprung. Always use a covering natural to the place, that is dead leaves when sets are made in dead leaves; green grass when sets are made on green grass, etc. In cold weather, line the excavation with dry material such as leaves, etc., before arranging the set to prevent the trap from freezing to the ground. Traps so placed must be examined from time to time and the bed of dry material changed.

There are usually several skunks or civet cats in each den. While sets may be arranged at the mouths of burrows, I prefer to use baited traps placed in the immediate vicinity of the burrows. One may thus take several skunks and civets in a single night from a single burrow.

Build small V-shaped pens in the vicinity of the burrows. Use bloody meat for a decoy, covered with a small quantity of grass so that it is hidden from crows and hawks. Guard the lure with one or more traps.

I have found that good results may be obtained when small excavations are dug and a Kangaroo or Jump trap is concealed on top of a piece of meat. The animals in digging for the decoy will be caught.

Warm, moonlight nights are best for taking the two fur bearers mentioned. They are more active at this time and den up, generally speaking, when the weather gets real cold.

Some who are starting to trap for the first time will have trouble in locating occupied dens; you can learn to tell them by the general appearance—if the entrance seems used, if there are tracks about and droppings,—but a surer method is to reach into the den as far as possible and take up a handful or two of dirt. In this dirt, if the den is used by the skunk or civet if the den is used by the skunk or civet, will generally be found long black, black and white, or white hair.

When employing meat for bait, remember it will attract dogs and cats also. Baited sets, therefore, ought not to be made too close to human habitation.

The beginner, no doubt, will hesitate to trap both the skunk and civet because of the odor. With care, however, they may be taken with little inconvenience. When an animal is taken in a trap and is alive, do not excite it more than is necessary. A small caliber rife or pistol is best to employ for killing. Shoot the animals just back of the head so that the bullets cut the spine and paralyze it.

When shooting fur bearers, remember that holes in the pelt—back or belly—affect the values of the skins. If possible, shoot so the bullets range from the back of the head downward, out the neck.

Should a skin be "stunk up" or some of the odor get on the clothes, it may be removed by thoroughly washing, one or more times, in gasoline. Do this outdoors and be sure to let the vapor evaporate thoroughly before taking it indoors, otherwise there is danger from fire.

The raccoon and opossum are much harder to take than either the skunk or civet cat, as their animal instinct is better developed. Unless the novice makes his sets in water, he is liable to have some difficulty in taking many pelts.

The raccoon is very strong, considering its size. I should recommend nothing smaller than a Number 1½ trap. Further, fasten all traps in deep water when able to do it and avoid the use of small takes also. The 'coon frequently when caught will gnaw its way loose. My method of fastening traps for this fur bearer is to wire them to rocks, etc., weighing from twenty to twenty-five pounds each which cannot be dragged off. For the opossum, however, it is optional whether one employs the Number 1 or 1½.

When tracks of the 'coon are found—even the beginner cannot mistake them for they resemble very closely the imprint of a baby's foot—build a small three-sided pen of rocks or sti

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 23.)

The Girl He Loved

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 19.)

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 19.)

"Oh, I try not to look poor!" sweetly. "I really manage my poor Bob's income very well. I am quite proud of my housekeeping."

She had excellent reason, if drunken Bob Murray's uncertain income paid the bills. Every one—but the duchess—knew it did not, but no one was clever enough to know just what did. If Sylvia were not pleased all London would know—and more besides. Mrs. Murray rose gracefully from the luncheon-table.

"It is a crime for you to be poor," she said with pretty flattery, "for a middle-aged person like me it doesn't so much matter; though I don't know," sighing, "Physical comfort makes up for a good many sorrows."

"I don't think so." Ravenel, with every wish gratified and a raging pain at her heart, could not keep back the cry.

"You will some day," musingly. "But, my dear girl, don't let us moralize! I will go and put on my hat. Perhaps you can amuse yourself till I come back."

There was a glass over the mantelpiece, and under it a long row of framed photographs.

my hat. Pernaps you can amuse come back."

There was a glass over the mantelpiece, and under it a long row of framed photographs. Mechanically, as soon as she was alone. Ravenel looked to see if her big black hat were straight. Even misery does not allow a girl to go about with a crooked hat.

But after the first glance at the crowded mantelshelf, where gold and silver and ivory frames jostled each other, she took no more thought to her apparel.

jostled each other, she took no more thought to her appare!

In front of her, staring her in the face, was a likeness of Adrian Gordon. She had no photograph of him and this strange woman had. The girl's throat thickened—filled.

He had played with her, thrown her over, made her a laughing-stock to herself: yet his Dictured face sickened her with longing. She could have followed him through the world, just to see him sometimes, never even asking to speak to him. In a passion of despair she seized the photograph and kissed it as she had never kissed Adrian Gordon in life.

"Adrian," she whispered, "there must have been something I didn't know to make you leave (CONTINUED ON PAGE 23.)

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 23.)

Cash for Raw Furs

If you don't send for our price list we are both losers because we pay highest market prices and want your shipments. Send for Price list C.

L. BRIEFNER & SONS, (Est. 1861) 148 West 25th St., New York City.

It's the Spring that makes a trap go and hold. Strength and speed here mean sure catches - dependability under all conditions on the trapping line.

That is why trappers everywhere prefer the VICTOR. Because the spring is faster, stronger and more dependable than any other - a fact that is vouched for by seventy years' experience making trap springs that are "sure to go and sure to hold.'

Your dealer sells the VICTOR. Examine the springit's the thing.

ONEIDA COMMUNITY, Ltd., ONEIDA, NEW YORK

"MORE MONEY" Ship Your FURS To "SHUBERT"

the largest house in the World dealing exclusively in NORTH AMERICAN RAW FURS, are liable—responsible—safe Fur House with an unblemished reputation existing for "more than a third of a century," a long successful record of sending Fur Shippers prompt, SATISFACTORY AND PROFITABLE returns. Write for "The Shuhert Shipper," the only reliable, accurate market report and price list of its kind published.

Write for it—NOW—it's FREE

A. B. SHUBERT, Inc. 25-27 WEST AUSTIN AVE.

Dept. 5 CHICAGO, U.S.A.

Get our price list first. We actually give what we quote ask any trapper-find out for yourself that we pay Highest Market Prices For Furs.

McCULLOUGH & TUMBACH
113 N. Main St. Established 1893 St. Louis, Mo.

Make This Your Big

Year of QUICK RETURNS—the HOUSE of LIBERAL AS-SORTMENTS. Send for S. & B. Price List. It's free! STRUCK & BOSSAK Inc., 143 W. 28th ST., New York.

Free Baits For Trappers

$1.00 Bottle

Write today before our supply is ex-hausted and we will tell you how to get free the GUARANTEED DECOY. Bach Fur Co., Dept. 112, Chicago, Ill.

epoon Sales (o.) is the house to which you will eventually ship your furs.

Trappers

Start this season right. Get your name on our mailing list and keep posted. Price list sent free. Write today. R. P. Pepoon Sales Company, 31 South Main St. St. Louis, Mo. ******

Over 200,000 satisfied shippers send us all their furs. Try us.

FREE Fur Price List.
Trappers' Guide,
Game Laws. Catalog and particulars of our $250,00 Cash Prizes to trapper only. All sent FREE.
Write TODAY.

HILL BROS. FUR CO. 306 N. MAIN ST.

SKUNK We pay top prices for Skunk, Mink, Muskrat, and all new Furs Price list free. M. J. JEWETT & SONS, REDWOOD, N. Y. DEPT. 5.

PPERS WE BUY FOR CASH

Highest prices paid for all Furs, Hides and Ginseng. Best facili-ties in America. No Commission. Send for our prices and Free valuable information before ship-Ping elsewhere. Dept. 122, St. Louis, Mo.

SHIP

YOUR F

to us and increase your profits.

The fairness of our grading guarantees satisfaction.
Thousands of satisfied shippers prove it. We pay express and postage and make prompt returns. Send for price list.

RABINOWITZ, 119 WEST 29TH STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

You Can Do as Well as This Man

This is H. A. Neumann the Lange man for Dodge Co., Wis. His sales for one month were $931.50, average per week $192.68. He is 27 years old; started two years ago, both he and his goods strangers in the territory, and has built up this splendid business of his own, selling Lange's Extracts, Spices, Teas, Coffees, Household Specialties and Veterinary Remedies direct from wagon to home. You can do as well. Let us give you actual figures of their sales. We will instruct you on every point, teach you how to sell and give you exclusive territory near your home. Our contract beats all others. If you're not making $200 a month, write us at once about our plan.

The Lange Co., Dept. W.

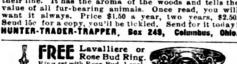

DePere, Wis

HUNTERS, TRAPPERS, and all red-blooded Sportsmen should read the best magazine in the world in their line. It has the aroma of the woods and tells the value of all fur-bearing animals. Once read, you will want it always. Price $1.50 a year, two years, $2.50, Send 15c for a copy, you'll be tickled. Send for it today.

Odd Source of Meerschaum

So many people are inclined to believe that meerschaum is a product of sea foam. Meerschaum, however, is a German word, compounded from meer, which means sea, and schaum, which means foam. It is the name of a fine clay composed of magnesia, silica and water in equal parts. When fresh from the pit it is soft and makes a lather like soap, which gives rise to its name. After being moided into pipes, these are boiled in oil or wax and baked until hard.

Six Rogers' Silver Teaspoons

CLUB OF SIX

NO woman ever has too many teaspoous—especially the "Rogers'" kind—so here is an offer that will surely interest thousands of our women readers. For a few subscriptions to COMPORT secured among your friends we will send you this handsome set free. They are the famous 1881 Rogers' Al brand which is guaranteed to be a full stansiard silver plate upon a renuine 1882 nickel base. Please notice the beautiful design—the new "Plymouth"—which is a splendid reproduction of the universally popular hand-hammered ware. You will have to set the spoons themselves in order to fully appreciate this latest fashionable pattern as our illustration does not do it justice.

We will give you this set of six Rogers' silver teaspoons on the terms of the following club offer. Remember—they are the genuine 1881 Rogers' Al brand—the Bogers' trademark is stamped on each and every one. This protects you fully, furthermore each spoon is absolutely warranted for ten years.

This protects you fully, furthermore each spoon is absolutely warranted for ten years.

CLUB OFFERs For six one-year subscriptions to CLUB OFFERs COMFORT at 25 cents each we will send you this set of six Rogers' silver teaspoons free by parcel post prepaid. Premium No. 7356.

Address COMFORT, Augusts, Maine.

The Modern Farmer

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 18.)

firms get their business before the public and thus become known; hence it is a poor plan to buy from a nursery that you have never heard about.

become known; hence it is a poor plan to buy from a nursery that you have never heard about. But From Nearby Dealers,—If you live in Maine don't send to California for your stock, or if in Michigan don't buy from a Georgia dealer. In other words your trees should have been produced under climatic and soil conditions similar to your own; hence they should seldom be brought from far-off states. On the whole you will succeed better if you buy from reliable dealers located in your own or a neighboring state.

Don't Buy Scrub Stock.—In nursery stock the cheapest trees are usually the dearest. They are "scrubs." No reliable dealer will sell you scrub stock at a cheap price without telling you that it is scrub stock. Unscrupulous dealers often make such sales on the ground of price alone. By all means buy good trees neither too young nor too old; two or three years being the best.

Buy the Right Varieties.—Be sure you get varieties that will do well, or have already succeeded in your locality. Because the tree is high priced and comes from a reliable dealer is no sign that it may not be a very poor tree for you to purchase. Right here is where reliable information is needed; hence the one who intends purchasing fruit trees this wii r should not buy on the "spur of the moment" but study up on the question and be ready with this information when the tree agent calls at the door.

Don't Make Costly Experiments.—If we never tried new varieties we would never make the tree agent calls at the door.

DON'T MAKE COSTLY EXPERIMENTS.—If we never tried new varieties we would never make any progress; hence it is always a good plan to try something new. But don't depend on it. Depend on old reliable varieties for the main part of the order and try new stock only on a limited scale. Often we can learn much about these new varieties from books, bulletins, catalogs and from our neighbors who have tried them. Much of the money spent for the new stuff is wasted; hence in making out our fruit tree orders we should "go slow" on the new and the wholly unknown but should not necessarily avoid them altogether. Just "go slow," that's all.

Paper Sausage Cases

Sausage cases are now made from paper. These cases are as tough and strong as those obtained from the intestines of animals and are much nicer to use for home-made sausage. When put up in these cases and smoked the same as is often done with bologna or summer sausage, the contents will keep well for several weeks.

The Questions and Answers constitute one of the most valuable features of this department and we urge our farmer subscribers to read all of them carefully each month, as you will find that they contain much useful information and advice on practical problems that are troubling you as well as those who have asked the questions. Cut them out and pasts them into a scrapbook for future reference. This will save you the trouble of writing us and will avoid delay in getting your answer when you need advice on these same matters, we are glad to receive inquiries from our subscribers and to advise them on all matters pertaining to farming.

Questions and Answers

EFFECT OF CARBON BISULPHIDE.—In August Comport you advise the use of carbon bisulphide to destroy weevils in beans. Will beans treated in this way be rendered unfit for food? Or will they be suitable for cooking after the carbon bisulphide treatment? I have a lot of dry beans and ann truly glad for an effective remedy to keep the weevils out. We have taken Comport for years and could hardly do without it.

MRS. M. L., Waldron, Ind.

A.—The beans will be all right for food. Carbon bisulphide is a liquid somewhat resembling gasoline in that it evaporates very rapidly, leaves no residue behind and its fumes are very explosive when they come in contact with fire. It is the powerful fumes of this substance that kill the weevils. But the fumes soon pass off after the beans are open to a free circulation of air and leave no trace of the carbon bisulation of air and leave no trace of the carbon bisulation of air and leave no trace of the carbon bisulation of air and leave no trace of the carbon bisulation of air and leave no trace of the carbon bisulation of air and leave no trace of the carbon bisulation of air and leave no trace of the carbon bisulation of air and leave no trace of the carbon bisulation of air and leave no trace of the carbon bisulation of air and leave no trace of the carbon bisulation of air and leave no trace of the carbon bisulation.

Of course one would not care to cat such of the beans as contained weevils even though dead, but these can be sorted out before cooking; the remainder will be fit for cooking purposes after a thorough airing.

The Girl He Loved

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 22.)

me like that! You didn't really—Adrian!" The incoherent, senseless words left her shaking. She had no time to put down the photograph as Mrs. Murray came in, but stood with blazing cheeks and the living light of passion in her eyes, that had been so indifferent.
"Do you know him?" she said, caring for nothing but to hear whatever she could of him, even from a stranger.

Mrs. Murray laughed.
"Adrian—Captain Gordon—do yoù mean? He is very good-looking, isn't he? Of course, I know him, do you?"

Ravenel turned and, very carefully, replaced

Read The Whole Story Now!

copy of the book free by mail postpaid. Don't wait for the installments. Read the whole story now by accepting this offer at once.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

the picture. Her back was toward her hostess, but her face was plain in the mirror. Her mouth felt so stiff she could scarcely speak.

"I know him—a little; he has gone to India, T think."

"I know him—a little; he has gone to India, I think."

"Yes: poor man, I fancy he had to! Mrs. Gordon," airily, "is not a cheap luxury."

"Mrs. Gordon!" the room swam. "Do you mean he was married?"

"It was a boyish madness, if he was; but Mrs. Gordon exists, I'm afraid. Don't, for Heaven's sake, say I told you; it would ruin him with Lord Levallion. She is very unhappy, and has been a frightful drain on Captain Gordon. But I must say it hasn't prevented his enjoying himself. Poor Adrian is one of the most hopeless flirts I know. You won't," pleadingly, "say anything to Levallion?"

Ravenel looked at her. It was queer how cold she felt, and how passionless—now she knew why Adrian had not come.

"The 'gay Gordons' are a proverb, aren't they?" she said, and found she could smile quite easily, "Captain Gordon is only an acquaintance of mine; you may be sure I shall not mention him to Lord Levallion. Whom I barely know." For a moment her manner staggered even Hester Murray, till she saw the girl's face had grown haggard.

"One can't tell all one knows," she said lightly. "Shall we go out now?"

She was elated as she followed her guest to the carriage, for she had obliged Sylvia and not told one lie. Adrian had certainly given Mrs. Gordon money he could ill spare. And she knew Ravenel

How to Trap Shunk, Civet. Raccoon and Opossum

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 22.)

Raccoon and Opossum

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 22.)

The raccoon is the only one of the smaller fur bearers which will eat both flesh and vegetables, seemingly with little preference. Like its larger brother the bear, it always appears hungry, so a good bait is almost a necessity. Anong those as good bait is almost a necessity. Anong those which I have employed successfully are: corn, fresh fish, clams, honey and canned salmon. I might also add that a patent lure will often prove of value.

If a large hollow log is found partly submerged along a stream, place traps at each entranceway. If the water is too deep, scoop out an excavation for the traps; if too shallow generally a foundation for the sets may be made of rocks, with from three to four inches of water and concealed with soaked grass, leaves or moss. I'mploy no lure of any kind with the set I have just given, for the first 'coon passing either up or down the stream will attempt to enter the log and, if the traps are placed properly, get caught. The log set is employed quite extensively for taking the mink also. Only those logs having large hollows can be expected to furnish ideal places for taking the raccoon.

Often natural places may be discovered along the edge of a stream or lake where there are splace, simply conceal traps there. Sets in run ways are effective also, provided, of course the place, simply conceal traps there. Sets in run ways are effective also, provided, of course the place, simply conceal traps there. Sets in run ways are effective also, provided, of course the place, simply conceal traps there. Sets in run ways are effective also, provided, of course the place, simply conceal traps there. Sets in run ways are effective also, provided, of course the place, simply conceal traps there. Sets in run ways are effective also, provided, of course the place, simply conceal traps there. Sets in run ways are effective in attracting the raccoon.

The opossum in the past has been known to the trade as a "cheap fur." During the last two years howeve winter and spring.

Both the opossum and raccoon are considered a delicacy by many and often a market may be found for the carcases. When this is true, trapping these fur bearers is profitable indeed.

Practically every method mentioned for taking the raccoon may be employed in catching the possum.

would never mention the subject to Levallion. It had been a good day's work. But if Hester Murray had only known just what she had done at Sylvia's bidding she would have cut off her right hand sooner than have meddled. If she had even known why Lord Levallion was looking at her from the opposite window, as she got into the carriage, would have given all she owned to undo her work.

"It's time that child was looked after," he reflected as the open carriage drove off. He had a disike to seeing anything ill-treated that was odd in so hard a man; and Sylvia—"I think it's time I took a hand in the game," he said aloud. "And I do not consider Mrs. Murray a proper friend for the future Lady Levallion."

And it might have been better for all concerned if Hester Murray could have heard him.

TO BE CONTINUED.

Comfort Sisters' Corner

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 21.)

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 21.)

PALESTINE, ILL.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON:

1 cnjoy the sisters' letters so much but those pertaining to children and their care are doubly intersecting to me as I have a dear little daughter just twenty-two days old.

I did not have courage to write until I read Lonely One's letter. Dear sister, what makes you think the waiting would be so dreadful? I have been married almost two years and time spent waiting and preparing for my baby was the happiest time of my fife. T.e thought of the great blessing coming to me, and the making of all the little garments left mo time for worry. If you are physically able to become a mother I am sure you will find it a thousand times better than adopting a child. With all the months of waiting do not, or need not, mean months of being shut indoors but rather a time to enjoy one's self and be so happy. I could write much more about this but fear my letter would be too long.

Dear Mattle Mae Clark, of course you will be as good as new when you get your artificial limb. I know, for just one week and a day from the day we were married, my husband, while at work, fell and broke his left leg. After six weeks of patient suffering he had it amputated and now has an artificial limb, which, although it is not as good as his truly own leg, is a great help for he works and makes a comfortable living for our little family.

I like to read the descriptions of the sisters so will tell you something about myself. I am four feet, nine inches tall, have blue eyes and light hair and weigh about one hundred pounds. My busband is twenty-four years old.

Little Mary Katherine is waking so I will close, with love and best wishes for Mrs. Wilkinson and all the Comfort sisters. Mrs. Alice Brim Beers.

hole Story Now!

THE Girl He Loved"
will hold you entranced to the very end. It is a wonderful writer. Regular installments will appear in Comport each mouth but you needn't wait in order to get the whole story as we will give you free the completed but you free but game from earth to Heaven is a mother's love."

Mrs. Felmet, I cannot agree with you about making filler no to church. We can't drive our children to love God, but we can lead them. I say if your child goe not wish to go to church let him stay at home a few Sundays. Read to him from your Bible and book of Bible stories and teach him the beautiful truths in simple way so he can understand them. It is the mother, not the church, that must teach the children to love and fear God. Am I not right, mothers?

A Happy Mother. A Happy Mother.

MRS. WILKINSON AND COMPORT SISTERS:

As I am a new subscriber to Comport I would n think of bothering you were it not for the sake of n brave sodder box.

think or bothering you were it not for the sake of my brave soldier boy.

My husband and son both enlisted in His Majesty's Service in February, 1916 and sailed overseas in September of the same year. My husband was invalided home the next March and oh, how my heart aches for my poor boy, only seventeen, left there alone, so far from home and mother. Won't some of the sisters write to him and perhaps some of them would be kind enough to send him handkerchiefs, socks, etc. (CONTINUED ON PAGE 27.)

RAPPER If you are looking for the fur house that will give you the most cash money for your furs, write for our tags today and use them on your next shipment of furs. We have no prizes or other fly-by-night promises to offer you—just a plain business proposition to actually Pay You More Money. Let us prove it to you—see for yourself. Square Grading-Highest Prices We have been in the Fur Business 42 years—have almost unlimited capital and will give you Square Grading—Highest Prices and Quick Returns, the three big things that a trapper needs. Get started right. Furs will be Higher this season and you can make Big Money on the trap line. We want Mink, Skunk, Coon, Muskrats, Opossums and all other furs in unlimited ountries and you can only experience. sums and all other furs in unlimited quanties and you can only experience that Satisfied Feeling by shipping your furs to ABRAHAM FUR CO. 15 Abraham Bidg., St. Leuis, Mo. quanties and you can only exper-ience that Satisfied Feeling by shipping your furs to

UNITED STATES FUR COMPANY Dept J., 209 N. First St. St. Louis.

Pay for AUTOMOBILE
ON THE INSTALMENT PLAN OF
S10.00 DOWN and $10.00 PER MONTH
Eureka Auto Co., Rebuilders. Beavertown, Fa.

O PRESENTS FREE & GIRLS GIRLS Get a Beautiful Heart— Hawaiian Ring with beautiful mounted stone in colors. Also Plain Band Ring, Chip-Diamond Ring, 2 Ear Pendants, Beauty Pins, Flag Pin, Locket and Chain and Seed Pearl Necklace. All logivers FREE for disposing of only 8 of our Famous Art Pictures, on our Special Easy Offer at 25 cents each. Send for the Pictures—a Poetal will do. 615 W. 43rd St. E. H. KEMP, Mgr. Dept. 171, NewYork

SAS SIX LACE FREE

Seautiful Nottingham lace curtains 2 3-4 yds. long —30 in, wide. Distinctive pattern. Wonderfully well made. Suitable for parlor or sitting room, Sell 12 boxes Mentho Nova (Wonder Healer) at 25 cents a box, remit $3 and all 6 curtains are yours. Order quickly-today. FREE U.S.SUPPLY CO.S. Dept. 407, Greenville, Pa. U.S.SUPPLY COMPANY

You May Win This Gift

13 25 Each of these squares represents a letter — but we have used figures instead of letters. There are 26 letters in the alphalaet. Let Fix I be 12 4 SIX letters represented by figures from two words which should interest you mightily. Send the words on a slip of paper with a 2e stamp t) cover postage and I will send you as a free 6IFT a handsome asst. of Xmas novelties and tell how you may win 3350 IN GOLD or AUTO Plano, etc.

PUZZLE MAN, 505 New Ideas Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa.

Folding DOUBLE X-RAY.

With this X-Ray you can apparently see thru cloth or wood, See bones in the body, makes the flesh look transparent. Lots of fun. 10 cts by mail. The ARDEE Co. Box 2 6 Stamford Conn.

LOOK YOUR BEST. Make sure of smooth white arms, face and neck in spite of sallowness, blotches, freckles, blackheads etc. If you want to be charming and attractive—Don't pay 50c but send 10c at once for sealed Package, which will transform your appearance instantly. Warranted. Tollet COMPOUND CO., 80x 1927A, Beston, Mass.

Fine Shaggy Teddy Bear

EVERY little boy and girl wants a Teddy Bear and here is an opportunity for every father or mother who reads COMFORT to get one without expense. "Teddy" looks exactly as you see him in the picture above. He is a shaggy fellow, 10 inches tall, made of brown plush, paws lined with felt, carefully stitched and finished and his head, arms and legs are jointed in such a manner that you can place him in almost any position. He will stand up, sit up, stand on his head, go on all four feet, in fact, you can make him assume all kinds of positions that are so comical and lifelike that it makes the children scream with delight just to look at him. "Teddy" is so well made that no matter how roughly he is handled he cannot become broken and with ordinary care should last for years. We will send you "Teddy" free if you will accept the following apecial

Club Offer. For four one-year subscriptions to Comfort at 25 cents each, we will send you this Teddy Bear free by Parcel Post prepaid.

Premium No. 7514.

Address COMFORT, Augusta. Maine.

Children's Happy Hour

Copyright, 1917, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

Tootsy and the Fairy Dog

KNOW you will like dear Miss Tootsy as soon as you look at her, but when I tell you what a wonderful adventure she had and how hard it was for her to get here, then, you will love her, just heaps and heaps. Tootsy is a real little girl and not a make-believe. She had a china doll almost as big as herself and, strange to say, the doll had a lovely, lacy dress that Tootsy wanted to put on herself. Her mother scolded her just a little for being so vain and told her that this could not be for the pretty dress was sewed to the doll in such a way that it would have to be ripped to pieces in order to be taken off. Tootsy sighed and sobbed and took the dolly out on the sunny porch and sat her down where she could stare at the dress admiringly. Still she wished to see it on herself and was strongly tempted to try to put it on. But, like a good little girl, she made up her mind to try to think of something else, and was just about to put the dolly away when a strange little dog came up. "How do you do doggie," said Tootsy, and the queer little animal answered her back, "Howely do." The child was frightened at hearing a puppy talk just like a person and was about to call her mamma when he said: Fear not, I come to give you a new dress exactly like the one you crave for." Tootsy caught her breath, and tried in vain to speak. "Shut your eyes," said the fairy dog, and she did so. In an instant he was gone and upon Tootsy was the sweetest dress, just like her doll's. She was so surprised she didn't know what to think, but suddenly the porch floor seemed to sink away from her and she was floating in the air like a feather; and oh, how high she did go; just think of it, over the houses and trees and up where the sky has all the beautiful colors on it. Not a soul could she see but the fairy dog and there he was running along a cloud like as if itwere solid ground. Not only that, but he had the impertinence to stop and jump into Tootsy's arms. "I don't like you one bit," she said, "and I'm going to take this dress off for it has gotten me into so much trouble," "If you do, you will drop to earth and be killed," warned Fairy dog, but he was too late. Tootsy had thrown the dress off and was falling like a rock. "Oh, Lord, please save me," she prayed, and right away her prayer was answered, for she fell into an apple tree that was white with big, soft, fragrant blossoms. "Those are beautiful," she murmured and although she was slipping down, down, down, through them all the time, she managed to grab a small branch. You can see in the picture how she looked when she finally settled to the ground safe and unhurt. Her first thought was of home. The fairy dog was at her feet, bruised and hurt for he had fallen on hard ground. He could not walk or fly or even crawl but he told Tootsy that her mamma's place was many miles away and the only way she could get home was to get a fairy gown and dance through the air. He advised her to wave the apple blossoms three times, and as she did so they turned into a streamer or long scarf and away she flitted like a butterfly. Back to the porch she went and there was the doll with the lace dress on.

Her mamma came out the door and said: "Dearie, I believe I will give you that pretty dress."

"Never mind mamma," she gasped, rubbing her eves open: and then she snuggled to her mother

"Pearie, I believe I had dress."

"Never mind mamma," she gasped, rubbing her eyes open; and then she snuggled to her mother and kissed her and told her everything. And mamma commented:

"That was a pretty dream."

Cut-Out Doll Directions

Paste the picture on smooth cardboard, using boiled flour paste. Rub all the wrinkles and bubbles out, beginning at the center and working towards the edges. A spoon or a silver knife handle is good to use for this purpose. Put the pasted picture in a big book and allow a few hours for drying. Then cut out the dresses and

ONE-QUARTER LESS TUBERCULOSIS.—There are now about 1,000,000 cases of tuberculosis in the United States, but this is 25 per cent less than the number 10 years ago, according to a report of Dr. C. J. Hatfield, secretary of the National Association for Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. Open air schools, sanitariums, visiting nurses and campaigns of prevention are to be credited for the reduction, he says.

quite so much real satisfaction and enjoyment as either one of these two handsome twins. You may have either doll—your choice of either Josie or Johnnie—or both of them free as a these two names of them tree as a condition of either Josie or Johnnie—or both of them tree as a COMFORT premium as we have bought a quantity of them to be distributed in this manner. Remember these are real American made unbreakable dolls—not paper "cutouts" or "rag" dolls—with a strong durable stuffed cloth body, and the structure of the composition o jointed arms and legs and an indestructible composition head that will not break. They will last a long time.

LUCRATIVE CABBAGE FARM.—Last spring, C. H. Smith of Ruffsdale, Pa., gave his four daughters the use of two acres of land. After studying the markets the girls decided that cabbages would be the most profitable crop. Last fall their returns exceeded even their wildest hopes. Owing to the care which they gave to the plants and to the present scarcity of the vegetable, about $2,400 will be realized.

Boys! Girls! Look—See Who Is Here! Twins' "Comfort They Want

Premium No. 7355

We Will Give You Both Dolls! POR eight one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25c each, we will send you both dolls—Josie and Jonnie—free by parcel post prepaid. (Premium No. 7388). Or for five one-year subscriptions at 25 cents each we will send you one doll—your choice of Josie (Premium No. 7385), for Johnsie (Premium No. 7385), the by parcel post prepaid. When ordering be sure to give the premium number of doll or dolls wanted.

Address COMFORT Augusta Maine

Watch is initiation time piece with gilt band around dial and adjustable leather strap. Locket and nekklace, beautifully embossed band ring, two stone ring and imitation wrist watch all given and sent free. Girls, send for only 12 of our fine sealed package handkerchiefs; sell them at 10c each; return our money and we will send free of charge your four articles exactly as described above. The Fay-Morton Co., East Boston, Mass. Dept. 139. And 2 Dolls with 10 complete suits and hats. Beautiful bright col-ors. Given for selling only 12 sets of Colored Cards and Xmas Novelties at 10 cts. a set. BLUINE MFG. CO., 308 Mill 8t. Concord Jet., Mass.

ALL FREE

Any bright girl can have these four handsome pieces of jewelry! All but watch are goldplated. Watch is imitation time piece with

BABY OUTFIT GIVEN

To every mother or prospective mother who sends 10c for EVERY MOTHER'S BABY BOOK, containing 28 pages of most valuable information, will send in plain wrapper, my Complete Baby Out-6 patterns—Cap, Coat, Dress, Night-Gown, kimpettooat, Sacque—with full directions for making. MRS. ROSENA HILL, 70 35th St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

4-POUND
For Quilte, Fancy Work, Portieres, Etc. Send 10 Cents for big package of large beautiful site remants including free for the package of large beautiful site pundles ham, and other $1. remant bargain bundles; also instructions how to earn money at home by sewing

SHETLAND PONIES. $10.00 Down and 250 Ponles to be sold on Installment Plan. Send 15c. in stamps for Illustrated List. SIMPSON FARMS, ELMHURST, ILL.

30 Postals, Christmas, Birthday, Comic, Love, Views 106. Silk Flag Free. Magnus A. Hoss Co., 837 Ashland Bou'l.Chicagn.

Dance Halls of Bird Land

Dance Halls of Bird Land

There are several species of bower birds, chief among them the Satin and the Newton. The Satin bower bird is the best known. When the bowers were first discovered it was supposed that they were playhouses built by the native children; but, as a matter of fact, they are the dance halls of bird land.

The nests are built in the trees and have no connection with the playhouses. The male birds build these latter and gather every bright and shining object they can find to adorn the entrance to the bower. When it is completed, according to one who has watched them, little "at homes" are given daily, at which the males meet and pay their court to their lady loves, now bowing and scraping, now playing hide and seek through the bower, and now doing an absurdly dignified dance for their edification.

Newton's bower bird decorates its bower with fresh flowers every day, and if a visiting male bird wants a fight all he has to do is to disturb one of these flowers. The master of the bower proceeds with the painful duty of teaching him how to behave in company, while the remainder of the party raise a great racket, but never interfere.

A naturalist studying them disarranged one of their flowers, but each time he did it the bower master rearranged it with great care.—
National Geographic Magazine.

Crying Infant Doll

Premium No. 7284 Ma-Ma-a-a!!) For A Club Of Four

a natural fleshlike color. No matter how many dolls the children now have, they will surely be delighted with this one and every mother who reads this offer should take advantage of it at once. We will send you this new infant doll exactly as described upon the terms of the following Club Offer: for a club of four one-year subscriptions to Comfort at 25c. each we will send you this crying infant doll free by parcel post prepaid. Premium No. 7284.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

If You Are A Woman Who Loves Crochet And Tatting Here Is A Set Of Books You Will Be Delighted To Own!

Any one of these books alone is a veritable treasure house of the newest, most beautiful designs. The seven books combined form a complete library in which you will find any pattern in crocheting and tatting you could possibly ask for You will fairly revel in the many handsome designs shown. There are edgings, beadings, insertions and laces for every conceivable use. The illustrations are actual photographs of the finished work and show every thread so plainly that they are almost as good to work from as the directions themselves. The directions are adapted for either beginner or expert. They tell stitch by stitch how each pattern is worked, also the quantity and size of material required and the correct sizes of hooks to be used. Following is a description of each book. They are 8 by 10 1-2 inches in size with the exception of Volume I which is 9 1-4 by 12 inches. Flease order by numbers

Volume 1 Crocheted yokes for combinations, envelopes, nightgowns, corset covers, etc.—fifteen all different, exquisite designs.

Volume 2 Handsome crocheted edgings and insertions suitable for handker-uses, thirty-three different designs.

Volume 3 Eighteen lovely designs in Cluny pieces, library scarfs, boudoir caps, corset cover combination suits.

Volume 4 Twenty-five handsome designs in artistic crochet for yokes, boudoir caps candle shades, baby bonnets, bedspreads, doilies, library scarfs, pillows, centerpieces, portiere, medalitions, curtains, etc., etc.

Volume 5 Twenty-five designs in novelty and clover leaf crocheted yokes, primrose and sunflower yokes; joilies, centerpieces, boudoir caps unique edges and insertions for serving trays; novelty aprons and collars.

Volume 6 Thirty-two designs in tatting, and beautiful assorthent of tatted handkerchief edges, edgings and insertions, tatted yokes, boudoir caps, towel edges, medallions; yokes, breakfast caps, centerpleces, edgings and lace in Maltese crochet and yokes in Irish crochet,

Volume 7 Thirty handsome novelty crocheted designs including rose, sunflower periwinkle, and Venetian yokes; boudoir gaps, monkey face library searf, and lace pillow, large and small baskets, hat pin holder, jewel box, vanity tray coin purse, utility bag, star fish doily, pineapple centerpiece; edgings and insertions in pillow lace; daisy edging; spider, bell, rick-rack, novelty and coronation braid laces

WE advise you to order all seven of these splendid books before the assortment is broken. If however you do not care for the whole library at this time we have arranged the following special offers which give you the opportunity to secure any two or an four of the books. When ordering please be very careful to state the number of each book desired.

Offer 8011: For one 1-year subscription (not your own) to COMFORT at 25 cents we will send you nay two books free by parcel post prepaid. He sure to mention numbers of books wanted.

Offer 8552. Fo. two 1-year subscriptions at 25 cents each we will send you any four books free by parcel post prepaid. Be sure to mention numbers of books wanted.

Offer 8013. For three 1-year subscriptions at 25 plete library just as described above-seven different volumes in all, handsomely bound, printed on high-grade paper and containing nearly 200 beautiful photographic illustrations of all that is new and pretty in crochet and tatting designs with complete directions for working. When ordering please be sure to mention number of each book wanted.

Address COMFORT Augusta, Maine.

"Virtue itself offends when coupled with forbid-ding manners."—Bishop Middleton.

In order to meet the demand for information made by COMFORT subscribers on the kindred subjects on Etiquette and Personal Appearance, this column will be devoted to them, and all questions will be answered, but no inquirer shall ask more than two questions each month We would suggest to readers to cut this column out and pasts it in a scrap book. Address letters to Etiquette Editor, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Brown Hair, Montane, Texas.—If church starts at eight-thirty, and you live near it, a few minutes before that hour would be the time for you to set for your boy escort to call for you. If he arrives ahead of time, it is vour privilege to say when you are ready to go. (2) If you are offered a glass of soda at a drug-store, and you wish to accept, any simple, pleasant phrase is sufficient. "Thank you; that's very kind of you," would be one way of doing it.

Texas Kid, Eastland, Texas.—This young lady has been going with a boy for a "good while" and now wants to 'quit' and has no other reason but that she is tired of him. All right, Texas Kid, that is a very good and sufficient reason, and there isn't a thing in etiquette to prevent your quitting any time you wish. But don't try and get him back after he has found another girl Anxious, Summerville, Ga.—Holding hands is done.

Anxious, Summerville, Ga.—Holding hands is done by engaged and unengaged couples, and it simply means that they like to do it. (2) A lady may ask a gentleman in, when he brings her home from church at night, but it is generally wise for him to decline. The lady should say "Good night" first, but no very serious rule would be broken if the gentleman was the one that offered his farewells in advance.

Sour Grapes Asherton Texas —If you are sixten.

that offered his farewells in advance.

Sour Grapes, Asherton, Texas.—If you are sixteen and "always willing to take advice, we are going to advise you at once that you cease going with this "pretty nice" young man of twenty-six. Stick to boys of your own age, and do not ask how long you should be going with a boy before you expect an engagement ring. We are going to ask you how long you expect to go to the Aslerton, Texas, high school before you graduate? And there will not be any questions like your one regarding "silent love" in your exams.

Peaches and Cream, Carrigo Springs, Texas.—And like your one regarding "silent love" in your exams.

Penches and Cream, Carrizo Springs, Texas.—And here seems to be a friend of Sour Grapes, only with a sweeter name, who has learned to love a "real handsome" young man of twenty-four whom she has known for eight months. The thing has gone pretty far, for Peaches and Cream wants to know what time in August would be best suited for a wedding. And as Peaches and Cream is just sixteen we are going to say that the proper time will be August 1st, 1922.

A. LaFollette, Tenn.—No; we do not think it is nice for a young lady to go out in company with a gentleman whom she does not appreciate. Perhaps she will pick out a different one the next time, or perhaps he can find a young lady that will appreciate him more. Black Eyes, Heber, Ark.—Here is a girl who is in can find a young lady that will appreciate him more. Black Eyes, Heber, Ark.—Here is a girl who is in a sad way because she does not know if she should keep on 'being sweethearts' with a boy that she has known for four years and who does not come to see her regularly although he only lives a short way from her home. She wants to know if she 'must give him up and seek another?' No, Black Eyes, as long as he says he "will never marry anyone else" we would advise you to stick to him and give him a chance to call oftener or take the consequences.

B. B. Rogersyttle, Tenn—No, indeed, it is not

B. B., Rogersville, Tenn.—No, indeed, it is not necessary according to the high laws of etiquette for a girl to thank a boy after cake walking with him. If he should walk after a piece of cake for her—and a plate of ice-cream—that would be a different thing altogether. (2) It is not improper for a girl to wave at a boy friend—whether she does it first or last.

at a boy friend—whether she does it first or last.

Two Lonely Girls, Lebanon, Oregon.—Of course, my dears, a girl can go with one boy and write to another—or fifty others for that matter and no book of etiquette could stop it either. (2) A girl of eighteen should not be out after dark with a young man without her mother or some older woman, but it is done right along—and probably even in Lebanon.

Coverige St. Clark N. Des. We dealers and some Cousin, St. Clair, N. Dak.—We think a girl of fif-teen would be much better off if she went out rid-ing with her mother, than with a boy five years her senior. And if you do this, and leave aside the boy question till you are a few years older, you will not have to ask if you should shake hands with, or sit by him when you do not want to.

E. T. Chester, Ill.—If you rode home in a buggy with your girl friend and her beau, it was perfectly correct for you to wait until she was ready to go with you upon your arrival home.

you upon your arrival home.

Curious, Hicksville, Ga.—The stamp language is a very foolish language, and we have no space to publish it in this column. If you have anything to say put it inside the letter, and save the post-office department reason for worry and complaint.

The Gold Dust Twins, Sweetwater, Wyo.—It was perfectly right and proper for you and your sister to treat as you did the young man who tried to kiss you. The only apologies that are needed are from these two young men. (2) If you do not want a young man to put his arm around you when you are out in a car with him, simply tell him so plainly and distinctly. No; we would not wink at a young man.

Eve of Tennessee.—Yes, ice-cream and cake or lemo-nade and cake would be perfectly proper for you to offer your friend who calls Sunday afternoons. It should be brought in and daintily served from a small tray by either your mother or yourself. (2) Like your mother, we do not approve of straw rides, and we think you would be much beter off to remain at home. Your mother is also sensible and right in her opinion that you wait until you graduate next year before you receive the attention of young men. We see no harm in your writing to this young man while you are away at school, although if your mother seriously objects, we would do as she wishes.

Lonely One, Lebanon, Oregon --If your letter means to ask if it would be right for you to go to entertainments with an unmarried man who is working for your husband, we say most certainly not, and we are surprised that we should have to answer such a question.

Blood With S

surprised that we should have to answer such a question

Puzzled, Hickory, N. C.—There are times, but not very many, when a lady may ask a gentleman to accompany her somewhere. You will have to use your own judgment about this, and be guided by the circumstances. A great deal would depend upon the degree of intimacy.

Beauty, Christiana, Texas. We think a pleasant combination for a box supper would be some chicken salad arranged on lettuce leaves, some plain bread and butter sandwiches, daintily cut and well buttered, a small pot of home-made lefty or conserve, some rich plain cake, and of course some pickles. It makes us hungry to think about it, and we wish we had just such a box here, or could go to your supper. (2) It is only necessary to say "yes" or "no" and thank him when a boy asks if he may see you home from church.

Reba of Tennessee.—A boy, when calling, should hang up his own hat, or be told where he may hang it. (2) We should certainly thank the young man that unhitches your horse every Sunday—no matter how often he has done it, you should thank him just as often.

orten.

1.1 Ola, Random Lake, Wis.—A boy should show courtesy and respect by being properly dressed if he makes a Sunday evening cail, and you did well to treat your careless caller coldly. Only we would see that he knew why we did so. (2) Your writing and spelling are very good indeed, and we wish all the letters we receive made so creditable an appearance.

Poultry Farming For Women (CONTINUED PROM PAGE 15.)

sium, add a tablespoonful of baking soda to every quart of water. Grit is important; sand is not sharp or large enough to do the necessary work of masticat-quart of water. Grit is important; sand is not sharp or large enough to do the necessary work of masticating.

E. S.—The yellow spots in the mouth and the offensive breath, are unmistakable symptoms of roup. The spots in the mouth or throat might be a cankerous cold only, and the sores on the comb and wattles merely retarded circulation. But the bad odor with breath is an unmistakable sign of roup, which is a most contagious disease, and may affect the whole flock, unless great care is taken to prevent the contagion spreading. As this is the time of the year when colds and roup are prevalent, I am going to repeat some of the advice I have given in this column before, as prevention is much easier than cure when things are taken in time. I want you to understand that every ordinary cold may develop into roup if not checked at once. I beg of you to watch your fowls at the first sign of watery eyes, sneezing, coughing or heavy breathing, to remove the affilicted birds to a clean coop in some sheltered outhouse far removed from the other poultry, and keep them in strict quarantine while doctoring. As all forms may be roup, treat them for that disease without waiting to diagnose the case. Spray the bird's nostrils, eyes, mouth and throat three times a day with a strong solution of permanganate of potassium in a quart of water, and for use, dilute one teaspoonful of permanganate of potassium in a quart of water, and for use, dilute one teaspoonful of permanganate of potassium in a quart of water, and for use, dilute one teaspoonful of between the with three of water. If dioxogen or peroxide is used, one half teaspoonful to every half cup of water. If you have no atomizer or syringe, strip a wing feather to within an inch of the tip, dip it into the solution, and swab out the bird's throat and mouth, and bathe the nostrils and eyes with a clean, soft cloth saturated with the lotion. Cover the bottom of the coop with plenty of clean, chopped hay. Clean out every day. Feed on light nourishing food. Stale bread steeped in disinfected if weather will permit, and every precau-tion taken to kill the contagion before it becomes epidemic.

E. L.—To lay eggs in the winter, hens must have animal and vegetable food, as well as a balanced ration of grain. The method of feeding used by the Kansas and Missouri Experiment Stations should be successful in your locality.

Mrs. F. R.—When chickens fail to feather or grow, it is usually due to want of animal food, but sometimes the parent stock is to blame. If the old birds are much inbred, or composed of mixed breeds, chicks are liable to be slow in developing. Try giving them skim-milk to drink, and a mash feed once a day, adding about a tablespoonful of oil meal to every quart of ground grain. I gave formulas for lice powder and liquid in one of the spring numbers.

To be Beautiful"

Get Rid of All Pimples, Blackheads and Skin Eruptions. Purify the Blood With Stuart's Calcium Wafers.

TRIAL PACKAGE MAILED FREE.

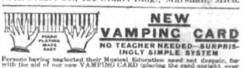

Calcium Wafers Surely Do Give Stuart's a Lovely Complexion.

The reason why Stuart's Calcium Wafers beautify the skin is their natural tendency to seek the surface.

The wonderful calcium sulfide is one of the natural constituents of the human body. You must have it to be healthy. It enriches the blood, invigorates skin health, dries up the pimples and boils, eczema and blotches, enables new skin of fine texture to form and become clear, pinkish, smooth as velvet and refined to the point of loveliness and beauty. This is "how to be beautiful." Stop using creams, lotions, powders and bleaches which merely hide for the moment. Get a 50-cent box of Stuart's Calcium Wafers at any drug store today.

And if you wish to give them a trial write the F. A. Stuart Co., 455 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

Persons having neglected their Musical Solvention need not despuir, with the aid of our new VAMPING CARD (placing the eard upright the plano keys), you can at once Vamp away to thousands of Songrade, Walterson, Ray Time, etc., etc., equal to a Prefessional Musician, aids, Walterson, Ray Time, etc., etc., equal to a Prefessional Musician knowledge of music is required. After using it a few times, you knowledge of music is required. After using it a few times, you had of the Vamping Card entirely. Enowiness of mone is reduced.

All the Vamping Card entirely. The price ship to dispense with the sid of the Vamping Card entirely. The price this very clever invention is only 15 cts. postpaid.

JOHNSON SMITH & CO., Dept. 4, 54 W. Lake St., CHICAGO.

CARDS, Dice, Magic Goods, Novelties. Catalog Free. D. M. NH VTHE Co., Newark, Ma

MONEY Made quickly by smart men.
T. ARTOL Co., 115 Nassau St., N Y.

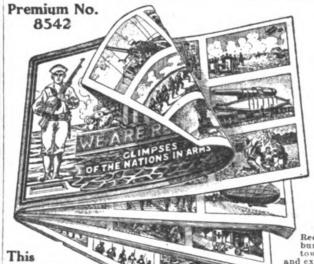

How Many Words Can You Make ANDEOYRS

Realistic! Thrilling!

This puzzle is a sure prize winner—absolutely everyone in this club wins a prize. It is not hard, either—just a little ingenuity and skill. The puzzle is to get as many words as possible out of the letters herewith given. Use only the letters given and only as many times as they appear in this ad. For instance, the letter Y appears three times, so in all your words you must not use Y more than three times. It is not necessary that you use in another, you cannot use Y in any other word, as you have already used it as many times as it appears in this advertisement. It is not necessary that you use up all the letters. The puzzle looks easy and simple, but if you can make as many as twelve words, send in your list at once, as the person winning first prize may not have more than that many words.

OUR OFFER We are the largest magazine publishers in the west and are conducting this big "everybody wins" word building and prize contest in contest in contest in contest in contest for each word you make. To the person having the most votes in the contest for each word you make. To the person having the premiums of all kinds, too numerous to mention in this advertisement. NOTICE: Every new club member of his most over a beautiful Genuines Gold Filled Signest Ring, guaranteed for S years free and engraved with shelf initial contest or each word your share of the Filled Signest Ring, guaranteed for S years free and engraved with shelf initial contest or was the restored by the prize in the filled Signest Ring, guaranteed for S years free and engraved with shelf initial contest or each word your share of the Filled Signest Ring, guaranteed for S years free and engraved with shelf initial contest or was person having the premiums of all kinds, too numerous to mention in this advertisement. NOTICE: Every new club member this month also receives a beautiful Genuines Gold Filled Signest Ring, guaranteed for S years free and engraved with shelf initial contest or word of the prizes, each tring contestant will receive the prize ti

CAPPER CONTEST CLUB, 425 Capper Building, TOPEKA, KANSAS

Great Illustrated Book Shows You War As The Camera Sees It!

Pictures Of The Great War And Our Country's Preparedness! More Than Two Hundred Wonderful Photographic Illustrations Of The Battle-Fields Of Europe And Views Of Our Own Army And Navy Now

Taking Part In The Gigantic Struggle!

Not pictures drawn from the imagination of some artist—but real photographs, finished in natural colors, showing with appalling vividness scenes of actual fighting in the trenches, the monster siege guns, giant Zeppelins, scouting biplanes, dreaded "tanks" or armored motor cars deadly submarines and submarine chasers, the dead left on the battle field the wounded and captured ruins of bombarded forts and villages—and last but not leas' Uncle Sam's own brave soldiers and marines who are now training to enter the great conflict in the cause of humanity, justice and freedom.

Almost as if it were happening before yees, this wonderful book of over two hundred war pictures shows you British, Canadian, French, Belgian and German troops and artillery in action, the bombardment and defence of Antwerp, the battle of the Marne, Russian Cossacks on the march, flights of the great German dirighles and French and British air scouts, anti-aircraft guns bringing down hostife aeroplanes, Red Cross nurses caring for the wounded, bomeless Belgian refugees, German prisoners burying their own dead in France, execution of spies, ruins of once beautiful cathedrals, towns, forts and bridges after bombardment, and many other views equally as interesting and exciting and all taken with the camera so that they are absolutely true in every detail. And ship, at rifle and gun practise, bayonet charges, trench digging, field artillery and coast defense work, diffigults and biplane sconting together with views of some of Uncle Sam's newest and biggest battle-ships, submarines and submarine destroyers.

We will send you this wonderfully interesting war book of over two hundred pictures with the story of each picture told beneath it in a few well-chosen words, if you will accept the following special

Club Offer: For two one-year subscriptions to Comport at 25 cents each, we will send you this illustrated war book free by mail postpaid. Premium No. 8542.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine

No means of support. Send her some cheer. Edward L. Potts, Owassa, Ala. Crippled for many years. Give him a boost. Mrs. Laura Davis, Pineville, Miss. Invalid. Send her some cheer. Bessie Durham, Draper, N. C. Seventen years of age. Helpless from childhood. Right hand and right leg atrophied. Would appreciate second-hand clothing, and any assistance you care to send her. Mrs. Laura Davis, Pineville, Miss. Invalid. Send her some cheer. Mrs. Lizzie Martin, Dodson, Va. Widow with one child. Needy and worthy. Send her some cheer. Well recommended. Miss Helen Rudder, Solo, Ark, Inyalid. Send her some cheer. Mrs., Anna B. Bearns. Chebanse, Box 38, Ill. Invalid. Would appreciate cheery letters. Ella Raby, 926 Maryville Ave., St. Louis, Mo. Shut-in. Would appreciate cheery letters.

Ave., St. Louis, Mo. Shut-in. Would appropriate the cheery letters.

Won't you pass on just a little bit of Thanksgiving cheer to the poor, afflicted souls listed above? God has been kind to a great many of you during the past year. Here is a chance for you to show your appreciation of His great love and goodness. Open your hearts and pocketbooks and be worthy of your creator for once.

Lovingly yours,

Uncle Charlie

Comfort's League of Cousins

Comfort's League of Cousins

The League of Cousins was founded as a means of bringing the scattered members of COMFORT'S immense circle of readers into one big, happ family. Its aim is to promote a feeling of kinship and elation pamong sill readers. It was primarily started as a clieft file among sill readers, it was primarily started as elected file among sill readers. It was primarily started as elected file among sill readers, it was primarily started as elected file among sill readers of COMFORT'S family, only but those of more muture years clamered for admittance so persistently that it was deemed advisable to impose no age limit; thus all are eligible to admittance into our League provided they conform to its rules and are animated by the child spirit.

Membership is restricted to COMFORT subscribers and costs thirty cents, only five cents more than the regular subscription to COMFORT which is included. The thirty cents makes you a member of the League and gives you an attractive League button with the letters "C. L. O. G." a handsome certificate of membership with your name angrossed thereon, and the privilege of having your name in the letter list, also a paid-in-advance subscription to COMFORT. You continue a League member as long as you keep up your subscription to COMFORT. There are no annual dues, so after you have once joined all you have to do to keep in good standing is to keep your subscription to COMFORT paid up.

Please observe carefully the following directions which explain exactly

How to become a Momber

Send thirty cents to COMFORT'S Subscription Department. Augusta, Mains, with your request to be admitted into COMFORT'S LEAGUE OF GOUSINS, and you will at once receive the League button and your membership certificate and number; you will also receive GOMFORT for one year if you are used to be subscripted and number; you will be received used a ready a subscriber your abscription will be remewed used a resident a subscriber your will be remewed used a resident and the year for your date of expiration.

On if your subscription is aiready paid in advance, you can take a freind's one-year subscription at 25 cents and send it in with five cents of your own, thirty cents in all, with your request for membership, and we will send you the button and membership certificate, and send GOMFORT to your friend for one year. League subscriptions do not count in premium clubs.

NEVER apply for membership without enclosing thirty cents to include a new subscription or a renewal.

The League numbering over forty thousand members, undoubtedly is the greatest society of young people on carth, it costs but thirty cents to join, and that gives you at least a one-year subscription to GOMFORT also, without extra cost. Never in the world's history was so much given for so little. Never could thirty cents be invested to such advantage, and bring such splendid returns. Don't hesistate, Join us at once and induce your friends to do likewise.

All those League members who desire a list of the cousing residing in the several states, can secure the same by sending a stamped addressed envelope and five cents in stamps to Neille Rutherford, 1299 Park Place, Brooklyn, New York, grand secretary.

Special Notice

Never write a subscription or renewal order or application for membership in the body of a letter. Write your subscription or renewal and membership application on a separate sheet of pager, separate from your letter. We have to put all subscription orders on our subscription file at once; so if it is written on the same sheet as your letter, the whole letter has to go on to the subscription file at once and thus can receive no attention from Unele Charlie.

Never send subscriptions to Uncle Charlie nor to the Secretary of the League; they bother him and cause confusion and delay.

Address all letters to COMFORT. Augusta.

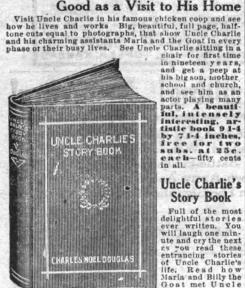

Address all letters to COMFORT, Augusta, Maine, and they will promptly reach the head of the department for which they are intended.

The Best Christmas Present for Young or Old is Uncle Charlie's Poems!

Christmas will be here before you know it. Santa Claus is already preparing for his annual trip. Don't waste money on expensive presents. Uncle Charlie's gorgeous book of poems fills every need, it is an exquisitely beautiful 160-page volume of screamingly funny verse, bound in Illac silk cloth. It contains the funniest recitations ever written. Read "When

UNCLE CHARLIE'S LIFE & IN PICTURES

Uncle Charlie's Picture Book Good as a Visit to His Home

Uncle Charlie's Story Book

Full of the most delightful stories ever written. You will laugh one minute and cry the next ze you read these entrancing stories of Uncle Charlie's life. Read how Maria and Billy the Goat met Uncle Maria and Billy the Goat met Unele Charlie; read "Lily, pages of mirth and merriment, pathos and tears, illustrated and beautifully bound in silk cloth, stiff covers, gold topped. Free for four subs at 25c. each—one dollar in all.

Also bound in heavy fancy blue paper covers for only two subs at 25c. each—fifty cents in all. Ideal birthday presents. COMFORT'S greatest premium bar gains. Work for them today Secure one or both of these superb souvenirs of this remarkable man who devotes his time and talents to the service of humanity Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Note. Full particulars of how to secure Uncle Charlie's spiendia poems and song book will be found at the end of the League of Cousins Department.

Continued from the constitution of the continued from the constitution of the continued from the continued f

Uncle Charlie's Song Book Makes A Dandy Christmas Gift!

You must have music in the house at Christmas time. Uncle Charlie's song book contains twenty-eight of the dandlest songs ever written; songs for all occasions; among them the prettiest Christmas carol (this is just the thing for church or parlor) ever written. This is not a mere pamphlet but a beautiful song folio with superb cover on which appears splendid half tone pictures of Uncle Charlie. Cheap at five dollars. Has complete music for voice and plano; a superb present for a musical or non-musical friend. This wonderful book free for a club of only two one year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25c each. Both books free for a club of six. Greatest premium bargains ever offered. Work for them today.

The Masked Bridal

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 12.)

Let us slip over the six months following, to find this little family pleasantly settled in an ele-gant villa a few miles up the Hudson. It is replete with every luxury that money can

It is replete with every luxury that money can purchase.

The choicest in art of every description decorates its walls, and pleasant, sunny rooms, while in a spacious studio, opening out upon a wide lawn, may be seen numerous unfinished pieces of statuary, upon which the crippled but ambitious master of the house has already begun to work, although his strength will permit him to do but little at a time.

Glulia, or "Madame Correlli," as she is now known, is the presiding genius of this ideal spot, and she fills her place with both dignity and grace: while her watchful care and never-failing patience and cheerfulness are beginning to assert their charm upon the man to whom she is devoting herself, as is noticeable in his many efforts to make life pleasant to her, in his fre-

$360 FORD AUTO FIRST GRAND PRIZE

In the picture are hidden a number of faces. How many can you find? Some are looking right at you, others show only the side of the face—you'll find them upside down and every way. Mark each face you find with a pencil, clip out picture, send to us with name and address NOW. We will give away a $380.00, 1917 Model, Ford Touring Car, as First Grand Prize, and Thousands of Dollars in Cash Bewards, Prizes and Special Premiums. Each worker gets a prize. Solve the puzzle, If you can find as many as FIVE FACES we will send you immediately

1000 Free Votes

We will also give away several 1918 model Coaster Brake $40.00 Bleycles. These will be given free and extra, regardless of who gets the Ford Auto. Someone will get automobile. WHY NOT YOU;

THESE FREE
old plated Lavalliers and Neckeh ar of Pierceless Ear Bobs; Gold pla xpansion Bracelet with Im, Was COLUMBIA NOVELTY CO. DEPT, 73 EAST BOSTON, MASS.

quent appeals to her judgment and approval of his work, and the courtesy which he invariably accords her.

Ino has grown, although he is still a beautiful child—very bright and forward for his age, and a source of great enjoyment to his father, who, even now, has begun to direct his tiny hands in the use of the mallet and chisel.

Bulling

SCHOOL BOX

FREE

with Fountain Pen, Pen, els, services of Colored Cards and Xn Bulling Is set of Colored Cards and Xn Bulling MFG. CO., 30.

It was more than a year after her marriage that Edith and her mother heard of the death of Gerald Goddard.

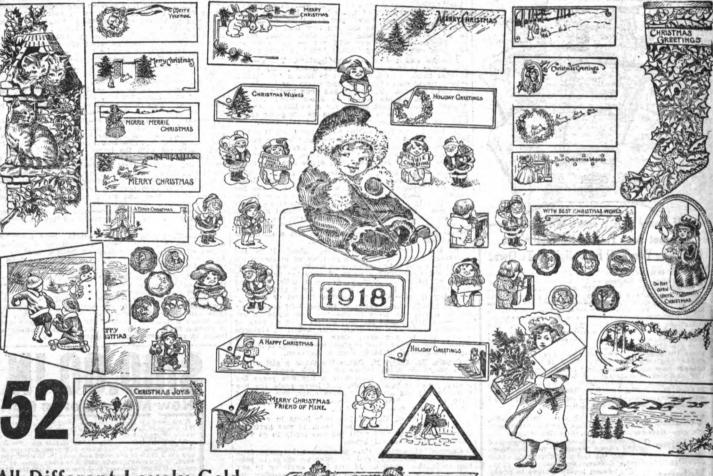

Not many weeks later the New York Star contained the following announcement:

"MARRIED—On Wednesday, the 18th, the Honorable Willard Livermore to Mrs. Isabel Stewart, both of New York."

Big Package Beautiful Christmas Novelties!

All Different Lovely Gold And Color Embossed Christmas Enclosure Cards, Folders, Cut-Outs, Seals, Stickers, Tags Etc.,

All Sent Postpaid To You For Only One Subscription

Also An Exquisite Christmas Calendar alendar For 1918!

All the latest new style Christmas novelties, beautifully printed and embossed on superfine paper in gold, purple, crimson, holly-green and all the colors of the rainbow. The use of these dainty, appropriate emblems of holiday cheer is now almost universal—everyone realizes how much these refined little cards, tags, seals, stickers, etc. add to the value of the Christmas gift. Even though it may be only a little remembrance these bright colored tokens of joy and happiness show that loving thought has gone into it and care and pains have been taken with it and this knowledge changes the plainest, most inexpensive present into a gift well-nigh priceless.

The ordinary small town stores do not carry these strictly high-grade Christmas novelty packages—they are to be secured only in the large cities and at a high price. So for the benefit of COMFORT readers we had this special assortment made up expressly for us by one of the largest and best known Christmas novelty manufacturers in America. And in order to give the greatest value possible we had them add to the assortment a most beautiful 1918 Christmas Calendar 4½ inches long lithographed in no less than five colors on heavy white coated specially prepared paper. This Calendar alone is worth all that we ask you to send us for the whole collection—and you will say so too when you see it.

you see it.

Now let us tell you what this big assortment contains:
One Extra Large Colored and Holly Embossed "Christmas Stocking" Enclosure Card.

Five Large Elegantly Embossed and Colored Christmas Enclosure

Five Large Eleganty Embossed and Colored Christmas Enclosure Cards.

Ten Medium Embossed and Colored and Decorated Christmas Tags.

Two Large Handsomely Colored and Decorated Christmas Tags.

Four Medium Colored and Decorated Christmas Tags.

One Extra Large Colored and Holly Embossed Christmas Book

One Beautiful Extra Large Colored and Embossed Christmas Novelty Cut-out Card. Two Dainty Colored and Embossed Novelty Cut-out Christmas nt-out Card.

Dainty Colored and Embossed Novelty Cut-out Christmas

Folders.

Ten Beautifully Colored and Embossed Santa Claus, Evergreen, Poinsettia, and Christmas Bells Gummed Seals.

One Special Large Oval Illustrated Gold Embossed and Colored Christmas Gummed Seal with the words "Do Not Open Until Christmas."

Five Novelty Santa Claus Cut-out Christmas Gummed Seals, Em-

Ten Cute Novelty Children Cut-out Christmas Gummed Seals.
One Artistic, Beautifully Embossed and Finished Christmas Calendar for 1918.

dar for 1918,

All the Enclosure Cards, Tags, and Folders carry a cheery Christmas Greeting such as "Merry Christmas," With Best Christmas Wishes," "Christmas Greetings," "Merry Yuletide," "Christmas Joys," and others equally as pleasing and apropriate. These are to be tied to or enclosed inside your Christmas packages to bear a loving message with the gift. And all the gaily colored gummed Stamps and Seals you will use to seal and decorate the outside of your Christmas letters and packages as well. You will be surprised and delighted to see how much they add to the attractiveness of your gifts to say nothing of the fun in "doing them up."

the attractiveness of your gifts to say nothing of the fun in "doing them up."

And don't forget that in addition to all of these lovely cards, seals, tags, stickers, etc., we are also going to send an exquisitely embossed and multi-colored Christmas Calendar for 1918, a large handsome holly decorated Book Mark and two large Christmas Novelty Cut-out Folders which are as unique as they are pleasing. When you first look at one of them it is to all appearances a handsome Christmas Post Card and the other a very attractive four-page Booklet, when presto—a flip of the finger, and the startling transformation takes place, causing the figures and designs to stand out in bold relief, and in a life-like manner that is truly wonderful. These cute novelties are something entirely new this season and they make very attractive center-table or mantlepiece ornaments as they are large and stand without support.

This splendid collection will furnish your whole family with all the Holiday

This splendid collection will furnish your whole family with all the Holiday Gift Decorations needed for this Christmas and they will surely add to the pleasure of your giving and the gifts themselves will be all the more appreciated by the recipients. We purchased a large quantity of these Novelty Packages but even at that we fear we have not enough to go around so take no chances of being disappointed but send in your order at once. Also Christmas will be here almost before you are aware of it, and you want to make sure of receiving your package in time so that you can get your Christmas packages allready before Christmas Day.

We will send you this package of beautiful Christmas Novelties including the Handsome Christmas Calendar for 1918 upon the terms of the following

FREE OFFER For one one-year's subscription (not your own) to COM-beautiful Christmas Novelties free by mail postpaid. Premium No. 7931.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

REE 42 PIECES WORTH STO TO EACH READER OF THIS ADVERTISEMENT

one to whom we have given these dishes is delighted, re forty-two beautiful pieces with delicate pink and lorings true to Natiors. Distinctively handscome and er-s an heiricon. Every piece edged in gold. Each piece decorated with your initial in gold or the emblem of sternity-Masonic, Knights of Pythias, Woodmen, Odd etc. or plain.

We give this fall set of Wild Rose Art China Dishes, every lece full size to you for telling your friends and neighbors about

It is TRULY the perfect Furniture Polish subricant, Cleaner and Brightner, Rust Freventive and Leather Preserver. This National standby nakes cleaning a pleasure in over two million domes. It is so well known that is sells on sight, or get this lovely forty-two piece dinner set cash commissions simply order and sell twenty light bottles of this wonderful oil at 25 cents each, clean the 3.00 collected within 30 days and the et is yours. Send no money. We trust you, and ske it back if you can't sell it. Order today (Please

The Kibler Co. Dept. Al, Indianapolis, Ind.

Premium No. 6462

For A Club Of Two:

Lions, Tigers, Bears and all kinds of Wild Assimals, Home Seenes, Domestic Pets and Mappy Childhood Spay. Here is something as quod as a circus food Days. Here is something an indestructible, new style flows, and with twe give you free a big collection of 100 views of home of these domestic pets, farm of the most delightful and entertaining of the Arctic and tropical countries, enters, being is and girls need not be obliged to hunt for something to comply that does not display the manusch, instructed and out of mischief. Aside from the pleasure they will derive than because it will give them an ever-enting, joyfuler active minds indoors with one of these Scopes at hand because it will give them an ever-enting, joyfuler and the fifty beautiful seenes, of home life, the fifty sextling animal views will furnish them with scope. Any boy or girl would be delighted to have one of these wonderful Stereoscopes together with the isome with it and knowing this we have purchased alarging and exciting views that come with it and knowing this we have purchased along out real and life-like when looked atthrough his proper advances.

In Treated, Ralls County, Mo.—Your letter is similar to several others this month. Why does a father solve when defected is treated the pleasure they will derive that no proper liberties. They form the flifty beautiful seenes of home life, the flifty exciting animal views will furnish them with and showed wonderful Stereoscopes together with the big collection of 100 entertaining and exciting Views that come with it and knowing this we have purchased along our reaggement. He will derive where educational facilities have been denied. Don't make "date." If you are invited to go anywhere be fdir and go as you promise. And expect any man to keep his promise to you are invited to go anywhere and then stay away for no reason, but to spit another.

Seene domestic pets, farm happy of the make a drender of the would not have young man, I would have nothing to do with

In order that each cousin may be answered in this column, no cousin must ask more than three questions in one Month.

HANKSGIVING is not a day; it is a habit. We cannot be thankful on Thanksgiving Day unless we have been learning how every other day in the year. There are some simple rules: Walk on the some simple rules: Walk on the in the best room in the house; think about your friends, not your enemies; talk about your good luck, not your bad. These are some of the ways of acquiring the spirit of cheerfulness which is the only soil in which the flower Thanksgiving' will grow." Thus writes a certain Rev. James M. Farr, and I hope all "my girls." for that's how I think of you, have acquired that habit. If you haven't I want you to start in this very minute and find something for which to be thankful. Just now, I am thankful that I can be of help to some of you in the following answers to your questions.

B., Rogersville, Tenn.—And so you have a good notice of the property of the control of the property of the property swers to your questions.

B., Rogersville, Tenn.—And so you have a good notion to kill yourself because your sweetheart has to go to war. Don't you think such a brave boy deserves a more patriotic and braver sweetheart? I do, so be a good sport and do all you can to help him by cheery letters and all the other things you can do. Of course I'm just as sorry as can be for you and all other girls who are called upon to loan their sweethearts to Uncle Sam, but I'm proud because the most of you are doing it so bravely.

Sammy, Lindsay, Cal.—Goodness me, here's a girl of twenty-four who says she has no pride in her personal appearance and is very fat and sloppy looking and wonders if that is why she has no beaux. Shouldn't wonder a bit, Sammy, if that were the very reason. Better read our Pretty Girls' Department after this.

Lovesick, Greeley, Nebr.—Forget that bold, bad man

Lovesick, Greeley, Nebr.—Forget that bold, bad man you think you love, for if he loved you he would find some way to tell you so. Aren't there any nice young men in Greeley?

Blue Eyes, Nara Visa, N. Mex.—I don't think it was so very wrong for you to kiss a soldier good by when he was leaving for the war, though, ordinarily, I don't approve of kissing unless an engagement exists between the two people.

Lonesome, Sulphur Springs, Texas.—Don't you think you have been too nice to your would-be beaux and thus frightened them away. A reasonable amount of neglect does a man good and keeps him interested.

neglect does a man good and keeps him interested.

Two Blue-eyed Chums, Grenada, Miss.—The fact that you are two years older than your fiancees would-n't matter so much if aforesaid fiancees were twenty-five years old instead of nineteen. Too bad they aren't a little younger and then you could adopt them. Wait till they grow up. (2) If common usage makes anything proper, then it is the most proper thing in the world to seal the engagement with a kiss. But don't be too generous with your kisses before you are engaged if you want to be engaged.

F. Hull, lows—Fornteen years all said seals and the seals are the seals and the seals are the seals are the seals and the seals are the se don't be too generous with your kisses before you are engaged if you want to be engaged.

F., Hull, Iowa.—Fourteen years old and wants to marry a 'feller' of eighteen who earns the munificent sum of one dollar a day by cleaning the streets, and says her parents put her to bed without any supper when they learned she had been out with him. That's right and I hope they don't forget a good sound spanking. You are years and years too young to think of marrying and even if you were old enough, one dollar a day wouldn't pay for the proverbial 'bread and cheese,' and kisses alone aren't very satisfying when one is hungry. You should be studying instead of thinking of young men.

Broken-hearted, Santa Cruz, Cal.—Poor little girl, and I'm so sorry for you, but if the young man says he does not love you as he did and does not care to marry you, you can't force him to and you wouldn't want to, I know. Perhaps by the time he returns from the war he will be more appreciative of your love and look at matters in a different light. Don't let him know how much you want him and if you write don't let your letters show how much you love him. I'd like to hear from you again.

Ambitious, Roseburg, Idaho.—Eighteen years old

I'd like to hear from you again.

Ambitious, Roseburg, Idaho.—Eighteen years old and wants to leave home on a lecture tour (all by her lonesome) to earn money for musical training, and her parents won't let her. I admire her spirit but do not approve of her plan. Can't you compromise with those obdurate parents of yours, Ambitious, and tell them you'll stay home half of the year and play the role of most dutiful daughter, if they'll let you go to school the remaining half. Be diplomatic and don't fuss about it and it will get you more.

I. G. Leslie Ark. Severteen years eld.

I. G., Leslie, Ark.—Seventeen years old, writes from school, and wants to know if she should marry a boy of twenty-two who broke his engagement with another girl for her, and closes her letter "Yours efficiently." My advice to you, dearle, is to stick to school till you know the difference between "efficiently" and "affectionately." If breaking engagements is a habit with that fickle young man of yours, I suppose you'd better marry him before he breaks his engagement with you for another girl, but I fear you'll be sorry if you do. Walt a few years.

Billy Mannington W. V. V.

Walt a few years.

Billy, Mannington, W. Va.—Your letter was very sensible—though a few words were spelled incorrectly—and while I'm very much opposed to such young people marrying. If the veung man is all you say, and is fairly sure of keeping his present position, you might do worse, particularly since you are not happy at home. Perhaps you'd better wait a little longer but if you do marry him don't let him grow ahead of and away from you in a mental sense. Then the chances are not so great of his growing tired of you.

Curly Locks. Waynesburg, Ky.—I am sorry to tell you, young lady, that the man doesn't love you if he says he also loves another. Love isn't that sort of thing, and the man who makes such an admission is merely playing with you both. The quicker you are rid of him the better.

Club Offer. For two one-year subscriptions to Club Offer. For two one-year subscriptions to Club Offer. For two one-year subscriptions to Marry a man if the idea of the marriage is revolting size for family use, the handles are handled by the state of the marry and the beautiful Daisy design which is now in the first place in listening to your support of the beautiful Daisy design which is now mother's entreaties for you to marry this man. I the bowls of the tesspoons and tablespoons and t erong, but think what a life you and the man will cad if you marry him without love and with loath-

Blue Eyes, Colorado Springs, Colo.—It is just as all right to correspond with two or three men friends as it is with one, if your mother is willing.

In case you haven't found that "something" to be thankful for, here it is: Be thankful that I didn't scold as much as some of you deserved. Here's one little hint thouch—the best way to be thankful is to make some other person more thankful. That isn't difficult, is it? Try it and tell me how it worked. And now good by until next month.

Cotsis Marion.

Comfort Sisters' Corner

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 23.)

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 28.)

I am badly crippled with rheumatism and cannot do much for him or the five little ones I have left to care for. My husband has been in the Military Hospital since last April. My son's address is, Frivate Guy Englesby, No. 888251, 15th Reserve Bat. B. Co. Army Post Office, London, England.

And would some one be kind enough to send me old books or papers, or reading matter of any kind that will help pass away so many lonely hours, and I will pass them on to someone else, or return the kindness if I can.

I hope this letter will be printed for the sake of my poor, homesick, solder laddle.

Mas. H. W. Englesby.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON:

I have just finished reading Comfort and thought perhaps some of the sisters could help me.

I was an only child, and given to be selfish and think only of myself, and when I was older it was a constant fight to keep down my selfishness, but I finally won out, and when my first baby, a girl, was born, I determined she would not be an only child. She is now nine years old, I have had four children since she was born, but lost them all at birth. Now the question arises: Must I adopt a child to rear with mine? My husband and I both favor this plan, but our friends and relatives object seriously, saying that there would always be first in our thoughts. I have tried hard to keep my child from being selfish. I have punished and talked, but to no avail. We live on a farm just outside of a village and our nearest neighbors are indulgent relatives, who have no children and "spoil" Camele in spite of my protestations. I have her little friends come and stay with her and I am with them as much as possible and watch Camele. She seems to care very little for any of her young friends and will invariably make them angry and drive them away. I know that Camele hasn't a bad disposition naturally, for when there are no children around she is as sweet a child as can be found, and because of this our relatives do not believe her to be selfish with her little friends.

At school she is the same, so I have been told, and no amount of persuasion and punishment on my part can correct her.

Please sisters, help me to decide which is best to do, raise my child to be despised by all or adopt a child about her age and rear them together, making Camele share equal with the child. My husband and I feel that we could learn to love another child, and not show the difference even if we did feel it. Sisters, discuss this in these columns.

Love to all readers.

Perplexed Mother. It may be that the letter

Perplexed Mother.

Perplexed Mother. It may be that the letter and picture which we published in the Sisters' Corner last month will help you decide about adopting a little girl as an antidote for your Camele's growing selfishness. If you and your husband are sure you can love another child as well as your own, go ahead and adopt one and let your relatives and friends talk till they are blue in the face, if it makes them happier by so doing. That's what I'd do. Perhaps if you took a tiny baby its very helplessness would appeal to Camele's love and sympathy and banish selfishness forever.—Ed.

Best Ways of Doing Things Around The Home

Take tea leaves that have been used and put them around potted plants. It makes them grow.

When peeling onions hold a cork between the teeth and the eyes will not become affected.

SUDIE HALL, Goldsboro, N. C.

To keep lemons fresh, put in sour milk. Change about once a week.

Nowadays when one must economize, here is a way to use rice and bread scraps. Just mix together as you would any bread pudding and serve with a sauce.

Mrs. Earl Weaver, Colville, Wash. We bought enough brown sheeting to put around our porch, which was already screened in, instead of canvas and it is just as good and not nearly as expensive.

Always buy colored goods that won't fade and shrink before using: To do this, fold the cloth, put it in a pan and pour boiling salted water over it. Dry and press.

(Charlie's Wife, Georgia.

Remedies

Tansy as a tea is good to expel worms. Sweet Sixteen, Tennessee.

Burns.—Apply kerosene oil. This is also good for neect bites and stings.

CHAPPED HANDS.—To one pint of cider vinegar add one ounce of saltpeter. Apply after washing the hands.

CRAMP COLIC.—Dissolve one teaspoon of sugar in a glass of hot water. Repeat if necessary. Water must be very hot.

SORE THEOAT.—Gargle the throat several times a day with lemon juice and swallow a small portion while gargling.

while gargling.

ULCERS.—The bark of the root of wild Indigo is valuable in case of ulcers, used as an ointment, poultice or a wash.

DROPSY.—Wash and peel garden beets, cut in thin slices and dry. Take a few of the chips, steep them to make a tea and drink this several times a day.

DANDRUFF REMOVER.—Mix lard with yolk of egg and rub well into scalp. Let stay over night and wash off in the morning.

Mrs. Virgir Hollis, Trevat, Texas.

INDIGESTION .- Drink half a glass of Yellow Root tea

Quick Beauty

The Chaiming Movie Favorite Whose Felf Made Beauty Has Become World Famous.

For Promoting Hair Growth

HE open secret of really forcing hair to grow is the proper stimulation, not mately of the scalp, but of the hair roots. This is done scientifically, and in a really wonderful way too, by a mixture which you can easily make up yourself at home, consisting of one ounce of istancinol, exeting not more than fifty cents at the drug store, and a pint of bay rum or a half pint each of water and also hol. This makes up a full pint of the best had grower it is possible to make and costs much less than a dollar.

To Have a Spotless Complexion

You will find that the sallowness, red spots for the and other blumistes of the face, at ms, here, in the and shoulders will promptly disappear, and to stee place you may have as exquisite a complexion as concounted ever hope for, by simply mixing together one ounce of zintone costing about lifty cents at the dring store, two table monofuls of giverine and a plat of water. Apply frequently and literally as a cream

You May Look Years Younger

Remarkable success has been of tained in removing crows' feet, deep and shallow wankles, lines of age and sagging cheeks by the use of the following formals. It makes the skin more vigorous and plump and the change to your'ifainess is straking. Samply mix two ounces of eptol, which will cost about fifty cents at your druggist's, with half pint of water and two ounces of glycerine. Use t is every day.

Splendid Shampoo

Splendid Shampoo

Never forget that the scalp must be kept cleen of scurf and dandruff to insure healthful hair. A shampoo extraordinary for its cleansing properties is a mixture of a teaspoonful of eggol and half a cup of water. You can get at any drug store a peckage of eggol, enough to give you at least twelve splendid shampoos, for twenty five cents. This shampoo outclasses mere soap and water, and leaves the hair easier to do up glossy and full of life.

Best Way to Treat Superfluous Hair

Superfluous hair should be dissolved away, instead of burned off, as is now so commonly done. The only thing I have ever known that would "dissolve" superfluous hair is simple sulfo solution. By applying this, even the stiffest hairs on very tendor portions of the body are removed without leaving the slightest mark, red spots or irritation. It is ideal. The simple sulfo solution will cost you one dollar at any drug store.

Miss Suratt offers to send to any reader direct any of the articles named above, if there is any difficulty in obtaining them from the drug store. In such case send your name and address, enclosing the price, to "Secretary to Valeska Suratt," Suite 471, Thompson Bldg., Chicago, mentioning the articles you want.

SPECIAL FREE

A 50c Bottle of the New Exquisite Creation, "Valeska Suratt Perfume"

Above all things, I want you to try what is now admitted to be the utmost in face powder loveliness, extraordinary in fineness and smoothness and practically invisible, free from all chalkiness. As a special introductory offer, a 50c bottle of the new perfumer's triumph, "Valeska Surati Perfume" will be sent free with every order for "Valeska Surati Pace Powder," in white, flesh or brunette tints, 50c a box. Send price for as many boxes as you want, and add to it 10c to cover postage on the Perfume, to Secretary to Valeska Suratt, 471 Thompson Bidg., Chicago. You'll get a surprise.

several times during the day.

Mrs. Oscar Land, Westminster, S. C. (CONTINUED ON PAGE 30.)

Pink Cameo Ring FREE amens are set in fine gold filled ring. Guar-nized for three years. To introduce new Ring argains, will send post paid, your asse, upon ceupt of 12c to pay advertising. The Auction Co., Dept. 401 Attleboro, Mass.

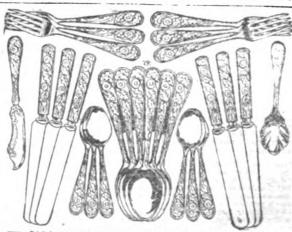

WRIST WATCH AND GAIR MFG. CO.,

26-Piece Daisy TABLE SET Premium No. 73010

For A Club Of Ten

Sent To You Prepaid

We have in the past made many offers of table ware, but this is the first time we have ever been able to offer a complete set of 26 Pieces in return for such a small club of subscriptions. And please don't think that because we are giving away this set on such liberal terms that it is plated on a brass base and consequently will change color and have that "brassy" look just as soon as the plating wears off. This Set which we offer you here is plated on a white metal base therefore each and every piece is the same color all the way through and will not show signs of wear, even after years of constant use. As shown in the above illustration there are 26 pieces in this set—6 Knives. 6 Forks, 6 Teaspoons, 6 Tablespoons, 8 ugar Shell and Butter Knife. Each piece is full regulation size for family use, the handles are handsomely embossed and decorated with the beautiful Daisy designs which is now

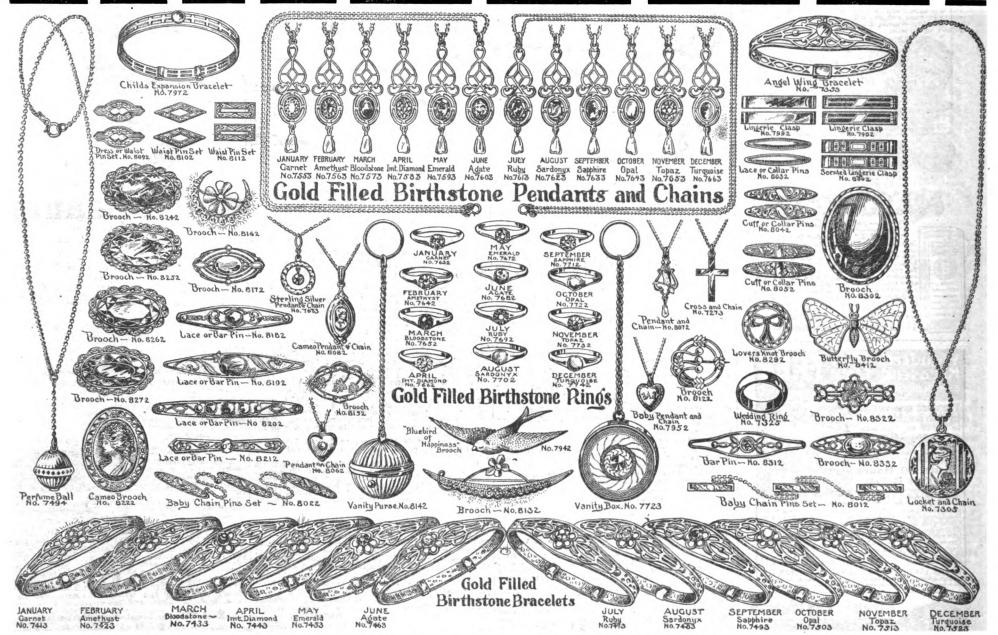

WARRANTED FOR FIVE YEARS

It is only because we buy this set in large quantities direct from the factory that we are able to secure it at a price that enables us to offer it as a premium for so few subscriptions: It is by far the greatest value we have ever offered, in fact we are so sure that it will please and satisfy all who accept this offer we are going to guarantee every Set sent out for a period of five years. We will send this beautiful 26-Piece Dalsy Set exactly as illustrated and described controlled. and satisfy all who accept this offer we are going to guarantee every Set sent out for a period of five years. We will send this beautiful 26-l'iece Daisy Set exactly as illustrated and described to any address upon the terms of the following special

Club Offer. For a club of ten one-fear subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you this 26-Piece Daisy Table Set Free by Parcel Pest prepaid. Premium No. 73010.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Now You Can Own Lovely Jewelry Without Buying It!

Beautiful Gifts In Gold And Sterling Silver! We Will Send You Your Choice Free And Prepaid In Return For A Few Subscriptions To COMFORT!

Perfume Ball. Premium No. 7494. Girls—this is the greatest jewelry novelty of the season. To be seen wearing one of these new perfume balls suggests sweetness and refinement. Chain is sterling silver, the ball has a sterling silver band and comes in blue, pink, green and lavender. To scent the ball you simply let a few drops of your favorite perfume fall on the absorbent cotton within. The delicate fragrance then escapes through the tiny openings. CLUB OFFER: We will send you one of these handsome Perfume Balls free and prepaid for four one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each. Be sure to mention color wanted.

cents each. Be sure to mention color wanted.

Child's Expansion Bracelet. Premium No. 7972. This is a handsome and popular style bracelet for the little folks. It is gold-filled, set with a genuine chip diamond, and is adjustable so that it will fit the tiny wrist perfectly. We guarantee it for five years.

CLUB OFFER: We will send you this beautiful child's bracelet free and prepaid for two one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each.

Dress or Waist Pin Sets, Premiums No. 8092, 8102, 8112. Ladies—here are three new handsome, designs in these extremely useful pin sets. They are genuine gold-filled, bright finish, beautifully engraved and come two pins to the set. Will wear for years and we guarantee them. Take your choice free on the terms of the following special CLUB OFFER: We will send you your choice of any one of these genuine gold-filled pin sets free and prevaid for two one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each. Please order by number.

Brooches, Premium Nos. 8242, 8252, 8262, 8272. The handsomest brooches worn this season, 11-2 The handsomest brooches worn this season, 11-2 inches long, set with large magnificent colored stones beautifully set off with a twisted gold border inlaid with tiny lustrous French pearls. No. 8242 is a garnet, No. 8252 a sapphire, No. 8262 an amethyst, No. 8272 a topaz. You can have your choice of colors. CLUB OFFER: We will send you any one of these handsome and stylish brooches free and prepaid for two one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each. Please order by number.

Cameo Brooch. Premium No. 8222. The ever oppular cameo head, beautifully cut, of a handsome hade of pink changing to a lighter shade on the head. This handsome brooch is in a genuine gold-The ever head. This handsome brooch is in a genuine gold-filled setting with an extra strong safety clasp on back. It is just the right size—one inch wide and one and one-half inches long. CLUB OFFER; We will send you this beautiful camee head brooch free and prepaid for two one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each.

Brooches. Premium Nos. 8172, 8152 and 8162. Three of the season's latest styles and shapes, genuine gold-filled, not too large, very refined ar dainty, suitable for all ages. No. 8172 is set with dainty, suitable for all ages. No. 8172 is set with a large handsome imitation emerald, and two small French pearls. No. 8152 is a very artistic design set with two flashing solitaires. No. 8162 is in the shape of a crescent set with thirteen flashing white solitaires and one French pearl. You could not find three prettier designs anywhere. You can have your choice of any one of them.

CLUB OFFER; We will send you any one of these three stylish brooch pins free and prepaid for two one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each. Please order by number.

Please order by number.

Lace, Veil or Bar Pins, Premium Nos. 8182, 8192, 8202. 8212. Every woman and girl has use for these handsome lace or bar pins—three or four of them are not too many to have at one time. Here are four of the prettiest designs you ever saw. No. 8182 is two inches long set with one large and two small pink jade stones. No. 8192 is two and a quarter inches long set with a large green jade stone and two brilliant solitaires. No. 8202 is two and one-half inches long set with three green jade stones and four French pearls. No. 8212 is two inches long, set with a bandsome came ohead, and two French pearls. All are gold-filled and warranted for five years.

CLUB OFFER: We will send you your choice of any one of these handsome bar pins free and prepaid for two one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each. Please order by number.

Pendant and Chain. Premium No. 8062. Gold-filled.

Pendant and Chain, Premium No. 8062. Gold-filled, cable link chain and small heart-shaped pendant set with a small French pearl—very handsome and always a popular style for young girls and children. This makes a beautiful present for "mother's girl" and one that she will always cherish.

CLUB OFFER: We will send you this fine gold-filled pendant and chain free and prepaid for two one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each.

Baby Chain Pin Sets, Premium Nos. 8022, 8012. Three dainty pins attached by a gold-filled unbreakable chain. The fronts of these pins are gold-filled and handsomely engraved. Each set is guaranteed for two years.

CLUB OFFER: We will send you either one of these baby chain pin sets free and prepaid for two one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each. Please order by number.

Vanity Purse, Premium No. 8142. One of the Vanity Purse, Premium No. 8142. One of the latest novelties, and very popular in the cities. Our illustration shows the purse closed. It opens in the middle, the two halves being joined with a hinge, and inside is a space for nickels and pennies. It is carried in the palm of the hand with the little finger slipped through the ring at the end of the chain which is four inches long. Very light and dainty and right in style. Comes in four different colors—gilt, yellow, pink and blue.

CLUB OFFER: We will send you one of these new popular coin purses free and prepaid for two one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each. Please order by number.

Please order by number.

Please order by number.

Birthstone Pendant and Chain. The most stylish and beautiful of all neck ornaments. 15-inch gold-filled chain with a gold-filled pendant set with your own birthstone and attached to the pendant is a handsome imitation baroque pearl. The stones are a solitaire and are the most perfect and beautiful imitation real gems we have ever seen. Following is a list of the twelve different stones and the month represented by each: No. 7553, January, Garnet. No. 7563. February, Amethyst. No. 7573, March, Aquamarine. No. 7583, April, Diamond. No. 7593, May, Emerald. No. 7603, June, Pearl. No. 7613, July, Ruby. No. 7623, August, Peridot. No. 7633, September, Sapphire. No. 7643, October, Opal. No. 7653, November. Topaz. No. 7663, December, Turquoise.

CLUB OFFER: We will send you a birthstone pendant and chain free and prepaid for three one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each. Please be sure to order by number and mention birthstone Wanted.

Birthstone Rings. The most popular of all ladies'

Birthstone Rings. The most popular of all ladies' and girls' rings and it is considered extremely lucky to wear one. Each ring is guaranteed 12-Karat gold-filled and is warranted for five years. The setting is the ever popular "Tiffany" style. As a Christmas, Birthday or all-the-year-round gift for wife, mother, sweetheart or sister, nothing could be more appropriate and acceptable than one of these rings set with the birthstone of the person to whom it is given. The stones in these rings are the same as those in the Birthstone Pendant described above.

CLUB OFFER: We will send you one of these beautiful Birthstone Rings for two one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each. Be sure to give number and size of ring wanted.

Birthstone Bracelet: Where is the girl who does not want one of these handsome and stylish bracelets? Set with a perfectly colored imitation gem denoting the month of your birth, with two tiny flashing white solitaires nestling in the dainty filligree design of gold—all of your friends will exclaim, "My, what a beautiful bracelet" the minute they see it. This bracelet is self adjusting so that if fits any size wrist, is light as a feather, gold-filled throughout and warranted to wear for years. The twelve different stones are the same as those mentioned in our description of Birthstone Pendants and Rings.

CLUB OFFER: We will send you one of these Birthstone Bracelets free and prepaid for three one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each. Please be sure to give number and birthstone of bracelet wanted.

Bluebird Brooch, Premium No. 7942. Also called

Bluebird Brooch, Premium No. 7942. Also called the "Bluebird of Happiness", because they are supposed to bring joy and gladness to everybody who wears one. It is made of sterling silver, enameled in beautiful shades of green and blue, and has a strong safety joint and catch on back. There is no more popular brooch being worn today than this handsome bluebird design.

CLUB OFFER: We will send you a Bluebird Brooch free and prepaid for two one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each.

Cameo Pendant and Chain, Premium No. 8082.
There is nothing more popular than this handsome pendant set with a perfectly cut pink cameo head, attached to a fifteeninch gold-filled chain. It is appropriate for both ladles and young girls and always in style.

CLUB OFFER: We will send you this beautiful Cameo Pendant and Chain fea and warely for the state of the sendent and Chain fea and warely for the sendent and Chain fea and warely features.

young girls and always in style.

CLUB OFFER: We will send you this beautiful Cameo Pendant and Chain free and prepaid for two one-year subscriptions to COMEORT at 25 cents each.

Lingerie Clasps, Premium Nos. 7982, 7992, 8002.
These dainty lingerie clasps are another indispensable feature of every lady's dress. No. 7982 is a handsomely engraved design, No. 7992 is perfectly plain, No. 8002 is engraved and delicately scented by means of a tiny concealed bar of perfume, the fragrance escaping through small perforations in the top. Each clasp is made of genuine rolled gold.

CLUB OFFER: We will send you your choice of any one of these handsome lingerie clasps free and prepaid for two one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each. Please be sure to give number of clasp wanted.

Angel Wing Bracelet, Premium No. 7353. The very latest idea in a signet bracelet—a handsome filigree design, gold-filied and warranted for five years. It fastens with a secret spring fastener and is of the proper size to fit any wrist. We do not engrave this bracelet but you can have it done by your jeweler at small expense or if preferred you can wear it plain without your monogram. Either way is correct. CLUB OFFER: We will send you this new style signet or "Angel Wing" Bracelet (plain, not engraved) free and prepaid for three one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each.

Locket and Chain, Premium. No. 7305. Deeply engraved with a beautiful woman's head and bar and scroll design—the handsomest pattern of the season. It is made of warranted rolled-gold plate with the popular "old Roman" (dull) finish on both sides. Inside is space for one picture. The chain is 15 inches long, calle link, gold-filled. For mother, wife, sister, or sweetheart, this locket and chain makes the finest of all cifts.

CLUB OFFER: We will send you this elegant locket and chain free and prepaid for five one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each.

Lace Collar and Cuff Pin, Premium No. 8032, 8042, 8052. A woman never has too many dress pins so we feel sure that this offer will appeal to thousands of our women readers. Here are three popular styles for you to choose from—the plain with beaded edge, and the engraved. They are the right size—one inch in length, and made of genuine rolled-gold and absolutely guaranteed for two years. As a matter of fact they will wear much longer. Better order at least three sets now, while you have the chance to get them tree.

them free. CLUB OFFER: We will send you your choice of any one set free and prepaid for two one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each. Please be sure to give number of each set wanted.

Cross and Chain, Premium No. 7273. Always a great tavorite and always in style. Both cross and clain are genuine 10 Karat gold-filled. The chain is 16 inches long with soldered links, the cross has the "Roman" or dulf finish on one side and the "English" or bright finish on the other.

CLUB OFFER: We will send you this beautiful gold cross and chain for three one-year subscriptions to COM-FORT at 25 cents each.

Baby Pendant and Chain, Premium No. 7953.
12-Karat gold-filled, the heart-shaped pendant is handsomely engraved and has the word "baby" in raised letters as shown in illustration. Here is a chance for every fond mother to get a handsome pendant and chain for her little one absolutely free.

CLUB OFFER: We will send you this Baby Pendant and Chain free and prepaid for two one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each.

to COMFORT at 25 cents each.

Sterling Silver Pendant and Chain, Premium No. 7673. A new and popular style. The chain is genuine sterling silver, while the pendant is in the form of circle set with twin French pearls, and a handsome imitation sapphire in the center. This makes a very beautiful neck ornament. CLUB OFFER: We will send you this sterling silver Pendant and Chain free and prepaid for three one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each.

scriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each.

Brooches, Premium Nos. 8132, 8122, 8302, 8292, 8312, 8412, 8322, 8332. Eight handsome new designs and you will make no mistake in choosing any one of them No. 8122 is set with fifteen flashing white brilliants and one handsome French pearl, No. 8122 with three French pearls, No. 8302 is a large magnificent imitation turquoise, No. 8222 is the popular "Lovers' Knot" in gold and colored enamel, No. 8312 is set with a bandsome imitation amethyst and two pearls, No. 8512 is the new "Butterfly" design beautifully flashed in gold and green enamel, No. 8322 is a very dainty pattern set with three French pearls, No. 8321 is the ever popular jade. All of these brooches are warranted to be genuine gold-filled and the latest style.

CLUB OFFER: We will send you your choice of any one of these handsome brooches free and prepaid for two one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each. Please order by number.

Vanity Box, Premium No. 7723. Every girl and woman should have one of these new "Dorines" or Vanity Boxes. You carry it, suspended from the little anger which is slipped through the ring at the end of the four-inch chain. Press a tiny hidden spring and the cover files open displaying a fine little mirror and powder puff. It is small, light, dainty, handsomely silver finished and enameled in colors, measures aly an inch and a half in diameter and five-eighths of an inch in width.

CLUB OFFER: We will send you a "Dorine" or Vanity Box free and prepaid for three one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each.

COMFORT at 25 cents each.

Pendant and Chain, Premium No. 8072. A very odd and artistic design of a tiny bird finished in gold and colored enamel and a tine baroque pearl. Both chain and pendant are gold-filled, the chain has soldered links and fastens with a gold-filled safety catch. This beautiful design is appropriate for children as well as women.

CLUB OFFER: We will send you this Pendant and Chain free and prepaid for two one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each.

Wedding Ring, Premium No. 7325. Made of solid 12-Karat gold in the popular narrow band which is now the correct style. In finish and appearance this ring is equal to the highest priced ring ever purchased and we absolutely guarantee it for ten years. This is a man's ring as well as a woman's. It comes in sizes from 4 to 10 inclusive.

CLUBOFFER: We will send you this handsome narrow band 12-Karat wedding ring free and prepaid for five one-year, subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each. Please be sure to give size wanted.

Address All Orders, COMFORT, Jewelry Dept., Augusta, Maine

THIS AIR RIFLE OF THE for selling 15 sets of Colored Cards and Xmas Novelties at 10 cents a set. Rifles first class in every way. When sold return our $1.50 and we every way. When sold return our $1.50 and we send rifle. Blaine Mfg. Co. 301 Mill St., CONCORD LCT., MASS.

Wanted An Idea ! Who can think of some simple thing to patent? Protect your ideas. They may bring you wealth. Write for "Needed Inventions" and list of "Patent Buyers." RANDOLPH & CO., Patent Attorneys, Dept. 112, WASHINGTON, D. C.

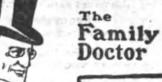

Silk Remnants

Premium No. 5561

All Sizes, Shapes and Colors—A Large Package Sent
. You For One Subscription

Helistrations of real silk, in all shapes, sizes and colors. They are carefully trimmed beautiful quits, life, and it is not some form of dandruff. One of the beautiful quits, life, and other work." We will send you a package containing more than one hundred of these beautiful silk pieces and 3 skeins embroiders cotton in different bright colors. If you order at once we will also send you, in addition to every page this traiting of the following are used it tells you how to put pieces of pathwork are used it tells you how to put pieces of pathwork together to get the best effect, how to cover up assense with fancy stitled, she wite deges, etc. This book illustrates over one hundred and fifty takes besides containing full and explicit directions for knews, plans or tarted stitled, also directions for Kensington painting. Remember you get one nice to the silk Remnals (over 100 pieces), 5 skeins work, plans or tarted stitled, also directions for Kensington painting. Remember you get one nice to the silk plans or tarted stitled, also directions for Kensington painting. Remember you get one nice to the silk plans or tarted stitled, also directions for Kensington painting. Remember you get one nice to the silk plans or tarted stitled, also directions for Kensington painting. Remember you get one nice to the silk plans or tarted stitled, also directions for Kensington painting. Remember you get one nice to the silk plans or tarted stitled, also directions for Kensington painting. Remember you get one nice to the silk plans or tarted stitled, also directions for Kensington painting. Remember you get one nice to the silk plans or tarted stitled, also directions for Kensington painting. Remember you get one nice to the following the plant to the face in hot sone part and are to poor be peaked to the following the plant the face is the plant to the face in hot sone for more than one to transport the following the plant the face is the plant the face to the sole with the plant the face to the following the plant the follow

So many inquiries are received from COMFORT, subsoribers concerning the health of the family that this column will be devoted to answering them. The remedies and advice here given are intended only for simple cases; serious cases should be addressed to physicians, not to us.
Address The Family Doctor, COMFORT, Augusta,
Mainc.

NOTICE.—As the privileges of this and all other departments of COMFORT are for subscribers only, no attention will be given any inquiry which does not ear a correct name and address. Initials only or a fletifique name, if requested, will appear in the published answer, but the inquiry must invariably be signed by the writer's true name.

J. M., Seven Mile, Ohio.—You undoubtedly have some adhesions following your operations, and this would account for the trouble in the left side. Besides you will undoubtedly have an early change of life, and this will clear up, if not cure you of many of your nervous and painful sensations. Would not advise further operative interference.

C. B. S., Guin, Ala.—There is no cure for loss of the sense of smell. If you have a diseased middle turbinate bone, have it removed, and have any other operative procedure that will remove the original cause of your loss of smell. In a few cases, with a pro-longed treatment combined with the removal of any of-fending tissue, there has been a partial recovery of the sense of smell, but these cases are very rare.

Mrs. M. L., Carl, West Virginia.—The swelling of the knees is probably due to an inflammation of the knee joint known as synovitis, and is more or less dangerous as to function, if not properly treated and cared for. The knees should be bandaged during the daytime with an elastic bandage or socalled rubber kneecap. At night an ointment of twenty per cent lehthyol applied would be beneficial. Fly blisters under the direction of the doctor only, are very useful, and will cure the condition in many cases.

and will cure the condition in many cases.

J. J., Hutton Valley, Mo.—You undoubtedly have neuritis, that may be of malarial origin. Try large doses of quinine sulphate, ten grains, three or four times a day for four or five days. You should have all of your teeth that have cavities cared for, and the wisdom tooth extracted at once. This may be the exciting cause and the malaria the actual cause of your pains wherever located, especially in the regions indicated.

"Anxlous," Stuart, Okla.—Varicose veins are dilated veins, due to dilitation from obstruction to the return circulation. Pregnancy is one of the causes and will as an obstruction of the portal circulation cause diseased or congested liver. When the support of the veins is so poor as to weaken the coats of the veins from lack of support, they break through, and the result is varicose ulcer, and a generally inflamed and swollen leg. The cure is either an operation or the usual support of an elastic stocking or bandage. The bandage or stocking should be applied in the morning and removed at night on retiring, as the recumbent position removes the pressure and the support is unnecessary. There is no book that we can recommend on this subject. Consult your family physician, for further advice.

further advice.

Puzzled, Michigan.—Your trouble is probably muscular rheumatism. You have undoubtedly been working and afterwards have sat in a draft while warm and sweating. If you would iron your back with a hot flatiron, having previously placed a hot wet flannel under the iron thick enough to prevent burning, we feel sure you would be benefited, if not cured. Your brother's bleeding from the nose is due to some nasal trouble, and he should consult a specialist about it. Probably a small operation would result in a permanent cure. May be the simple cauterizing of a small vein would be all that would be required. This is true in the majority of cases of this kind.

M. M. Magnen, Ind.—You may have some local

M. M., Manon, Ind.—You may have some local trouble causing the nervousness, due to child bearing which needs local remedies and maybe a small operation. You are in no danger of paralysis, but you should be examined by a specialist in women's diseases and get at the true condition. Also consult an oculist and have any eye condition corrected.

J. F., Rib Sak, Wis.—The roughness of the skin after shaving, can be relieved by the use of a good cold cream, which is sold at any druggist's. Or a sulphur lotion, known as lotio alba, used once or twice a week night be useful. You should be careful to use some good shaving soap or cream, numbers of which are on the market.

"Lassie," Madrid, Nebr.—Don't worry over being called "skinny" if you feel well, eat well, sleep well and as a rule are in a good state of health. Load the "simple life." Keep away from candy, pastry and live on a sensible diet, and in time you will be as well as you wish. There is no "flesh-builder" worth the name.

Subscriber.—Rigg's disease can only be treated successfully after a careful examination in a given case. Many cases are incurable, because the bony process-o-called alveolar process has been absorbed, and the gums retracted. Recent cases and those of not too long standing can be cured by any competent dentist, but the treatment is a prolonged one and the individual must aid the dentist by persistent care of the teeth. There is no remedy that will cure this disease in every case. Comport does not recommend or give names of dentists. Write any dental college of standing and you will have a good dentist recommended, who is practising near your present address.

B. W. Andelseis, Als.—Vour purples are undoubt.

tising near your present address.

R. W., Andalusia, Ala.—Your pimples are undoubtedly due to some form of indigestion. Your bowels should be regulated and you should use some form of an antacid such as milk of magnesia or bicarbonate of soda, a half teaspoonful of the latter dissolved in hot water. You should of course refrain from eating sweets or pastry of any kind. If you are constipated some form of mineral oil in tablespoonful doses is indicated, or you can use bran mixed with your cereal, there are many kinds of bran to be had at any grocers, with directions for use, as well as bran cookies. A good local remedy is Lassar's paste, but this must be used only on the advice of a physician. The creeking of your neck is undoubtedly muscular. Cold doughing of the spine and the application of vase.

this must be used only on the advice of a parametric creeking of your neck is undoubtedly muscular. Cold douching of the spine and the application of vaseline with massage will help you.

Mrs. T. J., Iowa.—From your symptoms, you may have an ulcer of the stomach which should have immediate medical and perhaps surgical attention. Constant vomiting with more or less pain, and loss of weight, must mean something radically wrong. Sometimes this condition is due to eye strain. In either case you should consult a competent physician at once. Would advise looking in to the eye condition first. Consult a good oculist, not an optician, and ascertain whether or not you have eye strain due to the need of glasses.

I am Going to Give Away Two Automobiles on December 15, 1917. Last year I gave away twelve cars. This year I'm going to give away two more. Send me the coupon down in the corner and I'll tell you all about it. This Overland

$1500 in Rewards

- 1st-Overland Automobile
- Ist—O yerland Automobile
 2d—Ford Touring Car
 3d—Indian Motocycle or Piano
 4th—$75 Diamond Ring
 5th—17-jewel Elgin Gold Watch
 4th—15-jewel Elgin Gold Watch
 4th—461-piece Chest of Silver
 8th—$15 Victor Talking Machine
 9th—7-jewel Elgin Gold Watch
 19th—42-piece Dinner Set
 11th—42-piece Dinner Set
 12th—Eastman Folding Kodak
 13th—Eastman Folding Kodak
 14th—31-piece Dinner Set Maybe you think I am a fraud, or that you know all about my plan. It won't hurt you to send the coupon, and you can't tell you unless you send the coupon.

The Reward Man

Philada., Pa. The Farm Journal,

is one of the cars I am going to give away. It is the latest model, fully equipped and complete in every detail. It will be delivered right at some one's front door without a cent of cost to them. Don't you want to get it? Send me the coupon and I'll tell you how. The other car is a Ford, and it will also be given to some one. Would you rather have it? As soon as I receive the coupon I'll send you full details of my offer. Besides the two cars I'm going to give away the other rewards listed here at the left. Surely there is something in that list you want.

Cut out and Send the Coupon DO IT NOW!

THE REWARD MAN 7G
The Farm Journal, Philadelphia, Pa.
Please send me full information about the automobiles you are giving away. The signing of this coupon does not obligate me in any way. Name _ R. F. D. ___ Box_ disease of the liver. From what you write, they cannot be true moles. Have your general condition looked into and consult us further.

looked into and consult us further.

Mrs. F. D., Wilmot, Wis.—Your husband's trouble is undoubtedly due to some error in diet. Would suggest that he daink plenty of water, confine his diet to milk and rice for two or more weeks and bathe daily in hot water to which has been added some bicarbonate of soda. If there is constipation, have him take a good saline cathartic, such as Rochelle Salts.

"Uncle William," Sherwood, La.—Your condition is commonly known as "hives." It is usually due to some indiscretion in diet. Certain substances such as fish, crabs, lobsters, cheese, sausage, buckwheat, pork, etc., in susceptible individuals bring on an attack. Also certain liver conditions. Use a plain diet, free from such foods as indicated, drink plenty of water and no doubt your trouble will be cured.

P. G., Jacksboro, Texas.—From your symptoms, you water and no doubt your trouble will be cured.

P. G., Jacksboro, Texas.—From your symptoms, you seem to have some valvular heart trouble. Possibly a change of climate would be beneficial. Too much of soda is injurious, and would advise you to give it up for the present. You should find out what diet is suitable for your stomach, and adhere to this, also consult a good heart doctor and have a careful examination. May be in this connection, the taking of your blood pressure would help in the getting at the true condition of your circulatory apparatus.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ½ oz. of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.—Adv.

FREE! Genuine EASTMAN PREMO FILM PACK CAMERA Size 2½x3%, for selling 25 Art and Religious pictures or 25 pkgs, post cards at 10c each. Order your choice today. Seat prepaid. cATES 8F2, CO., - 0ept. 1425. - CHCAGO

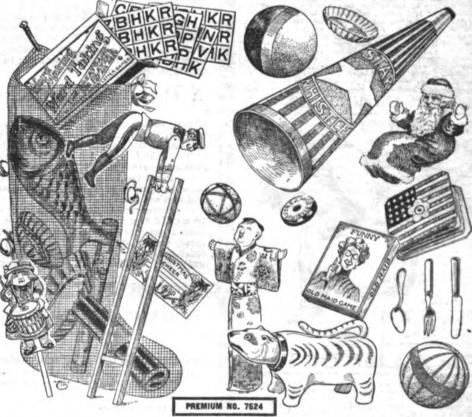

EVERY WOMAN WHO EMBROIDERS

80 Embroidery Patterns for Handsome Centerpieces, 3 complete Alphabets, Clothes, Pillow Tops, Scotlogs, Underwear Designs, Embrodery Hints brindia of the latest Needlewe bargain prices, all the latest stitches. Don't miss ALL FOR 10 CENTS.

Peerless Supply Co., 36-35th St., Breoklyn, N. Y.

Stocking Full Of Christmas Presents!

Sent Prepaid For A Club Of Four!

ing there is also a handsome embossed Christmas Card upon which is printed "Merry Christmas from Santa Claus" or some similar inscription. If you have no children of your own to make happy this Christmas you probably know of somebody's little boy or girl who would be delighted with one or more of these Big Christmas Stockings. But you should accept this offer immediately as Christmas is almost here and besides our supply of stockings is limited and they may be all gone before your order reaches us unless you send it in at once.

Our Christmas Offer: For four one-year sub-actipitions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you one of these Big Christmas Stockings full of Santa Claus Gifts free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 7524.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

ane. .oniall

In this department will be carefully considered any legal problem which may be submitted by a subscriber. Also punions given herein will be prepared at our expense by eminent counsel.

Inasmuch as it is one of the prancipal missions of COMFORT to aid in upbuilding and upholding the sanctity of the home, no advice will be given on matters pertaining to divorce. Any paid-up subscriber to COMFORT is welcome to mount inquiries, which, so far as possible, will be answered in this department. If any reader, other than a subscriber, wastes to take advantage of this privilege, it may be done by sending twenty-five (26) cents, in silver or slamps, for a one-year subscription to COMFORT thus obtaining all the benefits which our subscribers enjoy including a copy of the magazine for one full year.

Full names and addresses must be signed by all persons seeking advice in this column but not for publication. Unless other wise requested, initials only will be published.

W. D., Jeddo, Ala.—We think that in the absence of anything in writing to indicate your right to the real estate left by your grandfather, it would be very difficult for you to legally establish such a claim. We think that if your motier dies without a will, you would be entitled to a child's part by inheritance from her estate. We think, however, she has a legal right to disinherit you by will if she so elects.

A. P., Paris, Ky.—Under the laws of your state, we think that the parents are entitled to the custody of their minor children and we do not think that you would have any legal right to leave home and go to another state if they forbid your doing so.

E. M. P., Texas.—Under the laws of your state, we

E. M. P., Texas.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that where divorces are declared, the court exercises very general jurisdiction over the property and children, but cannot compel divestiture of title to real estate. We do not think that either the husband or wife's interest in mortgaged community property attaches to more than the equity in such property.

A. L., Indiana.—Under the laws of your state we are of the opinion that the transfer of property, for the purpose of avoiding the payment of a just debt, could be set aside in the proper action brought for that purpose, provided the evidence fully substantiated the fact that the transfer was made for the purpose of avoiding the payment of the debt.

E. G., Alabama.—We do not think you have any legal right to use an assumed name.

W. S. Tongessee —Under the laws of your state.

legal right to use an assumed name.

W. S. S., Tennessee.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that upon the death of a married man, leaving no will and leaving no child or descendant the widow would receive all the personal property absolutely, after the payment of debts and expenses, and in addition to her homestead rights in his real estate, would receive dower of a one third interest for life, the balance going to his parents, brothers and sisters and their descendants, depending upon who is left, and the manner in which the property was acquired, but if the intestate leaves no heirs at law capable of inheriting the real estate, it all goes to the widow in fee-simple.

V. S. B., Idaho.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that a female can marry without the consent of the parents at eighteen years of age.

X. Y. Z., Pennsylvania.—Under the laws of your

X. Y. Z., Pennsylvania.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that a married man can be compelled to support his wife unless she abandons him without good reason, and that he can also be compelled to support his children of tender years who are unable to support themselves.

L. V. S., Maine.—We think it is a wise precaution to have official documents signed by a witness. (2) We think you should keep your tax and other receipts.

Mrs. L. J. K., Temple, Okla.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that the courts would have power to decree or enter a judgment or order of legal adoption upon the consent of the grandparents of the child or children in case no hearer relative of said children is living or can be located.

said children is living or can be located.

Miss H. M., Harrisburg, Ark.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion, that in the absence of a will, a stepchild has no interest in the estate of the stepfather, except, of course, such as may reach him through his mother's interest in the stepfather's estate. In case the mother survives the stepfather, she, of course, being entitled to her share in her husband's estate, and her child, of course, would be entitled to an interest in her estate in case he is not barred by her will.

barred by her will.

D. Q. T., Haymond, Tex.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that five years' peaceable possession of real estate, cultivating, using, and enjoying the same, paying tax thereon, and claiming under deed duly registered, and which is neither forged nor executed under a forged power of attorney, gives full title, and that ten years' like peaceable possession, cultivation, and enjoyment, without evidence of title, gives to the possessor full title to one hundred and sixty acres, and to all beyond which he has in actual possession. We think, however, that you should be careful not to write anything which might be construed as an admission on your part that you have not enjoyed ten years' peaceable possession of the land you mention if you desire to hold same under a possessory title. We think that the real estate man you mention as stating that you would have to make an affidavit to this effect must refer to the fact that in case your title is attacked in the courts, it would be necessary for you to defend such action by a verified answer or reply and by the proper evidence. We think it might be more economical if you could procure a quit-claim deed at small cost from the proper persons to this property than it would be to defend a hard fought action in court to defend your title in case, of course, any action is brought against you to evict or eject you from the property.

S. A. S. North Carolina — Under the laws of your

S. A. S., North Carolina.—Under the laws of your state we are of the opinion that children may be disinherited by will. (2) That the woman, who received the real property under the will of her aunt, could sell or dispose of the same without the consent of her children, provided the will was drawn so that she received the property absolutely.

A. F., Illinois.—Under the laws of Michigan, we are of the opinion, that, if the deed of the property you mention, was made to your father and mother, as tenants by the entirety, as your letter indicates, the whole property, upon the death of your father, became the sole property of your mother, and she could dispose of same without your consent.

G. C.; Illinois.—In order to make the judgment recovered against your debtor in Illinois, a lien upon land owned by him in Mississippi we think you should bring suit on the judgment in that state and have your judgment against him recorded as a judgment of the courts of that state.

Mrs. R. C., Virginia.—If the executor of the estate, in which you have an interest, fails to account and pay you your share, after the period allowed by law for the administration of the estate, we think you should proceed against him in the proper court, and compel him to pay you the amount of your interest in the estate. in the estate.

New Blood for Gas Victims.—Cook County Hospital authorities, Chicago, resorted to blood transfusion to save the life of a man overcome by gas. The operation is the first of its kind in America and followed the ideas of Dr. William H. Burnmester, Coroner's physician, who recently outlined a method of blood transfusion for the resuscitation of victims of gas. Without the operation, the man would have died within an hour.

A LAMP WITHOUT A WICK.

A new safety gasoline lamp, which experts agree gives the most powerful home light in the world—better than gas or electricity—and a blessing to every home on farm or in small town, is the latest achievement of the Sunshine Safety Lamp Co., 514 Factory Bldg., Kansas City, Mo. This remarkable lamp gives 300 candlepower at one cent a night. It has no wick and no chimney, and is absolutely safe. A child can carry it. It gives such universal satisfaction that they are sending it on Free Trial. They want one person in each locality to whom they can refer new customers. Take advantage of their free offer. Agents wanted. Write them today.—Adv.

expensive Xmas gift?

with it we will also mail and appreciated by the recipients.

Comfort Sisters' Corner

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 27.)

Requests

Cure for bunions and calloused places.

Recipe for making soap in thirty minutes. How to remove old coffee stains from blankets. A good polish for mahogany furniture and one for rainut furniture.

Lennie McAlister, Swaty, Ark., would like Decemer, 1916, issue of COMFORT.

I would like to hear from Comfort sisters living in Alberta, Canada. Mrs. F. O. Vaughn, Cortez, Colo. Mrs. Ida Davis, Asheville, R. R. 1, N. C., would like literature and letters relating to the Holy Land.

Miss B. Gilliam, Comanche, Okla., would like September 1915, 3rd and 11th issues of "All-Story Week-ly," also any other reading matter. Will pass same along to others.

Helen Shultz, Buffalo, 48 Rother Ave., N. Y., would ke to hear from someone who knows about the erde Grand Copper Co., of Arizona; also the Ruby ountain Gold and Silver Mining Co.

To hear from anyone troubled with indigestion with gas settling under arm down left side, and what they did to obtain relief. Will return all stamps.

MRS. R. S. DUNMORE, Philadelphia, 8416 Germantown, Ave., Pa.

Poem containing the lines:

"When heavenly angels are guarding the good, As God has ordained them to do, In answer to prayers I have offered, I know there is one watching o'er you."

J. E. PENLAND, Asheville, R. R. 2, N. C.

Comfort Postal Requests

How to Get a Lot of Souvenir Postals Free Exchanging Souvenir Post Cards is no longer a fad but a custom as firmly established as letter writing, and more convenient and pleasing. By entering this Exchange list you are enabled to accumulate cards from every state in the Union and Foreign Gountries. To secure the appearance of your name in the Exchange List it is necessary to send a club of two one-year 25-cent subscriptions to GOMFORT and fifty cants to pay for same. We will send you a very fine Fifty Card Album for Post Cards, and your name will appear in the next available issue of COMFORT, and you will be expected to return cards for all received by you.

Miss Janie P. Davis, Kingsport, Tenn. Miss Bertha G. Ferree, 2191/. E. Washington St., New Castle, Pa. Care Penn Real Estate Co.

Missing Relatives and Friends

We shall only require you to get a small club of subscribers to COMFORT for each request printed; so in sending your notice for insertion in the Missing Relatives' column, include a club of three one-year 25-cent subscriptions, or if you are aiready a paid-in-advance subscriber, send only two one-year 25-cent subscriptions. This amount limits the notice to twenty-two words, making three lines; if longer notice is required, send two additional 25-cent one-year subscriptions yearly for every seven words.

News of Charlie Ballard, age 26, red hair, and thick set. Left Amarilla, Texas, last April for Colorado. Please write to his sister. Willia Coley, Bowling Green, R. R. 5, Ky.

Four Wheel Chairs in October 436 is COMFORT'S Total to Date

I am sorry to see the October chairs number one less than the September list. It is getting into the fall and it should have bettered September's record. Let us all boost next month so to make our November award a cause of thanksgiving to a larger number

The four October wheel chairs go to the following shut-ins. The figures after their names indicate the number of subscriptions sent in by them or by their friends in their behalf.

May Belle McGraw, Sparta, La., 186; Jane Terry, Timpson. Texas, 169; Mrs. W. T. McBride, R. 2, Kite, Ga., 130; Selbern Gardner, R. 3, Kemp, Texas, 130

Little May McGraw, though 16 years of age, is no larger than a seven-year-old child. She is very emaciated and weak; has been crippled from birth and suffers from severe curvature of the spine. Her good neighbor and friend, Polly Spinks, who helped largely in getting the subscriptions for May, writes a pitiful description of the poor girl's condition and need of a wheel chair.

Miss Jane Terry, age 78, is crippled by rheumatism and suffers also from liver trouble.

Mrs. W. T. McBride, age 55, crippled sixteen years by paralysis of entire left side which renders her left arm and leg entirely helpless. She describes her condition as very deplorable.

Jim Gardner, age 13, received an injury to his leg on a plow two years ago and tuberculosis settled there. His thigh bone is affected and he has a swollen stiff knee joint. He is a great sufferer and much in need of a wheel chair.

You will be interested in the letters of thanks and the Roll of Honor printed below.

> Sincerely yours, W. H. GANNETT, Publisher of COMFORT.

P. S. For the information of our many new subscribers let me explain that for each and every 200 one-year subscriptions to COMFORT, at 25 cents each, sent in either singly or in clubs by persons who direct that they are to be credited to COMFORT'S WHEEL-CHAIR CLUB instead of claiming the premiums to which they would be entitled. I give a FIRST-CLASS INVALID WHEEL CHAIR to some needy crippled Shut-in and pay the treight, too. It is a large and expensive premium for me to give for that number of subscribers, but I am always glad to do my part a little faster each month than you do yours. Any shut-in who has trienda to help him get subscribers can obtain a wheel chair free. Write me for information.

The Best Pleased Boy You Ever Saw

GREER, Mo. DEAR MR. GANNETT: Willie's chair cam

DEAR MR. GANNETT:
Willie's chair came July 3rd and he is the best pleased boy you ever saw—says he wouldn't take a hundred dollars for it. It will also be a great help to me in taking care of him. God bless you and all that have helped me to get it. May long life and happiness be your reward for the good work you are doing through COMPORT. I will send some more subscriptions soon to help provide wheel chairs to other shut-ins.
Truly yours.

MRS. J. W. Sifford.

COMFORT Wheel Chair Much Nicer Than They Expected

BELLCROSS, N. C.

Bellcross, N. C.

The wheel chair for my brother, Paul Forbes, arrived in excellent condition and freight charges all prepaid. We are very grateful to you for it. It is much nicer than we had expected. My brother was more than pleased with it. He sits in it all the time when not sleeping, and rolls himself around where he wants to go. He is to have his picture taken soon and will send you one. Wishing you and COMPORT the success which your good works deserve, I remain, Gratefully yours, Mrs. L. A. WILLIAMS.

His Life Brightened by His COMFORT Wheel Chair

DYERSBURG, TENN.

DEAR MR. GANNETT Dear Mr. Gannett:

I received my wheel chair in good condition, for which I thank you very much, and most especially I wish to thank Mrs. J. L. Parrish for ler kindness because I feel that without her interest and efforts in my behalf I never should have had the pleasure (which is beyond words) of possessing this wheel chair, as my parents are poor and have to work so hard they could not spare the time to secure the necessary subscriptions for the chair. I am so much happier and my life is so much brighter for the comfort and convenience of this chair. Again thanking you for your kindness, I remain, Respectfully, Walter Campbell.

COMFORT'S Roll of Honor

The Roll of Honor comprises the nar who have sent five or more subscriptions to credit of the Wheel-Chair Club during the month previous. Following each name is the number of subscriptions sent.

PREMIUM
NO 7892

COMFORT FOR CHRISTMAS" COUPON
Date 1917.

Publisher COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Date 1917.

Publisher COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Dear, Sir: As a Christmas present from me please send COMFORT for one year to the following acdress, also the Christmas Presentation Card properly filled out with my name. I enclose 25 cents to pay for same.

My Disimply press down on top of "doggy"s" head and he expense his mouth and barks right to ut loud. And not only does he bark like a real dog but he looks ring cars, and upsturned inquisitive nose he is a perfect likeness of a cuts little pup, in color he is pure white practically indestructed the intil motivation of the color of the pure white expenses and the color of the pure white expenses and the color of the pure white expenses and the color of the pure white practically indestructed the intil not easily practically indestructed that it will not easily make some of the next method of the color of the pure white expenses and the color of the pur so that both paper and card will reach your friend at about the same time. The card is beautifully colored and embossed with a dainty appropriate Christmas design and verse on one side and on the other side is a specially printed announcement of the gift and a space lett for your name as the giver which we will fill in ourselves before the card is mailed.

A Beautiful Christmas Presentation Card

What Shall I Give Them For Christmas?

OW MANY TIMES do you ask yourself that question as the Oftentimes you find it almost impossible to decide—it even becomes a source of downright worry—because all of us like to feel that the presents we give are something that will be actually needed

Why not let us help you solve at least one of your Christmas problems this year? We believe we know of one present that will bring more pleasant and more frequent reminders to your friends

A One-Year's Subscription To Comfort

Here is the one gift that pleases everybody—a gift that will become a cheery, welcome reminder of you month after month for an entire year—and at so little expense you will not notice it at all. Simply send us 25 cents and the name and address of the friend you wish to remember written on the coupon below and we will enter the subscription for one full year to commence with our Christmas number and than almost anything else you could buy—and that is holidays draw near and you are making up your list of those whom you wish to remember with some appropriate yet in-

Isn't this a splendid idea? Surely among all your friends there someone who will appreciate and enjoy such an interesting magazine as COMFORT and who will think of you gratefully every time the carrier leaves it at the door.

Better send us your friend's name and the money now-it's none too early to avoid the Christmas rush—and you will have at least one present less to think about because we will attend to all the details. After you mail the coupon and money you can dismiss the matter from your mind as we will take good care of your order and mail both the paper and the handsome Christmas Presentation Card properly filled out with your name as the giver at precisely the right time.

MAIL THIS COUPON TODAY

The Emporium of Bargains and Opportunities

Pithy Little Advertisements that are Interesting. Instructive and Profitable to Read. for they put you wise to the newest and best in the market and keep you in touch with the world's progress.

AGRUTS WANTED

Agventa-Make Big Money. The best line of food flavors, perfumes, soaps and toilet preparations, etc., ever offered over $60 light weight, popular priced, quick selling secossitios- in big demand-well advertised-easy sellars- big repeaters. Over 180% profit. Complete outsit furnished free to workers. Just a postal today. American Products Co., 4715 lird St., Cincinnati, O.

85.00 A Day And Up easily earned taking orders for our high-grade Soape and Toilet Preparations. Our goods well known nationally advertised. Indies and men make enormous profit. No experience necessary. Write for sample case offer. Crofts & Rood Co., Dept. C-113, Chicago, Ill.

Men and Women Make $35 or more weekly selling Sanitary Brushus for every bousehold use. Big profits, easy work. All or part time. Puritan Co., Dopt. E. 1988 B'way, N. Y.

Do You Want To Travel At Our Ex-pense? We want good men and women for traveling general agents. Must have fair education and good references. Will make contract for three menths, six months or year at salary 321.69 per week and necessary ex-penses. Can assign most any territory de-sired. For full particulars address George U. Clows Company, Philadelphia, Pa., Dept. 4-F.

We Start You without a Dollar. Scaps, Ex-tracts, Perfumes—TolletGoods, Experience un-secossary. CarnationCo.,31 So. Main, St. Louis.

Remmant Store, 1518 G-Vinc, Cincinnati D. Greatest Dry Gooda bargains on earth Agents wanted for New, ProStable Susiness

Agenta: $1.00 Commission Every Call. Greatest bossehold money saver ever invented. Samples free. Over Mfg. Co., 113 Over Bidg., Louisville, Ky.

Agents 840 a Week selling guaranteed hosiery. For men, women and children. Must wear 12 months or replaced free. Agents having wonderful success. Thomas Mfg., Co., 2319 North St., Dayton, Ohio.

We Start You In Business, furnishing everything; men and women, $30 to $300 weekly operating our "New System Candy Factories", Book free, William Ragedale, East Orange, N.J.

Agenta-Make a Dollar an Hour. Sell Mendeta, a patent patch for instantly mending leaks in all utensils. Sample package free. t oliette Mfg. Co., Dept. 463-B, Amsterdam, N.Y.

Agents i Pofits—Our plan beats anything ever before offered. Goods practically sell themselves. "Horoce," 131 Locust, St. Louis, Mo.

Pants $1.00, Suits $3.75, Made To measure. For even a better offer than this write and ask for free samples and styles, Knickerbocker TalleringCo., Dept. $65, Chicago

Agenta...Nteady Income Large manufac-turer of Handkerchiefs and Dress Goods, etc., wishes representative in each locality. Fac-tory to consumer. Big profits, honest goods, Whole or spare time. Credit given. Address Pre "Washwhite" makes repeat orders and big profits. Catchy sales plan. Prec Sam-ples Nacma, 21-C, 28 W. Lake, Chicago.

Agents—Here's the Best Line of food flavors, perfumes, soaps, toilet preparations, etc., ever offered. No capital needed. Complete outsits furnished free to workers. Write today for full particulars. E. M. Feltman, Mgr., 4518 3rd St., Cincinnati, O.

Agents—Pair Silk Hose Free, State size color. Beautiful line direct from mill. Good rofts. Agents wanted. Write today. Triple-car Milla, Dept.G,730 Chestnut St., Phila.,Pa.

Reliable People Wanted to place Eggine in stores and appoint agents. Takes the place of eggs in baking and cooking at less than 9c dox. Package and particulars 19c postpaid. Morrissey Co., 4424 Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

Agenta. Sell rich looking Mx88 imported Rugs, $1 each; Carter, Tenn., sold 115 in 4 days, profit $57; you can do same. Write for sample offer selling plan; exclusive territory. Sample rug by parcel post prepaid 18c. M. Condon, Importer, Stonington, Maine.

Agenta! Quick Sales! Big Profits! Outfit Free!Cash or credit. Sales in every home for our heautiful Dress Goods, Hosiery, Under-wear etc. Write today. National Importing & Mig. Co., Dept. EB, 458 Broadway, New York.

Agenta Wanted—To advertise our goods by distributing free sample to consumer. 90 cents an hour. Write for full particulars. Thomas Mfg. Co., 519 North St., Dayton, O.

Agents: We need men and women at once to take orders for Fast-Selling Good year Guaranteed Raincoata. Easy to sell, no delivering, profit in advance. Morgan making $350 monthly, Carr made $40 in three days, 4 average orders makes you slo.00 daily. Full outfit and sample coat given. Write for wonderful offer. Good-year Manufacturing Co., Dept. 130, Kansas City Mo.

Agents: #60 Weekly introducing won-derful winter automobile fuel. Reduces oper-ating expense one third. Outfit free. L. Ballwey, Dept. 112, Louisville, Ky.

Free Samples To Agenta-230 to 250 weekly introducing Pure Food Products that cut the high cost of living. Write quick. B. Beebout, Caxton Bidg., Chicago.

1917's Greatest Sensation: 11-piece tellet goods combination selling like blazes at $1.50 with $1.50 Carving Set Free. Everybody bays. Bagle's profit first week $51.65. Great erew proposition. Pierce Co., $65 Pierce Bidg., Obleago.

AGENTS WANTED

Hosiery and Underwear Manufacturer effers permanent position supplying regular customers at mill prices in home town. $56.00 to $160.00 monthly. All or spare time. Oradit. O. Parker Mills, 3733 No. 15th St., Phila., Pa.

New patriotic war atlas free with my "Busi-ness Guida," sells everywhere; beginners clear $7 daily; entit free. Prof. Nichola, Box C., Naperville, Ill.

I.argo Manufacturer wants agents to sell shirts, underwear, hostery, dresses, waists, skirts, direct to homes. Write for free samples. Madison Mills, 563 Broadway, New York City.

Agents Water-proof Kitchen Apron. Every housewife buys dainty, durable, econo-mical, acid-proof, grease proof. Sample free. Thomas Co., 3118 North St., Dayton, O.

A Rubless Wash-Day—"White" will do 12 big family washings for 25c without a minutes rubbing or injury to clothes. Millions of women want it. Big profits on repeatorders. S.F. Daily, 519 W. McCarty St., Indianapolis, Ind.

Rvery Home (In Farm, In Nimali Town or Saburb needs and will buy the wonderful Aladdin kerosene (coal-oil) Mantle Lamp. Five times as bright as electric. Tested and recommended by Government and M leading Universities. Awarded Guid Medal. One Farmer cleared over $440 in six weeks. Hundreds with rigs or autos earning $100 to $350 per month. No Capital Required: We Furnish Goods On Time. Write quick for distributoris proposition and lamp for free trial. Mantle Lamp Co., $68 Aladdin Bldg. Chlengo, Ill.

Write for liberal free sample Get posted on biggest money-making combinations and specialties. Guaranteed tremendous sellers. Samples turnished free to distribute. Special large prefit offers made now. R. D. Newberry, 204 Peoria, Chicago.

Agenta: Big Hit: Our 5-Piece Aluminum Set is all the rage. Cheaper than Enamel Ware. Selis like widdre. Guaranteed B Years. Betail value $6.61. You sell housewives for only $1.31. Biggest seller of the agu. 7 sure sales out of every 10 shown. Others cleaning up $10.00 to $20.00 a day. Answer this quick to accure your territory. Div. E. X. & American Aluminum Mfg. Co. Lessont, Ill.

Agents show our made to order guaranteed $15.00 suits real $25.00 values. We experience necessary. Wonderful selling plan. You furnish prospects. We make sale. Chicago Woolen Mills, Dept. 18, Chicago.

Postal Brings positive proof of remark-able repeat order proposition; an oppertunity to own your own business; tremendous profits; experience unnecessary. Equitable Corpora-tion, 517 Ohio, Chicago.

Agents. We need men and women right now to take orders for Worlds Greatest Raincoat values. Dandy coat $3.98, Sixty-five tabrics. Dozens of styles, Made to measure and delivered direct from our big factory to your customer. No delivering. Profit in advance. Easy to sell. Cooper making $300 monthly. Glover $41.60 first four days. Neally 22 orders in 2 days. Four average orders a day gives you $2.500 a year profit. Full outfit and sample coat given. Write for wonderful offer. Comer Mfg. Co., Dept. J-16, Dayton, Ohio.

Men & Women, Do you want a big Money making Agenoy? Then write for full particulars, Address, Ramey, 300 West Ran-dolph St., Chicago, ill.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Underwoods, Boysla, Olivers, Remingtons, 815. to $45., guar. 5 years. Proc Trial: Type-writer Co., C. 183 N. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

Froe-3 months to get acquainted; deveted to mining news and opportunity. The Western Miner, 359 W. 87th Ave., Denver, Colo.

PEMALE HELP WANTED

Five bright, capable Indies to travel, demonstrate and sell dealers. 335 to 346 per week. Railroad fare paid. Goodrich Drug Company, Dept. 83, Omaha, Neb.

We Have Customers who will buy from you tea aprons and dust caps in dozen lots. They also want fancy work of all kinds. Embroidery, Crocheting and Tatting. Send 20c for patterns and prices. Returned if disastisfied. Kenwood Sales Shops, 6238 S. Park Ave., Chicago.

Start Dressmaking business in your homes. $25 week. Sample lessons free. Frank-lin Institute, Dept. H. 566 Rochester, N. Y.

Soldiers and Suffers need socks. Good money made at home knitting heatery. Ma-chines furnished on time. We pay you fixed rates for making the goods the year round. Wheeler, Inc. G. 330 Madison, Chicago.

HELP WANTED

Hundreds Clerks wanted by Government. 300 month. Easy work. List positions free. Franklin Institute, Dept. H. 8, Bochester, N.Y.

He A Detective—Earn Big Pay; nice work; we show you; free particulars; write Wagner, 186 East 17th St., New York Dept. 186.

The Way To Get A Government Job is through the Washington Civil Service School. We prepare you and you get a position or we guarantee to refund your money. Write to Earl Hopkins, Precident, Washington, D. C., for book PK, 1465 telling about Mi, Mi government positions with lifetime employment, ahort hours, sure pay, regular vacations.

HELP-MALE AND FEMALE

Enru Sus Weekly, writing for newspapers, magazines. Experience unnecessary; details Free. Press Syndicate. 451 St. Leeis, Mo.

MALE HELP WANTED

Government wants Railway Mail Clerks. $75 to $150 month. List jobs open free. Frank-lin Institute, Dept. H. 12, Boohester, N. Y.

Government Pays $800 to $1800 yearly. Prepare for coming "exams" under former Civil Service Examiner. New Book Free. Write Patterson Civil Service School, Box J-15, Rochester, N. Y.

Firemen, Brakemen, Raggagemen, 2 hours, 2160. Colored Porters wanted everywhere, Ex-perience unnecessary. 238 By. Bureau, Bast St. Louis, Ills.

POULTRY

Perligree cockerels from our 200 egg White Leghorns. See records of our pens in Storrs College contest. Send for booklet. Windsweep Farm, Hox 33, Redding Bidge, Conn.

SALESMEN WANTED

Traveling Salesmen Wanted—Experience unnecessary Rarn while you learn. Hundreds of good positions open. Write today for large list of openings and test immonials from hundreds of members we have placed in positions paying $100 to $500 a month. Address nearest office. Dept. 185-8 National Salesmen's Training Ass'm., Chicago, San Francisco, New York.

MOTION PICTURE PLAYS

Photophay Ideas Wanted By 48 Companies. $25-$500 paid. Experience unnecessary details Fros. Producers League, 311, St. Louis

MODING PICTURE BUSINESS

Moving Picture Outht, furnished on casy pay-ment plan No experience needed. Pree book explains everything. Monarch Pilm Service, Dept. 3-A 236 Union Ave., Memphia, Tenn.

PATENT ATTORNEYS

Patenta. Write for List of Patent Buvers and Inventions Wanted. $1,000,000 in prizes offered for inventions. Rend sketch for free opinion as to patentability. Our four books cent free. Patents advertised free. We assist inventions to sell inventions. Victor J. Evans inventors to sell inventions. D. C. aventors to sell inventions. Victo Patents Fromptly Procured. Send sketch or model for actual search and report 1917 ditions 9 Page Patent Book Free. George P. Kimmel, 17-K Barrister Bidg., Washington, D.C.

Invent Semething. Your ideas may bring wealth. Free book tells what to invent and how to obtain a patent through our credit system. Talbert & Parker, 4966 Talbert Bidg., Washington, D. C.

Patent Your Idons. Manufacturers are quickly buying patents obtained through us. Write for free book of 397 needed inventions. D. Swift & Co., 321 7th St., Washington, D. C.

Ideas Wanted-Manufacturers are writing for patents procured through me. Four books with hundreds of inventions wanted sent free, I help you market your invention. Advice Free, E. B. Owen, 18 Owen Bidg., Wash. D. C.

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

School Set Free. Pencils, eraser, etc. Leatherette case. Sell 15 19c pkgs. Sachet. Write now. Spring field Perfume Co., Spring field, Mass.

COINS AND STAMPS BOUGHT

California Gold Token, $\%\ size, 27c; $\%\ size, 63c; $1 size, $1.10. Large cent, 100 yrs, old and price list 10c., N. Shultz, King City, Mo.

S2 to $5400 Fach paid for hundreds of Old Coins dated before 1886. Keep All old money and send the for New Illus'td Coin Value Book, size 4x7. It may mean your fortune. Get Posted. Clarke Coin Co., Box 20, LeBoy, N.Y.

Will Pay $2,00 for 1804 Dollar, proof; 10c for 1912 nickels S. Mint; $100.00 for Dime 1896 S. Mint. We want thousands coins and stamps. We offer up to $1000.00 for certain dates. Nend &c now for our large Illustrated Coin Circular. Numismatic Bank, Dept.S. Fort Worth, Texas.

FARM LANDS

Productive Lands. Crop Payment or easy terms along the Northern Pacific Rv., in Minnesota, North Dakota, Moutana, idaho, Washington and Oregon. Precliterature Sax what state interests you. L. J. Bricker, 14 Northern Pacific Ry., St. Paul, Minn.

FARMS FOR SALE

Do You Want A Parm where largest profits are made? The South's great variety of crops and wonderfully productive climits make it the most profitable farms action of America. It is the place for the lowestess! American distribution and dairy farming. It grows the largest variety of forage crops, toold lands in good localities as low as $18 to $2.6 an acre. Let us show you location that will meat production and dairy farming. It gross-the largest variety of forage crops, toold lands in good localities as low as $15 to $25 an acre. Let us show you locations that will give the high st profits. M. V. Richards Com-missioner, Room Pt. Southern Railway Sys-tem, Washington, D. C.

Money-Making Farms, 15 states, $10 an acre up; stock, tools and crops often in-cluded to settle quickly. Write for Big Illus-trated Catalogue, Strout Farm Agency, Dept. 307, New York.

MISSOURI FARM LAND

Small Missouri Farm, $10 cash and $5 monthly; no interest or taxes; highly productive land; close to 3 big markets; write for photographs and full information. Hunger, D 184, N. Y. Life Bidg., Kansas City, Mo.

FARM LANDS FOR SALE

Virginia And North Carolina Farms 815 Per Acre and up. Easy payments. Fruit, Dairy, Stock, Climate. Schools, Churches. Boade, Markete & Neighbors of the heat. Get our Farm Liste, magnains and other interesting literature, all free. Address P.H.LaBaume, Agrl. Agt., N. & W. Ry., 200 M. & W. Bidg., Roanoke, Va.

Land For You. 18, 19, 60 acre tracts in Michigan for general farming, positry, fruit, near towns, schools. 518 to 25 an acre; 15 to 250 down, 54 to 210 per mo. Write for free booklet. Swigart Land Oo., C1365 First Nat'l Bank Bidg., Chicago, Ill.

ARIZONA LAND

Get A Farm Irrigated By Uncle Sam is Sait River Valley, southern Arisona, under Roosevelt Dam. Halse affalfa for feeding cattle and sheep. Raise vegetables and fruits for early Eastern market. Buy land now before it costs more. Deep soil, assured water, reasonable prices, fine winter climate. Write for our Sait River Valley folder free. C. L. Seagravee, Industrial Commissioner, Santa Fe Ry., 1966 Ry. Exchange, Chicago.

PHOTO FINISHING

High Grade Enlargement from your film mailed postpaid. You examine, it satisfactory, send me 50c. David N. Essiek, Ankeny, Iowa,

Films developed free. High class work, perfect prints at 5 to 7c. We do the best work in the Photo City. Remit with your order and get returns same day. Bryans Drug House, Rochester, N. Y.

560c, Enlargement for only 25c; Send us any good clear negative (film or plate, not picture) and 35c, and we will make a beautiful 50c. Sepia Bulargement 5x7 in. mounted on brown photo board 7x10, ready to frame. Pilms developed 10c; prints 2c up. Shea & Williams, 2006 B. Third St., Dayton, Ohio. & W

FOR PHOTOGRAPHERS

Special Trisl Offer. Your next Kodak film developed bc. Prints 2c each. Moser & Son, 2122 St. James Ave., Cincinnati, O.

PHOTOPLAYS, STORIES, ETC.

We Will Accept your Ideas and Scripts in Any form correct free- and sell on Com-mission. Big rewards! Make Money. Write us Now! Writer's Service, Box 31 Auburn, N. Y.

MISCRLLANBOUS

Wanted Benutiful Hair And a Clean scalp. You will have both if you use Ellen's Antiseptic Shampoo, a shampoo of merit; quaranteed not to injure the hair or scalp—a shampoo that will remove all dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil a shampoo that is used by hundreds of satisfied customers. A 25c Box will give eight delightful shampoos. Send lice in silver for a trial peskage. Address Mrs. Ellen W. Burk 54 W. 4th 5t., Oswego, N. Y.

Hair Switches, Ladios send me your combines. I make 3 stem hair switches for only $1.00. Work guaranteed. Mrs. Luther Green, Wehadkee, Ala.

STORY WRITERS WANTED

Make Money Writing Short Stories, Or Articles, hig Pay. Send for free information, United Press Syndicate, Dept.CT., Los Angeles, Wanted Stories, poems, etc. We pay on acceptance. Handwritten MSS, acceptable, Woman's Nat'l Magazine, Deak 17, Wash, D.C.

Authors: Stories, poems, photo plays etc. are wanted for publication. Submit Msa. Literary Bureau, C4, Hannibal, Mo.

ENTERTAINMENTS

Plays, Speakers, dialogues and entertain-ments. Address Dept A. Catalogues free. Ames Publishing Co., Clyde, Ohio.

MUSIC FOR SALE

Latest War Songs, "Over There" "Good Bye Broadway, Hello France" words & music loc both 25c. Latest Music Co., 203 W. 54th St., New York.

MOTORCYCLES

Motorcycle or bicycle at your price imotor-cycles 25.00 up, bicycles 5 00 up; Guaranteed Parts carried in stock for all motorcycles, and bicycles, repairing, send for big Bargain Bulletin. American Motorcycle Co., Chicaga.

ROOTS, HERBS, ETC

Roots, Herbs, Evergreens, Ferns, etc. how to gather. Address of bayers and war grices. Book portpaid only Ma. Ginseng Ca, West Milan, N. E.

Comicalities Comfort's "Jest for Fun"

"Can't afford it," the doctor replied; "she's my best patient."

His Duty

A nervous traveling man was riding between Bufalo and Albany, N. Y. The train was behind time. He called the conductor over and said:

'Can't you go faster than this?" "Sure," came the restay with the train."

Sounded Dangerous

In a certain village in Ireland there is a house the door of which must be raised a little to be opened, and for this purpose the hatchet is generally used. One night a knock was heard at the door and a boy was sent to know who was there.

"Who's there?" asked the youngster. "It's me," answered the person outside.

side.

The youngster, knowing the voice, shouted back in such a tone that the person outside could hear him.

"Oh, mother, it's Mrs. Murphy; get the batchet." Needless to say, Mrs. Murphy didn't wait.

A Good Player

"Thump-rattlety-bang!" went the "What are you trying to play, Jane?" called out her father from the next

"it's an exercise from my new in-struction book, 'First Steps in Music,' " she answered. she answered.
"Well, I knew you were playing with your feet," he said, grimly, "but don't your reet," he said, grimly, "but don't step so heavily on the keys—it disturbs my thoughts."

A Good Tip A Chicago physician relates that his active nine-year-old boy was kept in school and the teacher had a serious talk with him. Finally she said: "I certainly think I shall have to ask your Father to come and see ne."

"Don't you do it." said the boy.
The teacher thought she had made an impression. "Yes," she repeated, "I must send for your Father."
"You better not," said the boy.
"Why not?" inquired the teacher.
"'Cause he charges #4 a visit."

The Cause of it All It was hard lines on old MacTammart, the laird of Tillifidley. He was keen to be out and about his business, and here he was laid up with a bad attack of gout. The local doctor came, and, of course, began to examine the old man's foot. And the old man used bad language and wound up with an angry:

"Why don't ye strike at the root of the matter and get me better?"
Without a word the doctor picked up his walking stick and shattered a decanter of port wine, which stood on the

With a yelp of wrath and a grunt of pain, MacTammart sprang to his feet.
"Whit did ye dae that fur?" he demanded fercely.

"Och," replied the doctor, a blunt old chap, "I wis list striking at the root."— London Ansicer.

Speaking of Appetites

A huge eating competition had been held by some brawny sons of toil in a country town in Yorkshire, and one of the competitors had succeeded in disposing of a large mutton, a plentiful supply of vegetables, and a plum-pudding, the whole washed down with copious draughts of ale.

He was unanimously declared the winner and was being triumphantly escorted home when he turned to his admirers and said:

"Ah, say lads, don't thee say nowt of this to my ole woman, or she won't gio me no dinner!"—Tit-Bits.

Doubly Criminal

Mr. Grimes (with great indignation)—
"I've finished with that fellow Skinner, absolutely finished with him. He's a bad one. He has a lying tongue in his "head."

"head."
Mrs. Grimes (sympathetically)—Dear me! And only yesterday his wife told me that he had false teeth."—Louisville Herald.

Servant—"I can't get this 'ere taillight to burn, sir."
Country Doctor—"Oh, never mind!
We're only going home, and I've got the constable safe in bed with lumbago."— Punch.

Fine Subject Madge-"When you took the long walk ith Dolly how did you find so much to talk about?' talk about?" Marjorie—"We happened to pass a girl we both knew."—Judge.

Didn't Take the Hint Cleo-"Yes, I told him that he had a terrible reputation for kissing girls against their will."

Amy-"And what did he do?"
Cleo-"He sat there like a booby and denied it!"

Must Be Why

Dolly (age 8)—"Why does the clock start all over again when it gets to 12, Bobby?" Bobby—"Because 18 is an unlucky number, I suppose."

Rest Needed

The pretty restaurant cashier had applied for a holiday.
"I must recuperate," she said.
"My beauty it beginning to fade."
"That so?" said the proprietor.
"What makes you think so?" think so?"
"The men are beginning to count their change."

She got her holiday.—N. Y. Times.

Edith—"Haven't you and Jack been sagaged long snough to get married?" Ethel—"Too long! He hasn't get a cent left."—Boston Trensoripi.

Like the other great events of life, buying the family car is very much the concern of the wife and mother.

Happy that woman – and her name is legion—who by helpful suggestion persuades her provider against too small a car or by loving restraint checks an over-generous husband who would otherwise make the mistake of too large a car.

It is the woman of the family that suffers most the fatigue and inconvenience of too small a car—her's the self denial if too great an expense is shouldered in operating too large a car.

Model Eighty-Five Four

The thirty-five horsepower Overland Model Eighty-five Four is roomy enough to be perfectly comfortable—to ward off fatigue on those long trips which should be of such healthful benefit to the whole family.

It has big, comfortable seats and cantilever rear springs that make it easy riding.

Yet it is not too large to be economical of operation.

And in the building of this beautiful Overland there is no hint of experiment, no construction extravagance.

For years it has outsold all other cars of such comfortable size, and produced in larger quantities, it is more inexpensively produced and sold at a lower price than would otherwise buy such comfort, style, reliability and quality.

Its purchase is dictated by common sense and the practice of true economy—it will be a great event in your life. See the Willys-Overland dealer about it now.

Catalog on request. Address Dept. 1164

Willys-Overland Inc., Toledo, Ohio
Willys-Knight and Overland Motor Cars and Light Commercial Cars

Christmas Number Christmas Number The Key to Happiness and Success in over a Million and a Quarter Homes

Write Your Soldier Boy Good, Homy Letters and Write Often-Send Him Papers and Magazines too

NOMMANDING officers at the camps of our national army report that the most eager craving of the soldiers is for letters from home, and the farther away the stronger the yearning for tidings from kindred and friends. It is keenest of all with the soldiers and sailors of our expeditionary forces abroad who cheerfully accept any hardship incident to the service except disappointment by delay of the mails.

The first contingent of our troops to engage the Germans gave a touching manifestation of this feeling when, after their initial turn at fighting in the trenches, they were sent to the rear, as usual, for a period of rest and recreation. Though weary, grimy, plastered with trench mud and wet by marching in the rain they were in excellent spirits, nevertheless, on reaching the village where they had been billeted and their mail was supposed to be waiting them. Every heart was jubilant in expectation of the hoped-for letters from home. But their mail had not come and there was a noticeable sense of depression in their disappointment. When asked how they had fared one of them replied, "We have nothing to complain of except the delay of our mail."

To any woman having a son in the service mother love is sufficient urge for her to write him often. Though paternal affection is strong, men, as a rule, are not given to letter writing and make a poor fist of it at best. Besides, to a man temporarily deprived of association with the gentle sex nothing is so cheering to his heart, so steadying to his character and helpful of the assertion of his better nature under the trials and temptations of soldier life as frequent letters from a good woman who is sincerely interested in his welfare and proud of his good name. Therefore, writing letters to our soldiers is a duty of no small importance that rests on the women of America.

Because of the Government's preference for young, unmarried men the soldier probably has ne wife to write him. Maybe he has no mother living, but, if he has, the performance of this duty should not be left entirely to her but should be shared by all his female kindred and any lady friends with whom he has been in the habit of corresponding. Let them all write him good, long, cheery, racy letters, and often too. But right here we would draw the line on girls writing to strangers whether soldiers or civilians.

Our Cousin Marion in her "Talks with Girls" has repeatedly cautioned them against indiscriminate correspondence with men, especially with men they have never met or are but slightly acquainted with. That advice accords with the maiversal standard of propriety and there is no apparent reason for any deviation from it even under stress of present war conditions. Therefore we disapprove of the suggestion, now going the rounds, that every girl adopt a soldier as a correspondent regardless of having no personal acquaintance in the army. The well-being of our soldiers does not require such sacrifice of propriety, for it is hardly imaginable that any normal young man fit for a girl to correspond with could be destitute of female relatives and friends, not to mention sweetheart, willing to write him. A girl should take her mother's advice in choosing her correspondents and remember that there must be something wrong in any letter she is unwilling to show her mother.

Russia Down and Out

N the nine months since the Czar was dethroned great and once mighty Russia has descended swiftly from bad to worse and now lies prostrate and helpless, the victim of avarice and treason instigated and promoted by German intrigue. A large section of her territory lopped off by the invading enemy while other provinces are seceding or in revolt, her army and navy mutinous, her industries paralyzed and her people everywhere divided into factions arrayed against each other in partizan strife, the last vestige of respectable, responsible authority vanished when, on November eighth, the worst elements of the Pétrograd populace, led by traitors and supported by the soldiers of the garrison and the crews of the war-ships, arrested all the government officials in the capital and proclaimed themselves the rulers of Russia. A pitifully heroic incident of the revolt was the splendid gallantry of the "Woman's Battalion of Death" which fought loyally in defense of the lawful government until overpowered by the shell fire from the fort and ships.

Neither our Government nor that of any of our allies has recognized this insurgent rabble as the government of Russia, nor are they likely to hold intercourse with the usurpers. As the head of the insurgent government immediately after getting control proclaimed a three months truce for the purpose of negotiating a separate peace with Germany, our Government undoubtedly will stop the further shipment of supplies to Russia.

It is expected that the better element of the Russian people will not submit to these tyrants without a determined effort to overthrow them. But that involves civil war which means that Russia is practically out of the world war as she has been during the last four months. If, however, the insurgents remain masters of the situation Russia's policy will be dictated by the Kaiser whose interests these traitors are serving.

Crucifying the Magazines

O serve humanity by being a faithful and fearless purveyor of truth always has been and still is a thankless and often a perilous task. History records that many of the most ardent propagandists of truth have suffered all manner of persecution, including martyrdom, for their zeal. Twentieth century susceptibility, even in Germany, would hardly tolerate burning at the stake and other old-time bloody ways of dealing with persistent exponents of unwelcome facts, but more refined and equally effective modern methods of suppression are in vogue in our own country at the present time.

By their relentless exposure of graft, corrupt politics and neglect or abuse wherever found in the administration of public affairs certain influential magazines have incurred the deadly hatred of those interests and persons that object to having their deeds uncovered and their designs unmasked before the public. To hamper the activities, cut down the circulation and diminish so far as possible the influence of the magazines has been the ill-disguised purpose of certain interests in their repeated efforts to procure legislation hostile to this class of publications.

All such attempts failed until, under pretext of providing war revenue, the present Congress raised the second-class postage rate and graded it on a zone basis. Doubtless most of the members who voted for this measure did so inconsiderately in the hurry, excitement and confusion of the special war session and were innocent of any intent to crucify the magazines. But there were some that knew better and were not displeased with the prospective punishment of the magazines.

The first intimation we ever had of any move to put second-class postage on a zone rate basis was gleaned from a circular letter, dated May 17, 1916, issued by an organization with a high sounding name. The sponsor for this scheme shamelessly urged as one of its chief recommendations the injurious effect that zone rates would have on the magazines. The purport of the appeal was-though not in these precise wordscrucify the magazines.

At the following session of Congress, last December, a bill embodying this proposition was introduced but defeated, greatly to the chagrin of its promoters. Then came the special session at which they succeeded in forcing it through as a part of the war revenue bill. The utter sham of the pretense that it was designed as a war revenue measure appears from the fact that it does not become operative until next July and then only in part, as the rates increase each succeeding July until 1921 when the full maximum will be reached. Furthermore, the prescribed rates are so oppressively high as to be likely to prove prohibitive in the larger zones and result in diminishing rather than increasing the revenue, while the extra labor of classifying, sorting and weighing by zones with a second sorting by mail routes will add materially to the Government's as well as the publisher's expense of handling. It is unjust thus to single out the magazine publishers as a class for double taxation, for besides this they will be taxed the same as others on their incomes and profits, if they have any.

As explained in last month's editorial, the maximum postage rates would wipe out our profits many times over and we shall therefore be obliged to pass this added expense on to our subscribers by raising our subscription price. How to apportion this increase among subscribers is a difficult problem, though it appears to be assumed that the subscription price will have to vary according to zones, as it seems hardly fair to make the nearer subscribers share the greater cost of sending to the most distant ones. But remember that Congress and not the publishers is responsible for this local discrimination against those who dwell in the far rural sections. Decrease of sales is the natural result of higher prices, and it will be regrettable as detrimental to the national welfare if the zone rates of second-class postage curtail the dissemination of knowledge through the restriction of magazine circulation.

That there is no necesity for raising the postage rate on magazines is proved by the recently published report of the Postmaster General which shows that the Government made a net profit of nine million dollars on the business of the Post-Office Department for the year ending June 30, 1917. The Government should not engage in business for profit, but only for the benefit of the people by serving them at lowest cost.

The Senate at first rejected the zone rate proposition but finally yielded with the understanding that the question would be reopened for further consideration at the present session of Congress. So there is a chance that this menace may be removed before it begins to work mischief. Of course the movement for repeal will be strenuously contested by the interests that secured the adoption of this abomination, but in a matter of this kind members of Congress are likely to be influenced, as they should be, by public opinion expressed in letters and petitions from the people. Therefore it behooves everybody to get after his or her congressman on this matter of common

We print a petition in due form on page 12. If you believe in equal rights and privileges for all under the postal laws; if you are opposed to unjust local discrimination; if you favor making the second-class postage rate, hereafter as heretofore, one and the same, level and uniform throughout the Union, cut out the petition, sign it, get others to sign it, and then mail it to your congress man at Washington where it will find him attending the present session of Congress.

Washington a Dry City

THE law prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquor in the District of Columbia went into operation on the first day of November and it is hoped that a marked improvement in the moral atmosphere of the national capital will result. Congress is to be commended for having set this good example before the country, and its action may well be regarded as the forerunner of nation-wide prohibition.

COMFORT'S EDITOR.

COMFORT, PUBLISHED MONTHLY BY W. H. GANNETT, PUB., INC., AT AUGUSTA. MAINE.

Subscription price in United States and United States Possessions 25c a year, Canadian subscriptions 50c a year, foreign countries 75c a year. No premiums or prizes will be given on Canadian or foreign subscriptions. Please send your renewal just as soon as your subscription expires. EDe can not continue sending COMFORT to you unless you do. If you do not get your magazine by the 25th of the month write us and we will send you another copy free. Please notify us immediately in case you move, so that we can change your address and see that you do not miss a single copy. Remember that we must have your former address, as well as your new address to make the change. Be sure to send both. We do not supply back numbers.

Entered at the post office at Augusta, Maine as second-class mail matter. Copyright, 1917 (Trade-Mark Registered), by W. H. Gannett, Pub., Inc.

IN @ AROUND The HOME

New Ideas for Home-Made Gifts

OW that the rush and bustle of getting the Christmas packages off to the boys is over, we can turn our thoughts to the other members of the home circle.

Between now and Christmas I know every woman will be as busy as a bee planning and working, for one of the most satisfying things about this most important of holidays is the making and giving of pretty and useful gifts to our loved ones.

I hope many of you who have to accomplish considerable with a small outlay will find this month's page of practical value and help.

An Attractive Hatpin Holder

A couple of yards of ribbon and a little originality resulted in this ornamental as well as useful little affair for one's bureau. To be exact two yards three-inch satin ribbon, three yards of No. 3 ribbon No. 3 ribbon and one small wine glass will be necessary.

Use enough of the wide ribbon to cover the glass, join-ing neatly. Overcast top and bottom selvedges of the ribbon rather loosely then draw up closely to fit over glass.

Cut six pieces of ribbon and fold in points and seam. Place these, over-lap-ing each other HATPIN HOLDER.

around the top of glass. Cut the remainder of the ribbon in three parts, measuring 12, 15 and 18 Inches respectively. Shirr each selvedge, place one piece of ribbon inside the other and sew to covering of glass. Sew points at base after which finish this point, base of glass and top of each row of ribbon with the narrow ribbon. To shirr this up as shown run diagonally from one selvedge to the other. If necessary fill the glass with sand, covering the top with a piece of net or mustle. muslin.

Marguerite Garters

Any girl who loves dainty personal belongings will surely welcome a

MARGUERITE GARTERS.

ty personal belonge a pair of ribbon covered garters.
In planning such a gift as this care should be used in choosing the color,
for most of us have a favorite shade and whether it be in the millinery, which is so essential and the key-note to one's dress, or to the alluring waists and ready-to-wear house frock or street costume, the color is sometimes selected without regard to its being be-coming, or to the taste of the wearer.

An ordinary pair of garters, covered with fulled ribbon or silk elastic may be used and made most attractive and

The rosettes are made of ribbon which comes in many colo French knots. colors; the centers are of yellow

By-low Pillow Doll

If every mother could see this dear little pillow doll, I feel sure every baby would have one for bedtime.

Our illustration cannot begin to show the sweetness of the little face which is painted with water colors and then outlined or the daintiness of the plain white dress and lace-trimmed cap.

The doll, head and body all in one, is simply

War-Time Novelties

work the features of the head, filling in the sides by outlining with gold to represent dolly's curls.

The cap is simply a circular piece of lawn, edged with lace and having a lace beading stitched on, a little ways from the edge, through which is run a ribbon, which ties the is a straight piece, hemmed at the lower edge and the upper edge finished with lace edging, beading and rib-finished with lace edg-ing, beading and ribbon.

War-time Novelties

shops are showing timely gifts designed especially to appeal to the patriotism of the children.

A few of these ideas we can illustrate here.

Any boy whether he be a scout or not will surely be delighted with a sofa pillow of his very own, made for real use. The design here shown worked on khaki or any tan material, is particularly good. Use shades of brown for the eagle, red, white and blue for the store of the common of the children and the common of the children as a sailor boy doll dressed as one of Uncle Sam's marines, one will need a little navy-blue flannel. Use this for the blouse and long wide bottom pants. Add a white sailor collar will complete the little surely be delighted with a sofa pillow of his very own, made for real use. The design here shown worked on khaki or any tan material, is particularly good. Use shades of brown for the eagle, red, white and blue for the common of the common of the children as a sailor boy doll dressed as one of Uncle Sam's marines, one will need a little navy-blue flannel. Use this for the blouse and long wide bottom pants. Add a white sailor collar will complete the little surely be delighted with a sofa pillow of his uniform for jackie. particularly good. Use shades of brown for the eagle, red, white and blue for the shield, and black for the ribbon and letters, Individual towels for boys who are just beginning to take an interest in their personal appearance, are sonal appearance, are also good, especially a generous bath towel. Outline on the end some appropriate motto such as "A Scout Is Clean" and buttonhole the > Red Cross Nurse

The new dolls, dressed as nurses, soldiers and sail-ors will surely de-light the heart of any little girl or boy. These cos-tumes which are so picturesque and attractive can as new redressed in these styles.

The nurse should Brush broom holder have a plain dress of blue and white striped gingham with white cuffs and collar, and a generous white may be omitted, the dress made low neck and a handkerchief substituted instead.

a handkerchief substituted instead.

The head-dress is of white in shape the same as a handkerchief folded once. This fits smoothly about the head the ends falling on either side as shown. Decorate the front with a red cross and one also may be added to a white band, placed about the sleeve just above the elbow.

Patriotic Bean Bag

A simple little gift made up of the national colors is the crocheted bean bag illustrated below. For this use colored silkateen in red, white and blue with a suitable sized steel cro-chet hook. Ch. 4 with the blue, join in ring work round and round in single crochet through loops of each stitch, making an extra stitch here and there as necessary to keep the work flat. Make nine rounds of blue, join in white and make nine rounds. Then red and enlarge for three rounds then three more with-out increasing followed by three in which one should decrease slightly.

Red, white and blue, Just for the little folks, They're patriotic, too.

PATRIOTIC BEAN BAG.

Begin with blue again and follow with nine rows of white, fasten off and join to red by overcasting the two edges together, when nearly closed fill with beans, split peas or rice.

Boy Scout Doll

of kahki colored yarn.
These garments will be especially welcome if the Khaki suit does not come off as children al-edges and hem-stitched ends. A washable hairreceiver requires a square of white or colored linen, with three sides buttonholed in color to suit room scheme, and rolled up like a cornucopia either snapped or hooked inor hooked invisibly together, and a loop to hang it up. Line with stiff paper to keep in shape and to give firmness.

A square or oblong

pincushion top of white linen may be embroidered and have buttonholed edge a crocheted medallion inserted in top and crocheted edge, and laced or tied to a plain bottom section over a be easily copied foundation of color, and even old dolls will almost pass and filled with rice in rust.

Brush broom holder of two pieces laced to-gether, with front em-broidered in design or RED CROSS NURSE.

RED CROSS NU

Swagger Stick Bag

Our illustration shows one of the very latest ideas for knitting bags. If one has not a swagger stick, a light cane or a handle from a dis-carded umbrella the top of the bag at the bottom of swagger stick the stick. Draw KNITTING BAG. the thread up closely and secure, then slip over this end a strong rubber band. Turn the bag up and just above the rubber band, tie a ribbon and a silk cord as tightly as possible. Run cords top of the bag, running the same through a celluloid ring, large enough to slide up and down the stick. These bags besides being attractive are most practical, as they hold a vast amount of work, which can be carried very easily as one can use the stick for a cane in walking.

Pin Tree

This little novelty for the dressing-case can be made of a good-sized cork blackened with a couple of coats of shoe polish and then glue to the end of a blackened meat skewer.

For the base a tiny flower pot painted, decorated with ribbon and filled with bird shot can be used or a cardboard or small tin box completely covered with ribbon may be substituted. Fill the cork with pins with varied colored heads and the pot with hairpins.

Little Gift Suggestions

A cardcase of fancy ribbon, white linen or material like the gown, with an initial or monogram is a useful choice.

BY-LOW DOLL.

By-Low Doll.

There is nothing new about these dolls, which this year look so different, but their clothes.

a small cotton filled pillow, which may be made any size desired, about one third as wide as it is long. On the top of the pillow-case is it is long. On the top of the pillow-case is it is long.

There is nothing new about these dolls, which this year look so different, but their clothes.

Any good old-fashioned kind of a doll such as children always have and always will love as long as there are children in the world, can be personal note to the gift.

There is nothing new about these dolls, which this year look so different, but their clothes.

PIN TREE. 12-inch squares of sheer line; quarter by fourteen and a half inches will be stitched with a tiny crocheted edge or fine as children always have and always will love as long as there are children in the world, can be personal note to the gift.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 11.)

Conducted By Mrs. Wheeler Wilkinson

Candy Man for Christmas Trees

These cute little candy men, which take the place of the usual candy bags, delight the children. Large white peppermints painted with chocolate and

Brother Paper weights which do not slip from the papers are of leather, scraps from the shoemaker, or of ooze leather or old gloves, which can be dyed with gasolene and oil paint in gay shades, and are filled with shot.

Case for fountain pens should be of two strips of leather, one long enough to fold over and fasten down with snap fastener, or one long strip folded over.

Pattern Bag

A cretonne bag for patterns is appreciated by the woman who makes her own and the chil-dren's clothes. Stitch two rows of pockets on a foundation and a blank card fastened on the outside of each pocket to be used for an index of contents of each pocket, shirt-waists, coats, skirts, one-piece gowns, underwear, blouses, shirts, etc.

Boodle Bag

Lots of girls have a way of tucking a few dollars away, feeling that they are more safe than in their purse. So I feel sure any girl who considers money on her own person safer than in a national bank, will welcome a dainty receptacle especially for this purpose. Make the little gift as daintily as possible by covering a garter with shirred satin ribbon and to this attach the envelope shaped bag. To make this one will need about seven inches of ribbon three inches wide. Fold in three parts turning back the sides of one end to form the flap of the envelope. the envelope.

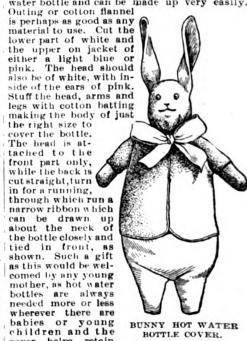

BOODLE BAG.

Seam up the bag neatly and turn inside out, then line with an inner bag of chamois. Finish all edges with a small silk cord. Place a small snap fastener at the point of the flap and one at either end of the inside of the bag. An edge of narrow full lace may be substituted for the cord, if one prefers.

Bunny Hot Water Bottle Cover

This cover is designed for use on a baby's water bottle and can be made up very easily. Outing or cotton flannel cover helps retain the needed warmth and adds to baby's comfort.

Sewing Box

A very attractive and useful little gift may be made of small pieces of silk or figured cot-ton goods; lined with a plain tone will answer

Copyright renewed, 1908 by Mrs. Georgie Sheldon Downs. Serial rights by W. H. Gannett, Pub., Inc.

CHAPTER I.

THE VILLAGE WARD.

THE VILLAGE WARD.

T was a chill November day, the wind whistled a mournful dirke, the sea echoed its grief in a low, monotonous, sullen roar, and the somber clouds dropped their tears in sympathy, and cast long, pall-like shadows over the whole earth.

Along a low, sandy beach, where the incoming waves almost washed its wheels, there came apace, on this chill November day, an elegant coach, drawn by a noble span of bays.

Evidently the day's journey had been a long and tedious one, for the panting horses were flecked with foam, and now and then lagged as with weariness, while the driver appeared restless and anxious, and the footman was half asleep.

fleeked with foam, and now and then lagged as with weariness, while the driver appeared restless and anxious, and the footman was half asleep.

At length a distant spire was seen rising among the trees so bare and brown, and soon after a little village appeared in view, its neat, white houses seeming like so many white doves brooding upon their nests.

A few minutes more and the imposing coach drew up before an ancient and rather uninviting looking structure, sheltered beneath the bare but protecting arms of a venerable elm tree, of no one could tell how many centuries' growth.

This was the village inn, in a low, rambling building, with its small, old-fashioned windows, its wide, hospitable doors, and its yawning fireplaces, telling that it belonged to a previous age, and had been fashioned according to antiquated modes of architecture.

With a deep-drawn sigh of relief, the footman sprang to the ground as the horses stopped, opened the coach door with a low bow, and a young, fine-looking man of about twenty alighted. He was followed by a stately dame of perhaps forty, who, judging from the points of resemblance between them, must have been his mother.

They were met at the door by a gaping, ill-looking man, who appeared to be the proprietor, and who preceded them into the receiving room, and stirred the dull fire into a more cheerful blaze, and toward which the lady advanced to warm her chilled hands and feet.

The young man lingered a moment to give some directions to the coachman, and then he, too, entered the dismal place.

At the foot of the stairs, in the hall, he descried, what his mother, in her weariness, had passed unnoticed by, a little maid upon her knees, with scrubbing brush, soap and water, hard at work upon the wide, old-fashioned oaken planks which led into the story above.

She had just reached the bottom as the stranger appeared. She arose, leaving her brush upon the floor, and stood with downcast eyes to let him pass, for the last stair came to the very door of the receiving room.

the floor, and stood with downcast eyes to let him pass, for the last stair came to the very door of the receiving room.

Scarcely heeding her, and paying very little attention to his steps, the young man's toe suddenly came in contacts with the scrubbing brush with considerable force, and sent it flying with cruel speed against the bare and slender ankle of the girl.

A sudden spring to one side, and a quickly stifled cry of pain, made him turn instantly to see what mischief he had done.

He saw a fair young girl of perhaps thirteen summers, standing in a drooping attitude, a weary, pained look upon a face as delicate and beautiful as any he had ever seen in his life. Her broad, rather low forehead was surrounded by short, clustering, jetty curls, soft and fine as floss, straight, delicately penciled eyebrows, lying above white, drooping lids with long black curling lashes, cheeks smooth and fine as damask, with the dainty tint of a seashell's heart upon them, small ears like tinted pearls, a straight, small nose, and lips not too full, but of a most vivid scarlet.

Her arms, which were bare to the elbow, were of perfect mold, tabering down to the little hands.

vivid scarlet.

Her arms, which were bare to the elbow, were of perfect mold, tapering down to the little hands, which, although red and soiled from her disagreeable task, were models of symmetry and grace.

Instinctively his eyes dropped to the little bare feet, and he was startled to see upon one, a long, livid mark, where the offending brush had inflicted its cruel wound.

Infinitely surprised at beholding so much beauty in so lowly a place, and conscience-smitten at his own awkwardness, he spoke in gentle tones:

ten at his own awkwardness, he spoke in gende tones:

"Little maiden, I pray your pardon. I was very careless, and you are hurt," and he glanced in compassion at the rapidly swelling foot.

"It is nothing, sir; I do not mind," she returned, patiently, yet he knew she was suffering from the line of pain between her eyebrows.

"I am very sorry," he added, then dropping a golden coin at her feet, he turned to follow the stately dame, his mother, within the receiving room.

the stately dame, his mother, within the receiving room.

But quicker than he, the injured girl sprang before him, her eyes of blackest hue now raised unflinchingly to his, her fair, soft cheek all ablaze with some inward emotion suddenly stirred.

Her delicate crimson lips curled with something of scorn and wounded feeling, as pointing with one little finger to the shining gold lying upon the floor, she said, coldly, but in clear, rich

Sir, you have dropped something upon the

He looked at her in amaze.

But for her ragged and soiled dress, and her wretched surroundings, she might have been some haughty Lilliputian princess.

He saw that she resented his throwing her the money, and yet he felt he owed her some return for his carelessness.

"But I meant it for you, my poor child, as a sort of apology for my awkwardness," he answered, and a slight smile of amusement curled his handsome lips at her haughty air; it seemed natural to her, and yet in her poverty-stricken garb, so utterly out of place.

"Your kind and gracious words are very pleasant to me, sir," she replied, with a slight quiver of her sweet lips, as though she was unaccustomed to such sounds then she added, firmly: "But your gold I do not want."

More and more surprised, particularly at her correct language and mature bearing, the young man for a moment could do nothing but stare, as one fascinated, into the dusky upraised eyes, while he read there the evidence of a spirit as proud as his very own.

Who was she, this dainty piece of humanity, living in such a miserable place, doing such hard and unfitting labor, and looking more like some neglected little pauper than anything else?

The young man began to experience a feeling of embarrassment creeping over him at the position in which he found himself placed. The child still stood in his path, the little rosy finger still pointing at the shining coin upon the floor.

It was evident that she did not mean to touch it, while his own pride forbade him to stoop to pick it up after having once bestowed it upon her.

"If you do not care for the money," he said, gently, and with a sense of respect stealing over to pick it up after having once bestowed it upon her.

"If you do not care for the money," he said, gently, and with a sense of respect stealing over him, "will you not keep it as a little token of remembrance?"

"I do not need a token; I shall never forget you, nor that you have spoken kindly to me, while I live," she answered, with a quiver of passion in her voice, while there was a suspicious trembling of the heavily-fringed lids, a startling tear in the dark eyes, and the shining, proudly-lifted head drooped just a trifle.

Deeply touched by her words, he turned quickly away, and walked to the open door again.

The house fronted the sea, which now roared, and heaved, and beat upon the beach, like some ressfless caged animal in a passion, striving to burst from its prison.

The house fronted the sea, which now roared, and heaved, and beat upon the beach, like some restless caged animal in a passion, striving to burst from its prison.

A steady rain was beginning to fall; the wind was rising, making wild, weird noises as it whistled through the bare brown branches of the huge elm tree, and among the loose clapboards of the shabby house.

There was something grand and mighty in the broad, deep waters, and taking off his hat and tessing back the heavy masses of chestmut hair from his high, white brow, the young stranger stood fascinated by the scene.

Suddenly he was conscious of a light step behind him, and in another instant the child sprang forward, dropped the piece of gold into his hat, then darting swiftly away, fell upon her knees again, and returned vigorously to her task.

Pretending to be still looking out upon the sea, he turned a little to one side and covertly watched her.

Every movement, even about the obnaxious task, was full of a light and airy grace that was as wonderful as it was out of place; and the young man, with rising indignation, felt as if he would like to seize the offending brush and cast it into the depths of the sea, rescue the poor little waif from her misery, and place her in a position befitting her refinement and beauty. The last stair had scarcely attained a state of perfect cleanliness, when a harsh, shrill voice from some remote regions, to the stranger unknown, called out:

"Sibyl! Sibyl! you lazy jade, how much longer you goin' to be 'bout them stairs?"

The child started, cast a quick, mortified glance at the quiet figure in the doorway, colored a vivid, painful crimson, and hastily selzing the pall of dirty water, all too heavy for her slender frame, she quickly vanished from the place.

"Sibyl—a prophetess; it should rather have been Sara—a princess. I am willing to wager place.

"Sibyl—a prophetess; it should rather have been Sara—a princess. I am willing to wager my handsome bays, though, that the child does not belong here. That low-browed villain," with a glance at the innkeeper approaching from without, "was never her father, whoever her mother may be."

with these thoughts passing in his mind, the stranger turned away to avoid the propriétor of the dismal establishment, and sought his mother in the receiving room.

CHAPTER II.

"THE ENCHANTED PRINCESS."

"Mother, did you notice that child scrubbing the stairs as we came in?" he asked, as he approached the stately and very beautiful lady, who had removed her outer garments, and was striving to make herself comfortable by the poor fire in the very comfortless-looking apartment.

"No, Raymond, I did not particularly. I only knew that there was some one there; I was too cold and benumbed to think of anything but getting warm. But what of her?"

"A modern Cinderella—a princess bewitched, and as charming a piece of humanity as ever was born in palace or hall, and doomed by those cruel goddesses, the Parcæ, to poverty and rags!"

"Yes, I do remember now that I saw a ragged, dirty, barefooted little girl scrubbing the stairs. Pray, what glamour has come over your eyes, Pray, what glamour has come over your eyes, Raymond, to turn her into such a vision of love-

Nothing but my own observation," he replied. "Nothing but my own observation," he replied, coloring slightly beneath her words.
"I think I shall have to take a closer look at this enchanting, or rather enchanted, little princess, if she becomes visible again tonight. Did you discover her name?"
"Sibyl. I heard an owl, or some other bird of ill-omen, screech it out from some of the secret regions of this dismal place; and the poor little thing rushed away as if her very life depended upon instant obedience."

thing rushed away as if her very life depended upon instant obedience."

"This is a dismal place, Ray. Must we stay here all night? Cannot we go on to the next town after the horses are fed?" his mother asked, somewhat anxiously, and looking about the bare apartment.

"I think we must remain here, mother; that is, if they can accommodate us with a decent bed and something to eat. The horses are wearied out, and it is raining hard. If we had not lost our way, and been obliged to travel so many extra miles, we could easily have reached Uncle Royal's tonight. I regret it exceedingly on your account; on my own part, I rather enjoy the adventure in this strange, wild place."

"I like to have you enjoy yourself, Ray, but I must say I wish you could choose your pleasures in a different location, and nearer civilization. Here you have been dragging me about this forlorn country for more than a week, until I feel like a heathen, and look like a gypsy," she said, shaking her finger at him in mock displeasure.

"I had my orders to keep you near the sea, you know: you are getting a beautiful color. I like a heathen, and look like a gypsy," she said, shaking her finger at him in mock displeasure.

"I had my orders to keep you near the sea, you know; you are getting a beautiful color, I own, though not at all gypsyish; and, for a heathen, I like you very well," her son replied, laughing, and giving her a fond look.

"I know what your orders were, Ray, and no one could have been more faithful in obeying them. The sea air has done me good, and I shall go home stronger than I have been for many a long month; but I shall tell your father, next time, that I should like my medicine sugar-coated with a little more of life and civilization."

Again the young man laughed, yet at the same time he looked annoyed.

He knew that they were in a very uncomfortable predicament, and, though he knew that his mother was only jesting, and would really make the best of their situation, yet the barrenness of the place, and the lack of every luxury to which she was daily and hourly accustomed, was a severe trial, and the next day, also, if the storm continued, would seem very long and tedious to her.

"Who knows, mother mine," he said, speaking continued, would seem very long and tedious to her.

"Who knows, mother mine," he said, speaking lightly, "but what this week, which you say has been so dismal for you, will be the means of bringing my fate to me."

"I am sure I cannot see where it is coming from, unless you break your neck stumbling over more of those huge rocks like those we clambered over yesterday; or perhaps, though, it has come to you already, Ray, in the form of your little 'enchanted princess,' Sybil," she retorted, in a spirit of mischief.

princess, Sybil," she retorted, in a spirit of mischief.

"Stranger things than that have happened—the latter I mean, not the breaking of my neck," he answered, in the same strain.

"Madam, sir, your supper is ready."

Both lady and gentleman started at the clear, flute-like tones, and turned to see whence they proceeded, and both were surprised at the rude loveliness of the picture which met their eyes. Sibyl, with her fresh young face, her large, lustrous eyes, and clustering curls, stood in the low doorway, near the fireplace.

The ruddy light of the fire flashed and flamed over her, bringing out her wonderful beauty in a way to startle her observers, and at the same time hiding the defects of her shabby dress, her bare feet and legs, by the dusky shadow it made around her.

Her cheeks were crimson, and after one searching glance into each face, her eyes drooped and were hidden by her long, dark lashes, while she stood modestly awaiting their orders.

Her sleeves had been pulled down and were buttoned around the delicate wrists, while Raymond and his mother both noticed that the short clustering curls had been freshly and nicely combed and arranged.

"Little girl, come here," Raymond said, wishing ed and arranged.

"Little girl, come here," Raymond said, wishing The child lifted ler head, and flashed a swift look of defiance at him, but did not move from look of defiance at him, but did not move from her position.

Evidently, the imperative mood was calculated to arouse her antagonism.
Her utter disregard of his command was a new revelation and pleased him, strange to tell, more than prompt obedience would have done. He wondered if she had heard what they were saying. But he was not one to give up a point readily, and advancing nearer to her he said, gently:

readily, and advancing nearer to her he said, gently:

"This lady is my mother, Lady Prescott, and I was just telling her how carelessly I hurt you in the hall a little while ago."

"It was nothing, sir—it does not hurt much now," and the defiant eyes softened and sank again to the floor.

"Will you come and speak to the lady now?" She went instantly and stood before Lady Prescott.

cott,
"Your name is Sibyl, is it not?" she asked, kindly, and studying the child's delicate features.
"You lady." es, lady

"Yes, lady."
"How old are you?" look of startled pain came into the large, sad eyes.

"I—don't know, lady—they say thirteen."
The words were jerked out with an effort.
Evidently, it was a tender subject.

"Who are 'they?'"

"Why, he and she."
A smile of amusement curled the lady's lips,

A shille of all described the lady's lips, which Sibyl, quick to see and interpret, hastened to complete her sentence, by adding:
"I mean Jem and Nell Sloan—they keep the place here." place that their name? Do you go to school?" ontinued, without waiting for an answer to she continued, without waiting for an answher first question.

"No, lady," was the sad, dejected reply.
"Can you read and write?"

"I can read some—I can write a little; a kind lady who is sick, and comes to the seaside every summer, taught me—but she don't know it," with a quick glance over her shoulder in the direction a quick glance over her shoulder in the direction of the kitchen.

"Blessings on the kind, sick lady!" Raymond breathed to himself.

Instinctively, the little hand crept over the region of her pocket, and a keen glance showed him the ragged edges of a book sticking out.

"Will you let me see it?" he asked, pointing at it.

him the ragged edges of a book sticking out.

"Will you let me see it?" he asked, pointing at it.

She uttered a little, startled cry.

"Oh! I didn't know it showed—please don't tell," she said, pathetically, and flushing a guilty crimson, as if she had been detected in some forbidden act.

"No, I will not tell. What book is it?"

"I only want to learn how to talk as the kind lady does—it is so beautiful, but it is so hard to do; and I don't know all the meaning of what I read here." she said, as she drew forth a soiled and ragged book, and laid it in his extended palm.

A strange feeling of pity and compassion moved him as he opened it, and found it to be an old and nearly worn-out grammar.

"Where did you get this book?" he asked.

"I picked shells for the sick lady last summer—she told me I needed to study grammar—and she gave me a whole shilling. I heard Harry Bend say his mother had one, and," lowering her voice to a whisper, with another stealthy look behind her, "I bought it of her."

"Why are you so secret about it, Sibyl?" asked Lady Prescott, gravely.

The rich color mounted to her brow, and a look of shame passed over her face.

"Because they say it is nonsense, and beat me," she whispered.

"Poor child! Do you thirst so for knowledge,"

"Because they say it is nonsense, and beat me," she whispered.

"Poor child! Do you thirst so for knowledge, and have to steal it?" Raymond demanded, while there was a note of anger in his tones, which made the child start in sudden fear.

Then the proud, defiant spirit broke forth again.

Then the proud, denant spine again.

"It is the only thing I ever—I do not—you have no right to say that I steal! It isn't stealing!" she cried, indignantly, and the little breast heaved, convulsively.

Raymond saw that she misunderstood him, and hastened to set her right.

"Pardon, pardon, little maiden; you do not understand. I meant nothing unkind. Would you like to go to school?"

"To school? Oh, sir!"

The words were almost rapturously uttered,

The words were almost rapturously uttered, but they ended in a sob, deep as it was bitter, as if such a blessing as that she could never hope to if such a blessing as that she could never hope to enjoy.

"Why does not your mother allow you to go to school, Sibyl, and give you an opportunity to learn?" asked Lady Prescott, feeling deeply moved by what she had heard.

The child started back from her, her eyes ablaze, her head erect, and her little hands clinched.

"My mother!" she cried, passionately, in suppressed tones. "Do you think she is my mother? Do you think my mother would do that, and that?"

Swift as thought, she pushed up her sleeve

that?"
Swift as thought, she pushed up her sleeve to her shoulder, and showed two large, livid marks upon her delicate flesh. Then her self-command forsook her, all her desolateness seemed to rush over her like a torrent, and, with a wild, heart-broken sob, she cried:
"Lady, I—I haven't any mother!"
Lady Prescott's eyes filled with sudden tears. She put out her jeweled hand and drew the girl to her side, and looked into the beautiful, flushed face.

flushed face.
"Dear child," she said, softly, and to Sibyl the "Dear child," she said, sortly, and to Shyl the words were the sweetest music she had ever heard in her life, "I did not mean to wound you thus. I think I shall have to intercede for you, but we will talk more of this by and by. Did you say that our tea was ready?"

"Yes, lady."

The words were spoken almost with reverence,

CHAPTER III. MY LADY'S BRIBE.

Sir Athelstone Prescott belonged to an illustrious family, residing in the southeast of Eng-

Sir Athelstone Prescott belonged to an mustrious family, residing in the southeast of England.

The son of a physician, he early showed an inclination to become a master of healing, also, and, after completing a thorough collegiate course, he spent several years in the study and practise of medicine, under his father's direction, after which he went to Dunfries, a large city in the south of Scotland, where, by the exercise of his skill and knowledge, he was not long in establishing for himself a magnificent practise.

He early married a lovely girl—the daughter of the vicar in whose benefice he resided—and life began for them in the most promising manner.

Their union was blessed by one child only—a son—Raymond Athelstone Prescott he was called, thus combining the names of his maternal grandfather, the vicar, and his father.

He was reared in the tenderest and most careful manner.

Every advantage was bestowed upon him, and, sssessing a quick, keen intellect, his education, the time of which we are writing, was near-completed.

ly completed.

During the past month he had been traveling, with his mother, whose health had seemed to demand a change, and, Sir Athelstone being unable to leave his important practise, Raymond had been recalled from his studies at Edinburgh to attend her.

They were now on their way back to Dumfries, having made a tour of England and Wales.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 10.)

assistance through the interenance of meas-alouse of this privilege, such as histing cor-respondence for the purpose of offering an ar-ticle for sale, or undertaking to charge a sum of momer for ideas, recipes or information men-tioned in any letter appearing in this dipart-ment if reported, will result in the offender be-leg denied the use of these columns.

Do not ask us to publish letters requesting money contributions or donations of any sort. Nuch as we sympathize with the suffering and un fortunate, it is impossible to do this as we would be flooded with similar requests.

Do not request souvenir postals unless you have compled with the conditions which entitles you to such a notice. See postal request notice in another column.

The second of the control of the con

DEER COMPOSE BYINES.

Will Controll readors living in Virginia write to may be continued to the control of the

DEAR COMPORT SISTERS:

We have had Comport in our home for at least add one table.

We have had Comport in our home for at least twicty years.

Mrs. H. L. Helder, I am convinced that slapping and all such habits of little ones are simply in directed energy and not any bad tendencies. I have four children but not until my youngest came did I learn this, When his little hands arist went up to slep or pull hair, I said, "This is a better way to love meaning," and took his little hand and directed it to smooth my hair or gently pat my cheek. When he lessant have blief and two paths of seeding or spanking him, I said, "Let's do it this for seeding or spanking him, I said, "Let's do it this way," and showed him some other amuseneed. I do not believe children ever do things to be naughty un-

Comfort Sisters' Recipes

Sisters
Corner

When the conducted solely for the use of Courons sisters, whereby they may give expression to their bleas relative to the bound and home surroundings, and to all matters per forming to themselves and families; as well as well as a present of the conducted solely for the use of courses and covers sisters, whereby they may give expression to their bleas relative to the home of home surroundings, and to all matters per forming to themselves and families; as well as expression to their bleas relative to the home course into sites and covers on the course of the private to the home course into sites and covers on the course of the covers of Subsects and serve hot. Cannot tomatoes may be used instead with good results.

Buth Roast. Boil a good rosst till almost tender. Put in roaster and sprinkle with chili pepper peel four large postness and hol a few minutes in front meat was cooked in. Take out and slove and lay around the meat. Over this shred a large onton Bake showly two hours, basting every few minutes.

E. B., Arlington, Teas.

Chor Silly. Two points of next veal and may be used to the cream before serving.

E. B., Arlington, Texas.

Criter Still. Two pounds of meat, year and perk.

Cut this into small pieces. Cut up three bunches of celery and six onions of medium size. Stew the meat in one tablespoon of butter, season with saft, pepper, one third teaspoon emanation and one quarter teaspoon ginger. After a few minutes add a little water When half done, add two tablespoons of molasses to the meat, adding also the celery and onions which have been yellowed in butter. Stew all of this till done and serve with rice.

Subscriber, Wisconsin.

BEAN GEAUS. Two cops of milk, one and one half cups of bran, one half cup whole wheat, one half cup brean flour, one egg, two tablespoons melasses, one teaspoon soda, one half teaspoon salt and one table-spoon butter.

thoroughly, senson and add one beaten egg.

Swidt Polyto Choquetties.— Mix two cups of cold masked sweet polatoes with two teaspoons of butter, one egg, well beaten, soilt and pepper to taste,
Make into small cakes, dip in beaten egg, roll in cracker crumbs and fry.

Bigen Polytops.— Cut boiled sweet polatoes into shees. Into a buttered baking dish put a layer of polatoes, sprinkle with sugar and dot with pieces of butter. Add another layer of polatoes and sugar and butter and so on till dish is full. Over this pour half a cup of milk or enough to slightly moisten and bake.

Tomatoes and Corn.—This can be made of left over

Tomatoes and Corn.—This can be made of left over

Temporal and countries and one half teaspoon soils, beaten white of the egg and sen and one half cups flour.

ICING.—One cup powdered sugar, two teaspoons to the first over the politic soil and being and one half cups flour.

ICING.—One cup powdered sugar, two teaspoons of baking ammonia. Put one half cup belling water on ammonia and stir until all is dispoised, Mix as a cake and then work flour enough in to make stiff H., Pennsylvania.

Bake a None Such

WAR PIE —It Has No Top Crust—

It saves where it is needed, and you don't lose in goodness with

"Like Mother Used To Make"

Save half the flour, shortening, labor, expense. Appetizing and wholesome. Try a pie crust with Whole Wheat or Rye Flour. Very healthful.

of all great diplomatic affairs of the nations is said by other newspapers to be the most complete in the world, its news is "news" whenever received by the subscriber.

It omits entirely from its columns the sensationalism which makes up so large a part of the news of the day usually seen by the public.

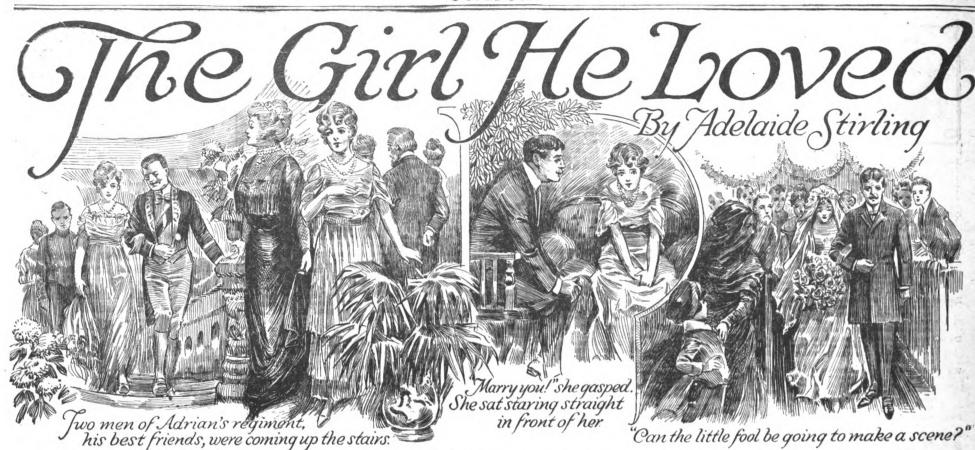

Advertising columns are also completely censored.

A single article is devoted each day to a discussion of Christian Science for those who are interested.

The paper is in reality "An International Daily Newspaper"- the first one ever published.

The Christian Science Monitor is on general sale throughout the world at news stands, hotels and Christian Science reading-rooms at 3c a copy. A monthly trial subscription by mail anywhere in the world for 75c, a sample copy on request.

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY

Copyright, 1900, by Street and Smith. Serial rights by W. H. Gannett, Pub., Inc.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

EXNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Lady Annesley, disapproves of Adrian Gordon, who is in love with Ravenel. Receiving an appointment to India Adrian seals his proposal and Ravenel's promise for an early marriage, by giving her a beautiful ring of diamonds and opals. Not daring to wear it she slips it on a ribbon on her neck. Ravenel bids Adrian good by, unconscious that their conversation, held near the edge of a quarry is heard by Lady Annesley's confidential maid. Four days later Ravenel receives a letter from Adrian that he will go to the Duchess of Avonmore's party and names the following day for their marriage. Lady Annesley, apparently anxious for Ravenel to make a good appearance at the party provides her with a new dress. Ravenel is unsuspicious of intrigue, but Sir Thomas, only sixteen, suspects the scheming woman and her designs on Lord Levallion, a former suitor for her hand, as Ravenel's future husband. Going to the party and not meeting Adrian, Ravenel, with a sob in her throat, wanders through the garden, where she meets Lord Levallion, not knowing it is be. Weary and wanting to go home he offers to take her there. Arriving home she hunts for the lost ring but does not find it. The next day Ravenal prepares for her wedding and waits for Adrian, who fails to meet her. Going home she enters the drawing-room, where she finds Lady Annesley and Lord Levallion, the latter telling her of his cousin Adrian Gordon's departure for India. The Duchess of Avonmore, to Lord Levallion's delight, invites Ravenal and Sir Thomas to her home.

CHAPTER IX.

REVENGE-AND A BALLROOM.

HE Duchess of Avonmore was giving a ball, and she prided herself on giving the best balls in London.

The big house was a fairy-land of flowers and lights, the staircase was impassable. Ravenel, standing by her hostess in a white satin gown with a string of the Avonmore pearls round her neck, was beautiful enough to take away a man's breath. The duchess, swelling with pride in blue velvet and diamonds, was enraptured at her looks, for there had been no want of animation in Ravenel ever since that visit to Hester Murray. She was feverishly gay and full of laughter. Not even Sir Thomas knew her spirits came from pride alone.

No wonder Adrian Gordon had jilted her, and no wonder he had wished to keep that mad plan of marriage a secret! He had had excellent reason. It all held together too plausibly for doubt. No one—no one should ever know what a fool Ravenel Annesley had been, to believe in the sweet lies, the passionate promises of a lover like Adrian Gordon. She was glad she had lost his ring; she thanked the fate that had made him repent at the last moment and leave her.

No one seeing her tonight would have dreamed she had a care in the world; yet behind her smile her teeth set suddenly. Two men of Adrian's regiment, his best friends, were coming up the stairs. They should not have to tell him if they wrote that the girl with whom he had amused himself in the country was either sad or sorry for his sake.

for his sake.

wrote that the girl with whom is and andsed himself in the country was either sad or sorry for his sake.

She looked about her sharply for a weapon, for some man whose outspoken devotion should let these men see how little she cared. And there—at her side—was Levallion.

He bowed to her with his old half-mocking politeness. He was very handsome for all his years, and his evening clothes seemed to take from his age. His keen eyes were full of admiration. Ravenel held out her hand, nearly touching those two men, who knew her by sight from seeing her with Adrian Gordon.

"You!" she cried. "At last! Do you know you have never come near me?"

"I was warned off," calmily. "I am not supposed to be a good playmate for little girls."

"Now, Levallion, do move on!" cried the ducheess over her shoulder. "You can't talk here," for he was calmly blocking the way.

"I told you so," he commented, perfectly unmoved; he took Ravenel's program, where it dangled from her fan, and wrote his name on it four times in succession.

Two hours later the whole room was agog. Levallion, who never spoke to a girl and had not danced for years, was doing both.

And he danced admirably. Even the duchess, who was furious, allowed that. But she was so angry with him that she even snubbed her dear friend, Mrs. Murray, who—looking her innocent best in white—was most uneasy at the sight of Sylva's stepdaughter on such excellent terms with the only man who ought not to hear of "Mrs. Gordon."

"Dear Grace," she said pathetically, "do tell that poor child that she was richt the second of the content of the care of "Mrs. Gordon."

"Mrs. Gordon."

"Dear Grace," she said pathetically, "do tell that poor child that she will have no reputation left if she makes herself conspicuous with the most notorious man in London."

The duchess gave her a stare.

"Tom Annesley's child and my adopted daughter," she remarked calmly, if untruthfully, for she had no idea whatever of adopting Ravenel, "has reputation enough to do anything she pleases." And she turned a stout shoulder on her friend to the joy of the on-lookers.

But, nevertheless, she went post-haste in search of Levallion and his partner, who had mysteriously vanished. And in her own house looked in vain.

Lord Levallion was no novice. He had found

Lord Levallion was no novice. He had found the only dark place in the conservatory, and there know—Lady Annesiey! Can't 1—isn't there anything I could do to earn my living, and Tommy's?"

"No!" and for once he spoke bluntly. "There is nothing you could do. You are too handsome; women would not have you in their houses!"

She thought of the long, long summer days at the Chase, with thoughts of Adrian wherever she turned, and was frightened—at herself. Here she could live it down, there—a sob rose in her throat. But she said nothing. She sat like a stone, her hand lying as it had fallen from Levallion's coat-sleeve.

Somehow, she had thought this man might help her, friend of Sylvia's though he was.

Levallion glanced at her pale face. There was certainly more than dread of Sylvia there, but it was no concern of his. And without it the girl would never have been here.

"You don't want to go home, and you can't work," he said brutally. "There is one other thing you can do—marry me!"

"Marry you!" she gasped. She sat staring straight in front of her, her hands clenched in the folds of her satin skirt. "No, no, no!" she cried fiercely. "I can't marry any one. You don't know me; you can't want me—you—"

"Are a friend of Sylvia's!" he finished for her quietly. "Listen! I do want to marry you, and I want to know nothing"—emphatically—"about you that I do not know already. Do you understand?"

A terror shook her. Could he know what a fool she had been, what a laughing-stock she had wede-about the started the sta stand?"

A terror shook her. Could he know what a fool she had been, what a laughing-stock she had made of herself for a married man? She could not speak.

"As for being a friend of Lady Annesley's, I may tell you that the only reason I do not wish to marry you is that it will please her. But that will not matter. She will go out of your life as she came into it. You need never see her when you marry me."

"But I don't love you," she said, with hard eyes.

eyes.
Levallion smiled.
"I haven't asked you for love," he returned indifferently. "I don't know that I expect it. I am forty-seven years old, and I have no home but grand empty houses, no relations but Adrian Gordon"—if she winced he did not see—"and I want you—and Tommy!"
"Tommy says you are an old beast," said Ravenel, with despairing frankness.
"So I am!" watching her. "But even I have my good points, though I would not reform even if you married me; it would bore me. I think, though, I might leave Adrian a decent

"What!" The duchess could not get out another word to save her life. The people about stopped talking and listened.
"She has promised to marry me," said Levallion, laughing.

If there had been a convenient chair her grace would have dropped into it. Levallion! of all men! And yet, why not? He was richer than any man she knew, he was probably no worse than a great many of them, and he had not always shown his evil side to the duchess, who had a sneaking affection for him under her virtuous disapproval. approval approval.

"My dear Levallion," she cried, "I wish you joy! But—well, you have surprised me!"

Levallion smiled. His marriage would surprise a good many people—disagreeably—but that affected him not at all.

"Take me away," said a husky voice in his ear. "Oh, take me away!"

The lights, the staring people, the publicity of it all, were like separate daggers in the heart of the girl, who only a month ago had put on her wedding-gown for a bridegroom who never came. came

The duchess patted her shoulder kindly. No wonder she looked pale and shy!
"Give her some champagne, Levallion," she be and his companion remained long after their four waltzes had crashed out and died languor-life was wise from experience. He had staged says from the house till the girl wondered why he never came. Even now they had been seated for minutooke, the he storped familing her and looked at her.

"When are you going home "he said in collection of the stage of same."

"I'm not selling anything," wearily, for was she not putting behind her the burden of her humilia-

"Tommy, you'll stick to me, won't you? You won't speak little like this again?"
"Of course, I'll stick to you." He got up and kissed her awkwardly. "So will Mr. Jacobs!" and he tried to laugh, conscious of angry tears in his eyes. For it seemed to him that this was no way to get married, to an old man you hardly knew no way to get married, to an old man you hardy knew.

"Good old Tommy!" said Ravenel unsteadily. She little knew that he and his dog would be her last chance of salvation in dark days to come; but something in Tommy's honest face had gone near to shaking her purpose, even on the night before her wedding. What she was doing looked suddenly mean and paltry to her, as she knew it would to Tommy, if he guessed it. She looked at the clock, that marked eleven. Twelve hours more, and not even shame or repentance could undo the wreck she had made of Adrian Gordon's fortunes. And all that night she sat by her bed and deliberately let those last hours go by, till, at dawn, she said to herself, with cold lips, that, after all, Adrian Gordon's future was no business of hers.

after all, Adrian Gordon's future was no business of hers.

Lady Annesley—come up to town on Levallion's money, and almost off her head with the excellent allowance that was to be hers for the future, with escape from Annesley Chase forever—could not believe her eyes when she actually saw her stepdaughter go up the aisle of St. George's on Sir Thomas' arm. "It was that white gown!" She bowed her head devoutly as the service began. "It was an inspiration. And the little fool should go on her knees to thank me. That Gordon man could never have given her a wedding like this!"

He could not, indeed.

Ravenel had never lifted her eyes as she passed up the aisle, whiter than death under her lace yell. Adrian Gordon would have taken her to an empty ceuntry church, where the scent of the May would have swent through the open windows; where her soul, as she knelt beside him, would have mounted the very steps of heaven—and, now—

For the first time she lifted her head, remembering, with agony, that day in May when she and, now—

For the first time she lifted her head, remembering, with agony, that day in May when she had seen, as in a vision, what her wedding would be with any man but Adrian Gordon,

It was on her; she was in the very center of it. The cold air of the church seemed to strike on her face like a breath from the grave, as in that dreadful prescient moment when the veil seemed lifted from the future. She stood, helpless, just as she had known she would, when Adrian forsook her.

The crowd of smart records in account.

sook her.

The crowd of smart people, in gorgeous gowns and frock coats, whispering indifferently; the bishop, whose words were chaining her to Levallion forever; the organ pealing through the church; the bride with a heart of stone!

No one ever knew how near that quiet bride came to screaming aloud in a nightmare of terror; nor how she had all but turned and run, frantically, from the very altar.

But something struck her dumb and powerless where she stood.

Only Levallion's level voice, as he spoke out (CONTINUED ON PAGE 14.)

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 14.)

Last Chance to Renew 2 Years for 30 Cents

On and after the first day of January our 2-year renewal price will be 40 cents. During this present month of December you still have the chance to renew or extend your subscription 2 full years for only 30 cents.

But positively this is your last chance. So don't miss it.

Don't Delay. Renew Today.

Where else can you get so much for your money as in 2 years of COMFORT, 24 monthly issues, for only 30 cents?

That figures one and a quarter cent per month, one and a quarter cent for each of the 24 copies you receive during the two years. Can you afford to be without COMFORT at 1¼ Cent per Month?

Remember, this special, low rate is for renewals only (not for new subscriptions) and the offer holds good only through this present December. A 2-year renewal mailed any time this month will be accepted at the 30-cent rate. But don't wait. Don't put it off. You may overlook it until too late.

Even if your subscription is already paid some months ahead, renew now at the special, low renewal rate and we will extend your subscription two full years beyond date of

Send 30 Cents Today for 2-Year Renewal

By Violet Marsh

Copyright, 1917, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher. Inc.

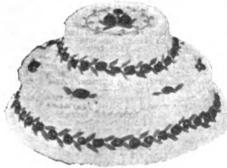

HAT would Christmas be without Christmas candies," is the wail going up all over the land from both children and grown-ups, as we are and grown-ups, as we are daily reminded of the price and grown-ups, as we are daily reminded of the price and scarcity of sugar.

However, it is not necessary that Christmas be shorn of all its sweets, if we will but exercise some forethought with a little harmless camouflage, in the use of substitutes, making dried fruits and nuts largely take the place of sugar. Camouflage, that new word which has come to us from the French so recently that it has not yet got into our dictionaries, means disguise and more especially in the sense of the imitative disguise used on the theatrical stage. Camouflage has assumed an important role in the present war to deceive the prying eyes of aerial scouts, and scene painters are employed to make cannon resemble natural objects in the landscape while ships are striped with sunset tints, that blend with the sky tones at the horizon and escape detection by prowling submarines.

As war prices and scarcity of certain kinds of food have driven the housewife to the use of substitutes she will do well to resort to camouflage discreetly practised to make the substitute do better service by more closely resembling in looks and taste the article which it imitates.

We can have mock mince pie for the real, Indian pudding with suet and raisins instead of English plum pudding, a simple cake with CHRISTMAS CAKE.

Christmas decorations instead of the old-time fruit cake, candies made largely from dried fruits and nuts, and we can confine ourselves entirely to the use of native vegetables and fruits, and in this way hold to our old holdiday customs of entertaining and merrymaking, and at the same time placing the cost at the lowest minimum possible by imitating the usual with substitutes. A decrease in our annual Christmas candy consumption of, say, even one tenth isn't much for the "home-fighter," and when multiplied by a hundred million of us, will provide much energy-giving food to our army boys and our needy allies. So in making up the Christmas plans, put into them the sending of as many Christmas boxes as possible to the soldier-boys in one or other of the numerous training camps in this country, fill them with homemade cakes and candies, and whatever else can be spared. Sharing with our country's defenders is of far more importance just now than our own sweet tooth. It is, of course, too late now to send Christmas boxes to our soldiers in France and England. The last ship carrying mail to reach them by Christmas sailed November 15. However, packages can be sent to them by parcel post at any time, but remember that they will be a long time on the road, and therefore do not send perishable food.

This is a year for the daughters of the house who have so faithfully knitted for the army and navy to assume the responsibility of making the

This is a year for the daughters of the house who have so faithfully knitted for the army and navy to assume the responsibility of making the Christmas goodles, still doing their bit by saving all they can. And besides this, any girl who can make home-made Christmas cakes and candles, will find her gifts most popular. Some sentiment written on the card that goes with the basket or box similar to the following will help carry out the idea:

"The shops I've hunted through and through For daintiest gifts to send to you, But could not find a gift more meet Than this of 'Sweets unto the sweet.'"

Christmas Table Centerpiece

The basket used in centerpiece was of Japanese make colored red. In the center is a large pineapple with top cut off smooth, and in its place closed Japanese lantern with Japanese doll's move peel in quarters and cut into long narrow.

SOUR CREAM FEATHER CAKE.

head showing in center. Surround pineapple with red apples, oranges and nuts. Tie every-green to each handle.

Christmas Cakes

Christmas Cake.—Cream one cup of butter, slowly add one cup of sugar and cream again. Beat to a light lemon color the yolks of four eggs and then beat in one cup of sugar. Add to creamed butter and sugar. Mix together three and one half cups of flour, one teaspoon of cream of tartar, half a teaspoon of soda half a teaspoon each of ground mace and cinnamon. Add alternately to butter, sugar and eggs, one cup of strong coffee and the flour, and next the beaten whites of four eggs. Have prepared half a cup of stoned and chopped raisins, one cup of washed and dried currants, and quarter of a cup of finely sliced citron all lightly dusted with flour. Add lastly to cake batter, and bake in three sizes of round tins in a moderate oven. Frost the largest cake, and while the frosting is soft, set on top the next smaller size and frost that; then the smallest cake which is then frosted. A pretty decoration is made by stringing bright red cranberries on a tiny wire, imitate leaves, if fresh leaves are unobtainable, by wisps of green tissue paper tied on the wire between cranberries. Each end substituting a leaf.

CHRISTMAS TABLE CENTERPIECE.

Snow Cake.—Cream two thirds cup of butter, paper fied on the wire between cramberries. Each end substituting a leaf.

Snow Cake.—Cream two thirds cup of butter, slowly add two cups of sugar, and cream again. To four cups of flour, add two rounding teaspoons of baking powder and one quarter of a teaspoon of salt. Add alternately to the sugar and butter one cup of milk and the flour. Add one teaspoon of almond extract and beat until very smooth. Beat in the whites of six stiffly beaten eggs and bake in an angel cake tin in moderate oven. Cover with white frosting. Around the sides make vertical lines of red by adding a little beet juice to some of the white frosting. Finish each end of lines with a circle. For the snow lady, dress a doll in white canton flannel and sprinkle with diamond dust. Stand in center of cake and surround with tip ends from evergreen boughs.

Sour Cream Feather Cake.—One half cup molasses, one half teaspoon of mixed spice, one half cup of sugar and one cup of sour cream. Beat well together, and then add two and one third cups of sifted flour to which has been added one half teaspoon of soda. Lastly add one half cup of seeded raisins that has been chopped fine. Bake in muffin pans. Frost white and decorate with dice of red jelly or sprigs of holly.

SNOW LADY CAKE.

COCOANUT CAKES.—Grate the meat of two cocoanuts, taking care not to grate into the dark outside. Weigh and take an equal amount of sugar. Add one cup of flour, half a teaspoon of vanilla, and the beaten whites of two eggs. Shape into cakes about one third of an inch thick and bake twenty minutes.

bake twenty minutes.

STAR COOKIES.—Cream one half cup of butter, add one cup of sugar and cream again. Add two eggs lightly beaten and one tablespoon of sweet milk. Beat hard and add one and one half cups of flour mixed with one and one half level teaspoons of baking powder, and enough more flour to handle. Roll a little at a time and cut into five-pointed stars. Bake about ten minutes. Make a white frosting, and just before putting onto cookies, stir_in_red_candied_cherries_chopped_fine. These will be appreciated by the soldier-boy.

Christmas Candies

strips. Put in saucepan of cold water and boil twenty minutes, then drain, and repeat this boiling process twice. To each pint of water, add two even tenspoons of salt. After the third boiling and draining, place straws and an equal measure of sugar in clean saucepan with sufficient cold water to cover; let come to boil and cook until syrup hairs from spoon. Drain, roll in granulated sugar and lay "crisscross" on plates.

Prant Britis — One cup of reasted recourse.

Peanut Britle.—One cup of roasted peanuts chopped or broken into small pieces; line a greased pan with them. Put two cups of sugar into a sauce pan, and very slowly heat until it becomes a thin golden brown syrup, stirring constantly. Pour over the peanuts, and when partly cool, mark in squares, and break apart when cold.

cold.

DRIED FRUIT CAKES.—One cup of dates from which the outer skins have been removed, one cup of cleaned figs and half a cup of walnut meats run through a grinder. Moisten with a little lemon juice and add a little of the grated rind. Very thoroughly mix together, press into a cake tin, and cut into squares. A little while before serving, roll in powdered sugar.

before serving, roll in powdered sugar.

STUFFED DATES.—Clean, slit down the side with a sharp knife and remove stone. Make a filling from equal parts of peanuts (or other kind of nuts) and seeded raisins put through the grinder. To half a cup of ground fruit and nuts, add one tablespoon of heavy sweet cream and powdered sugar sufficient to handle. Work into rolls to fit dates. When filled, roll dates in powdered sugar if desired.

STUFFED PRINES—Select soft large propose.

powdered sugar if desired.

STUFFED PRUNES.—Select soft, large prunes. Wash, slit open the side and remove stone, and in its place put a large sweet almond.

Canded Popcorn.—Put into a perfectly clean iron spider one tablespoon of butter, three tablespoons of water and one teacup of sugar. Boil until it hairs from the spoon. Have ready three quarts of freshly popped corn, put into candy and stir briskly until candy is evenly distributed over corn. Remove from fire and keep stirring until partly cooled and each kernel is crystallized with sugar. Nuts may be prepared in the same way.

MOLASSES CANDY.—Three cups of brown sugar. one cup of molasses, one half teaspoon of cream of tartar, one cup of water, and butter size of a walnut. Boll until a little in cold water becomes brittle. Pour onto buttered plates, and when cool enough to handle, pull until light colored and cut into sticks or squares.

cool enough to handle, pull until light colored and cut into sticks or squares.

Chocolate Caramels.—One cup of molasses, half a cup of sugar, half a cup of milk, one quarter of a pound of chocolate cut fine and one tablespoon of butter. Put all together, letting it slowly warm on the back of stove, stirring frequently, then remove to hot cover and boil hard stirring constantly. When a little hardens in water it is done. Pour into buttered tin, and when cool mark in squares.

Turkish Paste.—Soak two envelopes of gelatine in two thirds cup of cold water ten minutes. Put together two cups of sugar and two thirds cup of cold water and when it boils add the soaked gelatine. Boil gently twenty minutes, then add the grated rind of one orange, and one quarter of a cup of orange juice and one quarter of a cup of lemon julce. Wet tin and pour in mixture to a depth of little less than one inch, when firmly set, immerse tin in warm water a few seconds, then turn out and cut into squares and roll in powdered sugar to which has been added a little corn-starch.

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 5.)

To L. T., I want to say that seventeen years ago I married just such a man and for sixteen years endured. Today I am an old woman, though young in years. My Lealth is broken past all help, I am a nervous wreck, my three older children are away from me and I am lonely for them. I am now in another home and my present husband is kind and loving but I feel that I am not much of a wife because of my poor health.

It is a woman's duty to God to keep herself at her best, mentally, physically and spiritually and she cannot do that under such circumstances. She will grow out of date and broken down under his iron rules and then be cast off for some one who has been able to keep herself fresh and young.

With best wishes to all and many thanks for all the good things I have found in the Corner, I am, Mas, R. S. Shite.

MORROE, OREGON

DEAR COMFORT SISTERS : We have taken this magazine for years and all en-loy it. Mother wrote a letter to the Sisters' Corner a few years ago and gained much useful information a few years ago and gained much useful hillorination thereby.

I am a junior in high school and for the past two years I have walked two and one half miles to school. My one and only brother is in the army, in the Medical Corps branch, doing clerical work. He thinks Uncle Sam takes good care of his soldiers.

I am a member of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Alpine, Oregon. It has always been my desire to be a missionary and work in India. I would like to know more about the educational requirements and what country has the most need of this work.

With best wishes to all, I remain, your sister,

Miss Milder I. Barker.

Middred. The pastor of your church is the person to consult about missionary work. Your desire is truly laudable and praiseworthy, but are you sure you are in dead earnest about it? I don't want to discourage you or say anything against the work and its self-sacrificing workers, but there comes a time in the average girl's life when she wants to be a missionary. It seems to be a certain phase of development that we can't help any more than we can help teething or playing with dolls. I felt the same way about it, years and years ago, only I wanted to go to China instead of India, and all because a woman missionary at our little home church spoke so thrillingly of her adventures there. Needless to say I didn't go and I don't know as I regret it so much now for I have found that there is opportunity for missionary work wherever we are and you will realize the same thing, Mildred, as the years go by. I don't mean to say that I've grasped every opportunity but if we do the best we can I'm sure it won't be overlooked when the final reckoning comes.—Ed.

DEAR COMPORT SISTERS:

I want to say just a word about letters. I receive many from friends. Some are brief, but tender, helpful and sympathetic, while others are long and loving. Some I lay down with a sigh. Almost invariably they say, "Your letter was so interesting, you told us so much, etc.," and then they go on and tell me of various happenings in and around their own home, all of which is duly interesting, but they totally ignore all I have said, all my comments, news questions or requests. I might as well have never written, for all the satisfaction I gain from their reply, and I am left to wonder if I have overstepped courtesy in the questions, if my comments were uncalled for and they wished to remind me of it or whether it is thoughtlessness or ignorance on their part. Not one of them would treat me so if we were engaged in actual conversation. Every remark then would receive due appreciation and consideration. Is it an art to be learned? A really good letter is like a cup of cold water to the thirsty, encouragement in trouble and a labor of love never forgotten. It is like the sunshine sending a glimmer of golden light down among the shadowy pines, making glad the dark places with its brightness.

Best wishes to the Comport family.

brightness.

Best wishes to the Comfort family,

MRS. LULA M. PEARSON.

CAMBRIDGE, MASS. DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:
Especially Mrs. R. C. Edwards, in regard to your little Camille crying all the time. I had a similar case with my own little girl. When she was five years old she cried all the time. I don't think I ever sow her face straight two hours at a time. She was

Popular Jell-O Dishes

Any woman who has to cook for a family or even for a husband alone ought to know how to make the good, substantial things of Jell-O.

The finest cooks in homes of wealthy people are constantly serving in the more substantial forms as well as in desserts and salads.

Take, for example, the recipe printed below for Glorified Rice. Make this up, just to try it, and see if it is not one of the best of all good things to eat.

Glorified Rice

Dissolve a package of Lemon Jell-O in a half-pint of boiling water. Add one-half pint of canned pineapple juice or any fruit-juice. When a cold liquid, whip to the consistency of heavy whipped cream. Have two cups of cold boiled rice cooked dry. Fold the rice into the whipped Jell-O. Add four table-spoonfuls sugar, and salt to taste. Set in a cold place to harden cold place to harden.

Your grocer or storekeeper will sell you all the Jell-O you want at ten cents a package, for the price of Jell-O has not gone up as nearly everything else has.

There are seven different pure fruit flavors of Jell-O: Strawberry, Raspberry, Lemon, Orange, Chocolate, Peach, Cherry. Each 10 cents at any grocery or any general store.

The new Jell-O Book contains recipes for many dishes that are especially pop-Comfort Sisters' Corner ular just now in most American homes. It will be sent tree to a package

any woman who will write and ask us for it. THE GENESEE PURE FOOD COMPANY, Le Roy, N. Y., and Bridgeburg, Ont.

like that for a year and a half and I did not know what to do. My own nerves were about worn out. Finally I started her in at school and then she cried with headaches so I found out the trouble was with her eyes. She needed glasses and that had made her cry until her nerves were all gone to pieces. She is eight years old and still wears glasses. This year she got a double promotion in school so that she is in the fourth grade now.

Love to all the sisters and Mrs. Wilkinson,

COMFORT Reader.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND COMPORT SISTERS:

I am coming to you for advice as to how to break my little boy of some bad habits he has taken up.
He is a dear child and everyone seems to love him but I am sure if he persists in his rude ways no one will love him much longer. He is four years old and (CONTINUED ON PAGE 8.)

New Knitting Book 10c

Book also contains official directions furnished by the Central Dividence articles. Sixteen pages in all—a great help and timely aid to thousands of American lovers of knitting.

Order by number—Book No. 20—at your dealer's 10c; by mail 12c. Write today while supply lasts.

RICHARDSON SILK COMPANY Chicago, Ill. Publishers of famous Richardson library of 17 books, embrac-ing all branches of crocheting, knitting and embroidery.

Snug Comfort for Tired Feet

A Seasonable gift for the army or navy man Parker's Arctic Socks

U.S. Slippers. Worn in rubber boots abnoved perspirate tion. Made of knitted fabric shrukable. Purker's name in every pair. In all sizes at dealers or and the corresponding to the control of the contro sizes at dealers or sent postpaid for 50 cents a pair.

J. H. PARKER CO., Dept. S, 25 James St., Maiden, Maec.

Comfort Sisters' Corner

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7.)

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7.)
has been spoiled as so many little fellows are but I plead "Not Guilty," for his father and grandfather are the ones to blame. He is getting very saucy. When I scold or whip him he threatens to knock me down or take a stick to me and will stand off and shake his fists at me, just as though he would like to hit me if he dared. I was raised by one of the kindest and best of mothers but she never allowed me to threaten or hit at her, for which I am thankful and now it hurts to think that I cannot get my little darling to obey me as I obeyed my mother. He is very hard to control and is getting so he doesn't care what he does when they are around. I have talked to both of them and begged them to help me make him mind instead of hindering me. My father never interfered with my mother when she whipped or scolded me.

A WORRIED MOTHER. PRESTON, MINN.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

Some time ago I read a letter in Comfort how a wife should make home a comfortable place for her husband, not to annoy him with the fuss and din of house cleaning and washing, etc., and to be careful of his wants and comforts. That is true and I agree with it and similar advice in Comfort and other papers, but I have ever failed to see one word on the husband's side of the question. You say he appreciates the comfort and quiet of a well-kept and orderly home and no doubt he does but most always without a word of praise. The average husband accepts as his due the comforts of an orderly home that oftentimes his wife has worked hard to maintain, especially when they are not blessed with an abundance of this world's goods. True, the husband has trials to meet, but does not his wife share with him his failures as well as his successes, and I never could see why a husband should be treated any more like a guest than a wife should. They should be treated as one and the same. A true wife and mother that looks well to the ways of her household and rears a family of children that are a credit to her, has no easy task and not only is it hard manual labor, but it is endless and tedious. A woman's work is never done and if her husband would only give her a few words of praise how it would encourage her. Of course there are exceptions and some men are more thoughtful than others but I am speaking from experience no, not as yet.

With best wishes for Comfort and all,

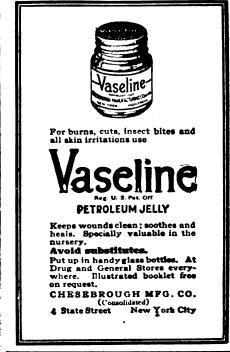

Mrs. Peterson. The following poem, sent in by

WHAT WE SHARE

By Mildred Van Inwegen

The Principle of the control of the

(See front cover illustration)

their presents. Not a doll, not a drum! Just endless pairs of shoes, and dozens upon dozens of hair brushes, and for a "treat," as the matron announced, a suit of underwear, apiece, and brand new, think of it!—which was the gift of a Ladies' Aid society. Underwear! Gracia could have wept from sheer rage. Why hadn't they sent, if it must be something useful, bright colored hair ribbons and neck ties? And why must it be something useful? Couldn't they for once overstep the rule?

Gracia longed to rise up and shout: "Oh, you are cheats to bring this kind of a Christmas at all. It's a miserable sham!"

One little chap was more courageous than she, for as he was handed his share in the tree's offering, he piped up, disgustedly: "Aw, you ain't no Santy. You're a fake."

And from a little girl came a heart-breaking sob and: "Minnie, you sez he'd bring dolls,"

This was more than Gracia could stand, Rising, she escaped to the corridor and paced up and down and told herself with tears in her eyes it was wrong—all wrong.

"Poor child!" she exclaimed. "It wouldn't take fifty cents to satisfy your longing."

Hardly had the thought left her, than another took its place—a wild, daring thought, so darious that it sent little shivers of delight up and little orphans fell upon their treasures, and with tears raining

CONDUCTED BY UNCLE CHARLIE

COMFORT for one year and admittance to the League of Gousins for only 30 cents. Join at once, Everybody welcom NEVER send a subscription to Uncle Charlie, nor to the Secretary of the League.

NEVER write a subscription order or application for membership in the body of a letter. Write the order a separate sheet from the letter, and then both may be mailed together in the same envelope.

ADDRESS all letters to COMFORT, Augusta, Maine. See Instructions at the close of this Department.

that divine Providence which seeks to order our lives for good, if we would only let it, and which gathers us to its breast as a mother gathers her child to her bosom when life's fitful fever is over and past.

Now this article is a plea for genuine Americanism. Why can't we get the spirit of Christmas into our narrow, puny souls, and make us a nation? Don't fool yourselves into believing we have a nation here in the same sense that Germany, France and Britain have a nation. We could have had the same devotion to country here that we find in France, Prussia or Britain, but, as you know, you cannot make a pudding that is worth while unless you are careful as to what ingredients go into it.

Here we have a melting pot that was to fus all the races, and blend them into one perfect whole. On the way we performed that task depended not only the future of this nation, but its very existence, and this task on which hinged not only our destiny, but the destiny of all mankind, we have with tragic and criminal indifference utterly ignored. There were a few men with vision who foresaw the danger of neglecting the melting pot and flooding our land with millions of immigrants and making no effort to absorb or assimilate them, but no one heeded them. All our energies were concentrated on developing our resources, bridging streams, felling forests, irrigating deserts, tunneling mountains, linking up our coasts with bands of steel. Into these prodigious tasks we put our whole strength and energy, trusting like gamblers to luck to take care of those finer problems which cannot be solved with axe or hammer, silver or gold. We wanted labor and we did not care from whence it came, as long as it was cheap and plentiful. That labor, dumped on our shores, was allowed to shift for itself, and each race instead of tuning into the melting pot and becoming assimilated, formed into groups and colonies, just as hard masses form in a badly constructed padding. Each group perpetuated its language, customs and habits, refusing to assimilate, stitutions, and our free and easy way of doing things, with contempt and abhorrence. The old country way of doing things.

system of government and the gentus of our institutions, and our free and easy way of doing things alone appeal to them. They doing things alone appeal to them. They would rather have the state hand them a bone than be given the opportunity to go out and of their own initiative, bring home a porterhouse steak.

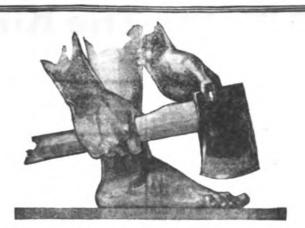

Some people and some nations prefer to be sheep rather than men. There is a certain advantage in a fat pasture, a snug sheepfold and a good shepherd. But the Anglo-Saxon and the Celt long ago broke away from the sheepfold idea. They knew the shepherd only protected them so that he might fleece them of their wool, and only fed them so he could convert them into mutton, otherwise cannon fodder, when necessity demanded it. There is good however, in every system, good in every individual, and every race that comes here, could and should contribute of its best to our national character, genius and welfare. The greatest wrong however that has been done to the immigrant, a wrong that has robbed him of his Americanism, is to allow him to settle in colonies, where he hears nothing but his own language spoken, preached and taught, reads nothing but foreign language papers and grows up a man without a country. Here is the crime of crimes, and it is the German-American who has been wronged more than all others in this regard. There are in this country today over 450 German language papers and grows up a man without a country. Here is the crime of crimes, and it is the German-American who has been wronged more than all others in this regard. There are in this country today over 450 German language papers openly hoast that it is their determination to Germanize America, in other words to put the Kaiser in the great, by any hencing in the product of the country, our other when you not not work for foreign interests against the land that gives you all, shame or you all, shame or you all, shame! The men that sent La Follette, Stone, Gromna, etc. to the cause them country and seek you all, shame or you all, shame! The men

CIDDLE down close for this is our last talk for 1917. This is the month of talk for 1917. This is the month of christmas. How 1 love that name; what blessed memories it conjures up, mother, budge the properties of the control of th tinued to run their poison shops wide open. Not until President Wilson issued a personal order closing these saloons, was any effort made to obey the law. Rum and rebellion, beer and license always go hand in hand.

Imazine for one moment what would happen if some four hundred American editors were suddenly to open up American newspapers in Germany and start to damn everything German dynamite German munition plants, wreek German vessels, and attempt to inflame the German mind against its government and plot to put President Wilson in the palace of Potsdam, and throw the Kaiser out. Now what do you think the German-American papers of this country would say to a performance of that kind? Of course all the American editors in Germany would be instantly shot and their property confiscated, and that is the medicine that should be given to the rascally editors of German language papers in the United States who know that they cannot exist except as they make their readers friends of Germany, and enemies of America.

Now let me appeal to you one and all. The Christmas message I want to bring home to you is this: Why not all of you, no matter what your race, cut out all your other "isms," and fight and work for Americanism. There is not anything in God's world that Germany would do for its people that Uncle Sam would not do a thousand times over and a thousand times better. Now let's be sensible and reasonable. You Germans, Austrians, Irishmen, Englishmen, Poles, Slavs, Russians, Swedes, Danes and Norweigians have sought this country for good and sufficient reasons. Not one of you owned an inch of soil in your Fatherlands so why rave about them? You came here to better yourselves and if this country did not give you advantages you could not get at home, you would not be here ten minutes. America is good enough for you to un your automobiles over, its food is good enough for you to eat; its cicars are good enough for you to not your to eat; its local specific the work for home of your half the work for home of your and t

Like Taking an Axe To a Corn

Some methods of removing corns suggest an axe. They are harsh. They attack live tissue as well as the corn. And soreness often follows.

Some are mussy. Some require frequent applications. All were uncertain, all unscientific, until Blue-jay

Now, with Blue-jay, you apply a thin protector, which stops the pain at once. In the center—acting on the corn alone—is a gentle, efficient wax. And a tape it acts. Blue-jay is applied in a jiffy. When applied, you forget the corn. In two days you find it gone.

wraps the toe while ond application. But no corn can resist this new-day method. At least a million corns a month

About one corn in ten needs a sec-are ended in this easy, gentle way. Users of Blue-jay apply it as soon as a corn is felt. And it never pains

Try it tonight-on any corn, old or new. What it does to that corn, it will do to all. And that means lifetime freedom. You will be amazed to know how easily this trouble can be ended.

Blue-jay Corn Plasters are sold by all Druggists. Also Blue-jay Bunion Plasters.

BAUER & BLACK Makers of Surgical Dressings, Etc. Chicago and New York

Blue-jay

Corn Plasters

Stop Pain Instantly End Corns Completely

25c Packages at Druggists

How Blue-jay Acts

A is a thin, soft pad which stops the pain relieving the pressure,

B is the B&B wax, which gently under-mines the corn. Usually it takes only 48 hours to end the corn completely.

C is rubber adhesive which sticks without wetting. It wraps around the toe, to make the plaster snug and comfortable.

Blue-jay is applied in a jiffy. After that, one doesn't feel the corn. The action is gentle, and applied to the corn alone. So the corn disappears without soreness.

My picture book, too, has started a deluge of inquiries: Is Billy the Goat my daughter, is Maria her Ma? Is there an Aunt Charlie? Is the big boy in the picture book my only baby? I have had a little leaflet specially printed answering all these questions fully, and those who are interested will find the same in every copy of the four Uncle Charlie Books sent out this season. from wearing a Prussian uniform and becoming Prussian slaves, and I am using every ounce of my ebbing strength in a desperate effort to keep you informed on every issue involved in this great conflict, so that you may be true to your country and world democracy in this supreme bour of national danger. When a man's house is on fire he does not have to be bribed to send for the fire engine. When the flames of war are extinguished and our homes and democracy are made safe, I'll resume the discussion of radical politics, but not before. Reforms can wait, Germany won't. And let me remind those who defame me and send libelous and scurrilous matter (CONTINUED ON PAGE 12.)

Now for the letters.

WAGONER, OKLA.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:
May I ask how much you got to change your politics?
Your reader,
JOSEPH H. COUETNEY.

country, which will be the rock the Gibraitar of democracy around which all the nations of the fement of mankind for all time.

This is my last message for this year, a year the hardest and most trying year of my life and probably of your lives too, and the nost momentous year in the history of this and all nations, or year in the history of this and all nations, or year in the history of this and all nations, or year in the history of this and all nations, or year in the history of this and all nations, or year in the history of this and all nations, or year in the history of this and all nations, or year in the history of this and all nations, or year in the history of this and all nations, or year in the history of this and all nations, or year in the history of this and all nations of the protect your literests and lots. The protect your interests and to tell the truth and to warn you when danger was migh. Time will prove that all I have written regarding the war fail and correct, and those who malign and criticipe me, will in the coming years be forced, protection of the protection of the

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 12.)

Sibyl's Influence

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 4.)

Early on the morning of that chill November day mentioned in the first chapter, they had left the large town of Pull for the smaller one of Scarborough, where they had relatives residing, and whom they were to visit before their return to Dumpfice.

scarborough, where they had relatives residing, and whom they were to visit before their return to Dumfries.

But, having been misinformed regarding their route, they lost their way, and having to retrace many miles night overtook them, and their horses gave out just as they reached the miserable inn in the little fi ing villar e on Flamborough Head, where they were obliged to stop for another day. It is doubtful whether the fastidious Raymond Prescott and his high-bred lady mother were ever entertained in so primitive a fashion before as on this dismal night at the rude fisherman's inn. The little, black-eyed maiden waited upon them quietly and handily, anticipating and supplying their wants in a manner belonging to an older and more experienced person.

Very lovely and womanly she appeared to both Lady Prescott and her son, who watched her closely without appearing to do so, and who were more and more surprised at the native grace and refinement which she displayed—all the more noticeable from her very rude surroundings.

"She is of too fine a mold to be in this place. I wonder how it happened?" the young man observed, under his breath, to his mother.

"You are right, Raymond, and it is a mystery which I cannot understand. I am deeply interested in her."

"She is very lovely—do you not think so?"

"Yes. And how she thirsts for knowledge!"

"Poor child!" Raymond said, compassionately; then added, with a chuckle of amusement:

"There is plenty of spirit, however, bottled up in her dainty body."

"That is so. How her magnificent eyes blazed when she faced you so indignantly."

Raymond was very thoughtful during the meal. Not a movement of the strange, fair child escaped him.

He saw how her eyes lingered upon his mother, and then wandered to his own face, with a look that were alwest reverential. as though she caped him.

He saw how her eyes lingered upon his mother, and then wandered to his own face, with a look that was almost reverential, as though she thought they were creatures of a higher order than she had ever beheld before.

He noticed, too, that she paid strict and earnest attention to their way of speaking, and several times corrected her own language in imitation of theirs.

theirs.

After supper, Raymond ordered lights to be brought into the receiving room, and, drawing from his pocket a copy of "Tennyson's Poems," he sat down to read to his mother, hoping to make the dull evening pass quickly and pleasantly make the dull evening pass quickly and pleasantly to her.

He chose that beautiful and touching story of "Elaine, the Lily Maid of Astolat," and her sad and fatal love for Lancelot.

He read finely, and as if his whole soul was stirred with the melancholy tale.

A passionate sob interrupted him when he reached one portion of the story, startling both the reader and his listener.

Turning quickly to see whence it proceeded, Raymond's keen eye descried a slight form crouching behind one end of the old-fashioned, high-backed settee.

He arose, and crossed the room to the spot; but, before he had scarcely reached it, a girlish form arose, and stood, tremblingly, before him.

It was Sibyl, as he had expected.

"I could not help it, sir," she said, humbly, and with a decrecating air.

"Could not help what?" he asked, curiously, yet kindly.

"Crying—it was so sad!" and another sup-yet kindly.

"Crying—it was so sad!" and another suppressed sob heaved the little chest.

"How came you here? I did not hear you come in." come in."
"I heard you reading out there," indicating the room beyond, "and I did not think, but coming nearer and nearer—it was so beautiful—I got

The Kingdom of Our Birthright

In running this series we are not advocating belief in astrology or faith in the pretended talismanic charm of birth-stones, although these beliefs have persisted from remote antiquity and have not a few devotees even in this present age of reason. Yet as myths and superstitions that have dominated through the ages they possess historic interest and educational value. This series closes with Miss December.—EDITOR.

MISS DECEMBER.

into the room before I knew it; then I—was afraid, and—hid down there."

"Would you like to listen to the rest of it?" he asked.

He took her gently by the hand, and led her finished the sad story, casting, every now and

Turquoise the December Birth-Stone

Turquoise the December Birth-Stone

The idea that birthstones possess a certain indefinable, but none the less genuine significance appears particularly marked in regard to the turquoise, the December birth-stone. The exquisite blue of the stone has ever been emblematic of the celestial regions, and of the celestial virtues, and in Christian art the virgin, saints and angels are often robed in blue. December being the month when rich and noor alike prepare to celebrate the event of the "King's" birthday, and sing carols of "Peace on Earth," it cannot be denied that the ones whose natal stone is the turquoise will be impressed with the idea, that the Christmas season possesses something infinitely necessary to their well-being, which cannot be called "imaginary."

The occult power of the turquoise is supposed to help toward the skillful handling of affairs and in bringing things to a successful issue; hence, this gem is the symbol of prosperity.

There is an odd, yet interesting Hindu legend which records that it is very lucky to have a turquoise close at hand at the time of the new moon, for whoever, after first looking at the moon on the first day after new moon, should cast his eyes upon a turquoise, for then he would be destined to enjoy immeasurable wealth. Hindu women from the early centuries have believed in the potency of the turquoise, as seen in the following lines:

they are born poor. They love luxury and are depressed if it becomes necessary to curtail expenses. They possess pride tinged with arroganice; are independent and will labor without stint so long as their efforts are productive of the desired result.

The second type has all the same love of wealth and are determined in its acquisition. They are natural organizers and realize that success depends on self. But if, however, they fail in their efforts to reach a high level, they become discontented, and the real incentive of work is gone, and they live without ambition, yet will never lose a certain haughty mien, and be inclined to then, a quick glance at the quiet little figure sitting in the glow of the firelight.

Never before had he had such an appreciative listener—every word was swallowed with the greatest eagerness, and Raymond Prescott recognized in the negiected child a soul capable of rising to the grandest heights, and of attaining great cultivation.

As he closed the book and turned with a smile to ask her how she liked it, a harsh voice rang out:

"Sibyl! Sibyl!"

The girl started to her feet, cast a grateful yet appealing glance into the young man's face: then, with a shudder and look of fear, darted from the

A moment later he heard a stream of angry, abusive words heaped upon her, followed by a blow and a cry of pain.

He started, angrily, to his feet, but, at a motion from his mother, resumed his seat, exclaiming: ing:
"Infamous!"

The next morning the storm raged wilder than on the night previous, and Raymond Prescott's face face seemed longer by half a length when he arose and looked from his window upon the turbulent sea. now lashed to fury, and the rain falling in torrents upon the dreary earth.

Lady Prescott looked pale and wan when she met him in the room below, but she strove to be cheerful, and not let him see how disappointed she was at the dreary prospect of spending the day in that miserable place.

Later in the day she came to him, saying:

"Ray, I have been having a long talk with your 'enchanted princess.'"

"Well, what do you make of her?" he asked.

"Ray, I have been having a long talk with your 'enchanted princess.'"

"Well, what do you make of her?" he asked. "I find her a dear little thing, her heart brimming over with gratitude for every kind word given her. What say you to trying to better her condition for her?"

"Just what I had been cogitating myself, mother mine; but how can it be accomplished?" "That remains to be seen. I have discovered that she does not belong in any way to these people, and, by questioning and gently drawing her out, that she has a faint remembrance of her mother, and also of some one else, whom she used to call 'Nansie,' or 'Nannie,' She does not like to say much about her life here, though I imagine it has been a sad enough one. The only bright spot in it seems to have been the kindness of the sick lady who comes here in the summer."

"Does the dame here know nothing of her history?" asked Raymond.

"Sibyl says she has begged her many a time to tell her how she came here, but the woman only gets angry and cuffs her for her inquisitiveness."

"What a heartless thing! Mother, let us take the child away with us" he suddenly evelatived.

ness."

"What a heartless thing! Mother, let us take the child away with us." he suddenly exclaimed.

"I have thought of that; but what could we do with her, even supposing her mistress here could be prevailed upon to give her to us?"

"Educate her; she seems eager for knowledge. Let us try the experiment, and see what it will amount to. I have no doubt that the people here would gladly give her up for a small sum of money, and it would a mercy be to the poor, abused child. Even if she should never amount to anything very brilliant, we could, at least, put her in a way to make a coinfortable living," the young man said, really interested in the project.

"That is so. Ray, I have half a mind to try father say?

"He will say, as he always does, mother mine,
'that his Annie shall do just whatever her own kind heart dictates,'" Raymond replied, with a fond glance into the beautiful face opposite

Lady Prescott flushed slightly, and a smile, half proud, half tender, curled her lips at this re-(CONTINUED ON PAGE 15.)

Crumbs of Comfort

Nature never pretends. Children sweeten labors.

A light heart lives long.

Talkers are no good doers.

Friendship requires action. Life is the soul's nursery. Prevention is the best of bridles.

Time is the chrysalis of eternity.

Prayer is a self-preached sermon. Unquiet meals make ill digestions.

Ignorance of wealth is true riches.

Liberty is the daylight of the soul.

He that sips many arts, drinks none.

The good are Heaven's peculiar care.

Great wants are born of great wealth.

Where pity dwells is the peace of God.

They can conquer who believe they can.

A sunny temper gilds the darkest hour.

Human knowledge is the parent of doubt.

They that know no evil will suspect none.

Joys are our wings; sorrows are our spurs.

others

perseverance

A suspicious parent makes an artful child.

Wise kings have generally wise councillors. When passions glow, the heart is heated steel. The tongue can be the ambassador of the heart.

Pride that dines on vanity may sup on contempt.

Love's reign is eternal, and his throne the heart.

The man with an empty purse may sing before a robber.

In the world a man lives in his own age; in solitude, in all

The great secret of life is never to be in the way of

He that would have bread from wheat must wait the True friendship has not a heart of milk that turns in wo nights.

Great works are performed, not by strength, but by

A cask will long retain the flavor of that with which it was first filled.

To bring a child up to the dearest common sense is the cheapest course.

Enjoy your present pleasures so as not to injure those that are to follow,

If all the world played holiday, to sport would be as edious as to work.

Many people live on the reputation of the reputation hey might have made.

When young, we trust ourselves too much; when old, we trust others too little.

Nature has concealed at the bottom of our minds talents and abilities of which we are not aware.

Occupation was one of the pleasures of the Garden of Eden, and we cannot be happy without it.

A miser may grow rich by seeming to be poor; an extravagant man poor by seeming to be rich.

The three most difficult things are—to keep a secret, to forget an injury, and to make good use of leisure.

If we hope for what we are not likely to possess, we act and think in vain, and make life a dream and shadow.

If you would relish food, labor for it before you eat it: if you would sleep soundly, take a clear conscience to bed

CONTENTS

2 In and Around the Home Conducted by Mrs. Sibyl's Influence (continued) Mrs. Georgie Sheldon Comfort Sisters' Corner 5 Comfort Sisters' Recipes The Cirl He Loved (continued) Adelaide Stirling Christmas Cakes and Home-Made Candies Violet What We Share Mildred Van Inwegen -Comfort's League of Cousins Uncle Charlie The Kingdom of Our Birthright 10 Crumbs of Comfort The Pretty Cirls' Club Katherine Booth -- 11 Automobile and Gas Engine Helps -12 For Equal Privileges and Uniform Postage Rates - 12 Christmas Tree Decorations Ella Gordon What to Send Our Soldiers Frances L. Garside Around the World with Santa Jeanette Rogers - 15 Talks with Girls - 16 The Modern Farmer . 17 - 18 Home Dressmaking Hints Geneva Gladding 19 Information Bureau - 21 - 22 How to Trap the Mink, Weasel and Muskrat Veterinary Information - 23 Manners and Looks 24 Children's Happy Hour 25 Family Doctor -26 Five Wheel Chairs in November 26 The Emporium of Bargains and Opportunities Comfort's Comicalities . 27 Poultry Farming for Women Mrs. Kate V. St.

JANUARY COMFORT

our bright New Year Number, will give its readers the right start on the new year. If they wish to keep themselves attuned to the spirit of the times, now in a state of such marvelous and rapid transition, they should take care not to miss a single one of the next twelve issues. We are preparing to make the February and March numbers exceptionally interest-ing and useful. We mention here a few of the Special Features for January

"New Year Resolutions on Food Economy" with recipes and instructions that will make it easy and profitable to live up to them. Learn how the skillful cook wastes nothing and makes equally nourishing and appetizing dishes from cheaper materials, which is quite important in these times of high prices.

"Miss Brent's Orphan"

A touching story of the great war in France, with a thread of romance that leads to America. It has a humorous side, too.

"Start Your Flower Garden Indoors" indoors for early blooming in the garden.

"Turning Over a New Leaf"

Describes a novel and amusing form of entertainment for a New Year party, including appropriate decorations and refreshments.

An interesting, instructive and timely article picturing and describing how to start your plants

"Cubby Bear's Visit"

Another of those fine stories of Mrs. Ellingwood's that so delight the little folks. More o these stories are in store for them.

2-Year Renewal to Cost 40 Cents January First

See the announcement of advance in subscription rates on page 6. If the number over your name on the wrapper on this magazine is 351 or any less number, it means that your subscription needs to be renewed at once.

The present low renewal rate will continue in force until the last day of this December, which gives our present subscribers an opportunity to renew their subscriptions

2 Full Years in Advance for 30 Cents.

Avail yourself of this privilege immediately. 10 cents is worth saving.

Send 30 cents today to renew your subscription two full years. Even if your subscription is paid some months ahead, renew now at special low renewal rate and we will extend your subscription two full years beyond date of expiration. Use the coupon below.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES are: 25 cents a year, 50 cents for three years, 30 cents for a TWO-YEAR renewal, in U. S. and Cuba. (In Canada 50 cents a year or 75 cents for a two-year renewal.)

SUBSCRIPTION COUPON FOR RENEWAL OR EXTENSION ONLY

Publisher of COMFORT, Augusta, Maine. I enclose 30 cents for renewal and extension of my subscription two full years from date of expiration.

DateName, Postoffice and No.

Man never fastened one end of a chain around the neck of his brother, that God's own hand did not fasten the other end around the neck of the oppressor.

The Pretty Girls' Club

Conducted by Katherine Booth

Our Mistletoe Girl

ERRY CHRISTMAS, everybody! And are you all looking so pretty that mistletoe near at hand is very, very dangerous? I hope so! But if you aren't, let me give you just a few words of advice.

December is a cold and blustery month. Wet snows beat into our faces, and chill winds congeal our blood, not yet accustomed to winter cold, and our lips chap and our ears turn blue and our noses red, alas!

This is the one combination of red, white and blue which none of us love, so let's see how to get rid of it.

Let me whisper a secret, girls. You can't look pretty in winter if you don't feel warm! Really! The moment you are chilled, your face grows plached, and your lips lose their color, and you have unbecoming gooseflesh on your arms—and you're not pretty any longer! So your first alm must be to keep warm. Your ankles and your hands have a great deal to do with the warmth of your body. They are easily chilled, and as the blood creeps back to the heart from these extremities, it chills all the body.

OUR MISTLETOE GIRL.

It is all right to wear low shoes in winter, in the house, if it is a steamheated or furnace-heated house, so that every room and hall is warm, but if it is stove-heated, so that you go from a warm room to an icy hall or a cool bedroom, then stick to high shoes.

You may even wear low shoes outdoors (if the soles are not too thin, and there is no snow to wade through), provided you wear spats, or gaiters snugly buttoned about ankle and leg, keeping you as warm as toast.

Carry a muff, or wear fleece-lined mittens slipped over your gloves when you are going a-calling or to a party. You can slip off your mittens as you reach the door of your destination, and enter in all the glory of your best gloves.

Before going outdoors in winter, rub cold cream well into the face, wipe off any excess with a pad of cotton and powder lightly. Rub the lips thoroughly in the same manner (no powder of course). If you take this precaution, you won't have chapped and roughened lips to sigh over. But be sure to wipe cream off eyebrows and brush every bit of powder out with your eyebrow brush. If, in spite of warmly dressing the body, your lips get blue and your face pinches, your circulation isn't as it should be. Exercise for five minutes before going outdoors, in addition to ten or fifteen minutes' boudoir exercises daily, either night or morning or both. Here's a good exercise.

To Speed Up the Circulation

Stand with heels together, toes out, head erect, arms at sides. Now rise slowly on the balls of the feet, keeping the body, from hips up, perfectly erect. Thow arms back as far as possible. Bend knees and sink to squatting position, at the same time swinging arms down and forward, to maintain balance. The heels must not be allowed to touch the floor, while doing this, nor must the upper half of the body bend. Repeat ten or fifteen times.

When you take your daily body bath (whether it is in the tub, or a sponge bath), rub the body vigorously with a rough towel. In taking a sponge bath, only uncover a small portion of body at a time,—as one arm, or the lower leg, or a foot, etc. Sponge quickly, dry, then rub vigorously, recover, and proceed to the next portion. In this way, there is no danger of chilling.

A red nose usually means imperfect circulation, although it may be the result of indigestion. If it appears in winter only, however, you may know it is the circulation that is at fault. So, exercise as I have suggested, keeping the body warm (but not too heavily clad when in warm rooms), and look after the elimination.

the body warm (but not too heavily clad when in warm rooms), and look after the elimination. In the meantime, you may bind on the nose each night a pad of cotton, wet with the following, and then covered with a dry cloth.

That Red, Red Nose

Rosewater, three ounces; glycerine, two ounces; muriate of ammonia, one dram; tannic acid, one half dram.

acid, one half dram.
You can have your druggist put up a smaller quantity, if desired. The muriatic acid should be dissolved in the glycerine and the water then

Answers to Questions

S. M. L.—At eighteen years of age, being five feet eight inches tall, you should weigh about one hundred and forty-eight pounds. It may be that one hundred and thirty pounds is enough for you, as this depends somewhat on the size of your frame. Your waist measure should be about thirty inches, bust forty and hips forty for that height; but age cuts some figure, and at eighteen you should not be as fully developed as to bust as if you were twenty-eight. I imagine you are not far off in measurements, though you could stand quite a little larger waist. I am sorry that I am not permitted to express an opinion about any proprietary remedies. Probably all that you mention are perfectly good ones. A brunette with fair skin should use a firsh-tinted powder—with dark skin, a pink powder. You should not be using many cosmetics, for your skin should be healthy and natural and much better looking without artificial aids than with them. A good cold cream occasionally will do no harm, and a light dust of powder when it is needed, but be careful not to powder heavily or use it when your skin is perfectly fresh and attractive without it.

Jennle,—If the hair on face, neck and arms is very leth—like downs—I should not were about it. If you will carefully examine the girls you know, you will see that almost all of them have some hair on face or arms. You have probably not paid much attention it, because it is not at all a serious matter, and when you realize this, you will take your own hair less seriously. See answer to "Ruby" for treatment you can use. This will bleach the hair while killing the roots.

Irene—For the small moles, you can touch them with salicylic acid moistened with glycerine binding this on for half an hour. The acid cats away the little spot. Take the treatment three consecutive days, unless the face is sore. You must always be careful in treating moles, for you are apt to develop more serious troubles. Better try just one mole to begin with.

serious troubles. Better try just one mole to begin with.

Allej.—If you are only thirteen, do not worry about the shape of your legs. They will shape themselves as you get a little older, and nothing that you can do will hurry them. Forget about them, for they are not important. Also, let your skin alone, except to protect it, when you go outdoors, with a large hat or sunbonnet. Keep it thoroughly clean—see what I say to "Blue Byes" about scrubbing the face, but don't do any of the other things I recommend to her. Keep your bowels open. Stay outdoors as much as you can, and do active things so that every part of your body is exercised. You don't weigh nearly enough, so should drink lots of milk, eat plenty of bread and butter, and potatoes, and rice, and fruit, and vegetables and eggs. Don't eat between meals, though it might be all right for you to have a glass of milk between meals. Your knuckles look large because you do not weigh enough; but as you build yourself up in weight, your fingers will fatten as well as the rest of you, and that trouble will be taken care of. What you want to do is to eat well, sleep well (with windows open), exercise a lot, stay outdoors all you can, and drink lots of water. Keep warm in winter, especially your ankles and your hands, and take a body bath every day except when you are not feeling well. You can stand on a folded bath towel and give yourself a perfectly good sponge bath with a rough washeloth, if you haven't a bathtub.

D. D.—I do not think your pimples would leave a

D. D.—I do not think your pimples would leave a scar if you did not squeeze them or touch them. How about this? See my answer to "Dollie," and "Irene." If your neck is too fleshy, you probably are too fleshy elsewhere, also. Try some of the exercises printed in Comfort from month to month, for reducing. In the meantime, use this one for your fleshy neck:

For a Too Fat Neck

Drop head limply on chest. Now roll it toward the left, then drop it backward and roll it toward the right, drop forward and roll toward left. Continue for ten or more times.

M. E. B.—The peroxide and ammonia treatment consists of dampening the hairy spots one day with ammonia, the next with peroxide. That is all there is to it. You may use the ordinary household ammonia. If it irritates the skin, follow directions to "Ruby." It must be continued for a considerable time.

A Reader.—You say your hands are always red. Are your clothes tight anywhere—at armhole, wrist, elbow, neck, waist, or feet, or do you wear round garters instead of the side garters? If the latter, change your garters at once, and if the former, loosen up your clothing. In a recent number I gave a very good whitening lotion for the hands—use that and you will find your hands improved.

very good whitening lotion for the hands—use that and you will find your hands improved.

Disappointed.—Your letter was received June 13th, yet you wanted an answer in July Comport! Why, my dear, the July Comport was being mailed at that time, the August Comport was being printed, the September Comport was in the typesetting rooms, the October Comport was being prepared for the printer! My girls keep forgetting how long a big magazine must work ahead. Vigorous massage will reduce your fleshy face somewhat, but I imagine you do not exercise enough and that your circulation is not sufficiently active. Get plenty of exercise daily, both boudoir exercises and outdoor exercise. Be careful not to overeat or to eat too sweet or heavy foods. Massage is your only local remedy—you must depend upon the general measures outlined for other help.

Pansy.—After you have washed your face in hot water at night, you should immediately rinse it in warm water several times, then in tepid water, then in cool water, and finally in cold water. After this, you may apply any face cream you are going to use, but it is wise to close the pores in this way before putting it on. In the morning, wash in tepid water, rinse in tepid, and finally in cold.

Edna.—You and "Dollie" have much the same trouble, have you not? Read what I said to her—also what I said to "Alley." Your bowels are one important way of getting rid of impurities in the blood. When they do not move freely and naturally at least once a day, then the impurities try to get out some other way, and pimples result. Be careful to eat easily digestible food, lots of fruit (surely you get oranges where you live, and there is nothing better) and vegetables. Don't eat fried foods. You are at an age when pimples are usual, and you will probably get rid of them before long.

DON'T FORGET TO USE YOUR EYEBROW BRUSH AFTER

are usual, and you will probably get rid of them before long.

P. S. M.—No, don't use cocoa-butter on the face; it will grow hair. If you want to make the checks full, you will have to begin at the stomach, for it is only by nourishing the body and adding flesh that you can bring about this result. Why don't you try the milk diet? Don't press on the end of the nose to keep it from turning up, or you will get an ugly shape. Turned-up noses are considered quite attractable and I should think yours might be. I would let it alone. As to shoulder braces, they might help you temporarily, and it would do no harm to try them. But you should exercise daily ten or fifteen minutes, night and morning, trying to overcome the round shoulders. I gave a fine exercise last month for this—the one for developing the lungs. Make a practise of throwing the chest up and out and letting the shoulders hang. Don't throw them back squarely, and don't be disappointed if your shoulder blades still stick out after quite a little exercise. It will take time to overcome this, but I believe you will succeed if you keep at it. Do everything possible to build-up, your strength and health, for as you do this you will have more energy and your muscles will do their work better and better. A good exercise for you would be to place hands on hips, thumbs back and fingers forward, heels together, and throw the body back from the waist as far as possible without bending the knees. Of course you must do this in loose clothing and without a corset. Practise ten or fifteen times at one time, and do this daily.

Mrs. B. L. H.—No, I would not use the Portugal Bust Food on the neck as well as the bust. Exercise cream occasionally will do no harm, and a light dust of powder when it is needed, but be careful not to powder heavily or use it when your skin is perfectly fresh and attractive without it.

Jennie.—If the hair on face, neck and arms is very light—like down—I should not worry about it. If you light—like down—I should not worry about it. If you light—like down—I should not worry about it. If you light—like down—I should not worry about it. If you light—like down—I should not worry about it. If you light—like down—I should not worry about it. If you light—like down—I should not use the Portugal needles. This band and semi-circular leaves of flannel are attached to the end as shown.

To side corresponding with one numbered 3, and a full pocket, drawn in with an elastic.

At the end of bottom No. 2 add cardboard with arms pressed closely against sides, then, keeping chin lifted, turn the head so that the eyes look back over the left shoulder, then over the right, and repeat rapidly for ten or fifteen times, keeping the neck muscles stiff while doing it. Gentle massage will also help the neck Remember that vigorous massage reduces and gentle massage develops.

muscles stin while doing it. Gentle massage will also help the neck Remember that vigorous massage reduces and gentle massage develops.

B. D.—I am sorry I cannot write to you personally, but it is a rule of this department that all letters be answered in our columns. You say your men friends do not seem to care much about you, and you won der why. Perhaps you do not make yourself enter taining enough. What do you talk about remember a man likes to talk about the things which interest him. You say you weigh too much, but you are resily only about four or five pounds heavier than you should be. If you think you would look better with a little less flesh, why not try to reduce? Cut out potatoes and rice and sweet things for a while, and make your meals of green vegetables, and meat and fruits and eggs. Exercise a little every day. As to the oily hair, we must overcome that. Are you sure you get the soap out thoroughly when you wash it? It needs eight or nine rinsings, for if the soap stays on the scalp or hair, it clogs up the little oil cells, irritates them, and they pour out more and more oil all the time. Dry your hair in the sun when you wash it, tossing it about in the air. Don't rub soap on the hair, but use it in the form of jelly, as I have urged so many times. Keep the bowels open, and take a good body bath daily—all this will stimulate your circulation and help your scalp and hair as well as the rest of the body. Each night, put the flat of your fingers against the scalp, after taking down the hair, and without lifting the fingers move the scalp back and forth, but press them firmly and move just the skin Ge all over your head in this way. If the skin is tight, your hair cannot be healthy until it is lossened and kept loosened. If you will give this treatment to your scalp and hair as well as the rest of the body. Each night, ponditions will improve, I know.

Dollie.—Stop 'mashing' the blackheads and fertening pimples on your face. Let them alone, no matter how they look. Wash the face very gently a ni

For Your Pimples

Rose water, four ounces; glycerine, one dram; tinc-ire of camphor, one dram; precipitate of sulphur. ture of cone dram.

ture of camphor, one dram; precipitate of sulphur, one dram.

Your druggist can put this up for you. You may apply this to your pimples several times a day. Do not rub soap on the face, and, except at night, do not even use soapy water. In the morning, use warm water, followed by cold, and do the same during the day. Be very careful to take a good body bath daily and rub the skin well, and you must be especially careful about your bowels, and about drinking eight to ten glasses of water a day—a glass on getting up, before dressing; another after dressing, two or three during the morning; two or three during afternoon; and one an hour before retiring. Cut out sweets for the time being, fat meats and gravies. Do not try to "whiten" your face or do anything with it until you get rid of your pimples. You will probably find, by that time, that it has whitened out. Leave the moles alone. If they are not large fleshy ones, they are not disfiguring. If the latter, you can get rid of them, but you should not touch anything on your face till you get rid of your pimples, for your blood is not in good enough condition. One can cause a cancer by tampering with a mole, sometimes.

Ruby.—If your pores are large from using hot water ston wing hot water, event at night, when it let condition. One can cause a cancer by tampering with a mole, sometimes.

Ruby.—If your pores are large from using hot water, stop using hot water, except at night, when it is needed to thoroughly cleanse all soil from the face. Even then, follow by rinsing in warm water, several times, tepid water and then cold water. The cold water will close the pores. In the daytime, never use hot water. Cold water will of course, contract the pores. Be careful to keep them thoroug'ly clean, however, or you will have blackheads. Attention at night will take care of this. As to the fuzz growing on your face, dampen one day with ammonia and the next with peroxide. This is a harmless treatment, but slow. Don't worry about the fuzz. If your skin is irritated with the peroxide after using for a time, stop for a couple of days and rub in a little pure cold cream. Your hair splits because it is not healthy. It needs more nourishment, and it must get this from a healthy body. Build up your general health, eating sensibly and enough, drinking water, exercising, sleeping with your windows open, and keeping your bowels in good condition. At night massage your scalp with the flat of your fingers, going over entire scalp and moving the skin on the skull.

Miss Blanche M.— If you cannot get the two articles you mention from your druggist, ask him to Miss Blanche M.- If you cannot get the two articles you mention from your druggist, ask him to order them for you, as he can when be puts in his next order for drugs.

next order for drugs.

Blue Eyes.—See answer to "Ruby" and "Dollie."
If your blackheads are not sore, scrub the face with a complexion brush and hot soapy water. You will notice I told "Dollie" not to do this with her festering pimples. A good thing, probably, for you to do, after the face is thoroughly cleansed at night, as above directed, is to massage in a little boric powder and finally rub a little cold cream over this. In the morning wash with tepid water. After doing this for six days, steam the face the seventh night over a basin of bolling water. To do this, use a Turkish towel thrown over the head to keep the steam in and bend over the bowl of hot water. After the steaming, rinse in hot water and coat face with a blackhead paste, letting it remain on for ten minutes. Do not use boric powder this night.

Blackhead Paste

Into three cups of water shave a cake of Castile soap and add a teaspoonful of powdered borax. Boil until it is somewhat reduced in amount, then set it off to cool, when it should jelly. It is this jelly which is

Address all letters containing questions to KATHERINE BOOTH, care COMPONT, AUGUSTA, MAINE

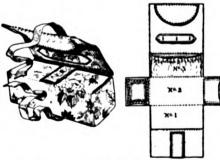

In and Around the Home

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 3.)

ners squarely. Cut four pieces of cardboard two and one half by six inches, slip one into the bottom of bag and run a row of machine stitching just beyond it. Follow this with the other three cardboards, each shoved up closely the stitching and followed by a row of stitching.

Next make two bands, one by four inches,

A SEWING BOX WITH DIAGRAM FOR MAKING.

place one of these crosswise in the center of the side, this will reach from the first line of the side, this will reach from the first line of stitching on the inside to the same point on the outside. Simply catch the ends of this band securely as it is designed to slip over small scissors, stiletto, paper of needles, etc. On the second band work three buttonholed bars, under which slip bodkins and large needles. This band and semi-circular leaves of fiannel are attached to the end as shown.

To side corresponding with one numbered 3.

There are any number of beautiful articles, for your own use or for Christmas giving, you can easily make with Nufash-ond Rick Rack Braid. Centerpieces, bibs, table covers, doilies, pincushions, lunch sets, guest towels, aprons, insertions, edgings, etc., are easily made by following the clear and concise instructions given in the Nufashond Rick Rack Book. A handy manual sold at the nominal price of 10 cents to make you familiar with the merits of Nufashond Rick Rack Braid.

Your department store or needlework shop has the Nufashond Rick Rack Book. If not, send us 30 cents and we will furnish the book with one full piece of Nufashond Mercerized Rick Rack and one ball of Nufashond Mercerized Crochet Cotton.

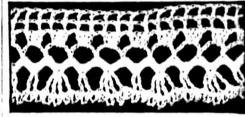

NUFASHOND, Dept. E, Reading, Pa.

covered squares fitting one with a pocket for holding thimble and the other with a tiny cushion. Form into a box by sewing sides No. 1 and No. 3 to the ends, attach a ribbon to the outside, fold up and tie together.

Rickrack Braid Edging

A few yards of such an edging as is here shown will be a gift which will be appreciated by any woman who loves dainty things and especially by one who cannot do such work or lacks time for it. By using the braid in working out a pattern considerable time is saved and this is a consideration at this particular season. This edging will fit a circular edge as well as a straight one.

Insert hook in first point and ch. 10 for the first treble and picot, 1 tr. c., picot, 3 times in same piace, * 1 tr. c., picot, 1 tr. c., picot in next point, 4 tr. c. and picot after each treble in next point, repeat from * to length desired.

EDGING IN RICKRACK BRAID AND CROCHET.

Catch in point, * ch. 8, s. c. 1 in next point; repeat from * to length of lace.
2nd row.—4 d. c. over each ch. 8 with ch. 2 between.

Detween.

3rd and 4th rows.—Spaces to end of row.
This will make effective edging for the popular Teddy bear suits, for all undergarments or children's clothing.

Made in a Jiffy Boudoir Cap

This jaunty little affair can be very quickly fashioned by the girl who loves dainty things but lacks either the time or ability to undertake a piece of work which requires both. This creation can be developed of one half yard of Persian lawn or flowered muslin. Take a straight piece about fifteen inches wide, fit it plain across the front of the head, round off the corners just below the ears and gather across the back. Cut the front edge in large scallops and bind with a narrow satin ribbon, make three rosettes by gathering up some two-inch three rosettes by gathering up some two-inch lace, catch these to the front of the cap and under them run a two-inch satin ribbon which crosses the back and is tied in a full bow on the side.

A scarf of dotted net with a design woven around the dot (for center of flower) with colored silks is very effective. White dotted net with blue or pink daisies woven through the mesh for the young lady and black net with gilt interwoven for the elderly one is satisfactory. The edges may be bound with ribbon.

A tag holder has foundation about six inches high by three wide, with a pocket on the bottom front, three inches high by three the bottom front, three inches high by three wide, into which tags are slipped. This may be of heavy, white board, stencilled, or covered with embroidered slip, or one of silk or burlap decorated with gilt paint.

RIBBONS From Loom To You. Write for great offer to get your HAIR BOWS FREE. Enclosing 10c will bring most Wonderful, Fascinating assortment. American Narrow Fabric Go., Dept. G. Paterson, N. J.

UNITED STATES PILLOW TOPS Size 24 x 24. Highest grade wool felt. Color Red, White & Blue.

THREE Crochet and Embro dery ROOKS FOR 16 CENTS. Address, J. F. Ingalls, Lynn, Mass. Box B.

Comfort's League of Cousins

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 9.)

through the mails, that Uncle Sam has Federal prisons—and they are not health resorts by the way—for this particular kind of human vermin. There are only two classes of people in the United States today—Americans and traitors. My advice to you, Joe, is to hustle up and be an American as soon as possible, for it's going to be mighty dangerous from now on to be anything else.

FOR GOD AND COUNTRY

FOR GOD AND COUNTRY

With the Canadian Expeditionary Force
On active Service, CAMP BORDEN, ONT.
DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE AND COUNTS:
I am a soldier with the Overseas Expeditionary Forces of Canada. Camp Borden is a large camp and had 45,000 soldiers stationed here last year. It is large er this year than last as we have American soldiers with us now A soldier's life is a pleasant life, though there are hard times ahead of us when we get to the front. I have two brothers serving in the U. S., one in the army and one in the navy, and mother (God bless her) has given me to the Canadian Army. What more can be expected of a mother. And yet there are many so-called Americans who accuse their nation of treachery for calling its boys to its defense, and the defense of those things that mean to a real man, more than life itself. I have enlisted beneath the British Union Jack because I know England fights for a just cause, and I'm ready to give the last drop of my blood to help drive Kaiserism and all its dirty, murderous work, from a suffering world, and I pray
God to help me bear whatever comes, even though it be death. Life is as sweet to me as to anyone else, but I do not want to live in any country or any land or any world that is willing to submit to the tyranny of a gang of uniformed brutes; and so if my life can help win justice, righteousness and peace for humanity I will give it without a murmur, and in giving my life I will be giving less than many have to, give or have given. I hope that the true light has come to all COMPORT readers, and that they realize the awful peril that confronts them and all humanity, and I hope that they too will not complain if in behalf of the great cause, they have to sacrifice both life and fortune. Now I must say* good by, maybe forever and always. May heaven be merciful and bless our cause and help you one and all in this great hour of trial. As the saying goos, good by, maybe forever and always. May heaven be merciful and bless our cause and help you one and all in this great hour

a world of justice and freedom.

PTE. LESTER DAVIDSON, No. 3,030,343. G. Company, 1st. Central Ontario Rgt., Camp Borden, Out. Can.

Lester, I thank you with all my heart, that you an American boy have with fine courage and high resolution, without faltering or paltering, hastened to do your duty to your God and your country. Great Britain did not ask a single man in all her colonies to come to her aid, and she could not had she wished, for those colonies are absolutely free, bound to her solely by ties of sentiment and tradition. But from the ends of the earth they came, those brawny colonials, for they knew the cause of their motherland, who too was our motherland, was righteous and just. They knew too, if Prussia was victorious, the English-speaking nations, including the United States (which practically represent ninety per cent of all that there is in the way of democracy and popular government on the face of the earth) would go down into the dust, and a merciless, godless, bloodthirsty, military oligarchy, would rule the earth with fire and sword. Thousands of American boys have gone to Canada of their own free will crossed the seas and have died in the trenches fighting with Britain and France, that liberty, freedom and popular government might not perish from the earth. And now the Davidson family has given two sons to fight under the Stars and Stripes and one under the Union Jack. That is as it should be and must be. If liberty and freedom are to live in this distracted world, the English-speaking peoples and the forward looking nations of Europe and South America must forget the antagonisms of the past (and they are forgotten except by an ignominious and contemptible few who fatten on hate as a buzzard fattens on fiith) and stand together in this war upon war which shall make democracy forever safe for mankind. I see a day not so far distant when Canada and the United States, having wiped out old scores for which there never was any real cause, will work together harmoniously for the common and inspir

NORWALK, OHIO.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

I send you the first verse of my song "Kisser Bill," and ask advice and help. The rhime is classy and the sentiment fine. Wouldn't it pay us both for me to get the four verses copywrighted and you to go in with me and go halves and get a tune to fit. Every soldeir would want one and the band would play the tune. Now that's a grate idea. The other three verses are even better.

A War Song

Old Kisser Bill of Germany has got it in his head That he is big cheif of the world and here is what he said.

I am grate Kisser Bill, almust come to my will I am the lord of Ditchland all other countries are nil.

From a patriot,

EDWIN C. JACOBS.

From a patriot,

Ed. I suppose "old Kisser Bill" means Kaiser Bill, and you inform us that "Old Kisser Bill has got it in his head." After a while Ed, we are going to see that he gets it in the neck as well as his head. I hope Kisser Bill will be caged up so he won't have the opportunity of kissing any of our American girls. The Hohenzollern tribe is tainted. The Kaiser's father died of an affection of the throat and it is said that the Kaiser blames his father for the blood taint that gave him a shriveled arm. Old Kisser Bill is the modern Mahomet, destroying all who do not accept his murderous brand of Kultur. Ed, I think every "soldeir" as you call it, would want one of your war songs, but whether it would be wise to let them have them is another matter. If they all had a fit after reading the first verse (and of course such a thing might happen), and if the band forgot to play the tune and only just played the words, we'd have a very sick army and Kisser Bill would win the war. You are right in saying that old Kisser Bill is the Lord of Ditchland. Most of his once proud soldiers are now hiding in ditches. Kisser Bill is the Lord of Ditchland. Most of his once proud soldiers are now hiding in ditches. Kisser Bill didn't think that that wonderful Prussian Guard of his, which has been cut to pieces and reformed more than a score of times, would, instead of marching triumphantly through the streets of Paris, have to hide thirty feet under the ground for fear of having the stuffing knocked out of it by Britain's "contemptible little army," which makes Kisser Bill's troops run to cover every time it starts out Huin hunting. You may be a little shy on poetry and spelling, Ed, but your patriotism is so fine, that Billy the Goat is going to take you to Berlin in an airship and is going to take you to Berlin in an airship and is going to tower you down on a rope and let you sing just one verse of your rhymes right in Kisser Bill's ear. If that don't settle Kisser Bill nothing will.

WHIRLWIND, W. VA.

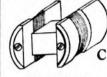

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE:

I live on a farm. I have a cat and four kittens and one fox terrier cow and hog. We live in a four

Automobile and Gas 12.25 a Month Buys Engine Helps

Questions relating to gasoline engines and automobiles, by our subscribers, addressed to COMFORT Auto Dept., Augusta, Maine, will be answered by our expert, free, in the columns of this department. Full name and address is required, but initials only will be printed. That we may intelligently diagnose your trouble please state the year in which your car was made.

Magneto Ignition

end of the shaft which is hollowed out for the purpose and terminates on a flat steel button. In direct contact with the utton is a collector brush which is nothing more or less than a small piece of carbon with a flat end. Some man uf acturers, however, use a collector brush made of copper fauze rolled. As the name would indicate the collector brush rubbing against the flat steel button picks up the current generated in the armature winding and sends it through a cable to the induction coil or other parts. In order to produce a current of sufficient pressure a current interrupter or breaker is necessary. However, to steer clear of confusion the function performed by this part will be treated on at another time.

Full name and address is required, but minds only will be printed. That we may intelligently diagnose your trouble please state the year in which your car was made to the property of the control of the KIMBALL ORGAN At Factory Prices. FREE by our New Diagram System if you write at once. We will send them to reliable people anywhere, on our extremely easy payment plan. Operating the largest plano and organ factory in the world—the Kimball system positively saves you $25 to $60 on strictly first-class organs.

Send for Money-Saving Plan and Free Catalog Under no circumstances can you afford to buy or consider any other organ until you have our money-saving proposition. Ou half-century's manufacturing experience, our financially strong

W. W. KIMBALL CO., 3059 Kimball Hall, Chicago.

ing prices and the Natio	on's Home Songs with words and mu-	sic FREE
Name-
City	State-
St. or R. F. D.

High School Course In Two Years Learn at Home In Spare Time

Don't Stop Growing! Makeup Keep on going! Train your brain! Broad your mental vision! A high school educion multiplies your chances for success

High School Book Free Send your name and address on a letter or post-card and get our new 24-page Illus-trated Book. No obligation, It is abso-lutely free, Write today.

Time! fen and toomen where denied a high chool training ca catch up' by tak ing this simplified ourse at home undreds have prof American School of Correspondence Dept. P3049 Chicago, Illinois

for Lost

OTTAWA KEROSENE ENGINES Bervice, Uses Cheapest Fuel, Pulls 25 to 50% more H-P, than rated, Shipped on three menths' trial. Easy terms. Sizes 1½ to 22 H-P. 10-Year Guarantee, Book free postal gets it. OTTAWA MFG. CO. 1271 King St., Oftawa, Kans.

UNCLE CHARLIE'S BOOKS make the best Xmas gifts.

suppose "grammer" is the way they spell grammar in Whirlwind, W. Va. What "physilogy" is I can't tell unless Billy the Goat will give me a little assistance. Billy says it is the science which permits you with a little study to properly locate your pie tank, otherwise your teeth, your sails, otherwise your stomach, your facial china, otherwise your teeth, your sails, otherwise your buste, otherwise your nose, and so on. When I went to school we used to call that physiology. Anyway we won't find fault with Lula, she is very young and she is doing her best and if she continues to do her best (if the German language press hasn't in the meantime succeeded in handling the country over to the Kaiser) in a few years she may be president of the United States. The whole trouble with the world today is that about one in a hundred tries to do his or her best. The majority of people are spending all their energies in trying to do their worst and that's why most of them have fox terrier cows and pains in their "physilogy" and never amount to very much at any time.

League Shut-in and Mercy Work

League Shut in and Mercy Work for December

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these, ye have done it unto Me."

Written references from postmaster and physician must positively accompany all appeals from shut-ins. Appeals unaccompanied by written references will be destroyed.

shut-ins. Appeals unaccompanied by written references will be destroyed.

L. B. Tinsley, 1645 Washington Ave., Huntington, W. Va. Paralyzed and utterly helpless. Send Santa Claus to his bedside. Very sad case, Isaac Price, Lenoir, R. R. 2, Box 79, N. C. Invalid for forty-five years, depends on charity for support. Well recommended. Remember this afficted brother in your Christmas giving. Elmer Dahlgren, 323 N. 58th Ave., Duluth, Minn. Both legs amputated. Azed mother his only support. Very sad and worthy case. Give him a Christmas call. Mrs. A. C. Hottinger, Thornville, R. R. 5. Ohio. Helpless invalid for twenty years, Very poor and needy. Send her some cheer, Lafayette Swanson, Boomer, R. R. 2, N. C. Paralyzed from waist down, result of being thrown from wagon by runaway team twelve vears ago. Don't forget him. Mrs. E. B. Welch, Corydon, R. R. I., Iowa. Eighty years of age. Sick and needy. Send her a dime shower. James Wortham, Letona, Ark. Invalid, Send him some cheer, George Weston, Allexan, R. R. 2, Mich. Forty-two years old, blind and crippled. Very sad case. Send him cheery letters, and any financial aid you can spare. Alma V. Smith, Benen Vista, Md. Shut-in. Would appreciate cheery letters, Mrs. L. Hollis-(CONTINUED ON PAGE 19.)

Cut this out and paste it to the top of a sheet of writing paper.

Read our editorial (on page 2) headed "Crucifying the Magazines." Then, if you favor a Circulate the petition among your friends and neighbors and get them to sign, women as well Finally, mail the signed petition to your congressman at House of Representatives, Washing-level second-class postage rate, one that will be uniform throughout the country regardless of distance, that will not favor some and discriminate against other localities, cut out the coupon below and paste it to the top of a sheet of writing paper. Thus it will serve as the heading to a petition. Next fill in the date and the name of your congressman. If you don't know his name you can learn it from your postmaster.

For Equal Privileges and

Then write your name and place of residence on the blank paper below the heading.

Uniform Postage Rates

We believe that the flat rate of a cent a pound for second-class postage has been of inestimable benefit by facilitating and promoting the dissemination of knowledge, and that the magazines, which by means of this low flat rate have been enabled to build up a nation-wide circulation spreading information to the remotest nooks and corners of the land, constitute one of the greatest, most unifying and beneficent educational forces in the country. We earnestly protest against grading second-class postage on any zone rate basis as being class legislation aimed against the magazines and an unjust sectional discrimination against the people dwelling in parts remote from the large centers of population.

U. S. House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

Therefore, we respectfully request you to exert your influence and give your vote in Congress in favor of the repeal of the zone rates (before they take effect in July), and for making the second-class postage rate, thereafter as heretofore, one and the same, level and uniform throughout the Union regardless of distance.

NAMES

RESIDENCES

Ruptured?-Throw Away Your Truss!

For Many Years We Have Been Telling You That No Truss Will Ever Help You—We Have Told You the Harm That Trusses Are Doing. We Have Told You That the Only Truly Comfortable and Scientific Device for Holding Rupture is the Brooks Rupture Appliance—and That It Is

Sent on Trial to Prove It

If you have tried most everything else, come to me. Where others fail is where I have my greatest success. Send attached coupon today and I will send you free my illustrated book on Rupture and its cure, showing my Appliance and giving you prices and names of many people who have tried it and were cured. It is instant relief when all others fail. Remember, I use no salves, no

I send on trial to prove what I say is true.
You are the judge and once having seen my illustrated book and read it you will be as enthusiastic as my hundreds of patients whose letters you can also read. Fill out free coupon below and mail today. It's well worth your time whether you try my Appliance or not.

Soundly Cured At the Age of 81

Mr. C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.

Less than a year ago I sent to you for an ap-pliance which came promptly. I at once put it on and it fitted perfectly. I have worn the appliance not quite 10½ months.

It has cured my rupture.

I tried the other day while the appliance was off, to see if I could force anything out of the opening to make a break there but I could not though I tried hard. though I tried hard.

though I tried hard.

Now I think this quite remarkable as I am in my eighty-first year.
I am an old veteran of the Civil War, born and raised in the town of New Boston, State of New Hampshire, from which place I enlisted in the 10th N. H. Vol. Inft. in Co. C, commanded by Col. M. T. Donahue.

I cannot feel but that I owe you this testimony for I had never expected to be cured. However.

for I had never expected to be cured. However, thanks be to God I found a cure through the valuable appliance you made for me.

Your friend Holly Hill, Fla.

E. A. Richards

Cured Without Operation

"Was Sure He Would Be a Cripple"

Mr C E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir :-Enclosed is a picture of my children, and the little man you see seated on the chair is the one who was cured by your Appliance. He had been rup-tured quite a while before we wrote you, and I was sure that he would be a cripple the rest of his life. However, some helping hand showed me an ad.

perfect health through the wearing of a Brooks Appliance for just three months. The doctor advised an operation, which I would not consent to. Your advice was to put an Air Cushion Appliance on him, and I must say that it is worth ten times what it cost.

any that it is worth ten times what it cost.

I wish you could have seen him before we used the Appliance and now, when he is fully as sound as anyone could be.

I cannot thank you too much for what you have done for my boy.

Yours respectfully,

OLIVER HANSON.

The above is C. E. Brooks, inventor of the Appliance, who cured himself and who is now giving others the benefit of his experience.

If ruptured, write him today, at Marshall, Mich.

Cured In Three Months

Salem, Ohio. 430 Cleveland Ave. Mr. C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.

Dear Mr. Brooks: I am sending you a small picture of my son, who is now five years old. We ordered your Ap-pliance for him when he was only two months old, and yet want to say in about three months all about three months an signs of rupture were gone, and he is some boy today.

I shall be very glad to say a good word for you whenever the opportunity presents itself ity presents itself. Yours very truly.

T. A. McLAIN.

Veteran Cured

Mr. Wm. McAdams, of Kansas, Ill. is a vete-ran of Co. "H" 59, Regt. Ill. Vol. of which he was Second Lieutenant.

He has fought against the suffering and torment of Rupture for years and has finally won the victory as the following brief letter tells

Mr. C. E. Brooks Marshall, Mich. Dear Sir:—I laid your appliance aside March and and have not worn it for twenty-five days, for I think that I am cured. I hope that I may never have to wear it again.

> Yours truly. Wm. McAdams, Sr., Kansas, Ill.

Doctor Pronounces Pennsylvania Man Thankful Him Cured

119 Towle Avenue, Mishawaka, Ind. Mr. C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.

Marshan, Mich.
Dear Mr. Brooks:—
Answering your letter, will say we need no more Appliances, as our son has been completely cured by wearing your Appliance.

We recently had him examined, and the doctor said the opening was entirely closed and that it wasn't necessary to wear it longer.

Thanking you for your kind-

Yours very truly, MRS. H. TOLLMAN.

Remember

I send my Appliance on trial to prove what I say is true. You are to be the judge. Fill out free coupon below and mail today.

Ten Reasons Why

You Should Send for Brooks Rupture Appliance

- It is absolutely the only Appliance of the kind on the market today, and in it are em-bodied the principles that inventors have sought after for years.
- 2. The Appliance for retaining the rupture cannot be thrown out of position.
- 3. Being an air cushion of soft rubber it clings closely to the body, yet never blisters or causes irritation.
- 4. Unlike the ordinary so-called pads, used in other trusses, it is not cumbersome or
- It is small, soft and pliable, and positively cannot be detected through the clothing.
- The soft, pliable bands holding the Appliance do not give one the unpleasant sensation of wearing a harness.
- 7. There is nothing about it to get foul, and when it becomes soiled it can be washed without injuring it in the least. 8. There are no metal springs in the Appliance to torture one by cutting and bruising the flesh.
- All of the material of which the Ap-pliances are made is of the very best that money can buy, making it a durable and safe Appli-
- 10. My reputation for honesty and fair dealing is so thoroughly established by an experience of over thirty years of dealing with the public, and my prices are so reasonable, my terms so fair, that there certainly should be no hesitancy in sending free coupon today.

Mr. C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.

Mr. C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir:—Perhaps it will interest you to know that I have been ruptured six years and have always had trouble with it till I got your Appliance. It is very easy to wear, fits neat and snug, and is not in the way at any time, day or night. In fact, at times I did not know I had it on; it just adapted itself to the shape of the body and seemed to be a part of the body, as it clung to the spot, no matter what position I was in.

It would be a veritable God-send to the unfortunate who suffer from rupnate who suffer from rup-ture if all could procure the Brooks Rupture Ap-pliance and wear it. They would certainly never

My rupture is now all healed up and nothing ever did it but your Appliance. Whenever the opportunity presents itself I will say a good word for your Appliance, and also the honorable way in which you deal with ruptured people. It is a pleasure to recommend a good thing among your friends or strangers. I am,

Yours very sincerely, JAMES A. BRITTON. 80 Spring St., Bethlehem, Pa.

Free Information Coupon

Mr. C. E. BROOKS,

157 A State St., Marshall, Michigan

Please send me by mail in plain wrapper your illustrated book and full information about your Appliance for the cure of rupture.

R. F. D. City State

By Ella Gordon

Copyright, 1917, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

HERE is no more enjoyable arrangement for Christmas giving or one that all may share so equally in, as the gathering of family and friends before a Christmas tree laden with mysterious packages and home-made decorations. The reason for chiefly using the fir tree on this occasion is probably due to the fact that the fir is classed among the world's sacred trees. Let us not forget to teach the lesson that thirty-three years after the blessed Christ child's birth came the tree on the hill of Golgotha, where he poured out His life blood, a free gift to all. So from the tree at Calvary we learn what we all experience at this season, that it is "more blessed to give than to receive."

Center on making your decorations practically without expense, thus saving the money for a few more gifts. Strings of bright red cramberries are exceedingly decorative, and by using white thread for the strings, and a fine needle, the cramberries will not be injured, but can be rinsed and used for cooking purposes, after doing duty on the tree. Make cramberry strings into yard lengths and use as garlands from limb to limb. Dot the tree here and there with snowballs made from cotton. Usually there is a little spare cotton in the house, and it should be picked and made very light, then formed into balls. Run a white thread through each, the the two ends into a loop and hang to tree. Cotton can be taken from a pillow and returned after use on the tree. Popcorn strings are always gala in appearance, and furnish the small hands with happy employment. With soft cloths, polish bright red apples, the strong thread to the stems and hang onto the tree. Distribute the always ald in appearance, and furnish the small hands with happy employment. With soft cloths, polish bright red apples, the strong thread to the stems and hang onto the tree. Distribute the always gala in appearance, and furnish the small hands with happy employment. With soft cloths, polish bright red apples, the strong thread of content and content of the content of the content of

The Girl He Loved

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 6.)

before all the world, in words that stopped the very blood in her: "I, Adrian, take thee, Ravevery blood in her: "I. Adrian, take thee, Ravenel—"

The bride heard no other word of the service. She clutched Levallion's hand like a vise that she might not fall; a gray mist swam before her eyes. She muttered after the bishop something that meant nothing, but was all of a piece with this awful travesty of marriage that was binding her to an Adrian Gordon she had never loved. Saddening, the crash of the wedding-march came on her dazed ears; the gray mist lifted, cleared. She was walking by Levallion's side to the vestry, to sign, for the last time, the name she had grown to hate.

Rayenel Annesley was dead now, and decently

she had grown to hate.

Ravenel Annesley was dead now, and decently buried under a pile of wedding presents and a bridal wreath. It was the Countess of Levallion who lifted her veil with a hand that was perfectly steady, despite the burden of its new ring; the Countess of Levallion who bent forward that the duchess might kiss her on both cheeks. If she was a little drawn about the mouth, no one saw it but the bridegroom; and he in a curious, cynical way, was sorry for her.

Curiously, too, he had meant every word he had said at the altar. To his life's end, Adrian Gordon, Lord Levallion, meant to love and cherish his wife.

had said at the altar. To his life's end, Adrian Gordon, Lord Levallion, meant to love and cherish his wife.

He was proud of her very listlessness as he led her down the aisle; prouder still of her absolute immobility when something happened that tried even his nerve.

In the porch, blocking the very way of the bridal procession—and to this day Lady Levallion could not tell you the names of her six bridesmaids!—was a woman.

Exquisitely slim and small, she stood waiting, a little boy clinging to her hand. Her dress was black, a lace veil, with a heavy border, hid her mouth, but not her eyes. As she moved, silently, gracefully, to give room to the happy couple, Lord Levallion met those eyes full on his.

"Hester!" almost he said it aloud. "And in black. Can the little fool be going to make a scene?" And for an infinitesimal moment he held his breath. Ravenel, as she passed Mrs. Murray, drew away her skirts. She had obstinately refused to let her be asked to the wedding, and wondered that she should care to stand on the church steps with the curious crowd. But that was all. She never noticed the look the duchess' friend gave the bridegroom. For just one instant her eyes had held his; the next she and her boy

What to Send Our Soldiers

By Frances L. Garside

HE recent official announcement that the first contingent of American troops has begun active service in the front line trenches with the general knowledge that we have many more regiments in training in France and England and their numbers are continually increasing as fast as the transports can carry them over, makes the question of what can be done for the health and comfort of the soldier boy at the front a matter of anxious solicitude in hundreds of thousands of homes.

The chief interes in every heart, every home, and welfare of the boy at the front. In this sentiment, every sister shares, and this year many a sighed-for pink silk kimono or beruffled party gown will be forgotten in the greater joy of sending something nice will not be a flimsy, pretty gewgaw, if the woman who sends it is thinking of the needs of the boy in Khaki. It will be something useful, and all the shops are showing gifts suitable for American soldiers on duty that give counters and show cases a grimmer, more practical, look than that which characterized them only a short year ago.

Articles bought at the shops are wrapped and mailed as easily as any other parcel post package. A package from home will be equally welcome at any time to the soldier boy on foreign service, and the following suggestions are applicable as well to one time as to another.

If you are sending your solder books, recall what his taste has always been. The unfortunate of the state in reading, what books, though he may like them, are not as popular with the soldiers as other literature, according to the booksellers. Those returning say that poetry is best liked by the soldiers, and a book of poems is passed from one group to another.

A harmonica is welcomed, and many have written for them. Dreary camps are made merry with a mouth organ. And there is always need of emergency cases tiny enough to tuck in the corner of a knapsack and containing sitheient lint, gauze, tape and other material to dress minor wounds. Writing material is another suggestion. He needs to had disappeared in the crowd. Lord Levallion was absolutely sick with relief, as he followed his wife into the carriage; and yet he was not sure that it was relief, for it felt uncommonly his wife find the sure that it was relief, for it felt uncommonly like apprehension.

"Hester," he thought, "to dare to come here with the boy! It's enough to make all sorts of scandal." (That only a secrecy like the grave had been able to keep down!) "What can she mean?" He wondered, sharply, if Ravenel had noticed.

tain candles made of rolled paper soaked in hot paraffin. These have been made by American women and children by the thousands, and will burn long enough for the soldier to cook a small burn long enough for the soldier to cook a small meal meal.

Do not send pink silk pajamas. Do not waste time on embroidery, when knitting counts for greater service.

The parcel post rate is twelve cents a pound, and the regular parcel post rules remain in force. Since November 1, when the new War Tax affecting postage went into effect, letters now call for three-cent stamps and post-cards for two-cent postage, except that soldiers' mail from the other side is hereafter received free. Soldiers, sending letters home are expected to put in the upper right-hand corner their own names, branch of service, outfit, etc.

letters home are expected to put in the upper right-hand corner their own names, branch of service, outfit, etc.

Tobacco should be sent separate from other articles, according to officials, since it is not properly admitted to France free of duty, but may be sent to American Expeditionary soldiers by special courtesy of the Minister of War. Such packages should be marked as "tobacco intended for an American soldier," with his address plainly written, also that of the sender.

Present regulations require that every package destined for a U. S. soldier in over-seas service shall be so packed and wrapped as to admit of easy inspection, and no parcel will be sent abroad that does not have the postmaster's certificate that it contains no prohibited articles.

Each package should be plainly addressed, giving the full name of the person for whom it is intended and designate the branch of the service (as Infantry, Artillery, Cavalry or Engineers, etc.) and the number of the regiment and letter of the company to which he belongs, stating also whether private or officer, and in the latter case giving his rank, and should conclude with the words "American Expeditionary Forces."

The name and full address of the sender must be written in the upper left-hand corner. For instance, a package from Mrs. Frank Jones, R. R. 2, Box S, Augusta, Maine, to her son James M., a private in Company F, 103rd Regiment Infantry, should be addressed thus:

From Mrs. Frank Jones, R. R. 2, Box 8, Augusta, Maine.

James M. Jones, Private, Co. F, 103rd Inf., American Expeditionary Forces.

Be careful about the address, for already thousands of pieces of mail matter for soldiers have piled up in Washington because improperly or insufficiently addressed; and probably these will never reach their destination.

Do not send perishable articles as they will be weeks on the way.

There will always be a demand for reading. Any periodicals which would otherwise go to waste should be mailed to the soldiers at the front. The Government requests this and the Post-office Department has arranged to provide an easy and inexpensive means of getting the magazines to the soldiers. Postmaster General Burleson has ordered that a one-cent postage stamp shall carry to the soldiers any magazine, regardless of size and weight, which prints on its front cover the following:

NOTICE TO READER.—When you finish reading this copy of (name of the magazine) place a U. S. one-cent postage stamp on this notice, hand same to any U. S. postal employee, and it will be placed in the hands of our soldiers or sailors at the front. No wrapper, no address.

S. Burleson, Postmaster General.

Note.—Beginning with the present issue this notice will appear on the front cover of Comfort in order that any Comfort subscriber, if so inclined, may contribute his or her copy, after reading it, for the benefit of the boys at the front.

The Government will see to the distribution, and as neither address nor wrapper is permitted, apparently this special, low postage rate does not apply to magazines addressed to any individual soldier. However, it is suggested that it would be well to tie up the magazine with a string to a prevent injury in transit, taking care to fold it so that the notice and stamp will be outside.—

pearance and her angry eyes determinedly out of his mind. Before he brought his wife home to Levallion Castle, three months later, he had absolutely forgotten both.

made him proud of her. And by this time Lord Levallion was used to that curious, pathetic look she had about the eyes.

"You are a lazy wretch!" she said, looking up. "You've not opened one letter or one paper out of all that heap."

"You're very truthful," he said lazily. "How many women do you suppose would call me an old wretch to my face?"

The greatest charm he had found in her was that, let him be as cynically outspoken as he liked, she never cared; so that her answer surprised him.

"I wasn't truthful; it was a silly joke. I think, if you want to know, that you're a thousand times too good for me." Lord Levallion walked around the table, his handsome, worn face curiously soft.

around the table, his handsome, worn race currously soft:

"To tell a man he is too good for you is a fatal mistake," he remarked gravely. "It makes him presoune on you—like this!" kissing her slim hand: "I shall make a note that, to keep you work that it shall make a note that, to keep you work that it shall make a note that, to keep you work that it shall make a note that, to keep you work that you have the way. Have that you once a week. By the way, Have that you once a week. By the way, Have that you once a week ard you you have the way it is that you have that you you have the you have that you you have the you have that you you have the you have that you you have had a work that all rings!" with a vicious glance at her slim, bare hands. "You're changing the subject, Levallion. I was saying I was an odious wretch to marry you. I had no right to do it, just to get away from Sylvia!" It was the first time she had ever uttered the self-reproach that grew on her each day, with each fresh proof that Levallion's love was real. That other thought of revenge on Adrian Gordon that had been so quick in her once, was dead enough now, if repentance could kill it. Not for Adrian's sake, but for the petty meanness of it. She hated herself for having made Levallion a tool for her own ends, a corvenient escape from Sylvia and a surface that you might engage a father confessor, if it would ease your mind." His lordship returned to his place and lowered his eyes to his plate. For it seemed to him that his indifferent wife was beginning to care, which meant heaven opening before his incredulous middle-aged eyes. "I assure you, I'm quite satisfied with the result of your motives, however low they were, my dear child. You don't propose I should read all these, do you?" with a nod at his pile of letters.

"Every one. It's your own fault there are somany. You should have let your letters be forwarded while you were away. Now you must turn them over, and begin at the oldest."

For, kind as he was, his very goodness freted her, ju

She nodded silently, and, to Levallion's surprise, all the shocked, strained look was gone from her face.
"He was your heir," she said slowly. "Of course, you had better go and inquire about him."

from her face.

"He was your heir," she said slowly. "Of course, you had better go and inquire about him."

"Yes. Will you come, or stay here?"

"Oh, stay here!" said Lady Levallion, with a shudder breaking through that queer calmness born of conviction that Adrian Gordon was dead. When Levallion was gone, she noted dully that he had only read that one letter of all that waited for him, and wondered if he would be so concerned about Adrian if he knew all about him. And then, with a curious feeling of returning to consciousness, she realized with a rush that she was glad—glad!—that Adrian was dead. She need no longer reproach herself that she had stolen his inheritance, and never shrink with shame at the remembrance of how she had sold herself, body and soul, to be even with him.

"He's dead!" she said to herself, with an inexpressible peace. "Dead and happy, and some day I shall be like him. Not for a long time, for I'm young and tough, but every day will bring it a little closer. But if only he and I were lying in the same grave now, I would not care how long God put off the Judgment Day." And there was no grief in her face as she thought it; only the deadly longing that saps a woman's soul more than tears.

The strange, uncanny peace was still on her as she sat that afternoon on the lawn under the vellowing trees. She had forgiven Adrian everything she had against him, as she had no fear that he would not forgive her sin when she should stand beside him in her very flesh on the day of doom; for there would be no space wide enough to keep her from him when the earth gave up its motley crowd of men and women, of whom none would creep more gladly to the side of the love they had forgiven than she.

She looked up, clear-eyed, from the book she was not reading—and saw Adrian Gordon standing in front of her. Adrian, whose bones were whitening in the Afghan hills!

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 19.)

Get Subs for Premiums Before the Subscription Rate Goes Up

Our subscription price is to be raised to 35 cents per year. Increased expense renders this step necessary at an early date. The time when the new yearly rate goes into effect will soon be announced.

This advance warning provides an exceptional opportunity to earn valuable, useful, beautiful premiums with less effort than ever before.

Tell your friends and neighbors that the yearly subscription price of COMFORT is soon to be advanced nearly one half and they will be glad to give you their subscriptions at the present low rate of 25 cents.

Start at once and make the most of this chance to profit yourself while doing them a good turn.

Every one you get to subscribe now, before the rate goes up, will save 10 cents and you will receive the club premium you select as your reward.

Nearly all the magazines have raised or announced a rise in their subscription rates. 25 cents a year is scarcely more than 2 cents each for the 12 monthly copies of

With its numerous departments, instructive special articles and good stories COMFORT gives the most, the best and the greatest variety for the money.

A second rise in subscription rates will have to come a little later to meet the higher postage rates which go in effect next July.

This is a further incentive to get subscription clubs at the present low rate. Read the premium offers in this issue of COMFORT, write for our large, new premium catalogue, sent you free on application, and Begin Getting Subscriptions Today

Sibyl's Influence

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 10.) minder of her noble husband's indulgence and confidence.

She went directly and sought Mistress Sloan and found her to be a rough-looking woman, with coarse, dark hair and features, and a disagreeably independent air.
"Who is this child whom you have with you?"
she asked.

"Who is this child whom you have with you?" she asked.

"Her name is Sibyl, mum, as I thought ye knew before," was the laconic reply, accompanied by a suspicious glance.

"I know; but who is she? She does not belong to you, does she?"

"She don't belong to no else that I know on, mum," she said, with a sullen leer; and, folding her arms akimbo, she faced her ladyship, and assumed an attitude of defiance.

"What I meant," Lady Prescott returned, gently, "was that she is not your own, or in any way connected with you by birth?"

"Ye don't think she looks like me, then?" and the woman, grinning from ear to ear, exposed to view a mouthful of repulsive teeth.

"Not at all," responded Lady Prescott, truthfully, and trying to conceal her disgust.

"No, ye be right there; she is nothing to me, and right glad Nell Sloan is, too, that she is not mother to such a lazy lout as she be."

"Lazy!" said Lady Prescott, in surprise.

"Yes, mum; poring over senseless trash half the day, and dreamin' away t'other."

"She does not assist you much, then?" her ladyship asked, beginning to feel somewhat encouraged as to her project.

"Don't earn her salt, mum; nor hasn't since that gal took crazy and ran away, leavin' her on my hands."

"What gir?"

"Ehe-ob! I didn't mind what I was a tellity."

that gal took crazy and ran away, leavin' her on my hands."
"What girl?"
"Eh—oh! I didn't mind what I was a-tellin' ye. But Sibyl is a lazy thing, as I told ye before," said the woman, somewhat confused. Apparently, she had carelessly disclosed something which she had not intended to reveal.

Lady Prescott tried to draw her out further on the subject of the "crazy girl," but could gain no information.

The woman appeared startled and angry at having said so much, and gave short and sullen replies to all her questions; and, finally dropping that matter, Lady Prescott came to the point at once.

at once. "Would you be willing to part with Sibyl?"

she asked.
"Part with Sibyl!" repeated the woman, looking blank and perplexed.

"Yes. I am interested in the child, because she seems so eager to gain an education, and I

"Yes. I am interested in the child, because she seems so eager to gain an education, and I would like to give her an opportunity to study. You say 'she does not earn her salt,' therefore you would, doubtless, be glad to be relieved of the burden of her support."

"P'raps! What game be ye up to, anyhow?" demanded the virago, suspiciously.

"I am 'up to' no 'game,' as you term it," Lady Prescott, replied with dignity. "I simply would like to see the child in a way to get the education which she so earnestly desires, and, if you will give her to me, I promise to do well by her, and that she shall always be kindly dealt with."

The woman searched her companion's face, keenly.

and that she shall always be kindly dealt with."
The woman searched her companion's face, keenly.
"What's possessed ye to take such a sudden interest in the gal, I wonder—any idea who she belongs to?" she asked, curiously.
"Oh, no; I have not the slightest suspicion as to her parentage; but I like the child's appearance, and want to do her good. Now, I am willing to make you a handsome present if you will accede to my wishes," the lady said, as a last resort, suggesting a bribe.
"Oho! And how much will ye give for the jade?" demanded the woman, greedily.
"I do not wish you to understand for a moment that I propose to buy the child of you," Lady Prescott returned, haughtily, and heartily disgusted with the heartless creature; "but I will give you twenty pounds if you will allow me to take her home with me."
"Whereabouts may yer home be? If her own folks should ever be making inquiries for her, I might want to tell them where she'd gone," the woman said, cunningly.

Lady Prescott saw the force of this, and gave the rname and address.
"Twenty pounds, twenty pounds," muttered the creature, reflectively.
Then, with a cunning leer, she continued:
"Ye may think that ought to sound pretty big to the likes of me, but ye look as if ye were able to make it twenty more, if ye had a mind to."

Her ladyship's patience was nearly exhausted, but of the likes of the controlled herself, but for the likes of the controlled herself.

were able to make it twenty more, if ye had a mind to."

Her ladyship's patience was nearly exhausted, but, for Sibyl's sake, she controlled herself, and said:

"Well, if you will let her go with me, and tell me all that you know about her, I will increase the sum to thirty pounds. More than that I will not do," said Lady Prescott, decidedly.

"I guess you can have her," was the prompt reply, while a greedy light made her eyes glare most repulsively.

Then she added, speaking with some reserve:

"An", as for what I know about her, it ain't much. A gal came here one dark night ten years ago, with a little black, homely thing in her arms. She the gal had a bad bruise and cut on her head over the right car, and seemed to be out of her head. Jem that's my husband, mum—had heard that there had been a railroad smashup the day before, somewhere near Scarborough, and we supposed she had got hurt there, and wandered away to this place.

"She couldn't, or wouldn't tell her name, but the child called her 'Kannie' part of the time, and sometimes 'Nansie.' For many a week after she had gone, the child would cry, and say:

"But she the gal -grew sick and weak, and finally took to her bed, where she lay for a fortnight. But one mornin' I went into her room and found her gone, leavin' her puny brat on my hands to be taken care on. I have never seen her since, and that's all there is about it."

Lady Prescott was afraid that it was not "all there was about it." She mistrusted that her since, and that's all there is about it."

Lady Prescott was afraid that it was not "all there was about it." She mistrusted that something, and perhaps of importance, had been withheld, for the woman's manner was restless, and there was an anxious look upon her coarse face.

Is this everything that you know concerning

"Is this everything that you know concerning Sibyl?" she asked, with a searching look.
"That's all, mum," was the glum reply: but the dogged expression upon her face led her companion to doubt the truthfulness more and more. "Were there no names or initials marked upon her clothing, or no little trinkets by which she could have been recognized by her parents?"
"No, mum."

*How was she dressed when the girl brought here?"

"She was dressed fine enough, and the woman too, for that matter, in laces and broideries, and

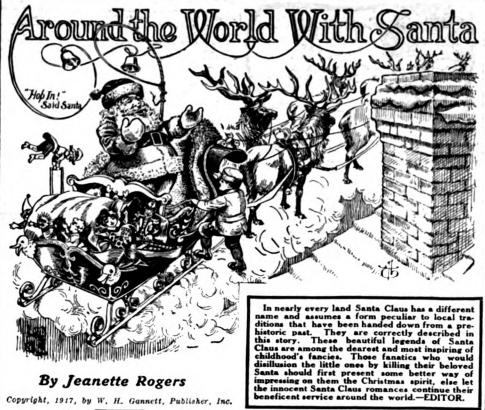

"Did you save any of her clothing?"
"Did you save any of her clothing?"
"Not I," the woman replied, with a short, hoarse laugh. "She wore them till they hung in rags before I could afford the time to make her any more, and then—I burnt them up."
Lady Prescott sighed, from disappointment. She was almost sure that the heartless being before her knew much more than she had revealed, but was keeping it to herself for some purpose of her own, although she was evidently glad to be rid of the child.

Yet she was thankful to have gained even

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 16.)

NOTE. The following story is printed in place of the Cubby Bear story which was announced for this issue. "Cubby Bear's Visit" will appear next month. Renew your subscription so not to miss it.

THE RESIDENCE OF THE PARTY OF T

By Jeanette Rogers

Copyright, 1917, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

zen'---"
"Why, I thought your leaders were 'Vixen'

"Now, now! You must not interrupt," laughed.
"Now, now! You must not interrupt," laughed.
Santa, and he shook like a jelly pudding as he laughed. "What I was about to say was that I can take you along with me, but I will

I can take you along with me, but I will have to disguise you as various sorts of people to do it."

Oh, I don't mind that, only take me," I urged.

"You see," continued Santa, "I am not always a white-beards ed, warmly clad round dumpling of a man, sometimes I am a slant-eyed sailor and again I am a camel driver and again even an old woman, and—" urged.

SANTA IN ARABIA.

man, and——"
"Oh, please! Don't tell me now, let me go with you and be surprised. I just love surprises," I SANTA IN JAPAN.

SANTA IN JAPAN.

the country, over the great plains and above the Rocky Mountains I soon saw Mountains I soon saw Then we kept right on over California and to the West.

"Why we have left our country!" I gasped, "aren't we to have any Christmas this year?"

"Ho, ho!" This time Santa laughed uproarously, "My dear," he said, "we are going into the West to Japan. Never fear, we will make the rounds in time."

"What is that?" I asked, pointing downward

"What is that?" I asked, pointing downward to some large islands.
"Sandwich Islands. Giddap Viven!" and Santa shook a rein.
"Why, they are real land, I—I thought they were sandwiches." I gasped in surprise. By that time we were nearing Japan.

"Look out for your-self!" shouted "Look out for yourself!" shouted Santa,
I looked about to see what it was and the reindeers were gone, I turned to Santa, but he had gone too, and a strange man was in his place, a little fat, dark man with a long goatee and a tiny mustache that hung

中華

dark man with a long goatee and a tiny mustache that hung SANTA IN TURKEY. away down. He had slant eyes and was dressed in a something that looked like my mamma's kimono. He had a hat that looked like a wooden chopping bowl and his shoes were made of bits of wood.

Then I saw that we were not in a sleigh at all, but in a wonderful little ship, with great bamboo mud pies.

Silently and swiftly the Christmas camel loped over the desert from camp to camp among the resting caravans and from vil lage to village and I went along with him with-out the least effort while Santa's robes waved and fluttered.

and fluttered.

As we entered Turkey the camel changed to a beautiful horse. Santa was astride with a red fez on his head and I sat! I had holding the pack while the horse galloped throu hat he in. At all the missions we hurried through the Ottoman empire, leaving boxes of sweet, sticky candies the little Turkish and Armenian children love so dearly. There were dolls for the girls and little toy coffee pots in which they could make the thick coffee just as their mothers make it, while the boys were given books and decorated belts and toy soldiers.

From there we went into Russia. All of a sudden Santa had gone. But an old woman stood beside me. She was bent with the burden of a great basket on her shoulders, but her smile was cheerful.

cheerful.

"What—?" I started to ask. Then came that same jolly laugh and I knew it was Santa.

"I am Babouschka," he said, "and every Christmas, according to the customs of the Greek church, I go about among the Russian children with a great basket on my back and leave presents for them. These are placed beside the resat round air tight stoves or the fireplaces while they sleep. There were little red boots and sleds for the boys, bends and spangled head dresses and dolls for the wirls, and all sorts of sweet this se, and little cakes of tea leaves with which the children brew tea for their parties, for the little Russlan children drink tea much as their elders do although it is not such strong tea and there is no vedka in it. We passed over great plains of snow and out over a cold sea and all of a sudden I heard a familiar sound—the jingle of sleich hells.

Babouschka, who had me by the hand as we flew, was back again a Santa Claus the real Santa Claus and we were sitting in the sleigh and the reindeers were prainting through the nir. I looked about and saw the cottages and that hed roofs and great hedges and then at the toys in roofs and great hedges and then at the toys in

"We are in England!" I exclaimed joyously.

"We are in England!" I exclaimed joyously.

"For once you are right," laughed Santa, and in a flash he was all over the island, dashing down chimneys with his presents and out again. Across the English channel we went. Still we kept the sleigh and reindeers but Santa had a peculiar expression.

"This is France, isn't it?" I asked.

"Out, out, ma chere!" he said.

"And you are Santa Claus just the same?" I insisted, for I knew just about enough French to know he had said, "Yes, my dear," to my first question.

"And you are Santa chots just the Santa."
Insisted, for I knew just about enough French to know he had said, "Yes, my dear," to my first question.

"Non, non! Bonhome Noel!" exclaimed Santa.

"Bon — ," I paused, bewildered.

"In France," said Santa, suddenly speaking English, but with an accent, "there is no 'Santa Claus,' but 'Good Man Christmas,' Good Man Christmas is the same as Santa and he goes about in a sleigh and leaves just about the same sort of presents that he leaves in America and England and Germany."

After France came Germany. Here Santa was stouter than ever and kept saying "Ja!" and he told me he was "Saint Nicholas" in Germany and knew it was the Christ Child who sent him.

"Donnerwetter! These storks' nests," complained Santa, as he had to lift up the storks' nests on many chimneys to get down.

In Norway Santa became tall, with flowing mustache and long yellow hair. He wore a steel hat with wings on it and told me he was "Juul."
"We do not pronounce the 'J." he explained, "and so it is spoken as 'Yuul' and from that the English get the name of Yule' After Christianity came the simple people still clung to the old myths about the god Juul built fires in his honor, and the little children high in the mountains and deep in the forests know that on each Christmas the brave old god Juul is sent as a messenger of joy with presents for them. Skils, snow-shoes, sleds, dolls, knives for the boys and many other presents he left. Sheaves of wheat were fastened to the ridgepoles of the houses for Christmas feasts for the birds.

Then through Iceland and Lapland and among the Indians and Eskimos around and above the Hudson Bay region Santa traveled with his reindeer, but a boat made of skin was used instead of a sleigh and knives and spears, dolls made from bits of colored wood, strips of fat meat, beads and needles and real thread were among some of the toys and useful things Santa left at the mission settlements.

Around and around we were whirled. In Holland Santa was "Kris Kringle," in Switzerland h of the toys and useful things Santa left at the mission settlements.

Around and around we were whirled. In Holland Santa was "Kris Kringle," in Switzerland he was "Samiklaus," which sounds a lot like "Santa Claus," and he traveled about in a great high sleigh covered with goat skins. In Heligoland he traveled in the same sort of a sleigh and was "Sonner Klas," which is another name almost like Santa Claus, and I think we get the name "Santa Claus" from "Sonner Klas." I asked Santa but just then we were far over the sea and all of a sudden Santa swooped down on board a number of ships. This time he had a fish tall and a crown and green sea weeds about him and he poured gifts from a shell. He told me that many sailors at sea declare that, being so far from land, Neptune takes pity on them and plays Santa, "but," added Santa, "they are mistaken. No one takes my place, I am many things but always the same, I am the Spirit of Christmas."

We passed hurriedly through Italy. The church bells were ringing for early mass but we did not pause.

"Do you slight the Italian children?" I seked paise.

"Do you slight the Italian children?" I asked.

"Oh. no, they have no use for me, my dear, they go out and exchange gifts with each other and are quite as happy," he repiled, but he sighed, and I knew he felt bad that any children anywhere should miss the thrills and joy of anticipating a visit from Santa.

In Mexico we left "Pinta" at the homes of the children. These are earthern jugs, dressed up as dolls or birds or animals, with tissue paper and tinsel and silks, completely hiding the jugs or large-mouthed jars.

On Christmas Day, so Santa told me, these pintas are suspended by a cord, the children are blindfolded and then they strike at the pinta with sticks until it is broken when a great heap of candies fall and every one makes a happy rush and scrambles for the sweets. The jugs always contain Christmas candies.

In Spain, as we left presents, we observed the "Naciemiento," which is a little seene made of twigs and clay, representing the ruined stable and the Holy Mother inside with the Christ Child in the manger.

Back again to China we hurried and suddenly a great duck with a sack in his bill flow over the "Do you slight the Italian children?" I asked, one yenow robe and sandals laced up to my knees very snug to keep the sand out and I had a stick in my hand.

There were great packs on the camel's back full of the queerest sort of things.

"This," said Santa, "is Dehma Desert in Arabia. Here every year the Christmas Camel comes with his pack. All the children at the great missions here could never understand about a Santa Claus living in the snow country, or about sleighs or reindeer, but they know all about camels, so I always come with a camel and leave presents at their tents."

There were toy camels and one the Holy Mother inside with the Christ Child in the manger.

Back again to China we hurried and suddenly a great duck with a sack in his bill flew over the land. It was Santa and at the missions the little children insist that it is a duck that brings them presents because the duck means "Plenty" and "Comfort" to the Chinese. Of course only and "Com

There were toy camels and toy tents and little musical instruments and fruits dried in sugar and small rugs for the girls to play on. There were also queer shaped dishes, for the little Arabian girls make sand cakes, much as little American girls make sund cakes, much as little American girls make much pies.

Silently and swiftly the Christmas camel loped over the desert from camp to ling carayans and from village and the control of the carayans and from village and some back how he hangs things on the t essential carayans and from village and some back how he hangs things on the t essential carayans and from village and some back how he hangs things on the t essential carayans and from village and shows how he hangs things on the t essential carayans and from village and shows how he hangs things on the t essential carayans and from village and shows how he hangs things on the t essential carayans and from village and shows how he hangs things on the t essential carayans and from village and shows how he hangs things on the t essential carayans and from village and shows how he hangs things on the t essential carayans and from village and shows how he hangs things on the tension of the first carayans and from village and shows how he hangs things on the tension of the first carayans and from village and shows how he hangs things on the tension of the first carayans and from village and shows how he hangs things on the tension of the first carayans and from village and shows how he hangs things on the tension of the first carayans and from village and shows how he hangs things on the tension of the first carayans and from village and shows how he hangs the first carayans and from village and shows how he hangs the first carayans and from village and shows how he hangs the first carayans and from village and shows how he hangs the first carayans and from village and shows how he hangs the first carayans and from village and shows how he hangs the first carayans and from village and shows how he hangs the first c After this was done Santa set me down to my or.

I tried to thank him for the wonderful trip. I tried to thank him for the wonderful trip, but I couldn't think of anything nice to say.

"I think all the customs are wonderful and pretty, and queer, but of course our own custom of Santa Claus in his reindeer sleigh draving about through the starry skies and going down chimneys is the very best custom of all." I told him. but I chimneys is the very sorthing my cheek, "to each him.

"Well," said Santa, patting my cheek, "to each child whether he is in China or Arabia or Norway or wherever he is, his own Christmas custom seems best."
"Cood by dear, dear old Santa" I said.

way or wherever he is, his own Christmas custom seems best."

"Good by dear, dear old Santa." I said,

"Jingle jingle jingle." came the answer.

I looked and Santa was already a tiny speck in the sky, driving his reindeers hurriedly to his home in the frozen North. I shouted, "Good by, Santa dear," over and over, as londly as I could until someone shook me and I saw my mamma right beside my bed.

"Come, come dear," she said, "wake up and go to sleep again. You are having a nightmare," I tried to tell her it wasn't a nightmare, but a perfectly lovely trip, but she only laughed and made me lie down again and go back to sleep.

This is not a selected case—neither is the result unusual. In correcting this deformity no plaster paris or general anaesthesia was used.

AGENTS: $40 A WEEK ul New Hosiery Proposition Guaranteed ONE YEAR Must wear in placed free. Agents having wonderful suc-cess. Mrs. McClure made over $200 first month. Mrs. Perry made $27 a week in atternoons. H. W. Price sold 60 boxes in 12 hours. G. W. Noble made $35 in one day. Sworn proof. Repeat orders make you a steady Income. SILK HOSE FREE SCHOOL BOX with Fountain Pen, Pen cils, Knife, Penholder, Eraser for selling 15 sets of Colored Cards and Xmas Novelties at 10 cents a set. Write BLUINE MFG. CO., 302 MILL ST., CONCORD JCT., MASS.

Four Beautiful Ferns

PREMIUM NO. 6112

Given For Two Subscriptions

OF all indoor foliage plants, none give more lasting pleasure and satisfaction than these popular house terns. They need but little care and live indefinitely, growing larger and more beautiful year by year. The collection offered you here comprise four of the largest, handsomest varieties ever grown for house culture. They are the Asparagus Plumosus or "Lace" fern, the Roosevelt, the Rostom or "Fountain" fern and the Whitmani or "Ostrich plume" tern. They will thrive in any dwelling room near a window and require almost no attention except a little sprinkling of water now and then. These ferns are guaranteed to be absolutely free from all injurious insects or diseases which desiroy foliage plants of this type, and they will be packed carefully and mailed to you by Parcel Post so that you will be sure to receive them in just as good condition as though they were fresh from the greenhouse. We are able to illustrate only one variety, "The Rooseyelt," but remember you get all four ferms free on this offer.

Club Offer. For two one-year subscriptions to Club Offer. For two one-year subscriptions to composite the above described collection of four beautiful ferms each one of them a strong, healthy, well rooted plant ready to pot and guaranteed to grow and develop into a fine specimen beauty. Fremium No. 6112.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

In order that each cousin may be answered in this column, no cousin must ask more than three questions in one Month.

NOTHER Christmas is with us and while we are reaching out the glad hand of welcome to 1918, for the peace we hope it will bring, let's not forget poor, old 1917, even though "its mark is on each brow, its shadow in each heart," for it wasn't such a bad little old year after all and it did the best it could. If we've made good use of our time through the summer and fall months and done our bit in the way of knitting and caring for the comfort of our soldier and sailor boys, our own Christmas needn't be so sad for we can rest secure in the knowledge that we've done our best to make their Christmas as happy as circumstances permit and, better than that, we are going to keep right on making all the other days as happy as we can, aren't we? And now for the letters and I'll do the best I can for I want everyone to have just what I'm wishing—Merry Christmas to all.

The first letter this month is from High School

Just what I'm wishing—Merry Christmas to all.

The first letter this month is from High School Girl, W. Va., who wants very much to be attractive but who is very irritable and impatient with her parents and thinks her ill nature is beginning to show itself in her face. I never could agree with the person who said, "Beauty is only skin deep," for real beauty must shine from within, and every unkind and mean thought shows in our faces. Your father and mother are the last people in the world you should be impatient with and the next time you feel that way just get right out of the house and walk and walk and walk, until you feel that two smilling eyes and a turned-up-at-the-corners mouth will greet you when you look in your mirror and then keep them that way. Imagine yourself the sort of person you wish to be and live up to that ideal. Take plenty of exercise, think of cheerful, happy things—and there are a lot—and never let a day pass without doing a kindness for some one. Think of others first and what you can give them, not of yourself and what they can give you. Better consult an oculist for eye-strain might have something to do with those objectionable wrinkles and impatience. Anyway, you've got the right idea so there's hope for you. So many people know they are disagreeable and don't care. (2) Can't you knit something nice and warm and wooly for your sailor friend? That would please him I know.

Worried, Collbran, Ala.—If he is the right sort of young man and loves you it is only natural that he write a brave little letter and listen little one, when you mean "know" don't write it "no."

Ruby and Diamond, Leonard, Texas.—Two jewels who "want to no if it will be proper to axcept a pair of silk hoeses from a young gentleman friend." That's just the way it was written. I suppose your young gentleman friend is conserving the supply of silk hoeses by giving only one pair to both of you but whatever in the world are you going to do if you but whatever in the world are you going to do if you but want to wear them at the same time? If it were gloves you could manage very nicely by putting the ungloved hands in your respective pockets but you can't very well do that with your lower extremities unless you are professional acrobats. Are you? Didn't you know that gentlemen never gave nor ladies never accepted wearing apparel of any kind? Is there any difference between silk hoeses and ordinary silk hose? Candy, flowers and books are appropriate presents and he might give you a book—a spelling book.

Missy, Carthage, N. Y.—Of course it is all right for you to correspond with two soldier friends—and as many more as you wish—since your mother knows about it and you read their letters to her. Haven't I said that our boys need all the encouragement the home folks can give them. Don't write silly letters though. (2) I see no harm in letting the young man you mention take you to places of amsement, if he is all you say he is and your mother doesn't object. Always stick to your rule of permitting no familiarities and then you'll be safe enough with almost any man.

Dimples, Patterson, N. J.—My, what a serious child it is for sixteen! Engaged to a sixteen-year-old boy

Dimples, Patterson, N. J.—My, what a serious child it is for sixteen! Engaged to a sixteen year-old boy but with the understanding that it isn't binding if either has a change of mind. That shows good judg-ment only it would be better judgment not to be en-gaged at all—not for four or five years at least. Cul-

Babe, Smithland, Jowa.—If the young man is convinced that his past life was not what it should have been and is honestly trying to do better and make himself worthy of you and your love, it seems that you might be generous and forgive and forget his wrong doings, provided they were not such that your health or the health of future generations would be affected. Eighteen is rather young to get married unless you are of an especially mature type.

P. S. Hava Kars.—Discipling must be extremely less you are of an especially mature type.

P. S. E., Hays, Kans.—Discipline must be extremely lax in your office if your manager will permit men to annoy you with their attentions and waste your time. Why not give this card a prominent place on your desk: "What, you here again! Another half hour gone to thunder." Then if they don't take the hint, tell them pleasantly and politely that as much as you enjoy their conversation you cannot spare time from your work to talk to them—or listen to them.

your work to talk to them—or listen to them.

Worried Cousin, Johnstown, Pa.—If the young man wants to hear from you he will write first. Don't chase after him. It might be permissible to send him a dainty little Christmas card, but don't for a minute think of sending your photograph.

Brown Eyes, Rocky Point, N. C.—Of course the sixteeen-year-old boy who alternately loves and neglects you is the only boy on earth you love—that's a silly habit fifteen has, but you will get over it, Brace up and show a little spirit and when he tries to tell you that you "are the only girl in the world," snub him good and hard and then forget about boys and love affairs till you are older.

N. Anticch, Tenn.—If your sweetheart can be won.

N. Antioch, Tenn.—If your sweetheart can be won from you so easily, my advice is to let the other girl have him and laugh up your sleeve when some other girl wins him from her. (2) Goodness me, child, how do you suppose I know when you are going to get married, or whether you ever will. I'm not a for-tune teller. Never, I should say, unless you show more ELLEN'S ANTISEPTIC SHAMPOO

L. B., Obion, Tenn.—Never mind if you are twenty and the boys don't pay much attention to you. Just be your own sweet, modest self and by and by some real man will awake to the fact that you are worth a dozen girls who try to attract men by loud manners and dress.

Mary and Carrie, Washington.—What silly twins! A bold, bad city man proposed to Carrie and just as soon as she went home the mean thing proposed to Mary and they both love him and ask me what to do. Why, forget him, of course, or you could draw lots for him and take a chance, a very slim chance, on lying bannly eyer after. living happily ever after.

There, your questions are answered but because I was, and am, so imbued with that good-will-to-men feeling I just couldn't seem to scold as much as some of you deserved to be scolded; but you are all such dears, though somewhat silly dears, that I want you to be happy—and make others happy.

By, by, till next year, Cousin Marion.

Comfort Sisters' Corner

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 8.)

one dozen small safety pins and one small bottle of olive oil. My baby slept in a big rocking chair, but I think a bed is much nicer.

I will describe myself and go. I am twenty-two years old, five feet, two inches tall, brown hair and eyes, dark complexion and weigh one hundred and eight pounds.

Sincerely,

Mrs. M.

DEAR SISTERS AND MRS. WILKINSON:

I want to thank the sisters for the toys and other things that they sent to my little blind girl. There were so many letters I was unable to answer them but I thank all who remembered her. She enjoyed everything so much. So many wanted to know her birthday. It was the 27th of last August and she was four years old. She is to be operated on soon and I hope her sight will be restored. If any of the sisters care to send her cards she would appreciate it very much, but I feel you have already done a lot for her and I again thank you. Her name is Katle Jennings and her address is Gage, Okla.

Very truly yours, Mrs. L. P. JENNINGS.

who said, "Heauty is only akin deep," for real Seauty must shine from within, and every unkind and mean the first from within, and every unkind and mean are the last to our faces. Sour father and mother after the last to our faces and walk are the last to our faces. Sour father and mother are the last in our faces. Sour father and mother are the last in our faces. Sour father and mother are the last in our faces. Sour father and mother are a furned-up-a-the-corners mosth will use of the father and the keep them that way. Imagine yourself the sort of person you wish to think of cheerful, happy things—and there are a fortant never let a day pass without doing a kindness for some one. Think of others first and what you give you. Better consult an oculist for eye-strain might have something to do with those objectionable within the sound in patience. Anyway, you've got the know they are disagreeable and don't care. (2) Cantrou knits on the friend? That would please him I know. You was to friend? That would please him I know. You was for friend? That would please him I know. You was not good, and then I see that they young man and loves you it is only hatural tath is should want to marry you but if you don't want to get married because you' don't see sarring as you was a friend and you must. The pass he would be willing to wait a little longer for you if you explained how you what those married lady friends of your say. These doe, in the manager sort of people make me tired. Just excuss they've made a miserable failure of their want a little longer for your other boy friends. He will be cause levyle and an and you are you good hasn't. Of course he is too young to what they made any your other that marriage is a fifty-fifty proposition and you must. The expect happiness to be handed to you on have some good, sound common sense even if your eightest proposition and you must. The proposition and you must. The proposition and you must. The proposition was you will not to the fair co-eds he mustn't object if you let some you wish. Satisfaction assured or money refunded. Mires. Mrs. Ellen W. Burt, 54 West Fourth St., Oswego, N.Y.

Bell-ans Absolutely Removes Indigestion. Druggists

refund money if it fails. 25c

PORTLAND, 366 San Rafael St., Oregon.

Dear Mrs. Wilkinson and Sisters:

Some of the sisters will remember me as I wrote to this corner about four years ago. I was then in Wichita, Kans., but am in Oregon now and think the climate is wonderful.

In regard to the letter from the sister who is afraid to become a mother, I can't understand anyone feeling that way. The thrills one feels while preparing for the little stranger. It makes me feel that I am worth while, now that I have brought my two "men" into this world. They are five and two years old and both very mischlevous and do such funny little things. I am a widow and work hard to support them and get along very well, considering. I would like to have a position in the country where I could take my boys but no opportunity has presented itself yet.

I hope some of my old chums may see this and write to me for I get blue and discouraged sometimes, but thoughts of my boys always help me.

Portland always responds to calls for help. We got more than twice what was asked of Portland for the Red Cross. The 4th of July was devoted to the 3rd Oregon Infantry, to the boys' comfort and enjoyment. We will lose them soon as they expect to go to France but we can look forward to their return with honors. Oregon is proud of her soldiers and sailors. The Oregon National Guard is one of the best in the United States.

Dear Mrs. Wilkinson and Sisters:

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS : DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

I am a young mother, twenty-two years old, and I hope some of the dear sisters will give me advice.

I have a dear little boy one and a half years old and I cannot let him sleep by himself because he walks in his sleep two or three times during the night. I can put him back to bed without waking him. I hope someone will tell me how I can cure him.

Sincerely yours, Mrs. Orpha Stelling.

Dear Comfort Sisters:

Mis. G. W. B. E., it is true that you lost all when you lost love.

I married when not quite twenty, a poor boy. We raised our bables and how happy we were. May be we didn't seem very loving and he never told me he loved me, but his 'Poor little mother, are you tired?' after a most tedious day with the housework and bables, was to me as words of gold. We were jolly good chums and, Mrs. Pete, my husband was like yours, a regular stay.at-home. I seldom went any place in the twelve years we lived together, then the White Plague came and he went away and I was left, free to go where I pleased. I never let people know how I miss him. I go out and make my children as happy as I can, but life is empty and something, my best self, is gone. Now I have time to study my neighbors' husbands. Mr. 'Jones' takes his wife every place, they live in fine style, and he lavishes attention on others when his wife is not present. Just look around you, wives, and you will decide that your husband is as good as most. Remember that perfect marriages are mostly at the end of the rainbow. Life is what we make it.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 21.)

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 21.)

Sibyl's Influence

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 15.)

the little knowledge she had, and to have secured her permission to take Sibyl away with her when she should go.

As she turned to go back to Raymond to report her success to him, the woman leered at her, in a manner frightful to behold, and muttered, under her breath:

"I'll take the thirty pounds, my lady, and you may take the brat, and welcome; but I'll keep my own secrets, and I think ye'll be hearin' from me again one of these fine days."

And, shaking with inward laughter, she went back to her work.

$360 FORD AUTO FIRST GRAND PRIZE

In the picture are hidden a number of faces, How many can you find? Some are looking right at you, others show only the side of the face—you'll find them upside down and every way, Mark each face you find with a pencil, clip out picture, send to us with name and address KOW. We will give away a $360.00, 1917 Model, Ford Touring Car, as First Grand Prize, and Thousands of Dollars in Cash Rewards, Prizes and Special Premiums. Each worker gets a prize, Solve the puzzle. If you can find as many as FIVE PACES we will send you immediately toward the $360.00

1000 Free Votes Ford Automobile and other Grand Prizes. We will also give away several 1918 model Coaster Brake $40.00 Bicycles. These will be given free and extra, regardless of who gets the Ford Auto. Someone will get automobile, WHY NOT YOU's FARM LIFE, Dept. 152, SPENCER, IND.

gaged at all—not for four or five years at least. Cultivate the acquaintance of other young people so you'll be able to draw comparisons and then if you still love each other, you have my blessing. Box Of Initial Stationery, Envelopes And Complete Writing Outfit

Complete Writing Outfit

If, in place of this illustration, we could actually show you this splendid assortment of handsome high-grade embossed monbgram initial stationery with envelopes to match and complete outfit of everything you need to write with, you would not believe it possible for us to make such an offer. However, that is just what we are doing and you will miss a big bargains if you don't take advantage off it at once. It is now the height of fashton and evidence of the very heart in the height of fashton and evidence of the very heart in the height of fashton and evidence of the very heart in the height of give you two dozen sheets pawre white linen stationery with, your own monogram initial you dozen sheets pawre white linen stationery with your own menogram initial you dozen sheets pawre white linen stationery, and select heartfully embossed in dainity colors with any monogram initial you desire, two dozen even bloomes, came size as stationery, and a complete outfit of writing materials consisting of complete outfit of writing materials consisting of complete outfit of writing materials and the post of the post of the stores to get together such a splendid assortment of writing materials and pay a big price for it in the barrasis, but COMFORT is always able to buy direct from the manufold the such as the such as a splendid assortment of writing materials and pay a big price for it in the barrasis, but COMFORT is always able to buy direct from the manufold in the such as the such as a splendid assortment of writing materials consistency. Remember you get one full quire of choice paper and the premium today because you will surely be deligated with it. It is yours free upon the elitate to send to this premium today because you will surely be deligated with it. It is yours free upon the letter of the sound this premium today because you will surely be deligated with it. It is yours free upon the letter of the sound this premium today because you will surely be deligated with it. It is yours free upo

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

This department, which is conducted by eminent specialists and experts in the various branches of agricultural science and practical, business farming, while keep our readers posted on the latest scientific discoveries and teach them the best methods of operating in order to obtain GREATER FARM PROFITS AND BETTER HOME LIVING.

Any COMFORT subscriber can have the advice of our Agricultural Staff free on questions relating to farming, live stock and darrying. The answers will be printed in this department and will be interesting and instructive to all who are concerned in tarming.

Write your questions plainly on one side of the paper only; give your full name and address, and direct your letter to COMFORT'S MODERN FARMLER, Augusta, Maine.

Grinding Roughage

III. owner of a large dairy herd told the writer the other day that this winter he was trying a new plan of cow teeding as the feeds he ordinarily used had become too dear to be profitably fed. "I have put in an alfalfa hay grinder," he said, "and am grinding both alfalfa and clover and am using this ground stuff, well wetted with New Orleans molasses and water, along with green corn silage and oilmeal as the sole feed for my cows."

He was greatly surprised and interested when we remarked: "Why not utilize your bright out straw in the same way? Mix one third of it with the clover or alfalfa. In Great Britain out straw and Swede turnips (purple top) are the chief winter feed of young, growing cattle, and are used largely for dairy cows. And by the way, I should as soon feed the hay and straw cut in half sinch lengths, or even a bit longer, as have it ground fine."

Then our friend told us that the "grinder" does not really powder the hay, but cuts it up fine and the cut stuff passes into great revolving perforated drums which sift out the "fine cut" roughage and pass back that which is too coarse to be cut finer. Not every farmer can afford to should as soon feed the hay and straw cut in half inch lengths, or even a bit longer, as have it ground fine."

Then our friend told us that the "grinder" does not really powder the hay, but cuts it up fine and the cut stuff passes into great revolving perforated drums which sift out the "fine cut" roughage and pass back that which is too coarse to be cut finer. Not every farmer can afford to own and operate such a machine, but all who own silage cutters and an engine, or who can readily employ such an outfit, can to advantage cut up roughage and feed it at a greater profit than would come from the long hay or straw.

Second growth or threshed clover hay very often is wasted, as it is not found so palatable as first crop hay for stock feeding, but it may be cut fine, mixed with other hay and straw, wetted with molasses water and so fed at a profit besides being well relished by cattle.

Where such feed is used and silage not available the meal fed as part ration to dairy cows may be sprinkled on top of the cut roughage and so help to induce cleaner eating of the entire combination. We also believe in feeding some uncut roughage to give the necessary bulk for distension of the paunch. Very nne feed may go largely to the third and fourth (true digestive) stomach lessening the necessity of cud chewing which should proceed normally, if the cow is to thrive. An all-concentrated ration is unnatural and certain in time to derange the digestive organs. Less of the expensive meals are necessary, however, where finely cut or ground alfalta and clover are fed in addition to long hay and fodder.

What About Horses?

What About Horses?

Almost daily the editor of this department of Comfort is asked for advice about horse breeding and this is not to be wondered at considering the depressed state of the horse market.

"Do you think it will pay to breed our mares next spring? Should we go on feeding our draft colts or let them go for what we can get? Should we sell horses and buy a tractor? What sort of horse will it pay best to breed?" These are some of the questions and here are a few of the things we say in reply:

We conscientiously believe that big, sound, well-graded, individually excellent and efficient draft mares should be bred in spring to pure bred sires that are equally excellent in every respect. There is now a profitable demand in the great cities for heavy draft horses for short haul work, and it will pay to raise such horses, if the farmer has plenty of first-class pasture in addition to other feed. We are as positive that not a single scrub, nondescript, little, insignificant, unsound, or inefficient mare should be bred, and it is as certain that every scrub and lightweight grade scrub stallion should be permanently retired from service.

We believe that army demands will quickly exhaust existing supplies of horses adapted for all branches of the service, and if the war is to continue for several years— and God grant that it may not! some men in favorable locations may find it profitable to breed horses with the specific purpose of selling them for army use. We scarcely think, however, that the wholesale production of the lighter classes of horses for such service will prove profitable in the long run, whereas there is little likelihood of a loss of money from the production of draft horses serviceable allke for army and "civilian" purposes. The breeding of big, sound mules should continue to prove profitable and we have not heard general complaints of a depressed market for such animals.

On no account should draft colts be sold now at a sacrifice. Develon them as economically as

On no account should draft colts be sold now

On no account should draft colts be sold now at a sacrifice. Develop them as economically as possible, but do not stunt them by inadequate feeding. There seems good prospects of a profitable market next spring.

As to the buying of a tractor, that may be done by the "well fixed" farmer who has level land in large areas, and who does not have to go in debt for the purchase price, but he will need horses, too, and so all of the teams should not be sold. The tractor will do profitable work where the turns are not many and short, and the land not rough, but they cannot work in all kinds of weather and on all sorts of fields and farms, and some horses always will be used in addition to tractors. to tractors.

to tractors.

In saying this we have in mind the moderate priced tractor that can also be used for silo filling, grain grinding, wood sawing, and other useful work. As to the huge, tremendously expensive tractor that burns great quantities of expensive fuel, needs an expert to run it, is difficult and expensive to keep in working order, and all too soon sent to the junk pile, report has it that heavy draft horses are taking its place again and that many a man has ruined himself by experimenting with such expensive and short-lived machinery.

machinery.

The sound, efficient draft horse is not yet "a thing of the past" and the fact that work mares live long and produce offspring to take their place will always make them doubly popular to the average farmer.

Horns as an Indication of Age

Answering a question on this subject it may be stated that a consideration of the development of the horns is a useful aid in determining the age of an animal, but should not wholly be de-

Undersized Seeds

Undersized Seeds

This year more than ever before it is important that every seed put into the ground develop a strong healthy plant. With the war taking a million men from the farms we certainly cannot cultivate more acres. Every acre that is planted must do its best. This it can't do unless it is planted with practically perfect seeds. Small, shrunken, undeveloped or undersized seeds will not do. Such seeds must not be planted.

Why Undersized Seeds are Poor Seeds.—There are three reasons why undersized seeds will not do. In the first place, such seeds are not fully developed and hence will probably be low in vitality for this reason. They will sprout slowly and send up weak, sickly plants easily injured by bad weather or other unfavorable conditions. In the second place, "like produces like," and small seeds will have a tendency to produce other small seeds. In the third place, small and large seeds suixed will produce uneven seeding some will be too crowded, others too far apart. An uneven stand cannot produce a maximum crop.

GRADING SEEDS.—Before next spring's planting begins all seeds should be carefully graded by running through a fanning mill or seed grader. The small and weak seeds will be thus sorted out and can be used for feed. The plump, heavy ones will be carefully saved for seed. Don't put off grading your seed until it is time to sow in the spring and then find that you are so busy that you haven't time. Seed grading should be done during the winter when work is not so plentiful.

How to Treat Seeds to Prevent

How to Treat Seeds to Prevent Disease

Another large source of loss which prevents each acre from doing its best are plant diseases. Many of these can be controlled if taken in time. If proper precautions are taken to stir and thoroughly dry the seed after treatment and thus prevent sprouting and molding all this seed treatment can be done in the winter.

Treatment for Ergot in Rye

Rye is afflicted with a kind of smut known as ergot which is very poisonous when fed to stock. This disease affects the seeds and is carried over from year to year in this way. Smutted rye kernels become very light, much lighter than the rest, so that it is very easy to float them if the right liquid is found. This is accomplished by using a brine solution made of 25 pounds of coarse sait and 12 gallons of water. As soon as all the salt is dissolved the seed is dropped into the brine. The smutty kernels float and are skinmed off. The heavy kernels sink. The salt water is poured off into another vessel and the seed rinsed to remove the salt and dried before seeding. Care must be taken to get the solution the right strength. If good kernels float, the solution is too strong-add more water a little at a time. If smutty kernels sink, add more salt to make the brine heavier.

Treating Oats for Smut

There are three principal ways of treating oats for smut, but all these use "formaldehyde" and all are called the "formaldehyde treatment."

Premium No.

8141

Great Illustrated Book Shows

You War As The

Camera Sees It!

The immersion process consists in completely

The immersion process consists in completely submerging the oats in a solution made of one plut of formaldehyde and forty gallons of water. The oats are placed in a loose sack (gunny sack) and dipped into the solution and left there for 10 minutes to allow time for all to become thoroughly soaked. The sack is drained and the crits are then spread out on a floor to dry. If they are then spread out on a floor to dry. If they are then spread out on a floor to dry. If they are not to be sown immediately they should be showleded over daily until thoroughly dry.

The sprinkling pracess uses the same solution as that given above but instead the oats are piled up in a pile on the barn floor and the solution is sprinkled over them with a sprinkling can, while the oats are shoveled over very much the same as concrete is mixed. The pile is then covered with blankets and left for a few hours, when the blankets are removed and the oats sown or shoveled over until dry.

The spray method. For this purpose a hand spray such as is used for spraying plants is used. A small one holding a pint of liquid is large enough. The formaldehyde is placed without dilution directly into the chamber of the sprayer. This is sprayed onto the grain while it is being shoveled over. This soon evaporates so the pile is covered with blankets as soon as the solution is sprayed on, and left for five or ten minutes. While this is not advised for oats it has the advantage of needing little drying because so little liquid is used.

Of the three methods mentioned, the first is the best to use for oats.

Curing Barley Stripe

Barley stripe is a disease that attacks the leaves of barley about the time it is heading out and causes the leaves to turn a striped yellow, then dry up and die. This disease has done much injury to barley in all barley regions during the past season. The remedy is simple. Use the same treatment as for smut in outs, only keep the barley in the solution for tuco hours instead of ten minutes as for oats. If either sprinkling method or spray method is used keep pile covered for twenty four hours. For the treatment of stripe in barley the spray method is preferred.

Barley Smut

Like oats, barley is badly damaged by smut. Fortunately barley smut is killed by exactly the same method as used for barley stripe so the one treatment is sufficient for both diseases.

It should be remembered that barley needs soaking for two hours or covering for twenty-four while oats soak only five or ten minutes or are covered only two hours. In all other particulars the treatment is identical.

Onion Smut

This disease does immense damage wherever onions are grown for some time. However, it is not carried over on the seed but in the soil; hence seed treatment is of no avail.

This disease is now controlled by attaching a device to the onion seed drill which drops a drop of formaldehyde with every seed and on it. This sterilizes the ground and kills the smut germs in the soil that hes near the seed. The young plant gets a good start before it is large enough to come close to the spores in the soil and it is then able to resist their attacks.

A Word Arout Formaldehyde.—Formaldehyde is one of the best germ destroyers and is of as great value to the farmer in fighting plant disease as it is to the physician for fighting diseases that attack mankind.

Selecting Dairy Heifers

What is the value of marks when selecting a heifer to raise for a dairy cow? Many stockmen will tell you that marks have no value. Just because a heifer is black and white and has striking Holstein marks is no sign that she will make a good milker and that your chances are just as good to take the red heifers as the black and white ones, or those having the fawn of the Jersey or the light red of the Guernsey. In other words color only indicates breed and does not indicate dairy value.

This statement is true, but breed itself does indicate dairy value. While one should not place too much dependence upon marks he is entirely safe in selecting from two heifers the one having the best marks.

Marks More Than Color

Coton only suggests breed but there are many other marks which the good judge considers besides color

Size. Of two animals select the one having the best size, all else being equal. Size in a dairy calf does not mean height but bigness a big middle to hold the feed, deep sides, a strong chest and roomy body. When selecting by marks study size carefully. Does the animal look as though she would be able to eat large quantities of feed and convert it into milk?

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 22.)

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 22.)

HOOSIER STOVES FREE

HOOSIER STOVE CO. 265 State St., Marion, Ind.

Folding Sawing Machine Co., 161 West Harrison St., Chicago, IIL.

Overland Aluminum Shoes The world's great farm and creamery shoe. Water-proof, rust-proof, light and dur-able. Warm in winter, cool in summer. Best by test, and you pay less. A OVERLAND SHOE CO. Dept. 8 B Racine, Wis.

Premium Soft

Warm Bed Blankets

Sent Prepaid For A Club Of Ten

THIS IS an offer which no good housewife can afford to overlook. It is your opportunity to secure as many large comfortable bed blankets as you may need without a cent of expense. These fine double blankets are six feet in length extremely well made and finely finished. The color is white or gray with border. Please notice that they are large enough for any standard size bed being of sufficient length to come up well on the pillow and wide enough so that they may be snugly tucked in at the sides.
This is in reality one of the best bargains in a premium we have ever offered due to the fact that we buy these blankets in large quantities direct from the mill at a specially low price and therefore are enabled to offer them for a very small club of subscriptions. When you think of this big warm blanket on your bed or lying on a closet shelf ready for use when wanted, we believe that you will want to start a club at once for the sake of securing one or more of them free of all cost to you.
We will gladly send you one or more of these splendid blankets upon the terms of the following

Club Offer. For a club of only ten one-year subscriptions to one of these fine double bed blankets free by Parcel Post pre-

Realistic! Thrilling!

Pictures Of The Great War And Our Country's Preparedness! More Than Two Hundred Wonderful Photographic Illustrations Of The Battle-Fields Of Europe And Views Of Our Own Army And Navy Now Taking Part In The Gigantic Struggle!

NOT pictures drawn from the imagination of some artist—but real photography finished in natural colors, showing with appailing vividness seems of actual fighting in the trenches, the monster siege guns, glant Zeppelins, scouting biplanes, dreaded "tanks" or armored motor cars, deadly submarines and submarine chaser, the dead left on the battle-field, the wounded and captured, ruins of bombarded forts and villages—and last but not least Uncle Sam's own brave soldiers and marines who are now training to enter the great conflict in the cause of humanity, justice and freedom.

Aimost as if it were happening before your very eyes, this wonderful book of over two hundred war pictures shows you British, Canadian, French, Belgian and German troops and artillery in action, the bombardnet and defence of Antwerp, the battle of the Marne, Russian Cossacks on the march, flights of the great German dirigibles and French and British air scouts, anti-aircraft guns bringing down hostile aeroplanes, Red Cross nurses caring for the wounded, honcless Belgian refugees, German prisoners burying their own dead in France, execution of spies, mins of once beautiful cathedrals, towns, forts and bridges after bombardment, and many other views equally as interesting and exciting and all taken with the camera so that they are absolutely true in every detail. And best of all are the pictures of our own brave army and navy hovs training on land and aboard ship, at rife and gun practise, bayonet charges, trench digging, field artillery and coast defense work, dirights and biplane scouting together with views of some of Uncle Sam's newest and biggest battle-ships, submarines and submarine destroyers.

We will send you this wonderfully interesting war book of over two hundred pictures with the story of each picture told beneath it in a few well-chosen words, if you will accept the following special

Free Offer: For one one-year subscription (not your own) to Comport at 25 cents we will send you this illustrated war book free by mail postpaid. Premium No. 8141.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine

Home Dressmaking Hints

Forecasts for Winter Fashions

By Geneva Gladding

Pattern Descriptions ALL PATTERNS 12c. EACH Unless Other Price Is Stated

1909—A New Coat Dress for Misses and Small Women. This model is ideal for the new fall serges and gabardines and would be real smart in velvet, satin, corduroy or taffeta.

Cut in four sizes; 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 16 requires six yards of 44-inch material. 1924—Child's Dress in Empire Style and with long or short sleeve. This model is nice for wash fabrics, and equally attractive for serge, gabardine, voile, taffeta, challie and cashmere.

Cut in four sizes; two, four, six and eight years. It requires three and one eighth yards of 44-inch material for a six-year size.

2115—A Splendid "Cover All" Style. This apron may serve very well as a house dress. The pattern is nice for chambray, gingham, linen, drill, percale, alpaca, jean or sateen.

Cut in four sizes; small, 32-34; medium, 36-38; large, 40-42, and extra large, 44-46 inches bust measure. Size medium will require five and three quarters yards of 36-inch material.

2159—Dress for Misses and Small Women. Linen, gingham, silk, crepe, serge, Jersey cloth, foulard and gabardine are nice for this style.

Cut in four sizes; 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. It requires five and one eighths yards of 44-inch material for a 16-year size.

2190—Ladies' One-piece Corset Cover, in round, square or "V" neck edge. Suitable for "all over" embroidery, for lawn, batiste, cambric, nainsook, crepe or silk.

Cut in six sizes; 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. It requires one and three eighths yard of 36-inch material for a medium size.

size.

2227—Ladies' Dress with Sleeve in wrist or el-bow length. Serge, Jersey cloth, satin, taffeta, corduroy, plaid and checked suiting, are nice for this style.

2227—Ladies' Dress with Sleeve in wrist or elbow length. Serge, Jersey cloth, satin, taffeta, corduroy, plaid and checked suiting, are nice for this style.

Cut in seven sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires five and five eighths yards of 36-inch material.

2232—A Simple One-piece Dress, with sleeve in either of two lengths. Seersucker, linen, gingham, percale, serge, corduroy, satin, messaline, rep and poplin are good for this model.

Cut in four sizes; eight, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 12 requires five yards of 44-inch material.

2236—Girls' Blouse Dress, with two styles of sleeve. This will be a very attractive model for a school dress in serge, galatea, linen, rep, checked or plaid suiting.

Cut in four sizes; eight, 10, 12 and 14 years. It requires four and one half yards of 44-inch material for a 12-year size.

2237—A Popular Model. In these days of domestic science, canning and preserving, a dress of this style will be very acceptable and desirable. In blue gingham, striped seersucker, chambray or linen it makes an ideal house dress.

Cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires five and one half yards of 44-inch material.

2240—A Simple Dress for school or general wear. Plaid gingham, striped seersucker, galatea, gabardine and serge, kinen, corduroy, rep or voile, are nice for this model.

Cut in four sizes; four, six, eight and 10 years. Size six requires two and three eighths yards of 44-inch material.

2243—A New Skirt Model with or without yoke. This is a good style for sports materials, for serge, gabardine, satin, velvet and corduroy. Cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 24 requires three and five eighths yards of 44-inch material.

2244—A Smart Shirt-waist. This model is nice for flammel, crepe, linen, madras, satin or silk; also for batiste and dimity.

Cut in seven sizes; small, 32-34; medium, 36-38; large, 40-42; and extra large, 44-46 inches bust measure. Size medium requires of 36'inch material.

Cut in four sizes; small. 32-34; medium, 36-38; large, 40-42; and extra large, 44-46 inches bust measure. Size medium requires seven yards of 364nch material.

2249—A Simple Coat and Cap for the little one. Serge, cheviot, gabardine, velvet, plush, silk, linen, corduroy, pique and all cloakings suitable for children, are nice for this style. The cap may be of self material, or of embroidery, lawn, faille or fur. The pattern includes coat and cap. Cut in four sizes: one, two, three and four years. Size two requires two yards of 36-inch material, for the coat, and five eighths yard for the cap.

the cap.

2250—Set of Underwear for Boys. This model is good for jean, drill, madras, mesh, cambric, flannel and flannelette.

Cut in five sizes: 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34 inches breast measure. Size 32 requires two and seven eighths yards of 36-inch material.

USE THE COUPON

Special Offers. For one one-year subscription (not your mail you any one Pattern free. Or for a club of two one-year subscriptions at 25 cents each we will mail you any three patterns free. The cash price of each pattern is 12 cents (three for 25 cents) miless a different price is stated. Be sure to order by number and give size or age wanted.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Please Fill Out This Coupon And Send It With Your Remittance COMFORT, Pattern Dept., Augusta, Maine. I enclose $ _____ cash, (or ___ subscription and $______) for which please send me Patterns No.____ No. Size No. Size or Age) Street and No. R.F.D. No. Box No. Post Office State

If you send subscriptions write names on separate sheet and pin this coupon to it. State 2256—A Comfortable Stylish Dress. This design will be nice for serge, pussy willow satin, taffeta, cashmere, gabardine, poplin or crepe.

Cut in six sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires seven and one quarter yards of 36-inch material.

2262—A Very Smart Style for the growing girl. Plaid suiting, checked or striped gingham, chambray, rep. galatea, seersucker, crepe, serge and gabardine, are good for this style. It is also nice for taffeta and velvet.

Cut in four sizes; six, eight, 10 and 12 years. Size 10 requires four and one quarter yards of 36-inch material.

2264—House Coat for Men. This model has fronts and collar cut in one. It is suitable for serge, cheviot, double-faced mixtures, broadcloth, drill and alpaca.

Cut in seven sizes; 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches breast measure. Size 38 requires three and one eighth yards of 36-inch material.

2266—A Smart Sports Waist. This style will be nice for flannel, satin, crepe, wool mixtures, linen, lawn and batiste. Deep pockets trim the fronts.

Cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires three and one eighth yards of 36-inch material.

2271—A Simple, Stylish Model. This will make a smart business suit in serge, cashmere, gabardine or mixed suiting. It is also nice for linen, gingham, khaki, satin, silk, velvet or corduroy.

Cut in three sizes; 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 18 will require four and seven eighths yards of 44-inch material.

Cut in three sizes; 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 18 will require four and seven eighths yards of 44-inch material.

2278—A Set of Pretty Bags. These models show some useful and practical designs. No. 1 would make a smart shopping or theater bag, in velvet or silk. No. 2 and No. 3 are nice for work bags, for sewing and knitting. These may be developed in cretonne, khaki, linen, silk, velvet and plush. On No. 3 the handles are of covered embroidery rings. No. 2 is held by silk ribbon or cords. The pattern supplies each of the three styles illustrated, and is cut in one size. Each one required one yard of 27-inch material.

2281—A Neat House Dress, Linen, drill, khaki, percale, lawn, dimity, cashmere and flannelette may be employed, but the wash fabrics are most satisfactory for service and laundering.

Cut in seven sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure, Size 38 requires six and one half yards of 44-inch material.

ALL PATTERNS 12c. EACH Unless Other Price Is Stated.

Diamond Ring in Egg

The oyster, which occasionally coughs up a sure enough pearl, and the interior department of a goose, which recently delivered a lavaliere, now will take a back sear for the egg which gave up a diamond ring.

The egg was one of many which Miss Hilda Levy had broken for a tanning company by which she is employed. She declared that the shell was unbroken when she first got hold of the egg.

egg.
"If it had been busted, your nose would have told you so a block away," she declared.

Darken Your Gray Hair

DUBY'S HAIR COLORING HERBS
HAIR
HERBS
HAIR
HERBS
aticky or dirty, and is composed of roots, beauty and softness. Prevents the hair from failing out, premote its growth, prevents danderall, and gives the hisr as oft, glosary and healthy appearance. It will not stain the scalp, is not aticky or dirty, and is composed of roots, hepbs, barks and flowers. Package makes one plint. It will produce the most luxuriant tresses from dry, coars and wiry hair, and bring back the color is originally was before it turned gray. Package postpaid for 25 cents.
OZARK HERB CO. Denk 20 St. Louis, Mo.

We

You Both

Pendant

and Chain For A

Own Birth-Stone Set In This Beautiful Rolled-Gold Pendant!

2243

Club Of Three ONE of the most styments. Women and to-date are now wearing and Chain in preference while those who can atknow that all who rependant and Chain ilbe greatly delighted prettiest designs we assortment submitted largest jewelry manustates. It has a leinch plante cable chain, the rolled-gold plante own hirthstone and attached to the pendant underneath the stone is a beautiful imt. Bareque pearl. Following is a list of the twelve different birthstones and the month which each represents. When ordering be sure to mention birthstone wanted.

January The Garnet, Symbol of Power February The Amethyst. Symbol of Pour Love April The Diamond, Symbol of Pure Love April The Diamond, Symbol of Charity May The Emerald, Symbol of Long Life July The Ruby, Symbol of Charity August The Pearl, Symbol of Charity August The Peridot, Symbol of Hope November The Turquoise, Symbol of Prosperity All of the above named stones are solitaires and are the most perfect and beautiful imitation real gems that we have ever seen. Following is our free one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25.

Wanted.
CLUB OFFER. For only three one-year subcents each, we will send you a Birthstone Pendant and Chain free by Parcel Post prepaid. Be sure to mention stone wanted. Fremium No. 7283.
Address Comfort, Augusta, Maine.

In this department will be carefully considered any legal problem which may be submitted by a subscriber. Alsopinions given herein will be prepared at our expense by eminent counsel.

Inasmuch as it is one of the principal missions of COMFORT to aid in upbuilding and upholding the sanctity of the home, no advice will be given on matters pertaining to divorce. Any paid-up subscriber to COMFORT is velcome to submit inquiries, which, so far as possible, will be answered in this department. If any reader, other than a subscriber, wishes to take advantage of this privilege, it may be done by sending twenty-five (25) cents, in silver or stamps, for a one-year subscription to COMFORT thus obtaining all the benefits which our subscribers enjoy including a copy of the magazine for one full year.

Full names and addresses must be signed by all persons seeking advice in this column but not for publication. Unless other wise requested, mitials only will be published.

Mrs. M. S., Arkansas.—Under the laws of your state we are of the opinion that upon the death of a married man leaving a surviving widow and chivan and leaving no will, his widow would received that the children in equal shares. We think that this would include any and all property have received from a former deceased wife and we think that the children of both marriages would be withink that the children of both marriages would be childred in the same manner and to the same do your sister and husband conveyed this property of them as teamts by the entirety, as your letter to me indicates, we think that upon the death of one, the whole property stood in the name and belonged to your sister and husband conveyed this property of them as teamts by the entirety, as your letter to me indicates, we think that upon the death of one, the whole property would go to the survivor. We think that in case this property stood in the name and belonged to your sister and husband conveyed this property of the same conveyed the property of the same with the surviving widow and the same with a state of the larged to your sister and husband conveyed this property of the same that that in case this property stood in the name and belonged to your sister and husband conveyed that you would be entitled to keep all the potatoes are dead, though the property would be entitled to keep all the potatoes you raised by you in payment of your rent, we think that you would be entitled to keep all the potatoes you raised.

Mrs. C. E. B., Virginia.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that upon the death of an married man, leaving no will and leaving a surviving widow would be entitled to feets, at some of the payment of obets, absolutely, and dower of a one third interest for life in his real estate, the balance going in equal shares to the children, regardless of whether the payment of debts, absolutely, and dower of a one third in the payment of the property will be the payment of the payment of the property of the payment of the

E. W., California.—We think that, if the separation greement between the husband and wife you mention ver became effective, it should, upon their reconciliation, be cancelled and annulled in case they now desire preinstate their property rights as they were before heir separation. to reinstate their their separation.

their separation.

Mrs. O. T. B., Texas.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that one half of the property acquired during marriage, except by gift, devise or descent is the property of the wife, and neither the husband nor wife can dispose of more than a one half interest in such property by will; except that the husband can give all his property to his wife by will, and can disinherit children if he so elects; that, in the absence of a will a surviving widow is entitled to receive, one third of the personal property and a one third interest for life in the real estate, from the husband's separate property, provided the husband leaves a surviving widow and children or descendants; that, in the absence of a will, the husband's children by two marriages would receive equal shares from his estate, but that his stepchildren would receive no portion of his estate.

C. S., Illinois.—Under the laws of your state, we are

C. S., Illinois.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that, in the absence of a will, you would be entitled to receive your aunt's estate or a portion of the same provided she has no nearer heirs at law or next of kin, we do not think her stepchildren have any intestacy rights in her estate.

Mrs. J. J. H., Arkansas.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that the owner of the mortgage which was accidentally burned, should be able to establish his lien upon the property covered by the mortgage in the proper action brought to establish such destroyed instrument.

Nurse, California.—In the absence of any agreement to the contrary, we are of the opinion that a practising physician is entitled to pay for his services, we do not think the fact, that he had not always

UNCLE CHARLIE'S LIFE & IN PICTURES

Uncle Charlie's Picture Book Good as a Visit to His Home

ree

the same and same and charged his patient for services performed, would pre-

The Girl He Loved

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 14.)

CHAPTER XII. THE ICY BARRIER.

Ravenel Levailion, who had once been Ravenel Annesley, got up with weak and shaky legs and stared at the brown shadow of a man who stood between her and the sun. For man it was, and no spirit. When ghosts arise from the dead they are not ushered to their dearest by an obsequious butler, while two footmen with the teathings bring up the rear. Dreadful, inappropriate laughter that meant more than any tears shook the Countess of Levallion as she stood up in her white serge and Mechlin lace.

"Captain Gordon!" the butler repeated a little reproachfully, for this was not the way to receive his lordship's cousin.

"I—I see him!" was all she could find to say; all the greeting she had for the man to whose side she had meant to creep on the resurrection day.

"Ravene!" he whispered, and if her face were white, his was gray; all the wild, incredulous joy that had shone there at the first sight of her dead as ashes. "For God's sake, how do you come here?"

But he knew. With a swift and dreadful certainty he remembered the butler had said Lady he's coming."

"Naturally," with ugly quiet.

He never looked up, and he could not feel her eyes on his face, half-wild with the joy of seeing him and the horror of knowing—face to face with him—what he was. Oh! if she could have gone back to the May that was gone forever, how she would have cried out at the dreadful change in his face. The hollow cheeks, the sunken eyes, the—

"Why is your arm in a sling?" she cried, with scorn of herself that she could not be glad of his pain.

"Shot," with an inward curse that might have made the man who did it turn in his grave, since it was that shattered arm that had brought him here.

"Sit down," said Lady Levallion, and she said it so tonelessly that in astonishment he obeyed her. "You are not fit to stand," "Why should you care?"

"Why should you care?"
"I don't," she returned calmly, and for an instant did not think it was a lie.
The callousness of his manner had hardened her heart; her forgiveness that had been so real vanished. She felt old, old and weary, where she sat in her Worth dress. If she had dared she would have cried out that to be Nell Annesley again in her Sunday frock, thinking the man she loved was true, she would give the soul out of her body. She gripped herself hard, and spoke to him as to any one of those friends of Levallion's who were here today and gone tomorrow—since she could not call him "contemptible" to his face.

face.

"May I give you some tea?" Her voice stung like a whip. Almost he had had it on his tongue to say, "Why did you do it—who taught you your woman's game?"

But as he glanced at her across Levallion's old silver and Crown Derby he had his answer. A secret marriage and a two-penny emerald ring were well changed for all this.

"I must be going," he said. But as he rose a twinge caught him, and he sat back stiffly.

"You were foolish to come," she said, with a coldness that hid a mad, shame 'il longing to ease his bodily pain, for any other he could not have, since he had done everything by his own free will.

"You had better have wine than tea" striking.

Cood as a Visit to His Home

Visit Uncle Charlie in his famous chicken coop and see how he lives and works Big, beautiful, full page, halftione cuts equal to photographs, that show Uncle Charlie and his charming assistants Maria and the Goat in every phase of their busy lives. See Uncle Charlie string and his charming assistants Maria and the Goat in every phase of their busy lives. See Uncle Charlie string in a little silver gong!

Her bread and sail were choking; but before the footman who brought the wine there was nothing to do but swallow it. Not six months and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, nother,
and get a peep a
his big son, n

men would get the V. C. if it were given for truth and not for valor. "I don't know. It was nothing. Every fellow would have done it. Who told you, about the V.

would have done it. Who told you, about the V. C., I mean?"

"Levallion" was on her lips, when she saw the gold wire of his ring catch the sunlight. The shame of a woman who has loved a man who illts her caught her at her heart.

"My husband," she said quietly.

And this time it was Adrian Gordon who quivered where he sat.

"I must go!" he said, cursing himself for a fool that he should be here talking to the girl who had seemed to him the very flower of the earth, and was only a woman who loved rank and money. "I must get back to town."

Back to his lonely rooms, where the tint of her cheek and the curve of her eyelash, the bow of her young mouth, would rise before him line by line and make him revite the fate that had let him find her out.

Back to loneliness, to pain that racked him,

Back to loneliness, to pain that racked him, (CONTINUED ON PAGE 25.)

Comfort's League of Cousins (CONTINUED FROM PAGE 12.)

ter, Eleva, Wis. Seventy-four years of age. Very lonely. Would appreciate cheery letters. Mary L. Anderson, 108 S. 6th St., Alhambra, Cal. Invalid. Would like quilt pieces and cheery letters. Mrs. Hannah Peerson, Fulton, Miss. Invalid, eightyone years of age. Send her some assistance. The Christmas of these poor souls will be a ghastly and not a merry one, unless you come to their aid with something more substantial than tracts and sympathy. Their names will not be listed again for a year, so pray be generous. Once more a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year and God bless you all. Lovingly yours,

Comfort's League of Cousins

Comfort's League of Cousins

The League of Cousins was founded as a means of bringing the scattered members of COMFORT'S Immense circle of readers into one big. happy family. Its aim is to promote a feeling of kinship and relationship among all readers. It was primarily started as a society for the juvenile members of GOMFORT'S family, only, but those of more mature years clamored for admittance so persistently that it was deemed advisable to impose no aga limit; thus all are eligible to admittance into our League provided they conform to its rules and are animated by the child spirit.

Membership is restricted to COMFORT subscribers and costs thirty cents, only five cents more than the regular subscription to COMFORT which is included. The thirty cents makes you a member of the League and gives you an attractive League button with the letters "C. L. O. C.," a handsome certificate of membership with your name engrossed thereon, and the privilege of having your name in the letter ist, also a pald-in-advance subscription to GOMFORT, You continue a League member as long as you keep up your subscription to GOMFORT. There are no annual dues, so after you have once joined all you have to do to keep in good standing is to keep your subscription to COMFORT paid up.

Please observe carefully the following directions which explain exactly

How to become a Member

How to become a Member

Send thirty cents to COMFORT'S Subscription Department, Augusts, Maine, with your request to be admitted into COMFORT'S LEAGUE OF COUSINS, and you will at once receive the League button and your membership certificate and number; you will also receive COMFORT for one year if you are a new subscript: but if you are already a subscription will be renewed or extended one full year beyond date of expiration.

Or, if your subscription is already paid in advance, you can take a friend's one-year subscription at 25 cents and send it in with flue cents of your own, thirty cents in all, with your request for membership, and we will send you the button and membership certificate, and send COMFORT to your friend

quest for membership, and we will send you the button and membership certificate, and send COMFORT to your friend for one year. League subscriptions do not count in premium clubs.

NEVER apply for membership without enclosing thirty cents to include a new subscription or a renewal. The League numbering over forty thousand members, undoubtedly is the greatest society of young people on earth. It casts but thirty cents to join, and that gives you at least a one-year subscription to COMFORT also, without extra cost. Never in the world's history was so much given for so little, Never could thirty cents be invested to such advantage, and bring such splendid returns. Don't hesitate, Join us at once and induce your friends to do likewise.

All those League members who desire a list of the Gousins residing in the several states, can secure the same by send(CONTINUED ON PAGE 22.)

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 22.)

on't fail to use Cresolene for the distressing, and tions for which it is recommended. is a simple, safe, effective and drugless treatment sportzed Cresolene stops the paroxysms of Whoo stops the paroxysms of Whooping Cougle c Croup at once. is the attack and insures comfortable repose antiseptic vapor inspired with every breath resouther the sore throat, and stops the stiful night set of scarlet Fever a valuable aid in the treatment of Diphtheria recommendation is its 38 years of successful als for Descriptive Booklet.

For Sale by Druggists

Iry Creampery of yo

THE VAPO-CRESOLENE CO. 62 Cordandt St., New York or Leeming-Miles Building, Montreal, Canada

You Can Do as Well as This Man

This is H. A. Neumann the Lange man for Dodge Co., Wis. His sales for one month were $931.50, average per week $192.68. He is 27 years old; started two years ago, both he and his goods strangers in the territory, and has built up this splendid business of his own, selling Lange's Extracts, Spices, Teas, Coffees, Household Specialties and Veterinary Remedies direct from wagon to home. You san their sales. We will instruct you on every point, teach you how to sell and give you actual figures of their sales. We will instruct you on every point, teach you how to sell and give you exclusive territory near your home. Our contract beats all others. If you're not making $200 a month, write us at once about our plan.

The Lange Co., Dept. W. DePere, Wis.

DePere, Wis. The Lange Co., Dept. W.

or ONLY $1.50. Ger ekeeper and fully guaranteed us with $1.50 and we R. E. CHALMERS & CO., 538 So. Dearborn St., CHICAGO.

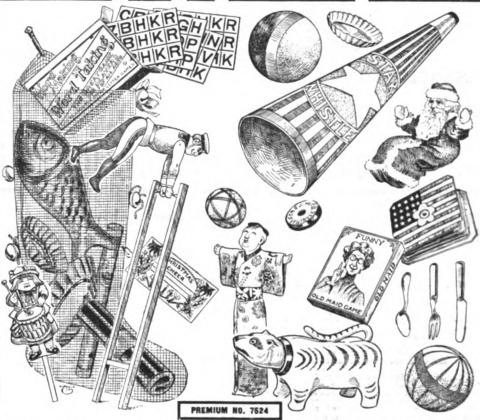

National PATRIOTIC STATIONERY

50c per quire box Prepaid to any address in the U. S.

NATIONAL PAPETERIE CO., Springfield, Mass.

Stocking Full Of Christmas Presents!

Sent Prepaid For A Club Of Four!

BiG Christmas Stockings brimful of presents for the little folks and older children as well. COMFORT is going to play Santa Claus this year and distribute hundreds of these Christmas stockings among its readers who have little ones for whom Christmas Trees and Santa Claus Gifts must be provided at all cost. The contents of the stockings vary a little but the general assortment remains practically the same and you may be sure of receiving as many presents as are herewith illustrated. Each stocking contains just the gifts that delight the hearts of boys and girls—horns, dolls, whistles, musical fifes, toy dishes, jumping jacks, balls, animals, games, and other pleasing holiday novelties. The stockings are large size, being over a foot and a quarter long, and all the presents are requiar size, much larger than they appear to be in the accompanying illustration. Attached to each stocking there is also a handsome embossed Christmas (Card upon which is printed "Merry Christmas from Santa Claus" or some similar inscription. If you have no children of your own to make happy this Christmas you probably know of somebody's little boy or girl who would be delighted with one or more of these Big Christmas Stockings. But you should accept this offer immediately as Christmas is almost here and besides our supply of stockings is limited and they may be all gone before your order reaches us unless you send it in at once.

Our Christmas Offer: For four one-year sub-scriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you one of these Big Christmas Stockings full of Santa Claus Gifts free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 7524. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

These Crochet Books Given To You!

Illustrated By A Photograph With Full Directions For Working!

you could possibly ask for. You will fairly revel in the many handsome designs shown. There are edgings, beadings, insertions and laces for every conceivable use. The illustrations are actual photographs of the finished size with the exception of Volume 1 which is 91/4 by 12 inches.

NY ONE of these books alone is a veritable treasure house of the newest, most beautiful designs. The seven books combined form a complete library in which you will find any pattern in crocheting and tatting beginner or expert. They tell stitch by stitch how each pattern is worked, also Volume 2 is a real treasure book of hand-sertions suitable for handkerchiefs, underwear, dresses and a multitude of other uses,—thirty-three different designs, all illustrated by photographs with full directions including a complete table of all the principal stitches used in crocheting and how to make them.

Volume 3 tells how to crochet Cluny laces. It contains eighteen lovely patterns in Cluny insertions and laces for centerpieces, library scarfs, boudoir caps, corset cover yokes, piano scarfs, curtains, chemises, envelopes or combination suits. Each pattern is illustrated by an actual photograph and the directions for making are full and explicit, including quantity and size of material, and size of hooks required. This book also shows all the principal crochet stitches and tells how to make them,

Volume 1 contains a beautiful assortment of crocheted yokes for combinations, envelopes, nightgowns, corset covers, etc.—fifteen all different, exequisite patterns superbly illustrated by photographs with complete directions for working including quantity and size of material required, and correct size of hooks to use.

Volume 2 is a real treasure book of handserions some crocheted edgings and insertions suitable for handkerchiefs, underwear, dresses and a multitude of other uses,—thirty-three

Volume 5 consists of twenty-five patterns in novelty crochet, including mile-a-minute and clover leaf crocheted yokes, primrose and sunflower yokes, doiles, centerpieces, boudoir caps, unique edges and insertions for serving trays, novelty aprons and collars. Each design is illustrated by an actual photograph and the directions for working include a complete list of all the different crochet stitches, and how to make them.

Volume 6 is devoted entirely to tatting, Maltes and Irish crochet, containing a varied and beautiful assortment of tatted handkerchief edges, edgings and insertions, tatted yokes, boundoir caps, towel edges, medallions,

Volume 7 shows a variety of thirty handsome crocheted designs each one illustrated by a photograph of the real work showing just how the finished pieces look. There are rose, sunflower, periwinkle, and Venetian yokes; boudoir caps, monkey face library scarf and lace pillow; large and small baskets, hatpin holder, jewel box, vanity tray, coin purse, utility bag, starfish doily, pineapple centerpiece; edgings and insertions in pillow lace; daisy edging; spider bell, rick-rack, novelty and coronation braid laces. Pull directions accompany each design including quantity and size of material and size of hooks to be used, also all the principal stitches used in crochet and how to make them.

Offer 8552 For two 1-year subscriptions at 25 cents each we will send you any four books free by parcel post prepaid. Be sure to mention numbers and titles of books wanted.

Offer 8013 For three 1-year subscriptions at 25 cents each we will send you the complete library just as described above—seven different volumes in all, handsomely bound, printed on high-grade paper and containing nearly 200 beautiful photographic illustrations of all that is new and pretty in crochet and tatting designs with complete directions for working. When ordering please be sure to mention number and title of each book wanted.

Address All Orders And Letters, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

U. S. Government reports show m

No salesmanship necessary—simply place lamp in neighbors' homes a few nights—no talking required; they sell themselves. Five out of six buy the Laylite the minute they see it. Big. Free Catalog, giving full particulars.

WRITE NOW FOR LAMP-FREE for ten nights' trial. Men with rigs and autos making 16 to 115 a day. Tell us if you can put in all or part of your time, your age, occupation, territory you want and when you can start.

DAYLITE COMPANY, 349 Daylite Building, Chicago, Mile

There are forty-two beautiful pieces with delicate pink and green colorings frue to Nature. Distinctively handsome and exclusive as an heirleon. Every piece edged in gold. Each piece will be decorated with your initial in gold or the emblem of any fraternity-Masonic, Knights of Pythias, Woodman, Odd Pellows, etc. or plain.

this full set of Wild Rose Art China Dishes, every size to you for telling your friends and neighbors about

It is TRULY the perfect Furniture Folish Luhrieant, Cleaner and Brightner, Rust Freventive and Leather Freserver. This National standing makes cleaning a pleasure in over two million homes. It is so well known that it sells on sight. To get this lovely forty-two piece dinner set or cash commissions simply order and sell twenty-eight bottles of this woulderful cil at 25 cents each, return the $7.00 collected within 30 days and the set is yours. Send no money. We trust you, and take it back it you can't sell it. Order today (Please give your nearest Express Office when ordering and be the first to own these beautiful dishes.

The Killar Co.

The Kibler Co. Dept. A3, Indianapolis, Ind.

O

LOOK YOUR BEST, sure of smooth white arms, face and neck in spite of sallowness, blotches, freckles, blackheads etc. If you want to be charming and attractive—Don't pay 50c but send 10c at once for sealed Package, which will transform your appearance instantly. Warranted-TOILET COMPOUND CO:, Sen 1927A, Boston, Mass.

Whose Little Girl Wants

Legs Are Jointed

WES, this beautiful, curly-haired doll is free to any little girl and on such liberal terms that we expect to give away thousamds of them during the next few months. Don't think she is anywhere near as small as she looks to be in the picture for she stands over a food fail. She has a real kid body and her beautiful head is almost indestructible because it is made of bisque. You can make her stand up or sid down in a chair, or bend over or assume all sorts of matural positions. When you lay her down she closes her eyes and goes to sleep and when you pick her up she is wide awake again. Her beautiful hair hangs in luxuriant curls, her eyes are blue as the sky, and taken altogether she is certainly the cuteat and sweedceat baby doll in all toyland. With exception of her handsome black openwork lace stockings and cunning little slippers with bow and buckle she comes to you undreased so that you can make your own dreases for her and dress and undress her to your heart's content. Fathers and Mothersjust look at this beautiful doll in the picture as she stands smilling with arms outstretched waiting for someone ta pick her up, hug her, kins her and put on her gay little dress! Don't you think your own little girl would love to have her for her own? We will send her to you free packed in a strong box so she cannot possibly get broken if you will accept the terms of the following special.

Club Offer. Serintions to COMPEOPER at 82.

NOTICE.—As the privileges of this Bureau and of all other departments of COMFORT are for subscribers only, no attention will be given any inquiry which does not bear the writter's correct name and address. Initials only, or a fletitious name, if requested, will appear in the published answer, but the inquiry must invariably be signed by the writter's true name.

Mattie P., Zebulon, N. C.—We are sorry, but as Comport is hard-pressed each month to find space for its regular features, we would find it impossible to put in a "Department of Psychology," as you suggest. (2) Metaphysics is a term used to embrace certain studies wich are beyond and outside of the physical world. Different forms of occultism, and the various idealistic philosophies would come within the term, as would the basic ideas of certain religious cults. Psychology, as generally understood, is considered to mean the science of the mind including the functions of the brain as being the organ through which the mind operates, and a psychologist is one who professes to specialize on the study of ments. phenomens.

Mrs. W. A. H., New Plymouth, Ida.—As we have fesses to specialize on the study of mental phenomena.

Mrs. W. A. H., New Plymouth, Ida.—As we have stated many times in this column, there is a well-developed business in the selling of fraudulent "old violins." Here is another Compost reader who has, not a Stradivarius this time, but a Stainer. It would have been impossible for the old makers, with their slow hand processes, to turn out all the instruments that are cheerfully attributed to them by dealers who have something to sell, and use a faked inscription to sell it.

Polly, Twyman's Mill, Va.—A good high school educa-tion would be necessary before taking an examination for railway mail cierk. Correspondence schools do fine work, and you would undoubtedly benefit by enrolling for a course with a reputable institution of that sort. We notice some defects in your spelling—which should only encourage you to study the more.

C. S. D., Grottes, Va.—We are sorry, but we cannot aid you in securing a rod that will locate gold and silver and hidden treasure. There is no such rod for sale except from those who find their gold by seiling a worthless fraud to credulous buyers.

Mahon, Mengelwood, Tenn.—Read the above answer

Mrs. R. F. R., Gattman, Miss.—We think your physician was playing a pleasant joke on you when he said what he did. And we are sure that a Missispip baby born on the Fourth of July needs no diamond ring to add to its happiness or good fortune.

G. W. C., Wheeling, W. Va.—You say that you are making your inquiry to us instead of in your own home town because we explain so thoroughly. That is just what we cannot do in many cases when we would like to, because of the demands upon the space of this department by COMPORT'S many subscribers. Therefore we are going to suggest that you apply to your county clerk for the answers to your several questions about the census which is to be taken in 1920 by the Federal Government. He will tell you how enumerators are to be selected and the requirements for such appointment.

Mrs. P. McL., Sweetwater, Ida.—Herbs like eatnip and mullen need no other special preparation than careful drying, and having them free from stems, stones, and other foreign matter. Write to L. G. Grund, Logan Station, Philadelphia, Pa., who advertises to buy such drugs, and also to large wholesale druggists like McKesson & Robbins, 91 Fulton St., New York City and Parke Davis & Co. at 183 Hudson St., in the same big town.

St., in the same big town.

Mrs. L. D., Caddo Gap, Ark.—Readers of COMFORT who have articles of their own handiwork that they wish to sell, can often do best by placing a small advertisement in the paper of their own town or of some nearby town or city. We suggest that you try this in the case of the lace you wish to sell. The power of printers' ink and publicity is all that is often needed in many cases where people have something to sell and do not know how to do it.

thing to sell and do not know how to do it.

Mrs. J. McC., Fraser, N. Y.—A post-office clerk should not read post-cards any further than is necessary to properly understand the addresses that they bear. But it is an old story that in small offices, where time is plenty, the reading of post-cards furnishes interest and amusement not only to a clerk, but to the postmaster—and it has been whispered—to the postmistress, too. The only remedy is to use an envelope, and by the extra cent insure the privacy of any communication which you care about particularly.

M. M. F., Haywood, Okla.—You should be able to purchase a reading glass at any jewelry store, or at an optician's. We knew of a very good one, about three inches in diameter, that was purchased for three dollars. Larger or smaller ones would be priced in proportion to size.

Subscriber, Memphis, Tenn.—There is no premium a buffalo nickels of the coinage of 1913. Twenty of tem make exactly one dollar.

them make exactly one dollar.

A. B. C., Clarkston, Wash.—One's earning capacity as well as one's pleasure in life is always increased by the knowledge of another tongue. The Spanish language, about which you ask, would be profitable for you to acquire, if you acquire it well. There are always open well-paid positions for foreign correspondents in houses doing business with our colonial possessions. It would be best for you to learn shorthand and typewriting also, although this not about the colonial possessions. It would be best for you will find a solutely necessary. In any large city you will find a second total total colonial possessions. Toyland and school teaching foreign languages where you could take school teaching foreign languages where you could take up the study, and very good and cheap courses are often given at the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. buildings in the big towns.

W. H. B., Tenn.—There are always stories going the rounds of the press regarding plans of the Ford Motor Co., or of Mr. Henry Ford. Most of these tales are pure invention, based upon the huge earnings of the company and the ways the surplus might be spent. We have heard nothing of the hospital fund you inquire about, but a letter to the Ford Motor Co., Detroit, Mich., might at least bring you a definite denial. They are the people to ask.

E. P. W., Hawkins, Wis.—A story is sold by submitting the manuscript, typewritten if possible, to editors, enclosing in every instance sufficient stamps for return postage. You do not need a copyright unless you publish your own work, or unless for some reason you wish to retain the publishing right. If you have not written before begin by trying to get your first stories printed in some local paper.

W. M. W., Apex, N. C.—Shares of stock in an Arizona corporation would not be classed as shares in "a foreign corporation." We cannot answer your question regarding taxation, as that is a matter of the tax laws of your state. Ask your county clerk or county judge. Undoubtedly this stock would be considered personal property, and under the laws of most states would be subject to tax.

would be subject to tax.

Brownie, Hettinger, N. Dak.—A Red Cross nurse would be required to have gone through a course of training that would make her proficient in at least first aid work. Courses of this sort are being given in all the large cities. It is no light task to learn to become a capable nurse under the conditions that must be met in this present war.

S. M. M., Dodson, Mont.—If you live in a small club Offer. For a club of six one-year subtone was supported by the scriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you this handsome Doil exactly as described by Parcel Post prepaid. Premaium No. 4666 Address COMFORT, Augusta. Maine.

H. M. S., Carabelle, Fla.—Write to the publishers of "The Billboard," 42d St., and Seventh Ave., New York City. We think this is the publication you wish. Ask for a sample copy.

Comfort Sisters' Corner

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 16.)

Requests

Miss Carrie Hoffman, Keystone, Nebr. would like June 1916 and 1917 numbers of the "Hustrated Com-panion." Will return favor.

Will someone send me a few old Comports, of the days of Aunt Minerva. Will return favor any way I can. MISS BEATERCE SMITH, Cleveland, Va.

I can. Miss Beathers Smith, Cleveland, Va.
Will someone please tell me what 'California Beer Seeds' are, where they may be obtained and how they are used. A. B., New York, N. Y.
Would like to have the sisters send me velvet pieces, or quilt blocks of any goods. Will return favor with toy animal patterns. A. L. REYNOLDS, Thrasher, Miss.
Recipes for using pumpskin and squash seeds. In Colonial times they were used extensively, such as pumpkin Johany cake, pumpkin pudding and pumpkin fritters.

Has any reader the numbers of "The People's Popular Monthly" containing story "Alice Joyce," which they would lend me? Will return favor.

EMMA SIMER, Brook Park, R. R. 4, Minn.

Will someone loan me the March, April, May and June numbers of litustrated Companion for year 1917. Will return same, paying postage both ways. Mas. A. C. Kooken, Van Hook, N. Dak.

MRR. A. C. ROOKEN, Van HOUR, N. LIB.

I would be very glad if the readers of COMPORT would send me magazine pages containing crochet patterns and fancy work of any kind. Also used picture postcards of any kind.

Mas. C. F. RITCHEY, Center Point, Ark.

Remedies

Whooping Cough.—Give chestnut oil, one drop for every year the child is old; that is, two drops, on sugar, four times a day, for a two-year-old child.

Measles.—Steep a cup of outs in one pint of water and boil down to about half a pint. Sweeten and give a tablespoonful every fifteen minutes. This makes the measles break out.

Mrs. W. H. Clark, Quimby, Mich.

Mas. W. H. CLARK, Quimby, Mich. BLOOD PURIFER. There is nothing better for a spring and fall medicine than sassafras tea. Make a tea of the sassafras bark and drink from one half to one cupful three times a day. Do this for a week or ten days.

or ten days.

TAPEWORM.—Grind or mash pumpkin seeds, hull and all, and take a tablespoonful every day for three days then omit taking it three days then take it three days more. Then take a dose of oil and a few drops of turpentine. Better results from a light diet.

MRS. J. H. FOSTER, Sentinel, Okla.

Best Ways of Doing Things Around The Home

Turpentine and soap will take ink stains out of inen. Mrs. Mattie Pennington, Celina, Tenn.

When rendering fat throw a handful of salt in it ind the grease will come twice as quick.

Mrs. Virgie Hollis, Trevat, Texas.

When frying eggs always sprinkle a little flour in the grease before breaking the eggs and they will not pop at all.

To remove apple and peach stains, soak the cloth in cold water two days and hang in the sun. Do this before it is laundered.

before it is laundered.

Put all milk and cream pails in the sun for several hours a day. The sun kills many germs. Also dry all milk pails, etc., as germs do not multiply so fast when dry.

A Reader, Mich. To DESTROY ANY BEDS.—Pour carbon bisulphide into the ant town early in the morning before the ant to the ant town early in the morning before the ants go to work. Keep this away from the fire as it is highly inflammable.

Mus. J. H. FOSTER, Sentinel, Okla.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 26.)

GRAY HAIR BANISHED

Kolor-Bak positively guaranteed to restore your gray hair to its original color. Not a dye or stain. Cures dandruff in 2 applications, stops falling hair. Harmless, colorless, stainless. Pay nothing if it fails. Write Kolor-Bak Products. Co., 68 West Washington St., Dept. 67, Chicago, for free book and positive proof.

Your COFFEE WHOLESALE IN 5-LB LOTS Get the BEST and SAVE 10 cts per pound. WE PAY POST, EXPRESS or PREIGHT IF TOO LOVE GOOD COVING REXTS FOR THE LETT JEVNE COFFEE CO. (Let 1831) Coffee Specialists Dept. 40, 2855-57 W. Madison St., CHICAGO.

DAYSON'S INDELIBLE INK

It makes a clear mark that will not spread or wash out and will protect cotton, linens and heavier fabrics from confusion or loss. A household necessity for eighty-two years. Ready for use with a common pen. Stationers and Druggists sell it in the old-fashioned red and yellow wrappers, or it will be sent prepaid for 25 cents by Payson's Indelible Ink Co., 28 Brashaw Ave., Northempton, Mass.

CONSUMERS WHOLESALE BROCERY CO., 1403 to 1409-W. Congress St., Dept. 250 Chicago, III.

Pink Cameo Ring FREE amena are set in fine gold filled ring. Guar-nized for three years. To introduce new lifting argaints, will send jost paid, your size, upon stept of 12c to pay subscribed. The Auction Co., Dept. Sol Affleboro, Wass.

WOMEN! DRESS WITHOUT COST

women's and earn a little spare money as well and earn a little spare money as well as beautiful, illustrated portfolio of 100 charming New York styles in women's outer apparel. No investment required. For complete information address Sectat Taim Campan, 141 fifth Ac., N.T.

New Feather Beds Only $6.50 New Feather Pillows $1.25 per pair. All new clean san-itary feathers. Best ticking. Write for illustrated catalog. SOUTHERS FEATHER & PILLOW CO. Degt. 201 Genabers, E. C.

Wanted An Idea! Who can think of some simple thing to patent? Protect your ideas. They may bring you wealth. Write for "Needed Inventions" and list of "Patent Buyerz." RANDOLPH & CO., Patent Attorneys, Dept. 112, WASHINGTON, D. C.

DO YOUR EYES BOTHER YOU? Agents wanted to sell glasses. Send for catalog. COULTER OPTICAL CO., Dept. 13. CHICAGO, ILL.

CARDS, Dice, Magic Goods, Novelties, Catalog Free. D. M. SMYTHE Co., Newark, Mo.

RITATOUTCAST SISTER

By LIBBIE SPRAGUE PHILLIPS

SPECIAL SALE PRICE with a six (6) months' subscription to

THE RLIBSTRATED COMPANION ORLY 29 CEHIS.
This Book contains one of

The paths of this story overy where. Even the nam with a heart of atome learner or include sounder subscription of the story of the story of the nam with a heart of atome learner
or include sounder subscription of the story of the story of the nam with a heart of atome learner
or include sounder subscription of the story of the story of the nam with a heart of atome learner of the story of the story of the story of the nam sympath, for the erring one;
that he has also a heart capable of leve and admiration for the good and noble character of Leulis, the serate, leving, self-sacrificing alsand noble character of Lucius, me-scentle, loving, self-acardising siz-ler. Sighteens indignation is aroused toward Silas Lock wood, her releutions and unuatural father, The heart's emotions like a great eccan billow, rolls on from the begin-ning to end of the book; when you lay it down and say blessed in God who rules over all for the good of all. Thousands will want to read this book and pass it on to their friends. Libbis Byruge-Philips writes pose was a wan, while face.

Passes it on to their friends. Libbs Sprages Philips writes passed in the passes of t St. THE OFFER of magazine 6 months and wors, for a second to get new trial subscribers. Address
F. B. WARRER CO., Bept. C. T. 96 Chambers St., New York

Whole Toy Town! Boys and Girls-Can You Imagine

A Complete Village Houses, Stores, Shops And All! You Can Build And Re-build It As Often As You Like!

How to Trap the Mink, Weasel and Muskrat

Copyright, 1917, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

Weasel and Muskrat

Copyright, 1917, by W. H. Gamett, Publisher, Inc.

HE mink is one of the hardest of all small fur-bearing animals to take in steef traps. It has a keen sense of smell and is very suspicious, so I advise the beginner to contine his efforts to traps placed in water.

The weasel (ermine) has not as keen animal instinct. It may be trapped by the beginner, provided he uses an attractive lure and knows how to conceal his sets fairly well.

Under old bridges—especially if the sides are made of rock—are good places to make sets at the bottom, in two or three inches of make sets that the bottom, in two or three inches of water. Whenever possible, I should advise the fastening to be made where it is deep, for in this case the animal will dive when caught, tangle the chain, and drown.

If two streams come together at a sharp angle, tunnel from one to the other so that the water will flow through the excavation. Place a trap at each entrance. This tunnel will furnish an ideal place for trapping the mink as long as the water does not freeze, for every fur bearer passing will attempt to enter in search of food, and wise that all mud, etc. from the concealed, of portly concealed, with weeds or grass, giving the place a natural appearance. Dash water over the sets after completed.

Flowing tiles are good places to take the mink. If there are no tracks about, place the trap with the spring near the drain. If there are signs, reverse the trap, Should the tile be stopped up, dig it out.

Along the edges of the water, dig shallow pockets. In the back part, place a small plece of muskrat flesh. Guard this with one or more traps. Remember, if water is dashed over places where sets are made, all human odor will be desired. He was a subject of the mink. In the back part, place a small plece of muskrat flesh. Guard this with one or more traps. If one can arrange this set and drape it with leaves or grass to give it a natural appearance, it will prove more effective.

In very small, shallow creeks make a dam with sma extremely cold.

The first thing one should do in trapping the weasel, is to find its hunting grounds. Almost (CONTINUED ON PAGE 23.)

The Modern Farmer

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 17.)

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 17.)

Lidder a good dairy cow. The heifer should be wide between the thighs, giving room for a big udder, which even well placed teats. Milk veins should be easily traced and end in large wells.

Constitution.—The animal should show marks that indicate a strong constitution. A broad nose, a full bright eye, a strong jaw, a smooth coat of soft, pliable hair and skin are the marks that indicate health and vigor, or a strong constitution.

To sum up: In selecting by marks:

1. Get a color that shows one of the good dairy breeds.

2. Select a good-sized animal.

Select a good-sized animal. Be sure that the heifer has milk producing capacity Do not neglect marks that indicate a strong capacity.

4. Do not neglect marks that indicate a strong constitution.

Select Heifers with a Good History.—The other class of dairymen who pay little attention to marks are the ones who pay much attention to dairy history. However, these are the higher class dairymen who already have well marked animals that they are improving by breeding. These men want to know about the milk records of the sires and dams of the heifers they raise; hence they test their cows and keep records of their performances. Then they raise only the heifers of the best cows.

What is the Advanced register—Only this: Cows that make high butter and milk records are entitled to registration in a book called the Advanced Register. Those that cannot meet the advanced register standards of course are not entitled to be recorded therein. Good breeders always study these records very carefully when buying breeding stock. When buying either a bull or heifer they always try to get one who has a large number of near relatives in the advanced register.

register.
Two Good Rules.—There are then two good rules to follow in selecting heifers for a dairy

1. Always select well marked heifers.
2. If their history is known select thos is known select those from

2. If their history is known select those from heavy producing families.

The first rule can always be used by all dairymen, the second can only be used by the best dairymen and by those who are slowly building up a herd by use of pure bred bulls or by buying a few choice heifers, or both combined.

Economical Manuring of Land

There is an erroneous idea prevalent among tillers of the land that farmyard manure to give the best results should be "piled on thick." In tobacco raising districts the one tobacco field gets all of the manure each year and the rest of the farm starves for lack of fertility. This is true also of the cabbage growing districts, in a measure, and to a like extent in all districts where any one crop is made a specialty.

The time has come to give every acre of the farm its due share of manure and so it is advised

Get Most Cash For Furs! Ship Quick To

We Need Coon, Mink, Skunk, Opossum, Wolf, Fox, Otter, Muskrat—All You Can Ship Us! Furs caught now are usually prime-sell best that a manure spreader be used and all of the manure thereby thinly applied each year to as large an area as possible. It is impossible to get a thin, even distribution of manure when spread by fork out of the wagon, or from heaps dumped at regular spaces over the field surface. Much manure is wasted by too thick application and the loss from allowing manure to (leach) and waste in heaps on the land is a most serious matter in the aggregate.

FREE

trous.

Sow clover with every grain, hay and pasture crop in every district where it will grow, and elsewhere grow other legumes abundantly.

The Questions and Answers constitute one of the most valuable features of this department and we urge our farmer subscribers to read all of them carefully each month, as you will find that they contain much useful information and advice on practical problems that are troubling you as well as those who have asked the questions. Cut them out and paste them into a scrapbook for future reference. This will save you the trouble of writing us and will avoid delay in getting your-answer when you need advice on these same matters. We are glad to receive inquiries from our subscribers and to advise them on all matters pertaining to farming.

Questions and Answers

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 19.)

nor to the Secretary of the League; they bother him and cause confusion and delay. Address all letters to COMFORT, Augusta Maine, and they will promptly reach the head of the department for which they are in-the subject.

Drop Uncle Charlie's Poems in the Christmas Stocking and Make Every-one Happy!

bring highest prices. Ship yours at once before the big bulk of the season's catch comes to lower demand.

We own the world's largest fur-selling auditorium. Three times a week big buyers gather here—they bid prices way up! See the point? Ship to Funsten and get most money for your furs. Your check sent same day shipment is received. Honest grading assures you full value for every skin. Over 500,000 shippers have found "the big house" gives the biggest cash returns. Send that bundle of furs today to

FUNSTEN BROS. & CO. 487 Funsten Bldg., St. Louis, Mo. FREE BOOK-Trappers' Guide, Supply Catalog, Game Laws-3 In O

> Make This Your Big

Pear of QUICK RETURNS—the HOUSE of QUICK RETURNS—the HOUSE of LIBERAL ASSORTMENTS. Send for S. & B. Price List. It's free! STRUCK & BOSSAK Inc., 143 W. 28th ST., New York. count toward our great cash prize competition. Dandiest Christmas gift in the world. Work for it today.

Uncle Charlie's Song Book a Superb

Christmas Gift! Vou can't have a real Christmas without music in the home, and Unde Charlie's song folio, a superb collection of entrancingly beautiful songs, will set every music lover wild with delight. Songs for Christmas and all occasions, all tastes, and every song a hit. The ideal gift for all nusic lovers. Cheap at five dollars. Contains full music for voice and piano. Four splendid pictures of Uncle Charlie on the cover. Send two one-year subscriptions to Comport at 25e each and Santa Claus will bring this gorgeous collection of musical masterpieces to your door, free of charge. Poems and Song Book free for a club of six. Secure both and a Merry Christmas will be yours. Greatest bargains ever offered. Send for them today.

and the loss from allowing manure to (leach) and waste in heaps on the land is a most serious matter in the aggregate.

At the Pennsylvania Experiment Station the application of manure in different amounts has shown clearly that there is economy in light applications when used for general farm crops. The money return per ton of manure, when applied at the rate of six tons per acre, twice in a rotation, was $3,29, as compared with $2,29 per ton, when applied at the rate of 10 tons per acre. On this basis 60 tons of manure applied at the rate of six tons per acre on each 10 acres would give a return of $60,00 more than the same amount of manure applied at the rate of 10 tons per acre on each six acres. Few farmers have sufficient manure to cover their farms as abundantly and frequently as they desire. The results quoted emphasize the importance of using a spreader and applying the manure thinly.

Every farmer should maintain live stock to consume feed for handy and profitable marketing and to furnish manure to conserve and increase fertility and as sufficient manure cannot be made on the average farm clover or other legumes should be grown as widely and as often as possible.

Any plan of farming that omits these fundamental principles of practise must prove disastrous.

Sow clover with every grain, hay and pasture

International Outlets enable us to pay for RAW FURS SKUNK MINK No. 1 Large No. 1 Med. No. 1 Smal Dark 10.00-8.00 6.00 4.50 Brown 7.50-5.50 4.50 3.25 RACCOON OPOSSUM MUSKRAT

Needs all your furs
to fill waiting orders,
and will pay the price to get them.
Ship to Biggs for higher prices and a square deal. Half a million satisfied shippers.

FREE Send for "Trappers"
Exchange"—greates trappers' magazine published.
Full of trapping secrets, pictures, trapping stories, etc. Trappers'
Supplies at Factory Cost—Guns, Ammunition, Traps, Baits, etc.
Catalog free. Write at once. Catalog free. WILL Catalog free. W. BIGGS & CO., 502 Biggs Bidg., KANSAS CITY, MO.

FUNSTEN

Pays In Cash Not Promises

The World's Largest Fur House

Our prices are always the highest the market affords. Liberal grading and prompt remittance guaranteed on all shipments, Send for Fur Price List

David Blustein & Bro. 166 West 27th St. New York

Birthstone Rings

Genuine Gold Filled

Guaranteed For 5 Years

Given For A Club Of Two!

THE most popular lady's rings worn today are these beautiful birthstone rings. Not only is it considered lucky to wear one of them but they are now and always will be exceedingly stylish. We are able to illustrate only three of the rings but there are twelve in all—a different stone for each month of the year and of course you should wear the stone that is symbolical of the month you were born. The following is a list of the twelve rings, names of the stones, the month to which one applies and its symbol.

No. 7632. January. The Garnet, Symbol of Power. Power. No. 7642. February, The Ameythyst, Symbol of Pure Love. No. 7652. March, The Bloodstone, Symbol of Courage. No. 7662. April, The Diamond, Symbol of

No. 7662. April, The Diamond, symbol of Purily.
No. 7672. May, The Emerald, Symbol of Immortality.
No. 7682. June, The Agate. Symbol of Health and Long Life.
No. 7692. July, The Ruby. Symbol of Charity.
No. 7702. August. The Sardonyx, Symbol of Hanniness. Happiness.
No. 7712. September, The Sapphire, Symbol of Constancy.
No. 7722. October, The Opal, Symbol of Hope. No. 7732. November, The Topaz, Symbol of Friendship.

No. 7742. December, The Turquoise, Symbol of Prosperity,

No. 7742. December, The Turquoise, symbol of Prosperity.

Each ring is guaranteed genuine 12-Karat gold filled which looks exactly like solid gold and will wear for years. In fact we absolutely guarantee each ring for at least five years. The rings themselves are perfectly plain, the stones are solitaires and perfect imitations of the real gems. The setting of each ring is the ever popular "Tiffany" style. As a Christmas, Birthday or all the year-round gift for wife, mother, sweetheart or sister nothing could be more appropriate and acceptable than one of these beautiful guaranteed rings set with the birthstone of the person to whom it is given. And not only the women and girls but men and boys as well are now wearing them.

Please do not class these rings with the cheap "electro-plated" rings that turn brassy after they have been worn a month or two.

with the cheap "electro-plated" rings that turn brassy after they have been worn a month or two. Remember that every one of them is guaranteed to be 12-Karat gold-filled and positively warranted for five years. If you want a handsome birthstone ring for yourself or some dear friend or relative you will make no mistake in taking advantage of this offer at once. When ordering be sure to specify the size and number of ring wanted. You can easily tell just what size ring you wear by following the directions at the right.

Club Offer. For two one-tions to COMFORT at 25c. each, we will send you one of these beautiful gold-filled birth-stone rings by parcel post prepaid. Please be sure to give size

COMFORT, Augusta, Maine

the paper off seartly meet the paper off seartly meet are O and the oth ructions your rin 5 To Se 7 8 9 10

12

one Happy! If you want a real, old-fashioned Christmas, get a copy of that wonderful volume Uncle Charlie's Poems. Here is the finest present for young or old in the world. To deprive the children of the book is a crime. Read "How Father Carved The Turk," "How Pop Played Santa Claus," and "Just Behind the Battle Mother," and you will have the whole family yelling with delight. For parlor or platform it is the dandiest book in the world. A big 160-page, gorgeous volume, beautifully bound in lilac ribbed silk cloth, a scream from cover to cover. Autographed by Uncle Charlie's own hands, and with a heart touching sketch of his life, and half tone pictures showing Uncle Charlie dictating his monthly talks to Maria. This exquisite volume free for a club of only four one-year subscriptions to Comfort at 25c each. These clubs

M. WULFSOHN & CO., 235 West 27th St., New York City

FREE price-list and ship-ing tac-

Every trapper should take advantage of the EXTRA HIGH PRICES we are paying for all kinds of furs, in any quantity. We keep our promises and when we say you will receive the very TOP PRICES for your furs, WE MEAN T. Let us prove it to you.

No Commission Charges LIBERAL GRADING

EXTRA HIGH PRICES

Start NOW-do as over 300,000 old, experienced trappers are doing-get more money for your furs-get correct grading-get prompt remittance-by shipping all your furs to Hill Bros Fur Co.-"The Fastest Growing Fur House in America".

WE CHARGE NO COMMISSION Why should you allow any house to charge you commission. Why should you lose $5.00 on every bundred dollars. Think what a loss this means to you in the course of the season. When you ship to Hilb Bros. Fur Co., you get the full price for your furs—not one cent deducted for commission.

FURS ARE VERY HIGH

No. matter where you have been shipping your furs or what prices you have been getting—send us a trial shipment today—and let us prove to you have much better you can do at Hill Bros. Fur Co. than anywhere else. Try us—that's all we ask,

FREE Send for Fur Price List, Trappers' Guide, Game Laws, Supply Catalog and particulars of our $250.00 Cash Prizes to trappers only. All will be sent absolutely FREE on request, Write today. HILL BROS. FUR CO.

More Cash for You! our own assertment on your Raw Furs. uarantee to pay you your price (some-for our Pricelist C. Good News for You. H. HAIMOWICZ, (est. 1894) 265-267 Main St.,

It Will Attract All Animals to Your Traps
Send 25c in stamps for a large trial bottle. Guaranteed to increase your catch or money refunded.
We will also send you price lists. The Unwelcome Surprise" and our latest price lists. You get full value for Furs when you ship us.
No charges for Selling as We are Direct Buyers. UNITED STATES FUR COMPANY, Dept.J., 209 N. First St., St. Louis, Mo.

Subscribers are invited to write to this department asking for any information desired relative to the treatment of animal troubles. Questions will be answered in these columns free by an eminent veterinarian. Describe the trouble fully, sign full name and give your address; direct all correspondence to the Vetermary Department, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

No attention will be given any inquiry which lacks the sender's full name and address, but we will print only initials if so requested.

Indicestion.—My horse, fourteen years old, had been pastured on airalfa. As I was going to work him, L gave him a feed of barley and he wouldn't eat it. I turned him out again and he wouldn't eat, but would follow the other horses and stand as though asleep. I gave him a quart of oil; his bowels were loose for four or five days, then I gave him a dose of Castor oil. In the meantime I gave two doses of niter. He eats now, but does not seem to be doing as well as he should. What was the cause of the trouble? E. E. A.—Have a veterinarian put the old horse's teeth in order and then do not feed alfaifs may. Prefer timothy or clover hay, along with outs and bran. Barley should be rolled before feeding and made but a small part of the ration, unless a horse has been accustomed to this feed from weaning time. It was a mistake to give the Castor oil as the linseed oil aiready had acted.

EYE TROUBLE.—I have a beifer two years old. She

EYE TROUBLE.—I have a helfer two years old. She ves milk and appears healthy. One of her eyes runs EYE TROUBLE.—I have a helfer two years old. She gives milk and appears healthy. One of her eyes runs water and she can't hold it open. She runs out and I feed bran shorts and peanut hay. P. A. S. A.—'Pink eye'' (contagious ophthalmia) spreads from cow to cow until all are affected. If but one helfer is affected the trouble no doubt is caused by a foreign body lodged under the cyclid or to an injury. Have the eye examined and any foreign body removed, If none is found cover the eye with a soft cloth to be kept wet with a solution of half a dram each of sulphate of zinc and fluid extract of beliadonna and ten drops of carbolic acid in a quart of cold soft water.

drops of carbolic acid in a quart of cold soft water.

Weak Rahmuts.—My rabbits vary in ages from three to five weeks old. They seem to be paralyzed in their front feet and die within two or three hours after they are paralyzed. I give them plenty of water and dry alfalfa hay. Some of the rabbits are weaned and some are not. The pens are dry and clean.

J. B.

A.—Dry alfalfa is unsuitable feed. Give green stuff, roots, oats and wet tea leaves. Allow the rabbits a big yard for exercise. Keep the buck out of the pens.

big yard for exercise. Keep the buck out of the pens.

SPAVIN.—I have a mare, fourteen years old that has a spavin on her left hind leg. Some say it is blood spavin and that there is no cure for it. If true I do not wish to keep her, but will have her killed as I do not want to see her suffer. Will you advise me through COMPORT.

A.—There is no such condition as "blood spavin."
That term sometimes erroneously is applied to "bog" spavin, a distension of the capsular ligament of the hock joint with synovia. Do not have the mare destroyed. Better take her to the hospital of a graduate veterinarian and arrange to have the spavin operated upon and the mare boarded until lameness subsides. We suspect that a bone spavin is causing the lameness.

COUGH.—My Jersey cow, six years old, is in fine suspect that a bone spavin is causing the lameness. COUGH.—My Jersey cow, six years old, is in fine condition, eats well, but has a cough, and no discharge from the nose. I feed cottonseed meal, bran, oil cake meal and alfalfa hay. I had one of the best veterinarians in Los Angeles test her and she stood the test. She gives about five quarta a day of very rich milk. My little son lives on the milk. Mgls, A. A. A. A.—A.—The tuberculin test is reliable. A cow only fails to react to the test when free from the disease any kind of a meat bait will prove effective. A concealed trap, with the head of a rabbit for lure, placed under an upturned sod should be effective.

How to Trap the Mink, Weasel and Muskrat

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 22.)

effective.

The muskrat is able to adapt itself to "encroaching civilization" and does not seem to mind whether human habitation is near or not, so long as food can be obtained. Generally speaking, the muskrat is found all over American speaking, the muskrat is found all over America.

The muskrat is the only one of the smaller animals that eats vegetables exclusively. The best baits—of the natural kind—are apples, corn, parsnips, potatoes, carrots or in fact almost any vegetable that the muskrats could not get easily for themselves. If the animals have an abundance of corn near them use apples. The idea is to offer them something that they cannot easily get in nearby fields.

Most muskrats are taken early in the season, notwithstanding the fact that they get their best pelts late in winter and spring. The reason for this is obvious when one considers that during the fact that they get their best pelts late in winter and spring. The reason for this is obvious when one considers that during the fact that they get their best pelts late in winter and spring. The reason for this is obvious when one considers that during the fact that they get their best pelts late in winter and spring.

Ing the cold weather active.

Most pelt hunters prefer the Number One trap for taking this fur bearer. This will be found very effective, especially if the fastening may be made in deep water so the animals will drown the country.

very effective, especially if the fastening may be made in deep water so the animals will drown when caught.

The ensiest way to catch the muskrat is to arrange traps at the foot of slides—usually not too close together—in about three inches of water. I mention this depth for the reason that traps placed in shallower water invariably catch the fur bearers by the short and weak front legs, rather than by the longer and stronger hind ones, Employ no bait of any kind, If the water is too deep, build a foundation of mud, stones or other material; if too shallow, scoop out an excavation.

In shallow water, build small mounds, the tops of which are just above the surface. Scoop out excavations and conceal with water soaked leaves or grass, traps. The excavations ought to be deep enough so that when the traps are in position they will be covered with water. It is not necessary to employ a lure. Muskrats traveling up or down the stream will climb the mounds and may get caught.

Often runways may be found leading from one shallow pond to another. These are water trails, probably a foot or so wide and a few inches deep.

Traps set at the entrances almost invariably are successful.

probably a foot or so wide and a tew inches accept Traps set at the entrances almost invariably are successful.

Another good plan is to place small pieces of bait on a small, inclined stick. The parsnip is very good because of its pungent odor. Under the decoys set one or more traps.

I have taken the skins in the following manner: First, I arrange a pumpkin in shallow water, build a sort of a fence around the pumpkin with sticks, leaving three or four openings guarded with traps.

In shallow water, incline a board at a sharp angle, one end firmly wedged in the mud and the other a few inches above the surface of the water. This board ought to be about six inches wide, supported at one end with two stakes holding it firmly. Arrange two nails at a suitable depth below the water to catch and hold the trap securely. On the board, above the water, place the bait. A muskrat in climbing the board will get caught.

or so thoroughly saturated with the germs of the disease and their roisons that tuberculin can have no effect. As your cow is in good condition and has not reacted to the test we should consider her free from tuberculosis. It would be well, however, to have her tested at intervals of six months for fear the disease was not sufficiently advanced to cause a reaction at the first test. Cough may be due to any one of a large number of causes. Possibly the veterinarian who makes the examination can determine the exact cause in this case, but we cannot do so without seeing the cow. Wet all dusty feed and keep the stable clean and perfectly ventilated.

clean and perfectly ventilated.

WEAK STIPLES.—My pony, four years old, had the distemper last March and during the time almost lost the use of his hind legs, just dragged his feet. Now, after being still a few moments he will drag his feet a few steps and jerk them up as though he had string halt; they pop when he raises them. After a little time he travels as well as ever. G. G. F. A.—The muscles and ligaments of the stiffe joints, at the flanks, are weak and allow the patella (kneecap) to slip out of place and back again with a snapping sound. This may subside, if you feed generously and once or twice daily rub the joints and around them with a liniment composed of half an ounce each of aqua ammonia and turpentine and four ounces of druggists' soap liniment shaken up with eleven ounces of water.

WEBUS — Will you tell me what to do few worms in Worms.—Will you tell me what to do for worms in horses, also how to know if they are present without seeing them?

A.—If worms are present a fur of scally substance usually may be found about the anus and the infected horse commonly is thin, hidebound and has a strong coat of hair and a ravenous appetite. Mix together equal quantities of powdered copperas, salt and sulphur by weight, and of this mix one tablespoonful in the feed night and morning for a week, then stop for ten days and then give the powder for another week. Omit copperas for a pregnant mare and increase salt and sulphur.

RED WATER.—My cow came fresh last spring with her third caif; shortly after blood passed with the urine, becoming worse through the summer and fall. Now her urine is nearly all blood and she is poor and weak. What is the trouble and is there a cure?

H. E. J.

A.—This disease known technically as hematuria, and commonly as "red water" usually is caused by acrid plants in wild pasture or some micro-organism derived from wild grasses or surface water and when confirmed may prove incurable. Keep the cow off pasture and provide her with well water and perfectly sound feed. Do not feed small hay. Mix flaxseed meal with

Rifles, Traps, Etc. FREE Write For Our Plan

Find out about our premium plan and how it gets you top cash prices for your furs, and also gives you free, rifles, shot guns, traps and other things you want.

Don't be tempted to send your furs else where. No deductions-no commissions. can make this year the biggest year you have ever had. Write for our Fur Club News, Premium List and List of Prices, and let us tell you how we guarantee you a square sort with top cash prices.

All mailed to you FREE. Write TO-DAY.

S. SILBERMAN & SONS, Department 230, CHICAGO, ILL.

Established 1866. Largest Fur and Wool House in America

the feed and add one teaspoonful each of powdered cop-peras and aldm. If she is pregnant omit copperas and increase the alum.

WORMS.—Will you tell me if dried sulphate of iron, sulphur and salt would be good to give a horse for worms and in what proportion? G. T. B. A.—As prescribed here over and over again give for the destruction of worms in horses a mixture of equal quantities by weight of salt, sulphur and dried sulphate of iron (copperas). Dose for an adult horse one table-spoonful night and morning in the feed for one week, then skip ten days and repeat. Omit iron for a pregnant mare and increase salt and sulphur.

nant mare and increase salt and sulphur.

Defirated Appetite.—My horse eats dirt. I give her hay, oats, corn and sometimes fodder. For the last month or two she has been running on green grass an hour or two cach day.

A.—If possible allow the mare free access to poplar ('popple') boughs and trunks as the bark is a good corrective in such cases as you describe. If you cannot do this mix in cach feed a tablespoonful of a mixture of three parts of powdered wood charcoal and part of bicarbonate of soda. Have the teeth attended to by a veterinarian and if worms are seen in the droppings give worm medicine, often prescribed here, instead of charcoal and soda.

SWELLING.—I have a few Belgian hares and two of the does have a soft and furfy swelling under the throat. Can you tell me what the cause of the swelling is? I feed the rabbits mostly clover, grass and carrots. The rabbits seem to be in good health otherwise.

otherwise.

A.—Enlargement of the thyroid gland may be present, or a dropsical swelling due to a deblitating disease such as tuberculosis, or there may be a sac containing a grub. An examination would be necessary to determine the exact nature of the condition present, If you think it worth while have a veterinarian make the examination.

the examination.

Whak Stiples.—I have a young mare with her first colt. At times she can hardly walk. The trouble is in her hind legs.

A.—Weakness of the muscles and ligaments of the stifle joints at the flanks allows the patella (knee cap) of each joint to slip out of place now and then. The cap may, in many cases, be heard to snap back into place. Once daily rub a stimulating liniment upon the joints and around them. If this does not suffice you should have a trained veterinarian blister the joints, one at a time at intervals of two or three weeks. The mare may outgrow the weakness.

WEAK STIFLE.—I have a three-year-old colt that is stifled. When he gallops he is a little awkward with his hind legs. When he steps there is a snap in the stifle joint. It is swollen below the stifle joint.

stific joint. It is swollen below the stific joint.

A.—When a horse is "stified" the patella (knee cap) of the joint is out of place (dislocated) and the leg thrusts stiffly backward. In the case in question there is weakness of the stific and infection of the navel at birth would be a possible cause. Rub in ten per cent iodine petrogen or vasogen daily or use a proprietary absorbent which you can buy at a drug-store.

SKUNK We pay top prices for Skunk, Mink, Muskrat, and all raw Furs. Price list free. M. J. JEWETT & SONS, REDWOOD, N. Y. DEPT. 6.

TRAPPERS WE BUY

Highest prices paid for all Furs, Hides and Ginseng. Best facili-ties in America. No Commission. Send for our prices and Free valuable information before ship-ning elsewhere. ROGERS FUR COMPANY

Cash for Raw Furs

If you don't send for our price list we are both osers because we pay highest market prices and want your shipments. Send for Price list C. L. BRIEFNER & SONS, (Est. 1861) 148 West 25th St., New York City

VETERINARY COURSE AT HOME

Taught in simplest English during spare time. Diploms granted. Cast with fireach of all. Satufaction guaranteed. Have been teaching by correspondence in venty years. Graduates assisted in many ways. Every person, interested in stock should take it. Write for catalogue and full TREE

LondonVet.Correspondence School Dept.6, London, Ontario, Can.

Hurry Furs To Becker

Start Shipping Quick At Latest High Prices Big Market Demand Now

Becker's latest classified highest market prices for furs are now ready. Reliable, de-pendable treatment and satisfaction guaran-teed.

Start shipping your furs to Hecker quick, and all the FULL CASH highest market price comes right back to you by return mail.

mail.

No deductions. No commissions. No transportation charges! Most liberal gradings. We treat you RIGHT, as more than 50,000 trappers know. First to issue Classified Price Lists, which keep you fully informed. Mailed you regularly, free.

If requested, we keep your furs separate and submit valuation. We need furs quick. Rush your shipments. We have $1,000,000 to buy them with. Established 30 years. Let's get acquainted for good.

BECKER BROS. & CO.

CHICAGO, Dept. 67, 416 N. Dearborn Street NEW YORK, Dept. 67, 129 W. 23th Street NEW ORLEANS, Dept. 67, 200 Decatur Street Good as a Government Bond What We Promise, We Do and postage and make prompt returns. Send for price list L. RABINOWITZ, 119 WEST 28TH STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

SHIP FURS

SILK MUSLIN SCARF

A dainty shoulder throw and head covering for Summer, or for evening wear the year round. For trimming so practical or so easily and attractively arranged. Each Scarf is two yards long and 14 inches wide, with deep hemstitched edge, and we have them in white, black, light blue and light pink.

For every-day use such a scarf is indispensable and for ear or boat riding, pleasure or otherwise one or more of these scarfs will be found useful. Being ready to wear, the saving of time in hemstitching is worth something to everywoman, and the busy mothers will find them so convenient for a quick method of trimming the children's hats. Whem erdering be sure to me ention color for four

30

Club Offer For four subscriptions to Conrors at 25 cents each, we will send you this Silk Searf free by parcel post prepaid. He sure to member of the color wanted. Premium No. 7384.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

This Help

Book Free

Tells how to trap; what traps and baits to use. Explains use of smoke torpedo; shows animals in natural colors; in-cludes complete trap-per's supply catalog.

per's supply catalog. Allsent free on request.

AMERICA'S GREATEST FUR HOUSE

Act at Once! There Is Danger in Delay! Fur values are high. Before the market reacts.

hurry all your skins to Taylor. We need all kinds to supply the terrific demands. Mink, muskrat, skunk, opossum, coon, and others will bring you big prices now. Cash sent by return mail. Qui.kest and most liberal payments. But remember, delays may mean loss. While the present demand exists, there are extr a profits waiting for you here. Rush your furs now to

687 Fu Deal Direct With America's Greatest Fur House

Money Sent by Return Mail Taylor service in-cludes prompt, cash payments. Within afew hours after receipt of your furs, we mail re-mittance. You get quickest, most liberal money returns from Taylor.

negom mos. TayloolysT Taylo.

"Virtue itself offends when coupled with forbidding manners."—Bishop Middleton.

In order to meet the demand for information made by COMFORT subscribers on the kindred subjects of Etiquette and Personal Appearance, this column will be devoted to them, and all questions will be answered, but no inquirer shall ask more than two questions each month. We would suggest to readers so cut this column out and paste it in a scrap book. Address letters to Etiquette Editor, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Two Cousins, Montana.—A lady, if she wishes to, takes a gentleman's arm when it is offered. (2) We would not consider either you or your cousin too large. (3) Do not expend too much money on your wardrobe, even if you are going to a city high school this winter. Two school frocks, several extra waists—perhaps some plain flannel ones; one simple evening gown, and a street and traveling costume should be all that you need.

A Lady, Eaton, Ind.—If you wish to offer refreshments to the gentleman who calls to see you Sunday evenings, a good time to do so would be about a half hour before he generally leaves—or the time you wish him to leave. (2) It is neither necessary nor proper to offer any lunch to a young man who sees you home from an affair on Sunday night, or any other night of the week.

night of the week.

Bothered, Oneonta, Ala.—Just go your own way and do not worry seriously about a young man that you have known for seven years, and whom you did not hear from until two years after you stopped correspondence with him. You might not hear from him for four years the next time. Give him a chance to prove the earnestness of these second attentions of his by paying little heed to him and treating him with indifference. This may be hard, if you really care for him, but try it and see what happen.

Warried, Watarag Ealls, N. C.—Illow do you know him, but try it and see what happen."

Worried, Watauga Falls, N. C.—Ifow do you know the young man you love has ceased to care for you because he has enlisted in the mary and will be leaving town in a few days? Would you want him not to go? And how do you think Uncle Sam would get on if every young man that loved a girl stayed behind to tell her so? He will have time to t ink of you when he gets away, and will probably come home all the happier to meet you—even if you did once "quit talking."

Belle, Plummer, Minn.—If it were not a serious thing when a girl falls in love with a young man the first time she meets him, and feels that she "can never love anybody else." we would say that you had written a six-page letter without much reason. Certainly this young man does not seem to show any signs of having fallen in love with you. You say one "has to go half ways anyway," but it is a difficult job if there is three quarters or seven eighths of the distance to travel. If the young man lives within five miles of your home and you expect to meet him at this dance—he with another girl, perhaps,—we t-ink that you and your sister might manage to suggest to him that you would be glad to see something of him at your home occasionally. But be careful; the average young man is a wary and sby creature, and does not like to be stalked in public. Why not give a dance at your own house and see that he is there.

Your Friend, Omemee, N. Dak.—In the case of in-

Your Friend, Omemee, N. Dak.—In the case of introductions you do not mention first the person vou are with, as you suggest, but you always introduce a gentleman to a lady—mentioning the lady's name first; and it is considered best to introduce a younger person to an older, in which case the latter is addressed first. In the case of a person of superior rank or distinction, the same rule holds. It is not necessary to shake hands when introduced, but it is kind and courteous to do so. It is optional with the lady if she chooses to offer her hand. (2) You do not write badly, and, what is more important, your spelling is correct.

Anxious, Maneva, III.—As it is a Carterville custom for young ladies to wear on their "ring fingers" gold band rings that have been given them by young men, we are very sure that no one will call you improper if you wear one too. (2) It is not at all bad form for two sisters to go buggy riding with a young mant and proper thing to do—but the buggy ought to have a wide seat, and the Carterville roads be good ones.

Silk Remnants

Premium No. 5561

All Sizes, Shapes and Colors—A Large Package Sent You For One Subscription

You For One Subscription

REMNANTS of real slik, in all shapes, sizes and colors. They are carefully trimmed and just what you need for making up benutiful quilts, tidies, pillow tops and all kinds of "crazy patchwork." We will send you a package containing more than one hundred of these beautiful slik pieces and 5 skeins embroidery cotton in different bright colors. If you order at once we will also send you, in addition to everything else an Instruction Book with eight full-page illustrations showing how to ornament seams of crazy patchwork and other work where fancy stitches are used It tells you how to put pieces of patchwork together to get the best effect, how to cover up seams with fancy stitches, how to join the edges, etc. This book illustrates over one hundred and fifty of these besides containing full and explicit directions for working the Outline and Kensington Stitch, Arrasene and Chenille Embroidery, ribbon work, plush or infled stitch, also directions for Kensington painting. Remember you get one nice lot of these Silk Remnants (over 100 pieces), 5 skeins Embroidery Cotton and an Instruction Book, as above described, all sent to you free by Parcel Post prevaid if you will accept the following Free Offer For one one-year subscription (not your own) to COMPORT at 25 cents, we will send you one package of these Silk Remnants, free by parcel post prepaid. Premium No. 5561. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

MEA PRIL

Soldier's Sweetheart, Greenmount, Tenn.—We think you had best wait until the war ends before marrying your soldier lover—particularly as you are but seven. Most assuredly it was right for you to kiss him good by before he left you, and he should have been court-martialed if he had taken his departure without having you do it—and more than once, too. (2) We would not consider you too large for your age, although most girls of seventeen are not so well developed.

though most girls of seventeen are not so well developed.

Bright Eyes, Spring Hope, N. C.—You write that you are nineteen and have been "going together" for two years with the boy of twenty that you are engaged to. Our advice is that you wait two more years before you marry. You will be sure of yourselves and each other, and more ready to meet the difficult situations that sometimes arise in married life. (2) Yes, engaged couples may sit together on a porch—with a light in the parlor, as you specify—and they may kiss, too, but not too much.

Blue Eyes, Merrill, Iowa.—We do not think you are too young at eighteen to be receiving attention from a young man who lives neighbor to your home. You state your parents and his, also, have no objections. But we would not think of marriage, unless for some special reason, for a couple of years yet. (2) It is best not to give gifts to a young man to whom you are not engaged, but if you wish you might present him on his birthday with something simple and inexpensive that you had made with your own hands,—a cravat, or an initialed handkerchief, perhaps.

June Girl, Holden, Mo.—The phrase "How are you."

June Girl, Holden, Mo.—The phrase "How are you," is a conventional one and does not always need to be answered as a question. If the inquiry was made to someone who had been ill it would be a different matter, and also in the case of friends meeting after a prolonged interval.

a prolonged interval.

Irish Rose, Griggs, Okla.—If you are writing a story you should most certainly use ink, or better yet have it typewritten as is done with practically all literary work nowadays. Those who pass judgment in editorial offices have neither the time nor the inclination to decipher strange handwriting. The usual size paper used is eight and one half by eleven inches, and a good quality can be purchased for about a dollar a ream. Write only on one side of the sheet.

Lonely One Mayberry Va.—If a young man asks.

Lonely One, Mayberry, Va.—If a young man asks permission to call on you at your home, and you wish him to do so, you can tell him that you will be very glad to see him when he comes. If you wish to refuse you can make some simple excuse, or else let him see in some manner that his attentions are unwelcome.

R. C. A. J., Roanoke, Va.—You may, if you wish, call up on the phone and say good by to a young man who is leaving your vicinity and cannot get to your home to see you before he leaves. But it would be better that he called you up. (2) You may be sure that if a young man who is away from you really cares for you, that he will write. If he does not, convention would be against your writing to "remind him."

ALL THESE FREE

COLUMBIA NOVELTY CO.
73 EAST BOSTON, MASS.

C. B. W., Kellum, N. C.—Either of the two forms you mention would be entirely proper ways of asking a young lady if you might take her home from church.

Patriotic, South Carolina.—Everyone loves a soldier nowadays, and we do not think there is any harm in your receiving and answering letters from two or three "nice soldier boys who write interesting stories," of camp life. You write an intelligent letter, and we think that you are wise enough to remember that you are but seventeen and that it is best to keep your correspondence entirely on a friendly plane. Neither would we frequent too much the junction near your house where the trains full of troops stop for a short time.

Hoosier, Petersburg, Ind.—It is certainly not good manners for a girl to powder her nose in public. (2) A girl may visit at the home of her flance's (not flance's as you have it) parents after she has become engaged.

come engaged.

Sunbeams, Greenville, Ohio.—We cannot tell you whether the young man that has paid attention to you for a year loves you or not. You should be the best judge of that and of what your answer should be if he asks you to marry him. We think that you should take into account your parents' feeling toward him, but we think that they should have a more valid objection to the young man than that he talks too much.

Heartbroken, Agatha, Ida.—You say you love this man who is ten years and two days older than you, but you do not say whether he loves you or not. Ten years would not be too much difference in ages for marriage. We cannot tell you how to make yourself more attractive to your men friends, beyond saying that you should be happy and natural in your manner and not let the man know that you think more of him that he does of you.

CARDS Albun er's and all other Kin Premiums. Star Bes given Free. No trash, OHIO CARD C

Pair Of Turkish Towels

Premium No. 7323 For Three

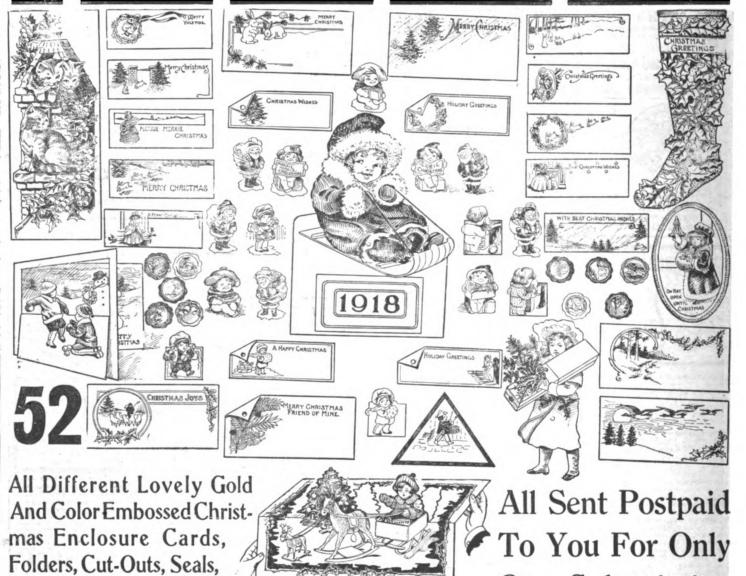

Subscriptions AFTER bathing there is nothing quite as fine as a good rurb down with a Turkish towel, in fact it is the best towel for all purposes, whether for the bathor guestroom or for all purposes, whether for the bathor guestroom or for or guestroom or for or guestroom or for everyday family use in the la vatory, in kitchen or pantry. They absorb the water much more readily than other to wells and the thick, he avy fleece-like surface imparts to the body a delightful feeling of warmth and well-being, exited in the law of the water much more readily than other to wells and the thick, he avy fleece-like surface imparts to the body a delightful feeling of warmth and well-being, exited in the water much more readily than other to wells and the thick, he avy fleece-like surface imparts to the body a delightful feeling of warmth and well-being, exited in the water much more readily than other to well and the body a delightful feeling of warmth and well-being, exited in the body a delightful feeling of the towell we offer her are genuine. Turkish towels—not the imitation kind—and are 17 inches wide and 36 inches low of which we will nake you a present of one pair of these fine Turkish towels upon too terms of the following special

Club Offer. For a club of three one-year subseach, we will send you one pair (2) of these towels free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 7323.

Address Company of the part of the stowels free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 7323.

Big Package Beautiful Christmas Novelties!

Also An Exquisite Christmas alendar For 1918! Calellual

Premium No. 7931

Stickers, Tags Etc.,

All the latest new style Christmas novelties, beautifully printed and embossed on superfine paper in gold, purple, crimson, holly-green and all the colors of the rainbow. The use of these dainty, appropriate emblems of holiday cheer is now almost universal—everyone realizes how much these refined little cards, tags, seals, stickers, etc. add to the value of the Christmas gift. Even though it may be only a little remembrance these bright colored tokens of joy and happiness show that loving thought has gone into it and care and pains have been taken with it and this knowledge changes the plainest, most inexpensive present into a gift well-nigh priceless.

The ordinary small town stores do not carry these strictly high-grade Christ mas novelty packages—they are to be secured only in the large cities and at a high price. So for the benefit of COMFORT readers we had this special assortment made up expressly for us by one of the largest and best known Christmas novelty manufacturers in America. And in order to give the greatest value possible we had them add to the assortment a most beautiful 1918 Christmas Calendar 4½ inches long, lithographed in no less than five colors on heavy white coated specially prepared paper. This Calendar alone is worth all that we ask you to send us for the whole collection—and you will say so too when Now let us tell you what this big assortment contains:

One Extra Large Colored and Holly Embossed "Christmas Stock—

One Extra Large Colored and Holly Embossed "Christmas Stocking" Enclosure Card.

Five Large Elegantly Embossed and Colored Christmas Enclosure

Five Large Eleganty Embossed and Colored Christmas Enclosure Cards.
Ten Medium Embossed and Colored and Decorated Christmas Tags.
Four Medium Colored and Decorated Christmas Tags.
One Extra Large Colored and Holly Embossed Christmas Book

Mark.
One Beautiful Extra Large Colored and Embossed Christmas
Novelty Cut-out Card.
Two Dainty Colored and Embossed Novelty Cut-out Christmas

Folders.

Ten Beautifully Colored and Embossed Santa Claus, Evergreen, Poinsettia, and Christmas Bells Gummed Seals.

One Special Large Oval Illustrated Gold Embossed and Colored Christmas Gummed Seal with the words "Do Not Open Until Christmas."

Five Novelty Santa Claus Cut-out Christmas Gummed Seals, Embossed in colors.

Ten Cute Novelty Children Cut-out Christmas Gummed Seals. One Artistic, Beautifully Embossed and Finished Christmas Calen-One Artistic, Be

One Subscription

dar for 1918.

All the Enclosure Cards, Tags, and Folders carry a cheery Christmas Greeting such as "Merry Christmas," With Best Christmas Wishes," "Christmas Greetings," "Merry Yuletide," "Christmas Joys," and others equally as pleasing and appropriate. These are to be tied to or enclosed inside your Christmas packages to bear a loving message with the gift. And all the gaily colored gummed Stamps and Scals you will use to seal and decorate the outside of your Christmas letters and packages as well. You will be surprised and delighted to see how much they add to the attractiveness of your gifts to say nothing of the fun in "doing them up."

And don't forget that in addition to all of these lovely cards, seals, tags, stickers, etc., we are also going to send an exquisitely embossed and multi-colored Christmas Calendar for 1918, a large handsome holly decorated Book Mark and two large Christmas Novelty Cut-out Folders which are as unique as they are pleasing. When you first look at one of them it is to all appearances a handsome Christmas Post Card and the other a very attractive four-page Booklet, when presto—a flip of the finger, and the startling transformation takes place, causing the figures and designs to stand out in bold relief, and in a life-like manner that is truly wonderful. These cute novelties are something entirely new this season and they make very attractive center-table or mantlepiece ornaments as they are large and stand without support.

This splendid collection will furnish your whole family with all the Holiday and stand without support.

This splendid collection will furnish your whole family with all the Holiday Gift Decorations needed for this Christmas and they will surely add to the pleasure of your giving and the gifts themselves will be all the more appreciated by the recipients. We purchased a large quantity of these Novelty Packages but even at that we fear we have not enough to go around so take no chances of being disappointed but send in your order at once. Also Christmas will be here almost before you are aware of it, and you want to make sure of receiving your package in time so that you can get your Christmas packages allready before Christmas Day.

We will send you this package of beautiful Christmas Novelties including the large Handsome Christmas Calendar for 1918 upon the terms of the following very liberal FREE OFFER For one one-year's subscription (not your own) to COM-FORT at 25 cents we will send you this big package of beautiful Christmas Novelties free by mail postpaid. Premium No. 7931. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Send Us Only 3 Cents

For These Three Beautiful Dressing Dolls With Nine Dresses And Nine Hats

Dolls With Nine Dresses And Nine Hats

CHILDREN are delighted with these beautiful new dressing dolls with their bright, happy faces and so many different changes of dresses and hats. For only three cents in money or stamps to pay for postage and labor, we will send you prepaid all three dolls with nine dresses or suits and nine hats, and also tell you how you can get absolutely free a whole set of doll furniture and a large beautiful doll house complete with yard, flowers, chimney and windows and doors that actually open and shut. Each of these dolls is over six inches tall, printed on thick heavy cardboard in many handsome lifelike colors and has three different dresses or suits and three different hats, so that you can dress and undress them as often as you please and get them ready for any and all occasions such as receptions, at homes, teas, evening parties, calling, shopping, outings, etc. Remember, three cents pay for all-and we will at the same time write and tell you how you can also get a splendid doll house and a complete housekeeping set of furniture for your three dollies absolutely free. This offer good in United States only.

Address COMFORT, Dept. D. Augusta, Maine.

Address COMFORT, Dept. D. Augusta, Maine.

For A Club Of Two

VOU simply press down on top of "doggy's" head and he opens his mouth and barks right out loud. And not only does he bark like a real dog but he looks like one. With his alert sparkling eyes, loug drooping ears, and upturned inquisitive nose he is a perfect likeness of a cute little pup. In color he is pure white with brown spots. His body, head and legs are made of practically indestructible material covered with soft thick felt; the marvelous mechanism in the throat that produces the bark is so constructed that it will not easily get out of order.

Those wonderful barking dogs come from Japan where they make some of the finest mechanical toys in the world. In spite of the war we managed to import a limited quantity of them and while they last we are going to send them free to COMFORT homes where there are little boys and girls. Doggy looks so lifelike and his sharp yelping bark sounds so natural we know he will surely delight the children more than anything else you could possibly get for them. We will send you this fine barking dog exactly as illustrated and described free npon the terms of the following special

Club Offer: COMFORT at 26 cents each or one club Offer: For two one-year subscriptions to Club Offer: For two one-year subscriptions to three-year subscription (not your own) at 50 cents we will send you this cute nevelty, Barking Dog free by parcel post prepaid. Premium No. 7892.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

For A Club Of Three

HERE is the girl who does not want one of these handsome and stylish bracelets? Set with a perfectly colored imitation gem denoting the month of your birth—with two tiny flashing white solitaires nestling in the dainty fligred design of gold—all of your friends will exclaim "My, what a beautiful braceleti" the minute they see it. Filled with enough real gold to give it lasting wearing qualities, yet it feels light as a feather when worn. And you are assured of a perfect fit because it is self-adjusting. It will fit amy size wrist. Here is a list of the twelve different birthstones and the month represented by each: No. 7413, January, Garnet: No. 7423, February, Amethyst: No. 7423, March, Bloodstone: No. 7443, April, Diamond; No. 7433, March, Bloodstone: No. 7463, June, Agate; No. 7473, July, Ruby; No. 7483, August, Sardonyx; No. 7493, September, Sapphire: No. 7503, October, Opal; No. 7513, November, Topaz; No. 7523, December, Turquoise.

You can earn one of these handsome gold-filled birthstone bracelets free by doing us a small favor as explained in the following offer. When you send for it be sure to mention number of birthstone wanted.

CLUB OFFER. For three one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 28.

CLUB OFFER. For three one-year subscrip-cents each we will send you one of these bracelets free by parcel post prepaid. Be sure to give us the number of stone wanted.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Children's Happy Hour

Copyright, 1917, by W. H. Ganactt, Publisher, Inc.

HIS is to be a very busy month for Letty for, you know, school opens in a few days and she is going to start. Her mamma has been teaching her the "a, b, c's" and Letty knows them pretty well, but my goodness, there are learn also. Every pupil has to study hard or else be known as a "dunce," Our little friend has longed to go to school ever since she was a wee baby, but now that the first day is near, she is getting frightened and fust wishes it was over. You can't blame her either for even grown folks hate to do new things, but all will be well if she minds the teacher's rule.

Did I tell you of the splendid time she had visiting at her Aunt Beck's? No? That's strange. You see, her aunt lives in a big city, where street cars run right by the door, and Letty visited there all summer. The first night everything was so noisy and the bed felt so funny that she couldn't sleep a wink. It seemed as though morning would never come but at last daylight did appear and she quietly arose and dressed herself. Not another soul was stirring in the house so she just sat down and looked out the window. One glance nearly caused her to fall over in a faint, for right there in her aunt's front yard, was a great big elephant. Letty wanted to severable the role and strange to see the running front yard, was a great big elephant. Letty wanted to severable the couldn't sleep a wink. It seemed as though morning would never come but at last daylight did appear and she quietly arose and dressed herself. Not another soul was stirring in the house so she just sat down and looked out the window. One glance nearly caused her to fall over in a faint, for right there in her aunt's front yard, was a great big elephant. Letty wanted to scream but she couldn't. Her lips moved but no voice would come. The window was up a little bit and, when she hastily reached over to close it, her hand struck a vase of flowers and it felt clattering to the ground, right near the awful beast's head. Hor

Cut-Out Doll Directions

Paste the whole picture on smooth cardboard and color them with crayons, chalk or water and rub with hands from the center towards the edges to press out all wrinkles. Use boiled flour paste. When neatly pasted put it in a big book for at least one day or night to dry. Next cut out each figure, hat and suit with scissors right angles.

to the fever that would make him drain his water-jug before the morning, but each and all of them better than seeing, as he did now, how she would not meet his eyes. But the last person who should know he cared was Levallion's wife.

"You will tell Levallion"—after all, he was not as callous, or, perhaps, as brave, as she; he could not say "your husband"—"that I had no idea I should not find him here. Perhaps he will look me up in town."

"Is that all?" she said stupidly, seeing only how very ill he looked as he stood before her.

"All!" surprised. "Yes, I wanted to thank him; it was through him I got to the front."

"I thought." She was faltering, and she hated herself.

You

The Girl He Loved

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 19.)
to the fever that would make him drain his water-jug before the morning, but each and all of them better than seeing, as he did now, how she would not meet his eyes. But the last person who should know he cared was Levallion's wife. "You will tell Levallion"—after all, he was not as callous, or, perhaps, as brave, as she; he could not say "your husband"—"that I had no idea I should not find him here. Perhaps he will look me up in town."

"Is that all?" she said stupidly, seeing only how very ill he looked as he stood before her. "All?" surprised. "Yes, I wanted to thank him; it was through him I got to the front."

"It hought." She was faltering, and she hated herself.

"Do you know," she said with sudden, vicious cruelty, "that you have never congratulated me on my marriage?" and then could have died of shame, for he was answering her as a man does who is born, not made, a gentleman.

"It out the Loved (Continued) and the weight that was too heavy for his wife's strong young arms and laid his cousin on the grass.

"The returned hero is not out of the grave-yard yet!" he remarked. "Let him lie, Ravenel, and ring for the servants."

To be continued.

Xmas Tree Outfit-$3

Play Safe-Light Your Tree Electrically Candles are dangerous. Don't turn your Christmas tree into a tragedy. Xmas tree electric lights keep your tree lighted with perfect safety and less expense than candles—Seud $3.00 and we will mail postpaid a complete Xmas tree outfit consisting of 8 variously colored tungsten lamps with 16 ft. Sil koline wire attachment plug that will fit any socket in your home.

line wire attachment plug that will fit any socket in your home.

If house is not wired, we can furnish a similar outfit to be used with batteries, same price. Battery box including 3 long-lasting batteries and connectors $1.00 extra.

Outfit will last allifetime—approved by insurance companies, used by churches, schools and institutions.

Order as many as you want. Specify whether for use on electric circuit or batteries. Send check, post office or express money order.

LUMINO ELECTRIC COMPANY
239-M Oliver Bldg. Pittsburgh, PaSend for catalogue of other Lumino Products.

DOLL HOUSE And 2 Dolls REE

with 10 complete suits and hats. Beautiful bright col-ors. Given for selling only 12 sets of Colored Cards and Vines Constitute 10 etc. a set Mmas Novelties at 10 cts. a set. BLUINE MFG. CO., 303 Mill St., Concord Jet., Mass.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM A toilet preparation of merit. Helps to eradicate dandruff. For Restoring Color and uty to Gray and Faded Hair, 50c. and $1.00 at druggists.

BIRTH STONE RINGS FOLL 14K Gold filled, guaranteed to give full satisfaction, with stone for any month, to introduce our catalogue. Send 12c to cover cost of advertising and malling. Send size Engled-weity Co., Dept. 50, East Boston, Muss.

Read The Whole Story Now!

THE Girl He Loved" will hold you entranced to the very end. It is a wonderto the very end. It is a wonderful story by a wonderful writer.
Regular installments will appear in Comport each month
but you needn't wait inorder to get the whole story as we will give you free the complete story in book form sphendidly printed in a handsome celored paper bound edition. Send us only one one-year subscription
(not your own) to Comport at 26 cents and we will send you a copy of the book free by mail postpaid. Don't wait for the installments. Read the whole story now by accepting this offer at once.

Fine Shaggy Teddy Bear

EVERY little boy and girl wants a Teddy Bear and here is an opportunity for every father or mother who reads COMFORT to get one without expense. "Teddy" looks exactly as you see him in the picture above. He is a shaggy fellow, 10 inches tail, made of brown plush, paws lined with felt, carefully stitched and finished and his head, arms and legs are jointed in such a manner that you can piace him in almost any position. He will stand up, sit up, stand on his head, go on all four feet, in fact, you can make him assume all kinds of positions that are so comical and Hielike that it makes the children "cream with delight just to look at him. "Teddy" is so well made that no matter how roughly he is handled he cannot become broken and with ordinary care should last for years. We will send you "Teddy" free if you will accept the following special

Club Offer. For four one-year subscriptions to COMPORT at 25 cents each, we will send you this Teddy Bear free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 7514.

Address COMPORT, Augusta, Maine.

Boys! Girls! Look—See Who Is Here! "Comfort They Want ıne TO Play

American Made Unbreakable Dolls With Life-like Indestructible Composition Heads!

Den't they look as if they were out for a good time? And wouldn't you like to have them to play with? The little boy's name is Johnnie, his sister's name is Josie and they make the most charming pair of twin doils you ever saw. They are entirely different from the ordinary doil havalife-like head made of an indestructible composition, a new style cloth body and the latest improved jointed arms and legs which never get out of order. Neither doll cam be broken because both head and body are indestructible. They are over a foot tall with rosy cheeks and blue eyes and dressed just as you see them in the picture. Josie has on a cute red-and-white checked dress with a handsome blue sash and trimmed with lace around the neck. Johnnie is dressed in pretty blue-and-white checked dress with a lace trimming and blue beit. You can dress and undress these dolls as often as you please, make them stand up or sit down or bend over and by moving their arms and legs around in different positions you can get them to look exactly as if they were walking, running, stretching out their arms, waving their hands, in fact they will cut up most amy antic that might be expected of a real live healthy two-year-old baby boy or girl. They look so life-like in their baby elothes with their happy smiling faces you would almost think they were alive and ready to talk to you in that baby language so dear to the heart of every little doll mother. We are sure no little boy or girl ever had a doll that could furnish quite so much real satisfaction and enjoyment as either one of these two handsome twins. You may have either doll—vour and the set we handsome twins. quite so much real satisfaction and enjoyment as either these two handsome twins. You may have either one or these two handsome twins. You may have either doll—your choice of either Josie or Johnnie—or both of them free as a COMFORT premium as we have bought a quantity of them to be distributed in this manner. Remember these are real American made unbreakable dolls—not paper "cut-outs" or "rag" dolls—with a strong durable stuffed cloth body, jointed arms and legs and an indestructible composition head that will not break. They will last a long time.

Premium No. 7355 We Will Give You Both Dolls!

This Is "Josie"

Premium No. 7345

FOR eight one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25c F each, we will send you both dolls—Josle and Johnnies—free by parcel poot prepaid, (Premium No. 7368). Or for five one-year subscriptions at 25 cents each we will send you one doll—your choice of Josle (Premium No. 7365), or Johnuie (Premium No. 7355), or Johnuie (Premium No. 7355), the by parcel post prepaid. When ordering be sure to give the premium number of doll or dolls wanted.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

This Is "Johnnie"

The Family Doctor

So many inquiries are received from COMFORT subscribers concerning the health of the family that this column will be devoted to unswering them. The remedies and advice here given are intended only for simple cases; serious cases should be addressed to physicians, not to us.

Address The Family Doctor, COMFORT, Augusta,

NOTICE.—As the privileges of this and all other departments of COMFORT are for subscribers only, no attention will be given any inquiry which does not bear the writer's iscreet name and address. Initials only, or a fictitieus tame, if requested, will appear in the published answer, but the inquiry must invariably be signed by the writer's rue name.

A. B., Falmouth, Ky.—You are suffering from some form of indigestion with the formation of gas. The gas reacts on the heart by pressure and you have the shortness of breath complained of. You must go back to first principles and eat sparingly and often. Strained out-meal, which has been cooked for hours, whole wheat biscuit thinned with skimmed milk, green vegetables, fruits of the orange type, and most of the cereals in which has been mixed ordinary bran, about a tablespoonful to the helping, should help your stomach to digest and also limit the formation of gas. If possible you should eat sparingly five or six times a day instead of three times a day. Of course pastry of any kind, candies and all sweets should be avoided. Drink plenty of good spring water and in this way flush the kidneys. You are apparently exercising sufficiently—but the out-of-door life is indicated in your case as you are gaining in flesh, but evidently not in muscle. A cold douche to the spine, just before you retire, followed by a brisk general massage, would stimulate the peripheral circulation and probably limit your sleeplessness.

Miss I. W., Paris, III.—Eczema of any form—and the peripheral circulation and probably limit your sleeplessness.

Miss I. W., Paris, Ill.—Eczema of any form—and there are many—is one of the worst forms of skin disease to conquer or even help. The doctor's advice to keep the hands out of dish-water was good advice. No form of treatment will help you if you do not follow this advice. Eczema in general is of rheumatic origin and requires about the same treatment as to diet, hygiene and medication. If not too debilitated a diet of milk—skimmed milk—with boiled rice only, is indicated in the average case. This diet should be adhered to for two or three weeks at a time. After a course of diet along these lines there may be added green vegetables, coarse cereals combined with some form of bran and fruits. Frequent bathing is indicated, using in the bath some simple alkall, as blearbonate of soda. Exercise in the open is always beneficial, as well as the drinking of at least two quarts of water daily. Lassar's paste in a strength adapted to the given case is very beneficial as a local remedy. This remedy, however, must be prescribed by a physician.

M. M. M. G., North Branch, Minn.—You may have latered as freezeway the time of the covery.

M. M. G., North Branch, Minn.—You may have injured or fractured the tip of the coccyx, when you fell on the cement floor. This is probable and of course will require surgical treatment. You may also have a uterine displacement, which also requires medical aid. You should consult a good physician and ascertain the exact condition and act on his advice.

Miss L. P. A. Beyler, Mo.—You undoubtedly re-certain the exact condition and act on his advice.

Miss L. P. A., Bevier, Mo.—You undoubtedly refer to arthritis deformans, so-called. This condition is almost incurable, certainly the hope of complete recovery is not to be thought of or encouraged in any case. The latest and possibly the best treatment is the introduction of radium intra-veinously. Radium water must also be drunk at the same time. Diet of course is essential as well as the drinking of large quantities of water. The diet indicated has many times been repeated in Comport and may be referred to under the general heading of an anti-rheumatic diet. The local application of o.l of winter-green is also useful.

M. S., Arcadi, S. Dak, "There are many remedies for nseful.

M. S., Arcadi, S. Dak. —There are many remedies for the weakness referred to. One of the best is some form of stryphnia. Would advise you also to consult some surgeon and have the condition of the prostate gland looked into. The introduction of a cold sound would also help you. Consult some local surgeon and he, no doubt will help, if not absolutely cure you.

F. J. M., Matheson, Colo.—If you cannot consult a good ear specialist, use some warm liquid vaseline in the deaf ear—never use olive oil, or any oil that becomes rancid, for this purpose. After you have used the vaseline for a few days, get an ear syringe and syringe out the ear with hot water. In this way you will dislodge any hardened wax that may possibly be causing your trouble.

Mrs. B. C. Batavia, New York—Blooding piles

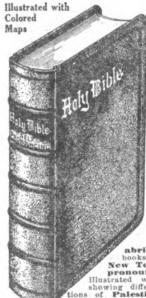

Mrs. R. C., Batavia, New York.—Bleeding piles are best cured by the use of the clamp and cautery. This of course means a slight operation, but it will relieve your condition permanently.

reneve your condition permanently.

S. S., St. Vincent, Cal.—May be you have a slight stricture of the urethra, or may be your urine is too acid and this causes your frequent urination. Also you may have an enlarged gland near the neck of the bladder-known as the prostate gland. In any case you should consult a doctor and get at the true condition. Always drink plenty of water, in any case.

D. R., Palo Pinto, Texas.—There is no cure for hay fever. Many cases are relieved by local treatment, and if there is any nasal obstruction due to enlarged turbinates or deviation of the septum an

Self-Pronouncing Bible

Given

For A Club Of Four

SMALL enough to be carried conveniently in the hand or in pocket or hand bag, yet complete and unabridged containing full books of both the Old and New Testaments, is self-pronouncing and handsomely illustrated with colored maps showing different interesting portions of Palestine and surrounding country. It is 5½ inches long, 3½ inches leatherette and contains over a thousand pages finished with round corners and red edges. The name "Holy Bible" is stamped in gold on back and front cover. This is an unequalled opportunity for Sunday School workers, teachers, in fact all Bible students at home or in church to secure a Bible without cost and we feel that among COMPORT'S readers there must be thousands who have been waiting for us to make just such an offer as this. Remember that you are not going to receive a cheap, paper-bound book, but a splendidly made Bible, finely printed, handsomely and durably bound, and absolutely refined and perfect in every detail. We will send to any address this self-pronouncing Bible exactly as illustrated and described upon the terms of the following special Club Offer. For four one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each we will operation is indicated. In selected cases operation less I en curative. One of the best means of getting rid of hay-fever is, at the onset, removal to the seashore or mountains. The best location can only be determined by actual trial.

Club Offer. For four one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each we will send you this Bible free by mail postpaid. Premium No. 7444. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Mrs. C. E. C., Hopkinton, N. H.—The noise in your car is no doubt due to some catarrhal condition of the middle car. You should have an ear specialist examine your nose and throat, and see if the tube running from the middle car to the throat is not obstructed. In many cases one or two treatments will suffice and relieve not only the noise in the ear, but the dizziness as well.

Ine dizziness as well.

S. M. S., Crystal Springs, Florida.—Prickly heat is a disease of the sweat glands. Nervous prostration, severe dyspepsia and general debility, seem to predispose to this condition. It follows, of course, that the patient should be kept as cool as possible, eat green vegetables—dispensing with all meats and condiments for the time being. Drink freely of water, especially of alkaline waters. Absolute rest is indicated. Locally with boric acid powder.

Mrs. R. L. B. Buckinshen, Colon Devices of the state of the

Mrs. R. L. B., Buckingham, Colo.—Prolapsed rectum in the very young if properly managed, will be relieved or cured by the growth of the child. For the constipation one should use enemas, or suppositories of glycerine. Before use, of course the prolapse should be restored. If the natural growth does not cure, it may be necessary to operate.

L. M. S., Big Falls, Minn.—Nervous dyspepsia is hardly ever cured by the use of medicine. Your hot water in the morning is all right, but good exercise in the open, with suitable food of the simplest kind—buttermilk, various cereals, raw eggs, etc., are indicated. If possible change your mental attitude by getting interested in some useful occupation, which will keep your mind employed and, in the end, bodily tired, so you will have refreshing sleep.

Mrs. H. M., Ford City, Pa.—You have no doubt a serious condition of the cornea and, may be iris, of your eye. You should consult an eye specialist at once, and not experiment in the way you have been doing. Conditions, such as you describe, are always serious and must not be neglected.

M. B. B., Jacksonville, Ark.—Your trouble is undoubtedly pigmentation of the skin, caused in most cases by nervousness or worry. Cold douches to the spine with open air exercises will probably cure you.

Mrs. C. L. S., Burlington, Wash.—The general swelling that you describe must be due to some lesion of your kidneys or heart. You should consult a good general practitioner and have him if possible, locate your trouble. You should have your blood pressure taken also, to determine the condition of your arterial and vascular system. Your age and weight, would indicate that you may have hardening of the arteries as well as consequent kidney disease.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.—Adv.

What 15c Will You from Nation's Capital Washington, the home of the Pathfinder, is the The little matter of 15c in stample of cold will bring you the Pathfinder The little matter of 15c in stample of cold will bring you the Pathfinder

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 21.) Comfort Postal Requests

How to Get a Lot of Souvenir Postals Free Exchanging Souvenir Post Cards is no longer a fad but a custom as firmly established as letter writing, and more convenient and pleasing. By entering this Exchange list you are enabled to accumulate cards from every state in the Union and Foreign Countries. To secure the appearance of your name in the Exchange List it is necessary to send a club of two one-year 25-cent subscriptions to COMFORT and fifty cants to pay for same. We will send you a very fine Fifty Card Album for Post Cards, and your name will appear in the next available issue of COMFORT, and you will be expected to return Cards for all received by you.

Mehill Snider, Cheadle, Mont. Miss Cora Macon, West Middletown, R. R. 1, Ohio. Inger Heide, Kenosha, R. R. 2, Box 119, Wis. Miss Tessie Spitser, Goshen, R. R. 1, N. Y. P. N., Marengo, L. Box, 213, Ind. Miss Hazel Fox, Orrin, R. R. 1, N. Dak. Lester Davidson, Foosland, R. R. 39, Ill., is unable to answer letters and return cards received every day, as he is in the Canadian army.

Missing Relatives and Friends

We shall only require you to get a small club of subscribers to GOM FORT for each request printed; so in sending your notice for insertion in the Missing Relatives' column, include a club of three one-year 25-cent subscriptions, or if you are stready a paid-in-advance subscriber, send only two one-year 25-cent subscriptions. This amount limits the notice to twenty-two words, making three lines; if longer notice is required, send two additional 25-cent one-year subscriptions yearly for every seven words.

Large List, Dialogs, Entertainments, PLAYS Catalogue Free Entertainments, PLAYS T. S. DENISON & CO., Dept. 6 Chicago, IK.

THIS AIR RIFLE SERE for selling 15 sets of Colored Cards and Xmas Novelties at 10 cents a set. Rifles first class in every way. When sold return our $1.50 and we every way. When sold return our $1.50 and we send rife. Bluine Mig. Co. 301 Mill 37., COMCORD JCT., MASS.

Comfort Sisters' Corner Five Wheel Chairs in November 441 is COMFORT'S Total to Date

The five November wheel chairs go to the following shut-ins. The figures after their names indicate the number of subscriptions sent in by them or by their friends in their behalf.

Elvis Willfert Williams, Camas, Washington, 200; Mrs. Laura Carroll, Fruitland, Tenn., 170; Callie Williams, Gainesville, Ark., 125; Annie Jack, Engle-wood, Tenn., 119; Mrs. Donie McCutchen, R. R. 1, Paden, Miss., 117.

Elvis Williams, age seven years, is a helpless ripple. His condition is caused by spinal trouble ripple. from which he has been a patient sufferer since infancy. Although he can not use his hands to roll his chair it will be a great comfort to him and a help to his mother in caring for him.

Mrs. Laura Carroll, age 56, has been helplessly crippled in her lower limbs the past five years from rheumatism of long standing. She is a widow de-pendent on her two young daughters for support. Mrs. Brannum, who with the help of other neighbors has got most of the subscriptions for Mrs. Carroll, writes that they are very anxious to obtain the chair for her this month.

Callie Williams, age eight years, was stricken with infantile paralysis at the age of 13 months. She has no use of either foot, so the only way she can get about is by crawling on hands and knees.

Annie Jack, age 10 years, is another victim of infantile paralysis and has never been able to walk.

Mrs. Donie McCutchen, age 38, has no use of her lower limbs, caused by disease of the nerves, and has not been able to walk the last three years. She has a husband and one child.

While this country is being canvassed daily to raise funds in aid of the war sufferers in Europe remember that we have among us thousands of poor cripples who are suffering from much needed wheel chairs, and don't neglect the call of charity at home. It costs you nothing but a little of your spare time to help these unfortunates by getting COMFORT subscriptions in aid of our Wheel-Chair Club. Make a practical application of the Christmas spirit in this way, and may you be abundantly blessed for doing

Sincerely yours,

W. H. GANNETT, Publisher of COMFORT.

P. S. For the information of our many new subscribers let me explain that for each and every 200 one-year subscriptions to COMFORT, at 25 cents each, sent in either singly or in clubs by persons who direct that they are to be credited to COMFORT'S MHEEL-CHAIR CLUB instead of claiming the premiums to which they would be entitled, I give a FIRST-CLASS INVALID WHEEL CHAIR to some needy crippled Shut-in and pay like freight, los. It is a large and expensive premium for me to give for that number of subscribers, but I am always glad to do my part a little laster each month than you do yours. Any shut-in who has friends to help him gat subscriptions can obtain a wheel chair free. Write me for information.

COMFORT Wheel Chair Gives Her Lots of Pleasure

Dear Mr. Gannett:

I received my wheel chair in good condition last Saturday and am certainly pleased with it. I can go all over the house now in my wheel chair. I used to have to sit in a common chair and be pushed.
Now I can move about myself. I shall have my picture taken and will send you one. I want to send one to each of my friends who helped get the subscriptions for my chair. I am very thankful to them and to you, as the chair will give me lots of pleasure.
Yours respectfully, Bertha Luella Stewart.

COMFORT Wheel Chair a Great Help to Mother in Caring for Crippled Boy

DEAR MR. GANNETT:
We want to thank you and our friends for the wheel chair for our little boy, Walter. It is a great help to me in taking care of him, as he is so large to carry about. It certainly is fine for a cripple. Will close with many thanks.

MR. and MRS. C. E. SLAYBAUGH.

Wheel Chair a Lot of Comfort to Little Girl Cripple

FITZPATRICK, GA.

We received Dollie's wheel chair today in fine shape and we are well pleased with it. I wish to thank you and all wao helped me get it. It will be a lot of comfort to her. Your friend, MARY E. LANIER.

Says Wheel Chair is Pretty Fine

DANIELSVILLE, R. R. 2, GA.

DEAR MR. GANNETT: DEAR MR. GANNETT:

I received the wheel chair for my little girl and it is pretty nne. I am well pleased with it. I thank you and all my friends who helped me to get it. The chair is a great help to me and a pleasure to her. From Fannie May Hix's mamma,

SARAH HIX.

COMFORT'S Roll of Honor

The Roll of Honor comprises the names of those who have sent five or more subscriptions to credit of the Wheel-Chair Club during the month previous. Following each name is the number of subscriptions sent.

lowing each name is the number of subscriptions sent,

Mrs. Ed. Williams, Wash., for Elvis Willfert Williams, 200; Etta Clark, Ala., for Susie Harbin, 100;

Jim S. Gardner, Texas, for own wheel chair, 76; Mrs.

L. Brannum, Tenn., for Mrs. Laura Carroll, 60; Mrs.

L. Conat, Minn., for Mrs. Laura Carroll, 60; Mrs.

Pollie Spinks, La., for Gertrade Robinet, 51; Mrs. Roy.

L. Conat, Minn., for Mrs. Lawrence Olsen, 47; Mrs. P.

M. Adams, Ga., for Alma Adams, 32; Mrs. J. M.

Baker, Ga., for Florine Weldon, 30; Mrs. J. M.

Baker, Ga., for Florine Weldon, 30; Mrs. R. W.

Phillips, New Mexico, for Bernie Phillips, 27; Roy

Smith, Okla., for O. L. Smith, 26; Mrs. Janne Scott,

Mich., for Lyle B. Gibson, 24; Mrs. Allie Walker, Ky.,

for Marie Wallace, 23; Lilia Lane, Texas, for Harlon

Lane, 21; Kate Timmons, Ky., for Dixie Marie Wal lace, 20; Mrs. Mary Cline, Texas, for Harlon Lane,

20; Mrs. Ora Smith, La., for Carlo, Belle McGraw, 20;

Mrs. John Kravik, Wash., for Alvin Corbit, 15; Mrs.

J. P. Kennedy, La., for Clifford Kennedy, 13; W. F.

Wilson, Ala., for Lovie Belle Taylor, 12; Mrs. Ed.

Stillwell, Texas, for Howard E. Stillwell, 12; Mrs.

Jerry Jansen, Ill., for Carl G. Jansen, 10; Mrs. Mattie

Wall, Tenn., for Mrs. Laura Carroll, 10; Mrs. Ollie

Sisk, Texas, for Izola Sisk, 10; Mae L. Burkett, Ill.,

for Willie Price, 9; Mrs. A. B. Gardner, Pa., for General, 8; Willie Price, 9; Mrs. A. B. Gardner, Pa., for General, 8; Willie Price, 9; Mrs. C., for own wheel chair, 8;

Mrs. S. M. Hunnicutt, N. C., for Hazel Hunnicutt, 7;

C. R. Pace, Okla., for Garnett Pace, 6; Mrs. Coa. J.

Betty, Nevada, for Garnett Pace, 6; Mrs. Coa. J.

Prest, Miss., for General, 5; Atona Corbit, Wash., for

Alvin Corbit, 5; Mrs. Fanny Land, Nebr., for Willie

Price, 5; Mabel Foster, Miss., for General, 5.

What Shall I Give Them For Christmas?

OW MANY TIMES do you ask yourself that question as the holidays draw near and you are making up your list of those whom you wish to remember with some appropriate yet inexpensive Xmas gift?

Oftentimes you find it almost impossible to decide—it even becomes a source of downright worry—because all of us like to feel that the presents we give are something that will be actually needed and appreciated by the recipients.

Why not let us help you solve at least one of your Christmas problems this year? We believe we know of one present that will bring more pleasant and more frequent reminders to your friends than almost anything else you could buy—and that is

A One-Year's Subscription To Comfort

Here is the one gift that pleases everybody—a gift that will become a cheery, welcome reminder of you month after month for an entire year-and at so little expense you will not notice it at all. Simply send us 25 cents and the name and address of the friend you wish to remember written on the coupon below and we will enter the subscription for one full year to commence with our Christmas number and

A Beautiful Christmas Presentation Card

so that both paper and card will reach your friend at about the same time. The card is beautifully colored and embossed with a dainty appropriate Christmas design and verse on one side and on the other side is a specially printed announcement of the gift and a space left for your name as the giver which we will fill in ourselves before the card is mailed.

Isn't this a splendid idea? Surely among all your friends there is someone who will appreciate and enjoy such an interesting magazine as COMFORT and who will think of you gratefully every time the carrier leaves it at the door.

Better send us your friend's name and the money now—it's none too early to avoid the Christmas rush-and you will have at least one present less to think about because we will attend to all the details. After you mail the coupon and money you can dismiss the matter from your mind as we will take good care of your order and mail both the paper and the handsome Christmas Presentation Card properly filled out with your name as the giver at precisely the right time.

MAIL THIS COUPON TODAY

"COMFORT FOR CHRISTMAS" COUPON 1917.

Publisher COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Dear Sir: As a Christmas present from me please send COMFORT for one year to the following address, also the Christmas Presentation Card properly filled out with my name. I enclose 25 cents to pay for same.

My Friend's Name... Street & No. R. F. D. No...... Box No..... Post Office State.

(Be Sure To Write Your Own Name And Address Below) My Name is -

Street & No......

If you wish to make a present of COMFORT to more than one friend write the full names and addresses on a separate sheet of paper and pin this coupon to it. BE SURE TO ENCLOSE 25 CENTS FOR EACH NAME SENT.

The Emporium of Bargains and Opportunities

Pithy Little Advertisements that are Interesting, Instructive and Profitable to Read, for they put you wise to the newest and best in the market and keep you in touch with the world's progress.

AGENTS WANTED

Agents - Steady Income Large manufac-turer of Handkerchiefs and Dress Goods, etc., wishes representative in each locality. Pac-tory to consumer. Big profits, honest goods. Whole or spare time. Credit given. Address Freeport Mfg. Co.,60 Main St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Agents-Make a Dollar an Hour, Sell Mendets, a patent patch for instantia Mendets, a patent patch for instantly mending leaks in all utensils. Sample package free. Collette Mfg. Co., Dept. 452-B, Amsterdam, N.Y.

Do You Want To Travel At Our Expense? We want good men and women for traveling general agents. Must have fair education and good references. Will make contract for three months, six months or year at salary $22.50 per week and necessary expenses. Can assign most any territory desired. For full particulars address George G. Clows Company, Philadelphia, Pa., Dept. 4-F.

Remnant Store, 1510 G-Vine, Cincinnati O. Greatest Dry Goods bargains on earth Agents wanted for New, Profitable Business.

Agents $60 a week to travel by Automobile and introduce our 300 candle power coal-oil lantern. Write for particulars of our free auto offer. Thomas Co., 819 North St., Dayton, Ohio.

We Start You In Business, furnishing everything; men and women, $30 to $200 weekly operating our "New System Candy Factories". Book free. William Ragsdale, East Orange, N.J.

Agents Profits—Our plan bests anything ever before offered. Goods practically sell themselves. "Horoco," 131 Locust, St. Louis, Mo. Large Manufacturer wants agents to sell shirts, underwear, hosiery, dresses, waists, skirts, direct to homes. Write for free samples. Madison Mills, 503 Broadway, New York City.

1917's Greatest Sensation! 11-piece toilet goods combination seiling like blazes at $1.00 with $1.00 Carving Set Pree. Everytody buys. Engle's profit first week $1.00. Great crew proposition. Pierce Co., 505 Pierce Eldg., Chicago.

Agents $40 a week, New, Patented, automatic wardrobe. No nails, no screws. No competition. Demonstrate and sale is made. Dozen can be carried. Write quick for sample. Thomas Mfg. Co., 2519 North St., Dayton, Ohio.

We Start You without a Dollar. Soaps, Ex-tracts, Perfumes—ToiletGoods. Experience un-necessary. CarnationCo., 31 So. Main, St. Louis.

Agents. Sell rich looking 36x68 imported Rugs, $1 each; Carter, Tenn., sold 115 in 4 days, profit $57; you can do same. Write for sample offer selling plan; exclusive territory. Sample rug by parcel post prepaid 38c. E. Condon, Importer, Stonington, Maine.

Gas Fire In Coal Stoves from coal-oil; cheaper than coal; agents bonanza. Wonder Burner Co., Dept. C. Columbus, Ohio.

233% Profit selling Jubilee Spark Intensifiers to auto owners, garages, Banishes spark plug trouble. Sells like wildfire. Exclusive territory. Write quick, Jubilee Mfg. Co., Dept. K-1, Omaha, Nebr.

Every Home On Farm, In Small Town or Suburb needs and will buy the wonderful Aladdin kerosene (coal-oil) Mantle Lamp, Five times as bright as electric. Tested and recommended by Government and 34 leading Universities. Awarded Gold Medal. One Farmer cleared over $500 in six weeks. Hundreds with rigs or autos earning $100 to $309 per month. No Capital Required: We Furnish Goods On Time. Write quick for distributor's proposition and lamp for free trial. Mantle Lamp Co., 508 Aladdin Bidg. Chicago, Ill.

Agents-200% Profit. Wonderful little article. Something new; sells like wildfre. Carry right in pocket. Write at once for free sample. E. M. Feltman, Mgr., 5216 3rd St., Cincinnati, O.

Agents—Butter 4c a pound. Produced by the Pilot Butter Maker. Enormous money saving investment. Housewives delighted. Bager buyers. Wild excitement wherever demonstrated. Demand enormous. Outfit free to workers. Act quick. Pilot Butter Maker Company, Desk 72, Marshall, Mich.

Hosiery and Underwear Manufacturer offers permanent position supplying regular customers at mill prices in home town. $50.00 to $100.00 monthly. All or spare time. Credit, G. Parker Mills, 2733 No. 12th St., Phila., Pa.

Would $150 Monthly as General Agent for $150,000 corporation and a Ford auto of your own, introducing Stock and Poultry rem-edies, Dips, Disinfectants, Sanitary Products interest you? Then address Royoleum Co-Operative Mfg. Co., Dept. 28, Monticello, Ind.

Agents $40 a Week selling guaranteed hosiery. For men, women and children. Must wear 12 months or replaced free. Agents hav-ing wonderful success. Thomas MTg., Co., 2219 North St., Dayton, Ohio.

Agents—Pair Silk Hose Free, State size & color. Beautiful line direct from mill. Good profits. Agents wanted. Write today. Triple-wear Mills, Dept.G,720 Chestnut St., Phila.,Pa.

"Washwhite" makes repeat orders nd big profits. Catchy sales plan. Free Samand big profits. Catchy sales plan. Free ples. Nacma, 21-D, 20 W. Lake, Chicago.

We Pay $36 A Week And Expenses men with rigs to introduce neultre to men with rigs to introduce poultry com-pound. Year's contract. Imperial Mfg. Co., Dept. 9, Parsons, Kans.

Agents: Big Hit: Our 5-Piece Aluminum Set is all the rage. Cheaper than Enamel Ware. Sells like wildfire. Guaranteed 20 Years. Retail value $5.00. You sell housewives for only $1.98. Biggest seller of the age. 9 sure sales out of every 10 shown. Others cleaning up $10.00 to $20.00 a day. Answer this quick to secure your territory. Div. E. X. 5. American Aluminum Mfg. Co. Lemont, Ill.

Free Sample Case Offer. Sell money saving food, household products. Earn $25 to $35 weekly. Enormous profits—repeat orders—steady work. Established 1888. Crofts & Reed Co., Dept. C-262, Chicago.

Photo Pillow Tops, Portraits, Frames, Sheet Pictures, Medallions, Patriotic Pictures, Pennants. Rejects credited. Prompt ship-ments; samples & cat. free to agents. 30 days credit. Jas.C.Bailey Co., Desk K, Chicago, Ill.

Men and Women Make $35 or more weekly selling Sanitary Brushes for every household use, Big profits, easy work. All or part time.Puritan Co., Dept.E, 1966 B'way, N.Y.

MISCELLANEOUS

PHOTOPLAYS, STORIES, ETC.

We Will Accept your Ideas and Scripts in Any form—correct free—and sell on Com-mission. Big rewards! Make Money. Write us Now! Writer's Service, Box 31 Auburn, N. Y.

SHORT STORIES WANTED

Wanted - Stories, poems, etc. We pay on acceptance. Handwritten MSS. acceptable, Woman's Nat'l Weekly, Desk 48, Wash, D. C.

FARMS FOR SALE

Do You Want A Farm where largest profits are made? The South's great variety of crops and wonderfully productive climate make it the most profitable farm section of America. It is the place for the lowest cost meat production and dairy farming. It grows the largest variety of forage crops. Good lands in good localities, as low as $15 to $25 an acre. Let us show you locations that will give the highest profits. M. V. Richards, Commissioner, Room 19, Southern Railway System, Washington, D. C.

FOR SALE MISCELLANEOUS

Eveready Daylo Electric Flashlight on ten day trial. $1.00. Catalog. Vulcan Elec. Equip. Co., 1025 Woodward Bldg., Wash., D.C.

PIGS FOR SALE

O. I. C. Hogs. All ages. Large, Prolific. Best Breeding. Ped. furn. Pair pigs mated $20. W. D. Ruebush. Macomb, Ill.

MOTION PICTURE PLAYS

Photoplay Ideas Wanted By 48 Companies. $25-$500 paid. Experience unnecessary; details Free. Producers League, 311, St. Louis.

FARM LANDS FOR SALE

$10 Will Start The Purchase of your own farm home. Farming pays well. 10 acres in Michigan, $250, 85 monthly. Larger tracts. Towns, schools. Booklet free. Swigart Land Company, Cl246 First Nat'l Bank Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Prosper in the South-excellent little farms in Virginia, North Carolina and Maryland at $15 an acre and up. Just right for truck and general farming, stock raising, dairying and poultry. Close to markets, fine climate, good schools and neighbors. Write for information and copy of The Southern Homeseeker-today. F. H. LaBaume, Agrl. Agt., N.&W.Ry., 269 Areade Bldg., Roanoke, Va.

ARIZONA LAND

Get A Farm Irrigated By Uncle Sam in Salt River Valley, southern Arizona, under Rosseveit Dam. Raise alfalfa for feeding cattle and sheep. Raise vegetables and fruits for early Eastern market. Buy land now before it costs more. Deep soil, assured water, reasonable prices, fine winter climate. Write for our Salt River Valley folder free. L. Seagraves, Industrial Commissioner, Santa Fe Ry., 1946 Ry. Exchange, Chicago.

POULTRY

Poultry Truths. Get this practical book. Tells how to make poultry pay as a business or "side line." The U. S. Govt. urges greater production of poultry and eggs. You can help! The book and one year's subscription to Everybody's Poultry Magazine, the leading poultry monthly, $1. Magazine alone, 3 months trial sub., 10c. 3 years $1. Sample copy for 2c stamp. Order today. Everylody's Poultry Magazine Pub. Co., Box B-4, Hanover, Pa.

HELP WANTED

The Way To Get A Government Job is through the Washington Civil Service School. We prepare you and you get a position or we guarantee to refund your money. Write to Earl Hopkins, President, Washington, D. C., for book FK, 1469 telling about 292,296 government positions with lifetime employment, short hours, sure pay, regular vacations.

HELP-MALE AND FEMALE

Earn $25 Weekly, writing for news-papers, magazines. Experience unnecessary; details Free.Press Syndicate, 461 St. Louis, Mo.

STORY WRITERS WANTED

Authors:- Stories, poems, photo plays etc. are wanted for publication. Submit Mss. Literary Bureau, C4, Hannibal, Mo.

Make Money Writing Short Stories, Or Articles. Big Pay. Send for free information. United Press Syndicate, Dept. CT., Los Angeles.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Underwoods, Royals, Olivers, Remingtons, $15. to $45., guar. 5 years. Free Trial. Type-writer Co., C. 193 N. Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

$348 One Day in September, 1917. Ira Shock of Flint did it; Pierson of Montgomery started 2 stores since August; Higgins of Poughkeepsie started September 18, 2,800 first day; Studer wrote October 1 sold $50 one day; Melxner, Baltimore, $250 in one day; Perrine $380 in one day; Raker, 3,000 a day; Eakins $1,500 profit in I month; we start you in business; no experience; little capital; we furnish everything; teach you to use the secret formula; how to succeed; build a business of your own; the demand for crispettes is enormous; high prices and war conditions help; fall and winter best; profits $1,000 a month easily possible; we will start you quickly. W. Z. Long Co., 284 High St., Springfield, O.

SALESMEN WANTED

Traveling Salesmen Wanted - Experince unnecessary. Earn while you learn. distribution of the control of the c

PATENT ATTORNEYS

Patents. Write for List of Patent Hovers and Inventions Wanted. $1,000,000 in prize offered for inventions. Send sketch for free opinion as to patentability. Our four books sent free. Patents advertised free We assist inventors to sell inventions. Victor J. Evans & Co., 641 Ninth, Washington, D. C.

Startling Patent Facts, Send postal for new 90-page book Free. Your idea may mean a fortune if handled rightly. Learn how my service differs. Send sketch or model for ac-tual scarch. George P. Kimmel, Patent Law-yer, 27-L Barrister Bldg., Washington, D. C.

Patent Your Ideas. Manufacturers are quickly buying patents obtained through us. Write for free book of 307 needed inventions. D. Swift & Co., 321 7th St., Washington, D. C.

Ideas Wanted-Manufacturers are writ-ing for patents procured through me. Four books with hundreds of inventions wanted sent free. I help you market your invention, Advice Free.R. B. Owen, 18 Owen Bldg., Wash. D. C.

High Grade Enlargement from your film mailed postpaid. You examine, if satisfactory, send me 50c. David N. Essick, Ankeny, Iowa.

50c. Enlargement for only 25c; Send us any good clear negative (film or plate, not picture) and 25c, and we will make a beautiful 50c. Sepia Enlargement 5x? in. mounted on brown photo board 7x10, ready to frame. Films developed 10c; prints 2c up. Shea. & Williams, 2006 E. Third St., Dayton, Ohio. "The House That Satisfies."

COINS AND STAMPS BOUGHT

Will Pay $100.00 For Trade Dollar 1885; $7.00 for 1853 Quarter without arrows; $750.00 for certain $5.00 gold without motto. Cash premiums for rare coins to 1912. Get posted. Send 4c. Get our Large Coin Circular. Num-ismatic Bank, Dept. 6, Fort Worth, Texas.

$2 to $500 Each paid for hundreds of Old Coins dated before 1895. Keep All old money and send 10c for New Illus'td Coin Value Book, size 4x7. It may mean your fortune. Get Posted. Clarke Coin Co., Box 20, LeRoy, N.Y.

Plays, Speakers, dialogues and entertain-ments. Address Dept. A. Catalogues free. Ames Publishing Co., Clyde, Ohio.

A New Song entitled "Mister Hi Costa Living" words and music, Price 30 cents, Published by Frank Coler, Wilsonville, Nebr.

Productive Lands. Crop Payment or easy terms—along the Northern Pacific Ry., in Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, idaho, Washington and Oregon. Free literature. Say what state interests you. L. J. Bricker, 14 Northern Pacific Ry., St. Paul, Minn.

FOR PHOTOGRAPHERS

Special Trial Offer. Your next Kodak film developed 5c, Prints 2c each. Moser & Son, 2122 St. James Ave., Cincinnati, O.

TELEGRAPHY

Telegraphy-Wire & Wireless & sta-tion Agency Taught. Largest School. Catalog Free. Dodge's Institute, L.St., Valparaiso, Ind.

Small Missouri Farm, $10 cash and $5 monthly; no interest or taxes; highly productive land; close to 3 big markets; write for photographs and full information. Munger, D 104, N. Y. Life Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

Railway Mail Clerks wanted immediately.

Government Pays $900 to $1800 yearly. Prepare for coming "exams" under former Civil Service Examiner. New Book Pree. Write Patterson Civil Service School, Box J-15, Rochester, N. Y.

Firemen, Brakemen, Baggagemen, 8 hours, $140. Colored Porters wanted everywhere. Ex-perience unnecessary. $28 Ry. Bureau, East 8t. Louis, Ills.

Five bright, capable ladies to travel, demonstrate and sell dealers. $75.00 to $150.00 per month. Railroad fare paid. Goodrich Drug Company, Dept. 82, Omaha, Neb.

Start Dressmaking—designing business. Barn $100 Month, Sample lessons free. Frank-lin Institute, Dept. J 850, Rochester, N. Y.

We Have Customers who will buy from you tea aprons and dust caps in dozen lets. They also want fancy work of all kinds—Embroid-ery, Crocheting and Tatting. Send 20c for pat-terns and prices. Returned if dissatisfied. Ren-wood Sales Shops, 6238 S. Park Ave., Chicago.

Comfort's Comicalities "Jest for Fun"

Misplaced Glasses

A traveler entered an inn where a Quaker sat by the fire. Lifting a pair of green spectacles and rubbing his eyes, which looked very inflamed, the new-comer in one breath called for some comer in one breath called for some brandy and made a grievous complaint about his eyes.

"They are getting weaker and weaker," said he. "And now even the spectacles appear to do no good."

The Quaker looked first at him and

The Quaker looked hist at him and then at the brandy.

"I'll tell thee, friend, what I think," said he. "If thou wouldst wear thy spectacles over thy mouth for a few months thine eyes would get well again."

Surprised Her

"I forgot myself and spoke angrily to my wife," remarked Mr. Meekton.
"Did she resent
it?"

"For a moment.
But Henrietta is a f a ir - m i n d e d woman. After she thought it overshe shook hands with me and congratulated me on my bravery."—Kansas City Star.

Proof Positive

The teacher had been giving a reading The teacher had been giving a reading on the anatomy of the body.

"Now, you see," she said, as she closed her book and laid it on the table, "the trunk is in the middle part of the body. You understand that, don't you?"

"All the children except one chorused, "Yes, ma'am."

"You understand it, too?" asked the teacher of the little boy who had not spoken with the others.

"It's not so, ma'am," answered little Stephen.

"Why," said the teacher, in astonishment, "what do you mean?"
"Well," replied the boy earnestly, "you ought to go to the circus and see the elephant!"

Couldn't Deny It

It was the rush hour in one of those quick lunch places where you help yourself in the city and use the arm of your chair as a table. A man called for a piece of pie and chose a chair; then, remembering that he wanted coffee, he dashed over to the service counter. When he returned with his coffee his chair was occupied by another hurry-up diner.

occupied by another hurry-up diner.

"Excuse me," said the first man, "But this is my chair?"

"How do you know it is your chair?" demanded the occupant, in a surly tone.

"Because I can prove it," stated the first man.

"How can you prove it?" asked the occupant.

"By your trousers," was the reply.

"You are sitting on my pie."

"I Don't Know" Teacher—"What are the three words you use most?" Senior—"I don't know." Teacher—"Correct."

Now and Then Grouchy Stranger (to native)—"I sup-pose you know all the sights about here, eh?"
Native—"Oh, no. There's always new ones comin' round."

The Call of Duty

"What does my little man want to buy today? Candy?" asked the storekeeper as James entered. "You betcher life I do." corroborated James, "but I gotter buy soap."

All He Could Stand

Free Beautiful girl, 10 colors, 12x16 with War Book, 100 photo-illustrations. Worth $1. Special price 50c Guarino Co., 310 E 105 St., New York.

The doctor told the patient to drink water an hour before each meal. Two days later when he called the patient complainingly addressed him as follows:

'I drank for 20 minutes, doctor, but I was so full then I couldn't hold any more."

Careful Boy

Uncle (who weighs 200 pounds)—"Well, Earlie, is the ice thick enough to skate on today?" Earlie—"I don't know. That's why we want you to go with us and find out."

They Probably Do

"Paddy," said a father to his little boy,
"do you know what happens to liars when they die?"
"Well," said Paddy, after thinking a while, "I suppose they lie still."

His Suit "I have a suit of clothes for every day in the week." "Where are they?" "This is it I have on."

When He Tripped "Did you ever take a bicycle trip?"

"Once." "Where did you go?" "Straight over my neck." Sent It Home

Over the garden fence the conversa-tion had suddenly turned acrimonious.
"An' if your boy, 'Erbert ties any more cans to our pore dog's tail," was Mrs. Moggins' stern ultimatum, "'e'll 'ear about it, that's all. Oh, an' per'aps you've done wiv that saucepan wot you borrowed last Monday."

"'Erbert," asked Mrs. Grubbs, shrilly, wot ave you bin doin' to Mrs. Moggins' dog?"
"Nothin, ma!" replied the small boy,

"Nothin, ma: replace to the workingly. "There!" said the mother triumphantly. "An' you returned 'er saucepan yesterday, didn't you, dearie?" "Sent it back by 'er dog!" said 'Erbert, calmly.—Chtcago News.

An Irishman who had walked a long distance, feeling very thirsty and seeing a milkman, asked the price of a quart of "Threepence," replied the milkman.

"Then give me a quart in pints," said Pat, on drinking one pint, asked, "How do we stand?
The milkman replied, "I owe ye a

"And I owe you one," said Pat, "so we are quits."—Chicago News. An Ounce of Prevention

Dr. Brown was a phlegmatic man who usually took his own time at answering even urgent calls, but one day he hustled around in a great hurry.

"Mrs. Weaver has sent for me to come and see her boy, and I must go at once," he said.
"What is the matter with the boy?"
asked the doctor's wife.

"I don't know," he said, but Mrs. Weaver has a book on "What to Do Be-fore the Doctor Comes, and I must hurry upbefore she doesit."—New York Times.

Heard Near the Band Wagon Trombone-

"What do we play next, Si?" Si-"Sousa

Grand March." Trombone-"Gosh all hemlock! I jest played that!"-Judge.

No Consolation

"Beauty is but skin deep."
"Exactly, but the girl with it has all the other girls skinned to death."—Baltimore American.

Evidence

"Is your wife economical?"
"Very. Look at the clothes that she makes me wear."—Detroit Free Press. Probably Sportsman (wishing for fresh fields to conquer)—"I should like to try my hand at big game."

Fair Ignoramus—"Yes, I suppose you find it very hard to hit these little birds?"
—New York American.

Interpreting the Bible

An Oklahoma Sunday school teacher had given a lesson on the Prodigal Son, and wished to test the attention the class had paid to his teachings.

"Now, children," he said, "who was sorry that the Prodigal had returned?" No one replied, but all seemed lost in thought. Finally, the most forward youngster in the class ventured, "The fatted calf."

Inspired

"Children," said the teacher to her class in composition, "you should not attempt any flights of fancy, but write what is in you."
As a result of this advice, eight-year-old Richard passed in the following composition:

position: "We shall not attempt any fites of fancy, but rite just what is in us. In me there is my stummick, lungs, liver, two apples, two cakes and my dinner."— People's Home Journal.

Lonesome

Judge—"This man was a stranger to you! Then why did you pick a fight with him?"
Kelly—"All me friends is away on their vacations."—Life.

Might Be Captain

goes Geraldine and her latest catchthat navy man. I wonder what his title is?"

Estelle-"If Ger- > aldine gets him, he'll be third mate! -Judge.

Why is a pig in a parlor like a fire in a Because they both need putting out.

rk noisy? B—for it would have made it bark.

D

Conundrums

Why is a man who has no children invisible? Because he is not a parent (apparent).

What letter would have made Noah's

Why is the letter A like 12 o'clock? Because it is in the middle of "day."

PHOTO FINISHING

Films developed free. High class work, perfect prints at 3 to 7c. We do the best work in the Photo City. Remit with your order and get returns same day. Bryans Drug House, Rochester, N. Y.

ENTERTAINMENTS

MUSIC FOR SALE

FARM LANDS

MISSOURI FARM LAND

MALE HELP WANTED

Hundreds Government War positions open. $100 month. Write immediately, Frank-lin Institute, Dept. J 12, Rochester, N. Y.

FEMALE HELP WANTED

Help meet huge demand for Knitted goods. Industrious persons provided with profitable steady home employment. No experience or canvassing Good rates of pay. Wheeler, Inc., G 339 Madison, Chicago.

BY KATE V. SAINT MAUR.

Meeting the Conditions of the Times

N the winter we all want eggs, when they are truly golden gifts at the present prices. Supposing that you have good birds not too old in years, it depends almost entirely upon yourself whether you get the coveted eggs or not, for feed and care are the main factors. Don't be afraid to spend a little money on your birds. They must have the right kind of food before they can give you eggs. A diet of all corn won't produce them. Whole corn is the best supper for cold winter nights. Be generous with scratching material on the floor of the poultry-house, and let in all the light and sun you can. Then remember that the nights are long at this season, and just as it is light enough to see, give the birds something to scratch for, scattering small grains, oats, etc.

under her own common hens, and so get a start with thoroughbred birds.

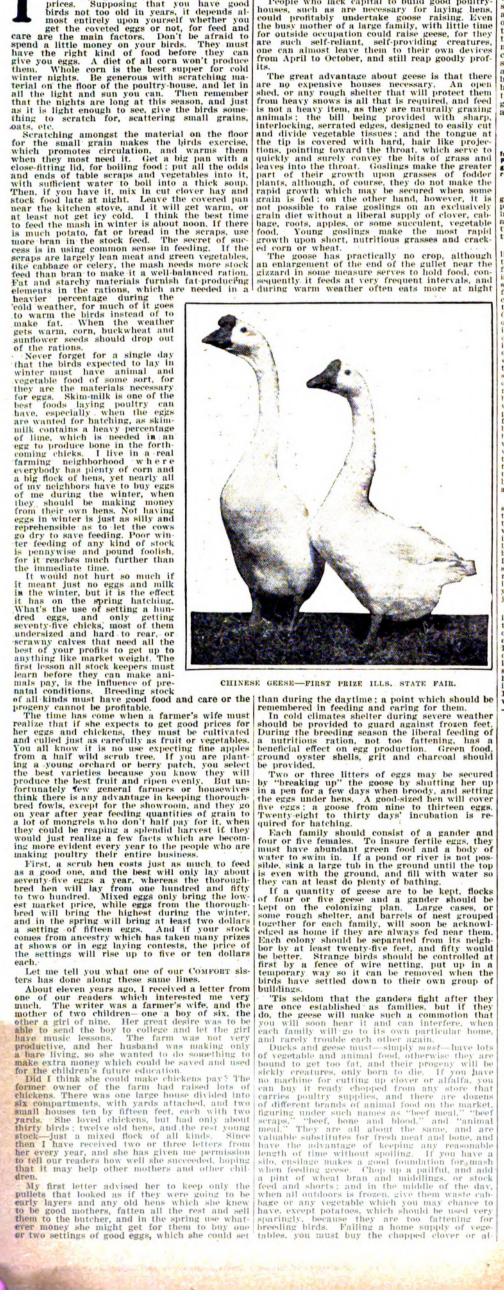

under her own common hens, and so get a start with thoroughbred birds.

She followed my advice, and wrote the following October, telling me that she got eight dollars and seventy-five cents for the hens she sold. To this she added one dollar and twenty-five cents, and bought a setting of White Orpington eggs, from which she hatched ten birds, six cockerels and four pullets, all of which she raised.

The Orpington eggs had been bought from the original importer and breeder in this country, who was just at that time introducing the white variety, so—they were comparatively—rare—and much in demand. Mrs. G. sent two best pullets and one cockerel to the county fair; won first on the trio, first in the pullet class, first for cockerels, and a special cash prize of five dollars for best birds in the show. She also took orders for three cockerels at fifteen dollars each, and booked several orders for settings of eggs to be delivered the following spring.

About seven years ago this lady was a widow, and her poultry has made it possible for her to keep her home and send her three children through high school.

People who lack capital to build good poultry-houses, such as are necessary for laying hens, could profitably undertake goose raising. Even the busy mother of a large family, with little time for outside occupation could raise geese, for they are such self-reliant, self-providing creatures, one can almost leave them to their own devices from April to October, and still reap goodly profits.

falfa. Put three or four quarts into a pan with a tight lid, pour scalding water over it, and leave in a warm place to steam for several hours. Mix in the grain just before feeding.

Lots of fresh drinking water is imperative for both ducks and geese—in fact, for all poultry. During freezing weather it is difficult to keep up the supply unless you make some special provision for the water not freezing. A very simple contrivance is made by using two empty cases, one a little larger than the other. Put the smaller one inside the larger one, cut a square hole through both boxes at one end, so that the birds can reach the water when an ordinary drinking fountain is placed inside the smaller case. Fill up the space between the two cases with sawdust; or, in very cold localities, with horse manure. There are several poultry drinking fountains on the market which have lamp arrangements, and keep the water warm.

Another point, which many people neglect with ducks and geese, is keeping their sleeping quarters dry, and giving them plenty of bedding on cold nights. Strange though it may seem, water fowls, that can swim about all day in cold water, will develop rheumatism and leg weakness if they sleep in a damp place. The best thing is to make a rack like a big gridiron, to cover one part of the house. Use hardwood slats on three by three battens, and there will be a good space between the ground and the slats. The slats should not be more than half an inch apart, and well covered with straw or coarse hay. If making such a rack is not feasible cut some sapplings and crisscross them on the floor, then spread boughs over them, and finish off with straw or three times a week. The bedding of ducks and geese should not be neglected, for it is quite as necessary as bedding cows.

Correspondence

Subscribers are entitled to advice of our Poultry Editor, free, through the columns of this department. Address Poultry Editor, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine. BE SURE to give your full name and address, otherwise your letter will receive no attention.

L. L. S.—Read this month's article. One-year-old geese are not good for breeders. Their eggs hatch poorly, and goslings are weak. There is a different in the cry and walk, and the gander usually has a narrow head, but it is difficult for an amateur to distinguish between geese and ganders. You had better try to find a neighbor who has had experience.

tinguish between geese and ganders. You had better try to find a neighbor who has had experience.

M. R.—From your description of the lumps on the liver of the birds you opened coupled with the fact that you have been losing one or two birds a week for the last year and a half, leaves no doubt that this is a case of tuberculosis—a most difficult disease to stamp out, especially after it has been in a flock for such a length of time. It is very contagious, and contaminates the entire premises, the germs being distributed by means of the infected birds' droppings. One light chronic case may be the unsuspected cause of frequent outbreaks. The germs are often contained in eggs laid by infected birds. Rats and mice also carry the disease. So you see extreme vigilance is necessary to prevent its spreading, if there is even one chronic case in the neighborhood. One of the worst features of the disease is that cases rarely attract attention in the early stages. Even a professional poultryman often falls to notice any symptoms of the disease until it reaches its last stages. For this reason an entire flock is often exposed to contagion before it is suspected. There is no cure for a bird which has once developed tuberculosis, so the only safeplan, after it is known that a bird has really died from the disease, is to kill off all suspicious looking birds and burn the carcases, then kill and sell the birds that may have been exposed to the contagion without loss of time, and before the disease has developed. After that, cull out all of the old stock, thoroughly clean the house, scrape off the surface of the yard, or ground on which the birds have been in the habit of congregating, and burn, or bury very deenly, all the accumulated rubbish, and next spring make a fresh start with healthy stock.

E. J. B.—Barley is excellent food for poultry, but should be mixed with oats and Kaitr corn, as it is a fresh start with healthy stock.

E. J. B.—Barley is excellent food for poultry, but should be mixed with oats and Kafir corn, as it is too fattening for laying hens if fed exclusively. Better use chopped clover or alfalfa hay which has been well steamed, for the vegetable part of the rations during the winter. Green barley in the spring would be all right. It would be difficult for me to tell you how much grain would be needed for six months, for I do not know what grains you purpose using. I gave special rations for laying hens, which had been arranged by the government to suit different districts, in one of the late summer numbers of COMFORT, so you will receive the necessary information on the subject before this reaches you.

3049 Edison Block Chicago, Illinois Canadian Office: 855 Portage Ave., Winnipeg, Man.

Get Economy Stove Prices

Mail a postal for our new book. Learn what you We have satiscan save dealing direct with manufactomersin turers. Quick shipment-no nearly every county waiting-we payfreight. in the U.S.

Ask for Catalog No. 501. Kalamazoo Stove Company Mfra., Kalamazoo, Mich. A Kalamazoo Direct to You

Beacon FR

Lights Your Home Like Day, 100 Candle Power Incondescent pure white light from (kerosene) coa-oil. Beats either gas or electricity. COSTS ONLY 1 CENT FOR 6 HOURS

TRY AND PIGEONS FOR PROFIT
Foy's big book tells all about it. Contains many colored plates—an encyclopedia of positive information, positive houses, feeding for eggs, etc. Written by a man who knows.
Sent for 5 cents. Low prices, fowls and eggs.
FRANK FOY, BOX 5, CLINTON, IOWA.

Made of California Redwood, covered $1250

Made of California Redwood, covered $1250

with sabeto and galvanized from $250 copper tanks, double walls, self-regulary circle.

Money back if not 0. K. Order direct Casalog free paid at long and long be liable to interfere with the current of hot air and ventilation. Most certainly the tank should be emptted when the machine is not in use, or it will be liable to rust and leak when next used. We always give hints for running incubators in the February and March numbers.

March numbers.

J. W. B.—What is known as "going light" is a sort of wasting disease, caused by any one of a dozen reasons. Want of a proper combination of rations, intestinal worms, sickly or inbred parent stock, lice and mittes. As you have opened one of the birds, and found the intestines in a normal condition, it cannot be worms or chronic disease. So it must be food or vermin. If the birds which are not yet-sick appear to be hungry, increase the amount of feed. Give a mash in the morning, and skim-milk to drink. Examine the birds for lice, and the house and coops for mites. As you live in the South, the red or house mite is likely to be the cause of the trouble.

L. S.—Try using land and flow of subnyan reliand.

L. S.—Try using lard and flour of sulphur, mixed in equal parts, on the turkeys' heads, for the wood-ticks. It will stick, and last longer than kerosene or dip.

HOW TO GET WINTER EGGS.

HOW TO GET WINTER EGGS.

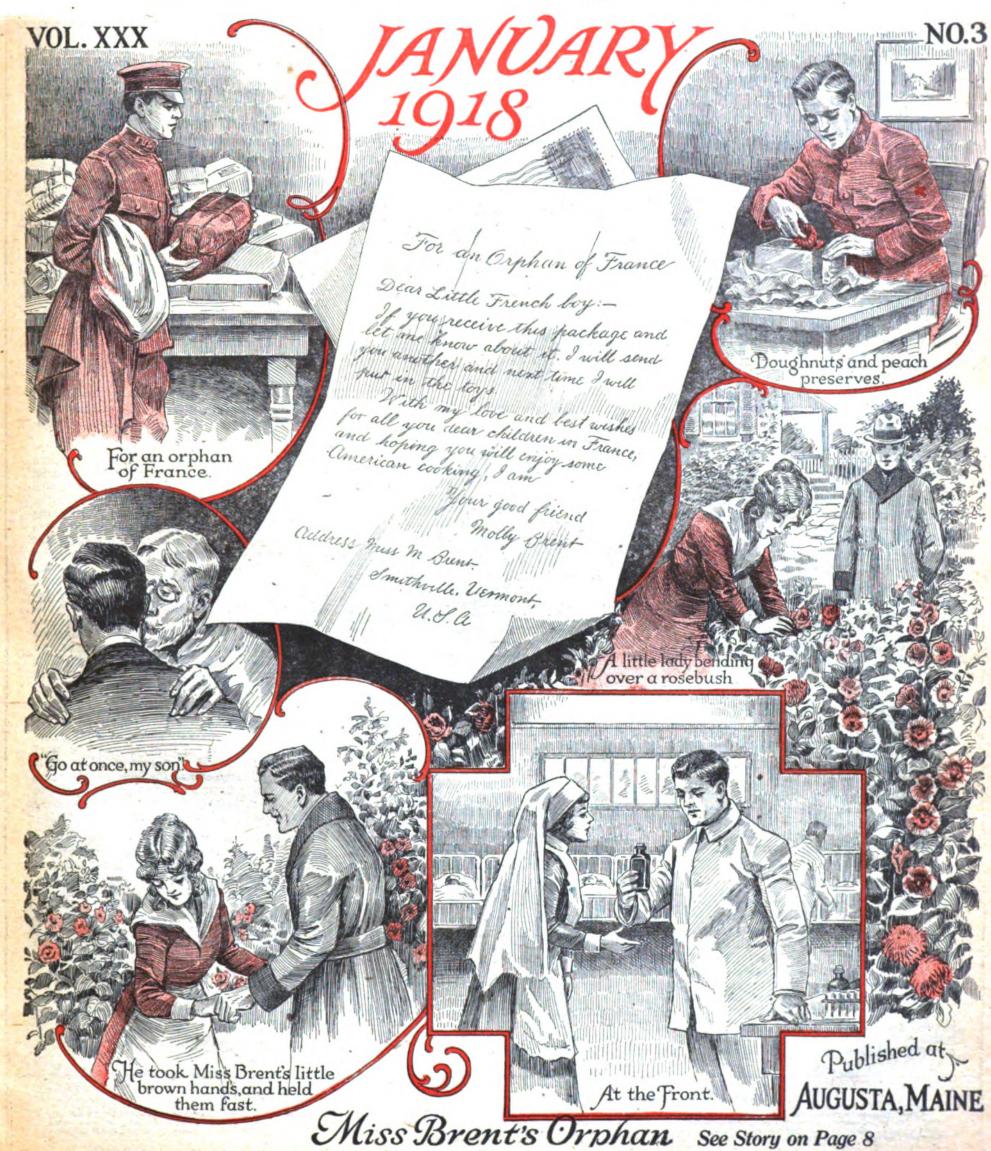

Any poultry raiser can keep his hens laying how much grain would be difficult for me to tell you how much grain would be needed for six months, for I do not know what grains you purpose using. I gave special rations for laying hens, which had been arganged by the government to suit different districts, in one of the late summer numbers of COMFORT. So, you will receive the necessary information on the subject before this reaches you.

L. B.—Without knowing the conditions on which the incubator was run, it is difficult to say what caused the poor hatches. You may have left the trays out of the machine to long whilst airing and turning the eggs, or you may not have aired them sufficiently and the recommendation of the machine was being operated, it would affect the hatch: or if the machine did not stand quite level, the warm air in the chamber may have been drawn to one side of the machine, leaving the other side chilly. If the heat never ran above 104, that could not be to blame. It would not be wise to line a machine with asbestos, as it would

Addr

NEW YEAR NUMBER The Key to Happiness and Success in over a Million and a Quarter Homes

Vicious Lies Circulated to Shake Faith in Our Government and Start Panics Are of German Origin

Y this time everybody ought to have learned that in prosecuting this war Germany relies on the campaign of treachery, intrigue and deception carried on through her immense army of spies and secret agents abroad quite as much as on the activities of her military forces The downfall of Russia, a prey to civil war and reduced to a state of anarchy through German influences in conspiracy with Russian anarchists and socialists, should be a sufficient warning to all the world and especially to the government and people of the United States where Germany boasts of having upwards of a hundred thousand zealous operators promoting diabolical plots of all kinds from destruction of life and property by dynamite, and wholesale murder by scattering disease germs, to inciting insurrection and creating panics by inventing and circulating lies about the intentions of our government

The following are samples of the lies that have been current throughout the country and have been traced to German origin. In order to frustrate the efforts of our government to promote home-canning of fruits and vegetables in the interest of food conservation a story was industriously circulated to the effect that it was the purpose of the government to seize the home-canned supplies to feed the army. It caused worry in many homes and the cessation of canning in some. The Secretary of Agriculture published a denial of the rumor and stated that the government had no intention of raiding the housewive's pantries. The Secretary of Agriculture also had to refute the lie about the Food Administrator proposing to lower the price of the round hog, which was told to the farmers to discourage the production of pork. An attempt was made to create a financial panic and start a run on the banks all over the country by the false report that the government was planning to grab all the bank deposits. Any thinking person should have seen the impossibility of such a proposition which would be not only unlawful but suicidal to the government. This lie, which was sprung during the last Liberty Loan offering was promptly nailed by the Secretary of the Treasury, and a bunch of enemy conspirators, to whom it was traced in the West, were arrested and will be prosecuted for their pernicious activities.

Now don't be deceived, don't be alarmed, don't be worried into doing anything foolish by these German lies that are springing up and going the rounds faster than they can be followed up and denied. If anybody makes any disquieting prediction of what the government intends to do, just inquire where he got his information and report the matter to the Department of Justice, Washington, D. C., and it will be quietly investigated by the Secret Service without bringing you into it in any way.

Save Pennies to Buy Thrift Stamps

N order to win this war all our people must make their labor as productive as possible and save all they can, not only of food but of everything else. Thus only can we supply our army and our allies with the necessary food and munitions of war; for this is a war of national resources and production quite as much as of seldiers and guns, and those who are left at home should consider themselves as drafted into the great army of workers on whose support depends the effectiveness of our troops in the trenches. Our government also needs the financial help of all our people, which makes it our duty to save all the money we can and loan it to the government. Don't think that because of high prices you can't save money. Wages are high, too, and there are good jobs for everybody. By cutting out the waste, which is no hardship, by economizing in expenditures, which is thrift, and by denying ourselves some of our accustomed luxuries, which we may call sacrifice, infinitesimal as it is as compared with the sacrifice our soldiers are making, almost everybody able to work can save some money to lend the government besides doing something to help the war charities.

The resources of the rich are not sufficient to meet the government's need of money, and the deficiency must be supplied by the farmers and wage earners through the loan of their savings which, though individually small, amount to an immense sum in the aggregate. For the most part they have responded loyally to the call for subscriptions to the Liberty Loan, not only those who could pay cash down but, best of all, thousands who did not have the ready money subscribed on the installment plan and are paying for their bonds out of their weekly savings. Thus thousands who never saved before are now saving systematically to meet their payments on the Liberty Bonds which they bought on the easy payment plan.

To further encourage and facilitate saving and loaning to the government in small amounts, the government is now offering for sale at all post offices 25-cent Thrift Stamps to be stuck, as fast as you buy them, on a Thrift Card which has spaces to hold 16 stamps. The Thrift Card, when filled, has a total value of $4.00 and can be exchanged at any post office for a War-Savings Stamp that bears interest at four per cent. These are to be stuck on a War-Savings Certificate which has spaces to hold 20 stamps. The interest accumulates on these War-Savings Stamps as on a savings bank deposit. Any time you want your money any post office will pay you the value of your War-Savings Stamps. Save your pennies and buy Thrift Stamps.

A Law to Promote Ignorance

F you had a Congressman's salary of $7,500 a year besides receiving 20 cents a mile for travel, both ways, from your home to Washington and return for each session of Congress, a fifty per cent increase in the subscription price of the one or more magazines you are taking might look to you as triffing and insignificant as it does to the congressman who luxuriates in an after-dinner smoke that costs as much as a year's subscription to Comfort. We are not insinuating that contemptuous disdain of the multitude whose circumstances do not afford the luxuries is a common attribute of our congressmen; doubtless that type is exceptional. What we wish to point out is that men in their situation, unless bigger and broader minded than the average run of congressmen, do not sense the necessity which compels the majority of people to practice strict economy, to count the cost even in small expenditures and save the pennies wherever possible.

When certain interests, having sinister designs against the magazines, proposed raising the secondclass postage rate and grading it on a zone basis under pretense of providing additional revenue, the majority of the House members thoughtlessly swallowed the bait. They were deaf to the publishers' protests that the business could not stand such an excessive extra tax and that it would have to be passed on to the subscribers in the form of higher subscription prices. It was explained also that the zone rates would cause the largest increase in price to the farmers and smalltowns people remote from the large publishing centers, but this gross injustice to the people whom the daily papers do not reach, who need the magazines most, made no impression on your representatives who are sure of their salaries out of the taxes they put on you and on us, and therefore have no need to worry about crop failures, hard times or business depression.

The salaries are not too large; what we find fault with is the mental caliber of the ordinary congressman which has long been the subject of much adverse criticism. The crying need of the country is for big men in Congress though but few of that kind get there, and the people are to blame because they let the politicians go instead of sending statesmen that measure up to the job. There are shining exceptions, but most of them are dummies that do as they are told by their bosses except in rare instances in which they dare not ignore the express demands of the people. That is why we print on page 12 a petition for the repeal of the recent zone rate law and ask our readers to clip it, sign it, circulate it for other signatures and mail it to their respective Congressmen. It is for your own benefit and as a matter of common right, also in justice to the publishers, but above all in the interest of national unity and the general dissemination of knowledge most essential to the welfare of the country that you should do your utmost to bring about the repeal of this law for the promotion of ignorance.

Please understand that this is not an effort on the part of the publishers to avoid taxes. They have expressed their willingness to bear more than their share of the public burden even to the limit of giving the government the entire profits of their business during the war. Congress had taxed them at the same rate as others on their invested capital, their incomes and the profits of their business and then singled them out as a class for a special extra tax in the destructive form of zone postage rates. It was then that the magazine publishers appeared in protest and, after explaining the disastrous consequences, proposed that instead of the zone rates Congress take their entire profits for the Government during the "Take all our profits, but leave us our business," they implored. Can you imagine an offer so fair, generous and patriotic being rejected? But no, there were powerful interests at work determined on destroying or crippling the magazines and their influence prevailed. Through the voice of the people is the only hope of inducing Congress to right this wrong.

Bear in mind that this law becomes operative next July and that it has two distinct features; one is a level rise of the magazine postage, like that of letter postage, uniform throughout the land regardless of distance, and the other is the innovation of additional zone rates increasing progressively according to distance. Thus there will be two rates of postage to pay on each magazine mailed by the publisher to a subscriber. It would be difficult to imagine a system more cunningly contrived to be troublesome to the magazines besides being oppressively unjust to subscribers. It is the zone rate feature, only, against which we protest and for the immediate repeal of which we ask help of our subscribers. We will stand the level increase and pay it ourselves, but the zone rates we cannot stand and must add the cost to the subscription price.

If you run across any of the propaganda of the zone rate promoters don't be deceived by their exaggerated statements of the cost of transporting second-class mail matter. In our next issue we will show the absurdity of their claims in that respect and expose the fallacy of their pretense that the government would be likely to realize any gain through zone rates deliberately designed to cut down circulation.

Don't fail to read our petition heading on page 12 where instructions also are given for addressing it to your congressman. Bring the matter up in your Grange meetings, pass resolutions and send them to Congress. Why should the farmers be taxed more than city people for periodical literature? If you believe in one country and indivisible under the stars and stripes with equal rights for every citizen East and West, North and South, then get to work at once with our petition for a single level postage rate on magazines and newspapers throughout the land. It is the people's cause, and now that we have done all that we can the fight is up to the people to win their rights.

COMFORT'S EDITOR.

COMFORT, PUBLISHED MONTHLY BY W. H. GANNETT, PUB., INC., AT AUGUSTA, MAINE.

Subscription price in United States and United States Possessions 25c a year; Canadian subscriptions 50c a year, foreign countries 75c a year. No premiums or prizes will be given on Canadian or foreign subscriptions. Please send your renewal just as soon as your subscription expires. IDe can not continue sending COMFORT to you unless you do. If you do not get your magazine by the 25th of the month write us and we will send you another copy free. Please notify us immediately in case you move, so that we can change your address and see that you do not miss a single copy. Remember that we must have your former address, as well as your new address to make the change. Be sure to send both. We do not supply back numbers.

Entered at the post office at Augusta, Maine as second-class mail matter. Copyright, 1917 (Trade-Mark Registered), by W. H. Gannett, Pub., Inc.

IN @ AROUND The HOME

Terms Used in Crochet

Ch st., chain stitch, simply a series of loops or stitches each drawn with the hook through the preceding one; s. c., single crochet, having a loop on hook, insert book in work as indicated, draw loop through thread over, and draw through both loops; d. c., double crochet, thread over hook, insert hook in work, draw loop through, thread over draw through two loops, thread over, draw through two loops; tr. c., treble crochet, thread over hook twice, then work off as in double crochet, there being three groups of two loops to work off instead of two; h. tr., half treble, same as tr. c., only work off two loops, thread over and then through three loops; d. tr., double treble crochet, thread over three times, hook through work, thread over and draw through one loop, giving five on hook, thread over and work off by twos; sl. st., slip stitch, insert hook in work, draw loop through work and loop on hook at the same time; p., picot, a picot is formed on a chain by catching back in the fourth st., or as indicated and working a sl. st. r. st., roll stitch, throw the thread over the needle as many times as indicated, insert hook in the work, thread over, pull through coil or roll, thread over, draw brough the one loop on hook. The roll when completed is straight, with a thread the length of roll along its side. The length or size of a roll is regulated by the number of times the thread is thrown over; o., over, thread over hook the number of times indicated; k. st., knot stitch, draw out loop about one quarter inch, catch thread and pull through, then put the hook between the drawn loop and the thread just pulled through, catch the thread, draw through these two stitches to form the knot; blk., block, a st. in each of a given number of sts., preceded and followed by a space; sp., space, a space is formed by making a chain of 3 or 4 sts. and omitting the same number of sts. in preceding row; sk., skip, to miss or omit number. of stitches indicated in preceding row; p. c., padding cord; *stars mean t

Knitted Priscilla Hood

ATERIAL: Fourfold Saxony and ATERIAL: Fourfold Saxony and No. 16 steel needles.
This hood is made in two pieces and afterwards joined. Measure child's head at base of ears from check to check, divide in about thirds, then make back a little narrower than the sides. The number of sts. must be divisible by four or five according to the number of sts. desired in a square. The piece which forms the back should square. The piece which forms the back should measure three and one half or four inches and be knitted in squares until crown of the work so that in

KNITTED PRISCILLA HOOD.

joining a knit-ting will come next purling. next purling.

After hood is complete and joined together, pick up 25 stitches on center of front edge, knit plain back and forth, picking up two stitches at the end of each row until an inch or more has been added according to the shape needed to fit child's face properly and snugly. Then pick stitches to the end of the front, knit back and pick up to other end, and pick up stitches across the back on two needles. Knit plain until band or turnback measures two plain until band or turnback measures two and one half inches.

Or if preferred knit band on back or neck of hood first and then on the front from corner to corner. Finish with rosettes and ribbon ties.

A New Stitch for Baby Afghan

This stitch is designed for using Germantown yarn or Shetland floss taken double. A foundation chain could be used for the width of the scarf but then it would have to be very loose. The way this is done is to build one stitch right

The way this is done is to build one stitch right to the other until the desired width is made. Begin in this way: Chain 4 (work loose), bring up a loop through first chain made, • yarn over needle and draw through one loop, bring up loop through same place, yarn over needle and draw through one loop, bring up loop through same place, yarn over needle draw through one loop, yarn over needle draw through one loop, yarn over and draw through one loop, thing up loop through same place, yarn over needle draw through one loop, yarn over and draw through one loop, yarn over needle draw through one loop, bring up loop through same place, yarn over needle draw through one loop, bring up loop through same place, yarn over needle draw through one loop, bring up loop through same place, yarn over needle draw through one loop, bring up loop through same place, yarn over needle draw through one loop, bring up loop through same place, yarn over needle draw through one loop, bring up loop through same place, yarn over needle draw through one loop, bring up loop through same place, yarn over needle draw through one loop, bring up loop through same place, yarn over needle draw through one loop, bring up loop through same place, yarn over needle draw through one loop, bring up loop through same place, yarn over needle draw through one loop, bring up loop through same place, yarn over needle draw through one loop, bring up loop through same place, yarn over needle draw through one loop, bring up loop through same place, yarn over needle draw through one loop, bring up loop through same place, yarn over needle draw through one loop, bring up loop through same place, yarn over needle draw through one loop, bring up loop through same place, yarn over needle draw through one loop

Second stitch, draw out the loop loose and. Pad the quilt'with flannel, baste and stitch bring up loop between the third and fourth the edges together, after which finish with any loops from needle where last loop came through, repeat from * for the width.

BUNNY CRIB QUILT.

2nd row.—Ch. 3, make the first st. in the ch.
st. which drew the four loops together, that is, bring up the two loops through there * then bring a loop through first stitch of foundation, taking up both threads, yarn over and draw through one loop, yarn over and draw through one loop, yarn over and draw through the four loops. This is first st. of row always. Second st., draw out loop loose, bring up the two loops between third and fourth loops then repeat from * to end of row.

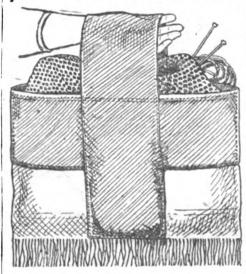

Repeat this row back and forth until the required size is made. This is a desirable stitch quired size is made. This is a desirable stitch for making a baby blanket or go-cart afghan.

A. O. L. WERTMAN.

Improved Red Cross Bag

A few months ago Comfort illustrated and described a Red Cross bag made of red ribbon. We now show an improvement and addition to this bag which gives it much more depth and still retains the Red Cross appearance. It is made by sewing together two yards of sixinch wide red ribbon or any red material of the same width, running a flat corset steel, millinery wire of any other metal band through the heading at the upper part of the cross section heading at the upper part of the cross section to hold it in position, then take an ordinary hand towel, with fringed ends, fold and sew to lower part of horizontal strip of ribbon, thus forming a deep bag to hold the yarn and knitting needles.

RED CROSS BAG.

plenty of planning, sewing, knitting, etc., to do at this season of the year. Very dainty little things can be fashioned by skill-ful fingers of inexpensive materials, a few of which illustrate this month for COMFORT Mothers.

Bunny Bootees

These cute little boots These cute little boots may be made up of corduroy, velveteen, felt or flannel. They are made in two pieces, seamed from the center of the back to center of the front, lined with silk or any soft fine material. any soft, fine material.

Stitch around the top and run in narrow elastic. On the top of the toe out-line in bunny features with pink silk, and either side just above the eyes add two pink-lined

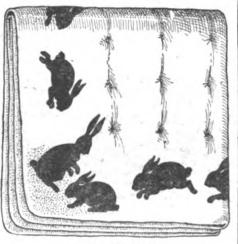

Bunny Crib Quilt

As shown this useful little quilt is made up of white cotton flannel. The top being decorated on each of the four sides on each of the four sides with groups of bunnies and grasses. This work is all in outlining, the rabbits being either a grey or light brown, one loop, yarn over needle and draw through grasses green with a little delicate pink, blue the four loops on the needle. This is one stitch.

simple crochet pattern, using for this either blue or pink silkateen.

Unbleached Cotton Creeping Rug.

Such a rug as this can be be very easily made of unbleached cotton cloth and if decorated in a similar way to the one shown, with a border of bunnies cut from Turkey red, baby will be amused for hours at a time. The edges of the figures are turned in and appliqued in place, after which the rug is well padded with cotton and tacked together with tufts of Turkey red

CREEPING RUG.

If preferred, animals of different kinds, and birds may be used to form the border. A little different crib set consisting of quilt and sham, may also be made of white outing flannel, decorated by cut figures of bun-nies, kittens, or Teddy bears patched on.

These may be arranged in a group in the center of the quilt

BUNNY BOOTEES or, as a border; in either case a three-inch band of pink or blue flannel makes a firm-wearing finish.

Warm Kimono

For babies from six months to one year of age flannel or flannelette kimonos or wrappers are constantly needed. The little garment illustrated will surely appeal to any mother who loves pretty things and also enjoy having them just a bit different. The two pockets on this little garment gives just this touch of novelty, otherwise it is shaped as usual the neck being finished with a little band and the sleeve with a cuff. All the edges are finished by hems bea cuff. All the edges are finished by hems being turned only once and then buttonholed or crocheted over in color.

Cover for Baby Hot Water Bottle

Make this to match the crib set of colored flannel same shade as border and decorate cen-ter of one side with one of the figures used on the set.

Knitted Tie

(REQUESTED BY INEZ ROBINSON) The gentleman's tie

illustrated was made of blue shaded fiber knitting silk on steel needles No. 16. Any other color may used or a combination of two which harmonize. Cast on 28 stitches or a sufficient number to make work measure two and one half inches. Make the tie either of plain garter stitch, or knit one row and purl back as preferred. Knit on same width until work measures fifteen inches then decrease for neck band thus: Knit tor neck band thus: Knit 2, slip or bind one at the beginning of every third row until work measures one inch. Work on even number of stitches, for fourteen inches then increase every third row by Work without increasing on two and one half inch KNITTED TIE. width for ten inches and bind off.

Conducted By Mrs. Wheeler Wilkinson

Knitted Knee Socks

Material required for one pair, two skeins threefold Saxony, one pair No. 11 steel needles. Cast on 52 stitches and knit 10 rows for the top.

11th row.-K. 2, o., k. 2 together and repeat to end of row. K. 11 rows plain.
23rd row.-K. 31,
turn, k. 11, turn. K.

12, continue in this way always knitting way always knitting I extra st. until all the side stitches have been taken up.
K. 36 rows, next row 1 narrow 1 st., two sts., in from each end. K. 5 rows and again make a narrowed row. Repeat last 6 rows 3 times then k. 6 rows, the last row should contain 42 sts. First instep row, k. 11, and run them on to a thread, k. 20, then run the remaining 11 thread.

thread.

Upon the 20 center sts. k. 40 rows for instep tab. At end of the last row turn, pick up and k. 20 sts. along that side of knitted knee socks. tab., then k. the 11 sts. held upon the cord. Turn, k. to other corner of tab., pick up and k. 20 sts. along that side, then take the remaining sts. from the cord, 82 sts. upon needles. K. 10 rows, then 10 rows more, upon every second row of the last 10 narrow upon the fifth st., each side of the center and in the final 4 rows 1 st. at each end of every other row. Bind off and sew up. of every other row. Bind off and sew up

A Delicate Yet Substantial Finish for Children's Clothes

The mother who can use a crochet hook may make her babies' dresses and petticoats look quite dainty at very small expense and only a few minutes' spare time.

The following is a pretty finish for neck and armholes and may also be used around collars and bibs. Turn a very narrows hem once, in the neck and armholes and stitch. The hem should not be more than one-eighth inch. Work through the cloth over the hem with single crochet, rather closely.

work through the cloth over the nem with single crochet, rather closely. 2nd row.—Ch. 2, 3 s. c. in first 3 sts. of foun-dation, ch. 5, sk. 2 sts., s. c. in 3rd st. 2 more s. c. making 3 in all, ch. 5, 3 s. c. as before, repeat to end 3rd row.-Ch. 2. 1 s. c. in 2nd st. of last cluster of 3 s. c. in previous row, 9 s. c. on ch. 5, sl. st.

NARROW CROCHETED EDGING.

in center of s. c., 9 s. c. on next ch. 5, repeat to end. If liked a picot can be made in 3rd and 6th s. c. on chain. This resembles tatting, is pretty, also quick and easy made.

MRS. W. BURCH.

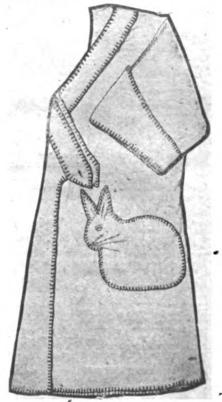

Crocheted Cap in Wool

Suitable for Children of all Ages

To make the cap use a medium weight yarn in white or any desired color and begin work in center of crown. Chain eight and join to in center of crown. Chain eight and join to form a ring.

1st round.—Ch. 3, 1 tr. c. in the ring, * ch. 1, 1 tr. c. in ring. Repeat from * until there are 14 tr. c. in ring with 1 st. between each, tr. c., ch. 1 and join with 1 sl. st. to the top of ch. 3 which is counted as the first tr. c. The end of each round is to be joined with 1 sl. st. 2nd round.—Ch. 5, * tr. c. on tr. c., ch. 2, tr. c. on tr. c., ch. 2. Repeat from * to end of round, join, ch. 3.

WARM KIMONO FOR BABY.

fourteen inches then increase every third row by knitting the front and back of the end stitch. Work without increasing 4th round.—Same as first catching between

tr. c., join, ch. 3. (CONTINUED ON PAGE 17.)

Copyright renewed, 1908 by Mrs. Georgie Sheldon Downs.

Serial rights by W. H. Gannett, Pub., Inc.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Lady Prescott, wife of Sir Athelstone Prescott, and her son Raymond, while traveling by coach, lose their way, and night overtaking them they stop at a miserable inn, in a little fishing village on Flamborough Head. They are attracted to a little girl, Sibyl, who waits on them. Her winning ways, her admittance of the cruel blows given by Mistress Sloan, and that her own mother would not do it, convince them that the innkeeper is not her father, and they determine to take the child away. Seeking Mistress Sloan, they learn that a woman who had been in a railroad smash up and injured leaves the child, who for weeks cries for Nansie. Mistress Sloan, for the consideration of thirty pounds, consents to let the child go, muttering she will keep her secrets.

CHAPTER IV.

AN IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.

ADY PRESCOTT caught her little pro-tegee again immediately upon leaving Mistress Sloan.

"Sibyl, would you like to go away from here, and live with me?" she from here, and live with me?" she asked.

Sibyl's dark eyes were lifted, with a startled expression, and swept the lady's beautiful face, with a look of amazement.

She saw there the tender, pitiful eyes, and the look of compassion, which made Lady Prescott seem like an angel from heaven to her, and her words like a burst of seraphic music in her ears.

A flush of joy crimsoned all her delicate face, and her questioner could see how her heart leaped in sudden delight, and sent the lifeblood coursing, with rapid pulsations, through every blue vein.

ing, with rapid pulsations, through every blue vein.

She could not speak—her joy for the moment was too intense—and Lady Prescott, to give her time to recover self-possession, told her of her recent interview with her mistress, and its result, asking again, as she concluded:

"Are you willing to go with me, Sibyl?"

"Lady, would you really be willing to take me—me?" she whispered, deeply agitated.

"And why not you, dear child? You are not happy here," was the gentle reply.

A shudder ran over her slight frame; then, with a long, long breath, as if her heart had suddenly dropped a great burden, and she was already beginning to draw life in a new sphere of existence, she selzed the lady's jeweled hand, with a motion of infinite grace and gratitude, and pressed her eager lips upon it.

Tears sprang into Lady Prescot's eyes.

"Are you so glad to go, my child?" she asked, tenderly.

Some strange thought seemed to startle her.

"Are you so glad to go, my child?" she asked, tenderly.

Some strange thought seemed to startle her at this query, for she stood suddenly erect, her hands crossed upon her bosom, a faraway look in her large eyes, and she murmured, with a sort of hushed reverence:

"It has come!" Lady Prescott asked, perplexed by both her words and manner.

"The good gift—the joy!" she whispered, and the look of awe and grave surprise upon the little face was something strange to behold.

"What do you mean, Siby!?" Lady Prescott asked, more and more surprised.

"The kind lady told me that He would withhold no good gift, and that what we asked Him for we should receive; but I thought, perhaps, He had forgotten all about me, or that I wasn't worth minding. But He did not forget, and, oh! lady. I shall be so glad to go with you," she concluded.

"Did you think your life was never to have any brightness? But I do not wonder that you doubted," said her ladyship.

any brightness? But I do not wonder that you doubted," said her ladyship.
Sibyl's lips trembled, and her eyes were full of strange sweetness, as she answered, softly:
"I shall always feel sure about Him now; and

"And what, dear child?"

"And what dear child?"

"And." with a shy look of happiness and reverence into the beautiful face above her, "if such a thing could be, lady, I would like to fill your whole life with blessing."

The little, earnest face uplifted to her was so beautiful, so full of heartfelt love and gratitude, that Lady Prescott forgot her humble condition, her ragged apparel, her shoeless and stockingless feet, and, bending down, she softly kissed the rosy lips.

The act was too much for the child, and, with a wild and passionate sob, she turned and fled from the room, to weep out her full soul in secret. Again night settled down over the dreary dwelling, with little prospect of a brighter dawn to cheer the impatient guests, who felt that it would be impossible to spend another day in that cheerless place.

Sibyl crept away early to her wretched bed less place.

Sibyl crept away early to her wretched bed in the lower chamber over the shed, coveting sleep to shorten even the few hours which must chapse before the beginning of her bright, new life.

life.

Jem and his wife occupied a room over the kitchen, and adjoining Sibyl's, with only a rude partition between. This was plastered only on one side, and in many places it had crumbled away, so that conversation carried on in ordinary tones could be distinctly heard in either chamber.

Late in the night, Sibyl was awakened by Jem, who came stumbling in the dark up-stairs to bed. He had been away from home all the afternoon and evening, consequently did not know of the Sloan began to relate her interview with Lady Prescott.

Rising, softly, from her low bed, she crept to a chink in the wall, where the light, which Nell had struck for her husband, shone through, and bent her head to listen.

"Yes," she heard Nell say, gleefully, "I've sold the brat, and a handsome sum, too, she paid me for the lazy jade."

'Then she went on to tell how the bargain was made, until Sibyl's face, which had burned with indignation and resentment at those first repulsive words, took a soft and tender look, when Nell repeated, with a sneer, Lady Prescott's indignant resentment of the idea of barter and sale.

Jem chuckled, being, evidently, much delighted with the trade.

resentment of the idea of barter and sale.

Jem chuckled, being, evidently, much delighted with the trade.

"You're well rid of her, and the money is right welcome," he said.
"I dunno; maybe I'd made more by and by by keepin' her," his wife replied, reflectively.
"How so?"

"I might find out some time who she belongs to, and get a bigger price for her."
"A bird in hand is worth more'n two in the bush,' and she'd be eatin' all the time," said her calculating liege.
"So I thought; and, as I know where she's goin', if I ever do find out who her folks be, the secret's still mine to sell."
"Did you give up that 'ere consarn that belongs to her?"
"D'ye take me for a fool, Jem Sloan?" exclaimed his wife, impatiently. "Why, that is the only thing in the wide world that will prove who the child is, and I shall keep it, and bide my time. No, no; the high-born lady was keen, and quizzed me sharp, but I reckon that I know how to keep my tongue where it belongs when money's the question."

Sibyl held her breath, and her heart beat wildly.

What was this thing which they had in their possession, and which alone would prove her identity?

"Where d'ye keep the trinket, Nell?" Jem demanded, after a moment's silence.

"Where it's safe," shortly replied his affection-

"Where d'ye keep the trinket, Nell?" Jem demanded, after a moment's silence.

"Where it's safe," shortly replied his affectionate spouse.

"Come, come, girl, don't be crusty; let's take a look at the thing. I hain't seen it since the day that crazy girl brought her here."

"No, you don't, Jem; you'll be wantin' to sell it again; and I tell you, if we only keep it long enough, there's a fortune in it."

"I know it, Nell: I know, too, that it's too fine for the likes of me to be handlin' in the presence of them that are able to buy; they'd think I stole it. Come, let's see it."

Thus assured, Nell arose from her bed, and, lifting a loose board from the floor, she picked up something there, and, going to an old trunk at the opposite side of the room, unlocked it, and drew from its depths a little round package, wrapped in paper, and securely tied with a quantity of string.

The trunk stood quite near the chink in the wall where Sibyl sat, so breathlessly, awaiting further developments.

The woman took off the wrappings of paper, and she saw that it contained a small, round wooden box.

But, before she opened it, she went back to where her husband sat, and Sibyl, greatly disappointed, was doomed not to see what it held.

But the man and his wife were silent for a moment or two, evidently examining the curious "thing," which was capable of unraveling so much of mystery.

"Blest if it ain't a beauty!" at length Jem exclaimed, admiringly.

"Yes, sir! Ye don't find any such trinkets belonging to folks unless they are somebody. I tell ye, Jem, this thing belonged to some big bug—probably the gal's mother?" Nell replied.

"Don't doubt it; but d'ye suppose that crazy thing was Sib's mother?"

"Laws, no! I settled in my mind that she was the child's nurse. She would not have called her disposition which his wife had made of her little handmaiden.

"Laws, no! I settled in my mind that she was the child's nurse. She would not have called her mother, Nansie, you fool!" scornfully returned his wife.

The child had no fears, however, that he would interfere in any way with her arrangements, since Nell's word was considered law in that house, as inviolable as that of the Medes and Persians had been.

But Sibyl's senses were instantly upon the alert when she heard her name spoken, and Mrs. Sloan began to relate her interview with Lady Prescott.

Rising, softly, from her low bed, she crept to a lem's next remark.

Crestfallen air at being thus snubbed.

"Nansie! Nansie! Oh, why can't I remember?" moaned the child, pressing her hot, trembling that had part hat being thus snubbed.

"Nansie! Nansie! Oh, why can't I remember?" moaned the child, pressing her hot, trembling that had burying her face between her knees.

But it would not do to ponder now; she must try to find out what it was they had bemust try to find out what it was Jem's next remark.

"Shouldn't wonder; it shines 'bout like the stones in them rings on the strange lady's hands," responded Nell, referring to Lady Prescott's

"I spose we might get all of fifty pounds for the little trinket," the man remarked, with a greedy look, as he reached out his hand to grasp greedy look, as he reached out his hand to grasp it.

But his wife, taking instant alarm, was too quick for him, clapped the cover upon the box, and was rapidly winding its wrappings around it before he fairly comprehended her intention.

"No, you don't eh!" she said, grimly, and with a disappointed look upon his coarse face, he turned away, and threw himself upon the bed.

After securely tying the package up, Nell buried it once more in the depths of her old trunk, and then securely locked it.

Then, with a stealthy glance at her husband, whose back was toward her, she removed a different board in the floor, and dropped the key into the hole, after which she extinguished the candle, and crept into bed, also.

But other eyes than Jem's, and keener, had marked the hiding place of that key, and it was with a soft, long sigh of intense satisfaction that slibyl noiselessly glided back to her heap of straw, and was soon soundly and sweetly sleeping.

But, with the first faint twitter of the birds, she was awake.

A few hours more, and she would probably look her last upon the miserable place where she had spent all her sad and cheerless childhood, and where, although so young, she had known so much of life's bitterness.

She waited in absolute silence, until she heard Jem and his wife go down-stairs; then, knowing or life's bitterness.

She waited in absolute silence, until she heard Jem and his wife go down-stairs; then, knowing that neither would be likely to return until night came again, a look of sudden resolve came into her face.

came again, a look of sudden resolve came into her face.

Softly raising, her window, she stepped out upon the roof of the porch which sheltered a door beheath.

She then glided, noiselessly, along to another window, which opened into the chamber adjoining her own, and, lifting the sash, she crept in.

With light and nimble feet, she crossed the room to where she had seen Nell hide the key beneath the loose board.

In another instant, the precious, but well-remembered package, which Nell had taken thence the night previous, was in her hands.

A little cry of delight, checked before it was half uttered, parted her lips, while a sudden light of joy and remembrance leaped into her eyes.

It was a magnificent jewel, a little more than an inch in length, and about three fourths as wide as long.

In the center there blazed a large diamond.

an inch in length, and about three fourths as wide as long.

In the center there blazed a large diamond, catching, with every movement of the trembling hands, the crimson streaks of the eastern sky, refracting and decomposing the glowing tints, until every color of the rainbow was flashed up, and repeated again and again, into her bewildered eyes.

Again and again she turned it, her fingers wandering over it, as if seeking to recall some faintly remembered custom of her early years.

"Yes, yes! I knew it—I knew there was something!" she at length whispered, the blood rushing in a torrent over-her face and neck, and down to her very finger-tips. "This is 'S.,' and here is 'H.' and another 'S.' I know it means something. Oh! if I could only remember!"

That was ever her cry when she tried to penetrate the mystery which hung over the past ten years of her life.

Beyond the dreary existence which she had

"Laws, no! I settled in my mind that she was the child's nurse. She would not have called her mother, Nansie, you fool!" scornfully returned his wife.

"That's so; ye always was cleverer than I at seein' into things," Jem returned, with rather a seein' into things, "Jem returned, with rather a seein' into things," Jem returned, with rather a seein' into things," Jem returned, with rather a seein' into things, "Jem returned, with rather a seein' into things," Jem returned, with rather a seein' into things, "Jem returned, with rather a seein' into things," Jem returned, with rather a seein' into things, "Jem returned, with rather a seein' into things," Jem returned, with rather a seein' into things, "Jem returned, with rather a seein' into things," Jem returned, with rather a seein' into things, "Jem returned, with rather a seein' into things," Jem returned, with rather a seein' into things, "Jem returned, with rather a seein' into things," Jem returned, with rather a seein' into things, "Jem returned, with rather a seein' into things," Jem returned, with rather a seein' into things, "Jem returned, with rather a seein' into things," Jem returned, with rather a seein' into things, "Jem returned, with rather a seein' into things," Jem returned, with rather a seein' into things, "Jem returned, with rather a seein' into things," Jem returned, with rather a seein' into things, "Jem returned, w

At each end of this jewel were two little rings, showing that the ornament had once been attached to something else; and, as she took it tenderly from the box and turned it over, she saw upon the solid gold back of the setting those strange figures of which she had heard Jem and Nell speak the night before, "2, 21, 1800."

After examining these a moment, she said, with sudden resolution:

"This is mine; they said so, and I can remember something about it myself. I shall take it away with me."

She thrust the empty package back into the trunk, relocked it, replaced the key where she had found it, ahd then sped back into her own room. Once there, she took a strong string and tied it securely to the two little rings attached to the jewel, which she then covered with a piece of cloth, sewing it securely around it, after which she hung it around her neck, concealing it beneath her clothing.

When she first arose, she had dressed herself in the best she possessed, which was simply a dark print, clean and whole, but made with the utmost simplicity, a pair of dark, coarse stockings, and well-worn shoes.

Raymond Prescott thought he had never looked upon a fairer countenance, when she met him, with a tremulous smile of happiness curving her lips, and a light which made her eyes glorious as they searched his face for a moment, and greeted him with her low-voiced, "Good morning."

Lady Prescott smiled her approbation at the dainty cleanliness of her face, hands, and attire, but inwardly resolved that a more marked change should be visible in her pretty protegee within a very few hours.

At as early an hour as possible, the coach was ordered to the door.

Lady Prescott paid the greedy Nell her coveted "thirty pounds," and, mentally shaking the dust from her shoes, entered the carriage, bidding Sibyl follow.

Raymond sprang in after her, gave the orders to the coachman, and away they dashed over the sandy road to Scarborough.

CHAPTER V. MADE ONE OF SHEM.

At Scarborough, during her visit, Lady Prescott spent her time in fashioning a neat and tasteful wardrobe for her little protegee.

While fitting the slender, graceful form, one day, she discovered the string, with its strange, cloth-bound appendage, hanging about her neck. "What have you there that is so choice, Sibyl?" she asked, smiling, and wondering what little gift she could be treasuring thus.

The child was deeply agitated by the question. She knew that the precious ornament in her possession would occasion great surprise, and perhaps suspicion, and though she had intended from the first to confide in her benefactress, yet she experienced a certain dread, lest her account of it the first to confide in her benefactress, yet she experienced a certain dread, lest her account of it should not be credited.

Without replying to Lady Prescott's question, she took the scissors and cut the string, and, ripping off the covering laid the valuable treasure in the hand of her friend.

"Child, where did you get it?" Lady Prescott exclaimed, aghast.

The child told her story in a few simple and straightforward words, and concluded by asking, with great humility:

"Lady, did I do wrong? I thought it was mine by right, and I knew she would never give it to me."

eyes.

Surrounding this, and set in rather a singular fashion, were many pearls, exceedingly fine and pure, and covering the whole remaining surface of the jewel.

Instinctively, Sibyl's finger began to trace the device framed there, while an anxious, puzzled expression over-shadowed her hitherto excited face.

Again and again she turned it her fingers wants are shadowed by the fingers wants and again and again she turned it her fingers wants.

"She said it was the only thing in the wide world that would prove who I am; and, oh. I thought I must have it, for perhaps some time it would help me to find my mother," Sibyl said, world that would prove who I am; and, oh. I thought I must have it, for perhaps some time it would help me to find my mother," Sibyl said, with a sigh.

"My poor child, do you long for your mother so?" Lady Prescott asked, touched by the sad, wistful expression of the sweet face. Then she added: "But the wicked woman told me there was nothing by which you could ever be identified. I mistrusted then that she was speaking falsely."

"And see, lady." Sibyl said, her finger beginning to trace the letters which she had before discovered, "I seem to remember something about it, for here are three letters—'S. H. S."

The lady watched the rosy-tipped finger, as it followed the line of the letters.

"True, dear!" she said, in surprise; "but they are very curiously woven in with the other pearls, and I should never have discovered them if they had not been pointed out to me. This proves to me, more than anything else," she continued, "that the gem is your own, and that, when a very little child, your fingers were taught to trace the letters. Otherwise, you would never have thought of such a thing, nor been able to discover them."

"I am glad you think I did not do wrong," Sibyl said, with a deep-drawn sigh of relief.

"It would have been wrong for you to have left it without saying anything about it, for, doubtless, it will prove a great deal; it does prove a great deal to me, even now—"

"What, dear lady?" interrupted Sibyl, eagerly.

"That you belong to parents who were accustomed to move in a very different sphere from that in which we found you. None but people in high life are likely to possess jewels like this; and I feel sure that this one little link will some time lead you back to them."

"Dear lady, how glad you make me!" Sibyl and I feel sure that this one little link will some time lead you back to them."

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 10.)

Don't Miss It. See to Your Subscription.

Our Fine Liberty Number for February will describe and picture what France did to help us win our freedom, in return for which we are sending her succor in her darkest hour of peril.

Those superb warriors, General Rochambeau and Admiral de Grasse, who commanded the French army and navy, showed the noblest qualities of the knights of old, brave in battle, detesting cruelty, kind to prisoners, generous to vanquished foes, tender to the weak, respectful of women and courteous to all, minded and honorable gentlemen even in dealing with the enemy in arms.

Under strict discipline the force of their example permeated their officers and men to the extent that the conduct of the French troops in America was above reproach.

Read in February COMFORT the inspiring story of their gallant exploits in America and draw your own comparison with the fiendish outrages daily committed by the German soldiers in France and Belgium.

This Department is conducted solely for the use of COMFORT staters, whereby they may give expression to their ideas relative to the home and home surroundings, and to all maters pertaining to themselves and families; as well as opening a way for personal correspondence between each other.

Our object is to extend a balving hand to COMFORT

tween each other.

Our object is to extend a helping hand to Comfort subscribers: to become coworkers with all who seek friendship, encouragement, sympathy or assistance through the interchange of ideas.

Any abuse of this privilege, such as inviting correspondence for the purpose of offering an article for sale, or undertaking to charge a sum of money for ideas, recipes or information mentioned in any letter appearing in this department, if reported, will result in the offender being denied the use of these columns.

Do not ask us to unblish letters requesting money con-

Do not ask us to publish letters requesting money con-tributions or donations of any sort. Much as we sympathize with the suffering and un-fortunate, it is impossible to do this as we would be flooded with similar requests.

Do not request souvenir postals unless you have com-plied with the conditions which entitles you to such a notice. See postal request notice in an-other column.

cordially invite mothers and daughters of all ages to write to COMPORT Sisters' Corner. Every letter will be carefully read and cansidered, and then the most helpful ones chosen for publication, whether the writer be an old or new subscriber.

Please write only on one side of the paper, and recipes on a separate sheet.

Always give your correct and full name and address, very plainly written; otherwise your letter will receive no attention.

Address all letters for this department to MRS.
WHEELER WILKINSON, CARB COMFORT, AUGUSTA,

OMEWHERE I have read of a beautiful old custom that existed in some country in Europe and one that itwould be well to practice here. It was that on New Year's day, no matter what the quarrel or misunderstanding had been, relatives and friends exchanged visits and in the kindly expressed wishes for the New Year, all past grievances were forgiven and, better still, forgotten. For unless we can bring ourselves to forget as well as forgive we cannot hope that friendship, in its true sense, will be restored. Isn't it a custom worth trying? What's the use anyway of "holding a grudge" until it becomes a part of you? Almost invariably you will find that the other fellow is willing, and glad, to meet you half way, so begin the new year aright. And while I'm wishing all a Happy New Year, I'm sending with it a thought that may help and strengthen someone.—Ed.

"I see not a step before me
As I tread on another year,
But the past is still in God's keeping,
The future His mercy shall clear.
And what looks dark in the distance
May brighten as I draw near."
— Mary G. Brainard.

"But the bird with the broken pinion Kept another from the snare; And the life that sin had stricken Raised another from despair."

If M. B. can keep even one other from committing the same mistake, she need not feel that she has lived in vain.

With love to all,

Busy Bee.

Busy Bee. I don't know as I ever heard of the "worry cow" before but here is a little verse that always helps me by its cheery philosophy:

"Life's little ills annoyed me when these little ills

And the one fly in the ointment put me in a dreadful stew.

But experience has taught me the infrequent good

Now I'm glad to find some ointment in my little pot of flies."

The author's idea seems to be that we'd be much happier if we didn't concentrate so on looking for flies,—Ed.

Comfort Sisters' Recipes NONE SUCH

E have fish so often at our house that my little boy says every day seems like Friday to him, and though we some times choke on the bones I find it keeps the living exclosed more to such an extent that I started in collecting recipes for serving fish for, I reasoned, if it helps one person it will help many and really such a nourishing food as fish should be served more than the usual once a week. Those living far inland may sometimes have to content themselves with canned, smoked or saited fish but this isn't such a hardship after all for any of these can be made into appetizing dishes.—Ed.

Onions Stuffed with Salt Fish.—Select medium-sized onions and boil until tender. Drain dry, mak-ing a sauce of one tablespoon of flour, one table-spoon of butter, one cup of hot milk, salt and pep-per to taste. Have ready some desiccated salt fish which has been cooked in milk and water for 20 minutes. Remove the inside of the onion and stuff it with the salt fish decorating it with a boiled cranberry. Pour it over the onions and serve.

ONIONS STUFFED WITH SALT FISH.

MARY HARBOD NORTHEND.

MARY HARROD NORTHEND.

Fish Pie.—Any left-over fish may be made into a delicious pie. Break the fish into small pieces and season with pepper, salt and any sweet herb if desired. Cover a deep baking dish with a good crust, fill with the fish, squeeze the juice of one onion over the top and, if eggs are not too high, a hard-boiled one sliced over the fish before putting the top crust on, adds to it, but may be omitted. Bake in moderate oven.

oven.

Baked Shad.—Clean and wash fish, stuff with a dressing made of bread crumbs, sait, pepper, butter and sage, mixed with the beaten yolk of an egg. Fasten fish together. Put slices of salt pork on top of the shad and bake. Serve with slices of lemon.

Salmon Pudding.—To one can of salmon add two beaten eggs, two tablespoons—of cream, and salt and pepper to taste. Bake fifteen minutes and serve on hot platter with border of mashed potatoes. A butter sauce adds to this and is made by mixing together two teaspoons of butter with one tablespoon of flour and stirring into a cup of boiling milk until smooth. Season.

Season.

Fish Salad.—Chop fish fine, add a finely chopped onion if desired, and salad dressing to moisten. Serve on lettuce leaves.

Fish Hash.—Chop fish with twice the quantity of cold boiled potato. Have ready in frying pan bacon or pork fat, add hash, season to taste and fry until thoroughly heated and browned. Onion may be added.

Creamed Crabs.—Two cups crab meat, one and one half tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour, one teaspoon onion juice, one third cup cream, one egg, salt and cayenne pepper and one teaspoon lemon juice. Melt butter, add flour, cream, onion and lemon juice. Cook a few minutes, season, add cream in which egg has been beaten and crab meat. When hot, serve on small squares of toast, or crackers.

deep, hot fat. Drain on brown paper.

Baked Salmon.—Clean salmon, wash and wipe well and rub it inside and out with salt and pepper. Fill with a dressing made of bread crumbs, moistened with hot milk, to which is added butter and seasoned with sage, salt and pepper. Tie a string around the fish to keep this in. Place a trivet in the baking pan, put bits of salt pork over the fish, dredge with flour and put it on the trivet. Put a pint of hot water in the pan and baste frequently. Bake one hour, or less, according to size of fish. When the fish is taken up, add flour and butter to water it has been baked in and let thicken. Serve with mashed potatoes.

Sardine Salad.—Cut sardines into small pieces and Sardine Salad.—Out sardines into small pieces and place on lettuce leaves on salad plate. Cover with a layer of peeled and sliced tomato and another layer of sardines. Cover with salad dressing and serve.

Macaroni and Codfish Pie.—To a quarter of a pound of macaroni and half a pound of shredded codfish, eight tablespoons of grated cheese, four tenspoons butter and season with sait and pepper. Break the macaroni into small pieces and boil until tenden Butter a deep baking dish, put in a layer of fish, a little butter and cheese and a little butter, add more fish and so on till the dish is nearly full. Sprinkle cheese on top and dot with pieces of butter, add a little milk to moisten and bake until brown.

nd bake until brown.

Vegetable Clam Chowder.—Cut two thick slices of alt pork into small pieces and fry until brown. Chop our onions fine and add to pork while frying, being Salmon Oysters. Get salmon one inch thick. Cut in one inch squares, dip in beaten egg and cracker crumbs, and fry in hot lard as you would doughnuts. Drain, serve with mayonnaise or lemon juice.

Mas. Bettie Richey, Sacramento, 1016 ½ Sixth St. Cal.

MRS. Bettle Richey, Sacramento, 1016 ½ Sixth St. Cal.

Vial Casserole. —An appetizing dish made from the ends of ribs, knuckle and neck. Cut meat in small pieces and put in a stew pan with a few spoonfuls of sait pork fat. Stir until cooking has begun, then cover meat with boiling water and simmer until tender.
Put three tablespoons of pork fat into another stewpan, and whep it has browned a little, add four tablespoons of flour that has been browned in the oven.
When smooth, add the boiling liquor that has been drained from the veal; about three cups, and cook fifteen minutes. Season with pepper, sait and lemon juice. Add cooked veal. Have ready slices of fresh boiled potato or boiled rice, and fill individual cups or casserole with alternate layers of veal and potato or rice—or both. On top put a layer of bread crumbs and bits of butter. When crumbs are brown it is ready to serve.

Chicken and Rice Croquettes. There is usually

It is ready to serve.

CHICKEN AND RICE CROQUETTES. There is usually enough meat on the carcase of a chicken to make a few croquettes when combined with a little left-over boiled rice or cereal. Take equal parts of the meat and rice and moisten with gravy or a little cream. Season with salt and pepper, a little butter and stir in the beaten yolk of one egg to each cup of rice. Shape into balls with flat sides and fry in pork fat, or roll in crumbs, dip in egg and crumbs again and fry in deep fat.

CHYCKERROUND CANE Dark part Yolk of the fry in deep fat.

Checkerhoard Cake.—Dark part—Yolk of four eggs, one cup of sugar, one-half cup butter, one-half cup milk, two and one-half cups flour mixed with one teaspoon baking powder, and one teaspoon cloves and cinnamon. Light part—Whites of four eggs, one cup sugar, one-half cup butter, and two and one-half cups flour mixed with one teaspoon of baking powder. Drop by alternate spoonfuls into baking tin.

A. P. Weiden Morses—Two curs of cannot neaches mash.

PEACH MOUSSE.—Two cups of canned peaches mash ed and sweetened with powdered sugar, and a little lemon juice added. Whip two cups of cream and PEACH MOUSE.

MINCE MEAT

You have baked for 30 years

To Save and Serve

Now bake a

WAR PIE

No Top Crust Use NONE SUCH MINCE MEAT

"Like Mother Used to Make" NONE SUCH MINCE MEAT for regular mince pies, cakes, puddings, and cookies

Merrell-Soule Company . . Syracuse, N. Y.

FLORESVILLE, TEXAS.

DEAR SISTERS:

I want to offer a word of advice to the mothers of soldier boys. Let's write long, cheerful letters and tell all the funny jokes and happenings of the neighborhood. I ask my boy all kinds of questions about his army life and tell him what great things I expect of him. I also send newspaper clippings that I think will interest him and am encouraging and helping him all I can.

I just read in our weekly paper of a dear mother who is asking the prayers of every mother who has a son, or other relative, in the army or navy. They are all our boys and it is our duty to pray for those who have no mothers, for some of them are not prepared to go.

pared to go.

Now let us, as a band of mothers, pray for all the boys and let them know they have our prayers.

My boy writes that he has joined the Y. M. C. A. and attends church every Sunday and I am very proud of him.

I will close by asking the prayers of all mothers for our soldier boys.

Sincerely, Mrs. Matter Sellers.

Mrs. Sellers. By putting a stamp on Comfort (see front cover notice) you can send it to some soldier boy and even if he isn't your son, remember he is some mother's son and will be just as grateful for the kindness as though he were your own. My boys aren't quite old enough to enlist but if they were I'd cheerfully send them in defense of our country but oh, how I would pray for their safe return, and I can understand just how you, and all other mothers, feel.—Ed.

The control of the co

When no Premium is taken you may order Larkin Products at one-half Catalog Price-Macaroni 71/2c a package, Scouring Powder 5c a package, etc. Catalog explains all.

Big Catalog FREE

and this saving is given to you in the form of beautiful and serviceable Premiums.

You owe it to yourself to get this book and investigate the many remarkable savings you can make by direct dealing.

Send Coupon or Postal to Nearest Address:

Larkin Co. CHICAGO PEORIA

Please send me Catalog No. 76.

Address

Copyright, 1900, by Street and Smith. Serial rights by W. H. Gannett, Pub., Inc.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Lady Annesley, stepmother to Sir Thomas and Ravenel Annesley, disapproves of Adrian Gordon, who is in love with Ravenel. Receiving an appointment to India Adrian seals his proposal and Ravenel's promise for an early marriage, by giving her a beautiful ring of diamonds and opals. Not daring to wear it she slips it on a ribbon on her neck. Ravenel bids Adrian good by, unconscious that their conversation, held near the edge of a quarry is heard by Lady Annesley's confidential maid. Four days later Ravenel receives a letter from Adrian that he will go to the Duchess of Avonmore's party and names the following day for their marriage. Lady Annesley, apparently anxious for Ravenel to make a good appearance at the party provides her with a new dress. Ravenel is unsuspictous of intrigue, but Sir Thomas, only sixteen, suspects the scheming woman and her designs on Lord Levallion, a former suitor for her hand, as Ravenel's future husband. Going to the party and not meeting Adrian, Ravenel, with a sob in her throat, wanders through the garden, where she meets Lord Levallion, not knowing it is he. Weary and wanting to go home he offers to take her there. Arriving home she hunts for the lost ring but does not find it. The next day Ravenal prepares for her wedding and waits for Adrian, who fails to meet her. Going home she enters the drawing-room, where she finds Lady Annesley and Lord Levallion's delight, takes Ravenal and Sir Thomas to her home. Ravenal is invited to Hester Murray's to lunch and at the instigation of Lady Annesley she gives Ravenal the impression that there is a Mrs. Gordon. Believing Adrian false she marries Lord Levallion. Coming from the altar, the groom sees a woman in black with a child clinging to her hand and wonders if Ravenal notices her. Three months later Adrian Gordon is reported missing. Lord Levallion goes to the War Office to learn the truth. Sitting alone on the lawn Ravenal sees Adrian Gordon standing before her and she catches the glint of a ting on his han

CHAPTER XIII.

IN LEVALLION'S HOUSE.

HAT shall I do?" said Lady Levallion to herself. "What shall I do?"

She stood on the grass and watched them carry Adrian into her house, making not the slightest attempt to follow. The sun dropped below the ledge of the rose-garden, and as its rim disappeared a chill crept to her bones. In a minute the servants would be back to take in the tea things, the wicker chair that fate had stuck in Adrian's way. They must not find her here standing motionless. And she had mowhere to go that she might be alone. There was no room in all Levallion Castle where she could lock her door without question and fight down the bewildered pain that was making her sick. Her maid would be in her bedroom, Levallion would come, as usual, to her dressing-room when his toilet was finished and hers all but done. Truly Ravenel Annesley had been freer than Ravenel Levallion, for she had dared to lock her door and cry.

She had not been as brave, though! Lady Levallion set her teeth and walked slowly into the house and up-stairs to her goggle-eyed maid. The romantic return of her lordship's cousin had set every servant in the house agog, but her lady-ship looked so listless that her maid dared not speak till she was spoken to, which was some time, for Lady Levallion went straight to her dressing-table and stood staring at herself in the glass.

Her face looked strange, vacant, It was not so he had dreaved she had cheeved she ha and watched them carry Adrian into her house, and watched them carry Adrian into her house, making not the slightest attempt to follow the sun dropped below the ledge of the ledge of the sun dropped below the ledge of the ledge of the ledge of the ledge of the spairing courage to make a toilet that should cover her changed looks, and saw a pale-lilac gown laid out on her bed.

"Oh, not that!" she said—and naturally, to gown laid out on her bed.

"Oh, not that!" she said—and naturally, to her eternal credit, for she could have screamed so like was the thing to that long-gone Sunday frock—"I'm too fired and pale. Get me something else—pink! There's a pink thing somewhore."

where."
As she bathed her face in scented water she hid her drawn mouth in the sponge, for one blessed instant let it work as it would. Oh, lucky, lucky Nel Annesley, who had only cold water to wash in, and could let her eyes swell if she liked! But when Lady Levallion laid down her damask towel and stood to be dressed in a loose dinner-gown of pale-rose crepe de chine she was far more lowly than even that far-away girl had been. If her eyes were somber it was only natural when she had seen a man drop like death at far more lowly than even that far-away girl had been. If her eyes were somber it was only natural when she had seen a man drop like death at her feet. At Levallion's knock her cheeks blazed suddenly.

"Well?" she said, as he entered and her maid discreetly vanished. She wondered if Adrian were going to die, or if—and she almost laughed out hysterically—he were coming down to dine with her and Levallion. What a cheerful dinner-party he and she and Levallion!

hysterically—he were coming down to dine with her and Levallion. What a cheerful dinner-party he and she and Levallion!

"I put him to bed. He's only just come to." He sank down into a chair as if he were tired and lit a cigarette.

"Poor devil. I feel sorry for him! He wasn't fit to travel in the first place, and it must have been a shock to him—coming here!"

"Why?" She was almost inarticulate. Did he know? Had Adrian told? Oh, of course, not, No man is likely to tell another that he has behaved like a villain to that other's wife. "How do you mean?" and she sat down opposite Levallion in the full light of a rose-colored lamp. She was not afraid, no one should ever say she had been afraid. If it would serve any purpose she would tell Levallion everything now! And with a sudden tightening at her heart-strings knew she could not betray Adrian Gordon in Levallion's house.

"We would have marveled at the kindly voice, the glance without mockery!)

Both made Rayenel feel an unutterable sneak. Why had she never told Levallion all about Adrian?

It would have been better than this. To sleep, to live to eat with him in her house, and to be a stranger to him; hatily, and leaving his stranger to him; hatily, and leaving his sentence unfinished at the scarlet on his wife's face.

"You very absurd person," he said, with the impassive manner she knew meant tenderness, "don't look so appalled. He may come in for it yet."

But I congratulate you on the artist. By the way, Lord Levallion, if you could keep me tonight, I should like to stay with Captain Gordon."

We would have marveled at the kindly voice the glance without mockery!)

Both made Rayenel feel an unutterable sneak. Why had she never told Levallion all about Adrian?

It would have been better than this. To sleep, to live to eat with him in her house, and to be a stranger to him; hating him in one breath, loving in the next, false either way to the bread she ate. "What was that?" she said feverishly, longing for the time when she could leave the room. "I heard the bell ring."

The dining-room was close to the hall door, its own door open; and a dull murmur of voices of the down the surveyed him through the lower bilind of the down door open; and a dull murmur of voices of the down the surveyed him through the lower bilind of the down door open; and a dull murmur of voices of the down door open; and a dull murmur of voices of the down door open; and a dull murmur of voices of the down door open; and a dull murmur of voices of the down door open; and a dull murmur of voices of the down door open; and a dull

But it was not a girl's shyness that had flamed out in her face, but hot shame for Adrian, who had said he was too poor to make her an offer openly. She moved restlessly. How long was he to stay under her roof?—that should have been his.

openly. She moved restlessly. How long was he to stay under her roof?—that should have been his.

He looked very ill," she said.

"Men do with a splintered bone in their arm, and fever," Levallion returned, rather dryly.

"He can't be moved for some time, I fancy. You will have to do the Good Samaritan, Ravenel, and cheer him back to life."

"I hate sick people!" cried Ravenel hastily, and grew red again at her lie. "Yes, I do, Levallion. Don't ever dare to get ill."

"Well, there'll be 'dearth of woman's nursing and lack of woman's tears' then!" dryly. "I can't say I ever saw any great restorative in the latter, except, perhaps to the woman." throwing his cigarette into the grate. He had always known she was hard. Why did it come on him now like a dash of cold water?

"God knows I'm hard enough myself!" he thought, as he made his way to his own dressingroom. "But she did not seem to have any pity for the poor devil."

It was odd sorrow he felt himself for Adrian, who had been so incoherently anxious to get back to town and not be a nuisance. Lord Levallion was rather ashamed of his own weakness; it would have pleased him to have had his wife fuss pityingly over his ousted heir and let him take refuge in cynical comments.

"Though he mayn't be so' ousted after all," He did a little cynical remark on his own account. "I may be rejoiced with squalling brats." But something dark came into his face as if a past folly had suddenly crept from its grave and faced him.

"It is better to strike into a new life and go to dinner." said Lord Levallion aloud to the

her.
"Have some of this, Houghton?" Said Leval-

"Have some of this, Houghton?" Said Levallion, as she refused a dish. "My wife is delightfully honest—and hard-hearted. She does not like made dishes, or people when they're ill."
"One will lead to the other with you," Ravenel returned calmly, and laughed, for she had seen Houghton's quick glance at her averted face, and she felt as if he could read there all that Levallion could not of her horror at this guest who might be dying under her roof.

But Doctor Houghton was looking now at his plate, just as if he had not seen her dilated pupils, her hard, set mouth.

"It's very good, but it tastes almost too much of almonds!" he observed framkly. "What is it?"
"Only chicken, done with almonds and chestnuts. I've a new cook, who can manage almonds. I shall have something made of them every day."
"Which will prabably send you to your graye!"

I shall have something made of them every day."
"Which will probably send you to your grave!"

Why had she never told Levallion all about Adrian?

It would have been better than this. To sleep, to live, to eat with him in her house, and to be a stranger to him; hating him in one breath, loving in the next, false either way to the bread she ate. "What was that?" she said feverishly, longing for the time when she could leave the room. "I heard the bell ring."

The dining-room was close to the hall door, its own door open; and a dull murmur of voices came from outside. Levallion half-rose—and sat down again. The thing in his thoughts was idiotic, impossible.

"It's late for a visiter, but you can do anything in the country!" he remarked cheerfully. "What was that, Masters?" for the hall door had shut and no one had come in.

"A lady, my lord! Come to inquire for Captain Gordon."

"A lady!" he looked utterly taken aback—for was that, Masters?" for the hall door had shut and no one had come in.

"A lady, my lord! Come to inquire for Captain Gordon."

"A lady!" he looked utterly taken aback—for Lord Levallion. "Who was it?"

"I couldn't say, my lord." (Every servant in the house but Levallion's valet was new, perhaps with reason.) "She was walking."

"Well. we live and learn!" said Levallion piously, as the servants for the moment disappeared. "And I, who thought my young friend had nearly killed himself to come and see me!" he had had time to go over the list of his country neighbors, and knew Adrian had come to see none of them, even as he spoke. She must have come down with him.

Doctor Houghton glanced quite purposely at his hostess and looked away with haste, for the Lady Levallion sat white and speechless. It was not enough for Adrian to come and confront her brazenly, but he must needs bring a woman down with him—the woman probably of the gold-wire ring.

"She knows who it was!" Houghton reflected swiftly, and then felt sorry for her.

"Most romantic!" Levallion broke the silence with a lazy laugh. "They say he travels the fastest who travels alone, but in my experience, company adds to the pace. I hope the lady's anxiety will not keep her awake."

And, clever as he undeniably was, it never occurred to Houghton that where Lady Levallion was angry by guesswork, Lord Levallion was in a black rage, born of certain knowledge.

"Though I can't understand what she has to do with that young fool up-stairs!" he reflected grimly, as Houghton returned to the invalid. "Nor why she came. But I may find out!"

whistled as he turned his horse's nead down an unfrequented lane, where he might collect his thoughts.

No one had come down with Captain Gordon, whose arm, in its black sling, had excited the pity of the whole village; there was not a woman staying at the inn or at any of the lodging-houses. Lord Levallion was annoyed that he could not put two and two together and fit the coming of Adrian Gordon with that woman's voice in his own hall.

"If she's living in this neighborhood, she'll not do it long!" he reflected angrily. "But, as far as I know, there's nowhere for her to live. Unless"—he stopped his horse, gave a stiffed exclamation, as the lane rounded a sharp turn.

On his left hand, where a vacant field had run up to the outlying edge of his own woods, stood a brand-new, gim-crack bungalow in a new garden; and strolling about it leisurely was a woman in a dove-colored gown.

Levallion's worn, handsome face turned absolutely bloodless, but his insolent stare never turned from that small, dainty figure in the garish garden.

"Gad! This is a charming surprise," he said softly. "Charming. And if Adrian had nothing to do with it, how the devil did she know he was here, when I thought he was dead? Ah!" he smiled—a smile Sylvia would have known, but not Ravenek.

For the woman in the garden had turned, had pretended into to see him, and incontinently vanished into the house. Lord Levallion got on his horse, and cantered through the gate.

"I think not," he observed to himself acidly. And if he were middle-aged and worn, he was yet a sufficiently terrifying figure to the eyes that surveyed him through the lower blind of the drawing-room window as he sauntered up to the house. Without the slight formality of knocking, he opened the door, the dove-colored fugitive had not thought of locking, and walked in.

"I am here," he observed politely. "There is no occasion to stare out of the window for me."

Hester Murray gave a frightnende start in spite of herself. She turned with two bright, pink patches on her thin cheeks, and tried—unsuccessfully—after his pretty manners.

"Oh! How do you do? I was not sure it was you." Her outstretched hand was not steady.

"You may reassure yourself as to that. It is 1—and I am quite as usual, thank you." He put down his riding-crop and his hat with neatness, and. very quietly, closed the door.

"Now," he said—and if ever a devil looked from a man's eyes it was from Levallion's—"may I ask what you are doing here?"

"Living here." Levallion could have laughed aloud as he remembered how many times she had assured him she was hever afraid of any one. "But you knew that or you would not have come to see me." She sat down, her one ring—that was a wedding-ring—shining oddly conspicuous on her nervous hand.

"Tho months," unwillingly. "But I'm really hardly settled. I did not want you and Lady Levallion to know of me till I was all arranged. But, of course, now I shall be delighted to call on her." She was no

Levallion shrugged his shoulders.
"For a man who concerned you not at all, I think you wasted shoe-leather," he said, and in his eyes was a kind of amusement that confused his eyes was a kind of amusement that contained her.

"I—he was good to me once!" with a momentary flash of inspiration. "Is he—is he dying?" for she must know, since if he were not particularly ill, she would have her work cut out to hide how she had paid him for that honest kindness by doing Sylvia Annelsey's dirty work. For, of course, that girl would tell him. And—there were other things. Oh! why couldn't the man die?

"It would do you no good if he did die, which is not in the least likely," remarked Levallion is not in the least likely."

is not in the least likely," remarked Levallion blandly, having seen her last thought on her face. "It would not soften my heart toward you; though I grant you it might have, once."

The woman sprang mp as he had struck her. "You are a devil, a cruel, cold devil!" she said between her small teeth—and he had never noticed before how sharp and feline they were. "You've no heart, no pity——"

"Neither had you," interrupting her with so much more truth than he knew that she was frightened and sobered. "But I have not come to discuss either of our personal attributes, but to tell you," slowly, "that there are six trains a day by which you may leave this neighborhood—and stay away;" his voice was perfectly level, but yet Mrs. Murray drew away from him before —and stay away;" his voice was perfectly level, but yet Mrs. Murray drew away from him before she answered.

but yet Mrs. Murray drew away from him before she answered.

"I've nowhere to go," she said sullenly. "I came here because it was cheap."
"I can assure you that you'll find it remarkably dear," dryly, "and where's the London house?"
"I couldn't afford the rent any Jonges."
"I consider you've plenty of money." shortly, "It costs more every day." She did not say what, nor did he ask her.
"Where's Murray?" Levallion, he best knew "why, was, holding himself hard.
For the first time she looked him in the face and told the truth.
"I don't know and I don't care!" she said viciously, "He said he was sick of the business—and me—and he never meant to set eyes on me again."

again."
"Poor devil." said Lord Levallion slowly.
It was the last straw. Hester Murray quivered from head to foot with ungovernable rage.
"You can't send me away from here!" she

'CONTINUED ON PAGE 16.)

"Make Your Spare Time Pay," Says Rockefeller

Put in your spare time to best advantage now by getting up subscription clubs and earning valuable premiums or cash commissions.

All things conspire to make quick and easy work of getting COMFORT subscriptions now at the present yearly rate of 25 cents, because people know the rate is going to 35 cents, and because they all want our exceptionally interesting Liberty Number in February and our great March Household Number.

Begin getting subscriptions today and write for our new Premium Catalogue sent you free on request.

Comfort Sisters' Corner

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 5.)

best of all dispositions. Fil give up!

It seems to me that my life has been one disappointment heaped onto another but I am trying bard to think that the Father is taking this means of making it into something for some particular purpose and maybe my bearing my burden alone I may be better fitted for the future. I am a firm believer in "What is to be will be."

I am about five feet six inches in height; quite stout, have brown eyes and hair and a clear brunette complexion. Am twenty-nine years old.

A Lonely Old Maid.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTLES.

I have just read a letter from a sister who suggests that we write on "How I Helped my Husband.
I help mine by cooking for from six to eight men. I get from thirty-five to forty dollars a month and ampaying for a Liberty Bond out of my wages.
I come to ask a favor of you. I live so far from town that it is impossible to get vegetables of any-kind, except canned ones and I have to use canned milk and also have very little butter and very feweggs to use so would like recipes the sisters might have for making different dishes of canned goods.
Success to Comport and sisters. Miss. L. W.

Mrs, L. W. You are not only helping your husband and yourself but by the purchase of a Liberty Bond (and I'm sure it was a generous one), you are helping "win the war." How many more of the sisters are doing the same thing and how are you paying for them? Let's have all the original ideas along that line that we can.—Ed.

TENNESSEE.

DEAR COMPORT SISTERS:

After reading Mrs. G. W. B. E.'s letter I have courage to write, as her life is much like my own. I, too, was married when quite young, respecting my husband only and how deeply I am paying for it God alone knows. I try to be brave and wear a smile but through it all I wonder why it is men do not realize how much a woman appreciates a kind word, sympathy, encouragement, or, at least, a pleasant smile. So take warning, Mary and all others.

I am sending my favorite poem.

With love and best wishes,

China.

A little word in kindness spoken, A motion or a tear, Has often healed the heart that's broken And made a friend sincere.

A word, a look, has crushed to earth Full many a budding flower, Which, had a smile but owned its birth, Would bless life's darkest hour.

Then deem it not an idle thing
A pleasant word to speak,
The face you wear, the thought you bring,
A heart may heal or break. -Whittier.

SWEETWATER, OKLA.

Comfort Sisters:

To those of you having husbands and sons going to war I want to send my sympathy. My boy volunteered the last of March in the navy and has made two trips to France and is on his third trip now, somewhere over the sea. It seemed that it was more than I could bear but being a mother I tried to be brave and made his last day at home as pleasant as possible. I planned all the dishes he liked best and in our talks I let him know I was proud of him and that I counted on him to do his bit and that we would help all we could too. I write to him of home and all the little things that happen around here, but never a sad letter goes out to him, for if our boys are to do their best they must be kept happy.

To the mother whose children are dissatisfied, keep them interested and let them see that you love them and have an interest in them. The children grow tired of having everything always the same. They want to help plan, if it is only repapering the rooms and moving the furniture around or selecting new curtains. Let them care for the yard, for with trees, shrubs, grass, vines and flowers our homes can be very attractive and children want to be proud of their homes. Supply the home with good reading matter. Let them subscribe to some good magazines. Make your children's friends, your friends, encourage them to invite them to your home and give them a good time and tell them to come often. Suggest a party of some kind to them and see how they will fall in with your plans. Strive to keep their confidence and I think you will find them contented. Mas, M. E. Frence.

Mrs. French. Words fail me when I en-deavor to express my sympathy, but every moth-er heart can understand just how you feel and you have the prayers of all the sisters for the safe return of your boy—and all the other boys who are serving their country. The following poem, by Folger McKinsey, sent in by Miss Edna Stock-inger, Batesville, Ind., shows how the Brave mothers are regarded.—Ed.

The Mother of a Soldier

"The mother of a soldier—hats off to her, I say!
The mother of a soldier who has gone to face the fray.
She gave him to her country with a blessing on his head—

She found his name this morning in the long list of the dead;
'Killed—Sergeant Thomas Watkins, while leading on the rest,
A Bible in his pocket and a portrait on his breast.'

"The mother of a soldier—she gave him to her land,
She saw him on the transport as he waved his sunbrowned hand.
She kissed him through the teardrops and she told him to be brave;
Her prayers went hight and morning with her boy upon the wave.

The mother of a soldier—her comfort and her She gave her dearest treasure when she gave h joy.

bey; She saw the banners waving, she heard the people She clasped ber hands and bravely looked away to hide a tear.

their creed; But don't forget the mothers through all the lonely

That

"Nay, don't forget the mothers-the mothers of our

Who see them go and never know that they'll come back again;
That gave them to their country to battle and to die,
Eccuse the bugles call them and the starry banners fly.

The mother of a soldier—hats off to her I say! Vhose head is bowed in sorrow with its touching locks Whose head is bowed in sorrow with its touching tocks of gray;

She gave without regretting, though her old heart sorely bled

When she found his name this morning in the long list of the dead;

Killed-Sergeant Thomas Watkins, while leading on the rest,

His dear old mother's portrait clasped upon his hero breast'!"

Dear Mrs. Wilkinson and Comfort Sisters:

Will you allow a newcomer in your circle? I do hope I am not intruding, but after reading the splendid letters in a back number, I want to write a line, especially in regard to your letter Estella M. Fraver, as you expressed my sentiment exactly in regard to divorce and hasty marriage. We are about the same age, and the probability of being "Old Maids" holds not terror for us does it? Some people think it is a disgrace, but I think it a life of deceit (and that is what it would be if you did not truly love the man) and it would be a deeper disgrace. Too many girls marry without first considering what will be expected of them; no wonder there are so many divorces. Who could expect a man to be happy with someone who does not will be little missed. I used vegetables freely, potatose especially in a variety of ways, and apples both cooked and raw. Watching the little wastes has become not only my privilege, but that of each member of my family; there are six of us. Together we are "following the flag" which stands for the glory of service.

WHAT the HOME CARD MEANS TO ME

OUR NEW YEAR RESOLUTION.—That as long as this war lasts we will eat primarily for health and strength rather than pleasure. We believe that food should be made as attractive as possible, as dainty dishes stimulate the appetite and aid the digestion, but during this war our great duty in conserving food must be kept ever before us. Save the foods which can be shipped abroad and eat no more than the body demands. It seems a little thing and yet it is a great thing,—this daily saying of food.

By a Comfort Subscriber

Copyright, 1917, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

ANGING over my kitchen table is the Home Card of the United States Food Administration, a constant reminder that I am pledged to save food for the hungry peoples looking to America for the sustenance of life itself, until the farms war shall end and their own men return to the farms.

When my attention was first called to this great program for food conservation, I classed myself with that immense group of American housewives who, through strict economy and faithful toil have helped acquire a profitable farm and a comfortable surplus besides, and that there was little more I could do by way of frugality. However, in good faith, I signed the card that entitled me to membership in the Food Administration, and already a closer scrutiny has brought to light many hitherto unnoticed food wastes in my household.

Many a time I have wished some hungry boy or girl might have had the good food wasted by being left on the various plates, and at times the trouble of saving small left-over portions seemed more than they were worth. But now, with the world food shortage constantly before me, I realize it is not a question of what I can personally afford to discard, but a question of Our Problem to ship wheat, beef, pork, dairy products and sugar to our Allies. This means I

A MEMBER OF A UNITED STATES ADMINISTRATION

The Home Card, like the above, but much larger and rinted in colors, should hang in the window of every loyal

It is lissued by the Government in token that the recipient has joined the U. S. Food Administration by signing the piedge card.

It is issued by the Government in the second of the U.S. Food Administration by signing the piedge card.

It is accompanied by another card, to be hung in the kitchen, stating how the member is expected to regulate her household economy. They cost you nothing.

If you have received the piedge card by mail and have not already signed and returned it as requested in the instructions which came with it, you should do so at once.

If you have not received the piedge card apply to the person canvassing your neighborhood or, if none, write to U.S. Food Administration, Washington, D.C.

of which we have an abundance, that I must s gave her dearest treasure when she gave her only bay; saw the banners waving, she heard the people cheer.

clasped her hands and bravely looked away to hide a tear.
the mother of a soldier—oh, cheer the hero dead.
d cheer the brave who battle 'neath the banner of their creed:
t don't forget the mothers through all the lonely years, at fight the bravest battles on the sunless field of fears.

Ay, don't forget the mothers—the mothers of our men, osee them go and never know that they'll come back again; at gave them to their country to battle and to die, ause the bugles call them and the starry banners of the content of the conten food just for convenience.

We eat practically no white bread and very little meat. We find hot corn bread delicious, and if any is left over it is oven toasted and covered

Camouflage of Meat Recipes Named for the Children

FRIED CHICKEN AND VEAL-BALLS WITH FRENCH FRIED POTATOES.

pound of raw chopped beef, half a can of tomatoes, or three raw ones, and salt and pepper to taste. Cover with bread crumbs and bake one hour in a moderately hot oven, covering tightly the first half hour.

Novella's Meat Pie.—Take left-over mashed potatoes and line earthern baking dish one and one half inch deep.

FILLING.—Stew one cup of celery stalks about one hour, letting the water nearly boil out, and then add enough corn meal to take up the remaining moisture, and slowly simmer fifteen minutes. Chop one cup of cooked veal or mutton fine and brown lightly in frying pan, having about two tablespoons of fat left in pan when meat is brown. Put celery in pan of meat and stir together. Season with salt and pepper, parsley and onion juice if preferred. Fill pie with meat mixture, cover with a layer of mashed potato, brush with egg yolk and bake until potatoes puff. The egg may be omitted. Use about three cups of mashed potato.

REGINALD'S FAVORITE.—Into a stew pan put two carrots, one fair sized turnip cut in quarters and cook twenty minutes. Drain and slice and add one cup of tomatoes. Use for three layers in baking dish, covering each layer with cooked rice or hominy, add a tablespoon of meat drippings or gravy. Cover with three medium-sized potatoes that have been been boiled five minutes in salted water and sliced. Dot with fat, sprinkle with salt 'and pepper, and bake two hours in a moderate oven. More gravy or fat may be used.

TEDDY'S BEAN PORRIDE.—Soak two cups of small white heaps in cold water. In the morning ny be used. Teddy's Bean Porridge.—Soak two cups of TEDDY'S BEAN PORRIDGE.—Soak two cups of small white beans in cold water. In the morning drain and rinse, and put on to cook in one quart of cold water. Cook until skins crack open when a spoonful is exposed to air. Drain and add a quart of boiling salted water and cook until soft. Put through colander or potato ricer and return to kettle. Add one tablespoon of molasses, one third of a teaspoon of mustard, one scant tablespoon of mild vinegar, salt and pepper to taste, and one tablespoon of meat drippings. Cook slowly twenty minutes and serve with thin slices of oven toasted brown bread.

Other Recipes That Help in Conservation

FISH CROQUETTES.—Two cups of cold cooked the minced fine; season with salt and pepper,

BAKED SOY BEANS.

lemon and onion juice, and one cup of croquette mixture. Shape, dip in crumbs, egg and crumbs, and fry.

CROQUETTE MIXTURE.—Melt three tablespoons of clarified fat drippings in a sauce pan. When it bubbles, slowly work in five tablespoons of dry flour, season with salt and pepper, and cook slowly five minutes. Add one cup of hot milk, stir constantly, cooking five minutes larger. Colory it bubbles, slowly work in five tablespoons of dry flour, season with salt and pepper, and cook slowly five minutes. Add one cup of hot milk, stir constantly, cooking five minutes longer. Celery salt, onion and lemon juice may be added.

Salt Fish Balls.—Wash and cut into inch pieces one cup of raw salt fish; add double the amount of raw potatoes cut into quarters. Put into a stew pan, and not quite cover with boiling water; cook until the potatoes can be pierced with a fork—not mushy. Drain, and shake over hot cover until quite dry and fluffy. Mash, season with pepper and salt, add teaspoon of drippings or cream, and one well beaten egg. Beat hard, and drop by spoonfuls in smoking hot fat. The secret of success is to have the fat very hot, and not drop in too many at a time; then they will not soak fat.

Salmon Loaf.—One half cup of salmon, one half cup of stale bread crumbs, one beaten egg, to one half cup of milk, salt, pepper, lemon and onion juice to taste. Put into greased individual cups and bake twenty minutes. Spread buttered bread crumbs over top.

UNCLE SAM's "Fifty-Fifty" Biscuits.—Two cups of corn meal, ground soy beans, or finely ground peanuts, rice flour, or other substitute, two cups of white flour, four teaspoons of baking owder, and two teaspoons of salt, all sifted to ther. Cut four tablespoons of cold shortening powder, and two teaspoons of salt, all sifted to gether. Cut four tablespoons of cold shortening into the mixture with a knife finally rubbin it in with the hands. Mix quickly with cold milk, skim milk, or water, forming a fairly soil dough which can be handled on the board. Turn out onto floured board, shape into ball by pressing instead of kneading, so as to hindle as little as possible, and roll one half inch thick. Cut into rounds and bake ten to twelve minutes in a rither hot oven. If pranits are used, the roasted and shelled nuts should be finely crushed with a rolling pin. In using peanits, it is better to mix them in after other dry ingreshints have been sifted together twice, as some of the peanits may max them in after other dry ingredients have beset sifted together twice, as some of the peanuts may be too coarse for the sifter.

APPLE BUTIER Before the windfalls or wormy apples have laid long enough to have their flavor spoiled, it is good economy to make them into apple butter, which is nourishing and whoesome, and partly takes the place of fresh fruit. The fresher and better the apples, the better will the butter be.

Boil two gallons of sweet chlor down to come.

The fresher and better the appies, the better was the butter be.

Boil two gallons of sweet cider down to one ralion. Partly cook into sauce two gallons of neepared apples (cored and sliced) without surar, using a little sweet cider to start the cooking Add apple sauce to boiled down cider, and very slowly cook from four to six hours, stirring frequently. If surar is used when the cooking is two thirds done, add about two pounds, though the sugar is wholly a matter of taste. When the cooking is finished, add cinnamon, allspace and cloves; much again cinnamon as other spaces or cinnamon and a little nutneg is liked by many Put into sterilized bottles or jars, with thorough precautions against spoiling as with any other preserve.

Mary's Hash.—Boil one cup of rice and drain unless the rice takes up all the water. Chop two onions fine and lightly brown in a little beef fat in frying pan. Mix together and add half a thin apple sauce. Brown sugar is used instead of white. If a grape flavor is desired, it may be obtained by the use of grape juice in the proportion of one pound to each gallon of the peeled and sliced apple, with an extra cup of brown sugar and one quarter of a teaspoon of salt When the desired thickness is obtained, add one teaspoon of cinnamon.

and sliced apple, with an extra cup of brown sugar and one quarter of a teaspoon of salt When the desired thickness is obtained, add one teaspoon of cinnamon.

FRIED VEAL AND CHICKEN BALLS WITH FRIED POTATO.—Chop fine the remains of chicken and veal; add boiled rice and milk or cream to make into balls. Season, Roll in cracker crumbs and fry brown in deep fat. Serve with slices of fried potato, and strips of fried bacon which reheat well in a hot oven.

Corn Meal Mush and Fruit,—Have salted water boiling hard, and slowly add corn meal that has been moistened with cold water. This will prevent lumping. As meal varies, it is difficult to give exact proportions, but it should not be too stiff when it is cooked. Mush cooked one hour is far more delicious than if cooked a shorter time, as it takes on a nutty flavor. In individual dishes, put a serving of stewed prunes that have been stoned and some prune juice, and while hot pour over a serving of the mush. A few spoonfuls of rich cream adds greatly to the flavor and nourishment. Preserves may be used in the same way.

Baked Soy Beans.—Soy beans used formerly as forage, have constantly grown in favor as a healthful and delicious food. They require a little more cooking and care than pea beans. Put into tepid water and soak over night, and parboil until the skins crack open. Bake ten hours in a pot or casserole with salt pork, and one tablespoon each of molasses and sugar, and half a teaspoon of salt to every pint of dry beans. New Year's Resolution Pudding.—Pare and boil five small pofatoes until a fork will just pierce them through; mash and add four tablespoons of good cooking fat, two well-beaten eggs, one half cup of milk, one quarter teaspoon of salt, one half cup of milk, one quarter teaspoon of salt, one half cup of milk, one quarter teaspoon of salt, one half cup of milk, one quarters of an hour. Boil one large beet and cut from it the letters U. S. and with tooth picks fasten on side of pudding which has been turned onto serving plate. At the base, place sh

SEEDS Grand Trial Offer $2.00 Samples only 10c. We will mail the following 22 Packets choicest Fresh, Reliable Vegetable and Flower Seeds for 10c. Money returned if not assistatory. BEET, Crosby's Egyptian, best, sweetest early sork. CABBACE, Now Glory, early, sure header, Large. CARROT, Perfect, Half-long, best table sort. CELERY, Brittle Winter, best, crispest. Keeps welk. CUCUMBER, Emerald White Spine, great favorite, LETTUCE, Groam Butter, tender, popular heads. CUGUMBER, Emorald White Spine, great favorite LETTUCE, Croam Butter, tender, popular heads, MUSKMELON, Swoetest Cem, best garden melon, WATERMELON, Deposit Early, earliest, sweetest, ONION, Prizetakor, weight 3 lbs., 1000 bus. per acr PARSLEY, Triple Curlod, best, most ornamentals. PARSNIP, improved Guernsoy, smooth, sweet. RADISH, White ictole, best, carly, long, tender. TOMATO, Greater Battimore, best, large, smooth, ASTERS, Show mixed. waves of Cold, fine. Waves of Cold, fine. Finks, 50 Grand Sorts. POPPIES, Showy Sorts. ANNUALS, 500 Sorts. Catalog and 10c check free. TOMATO, Creater Battlmore, best, large, smooth, ASTERS, Show mixed. AVYES OF COLD, fit PINKS, 50 Grand Sort COSMOS, Early Clant. KOCHIA, Grand foliage, MIGHONETTE, Sweet. DEPOSIT SEED CO., Deposit, N. Y. Tib packets Grand Large Plevering Sweet Peas, 10.

EVER-BEARING plants S1.25 STRAWBERRY postpaid S1.25 O. K. also Big 20th Century Catalog Free fully cour millions of small fruit plants and how to grow 100 EVER-BEARING STRAWBERRY them. Get the book at once making Townsend's Way your ways.

E. W. TOWNSEND PLANT FARMS. R R 10, Sainbury, Maryland.

DAHLIAS 1400 kinds. New Millionaire and Billionaire. Geo. L. Sullman, Dahlia Specialist, Westerly, R. I., Box T-8.

Strawberry FREE To introduce out Pedigreed Ever-PLANTS FREE bearing strawberries we will send 25 fine plants free. CORSOLIDATED NURSERI CO., ST. LOWIS, MO.

Comfort Sisters' Corner

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7.)

time, spent in "having a good time" were put into learning how to cook, bake and sew properly, there would be fewer heartaches and misunderstandings later on; at least I would not want "His" grounds for divore to be slovenness or negligence. But the girl is not wholly to blame; mothers should rear their daughters so that they would be capable of filling the important place of "Home maker."

They say love is blind and perhaps it is, but I believe if I were a man, I would "call" unexpectedly sometimes, just to see who cooks the meals or washes the dishes, she or her mother? And by the way, how many of you boys take her off to some place of anusement and her "mother" at home in that hot, stuffy kitchen, battling with dirty dishes? Perhaps you do not know it, but that is very often the case. There will be more happiness and fewer regrets when we girls learn to take more of the burdens off our little mothers, and above all, don't be afraid of being an "Old Maid." Wait patiently for "Mr. Right" and in the meantime, let's learn all we possibly can, so we will be "really and truly "Miss Right" as there are too many "Miss Wrongs" and the divorce courts are getting them.

Best wishes to Compone to the surface of will be ready too many "Miss Wrongs" and the disconnecting them.

Best wishes to Comfort readers,

MISS LULA V. JANICKE.

CARROLLS, WASH.

Dear Comfort Sisters:

Here are some of the ways I help my husband and, of course, myself. Last February we decided to homestead as we had tried twice to pay for a place and after paying quite a sum, no work and sickness caused us to lose. We had a team and a cow, but would have done it just the same, so came up here in the mountains with about thirteen dollars cash and lived till my husband could do some planting and then he went away to work in April, coming home once a week, getting home late Saturday night and going back Sunday noon.

Now I am four miles from the mailbox and neighbors and all of twelve miles from town. Once every week I get on my horse and go after the mail and if there are any important letters that need answering I go again.

I planted and cared for a big garden and have carried hay nearly a mile for our stock, by putting it in two sacks and holding it onto the horse's back as I rode. I made as many as three trips a day for a month. We have no road at all for a mile and making a road through these hills and timber is a big proposition. I milk the cow, after humting her up when she falls to come home, feed the calf and care for our two horses, besides keeping the house, barn and chicken coop clean. Hubby was home during the summer to put up hay that we raised among the summer to put up hay that we raised among the summer to put up hay that we raised among the summer to swithin a mile of us with spuds, which I dug myself and while we did not raise a great many we will have enough. I canned beans, peas, strawberries, raspberries, wild blackberries, loganberries, pie plant, put up butter in strong brine, also cucumbers, I would climb up the hills to my garden, weed and hoe in the hot sun and then come home to more work. Had to carry water a short distance. I do all my own sewing, make rugs, quilts and crochet and read all I can get to read. Had a flower bed and the pansies lasted till very late and were so beautiful. There is an old orchard two and one half miles away and first come gets thei to keep up, but we will get there just the same, in time.

Miss Dolly Hull, you have the same God I have. Is not Nature a wonderful thing?

Miss E. V. O., if you were near I'd adopt you for a sister or big girl. I do not know where I can get a child that is the right age to go with me and be a companion. I could not care for a baby as I have to be out so much.

Mrs. V. M., don't look for true love. I do not know what it is if it is what young married women gush about or we read about. I have found the best way is to do one's duty as it comes, day by day, make the most of what one has and help others all one can.

If anyone writes, send stamp,

Mrs. Gaestet. I greatly feared that a recital of your many labors would frighten away some sister possessing less strength than you have but finally decided that each helps in her own way, so hope we'll get the "ways" of others. Be careful, my dear, of yourself and don't over tax your strength, for you have much to be thankful for.—Ed.

MILL GROVE, IND.

Dear Comfort Sisters:

I have just finished reading Mary Heinsohn's letter in July Comfort and I wonder how many farmers' wives laughed as heartily over it as I did? My dear Mary, I fear you have formed an erroneous opinion of the farmers from the few you have come in contact with. To find a real, live farmer you should come farther west than New Jersey. In the highly civilized East they are agriculturists. Isn't it rather a sweeping statement when you say most farmers sell their fresh produce for poorer substitutes? No doubt the few you have known, did so, but they are not what the people of the middle or western states would call farmers. I am a farmer's wife and must plead guilty to a shocking bit of ignorance—oleo is something I have often heard of but have never seen, nor have I ever known of farmers that used it. As for salt pork, a real farmer raises his own pork and cures it himself. As for offickens, there aren't many farmers in this "back of the woods" who would go to a church supper for chicken for they are served at least once a day on their tables through the harvest season, which lasts from July until cold weather. If you could travel from house to house through the farming districts there would be very few houses in which you would not find plenty of books and newspapers. As for opportunities, education is compulsory in the states of Indiana and Ohio. I speak with personal knowledge of these two states. I have found that farming gives better returns for time and energy expended, than any other labor, if you are farming good ground.

From a real farmer, Mes. Cora Beeson.

From a real farmer, MRS. Cora BEESON.

RIPLEY, GA.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

To the lady who wanted to hear from some one who had taken the milk diet I want to say that I am speaking from personal experience. Last year from May till August I had chills and fever. Nothing helped me for long at a tine. About the first of last September I heard of the milk diet—through Comport. I weighed only ninety-four pounds then, and I am five feet, five inches tall—fifteen years old. I procured milk enough to take two glasses at morning, one at noon and two at night, drinking from eight to ten glasses of water each day, mostly eight. I kept this up every day and the first of November I weighed one hundred and three pounds. In January I weighed one hundred and fourteen pounds and now I weigh five pounds more than that. Don't you think it worth giving a trial?

What do you think about the war? I think every one should serve his country, either at home or on the battle-field. The women, children and old men can devote their time to raising food, preventing waste, etc. I work every day digging grass from around the cotton, hoeing corn, peas, potatoes and vegetables. There are four of us children so we divide the work among us. Father is sixty-three years old and not able to do much plowing so this year he hired a man to do it but since we have declared war on Germany he says he isn't going to hire help another year and if he doesn't I'll have to learn to plow so I can help him in plowing for crops. But won't that be great! Holding down a man-sized job and really and truly helping my country.

Sisters, try our plan and see how you like it. We, the girls and women of our neighborhood, met and begin planning how we could prevent waste. We decided to can certything in the vegetable line, destroy rats and other pests of our farm products, cultivate our farms properly, care for our stock and poultry as they should be cared for, as nearly as we know how, and Comfort helps us greatly in that.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 15.)

Miss Brent's Orphan

By Anne McQueen

(See front cover illustration)

Copyright, 1917, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

R. LOUIS ARNAULT, American surgeon "somewhere in France," was on his way to his quarters after a hard morning's work in the hospital; he was desperately tired, and—though he didning. A table piled with packages for the wounded soldiers stood in the anteroom. As Dr. Arnault passed it he accidentally brushed off a bulky bundle wrapped in brown paper. "Looks like the packages mother used to send me, when I was at school," he mused, glancing at the address, written upon it in a dainty, feminine hand: "For an Orphan of France," read the superscription, distinctly.

"Doughnuts, I'll bet a cooky," sniffed the Doctor, longingly, "and maybe jam—gee, but I'm hungry! This bundle got mixed up—no orphans, here, and sick soldiers can't eat doughnuts." He mused a minute, and a satisfied smile spread over his face—"the kind of smile the cat wears when it has just eaten up the canary."

"I'm an orphan," triumphantly asserted Dr. Arnault, to himself. "Of France' and 'In France' mean practically the same. Also, my ancestors were Huguenots—and my name's French. I'll just take my dues to my own quarters!"

Warily he glanced around, and saw that no witnesses were near before he tucked the bulky package under the long coat hung over his arm, and hurriedly made his way to his own quarters, where he securely shut himself in with his stolen Eagerly he opened the package. "If it's toys now, I'm a thief for nothing," he commented, as-R. LOUIS ARNAULT, American surgeon goods.

Eagerly he opened the package. "If it's toys now, I'm a thief for nothing," he commented, asthe layers of brown paper unrolled, "but my nose tells me it's doughnuts;"

It reas doughnuts; a greasy, spicy-smelling inner wrapping covered a tin box which was packed with them—the very spiciest, sugariest, homiest doughnuts Dr. Arnault had seen since the days of his boyhood. And, in one corner was a jar filled with peach preserves. His theft was amply justified!

For several blissful minutes the dector republication.

tified!

For several blissful minutes the doctor gobbled doughnuts and peach preserves as happily as any orphan in all France; then, with a sigh of content, he explored further, finding, wrapped in oil paper, a letter addressed in the same feminine hand as the inscription on the package.

"Writes like mother, even—and a real woman, for she didn't crowd a lot of foolish toys in—she knew just what would appeal most to a boy's heart—supposing it was a boy orphan she had in mind."

When he opened the letter—the theft of the package had made this permissible, he argued—Dr. Arnault found that the writer did have in mind a boy orphan. The letter read; mind a boy orphan. The letter read:

"Dear Little French Boy:

"We are sending a box to you, over in France, from our village, and I am in such a hurry that I haven't time to look up several things I have in the house—clothes, toys, etc., belonging to my own little brother who died years and years ago. The next time I will send them to you, if you receive this package, and let me know about it. I know that you can't read English, but there are so many of our people over there that I am sure somebody will read this letter to you, and help you to write me one—in English, too, for I cannot read French.

"With my love and best wishes for all of you dear children in France, and hoping you will enjoy some real American cooking, I am,

"Your good friend, Molly Brent."

"Address: Miss M. Brent, Smithville, Vermont,

Miss Molly Brent, my hat's off to you—and bless you for not having time to send the toys!" said the 'orphan of France,' with heartfelt gratitude. "And I'm going to write to you—in English, for I, praise be, speak more than my native tongue. Yes, Miss M. Brent, I am going to thank you properly for these doughnuts—and these ambrosial peach preserves. Strawberry marmalade—pah! these English don't know that we've got the world beat, back home, for preserves."

Before he slept—and he sorely needed sleep, Dr. Arnault wrote the letter, which ran thus:

given so gladly, if he would write and let her know—and she hoped the box would arrive safe-given so gladly, if he would write and let her know—and she hoped the box would arrive safely.

Dr. Arnault took some little time to answer this letter he was rather puzzled how to explain his circumstances. At last, inspired by the genius that befriends deceivers, he composed a letter stating that he was able to earn a living—a poor one "the Lord's truth!" he commented), working about the hospital. His parents were dead, and there was nobody to take care of him, so he must work hard. And he thanked his benefactress, and eloquently praised her "little cakes" and her preserves, which reminded him—truthfully—of the good things his mother used to cook for him. Followed a description, calculated to move the reader to tears, of the little Louis' childhood in his happy home—a charming picture, and quite true, only that Miss Brent would consider it as recent, because he ended, vaguely: "But this—all this happened before the war! Now it is ended forever!" Which was a fact, as Dr. Louis was thirty-five years old, if he was a day!

Came a letter in haste from Miss Brent—a letter that came as quickly as possible, considering the distance and the unavoidable delays on its voyage. She wanted to adopt little Louis for her own son! And, furthermore, she enclosed passage money. "I live on a farm, all alone," she wrote, "and I need you, dear—I am a very lonely woman, and growing no younger with the years. Soon I will be very, very old, and then I want a strong young shoulder to lean upon—a shoulder stong and true like my Louis.' I cried when I read your description of your dear home—before the war! Mine is a little bit like it, Louis, and I will be so glad—so very glad to share it with you. Come and gladden the life of a poor soul who has no one to love her."

"Now then!" whistled Dr. Louis, in dismay, "I can well exclaim with the poet: 'Oh, what a tangled web we weave, when first we practise to deceive!' That poor little soul, so lonely and so dreary. I wish she could get a boy. I'll think ower the affair, and write when I've the news to her, another letter followed fast on the heels of the earlier one, containing woeful news.

Miss Brent, in words that were almost sobs, wrote that it was now impossible to think of adopting any one. "You see, my farm has been mortgaged a long, long time, to a very good old gentleman, who didn't worry me about it. I just forgot it, really. Now he is dead, and his estate will be sold as soon as possible, and all mortgages held by him foreclosed. Mine, alas, will be among them was My farm, my beautiful old home, will be sold, and I, at my age, will have to turn somewhere else for a living. I will go to a city, and study stenography, or bookkeeping, or something. Though I am told the gentlemen in offices only want young and pretty stenographers, which, if true, leaves me out. Maybe, though, I can clerk in a store, or do something. Only the dream of my heart can't come true with regard to you, my dear little orphan of France! Keep the passage money and buy yourself a token in remembrance of me—and be sure that, wherever I go, I will try to keep in touch with you, and maybe still send you doughnuts. I had planned to keep always a big crock in the pantry for you—and preserves and jam, too. Now that is impossible—forever! Still, I can make doughnuts in the city—and buy peaches to preserve. Be sure that I will, and, as soon as I am settled, will write you my address. Do not forget your American mother,

"Damn!" quoth Dr. Louis Arnault, softly and forcibly. "That your old soul turned out of her

Miss Molly Brent, my hat's off to you—and bless you for not having time to send the toys!" said the orphan of France, with heartfelt gratitory. The proban of France, with heartfelt gratitory. The proban of France, with heart of the proban o

—a base one; but nothing to compare to yourself. I am Miss Molly Brent's orphan, and I've just come over from France to be adopted."

"O-o-h," Miss Brent's ejaculation once more reminded the listener of a song-sparrow—or a thrush's sweetest, softest note. "But you can't be Louis?"

"I can—if you are Molly Brent," firmly dethrush's sweetest, softest note. "But you can't be Louis?"

"I can—if you are Molly Brent," firmly declared Dr. Arnault. He took Miss Brent's little fluttering brown hands full of moss-roses and held them fast, so that she couldn't flutter away, like a sparrow, and perch on an apple-tree bough. And he unburdened his soul, telling how he was tempted and fell, and how he had basely deceived her, a trusting woman.

"Your last letter kept me from killing your orphan," he declared, and she winced, and paled at the awful words, "yes, your little Louis was in danger of utter annihilation—preferably by a shell, until I got the letter about the mortgage, in which you basely deceived me—for you are young—and you are pretty—and any gentleman in an office would jump at the chance of having you round, just to open his mail, and let his eyes look upon you—."

"I am thirty—quite thirty," stated Miss Molly Brent, with dignity, and tried to take her hands away—uneffectually.

"I am thirty-five—and you are not old enough for my mother—and I am not young enough for your son. But I am an orphan, Molly Brent, and as_such I need the protecting care of a good woman—."

"Mr.—Mr.—Arnault," fluttered Miss Molly, your son. But I am, an orphan, Molly Brent, and as_such I need the protecting care of a good woman——"

"Mr.—Mr.—Arnault," fluttered Miss Molly, with cheeks flaming the rich color of the peonies by her steps, "please—you forget——"
"I don't forget—except that you deceived me, and it'll be hard to trust a woman again," said Arnault, sadly, "and I'm not Mr., either, I'm a surgeon, and folks call me Dr. Arnault. I'll have you to know, young lady, that even the chief surgeon has praised my work, so there! And, as you are about to add, if I don't know you, I shall stick around until I do! And I shall write for unimpeachable references as to my character and ability to keep a w— a lady to take care of an orphan, who, is alone in a cold world. Molly Brent, are you going to ask me to tea? And will there be doughnuts—and preserves?"
"If you'll let my hands go," promised Molly, "because—because I think I see Jethro, my hired boy, looking right at us,—and people will talk!"
"Let them," declared Dr. Arnault, as he let the hands go, first kissing each pink palm with a great deal of reverence before he did so, "I want them to talk—about you and me—I want all the world to talk about us, and say what a happy, happy man I am to have such a levely, dainty, little moss-rosebud of a w— a protector, and that what a stalwart, husky doughnut-eating orphan you've taken charge of! And I'm dying for my tea!"

He didn't stick round long, but just long enough to persuad Molly, Rent that she could

He didn't stick round long, but just long enough to persuade Molly Brent that she could do no better than take him in hand at once—and return with him to the Front, where he—and she—were sorely needed at Red Cross headquarters.

They went back, as soon as possible, first buying back the old farm, and establishing Jethro, the hired hand, upon it as caretaker. He impartially divides his time in taking care of the place, and regaling the villagers with a true account of the owners' courtship—which he witnessed. Doubtless they talk a good deal, but Molly, over in France, is so busy she doesn't even think about what they say. She would have, by now, adopted a score of French orphans, if her husband would let her; he insisting that he is all the orphan she can do justice to. And, being a man, of course he knows best!

Simple, safe and effective, avoiding internal drugs. Vaporized Cresolene relieves the paroxysms of Whe sugh and Spasmodic Croup at once; it nips the comme fore it has a chance of developing into something wom perience shows that a neglected cold is a dangerous or the control of the properties of the state of the control of the the control of the control of the control of the control of the the control of the control of the control of the control of the the control of the co

Sold by Druggists. Send for descriptive booklet.
resolene Antiseptic Throat Tablets for the irritated throat, eo of slippery elm bark, licorice, sugar and Cresolene. They can you. Of your druggist or from us. 10c. in stamps.

THE VAPO-CRESOLENE CO., 62 Cortlandt St., New York

National PATRIOTIC STATIONERY

50c per quire box Prepaid to any address in the U. S. NATIONAL PAPETERIE CO. Springfield, Mass.

Big Liberty, Lincoln and Valentine Number coming in February, will abound in entertaining stories and interesting and instructive special articles. It will give you a fine war story, a pretty valentine romance, some illustrated Lincoln anecdotes, sketches of illustrious French warriors and American women famous as heroines of war, and tell how to give a Valentine party with instructions for special war-time cakes and decorations.

Make Sure by Renewing Your Subscription Today

There are certain facts however, that you must thoroughly grasp if you wish to understand and be on your guard against the plottings of the dastardly flends who now control the German Empire.

You saw Russia in a night depose her Czar and leap from a despotic imperialism to the very extreme of a wild, delirious anarchy that recognized no law and knew no restraint. Then after a few turbulent months, we saw Kerensky, recently the idol of the Russian people, a fugitive, and at the same time we viewed with sinking heart Italy, who had been making a gallant fight and whose armies were debouching victoriously on the plains of Austria, crumpling up like a pack of cards, her troops rushing headlong, like frightened sheep in impotent retreat.

The old imperial regime in Russia, when it was cast overboard last March, rotten as it was, left behind it an army of as good fighting men as you d find in the world. Italy, too, had scaled impossible mountain heights and done mighty deeds of valor. All of a sudden however, the brave soldiers of Russia lost their courage, their manhood, their character, their honor, their sense of responsibility, their patriotism, their chivalry; and became nothing but a herd of impotent, jibbering, swinish weaklings, babbling of brotherhood one moment and committing murder and every other form of excess the next. Italy, too, began to lose her morale, her fighting spirit and allowed a quarter of a million of her men and half of the guns she so sadly needed, to fall into the hands of the enemy. Pantic is a dreadful bing, it has often selzed men and armies and inevitably leads to demoralization and defent. Fear of the enemy however, did not cause Russia to crumple up or the Italians to waver and run. A more insidious poison has been seething in their veins and that poison is—not the chiorine gas that destroys the organs of respiration and leaves men to die in inconceivable agony—but the poison of a Prussian made propaganda, masquerading as socialism, which like strong liquor intoxicates the brain an step at a time.

Socialism and anarchy are, in theory at least, absolutely opposed to each other. Unfortunately however there are crack-brained socialists who are extremists and who seek to attain their aims, not by evolution and steady growth but by revolution and violence, and this element, which is in the majority, is rapidly gaining control of the movement the world over and is therefore a deadly menace. The sudden overthrow of the present social order, which these radicals are attempting, would be followed by anarchy, and the methods they propose would bring on a reign of terror with all its attendant horrors of rapine and bloodshed. No matter how good the intentions of rewith all its attendant horrors of rapine and bloodshed. No matter how good the intentions of reformers may be, no matter how fine their theories or practical their schemes, it usually happens that, after years of patient effort, striving and upbuilding, they find all their work undone by violent and sinister extremists or foreign plotters who capture their political parties and throw the conservative elements overboard. This very thing has happened to the socialist party in the United States. All the sane, sensible, high-minded leaders of that movement, who had devoted to it their lives, and at times even their fortunes, who wrote its literature and won the respect and confidence of the American people, were suddenly forced out of their party by alien forces whose one effort was to manipulate the movement in the interests of Germany. The "Socialist" party today is a fraud and a humbug, a contemptible, treasonable thing—a foreign dachshund sporting a Prussian helmet. I warn again all self-respecting patriotic Americans to keep away from it as they would from poison gas or smallpox. Its one aim is to bring about a disgraceful peace—a German peace, which would betray all humannity to the bloody butcher of Berlin and his cutthroat pirates who are turning the world into a shambles. We have seen what has happened in Russin. Kerensky the socialist, an admirable man in many respects, was a talker and not a doer, a man of words instead of deeds, a follower of the mob instead of a leader. By abolishing the death penalty and democratizing the army, by taking authority and direction from the officers and placing it in the hands of committees comp No matter how good the intentions of re

Room Full of Furniture

Send only $1.00, and we will ship you this handsome 6-piece library set. Send only $1.00, and we will ship you this handsome 6-piece library set. Only $1.00 down, then $2.00 per month, or only $18.90 in all. A positively staggering value and one of the biggest bargains we have ever offered. Look at this massive set, clip the coupon below and have it shipped on approval. Then see for yourself what a beautiful set it is. If you do not like it, return it in 30 days and we will return your money. All you have to do is send the coupon with $1.00. This magnificent library set is just one of the many extraordinary bargains shown in our giant catalog and bargain list which we will send you free. No obligations. Send today sure. Either have set sent for you to see, or tell us to mail catalog.

6 Pieces

This superbsix-piece library set is made of selected solid oak throughout, finished in rich, dull waxed, brown fumed oak. Large arm rocker and arm chair are 36 inches high, seats 19 x 19 pieces are luxuriously padded, seats upholstered in brown imitation Spanish leather. Library table has 34x34 inch top, with roomy magazine shelf below, and beautifully designed ends. Jardiniere stand measures 17 inches high, with not knocked down. Rasy to set up. Shipping weight about 150 pounds, Money back if not pleased. Order by NO. B4349WA. Send $1.00 with order; $2.00 monthly. Price only, $18.90.

Act Now—While This Special Offer Lasts Don't wait a day longer. Sit down today and send in the coupon for this 6-piece fumed Solid Oak Library Set. For a limited time only are we able to offer you this stupendous bargain. Prices, as you know, on everything are going up, up, up. It is impossible to tell just what day it will be necessary for us to increase the price of this wonderful fumed Solid Oak Library Set. So act, but act quick. Fill out the coupon and send it to us with the first small payment and we will ship you this wonderful 6-piece fumed Solid Oak Library Set. Pleces not sold separately.

Easy Payments

Open an account with us. We trust honest people, no matter where you live. Send for this wonderful bargain shown above or choose from our big catalog. One price to all cash or credit. No discount for cash. Not one penny extra for credit. Do not ask for a special cash price. We cannot offer any discount from these sensational prices.

30 Days' Trial Free Bargain Catalog your money back—also any freight you paid. Could any offer be fairer?

Our guarantee protects you. If not perfectly satisfied, return the article at our expense within 30 days and get sands of bargains in furniture, jewelry, carpets, rugs, curtains, silverware, stores, women's, men's and children's wearing apparel. Send the coupon today.

Send This Coupon

Along with $1.00 to us now. Have this fine library set shipped on 30 days' trial. We will also send our big Bargain Catalog listing thousands of amazing bargains. Only a small first payment and balance in monthly payments for anything you want. Send coupon today.

Free Trial Coupon STRAUS & SCHRAM, (Inc.) Dept. 1071 W. &th St., Chicago Enclosed find $1.00. Ship special advertised 6-Face Furned Oak Library ulta. (am to hove 50 days free trial to the surface of ce Library Set. No. 84349WA, $18,90.

STRAUS & SCHRAM (Inc.) w. 35th Stroot CHICAGO

Post Office State State

Sibyl's Influence

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 4.)

said, happy tears coursing over her flushed face.

"But," continued Lady Prescott, after a few moments' thought, "this ornament is very valuable, and not at all suitable for you to wear while you are so young. Do you not think it will be better for me to take care of it for you until you are older?"

"Yes, lady, but—"

"Yes, lady, but—"

"Well?" as she hesitated and flushed.

"Will you please let me look at it sometimes? When I see it, it makes me feel a little as if I do really belong to somebody." she answered, pathetically, a tear-shining in her eyes.

It was really touching to see how the little heart longed for its own kindred; and it was admost a wonder how she could have endured to live all these years so abused and neglected, and from the trying ordeal.

"Certainly, Sibyl, you shall look at it as often from the trying ordeal.

"Certainly, Sibyl, you shall look at it as often as you like." she replied. "And now there is another matter which I wish to settle before we go any farther. That is, that you are to drop the 'lady' when you speak to me. You can call me auntie from this time, if you like."

"May I? Can I? I should like it so much; but—"

"May 1? Can 1? I should like it so much; but—"

"Another 'but,' Sibyl! Well, what is it?" asked Lady Prescott, playfully.

"I—was afraid that—people might think it too—bold for me," was the hesitating reply.

"And why, if I wish it?"

"Because every one will know about me, and it might not be pleasant-for you sometimes."

"Everybody will not know about you, Sibyl; at least, not until you discover your own parents," replied Lady Prescott, gravely, yet kindly. "You are to be, from this time, my ward, or, better, my niece. I shall take care of you, and love you, and educate you, just as if you really belonged to me. And now, I want you to feel perfectly free and at home with me, and your part of the bargain shall be to try to love me a little," and the lovely woman drew the child gently into her arms.

the lovely woman drew the child gently into her arms.

Sibyl's arms were instantly twined about her neck, the rosy lips met hers, and a more heart-felt caress the high-born lady had never received before in her life.

The child's coarse clothing was then all removed, and replaced by the pretty garments, which were now all completed, and which were also the first of their kind ever fashioned by Lady Prescott's delicate hands.

She regarded her work and its effects with pardonable pride when Sibyl's toilet was completed, and then sent her down-stairs for Raymond's inspection and approval.

He had been very impatient to see their protegee in her new attire, but was not quite prepared for the complete metamorphosis which he beheld, when she entered the room where he was sitting. He looked up, and for a moment hardly knew her.

The delicate face was the same, and also the

By Leslie Gordon

Copyright, 1917, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

HIS party should take place on New Year's Eve or New Year's Night or at any time during the month of January. It is very easy to arrange and need cost but little. It is a very pretty conceit to have the invitations to this affair in the shape of leaves, maple leaves are the best for this, and they are also the easiest to cut from either white or colored paper. They should be made of such a size that they will fit into an ordinary correspondence envelope. The wording can be in the third person and run something like this:

"Turn Over A New Leaf"

Mrs. Barton Smith requests the pleasure of your company at The Cedars on Albany Road, January first, nineteen eighteen, at half after eight o'clock in the evening. Bring all your good resolutions with you.

R. S. V. P.

If the affair is to be very small and informal, a cordial note in the first person will be more appropriate.

initials begin with words, "chewing" and "sacrifice." William Young's resolution also had this concealment by containing two words beginning with "S."

As the resolutions are finished they are folded without showing them to anyone and dropped into a basket standing on a table beside the hostess. She takes them out and numbers them from one to whatever number of people are present. She should look at each resolution as it is dropped in and make a list for herself of the correct answers with which to compare the papers as they are handed to her.

Each player is then given a tiny pad numbered to correspond and the resolutions or "new leaves" that are to be turned are then read aloud. This usually creates a good deal of laughter as many of them are very funny. They are then passed from hand to hand and each one writes on his pad the name of the person he thinks is the author of each separate resolution.

"Tun over A new Lost"

"Silly's arrais were instantly twined about her neck, the rosy lips met hers, and a more heartifelt carces the high-born lady had never received before in her 10c.

"Mrs. Barton Smith requests the pleasure of our company at The Cedars on Albany Road, and the processor of the processor of

Rider Agents Wanted offers and terms. Horns, Wheels, TIRES Lamps, Horns, and parts for all bieycles—at half usual prices. SEND NO MONEY but tell us exactly what you need, Do not but he was and the big FB MEAD CYCLE COMPANY

SAW YOUR WOOD

ith a FOLDING SAWING MACHINE. B CORDS by ONE MAN in bhours. Send for Free catalog No. E 8 showing low price latest improvements. First order secures agency, ng Sawing Mach. Co., 161 W. Harrison St., Chicago, Ill.

ing to speak gravely, yet wanting to laugh.

"N-o, sir; but—I thought you were making fun of me." Süyl replied, with some hesitation.

"No, indeed, I was not, my little friend. I was surprised at the very pleasant change in your appearance, and spoke the first words that occurred to me. But I have something for you here."

He came to her side, as he spoke, and laid something upon the table near which she was standing.

She turned, and saw a beautiful little traveling-bag, with her name engraved upon a silver plate on the handle.

A flush of surprise and pleasure shot over her plate on the handle.

A flush of surprise and pleasure shot over her face.

"Loo- inside," Raymond said, unfastening the curious clasp for her.

She looked, and found a tiny Russian leather purse, a little silver drinking-cup, gold-lined, and also marked "Sibyl," a small air-cushion, or pillow, such as she had seen him and Lady Prescott have while traveling, and several other little conveniences for journeying.

The color grew deeper and deeper in her soft cheeks, as she took up one thing after another to examine it, and he saw that she had hard work to control her voice, as she said:

"I do not know how to thank you properly, sir; but, truly, you have made me very, very happy,"

"Thank you, little maiden. You could not have given me a sweeter expression of gratitude," he said, looking pleased at her simple words of pleasure.

"But" he added, with a peculiar curl of his

"Thank you, little maiden. You could not have given me a sweeter expression of gratitude," he said, looking pleased at her simple words of pleasure.

"But," he added, with a peculiar curl of his handsome lips, "I think there appears to be something not just right about that purse."

"Is there? I did not notice." Sibyl said, innocently, as she took it up again and opened it.

"It is very pretty, and very perfect, is it not?" she asked, after carefully examining it.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 24.)

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 24.)

CONTENTS

Editorial -In and Around the Home Conducted by Mrs.

Wheeler Wilkinson - 3 & 17 Sibyl's Influence (continued) Mrs. Georgie Sheldon Comfort Sisters' Corner Comfort Sisters' Recipes The Girl He Loved (continued) Adelaide Stirling What the Home Card Means to Me By a Com-fort Subscriber Miss Brent's Orphan Anne McQueen Comfort's League of Cousins Uncle Charlie Turning Over a New Leaf Leslie Gordon Nation-Wide Prohibition Wins in Congress The Pretty Girls' Club Katherine Booth - . 11 Cross Currents (continued) Maud Mary Brown 12 Starting Your Flower Garden Early Indoors Alfred Weston 13 The Modern Farmer · · · · · 14 Poultry Farming for Women Mrs. Kate V. St. Cubby Bear's Visit Lena B. Ellingwood - - 16 Home Dressmaking Hints Geneva Gladding - 18 . 19 Talks with Girls How to Prepare Furs for Market -- 20 - 21 Home Lawyer . - -A Corner for Boys - -22 24 Manners and Looks . . 25 Veterinary Information 26 Information Bureau -Children's Happy Hour 27 Four Wheel Chairs in December . 27 29 Family Doctor - - - -The Emporium of Bargains and Opportunities - 31 Comfort's Comicalities - - - and extra space devoted to fancy work and knitting with special reference to making articles needed by the soldiers will make February COMFORT one of the most interesting, entertaining and useful issues in many months. Our Household Number follows in March.

Big Liberty Number Liberty, Lincoln and Valentine Features

Distinctive February Attractions

"The Awakening" The true story of the adventures of a young volunteer officer as ardent in love as he was brave in war.

"Lincoln's Wit and Wisdom" Illustrated anecdotes and stories of Lincoln that show his greatness, his goodness, his wit

"A Novel Valentine Party" and wisdom.

Tells how to get up a pretty and interesting Valentine Party suitable for home, Grange or

"Famous American War Heroines"

Tells the wonderful exploits of American women celebrated for their courageous and devoted service in war.

"Aunt Lavinia's Valentine"

A sweet valentine story not the less romantic because the dear lady discovered her illusionment.

"Illustrious French Warriors"

whose valliant deeds in the war for American independence all should know as we are now fighting for French Liberty.

If the number over your name on the wrapper on this magazine is 352 or any less number, it means that your subscription needs to be renewed at once. Take no chance of missing the February and March numbers. Renew today. Use

SUBSCRIPTION RATES are: 25 cents a year, 50 cents for three years, 40 cents for a TWO-YEAR renewal, in U. S. and Cuba. (In Canada 50 cents a year.)

SUBSCRIPTION COUPON FOR RENEWAL OR EXTENSION ONLY Publisher of COMFORT, Augusta, Maine. I enclose cents for renewal and extension of my subscription _____ full years from date of expiration. DateName,

Nation-Wide Prohibition Wins In Congress

UST too late for mention on our editorial page comes the glad news that the national House of Representatives, by a vote 282 in favor to 128 opposed, has adopted the resolution submitting to the States for ratification the proposed constitutional amendment prohibiting the manufacture, sale and transportation of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes within, and the importation thereof into the United States and out-lying territorial possessions.

It is the identical resolution adopted by the Senate last August by a vote of 65 to 20, except that the House resolution allows seven instead of six years for ratification by the State Legislatures. Because of this slight difference, the resolution has to go back to the Senate which, undoubtedly, will promptly accept the change made by the House.

After favorable action by the Senate, which is confidently expected before Christmas, the resolution goes at once to the States. If, within seven years, the Legislatures of three-quarters of the States vote in favor of adopting the proposed amendment, it will become a part of the Constitution of the United States as soon as thirty-six of the States have thus given their approval through their legislatures: and thereupon nation-wide prohibition of the liquor evil will become a part of the supreme law of the lock of the tree to the proposed amendment, and thereupon nation-wide prohibition of the liquor evil will become a part of the supreme law of the lock of the tree to the proposed the proposed there were proposed the proposed there were proving their approval through their legislatures: and thereupon nation-wide prohibition of the liquor evil lack of the proposed the proposed will become a part of the supreme law of the land.

It is up to the good people in every State to look after the members of their own legislatures and see to it that they vote right on this question at the very next session. The sooner it is adopted the sooner it takes effect; but if not adopted by the legislatures of thirty-six States within seven years the cause will be lost. So get busy with a determination that temperance shall win. The legislatures of some States are now in session. Get after them for immediate action.

Crumbs of Comfort

Time wears out all masks.

Industry is applied religion. Old oxen have stiff horns. A miser has merry mourners. Follow nature and not fashion. Happiness is a tree with many roots. Men make laws; women make manners. Do not starve your horse to save your hay. A woman can love too deeply to judge justly. The apple of discord has ever been made of gold. A barleycorn is better than a diamond to a crow. Never revolt against the laws you make for yourself. The honey which we gather ourselves tastes the sweetest.

The Pretty Girls' Club

Conducted by Katherine Booth

Outwitting the Wind

HE January winds "do blow," as we are all very well aware, and most of us find it rather difficult to look neat and trim and smart when we have to face a blustery wind every time we go outdoors. Hair is whipped here and there, hats tipped awry, and who can look like a member of the Pretty Girls' Club under such conditions?

Well, let's see what we can do about it, girls! Mell, let's see what we can do about it, girls! And the first thing we should all realize is that if our hair is tidy, we can't look very dishevelled, no matter what else the wind may do to us. So, concentrate on hair, all of you, and let me tell you of a few precautions we may take to win our battle with the January winds.

First, of course, take time to dress your hair properly. Brush it well, so it has that well-kept look which is next door to beauty. Do it up securely. I do not mean by this that you must draw every hair tight, but only that when you have it arranged in the loose waves, or the fluffy side rolls, or the soft colls which are becoming to you, you should use enough hairpins to hold it as you have placed it.

PIN YOUR HAT ON AT A BECOMING ANGLE.

it as you have placed it.

A good way to do, usually, is to separate the back hair from the front hair, by parting from ear to ear, or part off a square of hair in the middle of the back of the head; then wrap a bit of shoestring tightly around the strand, close to the head, and tie. You can arrange fhis strand of hair in any way you like, as a foundation, and do the other hair loosely over the firm coil you make, pinning it securely but not drawing it tight.

do the other hair loosely over the nrm coll you make, pinning it securely but not drawing it tight.

Whatever way you dress your hair, its neatness depends upon how generous you are with invisible hairpins. Use them wherever a strand or wave or little lock has been properly placed and needs to be kept in order. But be sure they are entitled to the name invisible. Don't let pronged ends be sticking out, here and there, to make you look like a pincushion.

Next, have a tiny bottle of bandoline, and an eyebrow brush or baby's toothbrush, and before going out drop a tiny, tiny bit of bandoline on your brush, rub it with your finger, and be sure the brush is merely damp with it; then gently brush up the locks at the ears and in the neck. This will keep them from blowing as the bandoline acts almost like mucilage. If you use more than a bare suspicion of it, however, it will make your hair sticky and quite spoil its appearance.

will make your hair sticky and quite spoil its appearance.

Slip one of the all-over hair nets over your hair before going out, but never draw it so tight that it flattens your hair down; pin loosely. There are some circular nets with elastic around the edge, and if you get the extra large size, you can slip this over the face like a -vell and pin together at back of head, keeping everything trim and neat.

And when your hair is all trim, be sure your hat is pinned on securely. Use two hatpins, one at each side, pinning them from front to back, and in strenuous weather you can pin an extra one in back or front. And be sure your hat is at a becoming angle, just as you look best in it. With these precautions, I defy January to set one lock awy!

Answers to Questions

Mrs. E. McC.—The Epsom salts paste for reducing flesh is made as follows: Dissolve half a pound of the salts in a pint of rain-water. Shave fine one and one half bars of the best white kitchen soap, and dissolve over the stove in a quart of boiling water. After it is thoroughly dissolved, set off to partially cool, when stir in the Epsom salts solution. Let it stand again till cold. Use this to massage into the fleshy parts at night, letting it dry on the skin. In the morning, wash the skin thoroughly. Keep this up until the flesh is reduced. It is claimed that one can reduce about two pounds a week. An excellent preparation for the massage with the salts preparation is to take a five-minute bath in a deep tub of hot water containing half a boxful of ordinary baking soda. The water must be very hot, and you should keep your body entirely covered with it. After a few minutes, jump out, dry yourself, and wrap up in a woolen blanket. You will perspire heavily, but after a time the perspiration will stop; then dry yourself again and rub in the Epsom salts preparation. A hot bath like this is weakening if taken too often, so only do this about twice a week, and just before going to bed.

Mrs. B. L. H.—No. do not use the Portugal Bust.

Mrs. B. L. H.—No, do not use the Portugal Bust Food to make a thick neck fat. Massage the neck gently with cold cream each night, always remembering that the gentle motions develop and the vigorous motions reduce. In addition to this practise the following exercise:

To Develop a Thin Neck

To Develop a Thin Neck

Stand erect, with heels together, and chest up, hands on hips, with the fingers forward and the thumbs back. Bend the head toward the left shoulder so far as possible: then toward the right; repeat ten times. Now drop the head forward on the chest, making the neck limp, and roll it toward the right shoulder, back and drop it backward, then toward the left shoulder and forward, dropping it on the chest again. In other words revolve the head on the neck. This may make you dizzy, so do not practise it too long at a time, but do it a little every day, as it exercises and develops the muscels of the neck. How about the rest of the body? Are you thin? If so, better begin to diet with the intention of getting fatter. Potatoes, rice, macaroni will help bring this about.

A Homesteader.—It is dangerous to trife with weles.

will help bring this about.

A Homesteader.—It is dangerous to trifie with moles, as they may develop into something serious if they are picked or irritated. About the only successful way to dispose of them is by electrolysis, but that needs a skilled operator. Very large flesh moles can sometimes be disposed of by tying a thread around the base. After a few days the mole turns black and drops off. This is apt to leave a scar, however, as is almost any way of getting rid of moles. If yours are flat and brown but not fleshy, I think I would leave them alone. Be careful what you eat, and drink quantities of water—eight or ten glasses a day. And see that your bowels are in perfect condition. Eat as many vegetables and fruits as you can, as they help to furnish minerals for your body which it needs. If you are very careful about this, you may find fewer moles appearing.

Dimples .- See answer to "A Homesteader." June.-Almost everybody's skin is wrinkled "in the joints" of the fingers, so I would not worry about that. You cannot change the size of your fingers, but you can soften and whiten them. Try this way of keep-ing them in good condition:

To Whiten the Hands

Rosewater, four ounces; orange-flower water, four ounces; spirits of benzoin, one dram; bruised almonds, one ounce; borax, one half dram.

Put the almonds in the orange-flower and rosewater, and let stand for twenty-four hours; filter, add the soda and shake until dissolved. Finally put in the benzoin, a drop at a time, constantly shaking. Before putting this on the hands, wash them thoroughly in very warm water, and dry lightly. Gently massage the lotion in, several times in the course of an evening, then coat the hands with cold cream, slip on a pair of loose cotton or rubber gloves and go to bed. If you will use bran water in which to wash the hands, you will use bran water in which to wash the hands, you will find them improved in appearance. Boil a pound of bran in a couple of quarts of water, then keep the liquid, after straining, and use a little at a time for the hands. You can also use rolled oats in almost the same way, soaking in a quantity of water and using the resulting liquid.

Country Girl.—I can't tell whether you weigh too

the resulting liquid.

Country Girl.—I can't tell whether you weigh too much without knowing your height. Don't you see? You should be at least five feet, two, to weigh one hundred and twenty-five pounds, and at thirteen you might be even taller, for this weight. If you need to reduce, do so by not eating between meals and not eating too many sweet things. Indeed, the government needs sugar, now, for our soldiers and there is not enough to go around, so, in any case, we ought to be very economical with sugar. Probably that is the way for you to get rid of a few extra pounds, if you really need to get rid of them, but remember you need to be strong and well and even if you weigh a little more than you like, it is better than to weigh less than you should. As you get older, your figure will thin out, you will find, without any effort on your part.

Miss A. G.—I am sorry the rules of this depart.

than you should. As you get older, your ngure will thin out, you will find, without any effort on your part.

Miss A. G.—I am sorry the rules of this department do not permit my answering letters by mail but only in the columns of the magazine. For the oily hair the first thing is to give it a shampoo once in two weeks, using a soap jelly made by shawing half a bar of white soap into a quart of water and letting it dissolve over the stove, then cooling it and pouring on the head in small quantities. It makes a wonderful lather. After thoroughly rubbling the hair and scalp with the lather, rinse thoroughly, then use the soap jelly again, rinsing once more. In rinsing, you must be careful that every particle of soap is taken from the hair, or it clogs the little oil glands in the scalp and irritates them, and that finally produces an oily condition of the scalp. So rinse, and rinse and rinse. Every night massage the scalp with the flat of the fingers. Loosen the hair, then slip the fingers of each hand next the scalp back of the temples, and pressing firmly moye the skin back and forth. Do not rub the fingers or move them on the scalp, but hold them firm and move the scalp with them. Go all over the head in this way, stimulating the circulation and promoting healthy conditions.

healthy conditions.

Brown Eyes.—Yes, I can guess how you feel, if you weigh 200 pounds at fifteen years old. You want to know how to reduce. Well, first do not rely on the lactated milk diet. It is all right, and will reduce, but you need, I am sure, a radical change in the things you have been eating. Of course, these wartimes are hard ones in which to regulate one's diet, everything costs so much and there is such a shortage of many things; however, let's see what we can do. The first thing is to remember that certain foods make fat and certain other foods make strength and muscles. You want to avoid the fat-making foods and eat the others. Potatoes, rice, macaroni, milk, butter, cream, white bread, gravies, sweet things, make fat. I presume you are very fond of sweet things and rich things, and you will have to make up your mind to be very heroic indeed and cut them out. What can you eat? Oh, lots of things. Eggs, for instance, but be sure they are soft-cooked, won't you? And almost any vegetables—tomatoes, and string beans, and beets, and squash, and onions, and turnlys, and peas, and oh, all the other things. Don't eat potatoes or rice. You can eat baked beans or any lean meat. And eat all the fruits you want and can get, except bananas. Also, cut down on the amount of food you are eating. You probably have a pretty good appetite, and perliaps have the habit of eating between meals. Stop this at once, and—when you eat a meal try to remember that the stomach is built to hold only a very limited amount, and eat only enough to suit its size. You could eat two soft-bolled or poached eggs for breakfast, some sliced oranges or a baked apple or some prunes or grape-fruit and some bran bread. Remember butter makes you fat, so eat scarcely any. For lunch you could eat two vegetables (tomatoes and boiled onlons, for instance), a little lean meat, and fruit for dessert; and for supper you could follow the same general plan. You can eat fish, as well as lean meat, but must not eat any gravies, pies, cakes, rich puddings, or sweet desserts. With your fruit, eat no sugar. You can make up your mind to this. Besides dieting, exercise until you perspire heavily. Always lie down rolled in a blanket after heavy exercise, for this promotes perspiration, and perspiration reduces. Rub yourself dry with a rough towel, after perspiring, and do not go outdoors for some little time. Practise any or all of the exercises you have seen given in Comrogr monthly, and if you are diligent in your endeavors, you will weigh several pounds less before a month is up.

BE GENEROUS WITH INVISIBLE HAIRPINS.

L. C.—If you are five feet seven inches tall, you should be a supported to the control of the exercises.

weigh several pounds less before a month is up.

L. C.—If you are five feet seven inches tall, you should weigh about 145 pounds! So you see you are considerably under weight. Probably if you gained to 130, you would feel that was as much as you wanted to weigh. The red nose is quite likely from indigestion, and your lack of weight might be due to the same cause, so let us assume that to be the case and get to work to—remedy it. To begin with, make it a rule to chew all your food until it is liquid before you swallow it; this lessens the work required of your stomach, and enables you to get every particle of nourishment, of fleshbuilding properties, out of the food you eat. Then eat only at meals, and choose digestible foods. Avoid rich desserta, gravies, pies, fat meats. Drink milk, however, use cream on your foods, and plenty of butter on your bread. Eat potatoes and lots of them, and rice as well. A good breakfast for you would be a baked apple with cream, or a baked pear, or a dish of stewed prunes, or figs. Then a dish of cereal with cream, and finally a soft boiled egg with toast and butter. For lunch, a bowl of soup, a fat baked potato and some other vegetable, plenty of bread and butter (and you can eat honey or jelly or preserves with it), and a tapioca cream pudding, or baked custard, or almost any kind of pudding that is not too rich. For dinner, eat some meat, plenty of pointo, another vegetable, bread and butter, and about the same kind of dessert as for lunch. Eat all the fruits you can because they are good to help in elimination and in regulating the bowels. And, of course, you must be sure that the bodily functions are in order. Drink plenty of water. With these directions, I venture you will weigh several pounds more in a couple of weeks, and that the color of your nose will begin to whiten out. The milk diet would be a good thing for you. See E. L. K.

Beauty Seeker.—If your child's hair is inclined to be curly, the best thing to do is to train it by brushing it over the finger in little curls, never wearying of well-doing, but keeping at it day after day. At first it will probably make stringy curls, but if you keep on training it, and it really has any inclination to curl, in time you will be successful: Be sure you keep if shampooed at least once in three weeks, and preferably once in two weeks, and always brush it very carefully after a shampoo. There isn't any formula which will make straight hair curly, though there is a liquid which can be applied to adult hair and which helps it to wave. A child's hair should not, however, have any lotion used upon it, unless it is unhealthy. The hair will be prettier, healthier, and thicker, if you let it alone except for painstaking brushing daily, with gentle movements, and regular shampoos.

E. L. K.—See answer to "L. C." You ask about the milk diet, so here are the directions once again.

it alone except for painstaking brushing daily, with gentle movements, and regular shampoos.

E. L. K.—See answer to "L. C." You ask about the milk diet, so here are the directions once again. I hope all the readers of Comporr will learn them by heart! Take a glass and a half of milk every hour from 7.30 A. M. to 3.30 P. M., chewing each mouthful before swallowing. Drink a glass of water immediately on rising, and follow this ten minutes later by eating half a dozen promes that have been soaked all night in a tumbler of warm water, and drinking the juice. Chew the prumes thoroughly. Fritteen minutes after the prumes, take your first "dose" of milk. Do not eat any solid food until night, when you may have an ordinary evening meal, avoiding fried foods, fat meats and too sweet desserts. Drink two glasses of water between 3.30 and your evening meal, and drink two other glasses of water about an hour before going to bed. After one week of this, cut out all solid food, and drink two glasses of milk every hour during the day, from seven-thirty to six-thirty. Keep up the water on rising in the morning, the prumes, and the water just before going to bed. Weigh on the afternoon of the last day of each week. You should gain from one to three or more pounds per week, if you will absolutely follow directions. Do not eat any food except as directed, above.

Address all letters containing questions to KATHERINE BOOTH, care COMPORT, AUGUSTA, MAINE.

Comfort's League of Cousins

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 9.)

rocks at the capitalists to your intense enjoyment. I have pictured them as merciless devils and you, the masses as lamblike angels, craving only the opportunity to live and be good. I always take the side of the under dog if it is an honest dog, but now labor is the top dog that holds the whip hand, and now you have the chance to prove whether you are worthy of those who have fought your battles and upheld your cause. Now you have a chance to prove whether you were honest men asking for a square deal or just plain hogs who hated the capitalistic hog only because he could get into the cabbage patch and fill his belly while you couldn't. This is your opportunity, no one begrudges you your harvest; but realize once and for all that harvest will be short unless you do your part equally as well as the boys in the trenches are doing theirs. Remember there are no union rules and eight-hour days on the firing line. In the British Army alone (and Great Britain is only a little country not much bigger than New York State) more than twenty thousand men are weekly converted into corpses or bundles of bloody rags. There they stand in the bitter cold, those soldlers of France, Britain and the United States in those terrible trenches, fighing for democracy, fighting for civilization, fighting to keep the Prussian beast from raping your women and burning your homes and converting you from free men into slaves. There they stand while thousands of you falter, halt and quibble and loaf on your jobs, indifferent as to who suffers and who perishes as long as you can get your pound of flesh and your bellies well filled. Now for God's sake be men. Be as devoted to your country, which gives you everything, as the Prussian is to his country, which gives him a bone and regards him as a dog.

It is the aim of Prussia by her propaganda and lying promises to induce all nations to lay down their arms. Germany wants peace, just as a burglar wants peace, after he has filled his arms with loot. Scorn the German spy who seeks your destruction. ocks at the capitalists to your intense enjoyment. have pictured them as merciless devils and you.

Music no longer difficult!
New plan makes it easy to learn by home study. Positively easier than with private teacher. Faster progress. You will be able to play your favorite instrument in a few short months! More than 200,000 men, women and children have learned by our method. You, too, can learn in your spare time,
We guarantee it.

We want to have one pupil in each locality at once to help advertise our home study method. For a short time, therefore, we offer our marvelous lessons FEEE, Colymanic-averaging only 12 1-2 cents weekly. Beginners or advanced pupils. Write for amazing free book giving all the facts and particulars. Send a postal today?

U. S. SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

41 Erusswisk Bids. New York City

to conquer the world and he is out to do it. He can conquer weaklings, but he cannot conquer the strong men of France and Britain, and he cannot conquer America, if you working men will be true to your country and true to yourselves in this war. It is up to you to say whether you will fight this tyrant to the death and live as men, or go down under the heel of Prussian military might and live as cowards, dastards and slaves.

Show your patriotism by joining Comfort's League Of Cousins and give proof of the fact that you are ready and willing to protect our country and its glorious flag. Never in our history have we needed the support of loyal Americans as we do now. Those who want free literature about the war can find how to get it by reading my reply to the letter of Mrs. S. Murrock.

Don't forget that Uncle Charlie's four wonderful books may still be had. Start in at once to obtain them,—they cost you no money, only a very little time and effort,—and keep at it until you have the entire set. The book of Poems is beautifully bound in ribbed silk stiff covers: the Story Book is bound in two styles, the one in ribbed silk stiff covers like the Poems, the other in paper covers; the Song Book is—bound only in heavy paper covers and the Picture Book in handsome stiff covers, either one for a club of four subscriptions; the Song Book or the Story Book in handsome paper covers or the Picture Book in pretty stiff covers for a club of only two subscriptions; the Song Book or the Story Book in handsome paper covers or the Picture Book in pretty stiff covers for a club of only two subscriptions; the Song Book or the Story Book in handsome paper covers or the Story Book in handsome paper covers or the Picture Book in pretty stiff covers for a club of only two subscriptions. These four books are a library of endless joy and merriment, the best medicine to drive away the blues and the best Christmas gifts in the world.

My picture book too, has started a deluge of inquiries: Is Billy the Goat my daughter, is Maria her Ma?

Now for the letters.

GARDNER, LA.

DEAR UNGLE CHARLIE:
Your monthly talks, and especially your war talk in the September issue of COMPORT, are excellent.
My father said your September talk was worth ten (CONTINUED ON PAGE 13.)

CROSS CURRENTS By Maud Mary Brown

Copyright, 1917, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc

IHE revelation came with so blinding a flash that for once Marcia Stetson was overwhelmed, her superb poise shaken. In one moment she had been the serene and moderately contented wife of Prolife's mysterious cross currents had swept her out of her charted course and she had become a rebellions, tumultuous-souled woman, in love with another men.

The people settled back and the play went on. But to Marcia Stetson physical security brought no relief.

"Hentley," she said to her husband at the first intermission, "I am going home."

"But what nonsense, Marcia! It is going to be a capital evening. I didn't think you were the woman to be upset over a false alarm."

"I am not so sure," she returned cryptically, "that it was a false alarm."

"He turned puzzled eyes toward her. "Are you crazy? Don't you see that the theater is quite free of smoke? You don't think, do you, that Preston mounted the stage merely to lie to us so that he might have the sport of seeing us broil in our seats?"

She made a little gesture of weariness at his verbiage. "You don't understand, Bentley. I don't, quite, myself," she added swiftly. "Anyway, I am going home."

"You injant!" she exclaimed, smiling into his disappointed face. "Did you think I would be ungenerous enough to drag you away? I want to go quite alone."

"Really."

"Really, Ben."

She rose to pass Saxon Waverley and he, rising also, looked steadily into her gentian-blue cyes.

"Not going, surely?" he said.

Not going, surely?" he said. Please." She halted, waiting for him to per-"Please," She halted, warring it her to pass.
"You're not going with her, Stetson? Then may I _____"

"Thank you, no," Marcia interposed, and she

"Thank you, no." Marcia interposed, and she calmly passed out.
Picking up her skirts, she raced across the campus and letting herself into the tiny house where she and Stetson lived, she went directly to her room. She switched on the lights and abruptly turned them off again. Tradition ran too strong in her to permit her to endure the sight of her excitement-filled eyes.
She sat down by the open window where the spring breeze was playing with the muslin curtain. The orchestra's melody drifted to her ears faintly from across the campus. The little lake beyond glittered like a jewel on the bosom of the night.

night.
Life should be so simple and straightforward had always been so to her—in this peaceful, sheltered spot. Only tonight had the complexi-thought that she slept.

Marcia came down the next morning.

Marcia came down the next morning.

"Morning Marcia."

Her husband's too-youthful face, she thought, looked weary and troubled.

"You don't look very fit, Marcia. Is it due to last night's fright, or is it that blouse you're wearing?"

"I don't think I was frightened, Bentley."

"I don't think I was frightened, Bentley."

"I only wanted to come home. Does that prove that I was frightened?"

"Well, you should have stayed. Capital! Some of those youngsters have quite conspicuous talent. I went over to Miss Canfield's after the play and had a bite of supper with her. She had intended to have you, of course; she was disappointed."

"I am glad I ducked early. How can you only we her. Ren?"

disappointed."
"I am glad I ducked early. How can you endure her, Ben?"
"She isn't—whatever you think she is. She is really very charming once you know her."
Stetson maintained stoutly. "Just because the inner circle of St. Jules hasn't taken her up need not necessarily condemn her."
"I suppose not," returned Marcia indifferently. "Waverley left soon after you did. Didn't follow you home, did he?" He haughed at his little joke.

Marcia houed that her cheeks did not look so.

little joke.

Marcia hoped that her cheeks did not look so hot as they felt. "Don't be tiresome," she said. "Were there any letters for me?"

"This, A cheek for a story, I faney. You're lucky, Marcia. All you have to do is to sit down at your desk for a few hours and zip!

A cheek!"

She smiled. "It isn't quite so easy as that," she realised.

We are pleased to present mother delighted remaner from how the past of Mond Mary Brown with the past of pleases in the control of the contro with smoke appeared on the stage.

"There's nothing to be alarmed over," he stated calmly: "a little explosion in the boiler room. More smoke than fire and what little of the latter there was is already out."

The people settled back and the play went on. But to Marcia Stetson physical security brought no relief.

"Bentley," she said to her husband at the first intermission, "I am going home."

"But what nonsense, Marcia! It is going to be a capital evening. I didn't think you were the woman to be upset over a false alarm."

"I am not so sure," she returned cryptically, "If there was any bitterness in the remark, it is the stated over Marcia's head.

"It happens to be her some flowers today. It happens to be her some flowers sheltered spot. Only tonight had the complexisheltered spot. Only tonight had the complexished speak of the speak and sheltered spot. Only tonight had the complexished speak and sheltered speak and sheltered speak and sheltered speak and sat down before it. She was very lovely in her soul's confusion. Her gentian-blue cres glowed like watch fires below her low, white forehead on which her chest-nut hair grew in a graceful line. Her delicate-hold not race of color save in the scarlet line of her suny's did under great excitement. Her oval face hold not trace of color save in the scarlet line of her sensitive mouth. Her face might not have been called beautiful, certainly it was not pretty. But it was an arresting face.

She looked at herself as curiously as one observes an interesting stranger and then, once more she turned of the lights and undressing in the moon-lit room, she timing herself into bed to bury her face in her pillow, but try as she would, she could not bush the sight of Saxon Watched she cannot here thought she fore they were fairly born. When thoughts before they were fairly born.

She lay struggling for hours, killing her thoughts before they were fairly born.

She lay struggling for hours, killing her thoughts before they were fairly born.

She looked at herself as curiously as one observes an interesting stranger and then, once more she turned of the lights and undressing in the moon-lit room, she timing herself into bed to bury her face in her pillow, but try as she would, she could not bush the sight of Saxon Watched Law Repealed

Help Us Get this Stupid, Wicked Law Repealed

Read our editorial (on page 2) headed "A Law to Promote Ignorance." Then, if you favor a level second-class postage rate, one that will be uniform throughout the country regardless of distance, thought the same to depend entirely upon women. When the situation finally dawned on Marchan the knowl-been called beautiful, certainly it was not pretty.

A Law to Promote Ignorance." Then, if you favor a level second-class pos can learn it from your postmaster

well as men.

ton, D. C.

Hon.

block in the charted course and she had become a rebellions, tunultuous souled woman, in love with another man.

If only she could have been warned-have here warned the could have been warned have been with substitute of the seniors were giving their annual play. There had come and y-ellow, stilling snoke.

There was the staccato changor of lifted seats as people, their faces suddenly gone blank with the responsibility that the responsibility of the play warned have been been substituted by the warned have been been six your pean, and taken and possible decreases. Marching the mental substitute of the single have been been six your pean, and taken and possible decreases and waverley had taken command of the situation. His voice, scarrely raise to help say the vacation of the situation. His voice, scarrely raise to help say of the warned have been been six yours without one warned have been been six

"You are far too wonderful for mere cray meme."

Her heart sank heavily. Was Waverley, then, right? Had she been blind? She had, with some degree of pride, renounced a great happiness for the sake of prolonging the happiness of her husband and now she found that she was not making him even tolerably happy. It was an anti-climax to her eventful day.

"Is it Miss Canfield, Bentley?"
"I might have known I couldn't keep it from you. Didn't I tell you you were clever?"
"Then it is Miss Canfield?"
"I-like her very much. We are very companionable. We read together and—"
"Bentley! That little—"
"Not a word against her, Marcia."
"I beg your pardon."

Next fill in the date and the name of your congressman. If you don't know his name you

"Not a word against her, Marcia."
"I beg your pardon."
They were silent for a long time and Stetson was ill at ease. Binally, "What do you want to do about it, Bentley?" Marcia asked.
"I don't know. If it could be arranged—"
"Divorce, you mean!"
He nodded miserably, Obviously this had not sprung from his own brain, "I would take all the stigma, of course. I'd give you grounds—"
"Bentley!" Her voice silenced him, "What are you thinking of? What about your charch, your family—they would never foreive you, you know—your protession—your inherited moral aristocracy? What about all those things? And to descend 'to practical things, what would you do? You could expect no longer to be retained here."
"I would find something to do—something more agreeable than teaching grimning undergraduates,"

"I would find something to do - something more agreeable than teaching grinning undergraduates," the declared, "We have talked it all over -" "We! Who?" she demanded, "Why, Lacy and I," he admitted, "You have discussed our intimate family affairs with her?" She remembered the afternoon just passed and her color rose, "She is awtelly somare," he said stoutly, "She wants to come straight to you to talk things over."

U. S. House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

Then write your name and place of residence on the blank paper below the heading. Circulate the petition among your friends and neighbors and get them to sign, women as

Finally, mail the signed petition to your congressman at House of Representatives, Washing-

Date

Cut this out and paste it to the top of a sheet of writing paper.

Dear Sir:

We believe that the flat rate of a cent a pound for second-class postage and that the magazines, which by means of this low flat rate have been her color rose. "She is awfully sometiment to you to talk things nooks and corners of the land, constitute one of the greatest, most unifying and beneficent educational forces in the country. We earnestly protest against grading second-class postage on any zone rate basis as being class legislation aimed against the magazines and an unjust sectional discrimination against the people dwelling in parts remote from the large centers of population.

Therefore, we respectfully request you to exert your influence and give your vote in Congress in favor of the repeal of the zone rate (before they take effect in July), and for making the second-class postage rate, thereafter as heretotore, one land uniform throughout the Union regardless of distance.

She remembered to a control of the redot remotest way the said stoutly. "She wants to come straight to you to talk things over."

"What insufferable effrontery!" "In lower from he you would be relied to be rid of me."

Again they fell silent as the maid brought in a led the handwriting as that of Waverley.

She hooked at the envelope with detached eyes. She was spiritually revolted. The man for whom she had worked whose position she had enabled (continued and worked whose position she had enabled to be and worked whose position she had enabled to be an extending the said stoutly. "She recognized the handwriting as that of waverley.

She was spiritually revolted. The man for whom she had worked whose position she had enabled to be had enabled." Dear Sir:

she shifted. "It isn't duite so easy as that, she replied.

"Well, it looks that way to a layman. Now I have to dig out my coppers with a mental bickaxe—and it is almost always dull. Marcia, thy do the classics come so desperately hard to

Starting Your Flower Garden Early Indoors

By Alfred Weston

Copyright, 1917, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

HERE is a long stretch of delightful spring weather between the time one plants the out-of-doors flower garden and the time this garden begins to bloom. This time might just as well be utilized in giving pleasure with flowers as in waiting. And it is a simple matter to do this—start your flower garden in the house. "Oh, I dislike being bothered with so many plants," is a remark I have frequently heard made, but these same people, once they understood how little bother it is, and how much delight there is in having flowers in May and June instead of waiting until late July or August, have made a practise of starting their summer flower garden in their home in February, March and April.

Take cosmos, for instance, a delightful, daisy-

This completes the paper seedling flower pot. The top will not be perfectly even, naturally, as the creased points will rise a little at either side, but this does not in any manner harm the usefulness of the seedling pot.

You will notice that it will not stand up well. It is not intended to stand alone, but to be set in a seedling box along with others, side by side. Sprinkle about two inches of soil over the bottom of the seedling box, to catch moisture that leaks through from watering these paper pots, and set the pots close together. You may think this a great deal of bother, but in the spring when time comes to transplant your seedlings, you will find you have really saved yourself fifty per cent of the work and the dirt and trouble, for you simply lift out these pots, tear off the paper, keeping the soil in your hand around the seedling roots, and set them into the holes you have prepared for them in the garden. Nothing hurts a plant more than to disturb the roots for they are the very life of the -plant. With these pots there is no danger of this. They cost you nothing, there is no litter of pots to keep over until next spring and, taken altogether, it is the ideal way of handling seedlings of any sort.

are not suitable for starting indoors.

Some of these flowering plants which should not be started indoors are alyssum, aquilegia, balsam, calliopsis, candytutt, digitalis, hollyhock, poppy, portulaca and sweet peas. Either they bloom very quickly after planting or else, which is generally the reason, they will not stand transplanting or disturbing. If you have ever tried to transplant a poppy you will understand what I mean. I have, with great care, transplanted Shirley and double poppies, but it doesn't pay as they will and are retarded in growth. The big oriental poppies will stand transplanting better.

Do not wait until January for your pansy seeds. Get them in the fall. Send to your florist ter to secure the tiny packets, each sort separate. There are half a dozen really good varieties, almost black, pure white, golden yellow, pale blue, dark blue, rich brown and many shades in between.

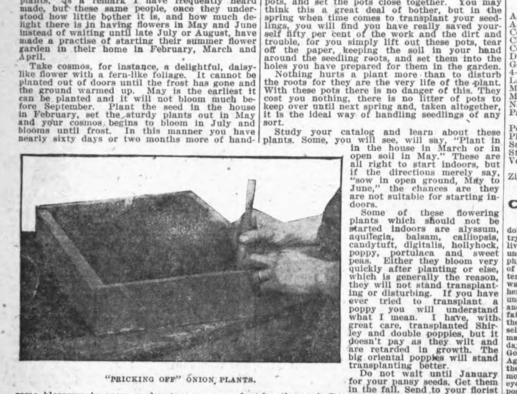

If you have saved your strawberry boxes this most black, pure white, golden yellow, pale blue, dark blue, rich brown and many shades in between.

If you have saved your strawberry boxes this summer, so much the better, or your grape baskets. If not, use small light boxes or receptacles of this sort. Plant your pansy seeds in September, a few more in November and another lot in January. Your first planting may be in bloom before the frost is out of the ground, but as they wither and die, that doesn't matter. This assortment will give you pansies throughout the summer, enough to pick every day to put in a bowl or shallow pansy dish for the dining table. Start your geranium slips early in the fall and they will be strong little plants in May, ready to set out in a brilliant clump, or as a border for a bed of taller growing flowers.

Petunias give the best returns for the care you give them of almost any flower. Plant them in February. Astors may be planted early in the spring indoors and watched carefully, if the soil bakes hard around them they will be stunted.

It is a mistake to give liquid fertilizers to seedlings. The roots are not at all matured, of course, but there isn't much drain on them. The drain doesn't come on flowering plants to any great extent until they blossom. A slight watering every day, making sure that the perforations of the sprinkler are very fine so that the water will not injure the delicate plants, and they will thrive quite well. A too-dry atmosphere is bad. Whether you have stove, steam or hot air heat, keep a large bowl of water standing near the flowers. This seems a trifling thing to do but it gives' them the damp atmosphere so necessary. Did you ever go into a florist's glass house and note how cool and damp the air is? It has to be, to make the plants grow.

some blossoms in your garden to repay you for the trifling labor of planting seedlings and water-ing them.

the trifling labor of planting seedlings and watering them.

You can get from three to five hundred seedlings on an old kitchen table, placed by a sunny window. If you cannot do this, use window shelves, widow sills, and any available places to put them. Individual tiny pots are not needed. Seedling boxes and paper pots are the best, you make them yourself from a few boards and manila paper. Do not make the mistake of making these seedling boxes too large, for, once filled with soil, you will find them far too heavy to lift or move about easily, and it frequently happens that you want to do this. The boxes need not be more than four inches deep, two feet long and a foot in width. Better make half a dozen of these out of bits of old boards, old grocery boxes and the like, than two big ones which are cumbersome.

Save out a goodly quantity of garden soil in need not be more than four inches deep, two feet long and a foot is width. Better make half a dozen of these out of bits of old boards, old grace cumbersome.

Save out a goodly quantity of garden soil in the fall short foot of the fall and a content of the fall of the f like.

Cut some papers into seven-inch squares, some into eight and others into ten. To make the pots, double the back diagonally as the diagram shows at Fig. 1 and crease. Now lay flat on the table and fold the point "A" over to the left to "B," creasing the fold "1-b" down sharply. The edges of the paper "B-b" must be parallel with the fold at the bottom, "a-A;" you will note that in order to make them thus, the lower point "I" of this fold does not come in the middle of the bottom line but a little to one side of it.

Fold "a" up to "b" and crease the line "B-2" shown in Fig. 2. Now bring the point of the paper marked "C" down over the front of the "pot" as it lies before you, and crease it well; then turn the whole thing over and fold the other point, marked "c," down in the same way on the other side.

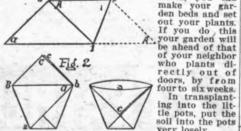

DIAGRAM FOR MAKING
PAPER POTS.

DIAGRAM FOR MAKING
PAPER POTS.

Stick about the size of a broom-handle, pointed at about the same "angle one would point a lead pencil. You can buy good dibbers but when a whittled off broomstick, about six inches long is quite as good, why spend the money? Having filled the pot with loose soil, and taken the seedling up from the seedling box or bed, note the length of the root, then make a hole in the pot of soil deep enough to permit lowering the seedling down so that the root will hang straight down without being curied or doubled up or cramped. Then set it by pushing soil around with your fingers, press it firmly but lightly into place, water and see that the transplanted plant does not get in the sunshine for the remainder of the day.

Another thing of importance, always put slats beneath the seedling boxes, whether they hold the soil direct or hold the pots. This allows drainage and air circulation.

Here is a table of flowering plants, showing when to plant in the house, when to set out in the garden and when they may be expected to bloom. This table is for the latitude of New York City. For every hundred miles you live north of that latitude, make it a week later. For every hundred miles you live south of that latitude, made it a week earlier.

Name of Plant	Indoor Plant- ing Time	When to Set Out	Flowering Period
Ageratum	Feb,	E. May	E. June-Oct.
Asters	Mar.	E. May	June-Nov.
Celosia .	Apr.	May	June-Oct.
Chrysanth'm	Mar.	May	July-frost.
Cosmos	Feb.	E. May	June-frost.
Dianthus	Apr.	May	June-Oct.
Gourds	Apr.	May	Fruit Sept. Oct.
4-O'clocks	Mar.	E. May	L. June-Sept.
Larkspur	Feb.	L. Apr.	L. May-Sept.
Marigolds Mignonette	Mar. Mar.	L. Apr.	May-frost.
Nasturtium	Mar.	May	June-Oct.
Pansy	Sept. to	L. Apr.	L. May-frost.
Lansy	Jan.	Apr.	May-frost.
Petunia	Feb.	Apr.	May-frost.
Phlox	Mar.	L. Apr.	L. June-Oct.
Salvia	Feb.	E. May	July-frost.
Stocks	Mar.	May	July-Oct.
Verbena	Feb. to		July Oct
	Apr.	May	June-Oct.
Zinnia	Mar.	E. May	L. May-frost,
	-		_

Comfort's League of Cousins

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 11.)

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE II.)

dollars alone. Oh, if every citizen of this vast country could read your writings and be convinced. I live out from town where many of the people do not understand. A neighbor of mine and her husband, a physician, are helping me to try and explain to many of the people in our vicinity why the United States entered this war. When my brother who is a soldier was home on furlough he helped us talk. The folks here are all good people, but they simply don't just understand. I would be proud to know that my son and daughter, when they grow up, could say that their father had shed his blood to help save democracy for the world. This is no time for personal feeling and selfshness. We must consider the sufferings of humanity. My brave soldier brother visited us for ten days: the last night of his stay we same "Nearer My God to Thee," and "God Be with Us Till We all Meet Again." When we kissed him good by we held back the tears for his sake. We did not want his last moments with us spoiled by sad faces and weeping eyes. We bade him God speed with as much cheer as possible. My mother is real brave about it all. May God bless you Incle Charlie, and I hope you may live to see the week and made safe for that democracy for which you have so bravely and so persistently fought.

Thank you, dear friend, for your letter. It is which you have so bravely and so persistently fought.

Miss. Rosalind Lyman Goldman.

Thank you, dear friend, for your letter. It is like a breath of fresh air blowing through a reeking dungeon filled with Prussian poison gas. Alas! such letters as yours are pitifully few. Human nature at the best is too often a weak, pitiful thing, always ready to shirk a responsibility rather than face one. Men and nations can never survive, and they are not fit to survive, if in those supreme hours of stress and trial which come to all in this uncertain life, they are not ready and willing to face with unfinching eyes and dauntless heart their Gethsemane of trial, their Calvary of suffering. Even Christ faltered for a moment, but only for a moment, then with sublime heroism He frod the road to Calvary and the cross. If we are not ready to do our duty to our country, a free country, as the German soldier is ready to serve his despotic, autocratic Kalser, if we are not ready to face death rather than dishonor, even as little Serbia, heroic Belgium and gallant France and Britain have done, if we dally in the primrose path and scorn the beckoning hand of honor and duty, rather than carry our cross, we cannot win for a stricken, bleeding world, that resurrection that lies beyond the cross, beyond Calvary, the resurrection of freedom, liberty, brotherhood, truth, honor, decency, all of which the iron heel of Prussia has trampled in the dust, and we shall become slaves. And democracy and freedom, as we love and understand it, must perish from the earth. The peace-at-any-price lunatics would turn this nation into a hog pen of craven, degenerate brutes. Mrs. Goldman would give us a nation of men and heroes. Choose today which master ye will serve, the beast of despoism or the angel of democracy, the demon of tyranny or the spirit of liberty.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE;

I am seventeen years of age, five feet six inches tall, and weigh one hundred and thirty pounds and have a light complexion. Now Uncle Charlie about this war. I get so tearing mad at the people round here—they don't want to fight. I'm so mad that I could lick them and Germany, too. I can do most anything around the home. I can make beds cook and milk the cows and for pastime I can read crochet and tat, and for sports I can swim fish and hunt. I can do almost anything on the farm and I have bees and pigeons. I help the shut-ins all, I can and hope the rest of you do the same. We raise all kinds of grain, fruit, potatoes and water melon here. I have your poem and picture book, Unele Charlie, and they are fine. I would like a letter from every state.

Yur loving niece, Vincie Daily Sunson. DEAR UNCLE CHARLIE;

Virgie, I don't wonder that you get tearing mad at some of the boys if they are anything like some of the whining traitorous rascals who write to me, and if you feel like licking these slackers and Germany too, we will be delighted to have you do the job. Maybe you girls will have to get together and do what the women of Russia have done, go to the trenches and fight while the men stay home, talk their heads off and drink themselves into a state of insensibility whenever sia have done, go to the trenches and fight while the men stay home, talk their heads off and drink themselves into a state of insensibility whenever they get a change. Doubtless the men in your neighborhood think the draft is cruel and undemocratic. A man who won't fight for his country will darned soon find that he has no country to fight for. No nation can be free unless it is ready to defend its freedom. Readiness to fight and eternal vigilance are the price of liberty. So you have pigeons and bees? Billy the Goat says he has fleas, but he never had bees. I should think it must be awfully painful to have bees. Now that farm labor is so scarce and dear, I'm glad to know there is someone who can make beds cook and milk the cows, for that is helping the country and helping Hoover. So you can read crochet and tat can you Virgie? That must be something new in the line of literature and a remarkable accomplishment. Imaginative minds can read crochet and tat, those arts will be robbed of some of their terrors. I thought that fish could swim without any assistance, but evi-

BARGAINS IN SEEDS Hundreds of special offers in surplus stock of seeds and plants at bargain prices. Don't buy until you have seen our beautiful illustrated catalog, mailed free if you mention this paper. IOWA SEED CO., Dept. 1, Des Moines, love

Strawberry Plants, Postal will bring complete and nicely our stock grown best way. MAYER'S PLANT BURSERY, MERRILL, MICH.

dentia they need a little encouragement in Mississippi. The fish should be exceedingly grateful to you, my dear, for all this gratuitous instruction. I feel confident if you can teach fish to swim you can also teach slackers to fight. The country needs more girls of your get up and ability, Virgle. Here is more power to you.

League Shut in and Mercy Work for January

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these, ye have done it unto Me."

Written references from postmaster and physi-cian must positively accompany all appeals from shut-ins. Appeals unaccompanied by written ref-erences will be destroyed.

Mrs. Lucy Vernon, Price, R. R. 1, Box 18, N. C. Poor and needy. Invalid, well recommended. Send her some cheer. Mrs. A. C. Hottinger, Thornville, R. R. 5, Ohio. Old lady, sick and alone. No means of support. Send her a greenback shower. Susan Agee, Spencer, R. R. 1, Va. Forty-four years of age. Blind and helpless. Well recommended. Do what you can to brighten her hard lot. Ellen Mays, Carmi, Ill. Invalid. Send her some cheer. William Bolden, 1119 Dewey Ave., Bemidji, Minn. Helpless cripple. Un-(CONTINUED ON PAGE 21.)

The Wonder of the World Rose Bushes with roses on them in 8 weeks from the time the seed was planted. It may not seem possible but we Guarantee it to be so. They will
BLOOM EVERY TEN WEEKS
Winter or Summer and when 3 years old will have 5 or 6 hundred roses on each bush. Will grow in the house in the winter as well as in the ground in summer.
Roses All The Year Around. Package of seed with our guarantee, by mail, Only Ten Cents.
Japan Seed Co., Box 616, South Norwalk, Cons.

1200 TO 1 BEAN.

A Gigantic Wonder—over 200 pods l been grown on a single plant—all filled, producing over 1200 beans fre erect, branching out in all directi und, which literally load the pla bean planted. Plants grow strong and erect, branching out in all directions, bearing their pods up well from the ground, which literally load the plants; beans being pure white and of best quality.

Plant in your garden or any good soil, only I bean in a hill, and they will matere a crop in about 80 days, ripening very evenly, and the growth and yield will simply suprise you. Just the bean everyone should plant this year.

My supply is yet limited and I can offer only in scaled packets containing 50 Beans each with cultural directions. Order early to be sure of them.

Scaled packets 10c cachi 3 plut 35c; 7 plut 50c; 15 plut 61.00 postpald, My 1913 Seed Book is filled with High Grade Garden Seeds at lowest prices.

Do not buy until you see my Beek; it will save you money. Tell your friends; it's mailed free. F. B. MILLS, Seed Grower, Dept. 18, HOSE HILL, N. Y.

This department, which is conducted by eminent specialists and experts in the various branches of agricultural science and practical, business farming, will keep our readers posted on the latest scientific discoveries and teach them the best methods of operating in order to obtain GREATER FARM PROFITS AND BETTER HOME LIVING.

Any COMFORT subscriber can have the advice of our Agricultural Staff free on questions relating to farming, live stock and dairying. The answers will be printed in this department and will be interesting and instructive to all who are concerned in farming.

Write your questions plainly on one side of the paper only; give your full name and address, and direct your letter to COMFORT'S MODERN FARMER, Augusta, Maine.

Pork Production Pays

EVER before have hog and hog products been so high. During the months of July, August and September the price of hogs on the Chicago market, the greatest hog market in the world, has not fallen below eighteen cents per pound and is still holding at a high level. With the shortage of fat in Europe and the great reduction of the world's supply of pork and of all other meats. due to the war, it is unlikely that pork can be cheap again in this country for some years to come. Should the war come to a peaceful end this winter, the price of pork is certain to be high for at least another year or two, because the opportunity to increase the supply of hogs for next year's market will have gone by.

What Does It Cost to Produce Pork?—The government is calling upon the American farmer to raise more hogs. The farmer replies that he can't afford to do it because of the high price of feed, particularly milk and corn. Of course this is a real objection provided it is more profitable for him to market his corn and skim milk direct than in the form of pork. Now let us see what corn and skim milk are worth when fed to pigs.

It has been shown by frequent experiment that one hundred pounds of skim milk will produce five pounds of pork when fed to growing pigs,—that is, it takes about 20 pounds of skim milk to produce one pound of growth in pigs. The following table shows the relation between the price of pork and the price of skim milk.

THE RELATION OF THE PRICE OF SKIM

THE RELATION OF THE PRICE OF SKIM MILK TO THE PRICE OF PORK

	*** * * *			-
Wi	th por	k at			SI	cim :	Milk	is worth
.20	cents	per	pound.		. $	1.00	per	hundred
18	cents	per	pound.					hundred
16	cents	per	pound.			.80	per	hundred
12	cents	per	pound.			.60	per	hundred
			pound.			.40	per	hundred
			pound.			.30	per	hundred

The farmer should study this relation between the price of skim milk and pork before he decides that it is better to market his milk whole than to skim the milk; sell the cream and feed the skim to skin the milk; sen the cream and reed its skin milk to pigs.

Henry has shown that under ideal feeding conditions four pounds of corn will produce one pound of pork in pigs. The general rule, however, is to allow 5.6 pounds of corn for one pound of gain, that is, to figure one bushel of corn will make 10 pounds of pork.

THE RELATION OF THE PRICE OF CORN TO

		-		-	 -	-	-
wi	th no	rk a	t -					One of cor		shel worth	•
00	car bo
20	cents	per	pound					. $2.00	per	bushel
18	cents	per	pound					. 1.80	per	bushel
16	cents	per	pound					. 1.60	per	bushel
12	cents	per	pound					. 1.20	per	bushel
8	cents	per	pound					80	per	bushel
6	cents	per	pound					60	per	bushel

The above are very general rules and these results are easily obtainable on the average farm. Good feeders under better conditions, by combining skim milk with corn and other feeds, are able to obtain much better gains for the same amount of feed.

Good Rules for Making Pork

I. Make pork from spring pigs.

II. Raise pigs on pasture with skim milk and grain fed in a self feeder.

III. Finish by heavy feeding on corn for a short period when about six months old.

IV. Do not feed heavily for more than four weeks.

IV. Do not feed heavily for more than four weeks.

V. Market when pigs weigh about two hundred pounds, if prices are right.

Rule I has been proven by experiment. It always pays best to feed young stuff. More rapid gains are made from the same amount of feed. Winter feeding is expensive because it takes so, much feed to keep the animals warm and there is no pasture for them to run on.

Rule II was first proved by the Iowa Experiment Station and has been verified by several other stations. In one of these experiments it was shown that the land used for pasture brought $60.00 per acre for rent and practically no labor was expended on it. In other words, good pork can be made more cheaply on pasture and by using much less corn than most farmers are accustomed to feed.

Rule III. Heavy corn feeding for a short, time is necessary to finish pigs in the right condition for market. Of course other grains like barley, peas or oats can be used where corn is not to be had.

Rule IV. The longer a hog is fed the more peas had.

Rule IV. The longer a hog is fed the more feed it takes to produce a pound of gain. After ten or twelve weeks' feeding the hog sometimes makes no gain at all. Pigs can be finished in about four weeks, ready for market.

Rule V. It has been proven that the best and cheapest pork can be made from the six or seven months' old pig. If the first four rules hold, then the pig should be marketed as soon as he is this age if he is fit and the prices are right. At this age the fitted pig will weigh about 200 to 250 pounds if he has been well cared for and fed according to the above rules.

Why Not Raise Your Own Pork?

With bacon at 40 to 50 cents per pound and the other pork products in proportion, it will take about $200 of the family income to keep the table for a family of six supplied daily with pork. Why not raise this meat at a much cheaper cost? Why not raise this meat at a much cheaper cost? It doesn't take much pasture for a few pigs. A little skim milk daily, the kitchen slops, a self feeder kept stocked with ground feed, shelled corn and dried blood or tankage mixed, where the pigs can run and help themselves, will raise them to six months with little labor and less cost than it will take to buy the meat back from the butcher. Why should not every farmer raise his own meat?

price for hogs nearing the twenty dollar mark per 100 pounds the farmer needs little urging to so breed every available sow, provided he does not have to buy hog feed, but that perhaps is not the only vital consideration. It would be true economy to increase the size of the sow's litter, if that could be managed. It has been alleged that the average corn stuffed Poland-China sow only averages some five pigs that live out of each litter. Some farmers assert, too, that five good pigs are better than a large litter of poor pigs, and there is much truth in that assertion. It is certain, however, that the number of strong pigs in a litter might be increased, were the breeder to go at the work aright. There is no way of absolutely determining in advance the size of the litter, but there is a sure way of making the number small and the strength of the pigs below normal. That is accomplished, unintentionally, by improper feeding and management of the sow and boar. Animals to mate to the best advantage slould be in robust health and muscus lar from exercise. Where sows and boars are stuffed with corn and given little exercise they become flabby and sluggish and in that condition twill not be likely to produce a maximum litter of pigs or pigs that have good vitality. Pigs talso may be weakened in advance by underfeeding and over-exercising the sow.

A common but unsuspected cause of weak pigs and small litters is over-gervice of the boar. It has been found that sows bred at the end of a big season of service tend to have small litters and weak pigs.

It is highly important, therefore, to mate sows and boars that are in a high state of health and vitality from exercise, proper and adequate feeding and ample exercise. Then the litters will be likely to contain a maximum number of strong pigs.

Influences of Heredity

Influences of Heredity

Answering an inquiry for information on this subject it may be said that many beliefs once held have been proved untrue by scientific study of the subject. For instance, it has been found that disease such as tuberculosis of man and animals is not hereditary but, is contagious, being due to a specific micro-organism, the bacillus of tuberculosis, from the planting of which the disease grows just as a crop of corn follows planting of corn seed. Without the seed there can be no crop of corn and no case of tuberculosis. The seed must be strong, goods and high in germinating powers, however, if a good stand of corn is to be obtained and then the soil must contain all of the needed nourishment for the growing plant and it must likewise have an adequate supply of sunshine and moisture if it is to thrive and bear well. In the same way the seed of a disease may fall into suitable growing "soil" or tissue, or the opposite. A person or animal may be born into the world with a weak constitution and slight resistant power and such a person readily is stricken with tuberculosis, or otherinfectious or contagious disease. Tubercular parents may endow their offspring with such constitutional weakness, lack of resistant power and susceptibility to contract tuberculosis, but the seed of the disease comes from actual contact, not from heredity.

In mating our farm animals we select the ents may endow their offspring with such constitutional weakness, lack of resistant power and susceptibility to contract tuberculosis, but the seed of the disease comes from actual contact, not from heredity.

In mating our farm animals we select the soundest and strongest individuals of the desired type and character and then have a reasonable expectation that the resultant progeny will take after the parents. The sounder the parents the less the likelihood of unsoundness in the offspring, but we cannot otherwise control hereditary influences any more than we can control sex. The hereditary influence comes not alone from the immediate ancestry but from the remote ancestry, the entire line of ancestry, or family, as well as of race and breed. Each animal in the chain has received its supply of hereditary material from its parents, half from each, and these not necessarily alike, and the parents in turn received their supply from their parents in the same way and so on down to the original ancestors. All of the possibilities from heredity are contained in the two cells which fuse to form the new animal at conception. Then is decided whether the animal shall be white or black, big or little, for beef or milk production, for speed or draft work, strong or weak in constitution. Afterward we cannot by any means whatever change these immutably fixed actualities, but we can modify some of them by management. We cannot modify color or sex but we can bring out all of the possibilities from heredity endowed in the animal for beef production or milk production by adequate and proper feeding and management.

In influencing the maximum production of beef or milk, or by semi-starvation and surrounding the animal with adverse conditions prevent it from succumbing or becoming unprofitable and by withholding them or exposing the animal to adverse influence and copiet of milk and butter fat. In the same way is an normally strong and robust by good care and feeding and environment, but by supplying these we can perhaps prevent it butcher. Why should not every farmer raise his own meat?

Is Silage Injurious?

Increasing Litters of Pigs

It is being advised and rightly so that, so far as possible, as many pigs as the farmer can feed should be raised the coming season. With the

Indeed we have no hesitation whatever in asserting that the silo may now be regarded as absolutely necessary on every well equipped and properly managed dairy farm and by many feeders of beef cattle also is looked upon in this light. Let us look, however, at the things which have in many instances brought corn silage into disrepute. disrepute.

have in many instances brought corn silage into disrepute.

Sour or acid silage is injurious, but there is no need of having corn silage too acid, under normal conditions. It used to be common but that was owing to the fact that the corn was cut too green, with the grain "in the milk," or even younger than that. Now the best silage is made from corn that is well glazed and dented. We do not like to put in the silo corn from which the milk can be spurted out by pressure of the thumb nail.

Extra acid silage may injure the teeth. It is asserted by enemies of silage, most of them simply are ignorant and prejudiced, that silage—all silage—loosens the teeth of cattle. These "knockers" seem to be unaware of the well-known fact that the incisor teeth of all adult cattle naturally are somewhat loose in their sockets, such looseness being necessary to prevent cutting of the cartilaginous pad of the hard palate above which takes the place of an upper set of incisor teeth. For the same reason the lincisors point upward, not forward, as in the horse.

Moldy silage is highly injurious to cattle and incisors point upward, flot forward, as in the horse.

Moldy silage is highly injurious to cattle and will kill horses "as sure as a shotgun." Much corn has been touched by frost or badly frosted this season and consequently has been cut and run into the silo at once. This corn will be likely to prove somewhat acid as silage and will mold readily. These tendencies might have been lessened greatly by allowing the corn to stand in the shock for a few days to dry and then wetting it well as it entered the blower of the cutter or before running it through the knives of a carrier machine. In feeding such silage the Acustomary quantity fed should be reduced one-third to one-half. Where the farmer owns his own engine and cutter, and that is becoming a common thing, bright oat straw, hay and well saved corn fodder may be cut and fed along with silage that is too acid, or slightly moldy. Even then such silage had better not be given to pregnant cows or ewes and is absolutely unfit for horses. horses.

Taking everything into consideration corn silage may be considered somewhat dangerous feed for horses. The utmost care must be taken in feeding it to these animals. Only silage that is perfect in every way should be fed. That which is moldy in the slightest degree should be rejected. Great care should be taken to keep horses away from spoiled silage thrown into the cattle yard, nor is it well to allow cattle access to such silage. Acid silage is too loosening for horses and also irritates the kidneys and so weakens the animal for work. Silage is best fed to idle work horses, if at all. It should not be given to pregnant mares or horses at hard work, but may be fed, in moderate quantities along with plenty of other sound feed, to growing colts. Sound silage is beneficial as a part ration for pregnant ewes and sows in the winter season, but moldy or highly acid silage is injurious. Do not exceed two or three pounds of silage a day for the ewe or sow and if possible add clover or alfalfa hay as roughage.

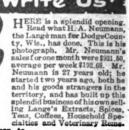

Developing Heifers

Developing Heifers

If a heifer calf is to grow into a profitable dairy cow it is absolutely necessary that it should have a good start and then be kept growing "for all it is worth" until it has its first calf; after that generous feeding is necessary for profitable milk production and building of the unborn calf. It has been said many a time that the "calf flesh" must not be lost; but that is not the whole story. Many a calf is so ill-fed when little that it really never makes the flesh that we have referred to here. The calf simply grows gradually all the time, is thin and scrawny and such a calf has a tight, harsh hide and dry coat of hair. If a calf is doing well it will lie down much of the time and sleep. When it rises it will stretch itself and maybe go to licking its body. Examination will show that it has a wide, fleshy loin. We always look at that part to determine how a calf is growing. The calf that nurses its dam and fattens for "vealing" has a very wide, thick, fleshy loin. If such a loin is lacking in the calf that is being developed for dairying it i. growing up stunted and will never be likely to develop into a large, roomy, "sappy" cow that has a big middle and deep wedge-shaped hind quarters with thin thighs. The chief reason for stunting in little calves is first of all lack of milk and next exposure to the hot sun on short pasture where flies also annoy and prevent growth. On such pasture, too, the calves will be about certain to become infested with lung worms and they cause lack of growth. Recently the results of ten years of feeding work at the Wisconsin Experiment Station have been published and they go to show that nothing perfectly takes the place of butter fat for young animals. There is a mysterious element in this fat, and that of hen-eggs, which causes growth and full development. It cannot be perfectly replaced by any vegetable fat and so we may conclude that every calf needs whole milk for a time and then plenty of sweet skim milk along with a mixture of other feeds. The same e incomplete feed. The grain alone is deficient in protein and mineral matters, but if all of the plant is fed this seems to be made up for perfectly. In raising calves for dairying then see that they have plenty of milk and then plenty of mixed meals, and fine clover hay or add Alfalfa, as a part ration. Feed whole oats, wheat bran and corn as they grow older and at all times see that they have shade and an abundance of fresh water. There is no profit in letting young calves run on dry, short, old pasture with inadequate shade and water: Many successful cattlemen prefer to raise the calves in large, clean, airy, light pens where flies do not bother and where lung worms cannot be contracted and they feel sure that if the calves are fully developed thus and by generous feeding they will turn out well-grown profitable cows for the dairy. The stunted dairy helfer is not worth retaining for milk production and breeding.

Make *200 Per Month •Write Us•

LANGES

dies direct from home. You can do

THE LANGE CO., Dept.W. De Pere, Wie

Get Wholesale Direct from manufacturers. Save money—Quick shipment—We pay Stove Prices the freight—30 days' trial. We kitchen kabinets and tables. chen kabinets and tables.

KALAMAZOO STOVE CO., A KAJAMAZOO Direct to Sou ORNAMENTAL FENCE

New Feather Beds Only $6.50

New Feather Pillows $1.25 per pair. All new clean sau-itary feathers. Best ticking. Write for illustrated catalog. SOUTHERN FEATHER & PILLOW CO., Dept. 201 Greensbore, N. C

Winter Wastes

Just go out and look around and see what you can see going to waste this winter.

All these fields of uncut corn fodder make excellent food for stock. Is it going to waste in your vicinity? Are hay stacks rotting down for want of a cover or shelter or from bad stacking? Does the plow stand imbedded in the dirt at the end of the furrow just where it was last used? Does the binder stand snow-blown in the field and the hay rake in the meadow? Is the wagon taking the weather for want of a shelter, or the manure pile the leaching of rains?

More farm machinery rots and rusts out than wears out. Of course you will find none of these things on your own farm but how about your neighbor's? Just go out and look around.

Winter Jobs for Winter Time

With the scarcity of farm help that obtained last summer and the probability of a still greater shortage next year it is a wise plan for the farmer to do as much of next season's work as he can now while work is slack. For his benefit we list here a lot of such jobs. Of course the list is not complete but it will serve to suggest other work which the farmer can do now and before the ground is ready to work next spring:

1. Clean and grade seed grain.

2. Test and shell seed corn.

3. Treat oats ahd barley for smut and other grains for their diseases.

4. Repair all farm machinery and make it ready to run.

5. Make gates and other wooden implements which can be made inside under cover.

6. Mend the harnesses and clean and oil them.

7. Splice the hay rope if it needs it.

8. Sharpen the plow and other spring tools.

9. Lay in a stock of oil and grease for the machinery.

10. Don't put off what can be done now.

nachinery.

10. Don't put off what can be done now.

The Questions and Answers constitute one of the most valuable features of this department and we urge our farmer subscribers to read all of them carefully each month, as yea will find that they contain much useful information and advice on practical problems that are troubling you as well as vice on practical problems that are traubling you as well as those who have asked the questions. Out them out and paste them into a scrapbook for future reference. This will save you the trouble of writing us and will avoid delay in getting your answer when you need advice on these same matters. We are glad to receive inquiries from our subscribers and to advise them on all matters pertaining to farming.

Questions and Answers

STEONG BUTTER.—My mother has trouble with her butter getting strong in four or five days after churning. It makes no difference whether the cows are just fresh or of old milking. Can you tell me the cause of the trouble?

Mrs. C. F. R., Trego, Md.
A.—Bacteria in the milk utensils is the cause. The only remedy is to carefully wash, scald and sun dry the churn and all milk vessels. Use pure water for the washing and set the milk and keep the cream in sclean, well ventilated place. a clean, well ventilated place.

to match, $1.45. Selected, New, Live, Clean, Sanitary Feathers. Best Feather-proof Ticking. Sold on money-back guarantee. DO NOT BUY from anyone at any price, until you get the BOOK OF TRUTH, our big, new catalog mailed FREE. Write a postal card today. Agents wanted.

American Feather & Pillow Co., Desk 240, Nashville, Tenn.

BY KATE V. SAINT MAUR.

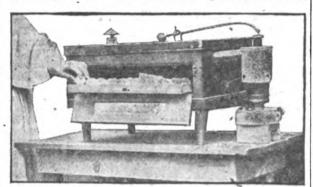

ing fall and early winter there must be a lot of chickens hatched in the early spring, for it is young pullets that one has to depend on for early winter eggs.

If you used an incubator instead of hens, you would be sure of having a flock of pullets all of the same age, who would commence to lay at about the same time, and the young cockerels being of the same age, would all be ready for market at the same time, so could be crated alive and shipped by train to the nearest city, where they would catch the high prices which prevail in May and June. Hatching with hens you have birds of all ages stringing along through the summer, with never enough of any one age to make it worth shipping, so are confined to local conditions and poor prices.

"Live in a village, and have no place for a lot of youngsters at one time."

Lots of people are making a business of hatching and selling day-old chicks, and find it very profitable, as they bring from ten to twenty-five cents apiece, according to the quality of the stock.

The last and most frequent objection offered vegetables; if you give them the table scraps, be careful that there is a very small percentage of fat in them. As soon as a bird shows any sign of lameness, remove it from the flock and place it in a small coop in a sheltered place. Cover the floor of the coop with a deep layer of cut hay or straw. Rub the bird's feet and shanks with a mixture of sweet lard, or vaseline and turpentine. For internal use add fitteen grains of iodide of potassium to every quart of drinking water. Put a small dish in each coop being used for sick birds, and as a matter of precaution, remove the regular drinking dish from the chicken-house, and substitute a small one containing the same mixture for a fortnight at least.

Correspondence

G. B.— Read answer to L. K.

C. A. B.— You should be able to make a success of ing dish from the chicken-house, and substitute a small one containing the same mixture for a fortnight at least.

G. B.—Read answer to L. K.

C. A. B.—You should be able to make a success of poultry on such a splendid place. New grounds, new houses insure freedom from germs and vermin to start with, and a little forethought and care will keep the place sanitary. Log houses are as warm, and can be made as practical and convenient as highly finlished, expensive buildings. Seven years ago we built an open front house of slabs, forty feet long, ten feet wide and cight feet high in front, sloping to six at the back. All the upper part of the front was covered with unbleached muslin. The door is in the center of the front, and the inside is divided into two compartments which have two parallel roosts running along the back one foot from the floor. Six nests in two tiers of three each, stand at the far end of each compartment. Drinking fountains, and boxes for grit and shell, are placed against the wire partition which divides the compartments from the space into which divides the compartments from the space into which the door opens. The house has a dirt floor, which is kept covered to a depth of six inches with dry leaves or cut straw. Fifteen pulsets are kept in each compartment every winter for market eggs. We never had a case of sickness in the house, and the birds always lay well. The main thing is to select land with a good natural drainage, and have the logs or slabs (whichever you use) carefully trued up along the sides, so that the edges will fit closely together. Cover the joints so that there are no cracks or crevices. Drafts and dampness are as fattal as a close, warm house. To be healthy, birds need an abundance of fresh sir, even in the coldest weather. Don't leave any bark on the wood used inside the house, as it is sure to become loosened and make a space for vermin to congregate in. Give the inside of the house a coat of thick whitewash before using it. It lightens the interior, and closes up the cr The Autornaleges of an Incubator

A segment of the New York men and a segment of the Autornaleges of the Incubator of the Autornaleges of the Incubator of the AYSON'S INDELIBLE INK It makes a clear mark that will not spread or wash out and will protect cotton, linens and heavier fabrics from confusion or loss. A household necessity for eighty-two years. Ready for use with a common pen. Stationers and Druggists sell it in the old-fashioned red and yellow wrappers, or it will be sent prepaid for 25c by PAYSON'S INDELIBLE INK CO., 326-328 Henshaw Ave., Northampton, Mass.

Satisfaction Guaranteed Over 650,000 Satisfied Users $1000 Cash Prizes Conditions easy, Or write today for my Free Book, Matching Facts, Matching Facts, Months for esting up and operating, you are sure of successes. Jim Boban, Pres.

Belle City Incubator Co., Box 135 Racine, Wis.

Get Johnson's Gives you the cream of our 26 years' experience and 1918 offer on

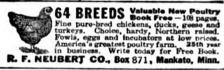

Old Trusty

750,000 owners. We pay freight or express. Write today. Tell us your poultry troubles. Book free.
M. M. JOHNSON COMPANY CASCENCE. NED.

GET OUR "PEACE" PRICES ON "Successful" INCURATORS Mail a postal—Get our offer. Poultry lessons free to every buyer. Booklet, "How to Raise 48 Out of 50 Chicks," 10c. Catalog FREE, Make green, egg-making feed in "SUCCESSIVA," Brain Spreeters. "SUCCESSFUL," Brain Spreaters. DES MOINES (NCUBATOR CO. 25 Years of 687 Second St., Des Moines, Ia. Big Successes

LTRY AND PIGEONS FOR PROFIT

Foy's big book tells all about it. Coutains many colored plates—an encyclopedia of poultry information, poultry houses, feeding for eggs, etc. Written by a man scho knows.

53 Varieties, Chickens, Bronze, White Turkeys; Toulouse, Embden, African, China Geese; Rouen, Pekin, Runner, Muscovy Ducks; Guineas, Incubators, Broodera. Catalog free. THEODORE FRANZ, Box 97, Mankato, Minn.

Money in Poultry Big profits, and Squabs Our stock pays best, shows, best layers, lowest prices, all varieties, Big Free Book tells all about it. Write today, opening with the state of th Big Free Book tells all about it. Without a CRESCENT POULTRY FARM, Box 2, Des Moines, ia.

62 BREEDS, Pure-bred Chickens, Ducks, Geose, Turkeys. Hardy northern raised, wigorous, beautiful, Fowls, eggs, incubators, at low prices. MMERICAT FORMER FOULTRY FARM: 24 years exp. Large fine Annual Poultry Book and Catalog FREE. P. A. NEUBERT, Box 642. Mankate, Minn. Poultry Book Latest and best yet: 144

57 Varieties Chickens, Ducks, Goods and Turksys.

Brdy, porthern raised. Fowls, says and Inchibation. hardy, northern raised. Fowlaning, pure-bre fow prices. Most successful farm; 19th year. Lirgif estalog free. Larkin & Herzhery, Sox 35 Mankets, Min

RAISE GUINEA PIGS Big money making opportunity. Easy to start and buy all you raise. Big demand—thousands needed Easier to raise, pay better than Poultry or Squabs, irs, contract and booklet how to raise FREE. CAVIES DISTRIBUTING CO., 2180 Grand Ave., Kansas

"Too expensive."

Five gallons of oil will run a machine holding three hundred eggs, and leave some over. It would take twenty-one hens to cover that number of eggs, and they would eat at least a quart of corn a day for twenty-one days, besides the loss occasioned by their not laying during the three weeks of setting, and the additional eight weeks preded for brooding.

"Sell all my eggs. Too far from market to make young chickens profitable."

To keep up a supply of eggs for market during the house is small, and the birds are overgrounded on the perches at night. Feed plenty of green is the supply of green in the supply in the supply

UBBY BEAR'S VISIT By Lena B. Ellingwood

Copyright, 1917, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher. Inc.

RANDMA BEAR was very sick in her home on the other side of the big mountain, and Mamma Bruin was going to see her.

'I must not take you with me," said Mamma Bruin to Cubby Bear, "and I think the best plan will be for you to go to Auntie Bear's house for a visit with your little cousins, Bonniebelle and Jackie Bear. You did not go with me when I went in the spring, for you were helping the beavers to save their homes from the spring freshet. Now the beautiful June weather is with us, and you will have a fine journey."

"I would love to go," said Cubby Bear, "and play with my little cousins, if you were going. too. It will seem strange not to be with you, Mamma Bruin. And—and—"he hesitated, "I'm afraid I shall not know the way to go-it is a long way—but perhaps those I meet along the way can show me where to go! Perhaps I shall not get lost!" And Cubby Bear turned away to not get lost!" And Cubby Bear turned away to hide a shining tear.

"Why, Cubby Bear!" said Mamma Bruin, "did you think I would start you off alone to go so far? No, no! Redtop Woodpecker, who came to tell me of poor Grandma Bear's sickness, has promised to show you the way. On his swift wings, he can fly back home again quickly. He has promised, too, to let you know when I am ready for you to come home again."

It was on a sunny shiny morning that they

It was on a sunny, shiny morning that they started out—Mamma Bruin towards the big mountain which Cubby Bear had once climbed with Foxy Reynard, and Cubby Bear and Red-top Woodpecker toward the West Forest, at the farther side of which lived Auntie and Uncle

The jolly round sun was sending down pleasant little sunrays to brighten and warm the earth, wild flowers were smiling up at the blue sky above, the green leaves on the trees were fresh and new. It was a pleasure to be out, walking over the soft, brown leaf-mold, the green beds of moss, and last year's pine needles, and breathing the sweet, forest-scented air.

"Oh, wait a little, Cubby Bear," chirped Redtop Woodpecker, "I must soar up above the tree-tops. I want to stretch my wings. I will soon be back!" soon be back!"

Cubby Bear watched, wishing that he, too, might fly, but he had tried it once, when he might fly, but he had tried it once, when he knew no better, and been badly hurt.

Redtop Woodpecker went to the top of a maple tree, and perched there, calling, "Cuk—cuk—cuk, wickup, wickup, wickup!" clearly and shrilly, then lifted his little wings and went sailing up towards the clear sky.
Robbie Reddie flew by Cubby Bear, giving his ear a friendly little tweak in passing, and lighting on a bush near by, began chirruping gally.

"I love to sing," he told Cubby Bear. "I cannot help it, I am so happy, so happy!"

Then he litted his head, his red breast shining in the sun, and the melody poured forth until his little throat seemed near to bursting.

"Chee-eerily cheerily-cheer-up!
Chee-eerily-cheerily-cheer-up,
cheer-up, cheer-up!"
The song thrilled Cubby Bear's little heart.

He wanted to sing, too.

Redtop Woodpecker came sailing down.

"Oh, Cubby Bear!" he cried, "come quickly to an open place near here! There is something in the sky I want you to watch! You come, too, Robbie Reddie" Robbie Reddie.'

When they came to the little clearing, Redtop Woodpecker said, "There! look up! There is old Edric Eagle! He does not often come near you something very different. Little Ruby here. His home is on a rocky ledge near the top of Bald Mountain. Just see the broad sweep of his wings! He is old—very old—but strong and fierce still."

I saw it yesterday. You must not go too near if she is there, for you will frighten her."
So Robbie Reddie led the way to where the

"I never saw him before," said little Cubby Bear, "but I have seen the feather fan he gave to Molly Muskrat's grandmother long ago."

"Look, look!" cried Robbie Reddie. "There is Henry Hawk, too, in the sky. What is he carrying, up so high?"

you something very different. Little Ruby Hummingbird has built her nest not far away.

fairylike nest of little Ruby hung, dainty and small, like its little owner. It was made of plant fibers, moss and cobwebs, decorated with bits of red-dotted lichens, and tiny feathers.

"Oh, the cunning little nest!" said Cubby Bear admiringly. "How tiny the baby birds

Ruby Hummingbird. "Be off with you! I'll not have you near!'

"I am sorry," said Cubby Bear sadly, as he went on his way with Redtop Woodpecker and Robbie Reddie. "I wish she knew I would not harm her. I would like to be her friend."

It was a happy day, and while the sun was yet high in the sky, they came to their journey's end. Redtop Woodpecker and Robbie Reddie did not stop, but started at once on their way home. They were not tired, but Cubby Bear was glad to rest.

Auntie and Uncle Bear, Bonniebell and Jackie all welcomed him gladly.

"Oh, we will have such good times!" cried

Bonniebelle. "I hope you will stay a long time."

"I hope he will stay a short time," began little Jackie. Then, as Cubby Bear looked grieved, and Bonniebelle said, "Oh, that is not kind," Jackie added, "Because, that would mean that poor Grandma Bear's sickness would not last long. Don't you see? And we want her to get well, don't we?"

Bonniebelle was sweet and smiled as ever, and still wore her gold locket with its blue rib-Little Jackie smiled too, and was a jolly little playfellow.

"Tomorrow," said Auntie Bear, "we will have a picnic, and the next day we will dig for freshwater clams on the sandy river bank. Then, the day after that, the black crows have their yearly family party, and we are going to look on. There will be hundreds of them, gathered in an open field."

"Oh nerbans I shall see my good friend

"Oh, perhaps I shall see my good friend Shinyblack Crow among them!" said Cubby Bear joyfully.

The days went by happily, each one bringing some new pleasure, and when nine of them had gone, as Cubby Bear knew by counting on his claws, Redtop Woodpecker came to take him home. Grandma Bear was well again, and Mamma Bruin was at home.

After all the good byes had been said, they started out. Cubby Bear had no wish to loiter on the way, and trotted along at a good pace.

As they neared home, Cubby kept calling

Redtop Woodpecker's attention to one familiar object after another, and at last he cried: "Ah, there is the smoke coming from our fire! See it curling above the bushes? We shall soon be there. You must come in and have some supper with us, Redtop Woodpecker."

Mamma Bruin was at the door to welcome them, smiling pleasantly, and wearing a frilly white cap with a red bow.

Around her stood Molly Muskrat, Tillie Tur-tle, Chirpy Chipmunk, and Bunny Rabbit, while from within the house could be heard the Bunny Babies, calling, "where is Cubby Bear? We want to see Cubby Bear!"

Cubby was delighted to see them all, and told them about his visit.

"I have had a happy time," he said, "but I am glad to be back again."

"Yes," said Mamma Bruin, patting his head fondly, "we like to go away sometimes, but home is the best place in the world to live, because the best love is there!"

"Cubby Bear and the Shadows" will tell about the adventure of Cubby Bear and Wolfy Woodchuck on Renew your subscription now so not to miss it next month in February COMFORT.

AUNTIE AND UNCLE BEAR, BONNIEBELLE AND JACKIE ALL WELCOMED HIM GLADLY.

"Perhaps a fish, perhaps a chicken, it is too must be to live in a home like that!" far away to tell," answered Redtop Woodpecker.
"Edric Eagle sees him, too," said Cubby Bear. See, he is flying that way."

Then they saw a race through the air above them. Edric Eagle, with his broad, strong wings, soon overtook the smaller bird. Henry Hawk, with a cry of rage and disappointment dropped his fish, for he knew that was what the eagle was after. Edric shot swiftly downward, caught the fish in mid-air as it fell, and then, rising, went sailing grandly off, to the rocky ledge which was

A whirring of swift-moving little wings was heard, and there was Ruby Hummingbird, darting about in distress. She flew at Cubby Bear and pecked at his face, then hovered in the air near her little nest, her wings in such rapid motion they could hardly be seen.

"How dare you?" she cried, in a sweet little voice, meant to be severe. "Keep away from my nest, you monster!"

"But," began Cubby politely, "I would not hurt your nest. It is pretty, and I like—"

"Don't tell me what you like!" buzzed little

Candlemas Day.

The Girl He Loved

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 6.)

cried. "You daren't make a scandal now—at this date. There's no reason why I should not live here. You can let me call on your wife—and—I'll go on holding my tongue."

Levallion leaned forward and spoke almost in here.

Levallion leaned forward and space her ear.

"I dare do anything," he said evenly. "Kindly remember that. And also that my wife," emphatically, "shall never know Mrs. Murray or call on her if she lives here forever."

"People will talk!" she gasped.

"If they do," coolly, "I sha'n't hear it; but you'll feel it. I think you had better go, if you're wise."

you'll feel it. I think you had better by, 're wise."
"Suppose I tell your wife—what will you do then?" it was her last shot, and it had a curious effect.
Levallion laughed.
"Please yourself; stay here, tell anything!" he returned, still laughing. "And I'll tell, too. It would make an amusing story—in your favorite newspaper."

returned, still laughing. "And I'll tell, too. It would make an amusing story—in your favorite newspaper" "Levallion!" it was all but a scream; she elutched him as he turned away. "You can't, you won't, you've—oh, God! haven't you any honor?" for to ruin one's own reputation is a very different thing to having it done for you.

"I have exactly as much as you have," he answered, moving quietly from her appealing hand. "You can remember that. And if you like," carelessly you can stay here. Only be good enough not to come to my house on any pretext whatever. I won't have a woman like you under my wife's roof. You understand?" sharply.

She could only nod. His sudden acquiescence in her living so near him had somewhat dumfounded her, together with his refusal to recognize her, in any way. Levallion, who had always wanted to keep things quiet! Yet it was simple enough. "After all," he had thought swiftly, "she's as well under my eyes as anywhere, while we rejoice in a penny-post!" Yet if he had seen the face of the woman he left in that dim drawing-room, it is to be doubted if Lord Levallion would not have preferred himself removing her and her belongings on a barrow, rather than have had her within a hundred miles. And yet she was only crying to herself pitifully, that she loved him still.

CHAPTER XV.

A WOMAN'S RING.

It was a wet day. A cold, steady autumn rain that made Levallion Castle chilly and shivery, and so lonely that its mistress had no desire to look at the dark corners of the room where she sat at tea-time. Levallion was out. She had hardly let him from her sight for three days; she-scarcely knew why, except that he was all she had in the world to cling to. Lady Levallion pushed away her untasted tea and went out of the big, lonely drawing-room up-stairs. Rain or no rain, she would get her hat and go out. She could not sit alone for another minute.

of high and rising war prices.

earning club premiums or cash commissions.

Earn More and Save More to Help Win the War

One small saving you can make is by renewing your subscription now, either two years for 40 cents or one year for 25 cents, before the yearly rate goes to 35 cents. You can increase your income by getting subscriptions to COMFORT during spare time,

Every little saving and each little increment of income helps you to get by in these times teeth.

While she had been sitting in comfort, he had been in this pain. It was true he had behaved vilely to her, but she could not bear any living thing to suffer like this.

"Let me try!" she said, and the purse looked up with surprise at the pity in her voice. She could feel, then, little interest as she had seemed to take in the patient.

At the touch of the shaky hand she laid on his forehead Adrian lay quiet; but only for an instant.

She was hurrying down-stairs as she had hurried up, passing a closed door without so much as a glance, when something stopped her as short as a hand on her shoulder.

"Oh!" she said aloud. "What was that?" She wheeled in the dim passage and stared in sick horror at the door which must shut in something more dreadful than she knew, for never in her life had she heard a cry like that.

"She was hurrying down-stairs as she had hurried up, passing a closed door without so much as a plance, when something stopped her as short as a hand on her shoulder." She horror at the door which must shut in something more dreadful than she knew, for never in her life had she heard a cry like that.

"As she stared, the door opened. A nurse in a white uniform-came out.

"Did you —" she began. "Oh, my lady, I be your pardon! I thought it was the doctor." The passage was nearly dark; she could not see how white her ladyship's face was, nor how startled her eyes.

"The passage was nearly dark; she could not see how white her ladyship's face was, nor how startled her eyes.

"The doctor!" Ravenel said sharply. "Do you mean you sent for him? Is Gaptain Gordon worse?"

"No, not exactly. But he's very restless and delirious. I'm afraid he may hing to suffer like this.

"Let me try!" she said, and the purse looked at the edge of the bandages, and Lady Levallion were well I should hen then the nurse had slipped quietly, and was touching his burning forehead with a professional hand.

"The poor soul wouldn't know her if she were in her if she were in her life. "The poor soul wouldn't know her if she were as she thought it she never stopped her involunt the poor soul wouldn't know her if she were as she thought it she never stopped her involunt the poor soul wouldn't know her if she were as the her involunt to prove her shoulder she here!" she muttered. "Yes, yes; she's coming." hat he thim. Oh, why does he call me! Me, that he there waway like a squeezed orange." But even as she thought it was the her involunt the nurse had been in life. And send the content of this? Is Gaptain Gordon wors?"

Not exactly, But he's very restless and delirious. I'm afraid he may injure his arm. She looked curiously at the 'slight girl in route the type of the content of the type of the content of the c

White and shaking, she leaned against the wall of the passage, that was light enough now, for the servants had lit the lamps. Her hands still at her ears, her eyes shut, her mouth drawn into that awful bow that means helpless pity, she stood, her face an open book that any passer-by might read.

"Talk of the pains of hell!" she thought.

passer-by might read.

"Talk of the pains of hell!" she thought.

"They don't wait till you're dead. They say every one builds their own fire there, and Adrian's seems to be a pretty good blaze. Only why should I burn in it? I never put one stick to it," without knowing it, she was muttering, but unintelligibly enough.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 20.)

Special Crochet and Knitted Articles

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 3.)

5th round.—1 tr. c. in first space, * 2 tr. c. in second space. Repeat from * to end of round, join, ch. 3.

6th round .- Tr. c. on tr. c. to end of round .. join, ch. 3.

7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th rounds.—Same as 6th round with an extra tr. c. between tr. c. occasionally to keep the work

c. between tr. c. occasionally to keep the work from puckering.

15th round.—Use double strand of yarn: white and pink, pearl gray and light blue, red and gray, red and white or other harmonizing colors. Fasten the double strand in last st. of 14th round, ch. 3, 1 tr. c. at beginning of round, ch. 2, 2 tr. c. in same place. (This forms the first shell in border). Sk. 4, tr. c. *2 tr. c. in next st., cn. 2, 2 tr. c. in same place, sk. 4, shell in next. Repeat from * to end of round, join. 16th round.—Sl. to center of first shell, form shell in shell to end of round, join.

17th, 18th, 19th, 20th rounds.—Same as the 16th round. As many more rounds may be added as desired. To make larger add more rows to crown and lower edge. Edge may be rows to crown and lower edge. Edge may be rolled up if desired. Finish with tassel in center of crown.

MRS. W. BIRCH.

* Hand:Made Bedspreads

Crocheted and knitted bedspreads have become very popular again the past few years.

Happily these are not all made in one piece as were some of the old-time spreads of grandmother's day, but of many small squares, diamonds or other shaped motifs according to the design, which are joined together later.

It is therefore an easy matter to carry about in one's work bag one or two pieces in the process of making.

Bedspread Square in Filet Crochet

This pattern can be copied by either working back and forth and by beginning in the center and working round and round.

To make in this way begin with ch. 5, join in ring, ch. 3, 11 d. c. in ring, join to top ch. 3.

1st round.—Ch. 8, 1 d. c. in the place where you joined for first corner, ch. 2, 1 d. c. in next 3 d. c. ch. 5 1 d. c. in same place for second 3 d. c., ch. 5, 1 d. c. in same place for second corner (ch. 2, d. c. in next 3 d. c., ch. 5, d. c. in same place for second corner (ch. 2, d. c. in next 3 d. c., ch. 5, d. c. in same place for third corner). Repeat again for fourth corner. End with ch. 2 on the 3rd stitch of ch. 8. Now you have 3 spaces from corner to corner or eight in all.

2nd round.—Sl. st. to the center of the corner

2nd round.—Sl. st. to the center of the corner and ch. 8, 1 d. c. alongside of the ch. 8, in the corner space, this is to increase. Ch. 2, and d. c. in d. c. (this is called a space or mesh), ch. 2 and d. c. in ac. (this is called a space or mesh), ch. 2 and d. c. in next d. c., ch. 2 and d. c. in corner space, ch. 2, d. c. in next d. c., ch. 2, d. c. in next d. c., ch. 2, d. c. in corner space, ch. 5 for corner, d. c. in corner space, ch. 5 for corner, d. c. in corner space, ch. 2, d. c. in next d. c., ch. 2, and d. c. in the place where the row was joined below, ch. 2 and join on the 3rd st. of the ch. 8. Repeat the manner of work as detailed in this last round where you have all spaces. And if you have solid work as in the corners as you have in 8 rounds toward the last use d. c. to correspond to the chains as used before. correspond to the chains as used before.

To know how many d. c's. to use when you have a string of them count the meshes and multiply by three and add one. When you want to make meshes over a lot of d.c's. slways make the d. c. in the 3rd d. c's. Be careful to have your work perfectly even as to mesh and nake a chain of 48 stitches.

Lace for Filet Spread

Make a chain of 48 stitches.

1st row.—Make 15 d. c. in a row beginning on the 4th ch. from the needle, counting the ch. 3 as 1 d. c. making 16 d. c. in all or equal to 5 blks. Ch. 2 and a d. c. in every ch. 3 until

LACE FOR FILET SPREAD.

first worked through at the bottom of the d. c.

8th row.—Seven sps., 4 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 4 blks., 3 sps., bik. on blk.
9th row.—Ch. 5 for a blk., beginning on 4th st. from needle, 2 sps., 2 blks., 2 sps., 2 blks., 3 sps., 2 blks., 2 sps., 2 blks., 5 sps.
10th row.—Four sps., 5 blks., 2 sps., 3 blks., 2 sps., 5 blks., 1 sp., blk. on blk.
11th row.—Blk. on blk., 1 sp., 6 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 6 blks., 4 sps. This is the center row of the rose.
12th row.—Four sps., 5 blks., 2 sps., 3 blks., 2 sps., 5 blks., 1 sp., blk. on blk.
13th row.—Blk. on blk., 2 sps., 2 blks., 2 sps., 2 blks., 2 sps., 2 blks., 2 sps., 2 blks., 5 sps.

BABY AFGHAN WITH SPACES FOR RIBBON

14th row.—Seven sps., 4 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., 1 sp., 4 blks., 3 sps., 1 blk. Drop last blk. and turn with ch. 3. 15th row.—Bik. on blk., 2 sps., 4 blks., 1 sp.,

Filet Crochet Edging (Requested)

Ch. 39 stitches, turn.

1st row.—1 d. c. in 9th st. from book, ch. 2, sk. 2 sts., 1 d. c. in next st., this makes 1 sp., ch.
2, sk. 2, 1 d. c., repeat, making 11 sps. in this row, ch. 5, turn.

2nd row.—1 d. c. on 2nd d. c. of first row, 6

2nd row.—1 d. c. on 2nd d. c. of first row, 6 more sps., 1 block (blk.) made by working 2 doubles instead of ch. 2, between doubles, this makes a blk. of 4 d. c. 2 blks. consists of 7 d. c., 3 blks. 10 d. c., etc. 3 sps. finishes this row, 3rd row.—3 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 5 sps., ch. 5.
4th row.—4 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 4 sps., ch. 5.
5th row.—3 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 3 sps., ch. 5.

oth row.—3 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 3 sps., ch. 5. 6th row.—3 sps., 5 blks., 3 sps., ch. 5. 7th row.—4 sps., 3 blks., 4 sps., ch. 5. 8th row.—5 sps., 2 blks.,

4 sps., ch. 5. 9th row.—5 sps., 1 blk., 5 sps., ch. 5.

10th row.—5 sps., 1 blk., 5 sps., cb. 5.

11th row.—5 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 1 blk., 3 sps., ch. 8. 12th row.—1 d. c. on last d. e. in 11th row, thus causing ch. 8 to make extra sp, 3 more sps., 2 blks., 6 sp, o more sps., 2 biks., 6 sps., ch. 5.

13th row.—5 sps., 3 biks., 4 sps., ch. 5.

14th row.—4 sps., 1 bik., 1 sp., 1 bik., 1 sp., 1 bik., 3 sps., ch. 5.

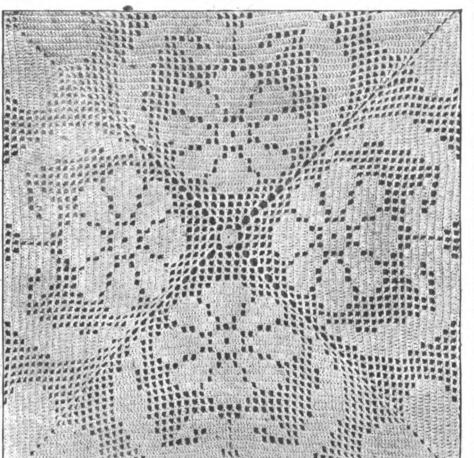

15th row.—2 sps., 4 biks., 1 sp., 2 biks., 3 sps., ch. 8.

3 blks., 1 sp., 4 blks., 6 sps.

16th row.—Six sps., 4 blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 1 sp., 4 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk., drop last blk. and turn with ch. 3.

FILET CROCHET SQUARE FOR BEDSPREAD.

blks., on last d. c., ch. 3 and make 5 blks., 10 sps.
22nd row.—Nine sps., 1 blk., drop the 5 blks. 23rd row .- Blk. on blk.,

9 sps. 24th row.—Nine sps.,

25th row.-Ch. 17 and begin on ch. 4, st. to make 5 blks., 10 sps. This is the same as first row. Repeat from the second row.

from the second row.

For the tiny pointed scallops around the outside edge, make ch. 4 and 1 s. c. in the first ch., a half d. c. in the second and a d. c. in the third chain, then a d. c. on the edge and repeat for the scallop. Do this over each block on the sides and over the rows on the and over the rows on the bottom of scallop. When going from one point to the other make two doubles in the point with the tiny scallop be-tween, then double on the next level without the scallop.

A. O. L. WERTMAN.

Crocheted Flag Pillow

first worked through at the bottom of the d. c.
Repeat until you have seven d. c. for two blks.
3rd row.—This row starts with 3 blks. Make ch. 11, beginning on the 4th st. from the needle and make 10 d. c. counting the ch. 3 on the end as one, 3 sps., 3 blks., 11 sps.
4th row.—Ten sps., 5 blks., 5 sps., and add on blk. of three more d. c.
5th row.—Blk. on blk., beginning with ch. 3 and 3 d. c. on the blk., 2 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 5 blks. on 5 blks., 1 sp., 2 blks., 7 sps.
6th row.—Six sps., 4 blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 1 sp.,
4 blks., 1 sp., 1 blk. on blk.
7th row.—Ch. 5, a blk. beginning on the 4th st. from the needle, 2 sps., 4 blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 1 sp., 4 blks., 6 sps. Having made a new and very attractive crocheted pillow cover, I want to share the idea with Comport readers.

with COMFORT readers.

I made it of red, white and blue silkateen in simple double crochet. The blue field measured 6 x 8 inches and the strips each three rows of double crochet. Used blue satin for the back and finished with a heavy red, white and blue cord.

MRS. ANNA G., OKLAHOMA.

17th rew.—2 sps., 3 blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 4 sps., 18th row.—5 sps., 2 blks., 1 sp., 3 blks., 2 sps.,

19th row.—3 sps., 1 blk., 1 sp., 4 blks., 4 sps., turn, sl. st. back across, 1 sp., ch. 5.
20th row.—1 d. c. on 3rd d. c. in last row, thus making this row 1 sp. less, 5 more sps., 2 blks., making this row 1 sp. less, 5 more sps., 2 blass, 4 sps., ch. 5.

21st row.—3 sps., 1 blk., 8 sps., ch. 5.
22nd row.—7 sps., 1 blk., 4 sps., ch. 5.
23rd row.—4 sps., 1 blk., 7 sps.
24th row.—Lessen 1 sp. as in 20th row, 6 more sps., 1 blk., 3 sps., ch. 5.
Repeat pattern from 3rd row. Insertion to match can be made by making both edges straight. straight.

Novelty Braid Edging

Use mercerized thread fine enough to correspond with size of braid.

Make loop in thread, insert hook in loop and fasten with sl. st. to a picot in braid, * make 4 d. c. in next p., ch. 1, 4 d. c. in next p., fasten with sl. st. to next p. of braid, ch. 7, fasten to next p. *. Repeat from * to * the length required.

Begin other half exactly like first half. After Begin other half exactly like first half. After making the 2 groups of 4 d. c., ch. 3, fasten under ch. 7, ch. 3, fasten in next p. of braid and repeat till length is finished.

NOVELTY BRAID EDGING.

This is used as in ertion and to add edge row in these directions except put ch. 2, between groups of 4 d. c.

2nd row. -Fasten thread to center of ch. 7,

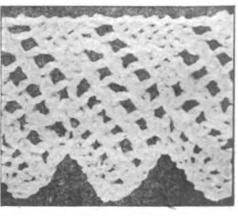

2nd row.—Fasten thread to center of ch. 7, ch. 4, 1 d. c. under ch. 2, between groups of d. c., ch. 5, make p., 3 d. c. in same place, ch. 5, make p., ch. 3, 1 d. c. in same place, ch. 5, make p., 3 d. c. in same place, ch. 5, make p., d. 4, fasten under ch. 7. Repeat from * to *. Care should be taken to keep each row right side out or the work will not look smooth.

MRS. FRANK BEAL.

Woolen Ribbon Run Afghan

1st row .- Cast on sixteen stitches and knit

2nd row.—K. 8, o. n. 3 times, o., k. 2. 3rd row.—K. 9, o. n. 3 times, o., k. 2.

4th row.-K. 10, o. n. 3 times, o., k. 2. 5th row.—K. 11, o. n. 3 times, o., k. 2. 6th row.—K. 12, o. n. 3 times, o., k. 2. 7th row.—K. 13, o. n. 3 times, o., k. 2.

8th row - Bind off 6 sts. to make scallon. 2, and bind off 6 sts. to make scallop on the opposite side.

Continue this until the strip is as long as desired. Join the strips by sewing the scallops, point to point, with same wool. The open spaces are for ribbon to be run

Edging for Top and Bottom

Cast on 10 stitches and knit plain.

1st row.—K. 2, o. n., 3 times, o., k. 2. 2nd row.—K. plain. 3rd row.—K. 3, o. n., 3 times, o., k. 2.

4th row.—K. 5, 0. 11., 5 times, 0., 3. 2.
4th row.—K. plain.
5th row.—K. 4, 0. 11., 0., k. 2.
6th row.—K. 5, 0. 11., 0., k. 2.
8th row.—Bind off 6 sts. to make the scallop and knit plain. MRS. DRENNAN.

For summer, use mercerized cotton thread. For winter use zephyr or any other woolen thread. No lining is necessary.

Motor Cap Hand-Knit with Two Needles

Split zephyr or Saxony wool may be used.
Cast 175 stitches on one large steel knitting needle, k. 1 row plain p. 1 row, repeat, working back and forth for 6 rows, then reverse, p. 1 row, k. 1 row, back and forth for 6 rows, this makes the melon-like rows or ridges, plain and purled, alternately. Continue to knit till the cap is large enough to cover the head.

Lace Edging for Cap

Cast eight stitches on the needle used for the Cast eight stitches on the needle used to cap, using the same thread.

1st row.—K. plain.

2nd row.—K. 1, o. n. twice, o., k. 2.

3rd row.—K. plain.

4th row.—K. 1, o. n. twice, k. 1, o. k. 2.

5th row.—K. plain.

6th row.—K. 1, o. n. twice, k. 2, o. k. 2.

KNITTED MOTOR CAP.

Bind off 3 stitches to make the little scallop. Repeat from the first row.

Gather up each end of cap after it is completed and finish with rosettes and ribbon ends for MRS. DRENNAN.

Diagonal Edging

An easily and rapidly made edging which is especially pretty for underwear can be made as follows. Ch. 16.

1st row .- 1 d. c. in 3rd st., ch. 3, 1 d. c. in next 1st row.—1 d. c. in 3rd st., ch. 3, 1 d. c. in hert 3rd st., repeat, making 3 spaces, ch. 5, turn. • 2nd row.—1 s. c. in 1st sp., ch. 3, 1 s. c. in 2nd sp., ch. 3, 1 s. c. in 3rd sp., ch. 3, 1 d. c. on d. c., 1 d. c. under turning ch., ch. 3, turn. 3rd row.—1 d. c. on 2nd d. c., ch. 3, 1 d. c.

under ch., repeat from * turn.

4th row.—1 s. c., 3 d. c., 1 s. c. under each ch.,

2 d. c. on d. c., ch. 3, turn.

5th row.—1 d. c. on d. c., ch. 3, 1 d. c. on center double of fan, ch. 3, and 1 d. c. and each fan., ch. 5, turn. 6th row.—Same as 2nd row. repeat till length is finished.

This is used as insertion and to add edge make as follows. First row exactly like first between doubles along the top edge.

Home Dressmaking Hints

Forecasts for Mid-Winter Fashions

By Geneva Gladding

Pattern Descriptions ALL PATTERNS 12c. EACH Unless Other Price Is Stated.

1860—A Pretty Dress for Mother's Girl. This yle is nice for wool, cloth or wash fabrics, he dress is made with plaits over back and

The dress is made with plaits over back and front.

Cut im four sizes; two, four, six and eight years. It requires two and three quarters yards of 44-inch material for a six-year size.

2006—Ladles' House Dress, with Reversible Closing, with or without chemisette, and with sleeve in wrist or elbow length. Seersucker, gingham, chambray, lawn, cashmere, flannelette, alpaca, brilliantine and percale are nice for this style.

Cut in seven sizes, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and

Cut in seven sizes, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. It requires seven and one eighth-yards of 36-inch material for a 36-inch 46 inches bust measure. It requires seven and one eighth-yards of 36-inch material for a 36-inch size.

2013—Ladies' Apron Dress. This model may serve as a house dress. It is comfortable and easy to develop, easy to wear and easy to launder. Cut in four sizes; 34, 38, 42 and 46 inches bust measure. It requires five yards of 36-inch material for a 34-inch size.

2132—Ladies' "Cover All" Apron. It is comfortable, has simple fullness and lovely, spacious pockets which are cut in one with a belt that holds the fullness of the garment.

Cut in four sizes; small, 32-34; medium, 36-38; large, 40-42, and extra large, 44-46 inches bust measure. It requires four and seven eighths yards of 36-inch material for a medium size.

2176—A Simple Dress for School and Home Wear. This style is good for gingham, serge, cashmere, lawn, voile, batiste, organdy, rep, poplin, silk or percale.

Cut in four sizes; eight, 10, 12 and 14 years. It requires one and three quarters yard of 27-inch material for the guimpe and three and one half yards for the dress, of 36-inch material for a 10-year size.

2186—Some New Things for the Baby. One size.

inch material for the guimpe and three and one half yards for the dress, of 36-inch material for a 10-year size.

2186—Some New Things for the Baby. One size. Infant's Set, consisting of a cap, a sack, a night gown and a dress. For the dress of flouncing, it will require one and three quarters yard of 36-inch material with one and one quarter yard of 36-inch material with one and one quarter yard of plain material for yoke and sleeves. Of nainsook or lawn 36-inches wide it will require two and one quarter yards. The gown will require two and one half yards of 24- or 27-inch material. The sack requires seven eighths yard of 27-inch material. The cap, one half yard of 18-inch material. 2250—A Natty Suit for the growing boy. Linen, galatea, gingham, cheviot, serge, mixed suiting, corduroy and velvet are nice for this model. The belt may be omitted or finished separately.

Cut in four sizes; four, six, eight and 10 years. Size eight requires three and one half yards of 44-inch material.

2260—A very Pretty Dress for Mother's Girl. One could use serge, rep, poplin or gabardine for this model. It is also nice for gingham and other wash fabrics.

Cut in four sizes; six, eight, 10 and 12 years. Size eight requires three and five eighths yards of 36-inch material.

2263—A Unique and Stylish Model. It is nice for satin, silk and velvet; likewise broadcloth, gabardine, velour, poplin and corduroy. The dress closes at the left side under the panel. For simplicity, chic and comfort, this style has much to recommend it.

Cut in three sizes: 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 18 requires five and one quarter yards of 44-inch material.

simplicity, chic and comfort, this style has much to recommend it.

Cut in three sizes; 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 18 requires five and one quarter yards of 44-inch material.

2265—A Pretty Dress for Mother's Girl. Little dresses of this style are comfortable, practical and easy to develop.

Cut in four sizes; two, three, four and five years. Size four requires two and three quarters yards of 36-inch material.

2267—A Stylish Skirt Model. This style is fine for novelty suiting, serge, broadcloth, Jersey cloth, satin and corduroy. The pockets may be omitted. The model will make a fine sports skirt.

Cut in seven sizes; 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34 inches waist measure. Size 26 requires three and one eighth yards of 44-inch material.

2268—A Practical Model. This style has one good point, in that it covers the dress well, and is cut wide over the shoulders.

Cut in four sizes; small, 32-34; medium, 36-38; large, 40-42; and extra large, 44-46 inches bust measure. Size medium will require four and one quarter yards of 36-inch material.

2269—A Good Dress for The Growing Girl. Brilliantine, plaid or checked suiting, gabardine, poplin, volle or serge, are nice for this style. The waist is made with Norfolk plaits, and is lengthened by a gathered skirt, in moyenage effect. The closing is effected with a shield, under the front. Cut in four sizes; eight, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 10 will require three and one quarter yards of 44-inch material.

2270—A Simple Dress for Mother's Girl. This will make a good school dress. It is nice for gingham, galatea, linen, rep, poplin, serge, gabardine or mixed suiting.

Cut in four sizes; four, six, eight and 10 years. Size eight requires three and three eighths yards of 44-inch material.

2272—A Smart Frock for Mother's Girl. This will make a good school dress in plaid or checked suiting, in serge; gingham, galatea, croduroy or linen. The waist closes over a shield in front.

Cut in four sizes; six, eight, 10 and 12 years. Size 10 requires three and one half yards of 36-inch materia material. 2279—An Easily Made Apron. Seersucker,

USE THE COUPON

Special Offers. For one one-year subscription (not your small you any one Pattern free. Or for a club of two one-year subscriptions at 25 cents each we will mail you any three patterns free. The cash price of each pattern is 12 cents (three for 25 cents) unless a different price is stated. Be sure to order by number and give size or are wanted.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

N R

making Hints

-Winter Fashions

-Chambray, gingham, lawa, percale, drill, linen and alpaca are nice for this style.

Cut in four sizes; small, 32-34; medlum, 36-38-7 large, 40-42; extra large, 44-46 inches bust measure.

Size medium will require two and one half yards of 36-inch material.

2283—Waist, 2282—Skirt. A Stylish Costume.

In navy blue serge with facings of gray or tan it will make a smart dress for calling or home wear. It is also nice for satin, velvet, broadcloth or velour.

The Waist Pattern is cut in seven sizes; 34,

Please Fill Out This Coupon And Send It With Your Remittance

OMFORT, P	attern Dept., Augu	sta, Maine. I enclose	$	cash, (or bscription	and $) for which pleas	e send me Pattern	s No
ze	No	Size	No	Size
Age)		(or Age)		(or Age)
ame			Street and N	0
F.D. No	Box No.	Post Office		State

for a six-year size.

2289—A Simple Dress for Home or Work.
Linen, seersucker, crepe, gingham, chambray, lawn, serge, cashmere, flannel, or drill are nice for this model. The dress is a one-piece model, with coat closing.

Cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and do inches bust measure. Size 38 requires six and one half yards of 44-inch material.

2291—A Stylish Skirt Model. Serge, gabardine, satin, velvet, velour, volle, corduroy and other seasonable m erials, are good for this model.
Cut in seven sizes: 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34 inches waist measure. Size 24 requires three yards of 44-inch material.

2292—An Attractive Top Garment. This model is good for cheviot, broadcloth, velour, vicuna, zibeline, double-faced cloakings, corduroy, velvet and pile fabrics, like plush or chinchilla. The coat may be finished without the cape, and the cape may be worn separately, the coat collar serving as a collar for the cape.
Cut in four sizes; six, eight, 10 and 12 years.
Size 10 requires five and one half yards of 44inch material.

2293—A New, Practical Design. The entire apron is cut in one piece, the belt ends being brought over the front from the back.
Cut in four sizes; small, 32-34 inches; medium, 36-38 inches; large, 40-42 inches; extra large, 4446 inches bust measure. Size medium requires three and five eighths yards of 36-inch material.

2296—A Pretty Frock—Ladies' Dress, Satin and lace will combline nicely in this model. It is also good for serge with Georgette crepe for trimming, lovely for cashmere, velour, velvet or corduroy.
Cut in six sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. Size a greater six and is also good for serge with Georgette crepe for trimming, lovely for cashmere, velour, velvet or corduroy.

Cut in six sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires six and one quarter yards of 36-inch material for the dress and one and one half yard for the jumper.

2302—A Pretty Frock for Mother's Girf. This design in serge with white pique, or faille for the collar trimming, will make a smart dress for school or general wear. The model is also nice for taffeta, velvet or corduroy, for linen and other wash materials.

Cut in four sizes; six, eight, 10 and 12 years. Size 10 requires four and three quarters yards of 36-inch material.

2304—Dress for Misses and Small Women. This styfe of garment is especially attractive for women of slender figure. The jumper or overblouse portions may be omitted. The skirt is a straight plaited model and is joined to the waist.

Cut in three sizes; 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 16 requires four and three quarters yards of 44-inch material for the dress and one and three quarters yard for the jumper.

ALL PATTERNS 12c. EACH Unless Other Price Is Stated

Help to meet the big demand for Hoslery for us and your Home trade.
Industrious persons provided with profitable, all-year-round employment on Auto-Knitter. Experience and distance immaterial.
Write for particulars, rates of pay etc. Send 2 cents in stamps.
Auto-Knitter Hosiery Co., Inc.
Dep. 95-E; 147FranklinSt., Buffalo, N.Y.

FREE DIAMOND

Just to advertise our famous Hawaiiar im. diamonds—the greatest discovery the work KRAUTH & REED, DEPT. 24.

Big Embroidery Bargain 15c.

A Handsome Bureau Set, Wild Rose design, consisting of one round and one oval Centerpiece with 2 Doilies to match, on fine quality, round thread, natural bleached Jersey Art Linen, half a yard square, all for 15c. Big Bargain to introduce our other Goods. Book of latest embroidery designs free with each order.

Rose, 330 Trust Bldg., Binghamton, N. Y.

CLUB OFFER. For only three one-year sub-cents each, we will send you a Birthstone Pendant and Chain free by Parcel Post prepaid. Be sure to mention stone wanted. Premium No. 7283. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

1008 (С) вромовя (

Conducted by Cousin Marion

In writing this department always sign your true|name and give your address. We print only flotitious names or initials, but we require true name and address for our own information so that we may answer by mail when, as often happens, we receive more letters-than can be answered in this column.

APPY New Year, my dears, and many of them and each one happier and better than the one before. Last year I promised not to pester you any more about making resolutions but, tell me, how many did you make this year? None! Well, aren't you the conceited bunch and do you wonder I scold? There is hope for the person who realizes his or her faults and makes an honest resolution to do befter but, honest, I'm thoroughly disgusted with the self-satisfied sort who think they are the personification of all that is good and proper, for they need a good mental housecleaning and a list of resolutions as long as the moral law—if you know how long that is. While you are finding out I'll answer some of your questions.

The first letter I unearth from the pile before me is from Brown Eyes, N. C., who wants to know if it is wise for a girl of thirty years to be too particular about whom she marries. Certainly she should be particular, even if she were twice thirty, and especially so when the man in question drinks, has a high temper and his worldly possessions consist only of a mule and buggy. I suppose though you'll suit yourself and if you marry him I hope you'll be happy, and that some kind Providence will watch over you.

Kansas Girl. Jana. Kansa—No dearie, you don't

Kansas Girl, Idana, Kans.—No dearie, you don't have to join a club in order to ask advice of me—it's free to any of the subscribers. I've been known to answer questions by mail (remember, postage is three cents now) when the case seemed to require immediate attention but I don't do it very often for I think the letters in the paper are lots more interesting and helpful.

helpful.

Lonley Girl, Welcome, Ky., wants "Cousant Marrion" to tell her what she thinks about "wriden in a buggle with a good boy." Come close, lonley one and let me whisper a secret in that pretty pink ear of yours—didn't you ever hear of the companionship of good books? Well, if you'll make friends with a few good books? Well, if you'll make friends with a few good books? Well, if you'll make friends with a few good books? well, if you'll make friends with a few good books of lonley and you'll know a lot more than you do now. I have a bunch though that you are too young for such amusement as you mention.

Wild Rose Fossil Orson A you's sensible letter.

are too young for such amusement as you mention. Wild Rose, Fossil, Oregon. A very sensible letter and I'm going to answer it just as though you were my own wild rose daughter, and aren't wild roses just the sweetest things! Even if it is the custom for every high school girl to have a beau, and you are not considered up in society unless you do likewise, so, too, it is the custom when one sheep jumps over a fence for the rest of the flock to follow but who in the world wants to be a sheep? That's all right for people who haven't any originality of their own but I'm sure you have. You are only sixteen now and it seems that with your parents, your pretty country home and your studies you can get along very nicely for a few years without a beau. You needn't be a man hater, you know, but just good friends with all the boys and treat them all alike.

Lillie and Daisy, Tennessee.—Lillie, you are the one

Lillie and Daisy, Tennessee.—Lillie, you are the one to decide whether or not filthy lucre (in other words, money) means more to you than the love of this poor and uneducated boy, but in these days of high cost of living it is well to be sure of your love before you give that cruel Papa of yours a chance to disinherit you. If you were older than I think you are I might give you different advice. As for you, Miss Daisy, that bashful boy you write about is just plumb scared of you and if you propose to him, as you are thinking of doing, you'll sure frighten him to death. When he wants to propose to you he will. At any rate, wait till next leap year.

Discontented. Nebrasks.—Just because the young

Discontented, Nebraska.—Just because the young man's father ran away with another woman doesn't necessarily mean he will do the same and it is rather unfair of your father to say he will, particularly when he seems to be a good, honest sort and is liked by everyone. (2) Being engaged is no excuse for undue familiarity and don't for an instant allow it.

E. F., Lake City, S. Dak.—Personally I don't think there is any harm in your writing friendly letters to two of your soldier boy friends, when your mother reads and approves of the letters, but if your finance objects I suppose you had better stop. Would you object if he wrote to other girls? Can't you and he collaborate on the letters and then there will be no cause for trouble.

Troubled, Three Forks, Mont.—I wouldn't hurt your feelings for the world but maybe you are such a poor dancer that it requires a lot of courage and patience to dance with you. Can't you take a few private lessons? Boys, as a rule, like girls who don't expect a lot of sentimental mush all the time and with whom they can set perfectly natural and friendly.

Red Head, Duchesne, Utah—It is decidedly wrong for a girl of sixteen to marry anyone. As for marrying a widower with a two-year-old boy, that depends largely on the widower and yourself but wait until you are older before you decide.

on are older before you decrae.

Broken-hearted Girlie, McCaulley, Texas.—It would e-quite right to ask for an explanation—not an examation—but if he doesn't seem disposed to meet you alf way, don't eat humble pie too much. That's y advice, but suit yourself and then you can't blame

Little Girl, of Texas.—Maybe the young man was trying to win his way into your good graces by being nice to your sister—but I doubt it very much. See, take him back if you want to and run the risk of little sister taking him away from you again.

from Texas .- To the casual observer it wait until he asked me to wear it.

Brown Eyes, Buckhannon, W. Va.—You are up against the same perplexity that many a woman has faced and I know of no infallible rule to help you. It often happens that of two suitors, the girl loves the one to whom her parents object. Sometimes she is right—sometimes they are. It dosen't necessarily follow that the rich one is the worst—nor is he always the best. All I can advise is for you to be fair with them and don't marry the one you do not love. Perhaps you shouldn't marry the other either—I am not sufficiently acquainted with his character.

Anyious Etowah Tenn.—I don't think there is any

I am not sufficiently acquainted with his character.

Anxious, Etowah, Tenn.—I don't think there is any set rule as to the age a girl should be allowed to go with a man. It all depends on the girl, the man and the parents. Personally I don't think it should be too early in a girl's life.

Puzzled, Kimball, Nebr.—If you are twenty years of age and the young man is respectable, I can't see why you shouldn't reply to his letters. I think it is more a question of whether you care enough for him to write to him.

Brown Eyes, Wakefield, Cal.—Have you a right to go walking with your beau on Sunday afternoon? Your parents say "no" and as you are only seventeen that would seem to settle the question for the time being.

swer will give 1918 a boost in the right direction for getting started right is what counts. And now good by until Valentine time. COUSIN MARION.

Comfort Sisters' Corner

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 15.) would appreciate letters from all that will enclose LULA READT.

OREGON CITY, OREGON.

Dear Comfort Sistles:

I just can't resist the temptation to write. I've kept still just as long as possible. Comfort is a fine companion, especially when one is lore-some as I am. Glory! Mrs. V. M., don't you know that a man such as you have is an angel in disguise? I know of hundreds of women who would swap men with you if it were possible. Honestly, though, you should have stopped before you took the plunge if you realized you were doing wrong. Don't you think your husband wants love in his home life as well as you do? There are two sides to every phage of life. I was a trained nurse also before my marriage and my experiences seem to have helped to such a degree that during the three years of our marrial life my husband and I have never had a quarrel. Isn't that nne? It appears that to make the machinery of life rum without friction we must bear and forlear.

I fully agree with Etta Baker when she says that the temptations of city children are greater than are those of country children.

We have a squad of Oregon Guards guarding the government Locks and the girls, who by rights should be learning the arts of home and housewifery, are spending a lot of their time around the streets. Why can't homes be made attractive so that the girls feel free to invite their friends there instead of entertaining them on the streets? When will the mothers wake up? The soldier boys need true friends as well as we do.

I would dearly love to hear from some of the sisters. Will some one around Seymour, lowa, write to a lone.

I would dearly love to hear from some of the sisters. Will some one around Seymour, lowa, write to a lonesome sister?
Sincerely, Mrs. S. F. Rosenbury.

Mrs. Rosenbury. You are quite right in your opinion and it is time that mothers awoke to the fact that home is the one and only place for their daughters to entertain their friends and if every mother could be made to feel that somewhere some mother is blessing her for opening her heart and home to her son and keeping him away from evil companions and temptations there would be more charity shown our soldier boys who surely need all the help and encouragement good women can give them.—Ed.

BILLINGS, 412 South 29th St., MONT.
MY DEAR MRS. WILKINSON:
While looking over_an old paper a few days ago, I came across a poem written by Rudyard Kipling. It seemed to convey such a beautiful thought that I want to pass it along to others. I have been a reader of Comport for two years and shall continue to be as I enjoy it from cover to cover. Now for the poem:

If We Only Understood

Could we but draw back the curtains
That surround each other's lives,
See the naked heart and spirit,
Know what spur the action gives,
Often we would find it better,
Purer, than we judge we should,
We should love each other better
If we only understood.

"Could we judge all deeds by motive See the good and bad within, Often we would love the sinner. All the while we loathe the sin; Could we know the powers working To overthrow integrity -We should judge each other's errors. With more patient charity.

"If we knew the cares and trials, Knew the efforts all in vain, And the bitter disappointment, Understood the loss and gain— Would the grim, eternal roughness Seem, I wonder, just the same? Should we help where now we hind Should we pity where we blame? hinder? .

"Ah, we judge each other harshly,
Knowing not life's hidden force;
Knowing not the fount of action
Is less turbid at its source;
Seeing not amid the evil
All the golden grain of good,
And we'd love each other better,
If we only "understood."

Would like to correspond with any of the sisters who ever lived in Manchester, England.

MRS. J. A. SPURWAL.

Best Ways of Doing Things Around The Home

A little salt rubbed on the cups will take off tea stains.

Never rub lace curtains when washing. Always soak and sop out the dirt.

Salt moistened with-lemon juice will remove most stains from the hands.

Remove white spots from furniture by wetting a piece of flannel with turpentine and rubbing the spots hard.

Sait mixed with lemon juice will remove iron rust. Moisten spots with it and then hold over a dish of boiling water, Salt thrown into the oven immediately after anything has been burned in it, will do much towards lessening the odor.

A round paint brush is very handy for dusting the corners of window sashes, or difficult corners. It is also good for dusting fine carving.

In placing a coat on a hanger the loop should be placed around the hook. This balances the coat on the frame. It should not be buttoned, as this causes wrinkles.

SMALLPOX.—Take sulphate of zinc one grain; fox glove one grain; one half teaspoon of water. Mix thoroughly and add four ounces of water. Take a teaspoon every hour. Smaller doses for a child, according to age.

WARTS.—A simple remedy is to rub Castor oil on the wart two or three times a day and at night wet with baking soda and vinegar. In a week the wart will begin to turn black and gradually disappear.

MRS. ROBERT KINCAID, Long Creek, Oregon.

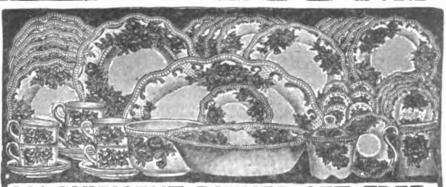

MRS. ROBERT KINCARD, Long trees, Oregon.

COUGH SYRUP.—Take sap from the black pine tree (the sap is between the outside bark and the wood) put in kettle with water and boil until the water is well colored, then drain the liquid off. To this add enough sugar to make a syrup and boil and boil till quite thick. Bottle and take in doses of one table spoonful five or six times a day, or more often if the cough is very bad.

Hyperdorners — Typendiately after being bitten take

Brown Eyes, Wakefield, Cal.—Have you a right to go walking with your beau on Sunday afternoon? Your parents say "no" and as you are only seventeen that would seem to settle the question for the time being.

There, I've answered your questions the very best I know how and, wonder of wonders, I haven't fussed as much as usual either. Did you notice it? That's because my New Year's resolutions are taking effect. Here's hoping every are least stand this will be sufficient. After each dose, nothing is to be eaten for at least six hours.

DINNER SET

The Most Gigantic Offer Of The Century. You Need No Money. We Trust You. We Pay Freight.

To gain a wider distribution for our strictly pure, high-grade groceries and family supplies, we now offer ABSOLUTELY FREE, a magnificently embossed, artistically floral decorated, full size 52-PC. DINNER SET for sale of 10 BOXES OF SOAP

BARBER HAZEC afford to give more good goods for less money than any other concern in the entire country. PRICE

TALL OF OUR PLANS SELL AT SIGHT. One pleased customer brings another and with our other Haking Powder, Tea, Coffee, Spice, Extract, Perfume and Soap Offers, you will get duplicate orders and earn some of our many useful premiums such as Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Linen Sets, Silverware, Clocks, Lamps, Furniture, Graniteware, Rugs, DryGoods, Wearing Apparel, in fact, anything You need. We also pay large cash commissions

WE PAY THE FREIGHT on Soap, Dinner Set and Premiums, allowing you plenty of time

on Soap, Dinner Set and Premiums, allowing you plenty of time to examine, deliver and collect before paying us one cent. Write at once for FREE SAMPLE OUTFIT and other things. If, after receiving them, you decide not to get up an order, you may keep everything we send you FREE of charge for the trouble in answering this advertisement. No license needed. We protect you, Our methods are honest. Satisfaction guaranteed. Reference: First National Bank, Provident Bank, Postmaster.

SPECIAL FREE PRESENT.

We give a 6-Pc, High-Grade Granite Kitchen Set, or 12-Pc, Silverine Knife and Fork Set, or Elegant Decorated Parlor Lamp, FREE of all cost or work of any kind. Simply send us your name and address and ask for this FREE PRESENT.

We also give Beautiful Presents for appointing one or more Agents to work for us. You advance no money. You have nothing to risk, Remember, the SPECIAL PREMIUM AND SAMPLE OUTFIT are both absolutely free. A 2-cent stamp or post card is your only expense. WRITE TODAY, THE PURE FOOD CO., 798W. PEARL ST., CINCINNATI, OHIO.

THE RIGHT WAY Jim Riner and his wife were good, honest, industrious folks. Like a great many American families they wanted to have the best of everything. Jim loved his wike and would have given her anything in this world she wanted, had he been able to afford it, but although he worked steadily, it took all the money he earned to keep his family. It Miss. Kiner wanted a new dress or a piece of familiare for the home, it meant for full information. I am Secretary of THE PURE FOOD CO., MASON, 798 Pearl St., CINCINNATI, OHIO.

Requests

Would like to have some one send me the June number of "The Illustrated Companion."

Song containing the words, "Hurrah for old New England, and her cloud-capped granite hills."

M. B. L., Arizona.

M. B. L., Arizona.

Mrs. Emery Chapel, Jenison, Mich., would like the October, 1916, number of Comfort. Will return favor.

Mrs. W. H. Clark, Quimby, R. R. 1, Mich. would like the March, 1911, number of Comfort. Will return other reading matter.

How the Portuguese put up what they call Toucinho, the fattest part of the hog, cut in blocks and put up in brine, but not as salty as salt pork. Also Chourico, which is a kind of sausage preserved in brine.

Comfort Postal Requests

How to Get a Lot of Souvenir Postals Free How to Get a Lot of Souvenir Postals Free Exchanging Souvenir Post Cards is no longer a fad but a custom as firmly established as letter writing, and more convenient as dipleasing. By entering this Exchange list you are enabled to accumulate cards from every state in the Union and Foreign Countries. To secure the appearance of your name in the Exchange List it is necessary to send a club of two one-year Z6-cent subscriptions to COMFORT and fifty cents to pay for same. We will send you a very fine Fifty Card Album for Post Cards, and your name will appear in the next available issue of COMFORT, and you will be expected to return cards for all received by you.

stains from the hands.

Fresh ink stains may be removed from carpets by an application of salt.

Mrs. Charles J. Skinner, Box 68, Plattekill, N. Y. Maurice Walker, Jellieo, Tenn. Mrs. J. C. Haywood, by an application of salt.

HIGHEST BRIDGE IN U. S.—The highest bridge over navigable waters is that over the Snake river in the state of Washington, 210 feet high. There is a bridge over Tunkhannock creek on the Delaware and Lackawanna railroad that is 240 feet high.

Careless Use of Soap Spoils the Hair

Dimples, from Texas.—To the casual observer it would seem that if the young man loved you very much he would have written to you during the four months he was away but as a rule men don't like to make any rash statements. (2) Don't accept jewelry from a man unless you are engaged to him.

Anxious Brown Eyes, Okla.—Here's a girl who wants to wear a young man's ring and asks me how to get it. Sure, hit him on the head, or chloroform him if you want it done in moving picture style.

Brown Eyes, Buckhannon, W. Va.—You are upagainst the same perplexity that many a woman has faced and I know of no infallible rule to help you. It often happens that of two suitors, the girl loves the one to whom her parents object. Sometimes she is right—sometimes they are. It dosen't necessarily fellow that the rich one is the worst—nor is he al.

nne and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.
You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

—Advertisement.

THREE Crochet and Embroidery
BOOKS FOR 16 CENTS, Address,
J. F. Ingalls, Lynn, Mass., Box D. BIG LEVER ACTION
AIR RIFLE free for selling 25 Art and Relicious Pictures or 25 packages Post Carde at 10c,
Order your choice. GEO. GATES CO., Dept. 925 CHICAGO

AGENTS WANTED! Either Sex. To sell our silver handle Embroidery Needles. The easiest and quickest seller ever placed in hands of agents. Show a woman what this needle is capable of producing and a sale is assured. Write for Terms. Address WHALE ART COMPANY,

SELF-NEW MONITOR HEATING IRON

$30 to $50 a week actually being made now by men and women. The original—the best—the lowest priced. Nickle plated—locks good—makes good—sells fast—guaranteed. No experience needed. Women do as well as men. Exclusive territory. Work all or spare time. Mrs. Nixon, Vt., sold 8 first half day, Evans, N. C., sold 2 doz. one Saturday. Liberal terms. Prompt Service, Write today.

MONITOR SAD IRON COMPANY 911 WAYNE ST., BIO PRAIRIE, O.

A High School Course

In Two Years Learn in your own home. Here is a thorough, complete, per years. Meets all college entrance requirements. Prepared by leading members of the faculties of universities and academies. This is your opportunity. Write for booklet. Send your name and address for our booklet and full particulars. No obligations whatever. Write today—more American School of Correspondence, Dept. P. 3041 Chicago, U.S.A.

DON'T PAY BIG PRICES
Buy in 5-lb. lata from JEVNE'S and SAVE 10c per lb.
WE PAY POST, EXPRESS or FREIGHT
IF YOU LOVE GOOD COFFEE SEND POR FEICK LIST

SELL 24 AM. FLAG PINS AT 10¢ Send no money. When sold send $2.40 and we'll send stem set watch or keep 15c for your trouble. Write today GLARE WATCH CO., Dept. 7, CHICAGO, BLL.

Silver Tatting Shuttle

Given For Four Subscriptions

MADE of solid sterling silver beautifully finished and polished. A new idea is the hook at the end as shown in above illustration which easily and quickly picks up the loops. The illustration shows how the shuttle is held in the hand and the little arrow points to the patent hook in the act of picking up the stitch or loop. The free end of the thread goes through a small hole on the inside of the shuttle. A further description of this handy little device is hardly necessary for every woman who does tatting will see at a glance how really indispensable it is and how greatly superior to anything else ever designed for the same purpose. Being made of genuine sterling silver, you can have your jeweler engrave it with any monogram or initials desired. One of these shuttles engraved in this manner makes a very acceptable gift for any woman or girl who is a tatting worker. We will send you this tatting shuttle free upon the terms of the following

Club Offer. For four one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25c each, we will send you this sterling tatting shuttle free by parcel post prepaid. Premium No. 7394.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

The Girl He Loved

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 16.)

"Ravenel," said a quiet voice in her ear, as some one took her hands away, "my dear child, what is the matter?"

It was Levallion, in a streaming mackintosh, his handsome face really old in his surprised concern. She would sooner it had been a mad dog.

"It's he, it's—" she caught her breath, steadied herself, "Captain Gordon! I've been in there, the nurse called me. Oh, I never saw any one in pain like that, or delirious! I couldn't stay."

steadied herself, "Captain Gordon! I've been in there, the nurse called me. Oh, I never saw any one in pain like that, or delirious! I couldn't stay."

Levallion stripped off his wet coat and dropped it. How could any nurse be such a fool? He would settle with her presently. There were sights no-girl like Ravenel should see.

"You poor child!" he said softly. "No wonder you look queer. I'll go in and see him."

She caught his arm.

"No. no!" she cried frantically. "Don't go. He's off his head. He keeps calling for some woman, and it doesn't seem fair—oh, don't listen, Levallion! Take me away."

"Darling," Levallion was not given to endearments, but the word fell on deaf ears. He slipped his arm round her, furious that she should have been made so unhappy. His eyes, that were always bad to meet, blazed as he thought of that senseless fool of a nurse.

"Come away and rest. Here's Doctor Houghton; it will be all right now. And there's some one else come I've been to meet at the station." Some one else! And Houghton's step in the passage. Lady Levallion steadied herself with the courage that had never failed her. She even met Levallion's eyes.

"I'm silly, but it upset me," she said quite naturally. And above her voice came Adrian's loud one through the closed door, as he called her name. "Who else has come?"

"Me," said a voice, suspiciously and determinedly troubled. "Didn't you know?"

"Me," said a voice, suspiciously and determinedly troubled. "Didn't you know?"

"Ravenel shivered, for Tommy's eyes were hard and stern on hers for all his careless voice. He had made sense enough of that reliterated cry that was Greek to Levallion.

"No, come on!" she answered hastily. "I was just speaking to the nurse. You come, too, Levallion. Doctor Houghton doesn't want you."

Ravenel shivered, for Tommy's eyes were hard and stern on hers for all his careless voice. He had made sense enough of that reliterated cry that was Greek to Levallion."

"Tommy's she knew hat he deaver." Who was good of you to bring him."

The man's ha

which he did on a summons from Doctor Houghton.

Ravenel prepared for battle, and then felt wretched. Never in all her life had she really fought with Tommy.

"Look here," said he, and, to her surprise, quite coolly: "I suppose you can't help having Gordon in the house, but if I were you I wouldn't be found outside his own door looking like a sick cat."

"I couldn't help it," amgrily. "I was passing and the nurse came out. You needn't put on silly airs about it; nobody hates him worse than I do. And he hates me. He wasn't even civil that day he came."

"If I hated him, or anything else," dryly. "I'd keep my face straighter—before Levallion!"

"If you think of me like that you can hold your tongue over it," her voice very low and furious.

"If you think of me like that you can hold your tongue over it," her voice very low and furious.

"I don't pine to talk about it," unpleasantly. "But other people than me have ears, and I heard fully well what Gordon was calling out," with ungrammatical force.

"Don't you ever dare to call me that!" she sprang up and caught his arm. "Listen to me. I tell you the girl Adrian called is dead—dead! Do you hear me?"

"R. I. P.," then!" said Tommy, with a curious catch in his voice. "Mind you, Ravenel, I'd sooner that was true than that you.

Lady Levallion forgot she was a countess.

"Shut up!" she said. "There's somebody coming, and you're making a fuss about nothing. I haven't any dark secrets, except that I was engaged to a man who—threw me over," quickly. "If you want to know, I hate him. There!"

"Then you'd better do it with less fuss," returned Sir Thomas in a casual tone of brotherly conversation, as the door opened on Levallion and Houghton.

"Do what?" the former asked idly, looking with a curious pride at the two handsome, flushed young faces.

"Argue," coelly. "Ravenel never will own she's wrong."

"A woman is never wrong, my good sir!" said

"You mustn't, you daren't think, here."
Dazed, she looked to see if Tommy had spoken; but Tommy was gaping silently at that long-lost ring. No one had opened their mouths. It was her own mind that had warned her.

In the sudden, causeless silence that had fallenon the room Levallion slipped the broken ring into his pocket.

CHAPTER XVI.

THE SIN OF SYLVIA ANNESLEY.

"My ring—it was my ring he wore all the time, with the stone turned inside his hand!"

Alone in her dressing-room, Ravenel's head

How to Prepare Furs for Market

Copyright, 1917, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

HE preparation of furs for market is almost as important as catching them. Even the most valuable skins may be ruined through ignorance or lack of attention to details.

Skinned as Clearer generally prefer the pelts skinned as Clearer generally prefer the pelts skinned as Clearer generally with the possible exception of the finer. Northern and Northeastern mink, all hides ought to be shipped fiesh side out and dried that way. Some buyers recommend the weasel dried and sent fur side out, so it will not be necessary to turn the pelt to ascertain if it is prime. When weasels are sent fur side out along with other skins, it is best to wrap out along with other skins, it is best to wrap out along with other skins, it is best to wrap out along with other skins, it is best to wrap out along with other skins, it is best to wrap out along with other skins, it is best to wrap out along with other skins, it is best to wrap out along with other skins, it is best to wrap out along the skin of the fur does not differ the value, it has been my experience that appearance in skins offered for sale is frequently paid for in real money.

Use a sharp knife for skinning. Take long strokes so that the edges of the skin are not ragged. In "cased" pelts, start at the hind legs and work toward the crotch, loosening the hide Next, split open the tail as far as no sealed with the skin down to the ears, cut beneath and also around the eyes, then over the nose. The tails of the muskrat and opossum have no value so it is not necessary to skin them.

In giving these instructions, remember I am treating only the smaller animals. The lynx, bear, etc., must, if used for mounting purposes, be perfectly skins, employ steel stretchers or boards fashioned to fit. These should preferably be made of soft wood, the edges tapering and not sharp. If boards are employed the hides may be held in place with tacks or small nails. Be sure to remove all fat and fiesh. Unless this is done, the furs are liable to become "grease burned" skins. One way to avoid s to her now. The work, whether her ladyship's or Adrian's, was done—and done thoroughly. And Levallion—she straightened herself as at a sudden wound—Levallion had been a friend of Sylvia's! But the thought passed as it had come, and left her ashamed. Levallion could have had nothing to do with Adrian's passing himself off for an unmarried man.

"Adrian lied to me and threw me overboard," she said to herself, "and Levallion picked me up out of the sea. That's all I dare remember mow out of the whole jumble. But I'll find out about the ring, anyhow. Even Levallion," clinging obstinately to that senseless trust in him that had grown up in her, "would not mind my knowing the truth—if Adrian can tell it." And, with that queer numbness in her that she did not know was despair, she went down-stairs to face the new world she had made for herself, which the sight of a battered ring had shattered in her very hands.

But to get at the root of the matter was not so easy. There was Lovalling who had wonther the start of the start of the seasy.

"Argue," coelly. "Ravenel never will own she's wrong."
"A woman is never wrong, my good sir!" said Levallion piously. Ravenel, you'll be glad to hear Gordon's asleep."
"Oh," said Houghton, "that reminds me! I forgot to give you this, Lord Levallion. I fancy it is valuable, and it might be lost. I had to cut it off Captain Gordon's hand. I beg your pardon, Lady Levallion; I interrupted you!".
"I didn't speak," she said quietly, and she best knew where she got her composure. For Houghton was holding out to Levallion her own emerald-and-opal ring.

Bent, filed through, dulled by a fevered hand, she still could not mistake it. It was her very ring and no other, but how—a voice that sounded like a real voice was sudden, insistent, in her ears.

"You mustn't, you daren't think, here."
Dazed, she looked to see if Tommy had spoken; but Tommy was gaping silently at that long-lost ring. No one had oppend their mouths. It was her own mind that had warned her.

Pale and hig-eved. Ravenel stood by the library lour out of the whole jumble. But I'll find out about the ring, anyhow. Even Levallion," clinging obtout of the whole jumble. But I'll find out about the ring, anyhow. Even Levallion," clinging obstinately to that senseless trust in him that had with had werned her.

But I'll find out about the whole jumble. But I'll find out about the ring, anyhow. Even Levallion," clinging obstinately to that senseless trust in him that had with had werned her.

But to get at the root of the matter was not so easy. There was Levallion, who had nearly aninilated Sister Elizabeth and forbidden her on pain of instant dismissal ever to allow Lady Levallion to behold horrors. And there was Tommy, dogged, cheerful and ubiquitous; his sister's aching impatience almost turned to hatred of Tommy, who drove and rode and talked with her—on indifferent subjects—till he nearly sent her frantic. And Adrian was her own mind that had warned her.

Pale and hig-eved. Ravenel stood by the library good by.

Pale and big-eyed, Ravenel stood by the library window and stared out, so that her back was turned to the policing gaze of Sir Thomas. It was a fine day, but she never noticed. She twisted her ringless hands hard fogether that she might not turn round on Tommy and tell him, for Heaven's sake, to let her be for one half hour.

Levallion, coming in, spoke to her twice before she heard him.

"Yes," she turned guitely.

"Yes!" she turned guiltily, for of all the things that hurt her the most was the look on Levallion's face, where happiness and content seemed to have ironed out the sardonic lines. There was no guilty conscience at work in Levallion—and once she had thought Gordon a better man than he!

Alone in her dressing-room, Rayenel's nead whirled.

"But how did he get it, and why did he wear it after the way he treated me? I can't make the two things match."

All dressed for dinner, she stood looking at herself in the glass as being a ladylike and thoughtful occupation to be discovered in by Tommy or Levallion; and the silver-strewn luxury of her toilet-table suddenly reminded her of another table, in the one sumptuous room of a poverty-stricken house.

"Sylvia!" she gasped. "It must have been Sylvia."

A light flashed into her eyes that had not been there for many a day. Adrian was in the house, must get better, and the very first day he was fit she would have the whole story—his story—out of him. And then—

Lady Levallion, with a sudden numbness, a curdling of her young blood, dropped heavily into a chair. Not even God's own truth could matter

ORevillon Frères

RAW FUR DEALERS The Largest Manufacturing Furriers in the World

Established for Over 194 Years RAW FUR DEPT. 453 West 28th Street, New York

SHIP YOUR

Trappers' Guide Free on Request

Direct to New York The International

Why? Because shipments to New York eliminate unnecessary transport of the property of the prop

The window was open, and to his lordship's nostrils came the dying aroma of his own tobacco, the while the pink and atrocious newspaper fluttered softly in the breeze.

"That gentleman requires occupation." In withdrawing his head Levallion bumped it, which did not allay his irritation. "I don't require my cook as an ornament in my private garden, nor his garbage papers on my lawn, and so I shall inform him. I wonder where the devil he's going! I'm certain he's got on my clothes."

Sir Thomas forgot he was Sherlock Holmes.
"Gorgeous, ain't he?" he observed rapturously.
"He can be as gorgeous as he likes—in the kitchen," Levallion drawled acidly. "Which reminds me, Ravenel; Houghton says there is no need to put off having people here any longer; Adrian won't mind a noisy house; he'll be quite recovered in a day or two. So I suppose we'd better ask some people for the pheasants—a house-party will be an excellent tonic for Monsieur Carrousel, and cheer up Adrian."

A house full of 'people! Ravenel's heart contracted. Farewell to all chance of speaking to Adrian then!

"Cowardly, cowardly custard!" remarked Sir Thomas, with more tact than elegance. "Ravenel is afraid of being a hostess, ain't you, my dear?" "I am. I'm ,terrified," snatching at anything that was true. "I don't want them much, Levallion!"

"I don't want 'em at all," returned his lord-ship dryly. "But, being over head and ears in debt for invitations to every soul I know, I don't see how we can avoid asking them. And Tommy and I can shoot all the pheasants ourselves."

"Thomas and the inestimable Mr. Jacobs"—who had killed two rats and broken three priceless to see in the business!—"will have to stay with us. Sad. isn't it?"

"You bet!" said Tommy cheerfully. "I'll help you birough, Ravenel. I like women; it's funny most women don't!" thoughtfully.

"Have I got to write the invitations?" her voice was curiously sullen, unguarded; for surely it was the very irony of fate that should make her summon a lot of people, under whose eyes she and Adrian would Levallion chuckled, but his eyes were very sweet.

"You are not a beast of burden," he observed, in that slow, soft way of his. "I'll summon the heathem for next week, in your name. And I trust their requirements will occupy our cook—at least, what's left of him after I see him," looking with unabated annoyance at the scurrilous sheet the breeze had fluttered to the very window.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 25.)

READ HUNTER-TRADER-TRAPPER A month for a year's subscription—you'll get best. Don't miss another issue to copies 15c. If you don't have the cash will take raw fure in exchange for subscriptions an anaket value. MURITE-RADRE-RAPPER, Dept. 237. Celumbes,

With Powerful Long-Lived Battery

Premium No. 7335

For Five Subscriptions

ARE you in the habit of stumbling around in the dark with the uncertain aid of lighted matches or dangerous kerosene lamps or lanterns? Don't do it any longer! It's dangerous—as you very well know—and entirely unmecessary. Get an Eveready Daylo or "flash light" and you have all the advantages of the ineandescent electric light in portable form. It can easily be carried in the hand or pocket. It is always ready for use—a simple movement of the finger turns the light on and off as desired—and it is absolutely safe. No matter what happens it positively cannot set anything on fire.

The enemetry is positively cannot set anything on fire.

The electric light up the darkest rooms, stairways, closets, the dark corners in attice of basement. You can use it in the shed, stable, barn, around hay, powder, gasoline—in fact, any and all kinds of infiammable material and explosives without the slightest danger.

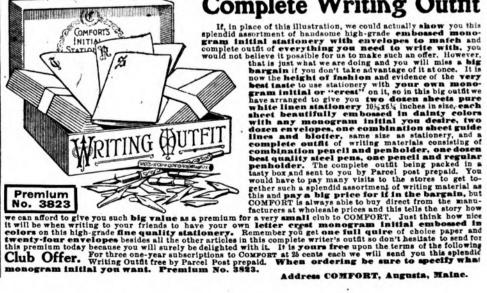

The Eveready is just as useful outdoors as it is indoors. Neither wind nor rain can put it out. When riding or walking after nightfall, it throws a shaft of brilliant light far in advance, showing up every object long before you reach it. The loneliest road, the gloomiest depths of the woods, need have no terrors for you if you go prepared with an Eveready.

The Eveready is 5% inches long, 1% inches in diameter equipped with a strong reflecting lens, Mazda bulb and the latest improved Tungsten battery. This battery with average use will last from two to four months, the bulb from six months to one year. Fresh batteries and bulbs may be obtained from us or any hardware or general store at trifling expense. The light itself—that is, the case and everything except the battery and bulb—is good for many years, in fact with proper care should last an ordinary lifetime.

We will give you this Eveready Daylo or "fash light" complete with battery and bulb, all ready for business upon the terms of the following Club Offer. For five one-year subscriptions to COM-promater of the following of the consequence of the post repaid (

Box Of Initial Stationery, Envelopes And Complete Writing Outfit (C)

In this department will be carefully considered any legal problem which may be submitted by a subscriber. Ah opinious given herein will be prepared at our expense by eminent counsel.

Inasmuch as it is one of the principal missions of COMFORT to aid in upbuilding and upholding the sanctity of the home, no advice will be given on matters pertaining to divorce. Any paid-up subscriber to COMFORT is welcome to submit inquiries, which, so far as possible, will be answered in this department. If any reader, other than a subscriber, wishes to lake advantage of this privilege, it may be done by sending twenty-five (2b) cents, in silver or stamps, for a one-year subscription to COMFORT thus obtaining all the benefits which our subscribers enjoy including a copy of the magazine for one full year.

Full names and addresses must be signed by all persons seeking advice in this column, but not for publication. Unless otherwise requested, initials only will be published.

Miss L. S., Pennsylvania—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that a wife is entitled to be supported by her husband unless she abandoned him without good cause, or unless he leaves her for some good cause, except in cases where the wife has separate property sufficient to provide for her own support. We do not think the wife can compel her husband to live with her; we cannot advise you on the divorce question you submit, as it is against the policy of this paper to give advice on divorce matters.

Mrs. R. S. North Dakots—Under the laws of your

Mrs. R. S., North Dakota.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that upon the death of a married man, leaving no will, and leaving a widow and one child, his property after payment of debts, and subject to homestead rights, would go in equal shares to the widow and child; we think the homestead would descend to the widow for life, or as long as she remains unmarried and occupies same, after which it descends as other property. We do not think that a wife has any interest in her husband's property during his lifetime, except that she is entitled to support from him unless she deserts him without just cause, or unless he leaves her for some good cause, or has separate property adequate for her own support; we think she can enforce this right either against him personally or against his property.

Mrs. J. H. C., Idaho. —We are of the opinion that

Mrs. J. H. C., Maho. —We are of the opinion that the length of time in which the rights of an heir at law to an estate, would outlaw in South Dakota would depend upon the nature of the property and upon just what was done in the estate, since the decedent's death.

Mrs. T. H., Texas.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that a husband can be compelled to support his wife, unless she abandons him without just cause; we think that in order to enforce the claim for support it would be necessary to bring a support proceeding or action in the proper court.

support proceeding or action in the proper court.

Mrs. B. M. C., Florida.—We think that all the just claims against a decedent's estate must be paid before any distribution of shares to the next of kin or heirs at law; we think the claims for nursing and care of the woman who died would be a claim against her estate, which would include any and all of her separate property and her interest in her deceased husband's estate whether same had been divided or not; we think that in the absence of a will appointing an executor, the court will appoint an administrator upon the proper application of some party in interest. We think this application should be in the form of a petition setting up all the material facts and should be verified. We think it would be necessary to have some one with a legal knowledge to prepare this petition and make this application; we think the amount of a provable claim for care and nursing against a decedent's estate would depend upon special circumstances in each particular case.

Mrs. R. L. R., Texas.—Under the laws of your in each particular case.

Mrs. R. L. R., Texas.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that the husband may sell and dispose of his own separate property, or the community property of the husband and wife, without the signature or consent of the wife, except homestead

Mrs. M. S., Texas.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that upon default in the payment of a mortgage, such payment can be enforced through foreclosure and sale of the mortgaged premises and that if same is not sufficient to pay the whole amount of the debt, the payment of the deficiency can be enforced against other property belonging to the mortgagor.

mortgagor.

Y. A. D., Virginia.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that upon the death of a married woman, leaving no will, and leaving a surviving husband and children, her husband would be entitled to receive all her personal property after payment of debts, and curtesy of a life use of her real estate, the balance going in equal shares to her children; we do not think the law can bar her husband's right to curtesy by will in case there were children born to the marriage. We think that during her lifetime she is entitled to the use and control of her own separate property.

Mrs. B. E. D., Idaho.—Under the laws of your use and control of her own separate property.

Mrs. B. E. D., Idaho.—Under the laws of your state we are of the opinion that upon the death of a married man, his surviving widow is entitled to one half of the community property, and the other half is subject to his testamentary disposition in favor only of children or a parent and only one half to the latter. In absence of this, we think, the whole of #the community property descends to the surviving widow. We think the separate property of the husband, in absence of a will; if there be more than one child, would go one third to the widow and two thirds to the children in equal shares; we think the widow would be entitled to administer the estate, but that any person in interest could compel her to account after the termination of a proper period of time for administration; we think the children's interest in the case you submit would depend upon whether the property left was community property or the separate property of the husband. We think children can be disinherited by will, in case it appears in the will that such disinheriting is intentional.

Mrs. N. F., Georgia.—We think that if the treatment of the child you mention, by the teacher, amounts to cruelty, such tracher could be prosecuted through some local magistrate or Justice of the Peace. We think, however, that if the punishment inflicted by the teacher was simply severe enough to discipline the child, you will receive scant attention in any court proceeding against the teacher.

mrs. J. F. B., Wyoming.—We think the liability of the company which insured your father's life would depend entirely upon the proof of his death. We do not think that seven years' absence is proof of death; we think it is simply a presumption of death and that the company's liability would depend upon something more substantial than this presumption. We think that the circumstances and incidents in connection with your father's disappearance might be important evidence in any action brought to substantiate his death and to collect upon his insurance policy.

H. J. S. Lower-We think persons of illegitimate.

collect upon his insurance policy.

H. J. S., Iowa.—We think persons of illegitimate birth legally take their mother's name, but that in case such illegitimate has always borne the father's name, we do not think his widow or children could be punished for continuing to do so; we do not think illegitimate children have any rights of inheritance from their father's estate, unless some provision is made for them by will; we think the remainder interest of a trust created by will, would, upon the death of the life tenant, go to the person or persons named in the will to receive such remainder interest, if none such to the person or persons entitled to receive the next eventual estate.

Mrs. B. E., Colorado.— Under the laws of your state.

mal estate.

Mrs. B. E., Colorado. — Under the laws of your state re are of the opinion that a married woman may transect business the same as if single; may dispose of the personal or real estate without her husband's concent, and that her separate property acquired by her, or left to her by devise or bequest of any person except ter husband, is not bound for her husband's debts.

Mrs. M. H., So. Burgettstown, Pa.—If, as we understand your statements, the mine boss sent your husband in a dangerous place to work against his protest, and if he was not guilty of negligence in any way in connection with his accident, we think he would have been entitled to receive either compensation or a sum of money for such damages as he suffered by reason of such accident, unless he has released the company in the document you state he signed. We cannot, of course, form any opinion as to this without knowing the contents of this document. Of course, this might be set aside in the proper action brought for the purpose in case jt was procured from him by fraud or in some other illegal method. We think you should take this matter up with some local authority who could go in greater detail with you.

E. G. N., Renovo, Pa.—We think that if you made a contract to sell your property with the improvements thereon, such sale would carry all improvements affixed to the freehold, and if your bathroom fixtures are installed in the usual manner, we think the purchaser would be entitled to receive same with the property.

Miss H. P. L., Georgia.—Under the laws of your stailed in the usual manner, we think the purchaser would be entitled to receive same with the property.

Miss H. P. L., Georgia.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion, first; that the railroad company in a proper proceeding can condemn the right of way over private property in the proper proceeding brought for that purpose. We think the usual method would be to endeavor to buy the right of way from the owner at a private sale, and in case this could not be effected, the railroad company would then proceed to condemn the property in a court proceeding and that the amount of the owner's damages would be fixed in this proceeding. We think that the nature of the land condemned, the proximity to the buildings or the destruction of the buildings for swing purposes, would be elements of damages, and that the owner would be entitled to a just recompense therefor. We do not, however, think that an owner can compel the railroad company to build around his property or cross the same as he sees fit, provided, of course, the railroad company is not willing to do so. Second: We think that if the man who was to arrange the music to the song you mention, refuses to perform his part of the contract, you should bring action against him to compel him to, do so.

Comfort's League of Cousins

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 13.)

able to work. Mother does laundry work for their joint support. Well recommended. Send them some assistance. James Allen, South Solon, R. R. 2, Ohio. Cripple. Unable to work. Has three small children. Give them a boost. Cawrie Hall, Strieby, N. C. Little crippled girl. Parents very poor. Would appreciate second-hand clothing and any assistance you feel disposed to send. L. D. Helton, Solo, Ark. Invalid. Has spinal trouble. Unable to work. Would appreciate second-hand clothing and any financial assistance you care to send. Mrs. N. C. Oldham, Samville, Va. Invalid. Has three small children to support. Send her some cheer. James Gilliam, Klondike, Tenn. Helpless cripple for 40 years. No means of support. Very sad and worthy case. Send him a greenback shower. Claude Shifflet, Richmond, R. R. 3, Ky. Crippled boy. Send him a word of cheer. J. W. Bennett, Jr., Northville, N. Y. Helpless invalid. No means of support. Well recommended. Send him a dime shower. James C. Shirah, Mineral Wells, Texas. Shut-in. Would appreciate cheery letters and cards. S. Tucker, R. R. 6, Box 46, Fayette, Ala. Cripple unable to work. Depends on charity for support. Send him a dime shower.

Start the year right by doing something for these poor suffering creatures. Don't be a selfish tight wad all your life, don't leave all the giving to others. You can't start the New Year better than by trying to be human, trying to be Christ like. Here's the opportunity to be both. Lovingly yours,

Uncle Charlie

Comfort's League of Cousins

Comfort's League of Cousins

The League of Cousins was founded as a means of bringing the scattered members of COMFORT'S immense circle of readers into one big. happy family. Its sim is to promote a feeling of kinship and relationship among all readers. It was primarily started as a society for the juvenit members of COMFORT'S family, only, but those of more mature years ciamored for admittance so persistently that twis deemed advisable to impose no age limit; thus all are eligible to admittance into our League provided they conform to its rules and are ailmated by the shift spirit.

Membership is restricted to COMFORT aubscribers and costs thirty cents, only five cents mere than the regular subscription to COMFORT which is included. The thirty cents makes you a member of the League and gives your attractive League button with the letters "C. L. O. C." a handsome certificate of membership with your name engrossed seen, and the privilege of having your name in the letter list; siece, and the privilege of having your name in the letter list; siece, and continue a paid-in-advance subscription to COMFORT. You continue a League member as long as you keep up your subscription to COMFORT. You continue a league member as long as you keep up your subscription to COMFORT. You continue a league member as long as you keep up your subscription to COMFORT. You continue a keep your subscription to COMFORT paid up.

Please observe carefully the following directions which explain exactly.

How to become a Member

Send thirty cents to GOMFORT'S Subscription Department, Augusts, Maine, with your request to be admitted into COMFORT'S LEAGUE OF COUSINS, and you will at once receive the League button and your membership certificate and number; you will also receive COMFORT for one year if you are a new subscriptor; but if you are already a subscriptor your subscription will be renewed or extended one full year beyond date of expiration.

Or, if your subscription is already paid in advance, you can take a friend's one-year subscription at 25 cents and send it in with five cents of your own, thirty cents in all, with your request for membership, and we will send you the button and membership certificate, and send COMFORT to your friend

quest for membership, and we will send you the button and membership certificate, and send COMFORT to your Irlend for one year. League subscriptions do not count in premium clubs.

NEVER apply for membership without enclosing thirty cents to include a new subscription or a renewal.

The League numbering over forty thousand members, undoubtedly is the greatest society of young people on earth, it costs but thirty cents to join, and that gives you at least a one-year subscription to COMFORT slee, without extra cost. Newer in the world's history was so much given for so little. Never could thirty cents be invested to such seventage, and bring such splendid returns. Don't heestate. Join us at once and induce your Irlends to do likewise.

All those League members who desires a list of the Gousing a stamped addressed envelope and five cents in stamps to Nellie Rutherford, 1299 Park Place, Brooklyn, New York, grand secretary.

Special Notice

msband. We think children can be distincted by the cacher was simply severe enough to discipline the child you will receive scant attention in any court proceeding against the teacher.

Mrs. J. F. B., Wyoming.—We think the liability of the company which insured your father's life would lepend entirely upon the proof of his death. We do not think that seven years' absence is proof of death; this simply a presumption of death and that

Address all letters to COMFORT, Augusta. Maine, and they will promptly reach the head of the department for which they are intended.

Uncle Charlie's Poems Will Help You to Start the New Year Right!

No matter how gloomy the world is Uncle Charlie's No matter how gloomy the world is Uncle Charlie's Poems are sunnier than ever. They make you laugh, scream, yell and forget your troubles. They are the best medicine in the world. Uncle Charlie's Poems a gorgeous, iliac silk cloth bound, 160-page volume of riotous fun. No home can be complete without this excruciatingly funny book. You will yell with delight as you peruse its entrancing pages. Among the laughs you will find a few tears and an absorbingly interesting sketch of Uncle Charlie and Maria preparing the mouthly talks you enjoy so much. This superb volume free for four one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25c each.

Uncle Charlie's Song Book Contains 28 of the Dandiest Songs!

You can't beat Uncle Charlie's Songs. Everyone is a hit and the book is a cracker jack of beauty, big and handsome, with full music for voice and piano. Worth a hundred dollar bill to anyone who loves real, classy melodious music, and entrancing words. Superb pictures of Uncle Charlie decorate the artistic cover, COMFORT at 25c each. Both books free for a club of six. Work for them today.

Take Your Pick

"Spug"—Society for the Prevention of Useless Giving, but now generally accepted as the Society for the Promotion of Useful Giving.
"Sud"—Society for Prevention of Useless dis-

Jitney—Name commonly given to the 5-cent auto bus, the word said to be of Greek derivation, meaning five cents.

Publature—Word used by Commercial Clubs and civic bodies to define their "boost" literature, the word being formed from parts of the words literature and publicity.

Phonogram—A message by telephone, the same as telegram or cablegram for other messages by wire.

Diangling—being a contamination of diagonal and angle.

nd angle.

Grassoline—Buffalo or cow chips used as fuel.

Lowerarchy—antonym of hierarchy.

Slanguage—Slang language.

0

Wanted An Idea! Who can think of some simple thing to patent? Protect your ideas. They may bring you wealth. Write for "Needed Inventions" and list of "Patent Buyers." RANDOLPH & CO., Patent Attorneys, Dept. 112, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Pink Cameo Ring FREE Cameos are set in fine gold filled ring. Goar-anteed for three years. To introduce new Ring Bargains, will send post paid, your size, upon receipt of 12c to pay advertising. The Auction Co., Dept. 601 Attleboro, Mass.

EICHT PIECES OF JEWELRY FRE ED This beautiful gold plated La Valliere (set with pearl center) and chain, a guaranteed hard green enameled Brooch (set with imt. diamond) a handsomely engraved gold plated Bracelet, 2 lovely Beauty Pins and 3 lovely Rings—All 8 of these guaranteed attractive pieces of Jewelry given absolutely FREE for selling 20 pieces of our quick-selling jewelry at 10c. each. We take back all not sold. Send today for Jewelry. TOWNES NOVELTY CO., BOX 976, RICHMOND, VA. TITE IST

Not $1.00, not even 50c, not one cent cost to you under our easy conditions. No extra charge for fancy, swell styles, no extra charge for extra big, extreme peg-tops, pearl buttons, tunnel or fancy belt loops, no extra charge for anything, all FREE. Before you take another order, before you buy a suit or pants, get our samples and new offer. Agents of ether tailering houses please write, we have a new deal that will open your eyes. We ask every man to answer this, every boy in long pants, every man, everywhere. No matter where you live or what you do, write us a letter or postal and say "Send Me Your New Free Offer" the big, new different tailoring deal. Costs nothing and no extra charges. Write today, this minute. Address KNICKERBOCKER TAILORING CO. Dept. 876.

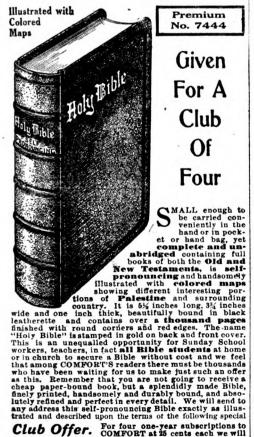

you this handsome and stylish German silver mesh pure free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 7374. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Self-Pronouncing Bible

A Corner for Boys

By Uncle John

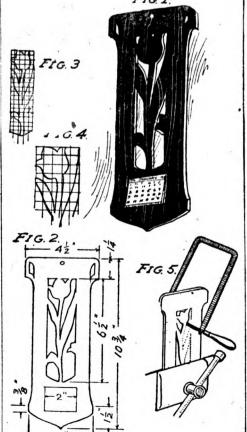

ISH you all a happy new year, and may it bring the end of this dreadful war which has dewastated Europe and is now extending its scourge over the greater part of the civilized world. Peace with victory within the year, let us hope, but it must not be a German peace. Rather must we fight on and endure any sacrifice in order to overthrow those despotic powers that have joined forces in a wicked attempt to conquer and enslave the rest of humanity.

This game and device is my own invention. It resembles bowling but is scored by innings like baseball. When pin No. 1 is knocked, it equals a base hit, No. 2, a two-bagger and so on. When all the pins are down, or when one clean miss is made the side is out. The greatest number of runs that can be made in a half inning is four. Before beginning actual work, study the drawings until you understand every point of construction. Fig. 3 is a top plan view, and Fig. 4 is a side view. Making the outside, shallow box is the first simple operation. It is made of one-inch pine boards, nailed to two by two corner braces. The bottom, or floor, may be one half-in h stuff, like that used for grocery boxes. Short pieces nailed crosswise will do. The center, or enclosed runway, is then made also out of pine boards. The top of run, or alley, is padded with despotic powers that have joined forces in a wicked attempt to conquer and enslave the rest of humanity.

The triumph of Germany and her allies, which include the unspeakable Turks, would mean the establishment of tyranny in place of liberty the world over, right and justice crushed by might, treachery and cruelty rewarded as virtues, and the moral standards of humanity degraded to the level of the dark ages.

This war can not be won by soldiers alone. Our fighting men in the trenches must be supported by the united efforts of the people at home and all the boys and girls must do their part, for labor is scarce and much needed. Do your part cheerfully remembering that any sacrifice you may make is as nothing to what our soldiers at the front are doing and daring for our peace and safety at home; and above all be thankful that by our brave soldiers going over to fight in France they are helping to keep the German armies from coming over here to waste our country with fire and sword and make of it a homeless, treeless, smoking desert as they have of the other countries which they have overrun. Be eternally grateful that you are thus spared the shocking cruelties suffered by the innocent people of Belgium and eastern France where the conquering Germans have burned cities, towns and villages, first driving the inhabitants into the houses so to roast them to death in their own homes, and have shot and bayonetted old men and young and children and mothers with babes in their arms, and have carried off the girls by thousands to slavery worse than death. It see s beyond belief, but all this and much more that is too vile and horrible for us to print is true and is proven by the official report on German War Practices recently published by our government which describes these fiendish cruelities and shows conclusively that they were not only permitted but ordered by the German government.

CARDS Send of Report for legislations of the formation of

FOR THE LIVING-ROOM.

as this. Remember that you are not going to receive a cheap paper-bound book, but a splendidly made Bible, and paper-bound book, but a splendidly made Bible, finely printed, handsomely and durably bound, and absolutely refined and perfect in every detail. We will send to any address this self-pronouncing Bible exactly as illustrated and described upon the terms of the following special trated and described upon the terms of the following special correct. In sawing the board always leave a little to be rubbed off with sandpaper. If you any address this self-pronouncing Bible exactly as illustrated and described upon the terms of the following special correct. In sawing the board always leave a little to be rubbed off with sandpaper. If you any address this self-pronouncing Bible exactly as illustrated and described upon the terms of the following special correct. In sawing the board always leave a little to be rubbed off with sandpaper. If you saw directly on the line this will not be possible. The saw blade is entered through holes bored for the purpose. Some of the finishing may be done with a sharp knife but sandpaper is the some of them have been "boiled down" to the tewest and supplied to the safest to use. If you use cigar box wood you will have to soak off all the paper and clean it up before beginning and may finish it by rubbing with linseed oil or varnishing. Some of the other articles you might make are, thermometer mount, tooth-brush holder, whisk-broom holder, pencil rack or candle shade

Home Made Bowling Game

INTERESTING AND EXCITING.

Sample Watch Free

Genuins full standard size railroad style watch with locomotive on dial and locomotive handsomely engraved on back. Full nickel plasted ease, extra dust proof, arabic numerals on dial, heavy R. B. style figures. Gennine American make, stems wind and set, full y GUARANTEED for 5 YEARS, To advertise our business and introduce this workerful watch and our great catalogue of Eligh, Weltham and Hampden watches we will send this elegant watch to any address by mail postpaid, or send 83.50 for two and we will send to prove trouble. Bend this advertise watcher with $1.75 and watch will be sent by mail postpaid, or send 83.50 for two and we will send ON E EXTRA WATCH FREE. Order today as this effer may not appear again. Address R. E. CHALMERS & CO., 538 So. Dearborn St., CHICAGO, ILL.

Riddles

What key unlocks the gates of perdition?

Why is a male host like a riddle? Because he can't be guest (guessed.)

What might the man who raises and lowers the windows in a bank be called? The draft-clerk.

Good by for this time, but watch for our big Liberty number in February which will tell a lot of interesting things that every boy should know, UNCLE JOHN.

Cross Currents

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 12.)

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 12.)
him to hold with some degree of acceptability, was through with her—wished to set her aside to me e room for a fluttering and rather silly woman far past her first youth.

Well, and why not? If her husband wished to slide over a precipice, was it her duty to hold him back? By letting him go, headlong to destruction, she could achieve her own happiness. And her garments would be clean! After it was all over, she and Waverley could marry and no one need ever to know.

She rose unsteadily. "I will think this over, Bentley," she said. "Of course I want you to be happy. Perhaps it can be arranged as you wish."

"Marcia! I knew you would understand. I told Lucy so. You are good!"

It was with difficulty that she kept her feet to a sedate tread until the door closed at her back. Then she raced up the stairs and into her room and having locked the door, she leaped to the telephone. She must see Saxon Waverley without delay.

(TO BE CONCLUDED IN FEBRUARY COMFORT.)

(TO BE CONCLUDED IN FEBRUARY COMFORT.)

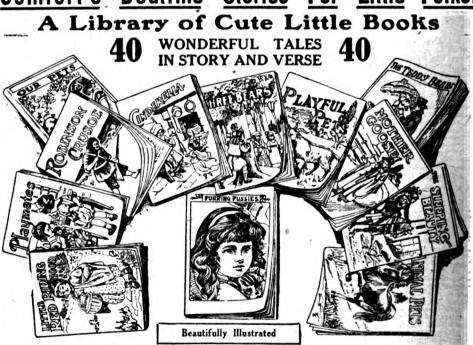

What does Marcia say to Waverley? What has he written her in the yet unopened letter in her hand? Read it in February COMFORT which will also tell how the sparks flew at the clash of flint and steel when Miss Canfield called on Marcia to "talk things over."

Fencing a Continent

The State of South Australia has, since 1891, erected 29,148 miles of "vermin fences," enough to encircle the globe and with the remnant build a double line of fence along the Southern border of the United States. When contracts now running are completed the mileage will be much increased. New South Wales has expended more than $27,000,000 for rabbit extermination and has within its borders 98,000 miles of fence. One of West Australia's fences extends entirely across the continent.

Of late years the rabbit has been repaying in part for his keep—paying board as it were. He goes to swell the total of food exports from the Commonwealth. Along the country roads rabbits may be seen hung on the fences, awaiting the passage of the rabbit carts which convey them to the packing houses, to be prepared for shipment as frozen meat and hides. Practically all are exported, and during 1913 frozen rabbit and hare to the value of $1,400,000 and skins to the value of $3,000,000 were sent from Commonwealth ports.—National Geographic Magazine.

canvas. Between the raised central part just described and the outer fenced-like enclosure, inclined boards like "x" "y" are fitted to cause the marble or ball to roll back to the starting end. Fig. 8 is a life-like picture of the paddle used. Fig. 5 shows the size and how they are mounted. "R" is a bolt which passes through the holes in the tin clip "e." Fig. 2 shows the lever device by means of which the pins are set up. When the lever "l" is pulled the strip "b" pushes back "f" against the base of the pins and they are raised. When the pins are upright, press forward on "L" to raise "F" out of the way so that the pins can fall when struck. All of this work should be neatly done. In bowling, the runway is presumed to be perfectly level. Comfort's Bedtime Stories For Little Folks!

SENT FOR ONE LIBRARY OF SUBSCRIPTION!

Library No. 7991 has these twelve titles:

The Shepherd And His Sheep, Young America, The Deep Blue Sea, Land of Tulips, Rex and Rover, Our Farm Yard, Little Darlings, Childhood of Hiawatha, Faithful Friends, The Fancy Dress Party, Our Country, Happy Days.

Library No. 8001 consists of these twelve titles:

The stories of our childhood—how well we remember them. After all it seems but his hort time since we listened with rapt attention to the adventures of Robinson Crusoe cast away on his lonely island—of beautiful Cinderella, the fairy and the prince—the tragic fate of poor little Red Riding Hood—these were only a few of the may be colors. The other titles are just the sort of stories and helped us spend many blissful hours.

The children of today are the same as they were fifty years ago, And these good old-time stories are just as popular with the young folks now as they were then. So we have decided to give our little boy and girl friends a fine big collection of these stories including some of the old-time favorites as well as a number of newer and later books equally as interesting. We have arranged rold-time favorites as well as a number of newer and later books equally as interesting. We have arranged rold-time favorites as well as a number of newer and later books equally as interesting. We have arranged rold-time favorites as well as a number of newer and later books, no two alike, and you can have your choice of any one libraries, or sisting of twelve books, no two alike, and you can have your choice of any one library, or twe libraries, or solven the libraries. Library No. 7991 comprises the following twelve titles:

Robinson Crusoe Cititle Red Riding Hood, Cinderella, Mother Goose, Animal Pets, Purring Pussles, Playmates, Our Pets, The Three Bears, The Sleeping Beauty, Playful Pets, The Teddy Bears.

Offer A. For one one-year subscription (not your course) cast that titles are just the sort of course need no incolors. Some of the titles named above of course need no incolors. Some of the titles named above of course need no incolors. The other titles are just the sort of sories are just the sery, Indians, animal pets, horses, dones, dones, hundles, push that delights have decided to give our little boy and girl friends donesy, dogs, bunnies, pust the donesy, dogs, bunnies, pust the donesy, dogs, bunn Offer A. For one one-year subscription (not your own) to COMFORT at 25 cents we will send you any one library of twelve books by parcel post prepaid. Be sure to mention number of library wanted.

Rover, Our Farm Yard, Little Darlings, Childhood of Hiawatha, Faithful Friends, The Fancy Dress Party, Our Country, Happy Days.

Library No. 8001 consists of these twelve titles:
Little Sweethearts, The Story of Little Piggie Wilsend you all three libraries, parcel post prepaid.

Little Sweethearts, The Story of Little Piggie Doings, Fred's Feathered Friends, Uncle Jerry's Farm, Chums, The Story of Santa Claus, Little Laddies, Pussy's Pranks, Faithful And True.

As these stories are intended for the younger children some of them have been "boiled down" to the fewest and simplest words so that they are not as complete as the original editions, but all of them are printed on fine paper in large clear type that is easy to see and read and have library wanted.

Offer B. For two one-year subscriptions at 25 cents cach, we will send you all three libraries, parcel post prepaid. Don't forget to give number or numbers of libraries wanted.

Extra Gift For Promptness! If you will send you four extra books absolutely free. This will give you one grand complete libraries, of uniform size and binding, handsomely original editions, but all of them are printed on fine paper in large clear type that is easy to see and read and have

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Physicians Warn Public Against Taking Substitutes for Nuxated Iron

Say That Ordinary Metallic Iron Preparations Cannot Possibly Give the Same STRENGTH, POWER AND ENDURANCE

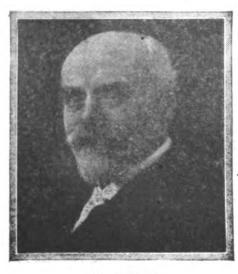

Besides, they may upset the digestion, disturb the secretions and thereby do far more harm than good, and that Health Officials and Physicians everywhere should caution the public against accepting these inferior products.

The widespread publication of this information has been suggested by Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital, New York and the West-chester County Hospital, Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author,

Dr. James Francis Sullivan Formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital and the Westchester County Hospital

Dr. H B. Vail, formerly Physician in the Baltimore Hospital and a Medical Examiner and others, so that the public may be informed on this subject and protected from the use of metallic iron under the delusion that it is Nuxated Iron, or at least something as good as Nuxated Iron. In regard to the value of Nuxated Iron Dr. Sullivan says: "In my talks to physicians I have strongly emphasized the great necessity of their making blood examinations, of their weak, anaemic, run-down patients. Thousands of persons go on suffering year after year, doctoring themselves for all kinds of ills, when the real and true cause underlying their condition is simply a lack of underlying their condition is simply a lack of sufficient iron in the red blood corpuscles to sumcient from in the red blood corpuscies to enable nature to transform the food they eat into brawn, muscle, tissue and brain. Without iron in your blood your food merely passes through your body, something like corn through an old mill with the rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind.

Former Health Commissioner Ker

"But you can't make strong, vigorous, successful, sturdy iron men by feeding them on metallic iron. The old forms of metallic iron must go through a semi-digestive process

日本

THE COLUMN

AREFUL investigation by physicians among druggists and patients has revealed the fact that there are thousands of people taking iron who do not distinguish between organic iron and metallic iron and that such persons often fail to obtain the vital energy, strength and endurance which they seek, simply because they have taken the wrong form of iron. They seem to think iron is iron on the same theory that a potato would be a potato whether cooked or raw, entirely ignoring the fact that the cooking process makes certain important cellular changes in the potato that renders it far more easy of assimilation by the blood and tissues. No one would hardly expect to derive the same strength from eating raw potatoes that he would from eating cooked potatoes, yet according to the opinions of physicians who have made careful study of the subject, taking raw, unprepared, metallic iron is a good deal like eating raw potatoes.

Therefore, physicians advise those who feel the need of a strength and blood builder to go to their family doctors and obtain a prescription calling for organic iron -Nuxated Iron-and present this to their druggist so that there may be no question about obtaining the proper article. But if they do not wish to go to the trouble of getting a prescription for Nuxated Iron then be sure to look on the label and see that the words NUXATED IRON are printed thereon. Not Nux and Iron nor any other form of iron but NUXATED IRON.

The remarkable results produced by Nuxated Iron and its widespread sale (it being estimated that over three million people annually are today using it) has led to the offering of numerous substitutes and physicians say that health officials and doctors everywhere should caution the public against accepting these substitutes which may be nothing more than a metallic iron compound which may in many cases produce far more harm than good, just like a meal of raw potatoes might upset the stomach of a delicate person and really injure him instead of furnishing nutriment and strength.

Dr. E. Sauer, a Boston physician who has studied both in this country and in great European Medical Institutions, said:
"Nuxated Iron is a wonderful remedy. Not long ago a man came to me who was nearly half a century old and asked me to give him a preliminary examination for life insurance. I was astonished at the number of patients who have vainly doctored for various diseases, when in reality their delicate, run-down state was simply the result of lack of iron in the blood. Time and again I have prescribed organic iron—Nuxated Iron—and surprised patients at the rapidity with which the western and really wash of the presented ability. The surprised patients at the rapidity with which the western and really wash on the prescribed organic iron—Nuxated Iron—and surprised patients at the rapidity with which the western and surprised patients at the rapid the simply the result of lack of iron in the blood. Time and again I have prescribed organic iron—Nuxated Iron—and surprised patients at the rapidity with which the weakness and general debility were replaced by a renewed feeling of strength and vitality. I took Nuxated Iron myself to build me up after a serious case of nervous exhaustion. The effects were apparent after a few days and within three weeks it had virtually revitalized my whole system and put me in a superb physical condition."

Dr. Fordinand*King save: "Doctors should

Dr. Ferdinand King says: "Doctors should prescribe more organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for their nervous, run-down, weak, haggard-looking patients. Pallor means anaemia. The skin of the anaemic man or woman is pale, the flesh flabby, the muscles lack tone, the brain fags and the memory fails, and often they become weak, nervous, irritable, despondent and melancholy. When the iron goes from the blood of women the roses go from their cheeks."

"If people would only take Nuxated Iron when they feel weak or run-down instead of dosing themselves with habit-forming drugs, stimulants and alcoholic beverages, I am convinced that in this way they could ward off disease, preventing it becoming organic in thousands of cases, and thereby the lives of thousands might be saved who now diegerry very from pneumonia, grippe, kidney, liver. every year from pneumonia, grippe, kidney, liver, heart trouble and other dangerous maladies. The real true cause which started their disease was nothing more or less than a weakened condition brought on by a lack of iron in the blood. Thousands of people suffer from iron deficiency and do not know it. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained."

A Borton Physician who has studied in great European Medical Institutions.

nor secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach; on the contrary it is a most potent remedy in nearly all forms of indigestion as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron that they offer to forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron and increase their strength 100 per cent. or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and and when seek it is dispensed. endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed by all good druggists.—Advertisement.

SPECIAL TO PHYSICIANS:

Doctor, when you wish to prescribe a true tonic and blood builder, one that puts the real "stay there" strength and youthful vigor into the blood and nerves, try Nuxated Iron. Nuxated Iron will be furnished by any druggist on an absolute guarantee of success or money refunded. It is highly endorsed by such physicians as Dr James Frances Sullivan formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital, New York and the Westchester County Hospital, Dr. H. B. Vail formerly Physician in the Baltimore Hospital and a Medical Examiner; Dr. A. J. Newman, late Police Surgeon of the City of Chicago, former House Surgeon, Jefferson Park Hospital, Chicago; Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author, and others. In most cases physicians direct the use of two five-grain tablets three times per day after meals. after meals.

Play Piano In One Hour for Two Cents!

Would you give two pennies to learn to play the piano or organ in one evening? Impossible! No. not at all. Hundreds of thousands of others who never played before played their first piece in just a few minutes. THEN WHY CAN'T YOU?

John H. Ferguson, Acme, Alta.. Canada, says: "I was not a little amazed when I found I could play in a few minutes." C. Pitmann, Meno, Okla., says: "Have two children, one is 12 and the other 10, who in a very few minutes could play it well, and they did not know one note from another in the old music."

V. R. Perkins, Romney, Ind., says: "I studied Easy Form' music fifteen minutes and then started to play." Thousands of similar reports are in our fles. Doesn't this convince you that you can play by this wonderful new method?

LEARN The NEW WAY

This wonderful new EASY FORM Music is written without notes. Any child can read it and play it. You do not need to know anything about ordinary note music to be able to play in one hour or less. No teacher. No correspondence lessons by mail.

Pay not one cent for five days' instruction free. Simply send us two cent postal, stating: "I do not read or play music and am interested in the new EASY FORM Way to play." Also be sure to tell us the number of white keys on your plano or organ.

If you find you can play AT ONCE and wish to keep the 100 beautiful selections—songs and instrumental pieces—you can pay for them at our Special Reduced Price, only 6½c per copy, in monthly payments so small that you will never miss them. Otherwise, you can return them and owe us absolutely nothing for your instruction for five days. Send a postal today—now—before this remarkable offer is withdrawn. Address Easy Method Music Co., 243 Clarkson Building, Chicago.

Bell-ans

Absolutely Removes Indigestion. Druggists refund money if it fails. 25c

Darken Your Gray Hair

DUBY'S DUBY'S HAIR COLORING HERBS DUBY'S HAIR
HERBS
HAIR
HERBS
HOLD TAIN COLUMING HERBS

OZARK HERB CO. Desk 20 St. Louis, Mo.

FREE WATCH and
10 YEAR QUARANTEE

Lady or Gent Thin Model. Many valuable prizes for selling 25 Art and Religious PIOTURES at 10c each. Order pictures at once. We give moving picture machines
GAIR MFG. CO., Dept. 401, OHIOAGO, ILL.

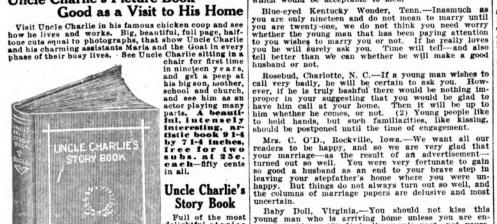

WONDERFUL SILK AND VELVET BARGAINS
For Quilte, Fancy Work, Portieres, Etc. Send 10 Cents for hig package of large beautiful silk remnants including free guilt design, and agents' catalogue describer of the send of the send

Automatic Fibre Limbs Easy Payments—Do Rature's Work. State Stump Langth Above or Below Knes. FREE FIBRE WORMAN GO. 307 Andrus Building. SAMPLE.

UNCLE CHARLIE'S LIFE E IN PICTURES

Uncle Charlie's Picture Book Good as a Visit to His Home

Full of the most delightful stories ever written. You will laugh one min-ever written. You will laugh one minute and cry the next as you read these entrancing stories of Uncle Charlie's life. Read how Maria and Billy the Goat met Uncle Charlie; read "Lily Or Help Wanted" the funniest story ever written. 160 pages of mirth and merriment, pathos and tears, illustrated and beautifully bound in silk cloth, stiff covers, gold topped. Free for four subs at 25c. each—one dollar in all.

Also bound in heavy fancy blue paper covers for only two subs at 25c. each—fifty cents in all. Ideal birthday presents. COMFORT'S greatest premium bargains. Work for them today. Secure one or both of these superb souvenirs of this remarkable man who devotes his time and talents to the service of humanity. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Note. Full particulars of how to secure Uncle Charlie's splendid poems and song book will be found at the end of the League of Cousins' Department.

"Virtus itself offends when coupled with forbid-ding manners." - Bishop Middleton.

In order to meet the demand for information made by COMFORT subscribers on the kindred subjects of Etiquette and Personal Appearance, this column will be devoted to them, and all questions will be answered, but no inquirer shall ask more than two questions each month. We would suggest to readers to cut this column out and paste it in a scrap book. Address letters to Etiquette Editor, COMFORT, Augusta, Mains.

Oregon Wild Rose, Stayton, Oregon.—Write a simple friendly note to your boy friend offering your congratulations and good wishes upon his completion of his course. Avoid any set or stilted phrases; remember that you are writing to a friend, and say simply what you feel and think in the same manner that you wrote your well-expressed letter to this column.

Alabama Girl, Corona, Ala.—It is the gentleman's part to offer his arm to the lady when occasion demands. (2) It is perfectly possible for you to ask this boy to call, and to say that you would be glad to see him at your home—but we think that if he wants to come very bad that he will find some way of making his wish known.

Ing his wish known.

Brown Eyes, Quakertown, Pa.—We certainly think that you should refuse to continue to receive the attentions of a young man who has started to drink during the past year, and whom you have seen overcome with liquor. To go on further with the affair would only make sorrow and trouble for yourself. We cannot imagine your mother advising you to still receive serious attention from this man if she really knows of the true facts in the case. There is generally no more unhappy wife than the one who marries a man expecting to reform him. Exceptions occur, but they are does not get drunk.

Worried Jane, Anthon, Ia.—We think, even though does not get drunk.

Worried Jane, Anthon, Ia.—We think, even though your parents permit it, that fifteen is too young an age for a girl to be going to and from an evening's amusement with a young man—and unchaperoned too. (2) It is sufficient to say: "Thank you, it's very kind of you to offer to go home with me," when a young man pays you this courtesy. When he leaves you at your door, thank him for the pleasant evening you have had.

June, Pomona, Ill.—Most assuredly it is proper and necessary that a young man should speak to a girl's parents regarding his desire to marry her. (2) The engagement ring is worn on the third finger of the left hand.

hand.

Dorothy, Brooklyn, N. Y.—When a girl of fifteen is introduced to a man considerably older than herself it is sufficient for her to bow and smile pleasantly while shaking hands. The man will undoubtedly have something to say if you give him the opportunity to say it first. (2) The young man you write about is only one more of the type who only wishes to go about with girls that he can hug and kiss. You were quite right to speak to him as you did, and also in your belief that kissing should only come after an engagement. If he does not speak to you now you are well rid of a man of his sort, and he will be able to find a girl of his liking.

Lowaka, Oregon.—It is permissible to remain talking able to find a girl of his liking.

Iowaka, Oregon.—It is permissible to remain talking for a few minutes at the gate or doorway of your home with the young man that has escorted you back from some place of amusement; but we would not remain longer than a few minutes—and if it were very late we would not lengthen in any way the farewell. (2) Yes, you may accept a box of candy from the second young man.

man.

Aloha, Parkersburg, Oregon.—No, Aloha, "ragging" is not a proper way to dance—even if you are one of the "belis" of your village. (2) We could not say without seeing you what would be the most becoming way te wear the hair, but at a guess we would say to fix it in the same way that has made you a "bell."

to fix it in the same way that has made you a "bell."
Hazel Eyes, McAlester, Okla.—You say that your mother is too strict with you, and then you go on and say that you are corresponding with a boy that you have never seen. Your mother is quite right, Hazel Eyes, to object to any such conduct on your part. And life must be very dull and strange in McAlester it writing letters to this unknown boy is "the only pleasure" you have. You have asked our advice, and we have given it, and some day you will realize yourself how right your mother was, and be willing to thank her-for her kind strictness.

Tulio. Jackson. Miss.—If the young man you are Tulip, Jackson, Miss.—If the young man you are engaged to is the right kind of a young man—and we are very sure that he is,—we think that he would like nothing so well as something you had made for him with your own hands.

him with your own hands.

Society Seeker, Wardville, Okla.—Your description seemed attractive, and we are sure there are many charming girls in Oklahoma. (2) It is perfectly allowable, and also good common sense, to ask again the name of a person to whom you have been introduced and whose name you have failed to catch.

R. O. H., Holdenville, Okla.—You may send the soldier boy with whom you are corresponding some small gift—preferably an article which you have made yourself. Initial handkerchief, a knitted muffler or a crocheted necktie are all appropriate hand-made gifts which would be acceptable to men.

Blue-eyed Kentucky Wonder, Tenn.—Inasmuch as you are only nineteen and do not mean to marry until you are twenty-one, we do not think you need worry whether the young man that has been paying attention to you wishes to marry you or not. If he really loves you he will surely ask you. Time will tell—and also tell better than we can whether he will make a good husband or not.

Baby Doll, Virginia.—You should not kiss this young man who is arriving home unless you are engaged to him. (2) It is the man's part, not yours, to make gifts. If you give him anything, it must be some very simple, inexpensive article—preferably of your own handiwork. When you are engaged it will be a different matter.

B. K. Wis.—The girl makes no gift in return to

B. K., Wis.—The girl makes no gift in return to the man for the engagement ring which he gives her. the man for the engagement ring which he gives her.

P. E. T., Ohio, Ill.—It is sufficient to say to a young man who has taken you to some evening affair: "It was kind of you to take me; I have had a very good time." Or you can make it stronger if you like. (2) Shake hands with the couple who have been just married and say: "I know you are going to be very happy," or to the couple you meet sometime after the ceremony you might say: "I want to congratulate you both very much. I am sure you are very happy." And always say it as if you meant it.

Curlyfiead, Malden, Mo.—You are the best judge as to how much this young man resembles his father, or is liable to follow in his footsteps. But remember when you marry a man you to a certain extent marry his familly, and will be connected with it. Think the thing over carefully, and have good advice before you decide.

Brown Eyes, Brooklyn, Miss.—The girl should al-ways enter her own home ahead of the young man who is with her.

Peggy, North Manchester, Ind.—We would be careful of any intimacy with or too many presents from a divorced man of forty-three. (2) If the two young men you write about insist upon following you against your wishes, speak to your parents regarding the matter. A father is an useful affair in such cases.

Sibyl's Influence

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 10.) "Yes; but it is empty," Raymond returned,

"Yes; but 'tt is empty," Raymond returmed, laughing.

"Oh! Is that all?" she asked, blushing and laughing, too, as she remembered.

Then she added:
"But I do not need any money, since you and Lady Prescott give me everything."
"You know that you are expected to learn a great deal, now that you have come to live with us, and, among other things, you must begin to learn how to spend money judiciously."

He spoke gravely, yet there was a spark of mischief in his eyes.

Sibyl did not reply, though she looked a triffe disturbed at his reasoning.
"Sibyl, will you let me put some money into your purse?" he asked, studying the fair, downcast face.

She hesitated a moment; then, with a visible effort, she held it out for him, open.
"A little, if you wish. I do not think I shall mind it quite so much today as I did then," she said, as a sort of apology for her former rejection.

He took a handful of coins from his pocket and dropped in, one at a time, two gold pieces and several pieces of silver, until she suddeally stopped him by shutting the purse, and, with a very red face, saying there was enough.
"When that is gone, come and tell me; will you, little one?"
She looked up at him, her expressive face telling him that she would not like to do that; and, in her heart, she knew that she never could ask him for money.
"Will you, Sibyl?" he persisted, determined to have her promise.
She thought a moment, and then replied, in low, rather uncertain tones:
"Yes—sir."

And yet she knew the time would never come, for she had resolved to keep those golden coins as long as she should live.

inw, rather uncertain tones:

"Yes—sir."

And yet she knew the time would never come, for she had resolved to keep those golden coins as long as she should live.

They were the first she had ever possessed, He had given them to her, and they would always seem like some sacred treasure to her.

"And now there is one other little matter to be settled. Are you always going to address me as if I were an old man?"

"What shall I say, sir—I mean Mr. ——" and she stopped in confusion.

"You are to be like a little sister to me after this, and I would like you to call me Raymond, or lay, for short. Will you?"

"I'm afraid I—can't."

"Why not?"

"Because I am so young, and you are so old," was the naive reply.

Raymond's laugh rang out clearly and musically.

"Thank you, little princess, for your kindness; but did you never know any little girls who had 'old' brothers?"

"No, sir."

"Well, then, what will you call me? I won't have that horrid formal 'sir'," he said, impatient

"Lady Prescott told me to call her 'auntie.' Perhaps you will let me call you 'Cousin Ray,'" she said, sweetly, after a few moments of puzzled

"Lady Prescott told me to call her 'auntie.' Perhaps you will let me call you 'Cousin Ray,' 's she said, sweetly, after a few moments of puzzled thought.

"Yes, little one, if that will suit you any better," was the laughing response.

And thus Sibyl, the little wayside waif, was taken into their hearts and made one of them.

Sir Athelstone Prescott welcomed the return of his wife and son with much rejoicing.

The former had improved wonderfully in health and strength, and, now that she had a new object in life, she seemed to take a fresh interest in everything about her.

As to her intentions and desires regarding Sibyl's future, Sir Athelstone told her, even as Raymond had predicted, "that she should do with the child just as her kind heart dictated."

"Then, from this day she shall be called Sibyl Prescott, and be reared as we would rear our own daughter." she said.

"As you will. The child certainly is one of great promise."

"I thought at first," his wife continued, that, for mere humanity's sake, I would only take her away from that dreadful place, and put her in some school, where she could get the education she so much desired," but the dear child is so sweet, bright and lovable, that I cannot bear to part with her now."

"Then, you shall keep her, my love," Sir Athelstone replied, smiling fondly upon her.

"You know, Athel," she went on, a little bit of pain creeping into her eyes, "that I have always wanted a daughter so much, and Sibyl is so beautiful and spirited, as well as good, that I feel she will be very companionable, and help make our home very bright while Ray is away."

"I am very glad, dear, that you have chosen to do this thing; the object and occupation are just what you need, my wife," returned her husband.

"I feel better about adopting her since discovering about that jewel. I think she must belong to some high family."

"It seems so to me, both from her own appearance and her remembrance concerning the jewel. But, Annie," he added, "if such should be the case her parents may discover

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 26.)

Oh! the Charm of Beauty

Let Stuart's Calcium Wafers Restore the Color to Your Cheeks and Remove the Cause of Pimples, Blackheads, Etc.

"Life to Me Now Is a Beauteous Thing, for I Have Made All Skin Troubles a Thing of the Past."

Every one envies a beautiful skin, just as every one envies a healthy person. Unsightly faces filled with pimples, discolorations, blackheads, etc., are nothing but unhealthy faces due to blood impurities. Cleanse the blood and the facial blemishes disappear.

You must not believe that drugs and salves will stop facial blemishes. The cause is impure blood filled with all manner of refuse matter.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers cleanse and clear the blood, driving out all poisons and impurities. And you'll never have a good complexion until the blood is clean.

No matter how bad your complexion is, Stuart's Calcium Wafers will work wonders with it. You can get these little wonder-workers at your druggist's for 50 cents a package.

Try them free by writing the F. A. Stuart Co. 520 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich., for a free trfal package.

package. WIST WATCHES

For A Club Of Three

HERE is the girl who does not want one of these handsome and stylish bracelets? Set with a perfectly colored imitation gem denoting the month of your birth—with two tiny flashing white solitaires nestling in the dainty filigree design of gold—all of your friends will exclaim "My, what a beautiful bracelet!" the minute they see it. Filled with enough real gold to give it lasting wearing qualities, yet it feels light as a feather when worn. And you are assured of a perfect fit because it is self-adjusting. It will fit amy size wrist. Here is a list of the twelve different birthstones and the month represented by each:

No. 7413. January, Garnet: No. 7423, February, Amethyst: No. 7423, March. Bloodstone: No. 7443.

June, Agate; No. 7423, March. Bloodstone: No. 7463, June, Agate; No. 7423, September, Sapphire; No. 7323.

October, Opal; No. 7313, November, Topaz; No. 7323.

December, Turquoise.

You can earn one of these handsome gold-filled birthstone bracelets free by doing us a small favor as explained in the following offer. When you send for it be sure to mention number of birthsiene wanted.

CLUB OFFER.

For three one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25

CLUB OFFER. For three one-year subscriptions to COMPORT at 25 cents each we will send you one of these bracelets free by parcel post prepaid. Be sure to give us the number of stone wanted.
Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

FREE POWERFUL AIR RIFLE length 32 inches. Work-of steel. The stock is finely polished walnut. Shoots small game. seel. The stock is finely polished walnut. Shoots small rams. Power accurate, dufable. You can have this air rife for distributing only 8 of our fast mg art pictures at 35 cents on our special offer. Everybody will take on COSTS YOU NOTHING to try, as we take back those you can no money, just your name and address. can's dispose CHICAGO.

LOCKET AND CHAIN

Rolled Gold Plate!

MOST every young lady wants a Locket and Chain. Other styles of neck ornaments may come and go but a gold Locket and Chain is always fashionable, can be worn with any dress and at any season of the year. The locket offered here is one of the latest designs. One side of it is beautifully engraved as shown in the illustration while the other side is plain. It measures exactly one inch sid diameter and on the inside there is space for two pictures. The cable chain is 15 inches long and both Chain and Locket are made of heavy rolled gold plate that is absolutely guaranteed to stand an acid test and warranted for five years. It is dainty, refined and attractive and we are sure that it will more than please everybody. This locket and chain guaranteed to be exactly as described is yours free upon

Warranted

For 5 Years!

PREMIUM each we will send you this guaranteed rolled gold Locket and Chain free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 7295.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

SENSATIONAL NOVELTY Token that will last a lifetime. Sterling Silver WISHING RING The only SELF - ADJUSTABLE Ring ever made. Fits any finger. Appropriate Gift Order today for yourself and your friend. $1.00 by mail Money Back If Not

VETERINARY COURSE AT HOME

Pleased F. L. FARMAN C Little Bldg. Boston. Mass

Taught in simplest English during spare time. Diploma granted. Cost within reach of all. Satisfaction guaranteed. Have been teaching by correspondence twenty years. Craduates assisted in many ways. Every person interested in stock should take it. Write for ogue and full FREE

LondonVet.Correspondence School Dept 6, London, Ontario, Can.

Inventions Wanted! Manufacturers constantly writing us patents. List of inventions actually usested and book "How to Obtain a Patisent free. Send rough sketch for free regarding patentability. Special assistation our clients in selling patents to for details of interest to every inventor. Chandlee & Chandlee, Patent Attorneys Est. 21 Years 5117th St., Washington, D. C.

THIS FREE

Eagle Watch Co., Dept. 21, East Boston, Ma BOYS AIR RIFLE

FREE WATCH & RING
5 Year Guarantee. High grade lady's and gent's size thin model given for selling our new Art and Ralling of pitters are

Six Rogers' Silver Teaspoons

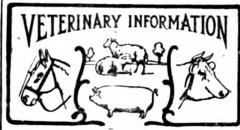

FOR A CLUB OF SIX

No woman ever has too many teaspoons—especially the "Rogers" kind—so here is an offer that will surely interest thousands of our women readers, For a few subscriptions to COMFORT secured among your friends we will send you this handsome set free. They are the famous 1881 Rogers' Al brand which is guaranteed to be a full standard silver plate upon a genuine 18% nickel base. Please notice the beautiful design—the new "Plymouth"—which is a splendid reproduction of the universally popular hand-hammered ware. You will have to see the spoons themselves in order to fully appreciate this latest fashionable pattern as our illustration does not do it justice.

We will give you this set of six Rogers' silver teaspoons on the terms of the following club offer. Remember—they are the genuine 1881 Rogers' Al brand—the Rogers' trademark is stamped on each and every one. This protects you fully, furthermore each spoon is absolutely warranted for ten years.

CLUB OFFER: For six one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each we will send you this set of six Rogers' sliver teaspoons free by parcel post prepaid. Premium No. 7356.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Subscribers are invited to write to this department asking for any information desired relative to the treatment of animal troubles. Questions will be answered in these columns free by an eminent veterinarian. Describe the trouble fully, sign full name and give your address; direct all correspondence to the Veterinary Department, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

No attention will be given any inquiry which lacks the sender's full name and address, but we will print only initials if so requested.

I am writing to you for advice. I lost a sixyear old cow a few days ago, that was fat enough for beef. The cow was with the other cattle in a mountain country. The feed for the last three months was brush, such as birch Azel, black oak and other small brush. The cow was sick three days. She began to pant hard as though she had run a long distance and then for a second or two she would grunt loud and then pant again and she did this until she died. Before she died she acted as though she was choking. After she died I opened her and found her lungs twice as large as the normal size. I think they weighed over 60 pounds and they were spotted light pink and dark spots. I took a piece in my hand and squeezed it and it seemed to be soft and foamy. The liver was very large and the gall was large and had about one gallon of green liquid; her kidneys seemed to be all right. The food in her stomach was hard almost like wood. When I first noticed the cow was sick I gave her one quarter of a pound of Epsom salts and one pint bottle full of olive oil and then I gave her two or three times, camomile tea but it did not help her any. Her bowels moved the first day but not after that. She passed urine all right. Please let me know what was the matter with the cow and if there is any cure for the same. One of COMPORT's old subscribers.

A.—The symptoms indicate broncho-pneumonia but we think it quite likely that the cow had a simpler trouble at first and that the fatal condition was caused by the medicine you gave her flowing into the lungs at time of administration. It is an easy matter to kill a cow in that way. We suspect that the sickness at first was a stoppage of the bowels, caused by so much dry forage and oak leaves which are constipating or even poisonous.

Sick Calef.—I would like information regarding a seven-months old steer calf. He bleeds at the nose constipating or even poisonous.

Sick Calf.—I would like information regarding a seven-months old steer calf. He bleeds at the nose and slobbers nearly all the time; breathes hard and wants to eat but can't get his mouth open. S. D. A.—It is likely that ulcers will be found upon the lining membrane of the mouth and throat, the disease being necrotic stomatitis which used to be called Calf Diphtheria and which is contagious and commonly fatal. Treatment consists in scraping each ulcer clean, swabbing with tincture of iodine a few times and then twice daily applying a two per cent solution of permanganate of potash.

WOUND.—I have a two-year old colt that was cut swabbing with tincture of lodine a few times and then twice daily applying a two per cent solution of permanganate of potash.

WOUND.—I have a two-year old colt that was cut about five months ago by barbed wire on the inside of the hock. It is straight to the bone. One side healed apparently all right; on the other side proud flesh appeared. He walks all right, but limps when he trots.

O. M.

A.—Apply a mixture of equal quantities of finely powdered sulphate of copper, burnt alum twice daily until the growth is cut down level; then apply oxide of zinc ointment daily. Such wounds, in the location described, do not well respond to treatment.

PARALYSIS.—I want to know what was the matter with my sow and what should have been done for her. She became weak in her hind parts last spring, while being fed on corn, but when turned out to pasture seemed better, then she got so she could not walk. I gave arsenic and turpentine for kidney worms. When examined, after she died, I found her liver full of boils, her gall as large as a man's fist and her bladder as large as a quart measure and no kidney worms present. I am a subscriber to COMPORT and think it is a good paper.

A.—Kidney worms do not cause parslysis of the hind quarters in swine, common belief to the contrary. The condition often is due to constipation sfrom stuffing with corn and allowing too little exercise. If taken in time such cases are remedied by physicking with Epsom saits and then feeding slop containing raw linseed oil. The sow in question had tuberculosis as shown by the diseased condition of the liver. Parasitic disease of the liver also may cause a similar condition. Such troubles are incurable.

NOSEBLEED.—I have a Poland China sow, eight months old, that takes spells bleeding at the nose from the right side. She eats but little at such time. It makes her sick. She also has a cough.

A.—As the bleeding causes cough and sickness it probably comes from the lungs, but it may come from a growth-in the nostril. Treatment will not be likely to help so berculosis, is found present.

Cowrox.—Can you tell me what alls my cows?
They have wax-like sores on their teats. The teats will be smooth then fill full with scabs. I bought a cow last spring that had scabs on her teats. Is it carried on milker's hands?

A.—Isolate and milk last cows so affected or have them milked by one who does not go near the other cows. Twice daily bathe the teats with a warm saturated solution of boric acid or immerse them in the solution for a few seconds. Then apply glycerite of tannin to the sores as often as found necessary. If any sore proves obstinate, apply strong iodine ointment twice-daily.

Sore.—I have a horse four years old that were Sore—I have a horse four years old that was hurt on the hip when a colt. It healed but the hair does not grow over the sear. Can you give me advice?

F. A. S.

A.— Hair cannot be made to grow where the hair roots have been destroyed. Wet the wound several times a day with "White Lotion," composed of one ounce of sugar of lead and six drams of sulphate of zinc in a pint of soft water. Label the bottle "poison" and shake it well before use.

"poison" and shake it well before use.

FISTULA.—I have a mare that has had a sore on her shoulder for two months. It runs all the time. It was caused from a flat saddle.

A.—It would be best to have a qualified veterinarian operate by laying open each pocket and pipe to secure for drainage for pus and to remove all dead or diseased tissue. He should then swab the wound with tincture of iodine. Afterward it may be packed daily with oakum saturated with a mixture of equal quantities of turpentine and raw linseed oil. If you cannot employ a veterinarian treat the case with a proprietary fistula cure used according to directions given by the manufacturer.

Waet.—I have a seven-months old colt that has a WART.—I have a seven-months old colt that has a wart on his front shoulder, about the size of a small walnut. It appears to be sore and is red the most of the time. It forms a scab, but rubs off easily and becomes sore. What can I do to remove it?

MES. C. A. S.

Read The Whole Story Now!

COTHE Girl He Loved" will hold you entranced to the very end. It is a wonder-ful story by a wonderful writer. Regular installments will ap-pear in Comport each month pear in COMPORT each month but you needn't wait in order to get the whole story as we will give you free the complete story in book form splendidly printed in a handsome colored paper bound edition. Send us only one one-year subscription (not your own) to COMPORT at 25 cents and we will send you a copy of the book free by mail postpaid. Don't wait for the installments. Read the whole story now by accepting this offer at once. offer at once.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

A.—You should have the wart dissected, but by a veterinarian, then treat as a common wound until healed. If you cannot have this done smear lard on the sound skin and twice a week apply nitric acid to the wart with a flat stick.

the wart with a flat stick.

LAMINESS.—I have a six-rear-old horse that I drive.

There is a knot on one of his fore legs on the outside just below the knee. After he has stood all night he is lame in that leg. The knot is not quite as large as the end of your thumb and seems to be grown on the bone and very hard.

A.—A small splint is present but it may not be the cause of the lameness. Splint lameness is not present at starting a trip but comes on and aggravates with exercise. If you cannot find another cause of lameness blister the splint once a month with a mixture of one dram of biniodide of mercury and one ounce of lard.

Firs.—Please tell me what is the matter with my dog. He takes spells of running and stretching. His eyes turn red about three days before he is sick, which lasts twelve hours.

A.--Give the dog a dose of Epsom salts once a week in water, one small meal each evening and make him live an outdoor life so far as that is possible. Get him into muscular condition instead of having him fat. If the trouble then persists give him worm medicine to be bought ready for use at the drug store.

The Girl He Loved

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 20.)

Sir Thomas, seeing Levallion in possession, had retired on business of his own; and Levallion laid his fine hand, that, if it were not young, was still beautiful, on his wife's bronze head.

"You're not really afraid of your party, are you?" he said with a tenderness that sat oddly on him. "For you know it is I who should be that.' If I were wise I'd shut you up alone with me, and save trouble. You're too good-looking, little mouse, for women not to hate you, and men"—he shrugged his shoulders—"and you're only my battered old bones between you and a somewhat overrated civilization." There was something wistful in his voice, despite it's cynicism, and it hurt her.

"Don't speak like that!" she cried sharply, passionately. "It wasn't that I meant. Only that I'm eighteen and an ignorant fool. How do I know how to entertain people? Suppose I disgrace vou!"

He laughed, still stroking her hair; and the laugh had the ring of Adrian's, and hurt her.

"I will frown at vou when I see you eating with your knife. Dearest, I wish you would do a little now in the hostessing way, if you don't mi d! Go and see Adrian; he's up. and it does. I't seem kind not to take any notice of him. Would you go? I know you hate illness, but he really does not look very dreadful. And would you give him this?" drawing something from his pocket. "I dare say he would rather you knew of his love-tokens than I." smilling.

Ravenel's heart banged against her ribs. He was holding out to her that ring that was her own.

"If—if you want me to," she said. Almost she could have let Adrian go with that ring that was Rayeners neart banged against her rows. Are was holding out to her that ring that was her own.

"If—if you want me to," she said. Almost she could have let Adrian go with that ring unexplained rather than have had Levallion—Levallion!—put her opportunity in her hand.

"He will think it odd if you never go near him, I fancy. But just as you like!" and his hand with the ring in it moved toward his pocket.

"I'll go," she said quickly, involuntarily; for after all she was not brave enough to let the knowledge she longed for go by forever. She dared not look at Levallion's face, lest she should forget herself and pour out the whole reason of her reluctance to be sent—by him—to Adrian. An appropriate and delightful confidence it would be, too, for her husband's ears. But if she did tell he would not hear her; he had no opinion of confessions. Had he not said once that "he wanted to know nothing about her that he did not know already—nothing!"

She held out her hand for the emerald ring.

At the quick faint knock on the door a man looked up from a paper he was pretending to

At the quick faint knock on the goor a man looked up from a paper he was pretending to read.

"Come in," he said impatiently, wishing Sister Ellizabeth and her messes elsewhere.

But it was not Sister Ellizabeth.

Gordon jumped up and sat down again, furious at finding how weak he was, and how his heart jumped at the sight of her face.

For Ravenel stood in the doorway; and yet not Ravenel, but Lady Levallion. His eyes went over her, losing not a point of the dainty, artificial look she had in her fine clothes.

Her bronze hair she had been used to twist carelessly was dressed exquisitely, in the rippling smooth yet fluffed outlines that were the fashion; her gown, that had been cotton, was finest white serge now, and the fron-frou of its silk lining reached him as she closed the door behind her; her little feet—but he could not look at those little feet. Truly, she had done well to leave him for Levallion; he could never have given her shoes with silver buckles like those!

"This is extremely kind of you." he said awkwardly. "Will you excuse my not getting up?"

"This is extremely kind of you," he said awkwardly. "Will you excuse my not getting up?" and even as he forced out the words he was thankful he had let Levallion's man shave him clean of his scrubby, week-old beard, and bring him decent clothes instead of a dressing-gown. But Lady Levallion's eyes were on his haggard, weary face and not on his toilet.

"Are you better?" she asked, standing yards away from him, and he remembered how she had come closer indeed last May. Is the nurse here?"

"No!" wonderingly. "At her tea. Won't you—Sit down?"
She shook her head, and he saw with a quarter.

She shook her head, and he saw with a queer listlessness that she was shaking from head to foot.

"I didn't want to come," she cried, as if his

Be The Best Dressed $2500 A Year and Two Suits for Yourself ere is the greatest opportunity ou ever heard of for you to make BIG SALARY, a lot of money or he side, while doing other work. I you would like to make $2500 year and get YOUR OWN The Progress Tailoring Co., Dept. 101, Chicago

GET this Car FREE Learn every branch of the Automobile Business, and get

C.A.Coop. Coey College of Motoring 2052 Wabash Av. Chicago indifference had thrown her back on herself. "Levalion sent me. I was to ask how you were, and indifference had thrown her back on herself. "Levalilon sent me. I was to ask how you were, and —give you this!" Flushing, trembling, she held out his ring.

Gordon held his tongue. No wonder she had not wanted to come. And then his temper nearly betrayed him.

"He could not have found a messenger more charming," he said, with icy politeness.

Ravenel caught her breath.

"Oh, I know you hate me!" she cried, "I know how you changed your mind at the last minute—though that was the only decent thing you ever did—and never came for me; left me like an old shof for any one to pick up after you had made my name a by-word. But I mean you to tell me one thing in spite of my—self-respect." Her voice shook like her body. "Where did you get my ring?"

He gazed at her in blind stupefaction.

"You sent it back to me." he said bluntly, "In your anger. I can't see why you ask."

"I!" said Lady Levallion. "I sent it back to you!" The ring fell from her hand and rolled where it would on the floor. Her gray eyes seemed suddenly to come alive, to blaze in her pale face.

"Where's the letter?" she cried scornfully.

ed suddenly to come anve, to black face, "Where's the letter?" she cried scornfully. "Show me the letter."

"I can't; it's in town with my thinge, God knows why I was fool enough to keep it, but I was. And more fool still, for I know it by heart. But you can't need to hear it."

"Say it!" She stamped her foot.

TO BE CONTINUED.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.—Adv.

MUSIC LESSONS FREE

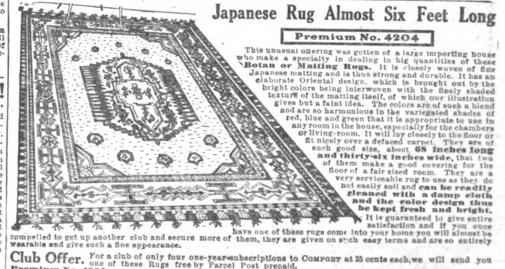

Write today for our booklet. It tells how to learn to n, Violin, Mandolin, Guitar, Banjo, etc. Beginners or AMERICAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC, 15 Laksside Sidg., Chicago.

What 15c Bring You from Nation's Capital

Washington, the home of the Pathfinder, is the nerve-center of civilization; history is being 13 weeks on trial. The Pathfinder is an illustrated weekly, published at made at this world capital. The Pathfinder's illustrated weekly review gives you a clear, impartial and correct diagnosis of public affairs during these strenuous, epoch-making days. which is sincere, reliable, entertaining, wholesome, the Pathfinder is yours. If you would an preclate a paper in your home which is sincere, reliable, entertaining, wholesome, the Pathfinder is yours. If you would appreclate a paper which puts everything clearly, fairly, briefly—here it is. Send 15c to show that you might like such a paper, and we will send the Pathfinder on probation 13 weeks. The 15c does not repay us, but we are glad to invest in new friends. The Pathfinder, Sox 76, Washington, D.C.

Club Offer. For a club of only four one-year-subscriptions to Compour at 25 cents each, we will send you Premium No. 4204.

Address COMPORT, Augusta, Maine.

EXTR COST. Different styles to select from You can be fitted correctly by Dr. Hakan's "Home Eye Tester" The most accurate method known, perfected by years of experience.

FREE—Simply send your name today and I will send without cost or obligation my wonderful "HOME EYE TESTER" illustrated "EYE BOOK" and 10 Days Free Trial Offer. MY "HOME EYE TESTER" enables you to test your eyes to your entire satisfaction and you will then be delighted with properly fitted glasses and better sizh. The special This Month-Size home plants with my large Special This Month-Size home plants in the size of th

DR. HENRY HAKAN, Refracting Eye Specialist 857 Hakan Bidg., Kansas City, Mo.

New Rupture Cure

Don't Wear a Truss.

Brooks' Appliance.
covery. Wonderful. covery. Wonderful. Automatic ious springs or pads. Automatic Air Cushions. Binds and draws the broken parts together as you would a broken limb. No salves. No plasters. No lies. Durable, cheap. Sent on trial to prove it. Full information and booklet FREE.

C. E. Brooks 167 State St., Marshall, M Marshall, Mich.

If You Are A Woman Who Loves Crochet And Tatting Here Is A Set Of Books You Will Be Delighted To Own!

A NY ONE of these books alone is a veritable treasure house of the newest, most beautic lidesigns. The seven books combined form a complete library in which you will find any pattern in crocheting and tatting you could possibly ask for. You will fairly revel in the many handsome designs shown. There are edgings, beadings, insertions and laces for every conceivable use. The illustrations are actual photographs of the finished work and show every thread so plainly that they are almost as good to work from as the directions themselves. The directions are adapted for either beginner or expert. They tell stitch by stitch how each pattern is worked, also the quantity and size of material required and the correct sizes of hooks to be used. Following is a description of each book. They are 8 by 10 1-2 inches in size with the exception of Volume I which is 9 1-4 by 12 inches. Please order by numbers.

Volume 1 Crocketed yokes for combinations, envelopes, nightgowns, corset covers, etc.—fifteen all different, exquisite designs.

1617

Volume 2 Handsome crocheted edgings and chiefs, underwear, dresses and a multitude of other uses, thirty-three different designs.

Volume 3 Eighteen lovely designs in Cluny insertions and laces for centeryokes, plano scarfs, curtains, chemises, envelopes or combination suits.

Volume 4 Twenty-five handsome designs in artistic crochet for yokes, boudoir caps, candle shades, baby bonnets, bedspreads, dollies, library scarfs, pillows, centerpieces, portiere, medallions, curtains, etc., etc.

Volume 5 Twenty-five designs in novelty crochet, including mile-a-minute and clover leaf crocheted yokes, primrose and sundower yokes; doilles, centerpieces, boudoir caps unique edges and insertions for serving trays; novelty aprons and collars.

Volume 6 Thirty-two designs in tatting, and beautiful assortment of tatted handkerchief deges, edgings and insertions, tatted yokes, bouled caps, towel edges, medallions; yokes, breakfast caps, ps, tower eages, meaanions; yokes, breakfast caps, nterpleces/edgings and lace in Maltese crochet and kes in Irish crochet.

Volume 7 Thirty handsome novelty crocheted designs including rose, sunflower periwinkle, and Venetian yokes; boudoir caps, monkey face library scarf, and lace pillow; large and small baskets, hat pin holder, jewel box, vanity tray coin purse, utility bag, starfish doily, pineapple centerpiece; edgings and insertions in pillow lace; daisy edging; spider, bell, rick-rack, novelty and coronation braid laces.

we have a construction braid laces.

WE advise you to order all seven of these splendid books before the assortment is broken. If however you do not care for the whole library at this time we have arranged the following special offers which give you the opportunity to secure any two or any four of the books. When ordering please be very careful to state the number of each book desired.

Offer 8011: For one 1-year subscription (not your send you any two books free by parcel post prepaid. Be sure to mention numbers of books anted.

Offer 8552: For two 1-year subscriptions at 25 cents each we will send you any four books free by parcel post prepaid. Be sure to mention numbers of books wanted.

Offer 8013: For three 1-year subscriptions at 25 cents each we will send you the complete library just as described above—seven different volumes in all, handsomely bound, printed on high-grade paper and containing nearly 200 beautiful photographic illustrations of all that is new and pretty in crochet and tatting deall that is new and pretty in crochet and tatting designs with complete directions for working. When ordering please be sure to mention number of each book wanted.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Information

Under this heading all questions by COMFORT subscribers on subjects not related to the special departments elsewhere in the paper will be answered, as far as may be. COMFORT readers are advised to read carefully the advertisements in this paper, as they will often find in them what they seek through their questions addressed to this Bureau. They will thus save time, labor and postage.

NOTICE.—As the privileges of this Bureau and of all other departments of COMFORT are for subscribers only, no attention will be given any inquiry which does not bear the writer's correct name and address. Initials only, or a flotitious name, if requested, will appear in the published answer, but the inquiry must invariably be signed by the writer's true name.

Miss F. V., Lankin, N. Dak.—You are right in thinking that the company to which you sold—or tried to sell—your song was dishonest. There are many such concerns that advertise to bring out the productions of aspiring young and old song writers. It would be practically impossible for you to dispose of your composition, "The Wonderful Nation," of which you send us a copy. There are hundreds of far more experienced song writers that are turning out patriotic songs today, and the market is completely flooded for all except productions of unusual merit.

Mrs. E. R. Patton, East Bernstadt, Ky.—We are

Mrs. E. B. Patton, East Bernstadt, Ky.—We are sure that some COMFORT readers who live in the Western states will respond to your request that they write to a fellow subscriber who wishes information at first hand of opportunities and conditions in states where there is government land to be allotted or relinquishments to be bought cheaply.

Mrs. R. O. Wheetlands Ind—Corress are being linquishments to be bought cheaply.

Mrs. R. O., Wheatlands, Ind.—Courses are being given in the large cities for the training of Red Cross nurses. You would find a good education a necessity as prerequisite to one of these courses, and a rather stiff examination is held at the completion of the training. We do not think that your one year of high school work would be sufficient preparation for this profession as the standard set by the Red Cross for its nurses is a high one, and the present war has introduced new and difficult situations for medical science to conquer. But there are many ways in which you may keep busy at home during the war, and many ways of serving in these days when all forces are being marshalled.

Mrs. P. R. Stamps Ark Mildow to conserve the single process of the standard set of the serving in these days when all forces are

Mrs. P. R., Stamps, Ark.—Mildew is one of the most difficult stains to remove, and we believe that to remove it with complete success from a reed baby carriage would be difficult or impossible. The weaving of the reedwork, and the interstices thus formed, would make the use of a cleansing fluid of small effect. We think it would be a good plan to paint this carriage, or give it a coat of some light colored enamel. paint this carrelolored enamel.

A. E. W., St. Paul, Minn.—Read the answer to Mrs. R. O. in this column. It is always necessary to have the best of health to endure the strain of nursing, and to have the strength to accomplish the required work.

work.

W. L., Fairland, Okla.—In any of the large cities one can enter certain hospitals without cost, as a "probationer," to learn to be a nurse. The applicant generally supplies her own uniforms, and is sometimes paid a small salary of a few dollars a month. These hospitals are always very strict about those that they accept and they demand that an applicant should have good health and be fitted in character and in education for this splendid but difficult profession. Many of the "probationers" are dropped after a few months as being unfitted for the work. (2) One can sail from this country to France for sixty dollars and in better style and with more comfort for seventy-five to ninety dollars.

A Subscriber, Fort Gay, W. Va.—Read the answers

A Subscriber, Fort Gay, W. Va.—Read the answers to Mrs. R. O. and to W. L. in this column. The usual hospital courses for nurses are for either two or three years.

three years.

C. C. Vinson, Oakwood, Texas, writes to this department to say that he believes that the Mrs. M. P. of Oakwood, Texas, whose inquiry regarding a "piece of jevelry" was answered in this column in September has found a diamond ring which he lost and that he advertised for in vain. Mr. Vinson states that he will gladly pay a reward of one hundred dollars for the return of this ring, and if Mrs. M. P. has really found this valuable and lost article we hope she may read these lines and communicate with Mr. Vinson.

Mr. E. J. V. Oakley, Kan, says that a cup of Mr. Vinson.

Mr. E. J. V., Oakley, Kan., says that a cup of gasoline mixed to a paste with three tablespoons of corn-starch makes a fine cleanser for a white felt hat, and this is called to the attention of several Comfort readers who have inquired in former months regarding the best method of cleaning such headgear. The paste should be rubbed well into the hat, and the surplus powder afterwards brushed lightly off. Mrs. E. J. V. is another of those of our subscribers who are interested in the question of chicken gizzards and is anxious to know of a market for these articles of poultry anatomy. This department knows of no such market—other than the soup kettle or the gravy-boat. If Comfort readers of this column know of a firm that is buying gizzards for purposes of pepsin extraction or otherwise, we would be glad to have the information forwarded to this department.

R. O. D., Canton, Texas.—You need no government

R. O. D., Canton, Texas.—You need no government license to sell your novel either before or after you secure a copyright. You need not have your production put in book form unless you wish.

L. B. Int. Va.—Vical.

put in book form unless you wish.

L. R., Dot, Va.—Much as it might like to, Comfort could not open its columns to any church desiring to raise funds to build a home. If this were done, thousands of churches would flood us with calls for like space, and we could not furnish our readers with our regular departments. Often a church can raise more money by means of fairs and other entertainments than it can by asking outright for money. Yet we believe that if the members of a church wish to erect a parish house or other building, is for every member that expects to use the building to give a sum of money in proportion to his or her means. What one wants must be paid for.

Miss S. D., New Bedford, Mass.—The Mercy Hosmust be paid for.

Miss S. D., New Bedford, Mass.—The Mercy Hospital and School for Nurses, 734 S 17th St.; the Philadelphia General Hospital, 34th St., corner of Pine and Southampton Roads; and the Northampton General Hospital, 2017 N 22d St., are hospitals in Philadelphia where you might enter for training as a nurse. Write to these, addressing in each case the Superintendent.

Sibyl's Influence

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 24.)

"My own. unselfish wife!" Sir Athelstone responded. Then he added, playfully! "What a pity it is that you missed your calling, Annie. This one act of yours proves to me that you ought to have been a missionary."

"Why, Athel! I have been one for the last twenty-two years. I regret that you have not appreciated my efforts better," she retorted, archly. With a hearty laugh at her repartee, Sir Athelstone bent his lips to her brow, and then went away to visit a patient.

The week following their return, Raymond went back to college, and Sibyl eagerly began her studies, under a competent governess and masters.

masters.

At the end of a year, when Raymond returned from college, she had mastered grammar, geography, and arithmetic, besides beginning algebra, French and Latin.

She had improved in appearance, too, having grown tall, and more cultivated and refined in her, manners, and he was glad to see that she was beloved in his home even as an own daughter would have been.

After a few weeks spent in resting, the young man left home again for Germany, where he was to spend two years more in study, at his own desire.

CHAPTER VI. BIRTHDAY PRESENTS.

Five years!
How much is comprised in the time represented by those two short words!
Raymond, who had only contemplated remaining away two years, had been gone all the time, excepting a vacation of three delightful weeks. His two years of study he supplemented with another at the same university in Germany, after which he had been induced to join a party who were to travel for a couple of years.
We find him now just returned, in the full vigor and pride of his manhood—handsome, well-proportioned, cultivated, and refined—a man calculated to attract, please, and command respect wherever he went.
Sir Athelstone looks and appears about the same.

wherever he went.

Sir Athelstone looks and appears about the same.

Lady Prescott also seems not a day older, and her fair face just as fair and lovely as ever.

The greatest change is manifest in Sibyl, who, from the neglected and sorrow-laden child found in the fisherman's inn, has bloomed into glorious and perfect womanhood.

It is just six years today since Lady Prescott mentally shook the dust from her feet, and brought her little protegee away from the old life into the new; and Sir Athelstone Prescott's elegant mansion is brilliantly illuminated to celebrate Sibyl's nineteenth birthday.

The poor child had never known what it was to have a "birthday" until she came to Lady Prescott, and, as Mistress Sloan had told her that she was apparently about three years old when she was thrown upon her care, and had remained with her ten years, her ladyship told Sibyl that they would call the day on which she left the old life her thirteenth birthday; and every year since, when the day came round, she had celebrated it in some way for her.

Now there was double cause for a celebration, for Raymond had returned, and Lady Prescott had resolved to give a large party in honor of the two events.

Just a little while before it was time for their friends to assemble, she sought the young girl's rooms.

Sibyl, now grown into a tall and graceful wo-rooms.

Sibyl, now grown into a tall and graceful

Sibyl, now grown into a tall and graceful woman, was standing before a double, full-length mirror, clad in trailing robes of softest and mistiest of lace, over which a maid was fastening beautiful wreaths of rich green leaves covered with a glistening imitation of frost.

She looked regal, standing there in all the pride of her fresh, young beauty, but no conscious vanity marred its effect, and Lady Prescott gazed upon her with delight.

"Raymond will surely call you the 'frost princess' tonight, my love," she said, as her jeweled fingers caressed some of the rich, glistening leaves.

fingers caressed some of the rich, glistening leaves.

"Has he gone down yet, auntie?" Sibyl asked, the flush deepening upon her cheek at his name, and the dusky lashes quivering just a trifle.

"No, dear; he is still in his room."

Lady Prescott smiled, and, bending forward, kissed Sibyl, tenderly.

"You are nineteen tonight, my dear—this is to be your debut, or introduction to society, and I could not think of anything more fitting to bring you for a gift than this."

She opened a velvet case, while she spoke, and took something out. It was a rich, though delicate, chain of finest wrought gold, with an ornament of some kind suspended from it.

Lady Prescott clasped it about the beautiful neck, and then stood a little distance, to note the effect.

Sibyl took up the ornament, which lay upon her bosom, to examine it.

the effect.

Sibyl took up the ornament, which lay upon her bosom, to examine it.

She uttered a little cry of delight; then her lips began to tremble, and her eyes to fill with tears.

"Oh, auntie, how kind of you! And what a lovely chain! May I wear it always now?"

"Always, dear child, for I know you will prize it more than any other thing in the world."

"Not more than the love that prompted it, I can assure you." Sibyl exclaimed, as she gave her a hearty, grateful kiss in return.

"But." she added. "I have always longed for the time to come when you would think it proper for me to wear this, for I believe my mother must have worn it, and it seems very precious to me."

The ornament suspended from the chain was none other than the one which Sibyl had taken from the old trunk in Jem's and Nell's room on the morning of her departure from their roof. The diamond glittered and flashed like a thing of life, with every gentle breath that she drew, while those three letters, so curiously formed by the gleaming pearls, seemed to her like mystic characters, through the solving of which the secret of her life could alone be revealed.

"This must have cost a great deal of money, auntie," Shyl said, meditatively, and still examining the ornament.

"Yes; that diamond alone must be worth a hundred pounds, and the pearls and setting nearly as much more. But it is more valuable to me, Sibyl, from the fact that I believe it to be the missing link in your life. It probably belonged to some

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 30.)

Ш RL

0

30 DAYS FREE TRIAL

Total cost only to prove to you that this magnificent Royal has the Swetest, Purest, Loudest and Clearest tone—by to prove to you that this as large and handsome as 7 MONTES TIME the trust machines that Purchase to prove to you that this sell at $85,00—

Purchase

Plan

Bell at $25.00—

to prove to you that it has the strongest motor, the best reproducer and tone arm and the most ingenloud delees to estart, stop and control the music.

Shipped with a supply of holined double discretoring of your sejection, so you can eajoy the finest entertainments for one whole menth. Return the outst

8. H. DAVIS, 62-R-6101 May St., CHICAGO

INDOOR TOILET No Money Down — No Deposit No more outside back yard inconven-iences. No chambers to empty. No sewer or cesspool. Chemical process dissolves human waste in water. No trouble. Kills disease germs. Prevents flice, fith and bad odors of outhouse. A real neces-sity for old, young or invalids. Preserves health.

Preserves health.

Costs 1 Cent a Week
to Operate per Person.
Place in any room, hall or closet. No trouble to install, Guaranteed sanitary and odorless. Endorsed by thousands of users, doctors, sanitary experts, health boards, etc. AGENTE WANTED.

Kaw-near Cabinet Co., 402 Kaw-near Bidg., Kansas City, Me.

4 LACE CURTAINS SELL 8 BOXES ROSEBUD

at 25c per box. A valuable household article. Return the $2 to us and we will promptly send you a beautiful Notingham Lace Curtains, will fit largest windows, or choice from our big catalog of premiums. Rossabud is an easy seller. Write for it today. WE TRUST YOU.

This pretty band WEDDING RING given for five WEDDING RING names of your neighbors and ten cents to pay postage &c. Gem City Supply Co., QUINCY, ILL.

CRAY HAIR RESTORED TO ITS NATURAL COLOR experiment but an absolute success. Rhodes' Hair Rejuvenster will positively restore gray and faded hair to its original color, youthful beauty and rich lustre. It is a scalp and hair fobd that cures dandruff, and all scalp humors. Nourishes the roots of the hair and makes it grow luxuriantly. Harmless and undetectable. It is not a dye and will not stain the skin or linen. It cures itching and sore scalps. MAKES HAIR GROW

Let us convince you. Send 5 cents in postage for free trial bottle, book the Care of the Hair, etc. Large bottle $1.00, express prepaid. Addr the hair and scalp specialists. A. T. RHODES' & CO., LOWELL, MASS.

How Many Words Can You Make WHY WE DO IT

HOW Many Words Can You Make

Now here is a puzzle that is a prize winner. You do not have to sit up and work over a dictionary all night. Just

EZOCADEN

RMOPAYDO

NOTOEATIB

HERAASWA
ANGRILAH

LOYAPANO

other valuable prize too numerous to mention in this advertisement of the contest for each word you make. To the person having the most votes at the end of the contest we will give $25 in each; to the secondaring the most votes at the end of the contest we will give $25 in each; to the secondaring the most votes at the end of the contest you will receive, spoolincly fire, a copy of the little 2.50. In addition, or the fired by our little each word, as you have sent and will give enter and if you only an at the $2.50 prize you are that many words.

THE OFFER Prize Contest and will give each word you make. To the person having the most votes at the end of the contest we will give $25 in each; to the secondaring the most votes as the end of the contest word will give $25 in each; to the secondaring the most votes as the end of the contest you only an at the $2.50 prize you are that many words.

South of the prize is to be secondaring and prize at the end of the contest you only an at the $2.50 prize you are that many words.

South of the prize is to be secondaring the most votes as the end of the contest you will receive, spoolincly fire, a copy of the first paper published. If there should be a tile between two or more contestants for any of the prize, each tiefn genterating worth as little effort, and besides you will receive, spoolincly fire, a copy of the first genterating worth as little effort, and besides you will receive, spoolincly fire, a copy of the prize, each tiefn genterating worth as little effort, and besides you will receive, spoolincly fire, a copy of the prize contest and will give the prize tief for. Write today.

WORD EBMETORS.

902 EFFERM Briting In Indians. You do not be sure where the prize tief for. Write today.

902 Friend Building, Kansas City, Missouri.

WORD EDITOR.

446 is COMFORT'S Total to Date

The four December wheel chairs will bring Christ-mas cheer to the following shut-ins. The figures after their names indicate the number of subscriptions sent in by them or by their friends for them.

Howard C. Cannoy, Kingsport, Tenn., 170; Dixie
Marie Wallace, R. 2, Sebree, Ky., 127; Mrs. Emily
Dougherty, Dover, N. C., 120; Gertrude Robinette, Sales, La., 107.

Howard C. Cannoy, age six years, has never been able to walk because of spinal trouble which also makes his hands nearly useless. His mother, who has worked to get the subscriptions for his chair, writes, "He has to sit in his little chair all the time."

Miss E. Jane Terry Enjoying Her COMFORT Wheel

Dixie Marie Wallace, age II.—This poor little girl is crippled by rheumatism. For lack of a wheel chair or other adjustable chair she has sat for weary weeks and months in a common chair in one position which has resulted in her legs stiffening in a sitting posture so that now she is unable to straighten them.

Mrs. Emily Dougherty, age 73, a widow dependent on her children, has been a long-time sufferer from rheumatism which has crippled her knees so that she can not walk. The wheel chair will be a blessing to her and to her daughter who takes care of her.

Gertrude Robinette, age II, has been paralyzed in her lower limbs the past six years so that she is unable to walk, but as she can use her arms and hands she gets about some by crawling over the floor. She lives on a farm with her parents who are renters. Si will enjoy rolling herself about in her wheel chair. She

I know there are many calls on your generosity in war time, but don't forget or neglect the poor shut-Ins near home who are suffering for a wheel chair and need your help to get one through COMFORT'S Wheel-Chair Club. They are poor and have no other means of obtaining one.

Sincerely yours,

W. H. GANNETT, Publisher of COMFORT.

P. S. For the information of our many new subscribers let me explain that for each and every 200 one-year subscriptions to COMFORT, at 25 cents each, seel in either singly or in clabs by persons who direct that they are to be credited to COMFORT'S WHEEL-CHAIR CLUB instead of claiming the premiums to which they would be entitled, I give a FIRST-CLASS INVALID WHEEL CHAIR to some needy crippled Shut-in and pay the freight, too. It is a large and expensive premium for me to give for that number of subscribers, but I am always glad to do my part a little faster each month than you do yours. Any shut-in who has friends to help him get aubscriptions can obtain a wheel chair free. Write me for information.

COMFORT Wheel Chair a Great Help to Her

TIMSON, TEXAS, R. 4.

DEAR MR. GANNETT:
I received my wheel chair in good shape with freight all prepaid by you. I am so grateful to you and all those who helped me get it. It will be a great help to me to be out of bed and in the chair a part of the time. I enclose a picture of myself enjoying my wheel chair.

Truly your friend,

E. Jane Terry.

COMFORT'S Roll of Honor

The Roll of Honor comprises the names of those who have sent five or more subscriptions to credit of the Wheel-Chair Club during the month previous. Following each name is the number of subscriptions sent.

the Wheel-Chair Club during the month previous. Following each name is the number of subscriptions sent.

Mrs. T. J. Ragland, Texas, for Mr. T. J. Ragland, 60; Mrs. J. M. Baker, Ga., for Florine Weldon, 41; Mrs. P. M. Adams, Ga., for Alma Adams, 40; Lilla Lane, Texas, for Harlon Lane, 39; Mrs. W. P. Charlton, Texas, for Charlie Grey, 34; Alice Weldon, Ga., for Florine Weldon, 22; Mrs. David F. Tunnell, Colo., for Verha Mable Dutro, 31; Mrs. Pollie Spinks, La., for Gertrude Robinette, 27; Mrs. S. M. Hunnicutt, N. C., for Hazel Hunnicutt, 26; Chlora Profiitt, Ky., for Roscoe Profiitt, 24; Mrs. Wm. W. Pitman, Indiana, for Sarah E. Rowe, 21; Mrs. Mary Greene, Ala., for own wheel chair, 20; Lucye Somerset, Ala., for Mrs. Mary Greene, 20 j. T. Melton, Ky., for Dixie Marie Wallace, 19; Mrs. W. Z. Robinette, La., for Gertrude Robinette, 18; Mrs. W. A. Stirewalt, N. C., for Hazel Hunnicutt, 16; Susan Roberts, Missouri, for Clarence Clark, 15; Bessy Apelund, Wash., for Alvin Corbit, 15; Mrs. Walter Glover, N. C., for Mrs. Emily Daugherty, 14; Mrs. G. C. Neal, Pa., for Mark Clark, 14; Unia Carroll, Tenn., for Mrs. Laura Carroll, 13; Mrs. Mary Cline, Texas, for Harlon Lane, 12; Mrs. Minnie Reynolds, Indiana, for sarah E. Rowe, 10; Mrs. M. J. Via, Texas, for Lorena Campbell, 10; Mrs. Rhode Harper, La., for Gertrude Robinette, 9; Mrs. F. Whitehead, Mich., for Lyle B. Gibson, 8; Mrs. Fernitheed Mich., for Lyle B. Gibson, 8; Mrs. Jerry Jansen, Ill., for Carl G. Jansen, 7; Mrs. P. A. Clarke, Ky., for Howard Carr Cannop, 7; Lear Jack, Tenn., for Annie Jack, 6; Mrs. W. I. Paddock, Minn., for Mrs. N. T. McBride, 6; Mrs. M. C. Nelson, Ala., for Lovie Belle Taylor, 5; Kathren Bumpers, Ark., for Elma Williams, 5; Florence Felling, Indiana, for Dixie Marie Wallace, 5.

Four Wheel Chairs in December Children's Happy Hour

Alice's Snow White Cloud
Copyright, 1917, by W. H. Gamnett, Publisher, Inc.

LICE loved to play at the edge of the big ocean. You can see her standing, with her bathing suit on, ready to take a plunge. Sometimes she just wades into the water, and of course you don't have to have a bathing suit for that; all you have to do is take off your shoes and stockings and tuck your dress up a little.

Do you like Alice's middy suit and her rain cape?

Once she paddled out in her little boat and sat on a high rock to watch the frosted wave lets play. Oh, it was a pretty sight. She imagined they were fairies hurrying bome and she wondered where their home could be. All of a sudden she felt something tickling her bare toes and when she looked down found, to her horror, that if was the water which had risen up all around the rock on which she was sittling.

Alice shouted for help but no one seemed to bear her. The paddle was still in her hand but the canoe had drifted quite a distance away.

Oh, how the seconds dragged. How her heart thumped and how quickly the water did rise. Pretty soon the only dry spot for Alice to stand on was hardly as big as a pancake. The ocean was all around her. It was getting higher and higher. Before long it lapped over her toes, then crawled to her ankles and then up and up, chilling her legs and wetting the bottom of her dress.

The poor child. could stand it no longer. She was too scared to do a single thing but pray and was just about to give up and lie down in the big, cold water when something in her heart

Cut-Out Doll Directions

Paste the whole picture on smooth cardboard and color them with crayons, chalk or water and rub with hands from the center towards the edges to press out all wrinkles. Use boiled flour paste. When neatly pasted put it in a big book for at least one day or night to dry. Next cut out each figure, hat and suit with scissors right angles.

Combination Embroidery And Stamping Outfit

All New Popular Designs! Prem. No. 7534 Given For a Club of Four!

Tenn., for Annie Jack, 6; Mrs. W. I. Paddock, Minn., for Mrs. N. T. McBride, 6; Mrs. W. I. Paddock, Minn., for Lovie Belle Taylor, 5; Kathren Bumpers, Ark., for Elma Williams, 5; Florene Hicks, Ark., for Elma Williams, 5; Florence Felling, Indians, for Dixie Marie Wallace, 5.

Five hundred acres of land on Cottonwood Creek, California, known as the old Elmore place, were sold the other day under execution by the sheriff to D. D. Dodson for $2. Dodson was witnessing the sale and jokingly bid $2. The bid was not raised and the property was proclaimed sold. The original owners have one year in which to redeem, and no doubt will. The ranch is assessed at $3 per acre.

directions. In addition to the perforated patterns we also give you one large tray cloth, 8 x 17 inches, and six 5 1-2 inch doilies to match all stamped on real white Irish linen, one oblong pillow top 17 x 21 inches, hand tinted on ecru art cloth, one bone stiletto for punching holes for eyelet embroidery, one package of 10 embroidery needles and ten skeins of white embroidery mercerized cotton floss. We will be glad to send any woman or girl this complete outfit exactly as described free upon the terms of the following Club Offer. For four one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 centa each, we will send you this new Combination Embroidery and Stamping Outfit free by Parcel Post prepaid, Premium No. 7534. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Earn $27.50 A Day Easily

Work all or mare time. Or your own. Akron Lighting in homes, stores, churches Best and cheapest light kn mon gweeline. Absolutely SELL AKRON LIGHTING SYSTEMS lenterms. Pully quaranteed. Extensive service perspection, all tree, fit Press. With NUW for Catalog, agents perspection, all tree, AKROH GAS LAMP CO., 4t1 Gas Bidg., AKROH, ONIO Seld Direct at Wholesale Price In Open Territory.

WE BUY OLD FALSE TEETH

Ve now pay as high as $19.50 for false teeth sets (broker not). Send at once—we return cash same day we receiv ckage. We pay highest prices for old gold jewelry ld crowns, bridges, platinum, allver. (Cut out adv. U. S. SMELTING WORKS, 743 Maryland Ave.,

SIZE

EXTRA PREMIUM If you send us the money within one ek after receiving the goods, we ill send with the doll, 6 Gold plated prompt work. We take back all goods not sold. Write plainly. Address NATIONAL MFG. CO., Dept. A75, West Hebeken, N. J. MOST POPULAR DOLL MADE

A contemporary wants to know what's become of the old-fashioned man who used to say, "I says, says I." When last seen he was standing on a street corner in close conversation with the old-fashioned man who says, "Sezee to me, sezee."

—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Yard Long With Fast Color Red Border

These complete ready-to-use to wels seach a yard long, are one of the most sensible and satisfactory and thus most popular of the premiums we offer. They are of excellent quality crash each towel one yard long and ready to use. For kitcher, office, factory and shop use this is a durable, rough-and-ready towel; will wipe well, wear well and wash well. For disheard hands this the best; for many purposes about the house good crash toweling finds its use and the good house-keeper always has a supply. The men and boys will enjoy such towels as these. The pure whise color and red fine border make them very attractive, satisfaction guaranred line border make them very attractive. Satisfaction guaran-leed.

Club Offer: For three subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each we will send you one pair (2) of these ready-made Towels free by parcel post prepaid. Frems. No. 7193.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Inches

High

And

Full

Joint-

ed

Birthstone Rings Four Beautiful Ferns Tapestry Table Cover Fine Shaggy Teddy Bear

Genuine Gold Filled

Guaranteed For 5 Years

Given For A Club Of Four!

THE most popular lady's rings worn today are these beautiful birthstone rings. Not only is it considered lucky to wear one of them but they are now and always will be exceedingly stylish. We are able to illustrate only three of the rings but there are twelve in all—a different stone for each month of the year and of course you should wear the stone that is symbolical of the month you were born. The following is a list of the twelve rings, names of the stones, the month to which one applies and its symbol.

No. 7632. January, The Garnet, Symbol of Power. No. 7642. February, The Ameythyst, Symbol of Pure Love. No. 7652. March, The Bloodstone, Symbol of Courage. No. 7662. April, The Diamond, Symbol of

of Courage.
No. 7662. April, The Diamond, Symbol of Parliy.
No. 7672. May, The Emerald, Symbol of Immortality.
No. 7682. June, The Agate, Symbol of Health and Long Life.
No. 7692. July, The Ruby, Symbol of Charity.
No. 7702. August, The Sardouxx, Symbol of Happiness.
No. 7712. September, The Sapphire, Symbol of Coustancy.

of Constancy. No. 7722. October, The Opal, Symbol of Hope. No. 7732. November, The Topaz, Symbol of Friendship. No. 7742. December, The Turquoise, Symbol

No. 7742. Do

No. 7742. December, The Turquoise, Symbol of Prosperity.

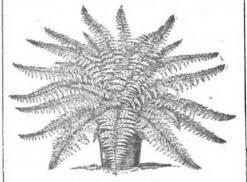

Each ring is guaranteed genuine 12-Karat gold filled which looks exactly like solid gold and will wear for years. In fact we absolutely guarantee each ring for at least five years. The rings themselves are perfectly plain, the stones are solitaires and perfect imitations of the real gems. The setting of each ring is the ever popular "Tiffany" style. As a Christmas, Birthday or all-theyear-round gift for wite, mother, sweetheart or sister nothing could be more appropriate and acceptable than one of these beautiful guaranteed rings set with the birthstone of the person to whom it is given. And not only the women and girls but men and boys as well are now wearing them.

Please do not class these rings with the cheap "electro-plated" rings that turn brassy after they have been worn a month or two. Remember that every one of them is guaranteed to be 12-Karat gold-filled and positively warranted for five years. If you want a handsome birthstone ring for yourself or some dear friend or relative you will make no mistake in taking advantage of this offer at once. When ordering be sure to specify the size and number of ring wanted. You can easily tell just what size ring you wear by following the directions at the right.

Club Offer. For four one-tions to COMFORT at 25c. each, we will send you one of these beautiful gold-filled birth-stone rings by parcel post prepaid. Please be sure to give size and number of ring wanted. Address

COMFORT, Augusta, Maine

12:3

PREMIUM NO. 6112

Given For Four Subscriptions

OF all indoor foliage plants, none give more lasting pleasure and satisfaction than these popular house ferns. They need but little care and live indefinitely, growing larger and more beautiful year by year. The collection offered you here comprise four of the largest, handsomest varieties ever grown for house culture. They are the Asparagus Plumosus or "Lace" fern, the Roosevelt, the Boston or "Fountain" fern and the Whitmani or "Ostrich plume" fern. They will thrive in any dwelling room near a window and require almost mo attention except a little sprinkling of water now and then. These ferus are guaranteed to be absolutely free from all injurious insects or diseases which destroy foliage plants of this type, and they will be packed carefully and mailed to you by Parcel Post so that you will be sure to receive them in just as good condition as though they were fresh from the greenhouse. We are able to illustrate only one variety, "The Roosevelt," but remember you get all four ferns free on this offer.

Club Offer. For four one-year subscriptions to send you by Parcel Post prepaid the above described collection of four beautiful ferns each one of them a strong, healthy, well rooted plant ready to pot and guaranteed to grow and develop into a fine specimen beauty. Premium No. 6112.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Gent's Watch and Chain

For A Club Of Eight!

A WATCH that any man or boy may feel proud to carry, and an excellent time & keeper.

It has a handsome polished nickel ease; the movement is American made, stem wind and stem set, the dial is pure white with large plain easily read figures. We have already given away thousands of these watches and they never fall to please and satisfy. Now is the time for you to secure one of these guaranteed watches before the price of them goes up still further as it is pretty sure to do in the near future. We will send you this watch exactly as described, together with a chain, if you will accept the following Club Offer. For a club of only eight one-year sub-accept the following

Club Offer. For a club of only eight one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you this guaranteed watch, also a handsome chain free by Parcel Post, prepaid. Premium No.
7308. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Nearly One Yard Square

The Best

Playmate

A Boy

or Girl

Ever

Had

Given For A Club of Four

THIS beautiful, fringed Tapestry Table Cover is nearly one yard square which is a size large enough for any stand or small table and is very elaborately made up in handsome colors on an interwoven background which is of a color that harmonizes with the fringe which extends entirely around the cover. Add one or more of these beautiful colored covers to the furnishings of any room and it will enliven and cheer up the whole atmosphere of your home. They are just as durable as they are handsome and taken altogether are something any woman should be pleased to own and display. We will send you this Table Cover, exactly as described, if you will accept the following Club Offer. For four one-year subscriptions to you this Tapestry Table Cover free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 7404.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Lions. Tigers, Bears and all kinds of Wild Animals. Home Neenes. Domestic Pets and Happy Childhood Days. Here is something as good as a circus for the children the year roundanindestructible, new style Stereoscope made of all metal with powerful, magnifying lean, and with it we give you free a big collection of 100 Views of home scenes, domestic pets, farm scenes, all kinds of trained and wild amimals, hunting scenes, views from the Arctic and tropleal countries, and happy childhood scenes—the biggest and finest assortment of the most delightful and entertaining stereoscopic views for children ever gotten out. Boys and girls need not be obliged to hunt for something to occupy their active minds indoors with one of these Scopes at hand because it will give them answer-ending, joyful entertainment keeping them amused, instructed and out of mischief. Aside from the pleasure they will derive from the flity beautiful scenes of home life, the flity exciting animal views will furnish them with a regular circus, the Ilons, tigers, bears, buffalo, and all kinds of wild and savage animals standing out real and life-like when looked at through this Scope. Any boy or girl would be delighted to have one of these wonderful Stereoscopes together with the big collection of 100 entertaining and exciting Views that come with it and knowing this we have purchased a large quantity of them direct from the factory and because we bought so many we got them at a price low enough to enable us to give them away on the terms of the following Club Offer. For four one-year subscriptions to Club Offer. COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you this Stereoscope with 100 Views free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 6462.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Pair Of Turkish Towels

Club Offer. For four one-year subscriptions to COMPORT at 25 cents each, we will send you this Teddy Bear free by Parcel Post prepaid.

Premium No. 7514.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

FOR A CLUB OF FOUR!

EVERY little boy and girl wants a Teddy Bear and here is an opportunity for every father or mother who reads COMFORT to get one without expense. "Teddy" looks exactly as you see him in the picture above. He is a shaggy fellow, 10 inches tall, made of brown plush paws lined with felt, carefully stitched and finished and his head, arms and legs are jointed in such a manner that you can place him in almost any position. He will stand up, sit up, stand on his head, go on all four feet, in fact, you can make him assume all kinds of positions that are so comical and lifelike that it makes the children scream with delight just to look at him. "Teddy" is so well made that no matter how roughly he is handled he cannot become broken and with ordinary care should last for years. We will send you "Teddy" free if you will accept the following special

Subscriptions

AFTER bathing there is nothing quite as fine as a good rub down with a Turkish towel, in fact it is the best towel for all purposes, whether for the bathor greaterous or greateroom or for everyday family use in the lavatory. They absorb the water much more readily than other towels and the thick, he avy fleece-like surface imparts to the body a delightful feeling of warmth and well-being, exhibited as they will not hurt the tender skin. The towels we offer here are genuise Turkish towels—not the imitation kind—and are 17 inches wide and 36 inches long which is a good convenient size for all-round family use. They are of good weight, well made and finished. We will make you a present of one pair of these fine Turkish towels upon the terms of the following special

Club Offer. For a club of three one-year subtractions of the convenient size for all-round family use. They are of good weight, well made and finished. We will make you a present of one pair of these fine Turkish towels upon the terms of the following special Club Offer. For a club of three one-year subtractions of the pair of these fine Turkish towels ree by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 7323.

Address COMFORT, Augusta. Maine.

n tell exactly what size ring you w Put a stiff piece of paper around to the paper off so that when dri-t exactly meet. Then lay the pa ne O and the other end will indi-tructions your ring will be a perfect

12 13

THERE has been no Premium offer in years that has been so pleasing to our friends as this new Combb and Brush Set. The great beauty of this latest style dark green or Malachite finish on the back of brush with the Silverine shield for engraving initial or monogram has made this set one of the best as a present for birthday, wedding or any special occasion. The brush is mine inches long over 2 1-2 inches wide with splendid firm white bristles well fastened and should last for years. The Comb is black, seven inches long and one & one half inches wide with coarse and fine teeth.

Club Offer: For four one-year subscriptions to Comport at 25 cents each, we will send this Set Free by parcel post prepaid. Premium No. 7763. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine,

SILK MUSLIN SCARF

Premium Soft Warm Bed Blankets

Sent Prepaid For A Club Of Ten

Sent Prepaid For A Club Of Ten

THIS IS an offer which no good housewife can afford to overcomfortable bed blankets as you may need without a cent of expense. These fine double blankets are six feet in length extremely well made and finely finished. The color is white or gray with border. Please notice that they are large enough for any standard size bed being of sufficient length to come up well on the pillo and wide enough so that they may be snugly tucked in at the sides. This is in reality one of the best bargains in a premium we have ever offered due to the fact that we buy these blankets in large quantities direct from the mill at a specially low price and therefore are enabled to offer them for a very small club of subscriptions. When you think of this big warm blanket on your bed or lying on a closet shelf ready for use whan wanted, we believe that you will want to start a club at once for the sake of securing one or more of them free of all cost to you. We will gladly send you one or more of these splendid blankets upon the terms of the following

Club Offer. For a club of only ten one-year subscriptions to Comport at 25 cents each, we will send you one of these fine double bed blankets free by Parcel Post prepaid. Prem. No. 73219.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

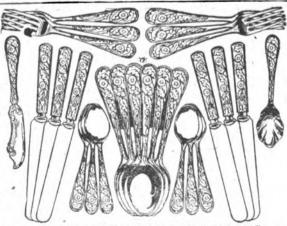

26-Piece Daisy

A dainty shoulder throw and head covering for Summer, or for evening wear the year round. For trimming Summer Hats there is nothing so practical or so easily and attractively arranged. Each Scarf is two yards long and 24 inches wide, with deep hemstitched edge, and we have them in white biack, light blue and light pink.

For every-day use such a scarf is indispensable and for car or boat riding, pleasure or otherwise one or more of these scarfs will be found useful. Being ready to wear, the saving of time in hemstitching is worth someth in g to every woman, and the busy Mothers will find them so convenient for a quick method of trimming the children's hats. When ordering be sure to me ntion color wanted.

Club Offer. For four one-year of Graks, 6 Teaspoons, Sugar Shell and Butter. such a scarf is indispensable and for car or boat riding, pleasure or otherwise one or more of these scarfs will be found useful. Being ready to wear, the saving of time in hemstitching is worth something to every woman, and the busy Mothers will find them so convenient for a quick method of trimming the children's hats. When ordering be sure to mention color wanted.

Club Offer. For four one-year subscriptions to Comport one-year subscriptions to Comport at 25 cents each, we will suffer at 25 cents each, we will seed the way through and will not show signs of wear, even after years of constant there are 26 pieces in this set—6 Knives, 6 Forks, 6 Teaspoons, 6 Table-pseudom, Sugar Shell and Butter Knife. Each piece is full regulation at 25 cents each, we will seed you here is plated on a white metal base therefore each and every piece is the same color all the way through and will not show signs of wear, even after years of constant there are 26 pieces in this set—6 Knives, 6 Forks, 6 Teaspoons, 6 Table-pseudom, Sugar Shell and Butter Knife. Each piece is full regulation at 25 cents each, we will seed you here is plated on a white metal base that was not be sufficient to the same color all the way through and will not show signs of wear, even after years of constant there are 26 pieces in this set—6 Knives, 6 Forks, 6 Teaspoons, 6 Table-pseudom, Sugar Shell and Butter Knife. Each piece is full regulation at 25 cents each, we will she be suitful Baisy design which is now so popular and the blows of the teaspoons and tablespoons are perfectly plain and bright polished.

WARRANTED FOR FIVE YEARS

It is only because we buy this set in large quantities direct from the factory that we are able to secure it at a price that enables us to offer it as a premium for so few subscriptions. It is by far the greatest value we have ever offered, in fact we are so sure that it will pleas and satisfy all who accept this offer we are going to guarantee every Set sent out for a period of five years. We will send this beautiful 25-Piece Daisy Set exactly as illustrated and described to any address upon the terms of the following special

Club Offer. For a club of ten one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you this 26-Piece Daisy Table Set Free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 73010.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Crying Infant Doll

Premium No 7284

this offer should take advantage of it at once. We will send you this new infant doll exactly as described upon the terms of the following Club Offer: tons to Comporr at 25c. each we will send you this rying infant doll free by parcel post prepaid. Premium No. 7284.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Books!

churchyardBetrothal

Mainta Desposite Oution LIS CUETTE

ABREMEROF HEARTS

KING SOLOHONS

Between Good and Evil

CHARLOTTE M.STAKE

BERTHA M. CLAY

Lost In The

MY COULDIE

Car

MOVE

GURSTHUTE

Books!

So many inquiries are received from COMFORT subscribers concerning the health of the family that this column will be devoted to answering them. The remedies and advice here given are intended only for simple cases; serious cases should be addressed to physicians, not to us.

Address The Family Doctor, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

NOTICE.—As the privileges of this and all other depart ments of COMPORT are for subscribers only, no attention will be given any inquiry which does not bear the writer's correct name and address. Initials only, or a fictitious name, if requested, will appear in the published answer, but the inquiry must invariably be signed by the writer's Annie Shaw, Boyd, Wis.—Your trouble is akin to writer's cramp, and probably of occupational origin. The ulnar nerve or some branch of this nerve is at fault, and needs the stimulation that can be obtained by the use of electricity or cold douches to the spine. If you have no other means of using the douche, employ a sponge soaked in cold water, and let the cold from the sponge run down the spine. Do this just before you retire. Massage also of the arm and fingers at night would be beneficial. There are also remedies that might be used to advantage, but these must be prescribed by your local doctor.

Mrs. H. H. C. Osawatomie, Kan.—The growth men-

Mrs. H. H. C., Osawatomie, Kan.—The growth mentioned is probably congenital, and can be removed in several ways. The best way to remove it, or similar small pigmented growths, is by the use of the electric cautery. This means will not scar the face and will prove very effectual. The next best way is the use of the "snow" as mentioned in your letter, and a remedy recommended in COMFORT. The growth is probably a small angioma, or bloody growth. It should be removed as soon as you can afford to have it done. The local physician can remove it all right.

Mrs. E. B. R., Cadaldo, Idaho,—Carbon Dioxide

Mrs. E. B. R., Cadaldo, Idaho.—Carbon Dioxide Snow cannot be purchased in any form by the in-dividual.—The local doctor can get the necessary ap-paratus with literature to guide him in the application, and apply the same effectually to your face.

Mrs. I. L., Seattle, Wash.—You may have diabetes. You should consult your local physician at once, and have an examination of the urine. The itching of the piles can be relieved by the use of compound ointment of galls, applied on retiring.

Mrs. L. M. B., Waterville, Maine,—Have both of our children operated on at once for enlarged tonsils nd adenoids, so-called. This, in the majority of cases, seults in a cure and also prevents further trouble, a affection of the ears, etc.

Mrs. M. B., Havre deGrace, Md.—You have a neuritis of the nerves of the arm, probably of rheumatic origin. Use cold spinal douches as recommended in COMPORT and many times described in its columns. Drink plenty of water to flush the kidneys, and get some good anti-rheumatic remedy from your local doctor. Avoid pastries of all kinds, and live principally that we getable diet.

oh a vegetable diet.

Ida H., Evant, Texas.—Red nose is due to some diatetic error, of the use of stimulants in excess. It is known medically as acne rosacea. It is extremely chronic, and must have a prolonged diatetic and, medicinal treatment. The diet should consist largely of vegetables, avoiding meat and pastries of all kinds. Frequent hot baths, exercise in the open and a general healthful regime is indicated, but all may fail. The condition is essentially chronic and not easily cured.

Mrs. J. H. M., Farmingdale, N. J.—You are probably suffering with the so-called "change of life." Would advise waiting a reasonable time and see if your symptoms do not pass away or become better. You need not fear, any tumor or growth, as your symptoms don't point that way.

R. G., News Ferry, Va.—Cases have been re-ed where a sudden fright has so altered the her's milk as to poison the baby. How authentic are is questionable.

120 The Girl Who Won.

416 Golden Fetters.

127 A Great Mistake.

255 A Happy Conquest.

401 A Heart Unclaimed.

358 He Dared to Love.

403 Her Cup of Sorrow.

108 Her First Love.

329 Her Heart's Surrender.

354 Her Love and His.

381 Her One Ambition.

423 Her One Mistake.

410 Her Only Choice.

450 Her Sad Blessing.

495 Her Sin of Silence.

296 Her Struggle With Love.

124 The Hidden Terror.

383 His Fault or Hers?

379 His Sweetheart's Prom-Mrs. B. S., Guthrie Center, Ia.—Circumcision, the removal of the tonsils and adenoids, and avoidance of late hearty dinners or meals will be all that you can do in your son's case. He will, as suggested, outgrow the condition in later years. All reflex conditions, however, should be attended to. 379 His Sweetheart's Promise.
112 His Wedded Wife.
294 The Hour of Temptation.
385 In a Siren's Web.
321 In Love's Bondage.
501 In Spite of Envy.
465 It Was Not To Be.
461 "I Will Be True."
123 Lady Muriel's Secret.
151 Lady Ona's Sin.
414 Led by Destiny.
490 The Life That Was Marred.
185 Lost for Love.

Mrs. C. L. C., Wickham, W. Va.—Ovarian extract might do you good. Undoubtedly you are suffering from a nervousness allied to "change of life." You better consult your family doctor and have him prescribe some form of ovarian extract. There are several under various names, and all good.

Mrs. B. J. H., Forreston, Texas.—Write to the Surgeon General's office for a monograph on pellagra, its symptoms and treatment. This will give you all the symptoms, causes and the information you desire.

X. Y. Z., Northwood, N. Dak.—It is impossible to diagnose your condition without all the facts and a personal interview. Why not visit some medical center such as the one in Minnesota conducted by the Mayo Bros.? The wrist condition is a growth connected with the tendon, and is due to strain of some kind.

E. C. G., Bronx, New York.—The condition is evidently of eczematous origin. Sulphate of quinine capsules, five grains each, and to local application of Lassar's Paste might cure you.

Miss B. B., Fort Wayne, Ind.—Bone and lung tu-berculosis can obtain in the same person. Would not advise marrying a man in such a condition, as his condition might be not only inherited, but would be also risky to you as the wife. The tendency to tuber-culosis is hereditary. The serum treatment, in our judgment is of no value and would not alter the case in any way.

R. A. C., Highland, Wis.—Would advise immediate and constant treatment by some good ear specialist. Rearing and noises in the ear always tend to increase and ultimately lead to loss of hearing.

Mrs. E. W., Omaha, Neb.—A one per cent. solution of resorcin in grain alcohol, diluted one half with water, will help you. Apply a small quantity two or three times a week to the scalp.

F. P. W., Oklahoma.—Your only way of relief is to consult a good surgeon and perhaps have the left kidney replaced by operation, if dislocated.

720 The Price of a Kiss. 820 The Pride of My Heart. 525 Sweet Kitty Clover. 543 The Veiled Bride. 335 We Parted at the Altar. Troubled.—You undoubtedly have ovarian trouble, and should have the care of a competent surgeon. The cause of the sterility is no doubt mechanical, which can also be relieved by a small operation.

Folding DOUBLE X-RAY.

can apparently see thru cloth or wood, See bones in the body, makes the filesh look transparent. Lots of fun. 10 ets by mail. The ARDEE Co. Box 216 Stamford Conn.

Make sure of neck in reckles, LOOK YOUR BEST. Make sure of smooth white arms, face and neck in spite of sallowness, blotches, freckles, blackheads etc. If you want to be charming and attractive—Don't pay 50c but send 10c at once for sealed Package, which will transform your appearance instantly. Warranted.TOILET COMPOUND CO., Box 1927A, Beston, Mass.

Give Number And Author's Name When Ordering

Bertha M. Clay

424 At War With Fate. 454 A Bartered Birthright. 477 The Best She Could Give.

Beyond Atonement. Bitter Reckoning.

The Broken Trust. Condemned Unheard.

488 A Breaker of Hearts.

349 A Daughter of Eve. 481 Did He Love Her?

481 Did He Love Her?
300 Enchained by Passion.
430 The Eyes of Jealousy.
497 The Fatal Lure.
448 Fate and the Girl.
310 For Better, for Worse.
126 The Gambler's Wife.
175 The Girl of His Heart.
420 The Girl Who Won.
416 Golden Fetters.

379 His Sweetheart's Prom-

165 Lost for Love

Love Against Hate.
Love Beyond Price.
Loved and Lost.
A Love Despised.
Love Finds a Way.
Love Grown Cold.

Laura Jean Libbey

138 A Fatal Wooing. 516 Florabel's Lover. 704 HadShe Loved Him Less! 685 India's Punishment. 566 In Love's Springtime.

317 Ione.
534 Lotta the Cloak Model.
839 The Lovely Constance.
828 Love's Young Dream.
507 A Mad Betrothal.
326 Parted by Fate.
551 Pity—Not Love.

Emma Garrison Jones

890 Against Love's Rules. 868 All Lost But Love. 572 Amid Scarlet Roses.

147

502 All for Love's Sake.

Nicholas Carter

468 Accident or Murder. 344 Against Desperate Odds. 508 An Amazing Scoundrel. 798 The Angel of Death. 260 At the Knife's Point.

757 Bandits of the Air. 494 The Brotherhood of Death.

Death.
788 The Buried Secret.
788 By an Unseen Hand.
786 A Call in the Night.
637 A Carnival of Crime.
936 The Case of Many Clues.
701 A Chase for Millions.

701 A Chase in the Dark.
238 The Claws of the Tiger.
804 The Clutch of Dread.
817 Cornered at Last.
785 The Crime of a Century.
498 A Cry for Help.
777 The Dead Accomplice.
496 The Demons of the Night.
726 The Devil's Son.

665 The Disappearing Prin-

726 The Devil's Son.
665 The Disappearing Princess.
478 Done in the Dark.
746 The Double Mystery.
123 The Elevated Railroad Mystery.
722 The Face in the Shadow.
270 The Fatal Prescription.
570 A Bight With a Fiend.
721 For a Madman's Millions.
544 From Peril to Peril.
550 The Girl in the Case.
296 The Guilty Governor.
614 Harrison Keith and the Phantom Heiress.
737 The House of Doom.
534 In Death's Grip.
778 In the Nick of Time.
540 Into Nick Carter's Web.
780 The Jeweled Mnmmy.
492 A Legacy of Hate.
199 The Man at the Window.
472 The Man at the Window.
472 The Man Who was Cursed.
751 A Master Oriminal.
288 A Masterpiece of Crime.
787 The Midnight Message.
790 A Moving-Picture Mystery.
783 The Mysterious Cavern.

tery.
783 The Mysterious Cavern.

Geraldine Fleming

Geraldine Flaming
787 At Her Father's Bidding.
788 The Battle of Hearts.
789 The Curse of Beauty.
804 A Dreadful Legacy.
781 Falsely Accused.
747 For a Filtr's Love.
656 Hearts of Stone.
691 Her Dearest Love.
759 Her Fatal Gift.
755 Her Priceless Love.
858 His Love for Her.
611 Is Love Worth While?
7587 Katherine's Two Suitors.
622 Love at the Loom.

623 Love at the Loom.

729 Loved at Last.

832 A Love Rejected—A Love

Won.

719 Love's Earnest Prayer.

306 Love's Golden Rule.

ove's Golden 559 The Love That Was Cursed. 789 A Love Worth Winning.

680 Master of Her Fate. 604 Only a Working Girl. 643 The Power of Love. 6770 A Queen of Song. 194 A Sinless Crime. 724 A Sister's Sacrifice. 708 Sold for Gold. 883 The Spell She Wove. 708 Sold for Gold. 863 The Spell She Wove, 184 Sunlight and Gloom. 295 A Terrible Secret and Countess Isabel.

567 Trixie's Honor.
797 What Love Made Her.
249 What Love Will Do.
811 When Dark Clouds Gather 842 When Hearts Beat True. 958 When Love Is Given.

Charlotte M. Stanley

Charlotte M. Stanley
962 As Light as Air.
799 Between Good and Evil.
823 Between Love and Conscience.
855 Could He Have Known!
414 Ethel's Secret.
723 For Another's Fault.
845 For Her Husband's Love.
752 A Golden Mask.
722 A Golden Mask.
723 A Golden Mask.
724 Her Fateful Choice.
664 His Unbounded Faith.
706 In Love's Paradise.
756 Leola's Heart.
606 Mabel's Sacrifice.
834 Sylvia, The Forsaken.
835 When the Heart Hungers.

gers.

Address COMFORT, Book Dept. Augusta, Maine. Oliver Optic

Alitrid Posts

Books!

Matter To Last You All The Year. Stories Of Love And Romance-Detective Stories-Adventure Stories-Stories For Boys And Stories For Girls-

Every Inch

634 Always in Luck.
627 Among the Missing.
387 Brave Old Salt.
528 Building Himself Up.
589 The Cruise of the

"Dandy."

174 Haste and Waste.
174 Haste and Waste.
175 Honest Kit Dunstable.
179 Hope and Have.
180 Little by Little.
180 Little by Little.
180 Little by Little.
180 Lynn, Hast's Hassian.

528 Lyon Hart's Heroism. 559 Making a Man of Him-self. 615 The Prisoners of the Cave.

546 The Prisoners Of the Cave.

546 The Professor's Son.

333 Rich and Humble.

540 Royal Tarr's Pluck.

375 The Sailor Boy.

552 Striving for His Own.

595 Three Young Silver Kings.

Kings.
315 Watch and Wait.
311 Work and Win.
382 The Yankee Middy.
603 The Young Hermit.
583 The Young Pilot.

Mrs. Georgie Sheldon

Mrs. Georgie Shelden

648 Gertrude Elliott's Crucible.

511 The "Golden Key."

520 Heatherford Fortune.
Sequel to "The Magic Cameo."

512 Heritage of Love. Sequel to a "Golden Key."

730 John Hungerford's Redemption.

519 Magic Cameo.

676 My Lady Beth.

554 Step by Step.

539 Betsey's Transformation.

277 Brownie's Triumph.

551 The Churchyard Betrothal.

188 Dorothy Arnold's Escape.

440 Dorothy's Jewels.

476 Earle Wayne's Nobility.

407 Esther, the Fright.

111 Faithful Shirley.

222 The Forsaken Bride.

111 Faithful Shirley.
282 The Forsaken Bride.
199 Geoffrey's Victory.
372 A Girl in a Thousand.
122 Grazia's Mistake.
451 Helen's Victory.
389 His Heart's Queen.
244 A Hoiden's Conquest.
222 The Lily of Mordaunt.
255 The Little Marplot.
299 Little Miss Whirlwind.
219 Lost: A Pearle.
391 Marguerite's Heritage.
166 The Masked Bridal.
133 Max.
382 Mons.

382 Mona.

291 The Mysterious Wedding Ring.
 155 Nameless Dell.

233 Nora. 288 Silby's Influence. 362 Stella Rosevelt.

362 Stella Rosevelt.
373 A Thorne Among Roses.
415 Trixy.
177 A True Aristocrat.
311 Wedded by Fate.
266 The Wellfiet Mystery.
210 Wild Oats.
433 Winifred's Sacrifice.

Adelaide Fox Robinson 927 After She Promised. 918 All in Vain.

918 All in Vain.
787 A Bartered Soul.
786 The Fatal Rose.
949 Forever Lost.
907 Hope's Winding Path.
937 If She Had Dared!
787 Life's Richest Jewel.
7856 Loved in Vain.
786 Love Given in Vain.
780 Love's Harvest.
789 Love's Harvest.
789 Through the Shadows.
780 When Fate Decrees.

Donald Grayson

673 Afloat in the Clouds.
711 Bob Steele's Last Flight.
693 Bob Steele's Motor Boat.
705 Bob Steele's New Aeroplane.
699 Bob Steele's Reverse.
667 From Auto to Airship.
687 In Strange Waters.
655 The Motor-coole Box

667 From Auto to Airship. 687 In Strange Waters. 655 The Motor-cycle Boys. 661 On High Gear. 679 A Submarine Cruise.

Mrs. Mary J. Holmes

330 Aikenside.
946 Beauty that Faded.
972 The Cromptons.
932 Darkness and Daylight. 332 Darkness and Daylight.
316 Edith Lyle's Secret.
352 Family Pride. Vol. I.
353 Family Pride. Vol. II.
925 Forrest House.
945 Gretchen.
926 He Loved Her Once.
973 Her Husband Was a Scamp.

Scamp. 325 The Leighton Homestead. 489 Lucy Harding. 954 Marguerite, 349 Marion Gray.

349 Marion Gray.
936 Mightier than Pride.
322 Mildred; or, The Child of Adoption.
310 Millbank.
334 Miss McDonald.
934 Paul Ralston's First Love.
935 Queenie Heatherton.
336 Rose Mather.
939 She Loved Another.
938 The Tracy Diamonds.
955 When Love Spurs Onward. 965 Where Love's Shadows Lie Deep.

Mrs. E. D. E. N. Southworth

133 Nearest and Dearest.
136 Only a Girl's Heart.
137 Gertrude's Sacrifice.
138 The Rejected Bride.
140 Gertrude Haddon.
"Gertrude Haddon."
141 Reunited, Sequel to
"Gertrude Haddon."

142 Em. 143 Em's Husband. 144 An Unloved Wife.

143 Em's Husband.
144 An Unloved Wife.
145 Lilith.
146 The Bride's Ordeal.
147 Her Love or Her Life.
149 The Struggle of a Soul.
150 The Trail of the Serpent.
151 A Tortured Heart. Sequel to "The Trail of the Serpent."
152 The Test of Love. Sequel to "Gloria.
154 David Linsay. Sequel to "Gloria."
155 Why Did He Wed Her?
156 For Whose Sake? Sequel to "Why Did He Wed Her?"
157 À Skeleton in the Closet.
158 Brandon Coyle's Wife. Sequel to "A Skeleton in the Closet."
159 A Deed Withouta Name.
161 To His Fate.
162 For Woman's Love.
163 Unrequited Love.
163 Unrequited Love.
164 The Mysterious Marriage.
169 Her Mother's Secret.
170 Love's Bitterest Cup.
172 Sweet Love's Atonement. 170 Love's Bitterest Cup. 172 Sweet Love's Atonement.

Bracebridge Hemyng

775 Bob Fairplay Adrift.
781 Bob Fairplay at Sea.
789 The Boys of St. Aldates.
347 Jack Harkaway A float and Ashore.
387 Jack Harkaway After Schooldays.
387 Jack Harkaway Among the Indians.
387 Jack Harkaway Among the Pirates.
789 Jack Harkaway and the Sacred Serpent.
378 Jack Harkaway in New York.
713 Jack Harkaway in New York.
713 Jack Harkaway in the Black Hills.
723 Jack Harkaway in the Toils.
743 Jack Harkaway in the Toils.
743 Jack Harkaway Out
West.
763 Jack Harkaway Cadet Days.
327 Jack Harkaway's Cadet

Days.

327 Jack Harkaway's
Friends.

317 Jack Harkaway's School-

days.
733 Jack Harkaway's Secret of Wealth.
799 Rob Rollalong in the Wilds.
791 Rob Rollalong, Sailor.

Charles Garvice

Give Number And Author's

Name When Ordering

Charles Garvice

599 At Love's Cost.
599 By Devious Ways.
685 A Coronet of Shame.
683 Creatures of Destiny.
680 Diana's Destiny.
741 The Fatal Ruby.
721 A Girl from the South.
640 A Girl of Spirit.
818 The Girl Who Was True.
679 Gold in the Gutter.
573 Heart for Heart.
749 The Heart of a Maid.
591 A Heritage of Hate.
557 In Cupid's Chains.
700 In Wolf's Clothing.
826 The Irony of Love.
645 A Jest of Fate.
655 Just a Girl.
625 Kyra's Fate.
936 Led by Love.
655 Linked by Fate.
712 Love and a Lie.
290 Love's Dilemma.
774 Love in a Snare.
605 Love, The Tyrant.
615 Maida.
620 Marcia Drayton.
778 Miss Estcourt; or, Olive.

Edward C. Taylor

200 Across the Prairie.
504 Among the Cattlemen.
510 Black Mountain Ranch.
843 The Broncho Boys' Big Contract.
837 The Broncho Boys in Montana.
807 The Broncho Boys
Mettle.
831 The Broncho Boys' Motor Car.

113 The Broncho Boys on Business. 796 The Broncho Boys' Prize Herd. 789 The Broncho Boys' Stow-

783 The Broncho Boys' Tenderfoot. 819 The Broncho Boys'

Treasure Cave.

803 The Broncho Boys' Trouble.

825 The Broncho Boys' Vanishing Island. 777 The Broncho Boys' Wild Horse. 591 Captain Nemo's Chal-selenge.

529 Fighting the Rustlers.

528 The Last of the Herd.
522 Lost in the Desert.
567 On a Mountain Trail.
583 On Prairie Trails.
584 Out for Big Game.
544 The Rival Miners.
672 Sunken Treasure.
488 Ted Strong Cowbox

498 Ted Strong, Cowboy. 660 Ted Strong in Colorado. 751 Ted Strong, Manager. 771 Ted Strong's Broncho

Boys. 625 Ted Strong's Cattle

600 Ted Strong's Close Call. 654 Ted Strong's Crooked

Trail.
789 Ted Strong's Diamond
Mine.
785 Ted Strong's Gold Mine.
666 Ted Strong's Justice.
745 Ted Strong's Manful

757 Ted Strong's Man Hunt. 618 Ted Strong's Nebraska

Hanch.
609 Ted Strong's Passport.
678 Ted Strong's Search.
631 Ted Strong's Stampede.
642 Ted Strong's Surprise.
516 With Rifle and Lasso. 648 The Young Wolf Hun-

Maxwell Stevens

488 Jack Lightfoot's Blind.
477 Jack Lightfoot's Blind.
444 Jack Lightfoot's Cance Trip.
483 Jack Lightfoot's Crack
Nine.
463 Jack Lightfoot's Decision.
469 Jack Lightfoot's Gum
Club.
490 Jack Lightfoot's Head
Work.
456 Jack Lightfoot's Hoodoo.

456 Jack Lightfoot's Hoodoo. 450 Jack Lightfoot's Iron

Arm.
426 Jack Lightfoot's Rival.
496 Jack Lightfoot's Wisdom.
399 Jack Lightfoot, The Ath-

420 Jack Lightfoot Trapped.

This is positively the most beautiful wrist watch you have ever seen. It is just the size of a half dollar. The case is made of genuine Mother of Pearl, giving off beautiful variations of color. Much prettier than gold, as it will never wear out or tarnish. Good Swiss movement; stem wind and stem set. Soft leather adjustable wristband. SEND NO MONEY I want to give one lady or these beautiful watches FREE for just a little easy work, which you can do in an hour or two. Write today. Address which you can do in an hour or two. Write today. Address V. A. KEMPER, 330 Friend Building, Kansas City, Mo.

Genuine PREMO Camera

nis is the real daylight loading Film Pack amera made by the famous Eastman odak Co. Strong, Durable and Practical, utomatic shutter for time exposure and utomatic shutter for time exposure and to so simple anyone can use it. Com-id is so simple anyone can use it. Comishould you be without a camera when you can own a genuine Eastman Cartridge Fremo and it won't cost you one cent? We give these cameras free for selling 20 packages of Bingo Perfumed Ironing Wax at 10c ca. Send today for the Ironing wax woman will be glad obuy. Eend no money woman will be glad obuy. Eend no money the property of th

You Will Laugh, You Will You Will Scream at

The Blunders of A Bashful Man"

Premium No. 8572

Premium No. 8572

You need this great book! You cannot do without it! For chasing away melancholia, dissipating gloom and banishing trouble you will find it better than all the doctors' "dope" in the world and it has the circus and vaudeville beaten a mile. This great story is the world's champion framy book and you must read it because it laughter-compelling mirth and irresistible humor rejuvenates your whole body. In this screamingly funny story you follow with rapt attention-and hilarious delight the mishaps, mortifications, confusions and agonizing mental and physical distresses of a self-conscious, hypersensitive, appallingly bashful young man who stumbles on through a succession of astounding accidents and ludicrous predicaments that will convulse you with cyclonic laughter causing you to hold both sides for fear of exploding from an excess of uproarious merriment. As a fun maker, rib tickier and laugh-provoker this great story "The Blunders of a Bashful Man" beats all records and you will miss the treat of your life if you don't get it and read it at once.

Club Offer For two one-year subscriptions to COMPORT at 25 cents each we Club Offer For two one-year subscriptions will send you a copy of "The Blunders of a Bashful Man" free and postpaid. Premium No. 8572. will send you a copy of "The Blunders of a Bashful Man free and postpaid. Premium No. 8572. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Silk Remnants

11.7

Premium No. 55G1

All Sizes, Shapes and Colors-A Large Package Sent You For One Subscription

Nou For One Subscription

REMNANTS of real silk, in all shapes, sizes and colors. They are carefully trimmed and just what you need for making up benutiful quilts, tidies, pillow tops and all kinds of "craxy patchwork." We will send you a package containing more than one hundred of these beautiful silk pieces and 5 skeins embroidery cotton in different bright colors. If you order at once we will also send you, in addition to everything else an Instruction Book with eight full-page illustrations showing how to ornament seams of crazy patchwork and other work where fancy stitches are used. It tells you how to put pieces of patchwork together to get the best effect, how to cover up seams with fancy stitches, how to join the edges, etc. This book illustrates over one hundred and fifty of these besides containing full and explicit directions for working the Outline and Kensington Stitch, Arrasene and Chemille Embroidery, ribbon work, plush or tufted stitch, also directions for Kensington-painting. Remember you get one nice lot of these Silk Remnants (over 100 pieces), 5 skeins Embroidery Cotton and an Instruction Book, as above described, all sent to you free by Parcel Post prepaid if you will accept the following Free Offer For one one-year subscription (not your own) to COMFORT at 25 cents, we will send you one package of these Silk Remnants, free by parcel post prepaid. Premium No. 5561. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Sibyl's Influence

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 26.)

thing which your mother used to wear, but how it became detached and in your possession, it puzzles me to imagine."
"I think it is very singular," returned the young girl, thoughtfully.
"I firmly believe," Lady Prescott continued, "that if the ornament, whatever it may be, to which this belongs could be found, your life's mystery would be solved."

tery would be solved."

Little did either think that that very night was to be the beginning of the unfolding of the great mystery:

Winding her arm about Sibyl's waist, the two beautiful women passed out into the wide upper hall.

Raymond, tall and kingly—a veritable Lancelot for manly beauty—was awaiting them.

One glance at Sibyl made him draw å deep, long breath.

"I hasten to do homage to the queen of the evening," he said, playfully, as he bowed low before her.

long breath.

"I hasten to do homage to the queen of the evening," he said, playfully, as he bowed low before her.

"Don't pronounce your verdict yet—you will have many to pass judgment upon ere long; and you may have the mortification of discovering that you have been premature in your decision," returned Sibyl, laughing, yet blushing, beneath-his admiring eyes.

"My mother, also, does honor to the house of Prescott tonight," Raymond added, as his quick eye noted the rich robe of garnet silk, with its point lace triminings, which she wore, and which set off her handsome figure finely.

"Thank you, Ray; but it does not matter so much about my charms, you know—they are of rather minor importance at this late day," she said, laughing.

"It is somebody's birthday today, I believe. Do you feel so very young tonight, and do I appear so very old?" Raymond asked, with a wicked look at Sibyl.

"If one's appearance is any criterion of age, I am free to confess that I think I am fast overtak-ing you in the race" she returned.

pear so very old?" Raymond asked, with a wicked look at Sibyl.

"If one's appearance is any criterion of age, I am free to confess that I think I am fast overtaking you in the race," she retorted.

"I don't know whether to say thank you or not," Raymond said, with a hearty laugh. "But," he added, "allow me to lay my offering on the birthday shrine."

He produced from one of his pockets a little package folded in soft, white paper, and presented it to her.

Sibyl unrolled it, and found a costly fan, composed of lace, feathers, and curiously carved ivory.

"What a little gem! And how thoughtful of you! Thank you, Ray!"

"Thank you, Sibyl," he returned, with a pleased though meaning look.

"You have made an exceedingly pleasant beginning of the evening for me, Sibyl," Raymond whispered, as they passed down the wide staircase together.

"I am sure I am very glad, but I was not conscious of having achieved anything so gratifying. Please tell me how I have been so fortunate," she replied, not understanding what he meant.

"By annihilating one of the formidable barriers neant. "By annihilating one of the formidable barriers

The Complete Story In Book Form

Subscription

If you do not care to wait for this new serial as they appear in Comfort we will be glad to make you a present of the complete story in book form. You will enjoy this great story. "Sibyl's Influence," with an elaboration of interesting detail and thrilling incidents, tells the hardships and trials of two true lovers barassed by a flendish plot. This splendid romance, written in Mrs. Georgia Sheldon's best style, is strong throughout, tragic in parts and dramatic in its conclusion. Send us only one one-year subscription (not your own) to Comfort at 25 cents, and we will send you a copy of idd.

HFORT, Augusta, Maine. plete story in book form. You will enjoy this great story. "Sibyl's Influence," with an elaboration of interesting detail and thrilling incidents, tells the hardships and trials of two true lovers barassed by a flendish plot. This splendid romance, written in Mrs. Georgia Sheldon's best style, is strong throughout, tragic in parts and dramatic in its conclusion. Send us only one one youn to Comport at 25 cents, and we will send you a copy of the book free and postpaid.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Origin of the Motto on our Coins

HE introduction of a religious motto or device for the coinage of our country had been suggested, more or less indirectly, several times, but the suggestion that was finally adopted came from a farmer of Maryland.

In 1861, when Mr. Chase was Secretary of the Treasury, he received a letter from this old farmer, who suggested that we should findicate our profession in our coinage. The letter was referred to the director of the mint, James Pollock.

In Mr. Pollock's report for 1862 he discussed the question of the recognition of the sovereignty of God and our trust in Him on our coins. The

$360 FORD AUTO

In the picture are hidden a number of faces, How many can you find? Some are looking right at you, others show only the side of the face—you'll find them upside down and every way. Mark each face you find with a pencil, clip out picture, send to us with name and address NOW. We will give away a $360.00, 1917 Model, Ford Touring Car, as First Grand Prize, and Thousands of Dollars in Cash Rewards, Prizes and Special Premiums. Each worker gets a prize. Solve the puzzle. If you can find as many as FIVE FACES we will send you immediately toward the $360.00 there Grand Prizes. We will also give away several 1918 model Coaster Brake $40.00 Bleycles. These will be given free and extra, regardless of who gets the Ford Auto. Someone will get automobile. WHY NOT YOU FARM LIFE, Dept. 154. FIRST GRAND PRIZE

FARM LIFE, Dept. 154,

THESE FREE

SPENCER, IND.

COLUMBIA NOVELTY CO. 73 EAST BOSTON, MASS.

which have always kept me at such a distance from your 'royal highness.' " he answered, with a laugh, notwithstanding which she could see that he was very much in earnest.

She knew that he referred to her dropping the obnoxious word "cousin." but, what the other barriers were, she could not imagine.

"L am sorry, Ray," she said, with a look of regret, yet speaking playfully, "to know that I have unconsciously encompassed myself within such an impassable barricade." If you are aware of what it consists, won't you please help me pull it down?"

it down?"

"With the greatest pleasure in the world, princess; and now, to test your sincerity, I am going to take you into the conservatory, where you are to arrange for me a floral favor, in the very choicest manner possible," he said, giving her a look which brought a richer color to her cheek.

"You shall be the said."

neek.

"You shall have the very prettiest flowers, Ray.
want to make an aperture in that barricade, ou know. How large a one do you need?" with wicked look into his handsome face,
"What—the bouquet or the aperture?" he askd, with mock gravity.

"The latter, of course; the bouquet, according ony taste, must be limited to very small proortions."

ortions."
"Well, then," Raymond replied, with a very earnest look into the bright sparkling face, "I shall not be satisfied until the whole structure to which you refer is demolished, and thrown to the ground."

ground."
Sibyl's eyes fell—there was something in that earnest glance which made her heart flutter earnest glance which made her heart nutter strangely. She fastened her lovely favor upon his coat without replying; while he, watching her delicate fingers at their pretty task, could see that they trembled just a trifle. Then together they sought the brilliantly lighted drawing-rooms to await their friends.

TO BE CONTINUED.

Origin of the Motto on our Coins

No.

7291

proposition to introduce a motto on our coins, he said, had been considered by Mr. Chase, and he did not doubt, but believed, that it would meet with approval by an intelligent public sentiment. But Congress gave no attention to the subject, and in his next annual report he referred to the suggestion and said:

"The motto suggested—'God Our Trust.' is taken from our national hymn,—The Star Spangled Banner. The sentiment is familiar to every citizen of our country; it has thrilled the hearts and fallen in song from the lips of millions of American freemen. The time is propitious: 'tis an hour of-national peril and danger—an hour when man's strength is weakness, when our strength and salvation must be of God. Let us reverently acknowledge His sovereignty, and let our coinage declare our trust in God."

A two-cent bronze piece was authorized to be coined by Congress the following year—April 22, 1864—and upon this was stamped the motto: "In God We Trust." In his report of that year Mr. Pollock expressed his approval of the act and urged that the recognition of trust be extended to the gold and silver coins of the United States. By an act of Congress of March 3, 1865, the director of the mint, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, was authorized to place upon all the silver and gold coins of the United States susceptible of such conditions thereafter to be issued, the motto—"In God We Trust."

CARDS, Dice, Magic Goods, Noveltles, Catalog Free,

GIVEN STEM WIND and SET WATCH. Sell 24 American Fing Dutton-hole for 10c each, that we send you. turn us $2.40 and receive beau watch. Star Tes Co., Dept. 202 Chie

BOYS Earn This Big Hunting Rifle Easy! 22 Cal. Sure Shot A real gun for rabbits and amali game. Let me FREE!
tell rou how to get it to Address
D. S. STEPHENS, 55 L. 10 hs., St. Paul, Minn.

SIX LACE FREE Just send your name and address.
We send prepaid 12 boxes Mentho
Nova which you will sell stize each. Mentho Nova has no equal for use in the home. When sold return $3.00 and all six Nottingham Lace Curtains (full window size) are yours. Bed Spreads, Din-ner Sets, Watches, etc., free for little work. Big cash commission. Order today. We trust you.

U. S. Supply Company
Dept. 420, Greenville, Pa.

Package Prize Valentine

Here Is A Happy Valentine Surprise For You—A Big Package Of Handsome Lace Valentines, Dainty Cut-Outs, Cupids, Hearts, Folders, Turnover Cards, Lovely Cold And Color Embossed Valentine Post Cards.

ALL YOURS FOR ONE SUBSCRIPTION

WE realize that it is hard for our readers to secure the latest up-to-date Valentine novelties so we have had made up for us at a great bargain a special assortment of latest style Valentines, Cards and Novelties including a number of exclusive designs which are not to be found in the stores. Just see what this big assortment contains:

I Large Lace Two Leaf Valentine Folder in a pretty Heart and Flower embossed Valentine Envelope, 1 large Lace Heart Canopy, Two Leaf Folder in Envelope, 1 large Novelty Lace Pergola Valentine in envelope, 1 Magic Turnover Valentine, 2 Pretty Heart Folding Valentines, 4 Assorted Valentine Novelty Cut-outs, 2 Juvenile Valentine Hearts, 1 Handsome Embossed Valentine Folder, 1 Embossed Flower, Heart and Cupid Panel Valentine Bookmark, 5 Beautiful Gold and Color Embossed Valentine Post Cards.

tine Post Cards.

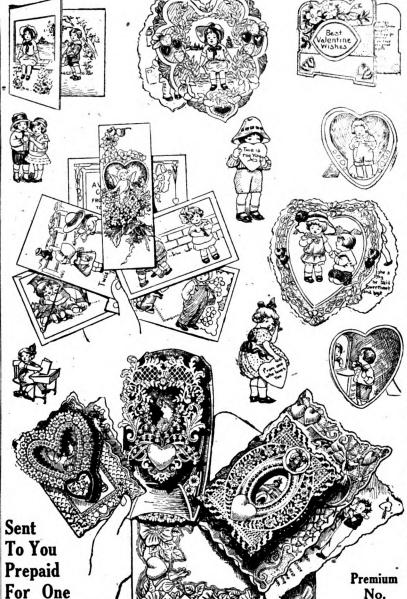

Feb. 14 is considered as St. Valentine's Day although Valentines are used all through the month. It is a beautiful custom that appeals to all, both young and old—the exchange of these tender Cupid dart missives between husband and wife, sweethearts, near and dear friends and relatives. And, of course, the children like to exchange with their little friends these dainty love tokens beginning on the fourteenth of February, the month when the birds are supposed to choose their mates. Most of the schools now have Valentine Boxes in which the children drop their Valentines to be distributed later in the day, an hour or more being set apart by the teacher for that purpose.

in the day, an hour or more being set apart by the teacher for that purpose.

Our illustration is, of course, greatly reduced in size. The large beautiful lace Valentine is actually 6 inches long and nearly 5 inches wide, of pretty and fine lace work raised two inches on an accordion plaited standard with a heart and gold decorated base and a charming illustrated sentiment of verse on the inside. Then there is a dainty lace pattern on an embossed card over 6 inches long and nearly 31-4 inches wide, over the pretty face of a young maiden giving the fine Pergola effect so popular in the olden days. Another is a pretty heart-shaped canopy of elevated lace paper on a background on which is shown a childish figure on the inside and you find an illustrated verse of tender sentiment. A magic Turnover Valentine first appears to be an ordinary folder, then presto—a flip of the finger and it unfolds and shows a smiling little girl sitting on a stile and an expectant youth standing at a short distance. We also include in this remarkable collection two pretty embossed heart-shaped folders with verse inside, four choice assorted Valentine Novelty Cut-Outs of little children, two red and gold illustrated and inscribed Valentine Hearts, one beautiful embossed Cupid and Heart Floral Bookmark, printed in bright colors on a timed background and five handsome Valentine Post Cards embossed in gold and many bright colors showing flowers and children at play each having the suitable sentiment expressed by an appropriate verse underneath.

We will send you this big Prize Valentine collection packed in a neat tasty envelope free and postpaid if you will accept our special offer printed below. Be sure to send in your order early so as to get it in time for St. Valentine's Day.

Free Offer. For one one-year subscription (not your you this prize assortment of beautiful up-to-date Valentines, Valentine Cards and Novelties free by mail postpaid. Premium No. 7291. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

The Emporium of Bargains and Opportunities

Pithy Little Advertisements that are Interesting, Instructive and Profitable to Read, for they put you wise to the newest and best in the market and keep you in touch with the world's progress.

AGENTS WANTED

Would $150 Monthly as General Agent for $150,000 corporation and a Ford auto of for $150,000 corporation and a Ford auto of your own, introducing Stock and Poultry rem-edies, Dips, Disinfectants, Sanitary Products interest you? Then address Royoleum Co-Operative Mfg. Co., Dept. 68, Monticello, Ind.

233% Profit selling Jubilee Spark Intensifiers to auto owners, garages. Banishes spark plug trouble. Sells like wildfire. Exclusive territory. Write quick. Jubilee Mfg. Co., Dept. K-2, Omaha, Nebr.

Agents Wanted-To advertise our goods by distributing free sample to consumer to by distributing free sample to consumer. 90 cents an hour. Write for full particulars. Favori Chemical Co., 519 North St., Dayton, O.

We Pay $100 Monthly Salary and furnish rig and expenses to introduce guaran-teed poultry and stock powders. Bigler Com-pany, X 314, Springfield, Ill.

Sell Insyde Tyres, inner armour for auto tires double mileage, prevents punctures and blow-outs, big profits. Details Free. Am-erican Accessories Co., Dept. 1110, Cincinnati.

Agents—with experience sell to consumers made-to-measure Suits and overcoats $14.00 and $18.00. Build independent business with big money. Outfits furnished. Midland Tailors, Dept. 10A 19 So. Fifth Ave., Chicago.

We Start You without a Dollar. Soaps, Ex-tracts, Perfumes—ToiletGoods, Experience un-necessary CarnationCo., 31 So.Main, St.Louis.

Do You Want To Travel At Our Expense? We want good men and women for traveling general agents. Must have fair education and good references. Will make education and good references. Will make contract for three months, six months or year at salary $22.50 per week and necessary expenses. Can assign most any territory desired. For full particulars address George G. Clows Company, Philadelphia, Pa, Dept. 4-F.

Agents—Make a Dollar an Hour. Sell Mendets, a patent patch for instantly mending leaks in all utensits. Sample package free. Collette Mfg. Co., Dept. 482-B, Amsterdam, N.Y.

Agents Profits—Our plan beats anything ever before offered. Goods practically sell themselves. "Horoco," 131 Locust, St. Louis, Mo.

Remnant Store, 1510 G-Vine, Cincinnati, O. Greatest Dty Goods bargains on earth Agents wanted for New, Profitable Business.

We Pay $36 A Week And Expenses to men with rigs to introduce poultry com-pound. Year's contract. Imperial Mig. Co., Dept. 9, Parsons, Kans.

Large Manufacturer wants agents to skirts, direct to homes. Write for free samples. Madison Mills, 503 Broadway, New York City.

Agents $200 a month. New, Patented, automatic Clothes Rack. Fits any corner. Sells in every home, Easy to demonstrate. Dozen can be carried. Write for sample. Thomas Mfg. Co., 2619 North St., Dayton, Ohio.

Agents: Sell rich looking 36x68 imported Rugs, $1 each; Carter, Tenn., sold 115 in 4 days, profit $57; you can do same. Write for sample offer selling plan; exclusive territory. Sample rug by parcel post prepaid 98c. ©E. Condon, importer, Stonington, Maine.

We Start You In Business, furnishing everything; men and women $30 to $200 weekly operating our "New System Gandy Factories". Book free. William Ragsdale, East Orange, N.J.

Agents-Pair Silk Hose Free, State size & color, Beautiful line direct from mill, Good profits. Agents wanted. Write today. Triple-wear Mills, Dept.G,720 Chestnut St., Phila., Pa.

"Washwhite" makes repeat orders and big profits. Catchy sales plan. Free Sam-ples. Nacma, 21-E, 20 W. Lake, Chicago.

Agents—Butter 4c a pound. Produced by the Pilot Butter Maker. Enormous money saving investment. Housewives delighted. Eager buyers. Wild excitement wherever demonstrated. Demand enormous. Outfit free to workers. Act quick. Pilot Butter Maker Company, Desk 72, Marshall, Mich.

$100 to $200 Profit Weekly. Complete Moving Picture Outfit, furnished on easy payment plan. No experience needed. Free book explains everything. Monarch Film Service, Dept. 2-A 228 Union Ave., Memphis, Tenn.

New Invention. $10.00 per day to Agents. Quickedge Knife and Shear sharpener for household use. Sharpens any kitchen, paring, carving knife or shears in ten seconds. A child can use it. Grinds both sides of blade at once, automatically. Guaranteed. A sale at every house. 200% profit gross lots. No charge for territory Business furnishes capital, profit start first day. Low priced. No experience necessary. Ray Carter of Massachusetts sold 36 in four hours—profit $36.00. J. H. Stemple of West Virginia sold 45 first day. New proposition—just out. Complete particulars free. Write today giving name of your county. Address Quickedge Sharpener Co., 712 Sharpener Bldg., 215 N. Desplains St., Chicago, Ill..

Agents: Big Hit: Our 5-Piece Aluminum Set is all the rage. Cheaper than Enamel Ware. Sells like wildre. Guaranteed 20 Years. Retail value $5.09. You sell housewives for only $1.98. Biggest seller of the age. 9 sure sales out of every 10 shown. Others cleaning up $10.00 to $20.00 a day. Answer this quick to secure your territory. Div. E. X. 6. American Aluminum Mfg. Co. Lemont, Ill.

Pants, $1.00; Suits, $3.75; Made To Measure. Ask for free samples and styles. Knickerbocker TailoringCo., Dept.876, Chicago

Agents make big money selling portraits and frames. Catalog and sample outfit free. Consolidated Portrait Co., Dept. 5, Chicago.

Sell beautiful, fragrant, California Rose-beads. Absolutely new. Big profits. Catalog free.Mission, A2819 West Pico, Los Angeles, Cal.

Agents—Steady Income Large manufacturer of Handkerchiefs and Dress Goods, etc., wishes representative in each locality. Factory to consumer. Big profits, honest goods, whole or spare time. Credit given. Address Preeport Mfg. Co.,60 Main St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

AGENTS WANTED

Hosiery and Underwear Manufacturer offers permanent position supplying regular customers at mill prices in home town. $50.00 to $100.00 monthly. All or spare time. Credit. G. Parker Mills, 2733 No. 12th St., Phila., Pa.

Agents to Travel by Automobile to introduce our fast selling, popular priced household necessities. The greatest line on earth. Make $10 a day. Complete outfit and automobile furnished free to workers. Write today for exclusive territory. American Products Co., $316 3rd St., Cincinnati, O.

Free Sample Case Offer. Sell money sav-g food, household products. Earn $25 to $35 ceekly. Enormous profits—repeat orders— teady work. Established 1888. Crofts & Reed Co., Dept. C-264, Chigago.

SALESMEN WANTED

Salesmen-City or Traveling. Experienced or inexperienced. Send for our valuable free book. "A Knight of the Grip," list of openings and full particulars. Fit yourself to earn the big salaries—$2,500 to $10,000 a year. Prepare in spare time to make a success like thousands of our members have done. Our Course combines careful training with practical experience. Immediate and unlimited Employment Service rendered Members. Address nearest office. Dept.105A, Natl. Salesmen's Tr. Ass'n, Chicago, San Francisco, New York.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Excellent Opportunity For Man Or Woman. A chance is offered a bright man or woman to become associated, on a profitable basis, with a large eastern publishing house. No investment, no outfit to buy; we supply everything free; some choice territories now available; travel if preferred. Address Desk A, Box 1159, Boston, Mass.

PATENT ATTORNEYS

Patent Your Ideas. Manufacturers are mickly buying patents obtained through us. Write for free book of 307 needed inventions. D. Switt & Co., 321 7th St., Washington, D. C.

Ideas Wanted-Manufecturers are writing for patents procured through me. Four books with hundreds of inventions wanted sent free. I help you market your invention. Advice Free.R. B. Owen, 18 Owen Bldg., Wash. D. C.

Patents. Write for List of Patent Buyers and inventions Wanted. $1,000,000 in prizes offered for inventions. Send sketch for free opinion as to patentability. Our four books sent free. Patents advertised free. We assist inventors to sell inventions. Victor J. Evans & Co., 641 Ninth, Washington, D, C.

Startling Patent Facts. Send postal for new 90-page book Free. Your idea may mean a fortune if handled rightly. Learn how my service differs. Send sketch or model for actual search. George P. Kimmel, Patent Lawyer, 27-A Barrister Bidg., Washington, D.C.

Invent something. Your ideas may bring wealth. Send Postal for Free book. Tells what to invent and how to obtain a patent through our credit system. Taibert & Taibert, 4206 Taibert Building, Washington, D. C.

AUTO SUPPLIES

Power Increased; Carbon Eliminated; results guaranteed. Write for folder C5. Automobile Accessories Co., Baltimore, Md.

The Doctor Confirmed

From Bad to Worse

Clara, at the Dance-"Who is that ugly

Butterton-"Oh, he-er-that is my Clara—"I beg your pardon! I hadn't noticed the resemblance. I really hadn't!"—Louisville Herald.

Both Butter

Visitor-"My good man, you keep your pigs much too near

Cottager-"That's just what the doctor said, mum. But I don't see how it's agoin' to hurt 'em!"

—Punch.

the house."

POULTRY

Poultry Paper, up to date, tells all you want to know about care and management of poultry, for pleasure or profit; 50 cents per year, four months for 10 cents. Poultry Ad-vocate, Dept. 112, Syracuse, N. Y.

White Leghorn Baby Chicks bred from high record breeders on range proven big winter egg producers for 12 years. Guaranteed delivery. Booklet tells all. Hamilton Farm, Huntington, New York.

PIGS FOR SALE

O. I. C. Hogs. All ages. Large, Prolific. Best Breeding. Ped. furm. Pair pigs mated $20. W. D. Ruebush, Macomb, Ill.

MOTORCYCLES

Motorcycle or bicycle at your price: motorcycles 25.00 up, bicycles 500 up; Guaranteed Parts carried in stock for all motorcycles, and bicycles, repairing, send for big Bargain Bulletin. American Motorcycle Co., Chicago.

CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS

Shorthand in 30 Lessons. Home study. Gov. pays beginners $1000 to $1200. Positions assured. Write for book C. Am. School of Phonography, Sta. A, Cleveland, O.

HOME WEAVING

Looms—Only $8.50—Big Money In weaving rugs, carpets, etc., from rags and waste material. Drop postal for free loom book, it tells all about Weaving and our wonderful $8.50 and other looms. Union Loom Works, 272 Factory St., Boonville, N. Y.

"Jest for Fun"

Fortunately for Him

Tramp—"I'm a Belgian refugee."
Lady—"Are you? Well mention a town in Belgium."
Tramp—"I would ma'am but they have all been destroyed."

Enemy Absolved Atkins No. 1—"Hi say, w'en did 'Arold et the lower 'arf of 'is face shot hoff?" Atkins No. 2—"Hit ain't shot hoff. E's a-yewnin'."—Jack o' Lantern.

Repartee

a stick."

He—"I'm beginning to believe so myself."—Record.

She Was Faster

"I'm surprised to hear of Maud being engaged to Mr. Gayman. He's so awfully fast, you know."

"Oh, I don't know; apparently he wasn't fast enough to get away from Maud."—Boston Transcript.

A Good Excuse

"Well, what made you so late tonight? demanded his life partner, glancing at the clock.

"Er-er-why, I took Soakhurst home from the club, and his wife made me take him back again!" replied he of the ingenious mind. — Louisville Courier-Journal.

If Birds of a Feather A small boy astride of a donkey was taking some supplies to an army camp in Texas not long ago, and got there just as a detachment of soldiers, preceded by a band, was marching past.

Journal. -

"I believe you could make love to

FARMS FOR SALE

Do You Want A Farm where largest profits are made? The South's great variety of crops and wonderfully productive climate make it the most profitable farm section of America. It is the place for the lowest cost meat production and dairy farming. It grows the largest variety of forage crops. Good lands in good localities, as low as $15 to $25 an acre. Let us show you locations that will give the highest profits. M. V. Richards, Commissioner, Room 19, Southern Railway System, Washington, D. C.

Southern Crops Bring Top Prices Today. The mild climate and long growing season on these Virginia and N. Carolina farms means bigger crops and larger profits for you. Good fertile, well watered land $15 an acre up. Excellent for truck and general farming, poultry, livestock, dairying, etc. Details and copy Southern Homesceker free-write today. P. H. LaBaume, Agrl. Agt., N. & W. Ry., 269 Arcade Bidg., Roanoke, Va.

How much do you want for your farm? Write K. Mohler, Box 453, Chicago. Give price and size of farm.

Money-making Farms. 15 states, $10 an acre up; stock, tools, and crops often included to settle quickly. Write for Big Illustrated Catalogue. Strout Farm Agency, Dept. 3027 New York.

MICHIGAN FARM LAND

Land! In Michigan's best Counties. 10, 20, 40, 80 acre tracts. $15 to $30 per acre. Easy payments. Good for gen'l crops, poultry, fruit. Big booklet free. Swigart Land Co., Cl246 First Nat'l Bank Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

ARIZONA LAND

Get A Farm Irrigated By Uncle Sam in Salt River Valley, southern Arizona, under Roosevelt Dam. Raise alfalfa for feeding cattle and sheep. Raise vegetables and fruits for early Eastern market. Buy land now, before it costs more. Deep soil, assured water, reasonable prices, fine winter climate. Write for our Salt River Valley folder free. C. L. Seagraves, Industrial Commissioner, Santa Pe Ry., 1946 Ry. Exchange, Chicago.

MISSOURI FARM LAND

Small Missouri Farm, $10 cash and $5 onthly; no interest or taxes; highly producmonthly; no interest or taxes; highly produc-tive land; close to 3 big markets; write for photographs and full information. Munger, D 104, N. Y. Life Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Send Us 10 cents, silver, for a sample of our Regina quality perfume; Rose, Violet, Li-lac, Jockey Club; Fragrant as the Flowers that Bloom. Norwood, Brant Co., Dept. 5, 625 Main St., Worcester, Mass.

MALE HELP WANTED

Firemen, Brakemen, Baggagemen, 8 hours, $140. Colored Porters wanted everywhere. Experience unnecessary. 828 Ry. Bureau, East St. Louis, Ills.

· Wanted-Men 18 or over as Gov't Railway Mail Clerks. List positions open free. Frank-lin Institute, Dept. K 9, Rochester, N. Y.

Government Pays $900 to $1800 yearly, Prepare for coming "exams" under former Civil Service Examiner. New Book Free. Write Patterson Civil Service School, Box J-15, Rochester, N. Y.

Foremen, Shopmen and Officemen wanted to work spare time as special representative of large, well-known mail-order house, selling Watches, Diamonds and Jewelry on Credit. Liberal commissions and ecusive sales rights granted. No investment or deposit required for outfit or samples. Write at once for details. Address S. D. Miller, Dept. 41, Agency Division, Miller Bidg. Detroit, Mich.

HELP-MALE AND FEMALE

Earn $25 Weekly, writing for newspapers, magazines. Experience unnecessary; details Free.Press Syndicate, 451 St. Louis, Mo.

HELP WANTED

Men-Women Wanted. $90 month. Gov't. clerical positions. List positions free. Frank-lin Institute, Dept. K 12, Rochester, N. Y.

Men-Women wanted for Government war positions. Thousands needed immediately. Good salaries; permanent employment; liberal vacations; other advantages. We prepare you and you secure a position or we refund your money. Ask for booklet "QL" free to citizens. Washington Civil Service School, 2004 Marden Building, Washington, D. C.

FEMALE HELP WANTED

Five bright, capable ladies to travel, emonstrate and sell dealers, $75.00 to $150.00

Start Dress designing business at home. $100 Month. Sample lessons free. Franklin Institute, Dept. K 850, Rochester, N. Y.

We Have Customers who will buy from you appropriate and dust caps in dozen lots. They tea aprons and dust caps in dozen lots. They also want fancy work of all kinds—Embroidery, Crocheting and Tatting. Send 20c for patterns and prices. Returned if dissatisfied. Kenwood Sales Shops, 6238 S. Park Ave., Chicaga.

Comicalities Comfort's "Yes, sir," announced the witness, more than half of them." "Are you willing to swear that you know more than half of them?" demanded the lawyer. "Why, if it comes to that, I'm willing to swear that I know more than all of them put together."—Boston Post.

Impossible

A stockbroker bought a "place in the country," where he liked to figure as the squire and local magnate. In this capacity he dropped into the village school one day, and began to ask the children questions.

"Now, what is an island?" he asked.
There was no answer.

"Come now; could I ride on horseback from here to France?"

"Nd you couldn't," replied Tom Brown, son of the hostler at the village inn.
"My father saw you on horseback yesterday, and he said he was sure you couldn't ride half a mile without getting your heck broken."—Boston Post.

Another Good Place

"We can't all dwell on Easy Street."
"No, but we can all live on the square."
-Kansas Gity Journal.

Not So Remarkable, After All De Sappie.—I believe my dog knows as much as I do.

She.—I've seen smarter dogs than that.-Puck's Library.

"What is the plural of 'man,' Johnny?" asked the teacher of a small pupil.
"Men," promptly answered Johnny.
"Correct," said the teacher. "And what is the plural of 'baby?'"
"Twins." was the unexpected reply.—

Some Knowledge

Chicago News.

Apropos of a celebrated dynamite case under trial in San Francisco, lawyers are telling of the experience of a prosecuting attorney who encountered a somewhat difficult witness. Finally he asked the man if he was acquainted with any of the men on the jury.

BOOKS

"From The Ball Room To Hell"mailed anywhere 25c. L. E. Muncy, 136 E. Pleasant Ave., X, Syracuse, N. Y.

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

Guaranteed Watch Or Gold Plated bracelet free to boys and girls for placing sample packet seeds with friends. Eckert Seed (o., B-71, Cly, Pa.

PLANTS

Cabbage, and Sweet Potato Plants, Leading Varieties, $1.50 Per 1000, Clark Plant Company, Dept. C, Thomasville, Ga.

tween the sun and moon?" Pupil—"Please, sir, the sun's bigger and healthier looking than the moon because he goes to bed earlier." As Usual

Skinny-"Say, Fatty, what do you expect to have in your stocking Christmas morning?" Fatty-(Mournfully) "Holes!"

Good Reason

Teacher-"What is the difference be-

Safety First

"Why," asks a Missouri paper, "does Missouri stand at the head in raising mules?"
"Because," says another paper, "that is the only safe place to stand."

MOTION PICTURE PLAYS

Crucified Anne Cath. Emmerich and Visions, Nativity, Egypt, Cana. 250 pages, 4 books, 20c. Klein Co., Brandon, Minn. Photoplay Ideas Wanted By 48 Companies. $25-$500 paid.Experience unnecessary. details Free. Producers League, 311, St. Louis.

COINS AND STAMPS BOUGHT

We Lay to $80.00 for certain large cents; $6.00 for certain eagle cents, etc. High premiums paid for rare coins to 1912. Many in cir-culation. Watch your change. Send 4e now. Get our Large Illustrated Coin Circular. Numismatic Bank, Dept.6, Fort Worth, Texas.

$2 to $500 Each paid for hundreds of Old Coins dated before 1896. Keep All old money and send 10c for New Illus'td Coin Value Book, size 4x7. It may mean your fortune. Get Posted. Clarke Coin Co., Box 20, LeRoy, N.Y.

STORY WRITERS WANTED

Authors:—Stories, poems, photo plays etc. are wanted for publication. Submit Mss. Literary Bureau, C4, Hannibal, Mo.

The lad dismounted and held the bridle of the donkey tightly in his hand. "Why are you holding on to your brother so hard?" asked a group of soldiers who were standing near and wanted to tease the country boy. "I'm afraid he might enlist," said the lad, without batting an eyelash.—L. Herald. PHOTOPLAYS, STORIES, ETC.

We Will Accept your Ideas and Scripts
Any form correct free- and sell on Commission. Big rewards! Make Money. Write us Now! Writer's Service, Box 31. Auburn, N. Y.

PHOTO FINISHING

Photo Post Cards-Kodak prints. $1.55 per 100-from your negatives. Samples 4c each. L. Loney, Hartford City, Ind.

Films developed free. High class work, perfect prints at 3 to 7c. We do the best work in the Photo City. Remit with your order and get returns same day. Bryans Drug House, Rochester, N. Y.

FOR PHOTOGRAPHERS

Special Trial Offer. Your next Kodak film developed 5c. Prints 2c each. Moser & Son, 2122 Şt. James Ave., Cincinnati, O.

FOOD SCIENCE es. DISEASE

THORT STORIES WANTED

Are You Sick or run down? Food caused it.
Food will cure you. Science traces 93% of all disease to wrong eating. We teach you what and how to eat to regain perfect health and prove why. Benefit immediate; cure surprisers when we will be to work the total prove why. Benefit immediate; which is to the stady home employment. No experience woman's Nat'l Weekly, Desk 78, Wash. D. C.

Are You Sick or run down? Food caused it.
Food will cure you. Science traces 93% of all disease to wrong eating. We teach you what and how to eat to regain perfect health and prove why. Benefit immediate; cure surprisers when you what and how to eat to regain perfect health and prove why. Benefit immediate; cure surprisers when you what and how to eat to regain perfect health and prove why. Benefit immediate; cure surprisers when you what and how to eat to regain perfect health and prove why. Benefit immediate; when you what and how to eat to regain perfect health and prove why. Benefit immediate; cure surprisers when you what and how to eat to regain perfect health and prove why. Benefit immediate; cure surprisers when you what and how to eat to regain perfect health and prove why. Benefit immediate; cure surprisers when you what and how to eat to regain perfect health and prove why. Benefit immediate; cure surprisers when you what and how to eat to regain perfect health and prove why. Benefit immediate; cure surprisers when you what and how to eat to regain perfect health and prove why. Benefit immediate; cure surprisers when you what and how to eat to regain perfect health and prove why. Benefit immediate; cure surprisers when you what and how to eat to regain perfect health and prove why. Benefit immediate; cure surprisers when you what and how to eat to regain perfect health and you what and y per month. Railroad fare paid. Go Drug Company, Dept. 82, Omaha, Neb.

from Hartman's. You get values which only a gigantic purchasing power makes possible—and you must be satisfied or back come the goods to us and any money you have paid is promptly refunded without argument or question. Your decision is final. Try this way of buying. If you don't see what you want here, get our big catalog—the wonderful book of bargains, which is constantly used as a guide to values by hundreds of thousands of people. It is free. Send for it.

A very special Hartman value that will add beauty and utility to your home. Send for trial offer. Only a dollar now brings it subject to your approval. Made of seasoned solid oak, rich, fumed finish; correct Mission design. Chair and rocker very roomy and have genuine quarter-sawed oak arm rests and top panels, also have neat carving. Seats are upholstered over steel spring slats, well filled with wood fibre and covered with soft cotton jute. Upholstering in imitation Spanish brown leather. Table is 24x34 in. and is ornamented with carving and attractively designed panels. Tabourette has octagon top about 11½ in. across and stands 17 in. from floor. One of the most superb bargains ever offered in Mission furniture. Carefully crated and shipped direct from our factory in Western New York State.

Order by No. 110RMA7. Price for the complete set $12.98. Send only $1.00 now. Balance in monthly payments of $1.50 each.

5-Piece Bed Outfit

Order white finish by No. 153RMA19. Price for Complete Outfit only $14.79. Order Vernis Martin finish by No. 153RMA20. Price $14.83. Send $1 now. Balance $1.50 monthly for either finish.

Handsome Dresser Shipped for $1

See what an extra value this dresser is. Made of seasoned hardwood finished to resemble quarter-sawed oak. Rich golden oak finish. Has French bevel plate mirror 20x16 in, with two artistic standards braced by backguard. Base top 40x19 in. Two overhung drawers and two full length drawers. At our low price this is one of the most etriking bargains that even this great house could offer. Send and see for yourself on our guarantee offer. Shipping weight about 110 lbs; Shipped from our factory in Central Indiana. Order by No. 189RMA9. Price $10.28. Send $1.25 monthly.

Order any of these articles right from this ad. Use the coupon below.

Hercules Guaranteed

Overstuffed Rocker

Shipped for $1

A superbdesign. Two panel back. Overstuffed arms. Mahagany finish. Upholstered in isb. Upholstered in imitation Spanish brown leather. Seat 19x20 in. Back 28 in. from seat. Seat 15 in from floor, Total height 40 in. Seat rests on nine strong springs. Back and seat reinforced with steelbands. A big, roomy, easychairthat gives comfort easychairthat gives comfort to body and elegance to the room. Shipping weight 55 lbs. Shipped from our Chicago ware-house or factory in Western N.Y. State. Order by No. 94 RMA 7. Price 38.95 Sendonly $1 now. Balance in monthly-payments of $1

"Wexford" Brussels Rug Kitchen Cabinet Shipped for $1 Shipped for $1

1460

A wonderful value. This beautiful rug is woven in rich allover pattern in superb color combinations, rich shades of tan predominating with touches of red and green. Has long wearing worsted surface and will last for years. One of the most satisfactory rugs in our whole collection. Sent on our liberal 30 days' free trial offer and our easy credit terms. Shipped from our Chicago warehouse.

Choice Of 3. Sizes
No. 30RMA15. 8 ft. 3 in. x 10
ft. 6 in., $17.65. $1 now. $2 per month. No. 30RMA16. 9 ft.
x 12 ft., $18.95. $1 now. $2 per month. No. 30RMA17. 11 ft.
3 in. x 12 ft., $26.45; $1 now.
$2.60 per month.

Saves work in the kitchen, Has everything right at hand. Sent on 30 days' free trial. A sensational hargain, Solid oak, Has 40 lb, capacity flour bin with mettal aiter. Spide drawers. 7 lb, capacity sugar bin, Rolling pin rack, Roomy ch na cupboard. 42x25 in, white-wood table top, Remova ble kneading board. Handy utensil cupboard with wire rack. Bread and cake box. Drawer bottoms 3 ply lumber, will not warp or split, Baso mounted on invisible slides. Moves easily and does not scratch floor. Height 65 in, Glossed golden oakfinish. Shipped from factory in Central Indiana. Shipping weight

SHOPPING GUIDE MILLIONS

Roofing If you are going to roof your house, get our prices and easy terms on the famous Hercules Roofing. Made in all plys and weights. Flint surfaced, marble surfaced, ref rock surfaced, green rock surfaced, Rust proof, water proof, weather proof. Send coupon or post card request for FREE Samples and Book. XTRA REAVY Rex-Kote Paints RODAINE

WARANTEE

ARTMA

Send for samples of colors and get our prices before you do any painting.

Post card rePost card re-EX-KO) MARANTES

EX-KO) MARANTES

EX-KOT

BE PAIN

GARN PAIN

GOOD ATTAIN

42-Piece Aluminum Set

Sent for $1 Will not rust, scald, chip or piece combination double roaster with 2 outer inside pudding pan, 5 custard cups with perfepan holder. 2 outer shells make an excellent refor chicken, steaks and other meats; using perfinset and small pudding pan; it is a combinationand steamer. The three pans are also used sepa over thefire as cake pan, bake dish, pudding pan up purpose where open pans are used; 7 cup

Hartman Furniture and Carpet Co., 3964 Wentworth Ave., Dept. 1128, Chicago, Ill.

Send me the merchandise marked X it being understood that I am to have the use of it for 30 days and if, for any reason, I do not want to keep it I can return it at the end of that time and you will pay freight both ways and refund my payment. If I keep it I am to have the benefit of the terms given in this advertisement. $1 is enclosed for each article marked.

Bed Outfit No. 1 White Finish.	153RMA19. Bed Outfi	t No. 1631 artin Fin	RMA20. 4-Pier ish. No. 1	ce Library Set. 10RMA7.
Rocker. No. 94RMA7.	Easy Chair No. 84 Golden Oak Finish	RMA7.	Easy Chair Fumed Oak	No. 84RMA8. Fnish.
	Kitchen Cabinet. No. 277RMA3,

Nearest Shipping Point If you do not wish to order direct from the ad and only wish the 502-Page Free Catalog, simply write your name and address above or send post card request.

We believe we are justified in saying that the new Hartman Catalog is the finest ever published. It contains more than 500 pages. You should see this catalog, with its hundreds of pictures, showing carpets, rugs, dishes, furniture, etc., in most beautiful color work. Superb bargains in everything in Furniture, Stoves, Silverware, Jewelry, Clocks, Watches, Curtains, Talking Machines, Sewing Machines, Kitchen Cabinets, Ice Boxes, Kitchen Utensils, Washing Machines, Baby Carriages, Carpete, Rugs, Vacuum Cleaners, Dishes-everything needed in the home—and all on the easiest Credit Terms. Send for it now and select from its thousands of bargains. It is free. Just send a post card asking for it.

3964 Wentworth Avenue, Dept 1128, FURNITURE & CARPET CO.,

Chicago, Ill.

LIBERTY NUMBER The Key to Happiness and Success un over a Million and a Quarter Homes

NO.4 VOL.XXX General Pershing General Rochambeau Admiral De Grasse oddmiral Sims Published at AUGUSTA MAINE Illustrious French Warriors Who Helped Us Win Our Independence. Pershing and Sims Are Returning Their Visit.—See Page 14.

Copyright, 1918 (Trade-Mark Registered), by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Incorporated.

Table of Contents on Page 16

We Shall Face Starvation Next Winter if the Farm Labor Problem Is Not Solved at Once

HE guns and ammunition we are making and the soldiers we are training will be useless if we fail to produce the food requisite for our people and our army and a surplus sufficient to supply the needs of our allies. All our tremendous war preparations will prove a worse than useless sacrifice if so mismanaged as to impair the productiveness of our farms by drawing away from them the laborers necessary for their efficient operation, and thereby cause a world famine. Precisely that danger is threatened by the present chaotic labor conditions in America. This alarming situation must be intelligently and vigorously dealt with and effectively remedied at once if we are to raise sufficient crops the coming season to avert the double calamity of defeat by starvation.

Europe already is on the verge of starvation despite the immense food shipments from America, and while the war lasts we must continue to supply our allies and, if possible, increase the allowance we send them—they can not do with less. In view of the stringent regulations for food conservation and the fact that we are already on short rations with respect to some of the most important articles of diet, nobody need be told that the present food supply in this country is inadequate. There is every reason for our Government's urgent request for the farmers to raise larger crops the coming season. Our basic hope of victory in the present war depends on our farms and farmers, and yet, since entering the war, our Government has permitted and in a way encouraged an industrial policy that is crippling our agriculture by causing a deficiency of farm laborers and a wage rate so high as to be well-nigh prohibitive to the farm owner or renter.

There is a general shortage of labor but of farm labor most of all. The calling of nearly one and one half million men from civil life to the army and navy unavoidably caused a large depletion of the ranks of industrial workers, and the progress will be repeated in still other drafts to follow in rapid succession. But men necessarily employed in the manufacture of war material are exempted from military service, and there is equal if not greater need of exempting those who are working the farms.

The enormous expansion of ship-building, munition plants and factories engaged in making various other kinds of army supplies has suddenly created a largely increased demand for labor, which could be supplied only by robbing other industries of their help. The huge profits of the munition makers enabled them to offer wages that attracted hosts of laborers from other industries which in turn had to raise wages or lose all their help. This competitive bidding for labor, together with numerous strikes and threats of strikes, has raised wages even of unskilled labor to a rate that the farmers cannot pay and has caused such an exodus from the country to the cities that farm help is almost unobtainable.

You labor men, please don't take offense at what we have said. Don't misunderstand our position. Don't assume that we are hostile to your interests. We are heartily in sympathy with all proper efforts to improve the laboring man's condition. We are merely calling attention to known facts and pointing out the natural consequences which all must suffer unless an effective remedy is found and applied before it is too late.

Even this winter, when there is little doing on the farms, laborers in many rural sections are receiving $3.00 to $3.50 a day. The farmers say that, at present prices of farm produce, they cannot pay such wages; that the labor cost with the high price of fertilizer and other increased expenses of operation would make it a losing venture to hire help for farming even with a favorable growing season and good crops and would mean ruin in case of bad weather and short crops. There seems to be a prevailing disposition among the farmers not to take the chance unless the Government will guarantee them a fair margin of profit as it does the shipbuilders and manufacturers of war materials. And who can blame them?

We are personally acquainted with some, and have reliable information of many farmers, previously accustomed to employing hired help, who are planning to plant no more than they can cultivate by their own personal labor for the reasons already stated. Even those who have sons at home dare not rely on their help because of their liability to be drafted for the army before the crops are harvested. So far as we can discover present indications point to a serious curtailment of agricultural operations in this crisis which demands the largest possible production. One of the most prosperous farmers in this vicinity, who has recently sold his large herd of cows and purposes to reduce his farming to what he can handle without hired labor, remarked: "People are complaining of high food prices, but, unless the Government takes action-and it can't come too soon—to provide a sufficient supply of farm laborers and a guaranty of living prices for produce, next winter it will be a question not of food prices but of starvation."

To hasten the building of ships and the production of munitions the Government is loaning the owners money to enlarge their plants and increase their output, and, because of the rising prices of materials and labor, is guaranteeing them a net profit of ten per cent over and above the cost of production. To the extent that this guaranty makes the manufacturers indifferent to the scale of wages they pay, the Government has helped to bring about the farm labor situation. If we are to escape famine next winter the Government must give the farmers some more substantial encouragement than merely urging them to raise larger crops as a patriotic duty. However patriotic they cannot accomplish the impossible; and, if handicapped by the present shortage of farm labor, it will be impossible to even approximate last year's production. There must be an ample sufficiency of farm laborers even if the Government has to draft men for this service which is no less important than that of the army.

Labor Imperils its Own Interests by Taking Advantage of the War

THAT labor agitators have taken advantage of the war to promote their selfish interests is evidenced by the largely increased number of strikes for higher pay and shorter hours. In many instances it has been proved that the strikes were instigated, engineered and financed by agents of the Kaiser. The exigencies of this war require the utmost efforts of every man and woman physically able to work. It is no time to shorten hours of labor, but rather they must be lengthened to the limit of strength and efficiency, for there is vastly more work to be done and fewer workers to do it because of the men drafted into the army and navy.

In France every able-bodied man is in the army and, so far as possible, the work they had to quit is being done by women. Everybody there works to the limit of endurance and yet France has had to import more than a hundred thousand Chinese coolies to relieve the pressing necessity for more laborers. Much as we should dislike to see it done, our country will be forced to resort to the importation of Chinese laborers if American laborers persist in impeding the war work by strikes and demands for shorter hours and more frequent holidays. In a recent speech Judge Gary, the head of the U.S. Steel Corporation, strongly urged that our Government arrange for or at least permit the importation of Chinese coolies to make good the labor shortage which imperils our food supply and the outcome of the war.

We should regard the opening of the door to Asiatic immigration, which we have always opposed, as a national calamity, and we hope that organized labor, in its own interest, will take care that there shall be neither need nor excuse for adopting such a remedy. Policy and patriotism run parallel as incentives for labor to do its utmost to help win the war.

Will You Stand for Magazine Postage Rates 3 to 20 Times the Canadian Rate?

THAT the American people have to pay so much higher second-class (newspaper and magazine) postage rates than their neighbors across the line in Canada pay for better service is an outrage that is apparent on glancing at the map and considering the difference in the conditions of the two countries. There is every reason-shorter distances, larger and denser population and greater wealth on our side of the border—why the rates should be lower instead of higher in the United States than in Canada, except one; and that one reason is that the Canadian Government is more progressive than ours, and the Canadian Parliament has a broader and wiser conception than our Congress has of the people's interests and the national welfare.

More than thirty years ago a wise Congress, for the purpose of promoting the dissemination of knowledge by enabling the people in every section of the land to have their magazines and newspapers at small cost, established our second-class postage rate at one cent a pound throughout the length and breadth of the land regardless of distance. This uniform, level rate has been in effect ever since, and has been the means of building up the magazines of nation-wide circulation which have given the people better reading matter than the small local papers, besides serving the higher purpose of broadening their views, breaking down sectionalism and upbuilding and unifying national sentiment. But the Canadian Parliament was still more progressive and more appreciative of the inestimable benefit and national importance of the wide distribution of periodical literature, and made a level rate of half a cent a pound throughout Canada, just half our present rate, and from a third to a twentieth of the rates Congress has doomed us to pay.

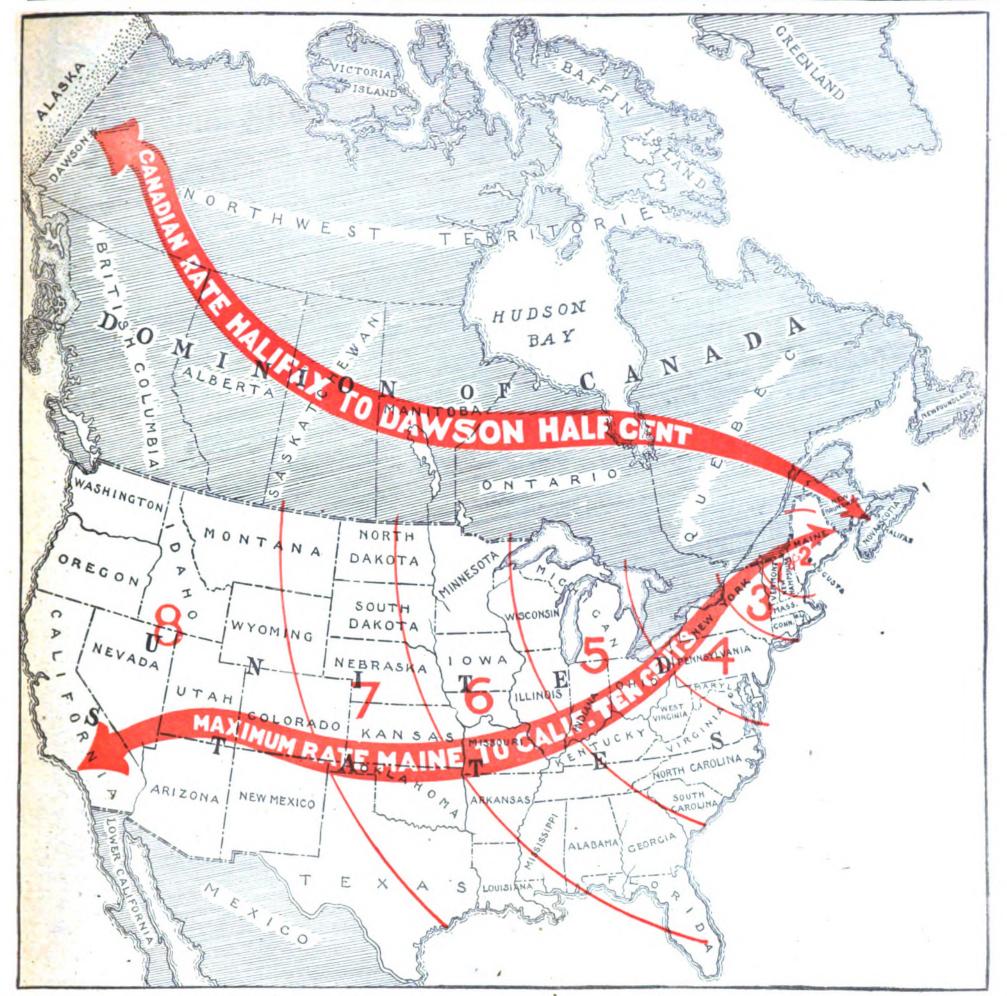

No country has made more rapid growth or greater progress than Canada during the last twenty years. She has done her full share in the world war without making any fuss about it and without any public scandals. She has raised and equipped a half million soldiers famous as among the best and bravest on the battle front in France, and the world has heard no charges of inefficiency in her War Department - nor in her Post-Office Department. We should have to raise an army of six million men to equal Canada's stunt in proportion to our population. Though Canada has been in the war three and a half years she finds it unnecessary, unwise and inexpedient to raise her second-class postage rate. Why should our Government raise our rate which is already double the Canadian rate? Is it not foolish to make it three to twenty times the Canadian rate? Is it not a crime to chop our country into magazine zones with prohibitive rates in the larger

At present we have the old cent-a-pound level rate, but soon we shall have much higher rates, in fact eight different zone rates after the first day of next July, unless Congress can be induced, before that date, to change its mind and repeal the recently adopted zone rate law. These rates are so high that the increase will have to be added to the magazine subscription price; and as the rate increases rapidly with distance the burden will rest most heavily on the people in the rural sections remote from the place of publication. If, after studying the map and reading the explanation on the opposite page, you favor a level rate not over three times the Canadian rate, sign the petition to Congress printed on page 29.

COMFORT'S EDITOR.

COMFORT, PUBLISHED MONTHLY BY W. H. GANNETT, PUB., INC., AT AUGUSTA, MAINE.

Subscription price in United States and United States Possessions 25c a year; Canadian subscriptions 50c a year, foreign countries 75c a year. No premiums or prizes will be given on Canadian or foreign subscriptions. Please send your renewal just as soon as your subscription expires. We can not continue sending COMPORT to you unless you do. If you do not get your magazine by the 25th of the month write us and we will send you another copy free. Please notify us immediately in case you move, so that we can change your address and see that you do not miss a single copy. Remember that we must have your former address, as well as your new address to make the change. Be sure to send both. We do not supply back numbers.

Why Should the Magazine Postage Rate in the United States Be 3 to 20 Times the Canadian Rate?

Patriotism and the spirit of national unity run high in Canada, and they are fostered by the Canadian Government, which encourages and facilitates a nation-wide circulation of Canadian magazines.

At present we have to pay a cent a pound, double the Canadian rate, for which we receive institution any more than the public highways, bridges and schools.

It our people do not wish to suffer such unjust oppression, it behooves them to make their objections at once in the form of petitions to their Congressmen. Remember, the zone rate law has already been adopted and will go into effect July first, unless before that time Congress can be influenced by a vigorous expression of the people's displeasure. Remember, too, that you have to overcome the influence of powerful interests that are opposing the rights of the people and trying to crush the magazines—interests which shumpublicity and would keep the people in the dark ness of iznorance, also interests which would profit financially by the destruction or weakening of the magazines. If, after studying the map and reading our explanation, you favor a level magazine postage rate, uniform throughout the country and not more than three times the Canadian rate, sign the petition printed on page 29 and mail it to your Congressman at Washington.

Copyright, 1900, by Street and Smith. Serial rights by W. H. Gannett, Pub., Inc.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Lady Annesley, stepmother to Sir Thomas and Ravenel Annesley, disappraves of Adrian Gordon, who is in love with Ravenel. Receiving an appointment to India Adrian seals his proposal and Ravenel's promise for an early marriage, by giving her a beautiful ring of diamonds and opals. Not daring to wear it she slips it on a ribbon on her neck. Ravenel bids Adrian good by, unconscious that their conversation, held near the edge of a quarry is heard by Lady Annesley's confidential maid. Four days later Ravenel receives a letter from Adrian that he will go to the Duchess of Avonmore's party and names the following day for their marriage. Lady Annesley, apparently anxious for Ravenel to make a good appearance at the party provides her with a new dress. Ravenel is unsuspicious of intrigue, but Sir Thomas, only sixteen, suspects the scheming woman and her designs on Lord Levallion, a former suitor for her hand, as Ravenel's future husband. Going to the party and not meeting Adrian, Ravenel, with a sob in her throat, wanders through the garden, where she meets Lord Levallion, not knowing it is he. Weary and wanting to go home he offers to take her there. Arriving home she hunts for the lost ring but does not find it. The next day Ravenal prepares for her wedding and waits for Adrian, who fails to meet her. Going home she enters the drawing-room, where she finds Lady Annesley and Lord Levallion, the latter telling her of his cousin Adrian Gordon's departure for India. The Duchess of Avonmore, to Lord Levallion and at the instigation of Lady Annesley she gives Ravenal the impression that there is a Mrs. Gordon. Believing Adrian false she marries Lord Levallion. Coming from the altar, the groom sees a woman in black with a child clinging to her hand and wonders if Ravenal notices her. Three months later Adrian Gordon is reported missing. Lord Levallion goes to the War Office to learn the truth. Sitting alone on the lawn Ravenal sees Adrian Gordon and Lord Levallion is unable to determine where

CHAPTER XVI. (CONTINUED.)

HANK you very much for your present." In spite of his puzzled anger, he obliged her, in a voice utterly flat and lifeless, "But I don't want to keep your ring. I send it back in this. You had better wear it yourself.

"And, as you see, I did, being, as I said, a

"And, as you see, I did, being, as fool."

"Lady Annesley! It was Lady Annesley's ring," she said, standing as if her wits had gone from her, wild, shamelessly truthful. "Listen! I never wrote to you; I didn't know your address, since you never gave it to me. And if I had written I couldn't have sent you back your ring, for I lost it the day before the duchess' garden-party. Yes, two days," marking them off on her fingers, "before that afternoon I waited for you and didn't know you'd thrown me over to sink or swim!"

Yes, two days," marking them off on her fingers, "before that afternoon I waited for you and didn't know you'd thrown me over to sink or swim!"

"You waited—you!" Sister Elizabeth would have screamed with wonder to see the invalid get up like another man, cross the floor between him and his hostess in three strides, and catch her by the shoulder with his sound hand. "For God's sake, Nel, speak out, since you've begun!"

The old name, the old voice with the passion in it broke down her courage, made her forget for one short while that more than lost rings lay between him and her. With a lump in her throat that made her hoarse, she told him all the sorry little story in quick, husky whispers, lest some one might overhear.

"So when you said in your note that you'd be at the duchess'. I went. Lady Annesley gave me a gown. You were not there, and I came home. You said you would come the next day and you never did. And Levallion told me you had sailed—without a word to me. And I'd lost that ring," passionately.

"Levallion! How did he come across you?" with a ghastly wonder if Levallion were quite clean of the business, and heedless that he had never said why he was not at the duchess'. But Ravenel noted.

"He was at the party and was kind to me." With a sudden aside she remembered, and faced him stonily. "But there's no earthly sense in all this! Of course, when I heard you had a wife already I knew you had excellent reason to leave me. It was the first honorable thing you ever did."

"A wife—me!" His hand on her shoulder relaxed suddenly. "Who told you all a lie like that?

"A wife—me!" His hand on her shoulder re-laxed suddenly, "Who told you a lie like that? And how in the name of God did you dare to be-lieve it?"

lieve it "Mrs. Murray—Hester Murray—told me. As for believing it, it seemed all of a piece." "Hester Murray told you—Hester!" His face had been pale enough, but it was blanched now. He remembered suddenly that he was in Levallion's house, talking to Levallion's wife—that at any cost no one must come in and find her like this.

"Sit down," he said. "And I can't stoop; would you mind picking up that ring?" for it looked like a glove cast down for battle. "Now, tell me about Mrs. Murray. What did she say?" "That you found Mrs. Gordon very expensive and a drain on you, and that it had been a boyish folly of yours." she said from her chair at a decent distance from his. "Who did s'e mean, if not your wife?"

Adrian Gordon was dumb. In Levallion's house Levallion's wife asked him this!

CHAPTER XVII. THE SEALED LETTER.

"Sle was not my wife," Gordon said at last, for there was no reason he should not clear himself, if he dared not answer her plain question. "I never had a wife and never will have. The woman Hester Murray meant was nothing to me, though it was true she was in trouble and I helped her, till I found out she was a worthless liar. If Mrs. Murray dared," he hesita d, "to tell you that, some one must have made it very much worth her while."

"Adrian," said Ravenel, her eyes straight on his, "you mean that? Because we're just as if we were dead, you and I. We've got to tell the truth."

truth."
"You know it's true," he answered heavily.
"That woman lied to you. Only I can't see how it was her business," with the vile conviction on him that only at Levallion's own bidding would.
Hester Murray have helped him to take a wife, and with pressure even then. He roused himself sharply. truth

him that only at Levallion's own bidding would Hester Murray have helped him to take a wife, and with pressure even then. He rotised himself sharply.

"Never mind that, it doesn't matter." Since it was too dangerous to touch on! "You say I didn't go to the duchess". Well, I wrote to you that I couldn't go; that it was my only day to marry you." She could hardly hear him, saw him as in a mist through sealding tears of relief that was yet worse anguish. "I waited all day. I came back that night and threw gravel at your window, tried every door in the house, and couldn't wake you or Tommy. Jacobs came out to bark, and found it was a friend—but no one clse. And at dawn I had to go. Surely you must have heard or Tommy must! I made all the noise I dared."

"I never heard," she answered, with a tearless sob, "and Tommy could not have heard any one in the garden, for he slept on the other side of the house." She would not tell him how she had cried herself to sleep on the floor that night, and never waked till dawn. She went on sharply: "If I had heard Jacobs bark I should never have thought of you, because we well etter said the next day was—was when you were coming for me." Not the pains of hell could have made her say "our wedding-day." "I was only wretched because I'd lost your ring and had such a dreadful disappointment at the party. I never dreamed you had come for me while I was out."

"But, of course, I came! I wrote I should." He stared at her with a puzzled frown. "And you said you got my letter?"

"Oh, I got it," slowly. "But you must have made a mistake in it. It said you would come for me on the 14th, and be at the duchess' on the 13th. Look!" with an uncontrollable impulse she did-what she had meant not to do, and threw on the table that lying letter she had kept because she was not brave enough to burn it. "Read for yourself."

Tear-stained, rubbed out with long pouring over, it lay in his hand, but he was looking at the envelope instead of the enclosure.

"You see it was sealed!" she cried. "No one could have opened it."

"That is just it," said Gordon quietly. "I never sealed a letter in my life. I never owned a seal with 'A' on it. That was some one else's work, Nel, not mine." He shook the letter out painfully with one hand and let the light slant across it. "Look," he said, "the dates have been rubbed out and altered. Just five minutes' work and a bit of sealing-wax, but they've ruined you and me. See, I wrote, 'I can't go to the duchess'! And one flick of a rubber made it, 'I can god' But who could have done it? Who could care?"

"Lady Annestey." There were no tears in her eyes, just as there lurked no doubt in her heart. The letters all went to her first. I thought it had escaped her notice, because of the London postmark, and the seal—like a fool!—for in an Annaka and the seal—like a fool!—for in an Annaka lock is a seal with the dates have been rubbed in the properties of the duches in her learn the seal—like a fool!—for in an Annaka lock is the first in the letters all went to her first. I thought it had escaped her notice, because of the London postmark, and the seal—like a fool!—for in an Annaka lock is the first in the late.

"You can't go. It would kill me!" she said quietly. But she drew away from him so that her lace was out of his reach. If he touched the flesh nesley house there must have been plenty of seal's with 'A' on them. And Tommy warned me that very morning that he thought she had her eyes on you and me. I might have known it—when her ladyship was kind!" bitterly. "She couldn't have dared to do it. She had no reason."

Lady Levallion laughed, and it was ugly laughter.

on you and me. I might have known it—when her ladyship was kind!" bitterly. "She couldn't have dared to do it. She had no reason."

Lady Levallion laughed, and it was ugly laughter.

"She is allowed a thousand a year now, and a house," she said, in a voice like her laugh, "She has be. able to shake the dust of dullness and Annesley Chase and mortgages off her feet. Oh! she had reason enough. Tommy said she meant Levallion to marry me, but the funny part of it is that in the end she had nothing to do with it."

"What do you mean?" with a dull horror at the look on her face. "And what did you mean just now about Lady Annesley's ring, when I said you sent mine back?"

"I meant just that," she answered bitterly. "I thought I lost your ring, but I never did, since it's here in mv hand. Who could have sent it to you but Sylvia? And I know now how she got it. She cut the ribbon off my neck when she tried on that wicked dress she gave me. She pretended to arrange the train just to pick the ring off the floor thought even then I must have dropped it in her room, but I was afraid to ask. And then when I was going to stay with the duchess she gave me a ring of hers—and it was the note I sent that ring back to her in that you know by heart. She simply enclosed my ring in it to you. Oh"—she was getting out each jerky sentence breathlessly—"I see it all now! Just like A. B. C. one thing after another. Except," listlessly, "how she found out about it in the first place; but she was allways suspicious. It all began with my trying on that dreadful dress—that I only took for you to see."

"And Levallion saw you instead," quietly.
"You're wrong!" she cried. "It was all Sylvia. Levallion had nothing to do with it. It was I! I, who, affer you went, got wicked. Married him with my eyes open, to hurt you." She covered her face.

But all he said was almost to himself.
"Nel, my Nel all the time!"
"Not now," fiercely, "nor ever! Adrian, can't you see it? We're done for, just as though we were dead."
"You can't!" she whispered. "Not now.

saw nimself as he had been at anything you did.
Tell me, is Tommy also thinking me a scoundrel?"

A penciled letter seemed such a little thing to be able to drag a man's honor in the dust, and take away from him all that life held. There were both dismay and anger in his eyes as he waited for her to answer.

"Tommy only knows I was engaged to you, that I lost my ring and you left me without writing. You needn't think I told any one the rest," simply. "Adrian, what are we going to do? Levallion—he's been good." She faltered, stopped. Yet he knew her white lips were not for Levallion.

ion.

"We can't do anything. I must go away," and he touched the lace at her wrist as if the very hem of her garments were sacred to him; his eyes yourself."

Tear-stained, rubbed out with long pouring over, it lay in his hand, but he was looking at the envelope instead of the enclosure.

"You see it was sealed!" she cried. "No one could have opened it."

"That is just it," said Gordon quietly. "I never sealed a letter in my life. I never owned a seal with "A' on it. That was some one else's work, Nel, not mine." He shook the letter out painfully with one hand and let the light slant across it.

of her wrist she knew that not Tommy, nor hon-or, nor Levallion, could keep her from following him to the end of the world.
"I must. I can't stay here!"
"I could nurse you, take care of you!" wildly, her face bloodless over her lace tie, her collar of Levallion's pearls.
"Any one on God's earth but you!" said Gor-don, with a quick shudder. He leaned back in his chair as if he were faint. He had known the light-of his life was gone out, but he had not known alien fingers had extinguished it against Ravenel Annesley's will.

of his life was gone out, but he had not known alien fingers had extinguished it against Ravenel Annesley's will.

The hard words, the exhaustion in his face, steadied her, as pain always did.

"You're worn out. I had no right to tell you," she said miserably. "I've only hurt you."

"You've shown me heaven," he answered, and bravely, for all his pain of body and mind. "Just that, after being through hell and out again. Go now, Nel. They'll wonder—you've been so long! Give me the ring. I can keep that, can't I? It's all I have, you know."

"But I'll see you again?"

"Not alone," gravely. "It isn't likely. So this is good by."

Good by. After today, then, she would see his face no more. Would never hear his voice, that could mov; her as no voice on earth would ever do; would be alone till she died, the ungrateful, unloving girl Levallion had been good to. And he would be alone, too, but out in the world where he could forget her, as men forget and women never.

Ashy bale, she put that unlucky ring in his women never.

women never.

Ashy pale, she put that unlucky ring in his hand; silent, broken-hearted, turned away from him; and had never loved him so much as now, when he bade her go.

"Nel!" he said, and she turned at the door. But not to go back to him, not to touch his hand not to kiss him but once before she went, for she read his face aright and knew he would have died a thousand deaths first. Only to stand and look at him as he at her, the truth for the first and last time spoken between them. After this it would be Levallion's wife who met him, never Nel Annesley who had loved, him neither wisely ner well, but madly and in the bitterness of her soul.

ly nor well, but madly and in the bitterness of her soul.

"Good by, sweetheart," he murmured. "Be good. Don't forget me," and shut his eyes that he might not see her go.

And neither of them heard the quiet breath-ing of Sister Elizabeth, where she stood goggle-eyed in Adrian's bedroom.

CHAPTER XVIII.

A GROWING CLOUD OF WITNESSES.

"My dear child, how are you?" cried the duchess and kissed Ravenel on both cheeks.

She was the last arrival of the house-party, and she sank into a low chair, by the fire and surveyed the scene, covertly and without her long-handled glasses.

The big hall of Levallion Castle was lit by two fires and a sufficiency—no more—of shaded lamps. There were plenty of cozy corners and secluded chairs behind the great square pillars supporting the low roof, where dull gold gleamed fitfully in the fire flicker. Among the orderly disorder of chairs and tables and palms, people were sitting in twos and threes—occasionally drinking, tea, laughing, warming themselves, and wondering what sort of a married man Levallion made. His past record happily did not point to a dull sojourn under his roof.

But the duchess, like Gallio, cared for none of these things.

Her red, comfortable handsome face was turned to the company of th these things.

Her red, comfortable handsome face was turned to the sumptuous figure at the tea-table, all white velvet and Russian sable and floating, wavy chiffon. "I am Annesley's little girl, turned into an ac-cordion-plaited angel!" thought her grace. blind to everything but surprise. For Ravenel under her wing had been only a remarkably pretty girl, rather quick, almost shy. And here stood a beau-tiful woman, utterly self-possessed, and a work of art from her carefully dressed hair to the way her great gray eyes looked up from her tea-mak-ing.

her great gray eyes 100ked up 110m.

"A maid, that's the reason of those beautifully done waves!" thought the duchess. "But how much prettier she is than I imagined. A woman with those eyebrows and that upper lip might do anything. But what color there is in her face, with those gray-blue eyes and black eyebrows and that surprising bronze hair! She looks—eh, what—Levallion? Oh, tea!"

"It's usual at this hour—or would you rather—"

"It's usual at this hour—or would you rauner—"
"Don't worry me, my good man!" smartly.
"She looks well, Levallion; happier, I think!"
"She is very well." He glanced at his wife across the buzzing room. The duchess was right, she did look happier. The queer, stony look that had been in her eyes was gone. It seemed to him that the change in her dated from one evening when he had found her sitting alone in her room, with a burning color in her cheeks and quick unwonted questions on her tongue. He remembered them now. "Levallion, you really love me? You didn't marry me because Sylvia arranged it—nor just to have a wife? You would have married me all the same even if I'd told you why —" but she had never finished.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 12.)

Want COMFORT in War Time More than Ever

Now that everybody feels the necessity of getting the most for his money COMFORT is in greater amand and it is easier to get COMFORT subscriptions than ever.

COMFORT gives the most for the money.

When people have to economize they know they can't afford to do without COMFORT which teaches the best methods of thrift and economy. Get your subscription clubs for premiums now at the present low subscription rate of 25 cents.

Rate Will Soon be Raised to 35 Cents

This Department is conducted solely for the use of COMFORT sisters, whereby they may give expression to their ideas relative to the home and home surroundings, and to all matters pertaining to themselves and families; as well as opening a way for personal correspondence between each other.

Our object is to extend a helping hand to COMFORT subscribers; to become coworkers with all who seek friendship, encouragement, sympathy or assistance through the interchange of ideas.

assistance through the interchange of ideas.

Any abuse of this privilege, such as inviting correspondence for the purpose of offering an article for sale, or undertaking to charge a sum of money for ideas, recipes or information mentioned in any letter appearing in this department, if reported, will result in the offender being denied the use of these columns.

Do not ask us to publish letters requesting money contributions or donations of any sort. Much as we sympathize with the suffering and unfortunate, it is impossible to do this as we would be flooded with similar requests.

Do not request souvenir postals unless you have complied with the conditions which entitles you to such a notice. See postal request notice in another column.

other column.

cordially invite mothers and daughters of all ages to write to Comfort Sisters' Corner. Every letter will be carefully read and considered, and then the most helpful ones chosen for publication, whether the writer be an old or new sub-

Please write only on one side of the paper, and recipes on a separate sheet.

Always give your correct and full name and address, very plainly written; otherwise your letter will receive no attention.

Address all letters for this department to Mrs. Western Wilkinson, Care Comfort, Augusta, Maine.

PROPOS of nothing in particular, (and these stormy, blustery February days—the kind we get here occasionally—aren't especially conducive to deep thinking) but bearing in mind the need of every cheering sentiment possible to tide us over these troublesome war times, the days of scarcity and nights of anxiety, I am giving you a little poem which has been of great help to me, and as such I want to pass it on to others.

Today

BY DOUGLAS MALLOCH.

"Sure, this world is full of trouble-I ain't said it ain't, Lord! I've had enough and double Reason for complaint, Rain and storm have come to fret me, Skies were often gray;
Thorns an' brambles have beset me
On the road—but, say,
Ain't it fine today!

"What's the use of always weepin',
Makin' trouble last?
What's the use of always keepin'
Thinkin' of the past?
Each must have his tribulation,
Water with his wine,
Life it ain't no celebration.
Trouble? I've had mine—
But today is fine!

"It's today that I am livin',
Not a month ago,
Havin', losin', takin', givin',
As time wills it so.
Yesterday a cloud of sorrow
Fell across the way;
It may rain again tomorrow,
It may rain but, say,
Ain't it fine today!"

Dear Mrs. Wilkinson and Comfort Sisters:

As I have never seen any letters from this part of Ohio, I will speak up. Mrs. Pearl Lackey, please more over just a wee bit so I may sit beside you, as I want to ask some advice about adopting a child. We have been married quite a long time and we want a little one to share our home with us. My sister was, at one time, a nurse in a children's home, and she has told me much about the dear little ones wishing for a father and mother to love them. I know of one home, but you have to pay $300 before you adopt a child. I don't think that is right, do you? I had rather spend that amount on the child's education or something that would do the child good. We would like a little boy between two and three years old. My husband is away all day and I get lonesome staying by myself, and think a child would be company for me. My husband and I dearly love children. Well, Mrs. Lackey, I will say good by to you and go over and sit beside Mrs. V. M.

My dear Mrs. V. M., I can sympathize with you because I know just how you feel. I was quite young when I was married and I do not think I loved my husband as a wife should, and, like you, I married to get a home, as my mother was dead, and missing her love, I wanted someone to love me. My husband hasn't a very good education, either, but just think of the many worse faults some husbands have. Whenever my husband says a word incorrectly I tell him the right way to say it and in such a way that he doesn't become offended and he says I have helped him a lot. He has always been good to me and I got ashamed of myself to think that I didn't love one who was good and kind when I was so hateful in yeturn. My dear, I wouldn't wait for that true love for you may wait in vain. I would give all my love to the one who was trying to make me happy. Cheer up and get all the joy out of life that you can for the years are short.

COMFORT SISTER AND READER.

COMFORT Sister and Reader. It is quite out of the ordinary to be obliged to pay a certain sum of money to the home upon the adoption of a child and there must be other homes near you where it is not necessary and where you have only to prove your financial and moral fitness to care for the child. Instead of thinking how much company the child will be and how much good it will do you, can't you make yourself feel, first of all, how much good you are going to do the child? But you meant that all the time, didn't you?—Ed.

NEW YORK. __
DEAR MES. WILKINSON AND COMFORT SISTERS:

As I was reading the sisters' letters tonight my heart was stirred with pity for the husband of Mrs. Y. M. God pity the man who is worthy and is still denied the love of a wife who took the marriage tows and is now asking the advice of strangers as to leaving him until she knows whether she cares to spend the rest of her life with him or not. Would you be willing he should do the same by you if you were the one that loved? Be warned before it is too late. You have married a good man and now stick to him, respect him, and pray that you will learn to love him. Many wives have made the mistake you are about to make and repent when too late. Do your duty and trust to the Father in Heaven and I am sure you will never be sorry. Let us hear from you is the future.

With love to Mrs. Wilkinson and the sisters. in the future.

With love to Mrs. Wilkinson and the sisters,
Mrs. E. B.

Comfort Sisters' Recipes

IKE the woman who ordered a can of sardines and a box of crackers from her grocer, explaining that she "always liked to have something on hand in case she had company," so do we like to be prepared for the unexpected guest, and if our cellars and storerooms retain part of their original supply of canned goods, and the common, every-day vegetables and fruits are obtainable, we need not mind if meats are soaring as high as the cow of our childhood days, who performed the seemingly impossible feat of jumping over the moon. Just get busy and invent new and appetizing ways of preparing common foods. foods.

LIVER LOAF.—Parboil liver and put through chopper or sieve. To each cup of liver add one half cup bread crumbs, one tablespoon butter, one teaspoon of salt, a little sage and two eggs, well beaten. Mix well, pour into buttered baking dish and bake one hour in slow oven. May be served hot with gravy or eaten cold.

MEAT PIE.—Line bottom and sides of baking dish with pie crust. Into dish put a layer of meat, chopped into small pieces, and covered with a few slices of thinly chopped onion. Over this put a layer of thinly sliced raw potatoes, season with sait and pepper, add another layer of meat and so on till dish is nearly full, having a layer of potatoes on top. Season, add small pieces of butter, dredge with flour and full dish with milk or water. Cover with thick crust and bake about an hour and a half. Any left-over meat can be used.

SCALLOPED POTATOES WITH CHEESE.—Peel and cut raw potatoes into thin slices. Butter a baking dish, cover bottom of dish with layer of potatoes, season, add a little butter, and sprinkle with grated cheese. Add another layer of potatoes and cheese, as before, and so on till dish is full, having grated cheese on top. Pour in enough milk to nearly cover and bake in moderate oven three quarters of an hour, then uncover and let brown.

SCALLOPED HAM AND POTATOES.—Fill buttered baking dish with alternate layers of cold mashed potatoes and thinly sliced or chopped ham, season to taste. Cover with bread crumbs and grated cheese, dot with bits of butter and bake about half an hour in moderate

CORN MEAL MUFFINS.—To five cups of boiling water, add one teaspoon of salt, two tablespoons of sugar, one tablespoon of butter, and slowly stir in one cup of corn meal. Cook one hour in double boiler. Pour into mixing bowl, smooth the top and cover with a few tablespoons of cold water to prevent a crust forming. Let stand until cold, and then beat well, and mix in one cup and a half of fine cornmeal, one cup and a half of whole wheat flour and two even teaspoons of baking-powder. Add one well beaten egg, and beat hard. Drop the mixture into hot gem-pans and bake in hot oven.

CORN MEAL MUFFINS.

MEAT LOAF.—Two and one half pounds meat, ground through chopper, moisten with one cup milk, add one egg, well beaten, one cup bread crumbs, sait, pepper and sage to taste. Mix thoroughly and bake one hour in greased tin.

CARROT CROQUETTES,—Boil carrots till tender, drain and rub through sieve, add thick white sauce to oisten, season to taste, shape into croquettes and the control of the co

STUFFED ONIONS.—Peel onions and place in sauce-pan of boiling salted water and cook till tender. Leave uncovered while cooking. Remove the hearts of the onions and chop with bread crumbs; season with sage and a little butter. Fill the onions with this and place in oven to finish cooking. Serve with mashed potatoes.

mashed potatoes.

Baked Onions with Cheese.—Peel, slice and parboil the onions. Drain and arrange in buttered baking dish, in layers, sprinkling each layer with bread crumbs, seasoned with sait and pepper; dot with small pieces of butter. Fill dish nearly full in this way and bake half an hour. Cover top with grated cheese and return to oven till cheese is melted.

Onions and Tomatoes.—Peel and cook onions, cut in slices and arrange in layers in buttered baking dish. Pour tomatoes over onicos and cover with bread crumbs; season to taste, and bake till brown. PARSNIP CROQUETTES.—Mix a cup and a half of hot mashed parsnips with two tablespons of butter, sait and pepper to season, and one egg, well beaten. Cool, shape in balls, dip in beaten egg, roll in crumbs and fry in hot fat.

APPLE FRITTERS.—Make a batter of two eggs, one cup of milk and a little flour. Have ready apples cut in thick slices. Dip the slices in the batter and fry in deep, hot fat. Serve with sauce.

POTATO AND CHEESE BALLS.—Season left-over mashed potato with sait and pepper, moisten with milk. Add one egg, well beaten, and half the quantity of cheese as you have of potatoes. Form into cakes and bake in hot oven.

LAYER CAKE.—One cup sugar, one half cup lard, three eggs, one cup milk, two teaspoons baking powder, three cups flour and a little salt.

FILLING.—One pint of milk, one cup of sugar, two eggs and one tablespoon corn-starch. Let boil till thick.

MISS LETITIA BURTS, Del Rio, Texas.

thick.

MISS LETITIA DURTS, LPG IND, ACADE

CREAM CAKE.—Two eggs, one cup sugar, one cup sweet cream, pinch of sait, two cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, and vanilla or any desired flavoring.

MRS, FRED A. NEILSON, Maple Plain, Minn.

RICE OMELET.—Beat one cup of boiled rice with one and one half cups milk to a smooth paste. Add two eggs, well beaten, and salt and pepper. Fry till brown and dust with powdered sugar.

LEMON HEARTS.—Chill five tablespoons each of lard and butter, and chop into two cups of chilled flour until like meal. Make into a stiff dough with ice-water. Turn onto a floured board, roll half an Inch thick in a rectangular shape, turn corners toward center, double and roll again to third of an inch thick. Cut into heart shapes; cut centers from two top layers, placing them on one whole heart for bottom crust, with ice-water between to stick them together. Bake in very hot oven thirty minutes, decreasing heat the last ten.

LEMON HEARTS.

With love to Mrs. Wilkinson and the sisters,

Mrs. E. B.

PASCO, WASH.

DEAR SISTERS:

Let's give Uncle Charlie a Valentine dime shower (greery single one of us) the fourteenth of February.

Just think what 1,000,000 dimes would mean to him

Let's give Uncle Charlie a Valentine dime shower (greery single one of us) the fourteenth of February.

Just think what 1,000,000 dimes would mean to him

BOILED ICING.—One and one half cups powdered sugar, one half cup water, let come to a boil, and boil a few minutes until it drops heavy and forms threads; then pour on the stiffly beaten whites of two eggs. Use any flavor preferred.

MISS MARY BROWN, Branon, Texas.

Onions in Puffed Potato Ring.—Boil potatoes, mash and season with salt. For two cups, add one third cup of hot milk, two tablespoons of butter, white pepper, and the beaten yolk of one egg. Beat,

ONION IN PUFFED POTATO BING.

add the beaten white of egg, and form in a ring on a serving plate. Bake until puffed and brown. Boll small onions, drain, and heap inside of ring just before serving. Any other kind of vegetable can be used in place of onions.

CARAMEL.—One cup of sugar, two squares of choco late, one teaspoon butter, one half cup milk or water Set dish in boiling milk and stir until thick enough.

spread.

GINGER SNAPS.—One cup sugar, two eggs, one cup lard, one cup molasses, one tablespoon vinegar, two teaspoons cinnamon, one teaspoon cloves, one teaspoon ginger, one third cup sour milk, two teaspoons soda, dissolved in milk. Flour to roll very soft.

MRS. E. F. LANTOW, Sumner, Iowa.

BUTTER SCOTCH PIE.—One cup boiling water, one cup brown sugar, three tablespoons flour, one heaping tablespoon butter, yolk of one egg beaten with a little water, and one teaspoon vanilla. Mix sugar and flour together, add boiling water and place on stove till mixture boils. Stir in egg and butter, cook till thick and remove from stove and flavor. Pour in baked crust. Add beaten white of egg, with sugar, to top of pie and put in oven to brown.

MRS. M. COLE, Conway Springs, Kans.

PUMPKIN PIE.—Two cups of pumpkin for each pie,

PUMPKIN PIE.—Two cups of pumpkin for each pie, one egg, well beaten, three quarters cup of sugar, or half a cup will do, two cups sweet milk, one half teaspoon salt and a little cinnamon or ginger.

BANNA PIE.—Fill crust with slices of bananas and cover with the following: One beaten egg, one half cup cream, one half cup sugar, a few specks of butter and a little cinnamon. Bake.

MRS. FEED A. NEILSON, Maple Plain Minn.

MRS. FRED A. NELLSON, Maple Plain Minn.
EGGLESS CAKE.—Two cups sugar, one half cup butter, two cups sweet milk, three cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder and one teaspoon vanilla. Cream butter and sugar together, add one cup of milk, then part of flour and beat well. Add the other cup of milk and rest of flour and beat 10 minutes. Flour and baking powder should be sifted four or five times before mixing. efore mixing.
Mrs. WILLIE HOLZHEAUSER, Inez, Texas.

MRS. WILLIE HOLZHEAUSER, Inez, Texas.

SPONGE CAKE.—Two eggs, one cup sugar, one cup flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one teaspoon lard, one half cup milk and one teaspoon vanilla. Beat eggs with sugar, stir in flour sifted with baking powder. Put lard in milk on stove till lard is melted, add to batter. Add vanilla last. Bake in loaf and spread with icing. Some may think this cake will not be thick enough but the flour mentioned is sufficient.

MRS. WALTER ALVERSON, Detroit, Mich.

MEAT BALLS, BOILED ONIONS AND LIMA BEANS.—Chop one pound of clear meat with one onion and season with pepper and salt. If there is no fat on the meat, add a little beef suct or pork fat. Form into flattened balls and brown slowly in hot fat. raw meat is used, cook in hotter pan, and turn often until brown. Arrange on platter, alternating meat cakes with boiled onions, and in the center heap stewed and seasoned Lima beans.

MEAT BALLS, BOILED ONIONS AND LIMA BEANS.

CARBOT PIE.—Scrape carrots and boil until tender. Mash, and to one cup of carrots add a cup and a half of milk, one well beaten egg, sugar to sweeten, and sait, cinnamon and ginger to taste. Bake in one crust like custard pie.

PRUNE TURNOVERS.—Cook prunes, remove pits, sweeten, and add lemon juice according to amount of prunes. Have ready a pie paste cut into circles or squares; place a tablespoon of prunes on one half of crust and fold other half over, pinching the edges together. Bake.

of crust and fold other half over, pinching the edges together. Bake.

CRANGERRY DUMPLINGS.—These dumplings are easily made from materials always at hand. They supply a delicious dessert for the simple dinner of a busy day. Make a sauce of one quart of cranberries, one and one half cups of water and two cups of sugar. Better still, use cranberry (or plum) sauce, which is already prepared by simply heating it to the boiling point. Use a granite or aluminum kettle. For the dumplings make a thick batter from two cups of flour, one heaping teaspoon of baking-powder, a pinch of salt and three quarters of a cup of milk. Drop the batter by large tablespoon into the boiling sauce. Steam under a tight cover, for twenty minutes. Serve plain or with a favorite pudding sauce.

RHUBARB SHORTAKE.—Make a shortcake by any preferred recipe. Split and butter it while hot and spread with the following: Cook together two cups of thick, well sweetened rhubarb sauce and one cup of raisins, chopped fine, for about five minutes. Spread each layer while hot and on the top layer, over the rhubarb, spread a layer of sweetened whipped cream. Katherine D. Hoza, *Ilse, Colo.

RHUBARB PUDDING.—One quart pink rhubarb, one

RHUBARR PUDDING.—One quart pink rhubarb, one cup white sugar, two tablespoons corn-starch in enough water to make thin paste. Clean and cut the rhubarb into inch lengths. Cook until tender, then put through a strainer. Cook the juice obtained, add sugar and starch mixture and let cook till very thick. Pour into wet molds and serve cold with cream.

GOLDIE MARCELLA ALEXON, Northfield, Minn.

CARBOT PUDDING.—One cup grated carrots, one cup grated potatoes, one cup brown sugar, one cup raisins, seeded and chopped, one half cup currants, one cup suet, two cups flour, one half teaspoon soda, one half cup sour milk and any desired flavoring.

PRUNE PUDDING.—Stew until tender one pound of prunes, remove stones. Beat the whites of three eggs to a stiff froth, add three tablespoons sugar, beat well and add this to the prunes. Bake half an hour.

with cream.
MRS. A. R. HAGER, Wittenburg, Alta., Can.

A Daily Magazine of Unusual Interest to Women

The Christian Science Monitor, published every week-day in Boston, U. S. A., is of special interest to women of progressive thought no matter where they live nor what their faith or creed may be.

It furnishes the news of the entire world through which women may equip themselves to take the new place being made inevitable for them, politically, socially and industrially.

It stands firmly with the cause of equality for the sexes and against the forces which seek to perpetuate the disenfranchisement of woman, with abstinence and sobriety against license and insobriety.

By reason of its freedom from sensationalism and scandal, its clear presentation of the good in the world and its fearless exposure of the evil and its causes, it is widely recognized as an ideal newspaper for the whole family.

Nor is the home nor the arts subordinated, for The Monitor's cooking, household, fashion, educational, art, music and children's departments are famous and widely quoted by other periodicals.

The Christian Science Monitor is on sale throughout the world at news stands, hotels and Christian Science reading-rooms at 3c a copy. A monthly trial subscription by mail anywhere in the world for 75c, a sample copy on request.

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE PUBLISHING SOCIETY U. S. A.

and how little it would mean to us. Send more if you want, but don't be ashamed of a dime. We are saving to pay for our little home, and even though money is scarce, what is a dime to any of us, so let's shower him with dimes.

Best wishes to all the sisters.

COUNTRY SISTER FROM WASHINGTON.

Country Sister from Washington. My, but wouldn't that be a valentine worth receiving, and just how much Uncle Charlie would appreciate it is impossible for me to state—my vocabulary is too limited. Thanks, in his behalf, and Comport's, for the suggestion.—Ed.

GLENMORA, LA.

Dear Mrs. Wilkinson and Sisters:

I have often wanted to write to this corner but hesitated to add my bit, for it would take too much space to tell how I love and appreciate Comfort, with all its nelps.

We have just moved into a log camp, ten miles from town. Have been here only two weeks now but already we have a Sunday School organized and would appreciate reading matter or suggestions from the sisters as we are all beginners.

I heartily agree with you upon the subject "How I Helped My Husband." Last spring I rented a place in a small town, where I could have a large garden and potato patch and room for chickens. I spent $1.60 for ploughing and did the rest of the work myself with hee and rake. My total expense was $6.20 and $4.00 of that was for a bushel of seed potatoes. I sold $17.30 worth of vegetables, and canned tomatoes, beans, corn, etc., and made pickles. I sold $7.00 worth of canned goods so that made a profit of $24.30 on my garden besides the fresh vegetables we ate and the canned goods we are eating this winter.

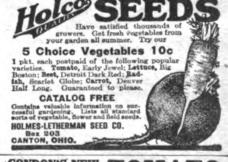

I sold over 200 chickens, eighty-six being day-old chicks, at 10 cents each, and the rest were sold in small lots, at frying size, from 16 to 21 cents per pound. I neglected to keep account of what these brought me but I was certainly repaid.

I am five feet, two inches tall, weigh 116 pounds and have blue eyes and a fair complexion. I have two boys, five and theer years of age.

I would like to hear from the sisters and will exchange quilt patterns and crochet patterns for quilt pieces.

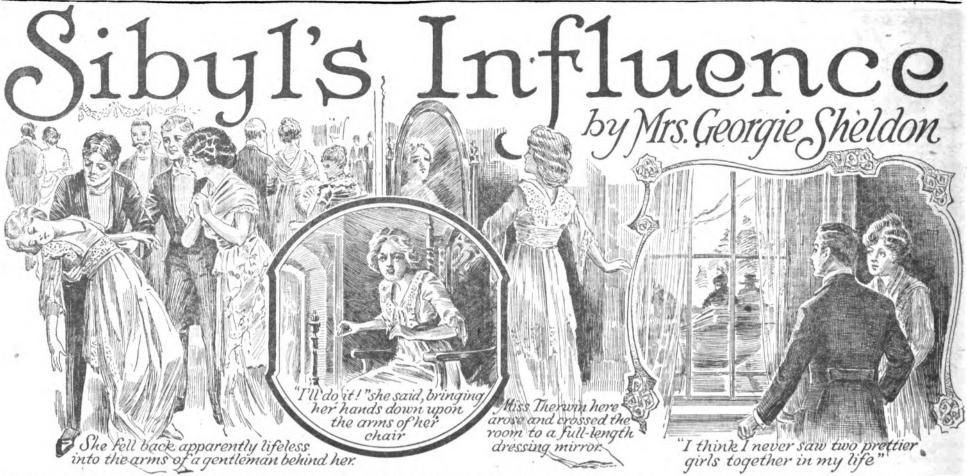

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 23.)

CONDON'S NEW TOMA

CONDON BROS., SEEDSMEN

Copyright renewed, 1908 by Mrs. Georgie Sheldon Downs.

Serial rights by W. H. Gannett, Pub., Inc.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Lady Prescott, wife of Sir Athelstone Prescott, and her son Raymond, while traveling by coach, lose their way, and night overtaking them, they stop at a miserable inn, in a little fishing village on Flamborough Head. They are attracted to a little girl, Sibyl, who waits on them. Her winning ways, her admittance of the cruel blows given by Mistress Sloan, and that her own mother would not do it, convince them that the innkeeper is not her father, and they determine to take the child away. Seeking Mistress Sloan, they learn that a woman who had been in a railroad smash up and injured leaves the child, who for weeks cries for Nansie. Mistress Sloan, for the consideration of thirty pounds, consents to let the child go, muttering she will keep her secrets. That night Sibyl is awakened and overhears Jem and his wife talking over the terms of the bargain, and through a chink in the wall she detects the place where an invaluable trinket, belonging to her, is concealed. The next morning she secures it. To Lady Prescott she traces three letters "S. H. S.," which she dimly remembers and which convinces Lady Prescott that the gem is Sibyl's, and by it she may be restored to her own, people. Five years later, her nineteenth birthday, Lady Prescott introduces her to society. She clasps a beautiful chain, to which is suspended the trinket, around her neck, and with Raymond they seek the drawing-room.

CHAPTER VII.

AN ASTONISHING REVELATION.

AN ASTONISHING REVELATION.

HIS was to be Sibyl's first real introduction into the gay and fashionable world, although Lady Prescott had permitted her to accompany her into society a very few times as an unobserved observer of the customs and manners of polite society for her future benefit.

Yet Sir Athelstone and Lady Prescott's ward had been a subject of much comment and curiosity for many a year.

At nineteen, and during the six years which she had spent with Lady Prescott, she had gained an education superior to that acquired by very many persons of her age, who had received the best advantages during all their lives.

Still she was not satisfied even yet.

Making Raymond's high attainments her standard, nothing could satiate her desire for knowledge, until she could feel that she stood on a level with him; and she persisted in devoting several hours of every day to study, even though she was now to be introduced into that magic world called "society."

Standing as in awe of him, Sibyl had always been, very shy of him, "barricading herself," as he had said, behind an impenetrable reserve, which, to say the least, made him exceedingly uncomfortable. Yet he had written to her regularly, and suggested many things regarding her studies, which she had persisted in following out to the masters.

These letters she had treasured with a feeling almost amounting to reverence, and only her own masters.

These letters she had treasured with a feeling almost amounting to reverence, and only her own heart was conscious of the shrine which she had allotted to him in her great and sensitive soul.

Yet with all her happiness, and though surrounded by every luxury that heart could desire, there was ever one void which could not be filled —ever that longing and reaching out after her own mother.

ever that longing and reaching out after her own mother.

She never went into a crowd but what her eyes would search and read the faces of those around her, eagerly seeking for some familiar lineament which still clung like a faint mist to her memory. But tonight these thoughts were all set aside, and with her beautiful birthday gifts in her hands, and gleaming upon her bosom, her eyes luminous with joy and anticipation, she stood beside Lady Prescott to assist in receiving her guests, and also to receive necessary introductions.

Raymond, a little at one side, watched her keenly—her every motion and expression—as guest after guest came forward and was presented to her to her.

His face, at first, had worn the least look of anxiety, fearing lest she should not pass this trying ordeal as gracefully as he could desire.

But gradually the lines about his mouth relaxed, his brow cleared, a satisfied smile crossed his lips, and his eyes grew deep and tender, as if his heart were softly stirred with some glad if his heart were softly stirred with some glad emotion.

Sibyl's manner was perfect, simple, and unassuming, yet stately and self-possessed, as though she had been accustomed to it all her life, to the homage and admiration which she was in reality now receiving for the first time.
"Sibyl is very beautifui, mother," Raymond observed, repeating aloud what he had said to himself many times before that evening.
"Yes, Ray, very!"
There was something in the young man's tones that made his mother bend a searching glance upon him.

"She is remarkably refined and cultivated, too, considering how late it was when she began to study. I was very much surprised on my return to find her the true lady that she is."

"Yes. I never saw any one so hungry for knowledge as Sibyl."

"You are very fond of her, mother." Raymond

You are very fond of her, mother," Raymond said, while something of a like sentiment shone in his own fine eyes. "I must confess it, I fear," she answered, smil-

"If must confess it, I fear," she answered, smiling.

"You consider her the equal of any one—a fit mate for any one?"

"Certainly, or I should not introduce her into a world where she cannot fail to attract and be attracted," was the somewhat spirited reply.

"But what could we say if the question of her birth should be raised?"

"It is sufficient for any one to know that she is the hiece, ward, adopted daughter—or whatever you like—of Sir Athelstone Prescott," returned Lady Prescott, somewhat loftily, and with heightened color.

"And yet there are some here tonight who would not consider that a sufficient guarantee for her fitness to occupy certain positions in life," persisted Raymond, anxious to sound his mother on all points.

would not consider that a sumcient guarantee for her fitness to occupy certain positions in life," persisted Raymond, anxious to sound his mother on all points.

"She speaks for herself as to her fitness. Look at her now! No duchess could entertain more gracefully."

"I see!" he returned.

"The child is in no way responsible for her birth, be it high or low; but I do not feel at all anxious upon the subject. In my own mind, I am convinced that the very best blood flows in her veins."

"But in the future, if you should discover to the contrary, would the knowledge change your feelings at all toward her?"

"Not in the least; shee sunto me as a dear daughter, and my heart and my home would ever be open to her," responded the whole-hearted woman, warmly.

Raymond heaved a sigh of relief.

"Then, of course, mother mine, you have no objection to others of your family entertaining the same sentiments," he said, in a low, concentrated tone.

Lady Prescott started violently.

"Raymond!" she exclaimed.

"I have never seen any one, mother, who has seemed to me so beautiful. I have never seen any one who has attracted me as Sibyl does." he answered softly, and meeting her inquiring glance unflinchingly, though a deep tenderness beamed in his eyes.

"But she seems such a child beside you, my boy—you are seven years older—and I never thought of such a thing as your loving her," she said, uneasily.

"The difference in our ages is not so great as in those of another couple whom I know." Ray.

thought of such a thing as your loving her," she said, uneasily.

"The difference in our ages is not so great as in those of another couple whom I know," Raymond replied, with a light laugh.

Lady Prescott laughed softly, too, at this; a flush mantled her cheek, and her eyes grew tender, as they sought her husband's face across the room.

"Yes, your father is ten years older than I, I know, but Sibyl was such a child when we took her, and you were a man even then. The years have sped so swiftly that she seems scarcely more than a child now," she returned, with a sigh. sigh.

more than a child now," she returned, with a sigh.

"To me she seems wholly changed, and yet I have always expected that she would develop into something more than an ordinary woman."

"Ray—" began his mother, hesitatingly, "did you mean to make a confession to me tonight?"

"Tonight, or some time very soon. I find that I am hourly becoming more deeply interested in our enchanting princess, and I thought my mother had the first right to my confidence," he returned frankly, and with a look of deep affection.

"Thank you, dear, and I should like nothing better than to keep both of my children with me always. But, I don't know what your father will say, Ray," she concluded, with a little look of anxiety on her fair face.

"I trust my father will remember his own youthful days, and do as he was done by," he answered, lightly.

"But his ideas regarding caste are rather strict, you know."

"I know, that even he, with all his conserva-

"But his ideas regarding caste are rather strict, you know."
"I know, that even he, with all his conservativeness, cannot withstand the charms of Sibyl. And now; mother, if you will excuse me, I will go and find my princess for a dance."
With a graceful bow he turned away, leaving her to meditate upon the astonishing revelation which he had just made.

two or three, and before he was hardly aware of what occurred. Raymond Prescott was introduced to Miss Ada Therwin.

He cordially acknowledged the honor, while he was forced to confess, as his critical eye wandered over the fair stranger, that, aside from Sibyl, she was the most strikingly handsome woman present that evening.

"I have not yet been presented to the debutante, and General Maplewood was about to do me that honor," she said, in low, flute-like tones, and lifting a pair of marvelously expressive gray eyes to his face.

Raymond bowed, and immediately turned to attract Sibyl's attention.

Miss Therwin was formally introduced, and at once engaged the fair girl in genial conversation, while her restless eyes noted every item of her appearance.

But he quickly dropped her white lids to hide it, and gently laid the ornament back upon Sibyl's stenting.

"I hank you," she said, softly, with a sigh. "It is so very curious, you know, that am deeply interested."

Her manner was so winning, and she did really seem so interested, that Sibyl could not refuse, and, leaning forward, let the jewel swing toward her.

Miss Therwin took it in her hand, and studied it intently for a moment, then carelessly turning it over, looked upon the back.

Her face instantly grew very white again, and a light like the glitter of polished steel leaped into her eyes as she at a glance read the figures engraven there.

But she quickly dropped her white lids to hide it, and gently laid the ornament back upon Sibyl's exceedingly lovely, and"—smiling in a strange way. Sibyl thought—"I am almost covetous way.

once engaged the fair girl in genial conversation, while her restless eyes noted every item of her appearance.

But her operations were suddenly arrested by something which seemed to paralyze her. She stopped in the middle of a smoothly-flowing sentence, her face growing as white as the snowy feathers upon Sibyl's fan. An expression of wondering terror sprang into her eyes, a cry of fear parted her lips, and she fell back apparently lifeless into the arms of a gentleman behind her, without an instant's warning.

Confusion reigned for the next few moments, while Sibyl, greatly startled, and her tender heart filled with the deepest sympathy for the beautiful stranger, insisted upon having her borne to a quiet room, where she herself remained in anxious attendance upon her until she revived.

The swoon proved to be nothing serious; at least Miss Therwin made light of it as soon as she came to herself.

"It is nothing," she said, looking up smilingly into Sibyl's anxious face. "I shall soon be all right; but how awkward of me, and I have taken you from your guests, besides," she added, with an appearance of regret.

"That does not matter while you need me," was the reply of her gentle hostess, "but what caused you to faint?"

"I felt suddenly dizzy, and then lost myself before I knew it. I have been affected in the caused you to faint?"

"I felt suddenly dizzy, and then lost myself before I knew it. I have been affected in the same way before once or twice, when I have been in crowded rooms," Miss Therwin replied, at the same time regarding Sibyl so strangely, and looking so pale again that the young girl feared she was going to faint a second time.
"You are feeling very ill even now," she said, as she hastened to bring her a glass of wine.
"No, indeed, I am really much better," Miss Therwin replied, sitting up, but she drank the wine, and soon the color returned to her lips and cheeks.

wine, and and cheeks.

and cheeks.

She immediately began chatting in a careless way, and it was not long before Sibyl forgot her anxiety, and became deeply interested in her sparkling conversation.

Little by little she led the conversation from one subject to another, and it was while speaking of jewels that she suddenly stopped short, and exclaimed:

claimed:

"By the way, Miss Prescott, I observe that you wear a very curious ornament on your neck;" and she bent forward to examine it more closely. "Yes," Sibyl replied, flushing a trifle. "Pardon," Miss Therwin continued, sweetly. "It is very beautiful, and doubtless very valuable. I never saw letters so curiously interwoven in the setting of jewels before."

"What! have you discovered the letters so readily?" cried Sibyl with a start, and exceeding wonder expressed in her tones.

"Yes; they are 'S. H. S.," are they not?" and she pointed at each separately with her rosy finger.

and sne pointed at each separately with her rosy finger.

"No one has ever been so quick to read them before!" Sibyl replied, still regarding Miss Ther-win with surprise, while a sense of uneasiness crept over her.

crept over her.

Miss Therwin colored ever so little and bit her lip at Sibyl's last words; then, with a light laugh, she said:

"I shall have to confess to you that I am very observing, particularly of jewels—nice jewels, I mean—for I am very fond of them."

Then she added, referring again to the ornament upon Sibyl's neck:

"This must be quite an ancient piece of work—at least, it does not belong to our day. Is it an heir-loom?"

"I suppose it belonged to my mother," Sibyl said, tremplously, and with a reverent intensitien.

CHAPTER VIII.

A WELL-SPRING OF PLEASURE.

A moment later a middle-aged gentleman of a somewhat military bearing approached, accompanied by a beautiful lady of perhaps twenty an heir-loom?"

"I suppose it belonged to my mother," Sibyl said, tremulously, and with a reverent intonation upon the last word.

"Suppose! Don't you know?" Miss Therwin had nearly exclaimed, and starting violently, but, recovering herself, she merely remarked:

"Ah! doubtless these letters 'S. H. S.' were her initials. Will you allow me to examine it more

Get Subs for Premiums Before Price Advances

The coming March Household Number of COMFORT will be worth the price of a year's subscription to any housekeeper, which makes it especially easy to get subscriptions now.

Tell your friends about it and get their subscriptions at the present low yearly rate of 25 cents before the price is raised to 35 cents.

Begin today. Your choice of premiums or cash commission. Write for premium catalogue. Rising cost of premiums will soon necessitate larger clubs for same articles.

engraven there.
But she quickly dropped her white lids to hide it, and gently laid the ornament back upon Sibyl's neck.

"Thank you," she said, softly, with a sigh. "It is exceedingly lovely, and"—smiling in a strange way. Sibyl thought—"I am almost covetous enough to wish it were mine instead of yours."

If Sibyl could only have known why she wished it were hers!

"I do not wonder you prize it so highly," she added, a moment later, "since it was your mother's. "But," changing the subject and glancing around, "what a beautiful home you have, and how happy you must be, as the petted darling of such persons as Sir Athelstone and Lady Prescott—they are relatives of yours, I believe."

Sibyl regarded her companion in astonishment for a moment. For a stranger, she thought she was overstepping the bounds of etiquette, by displaying so much curiosity.

But Miss Therwin sat with a beautifully unconscious smile on her white lips, while she keenly watched the young girl out of the corners of her drooping eyes.

"They are the dearest friends that I have in the world," replied Sibyl, somewhat coldly, while her manner became rather proud and restrained.

Then rising, she continued:

"As you are so far recovered, I shall have to ask you to excuse me, since I ought to return to my guests."

"You are right, Miss Prescott, and I beg your pardon for detaining you so long. But," with a winning smile, "I do not like to excuse you, if you will allow me to accompany you."

"Cretainly, if you are able."

"I am entirely recovered, and we will return to the company together." But, Miss Prescott, you do not know how I have enjoyed this little chat with you, even though it were brought about so unpleasantly."

With charming grace Miss Therwin linked her arm within Sibyl's, and they returned to the guests, with the appearance of having been friends for years, instead of acquaintances of only an hour.

"Your ward is very lovely," Miss Therwin remarked, later in the evening, to Lady Prescott.

She had been watching for an opportunity to con remarked, later in the evening, cott.

She had been watching for an opportunity to converse with her hostess alone all the evening. Evidently the fair stranger had something of importance on her mind.

"Yes, Sibyl is very precious to us, and, of course, she seems so in our sight," her ladyship replied, much pleased with the praises of her darling, which were continually sounding in her ears.

ears.
"Is it long since she lost her parents?" was "Is it long since she lost her parents?" was the next abrupt query.

Lady Prescott lifted her eyebrows in well-bred surprise at the strange question, but Miss Therwin's face was so expressive of interest and sympathy, that she could not feel very much offended.

"While she was very young," was the rather unsatisfactory reply.

pathy, that she could not feel very much offended.
"While she was very young," was the rather unsatisfactory reply.
"Perhaps," Miss Therwin added, "I should not have spoken of her so freely, but I have experienced a deep interest in her from the fact of her being an orphan like myself."
This was said so softly and sadly that Lady Prescott's kind heart was instantly touched.
"Are you, dear?" she asked gently.
"Yes; and another singular coincidence is that I, too. have always been kindly cared for by relatives."

"You are a stranger, I believe, in Dumfrles, Miss Therwin?" Lady Prescott next remarked, feeling a natural delicacy about receiving too much confidence from one of whom she knew so little, and thus changed the subject somewhat abruptly.

Miss Therwin's eyes flashed, but she answered, politely:
"Yes, I am visiting, or spending the winter, I should say, in General Maplewood's family."
"But," she continued, impulsively, "I hope I need not remain a stranger to Miss Sibyl; I am strangely attracted toward her. May I seek her friendship, Lady Prescott?"

The request was proffered with so much modesty, and apparently with such a real feeling, that her ladyship replied, very graciously:
"I have such confidence in Sibyl, Miss Therwin, that I allow her to choose her own friends; therefore, if her choice falls upon you, you will always be a welcome guest here."

"I shall call upon you very soon," she said, taking both Sibyl's hands at parting. "I feel as if you and I might be excellent friends upon a better acquaintance; and I shall not soon forget how kind you were to me while I was ill tonight."

Sibyl made some gracious reply, but in her

Sibyl made some gracious reply, but in her

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 24.)

By Violet Marsh

Copyright, 1918, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

our children. The mother whose chosen work in this world lies in attending to the wants of husband and children, finds she has just as necessary and all-important a war work before her as the woman who can drop home cares in pursuance of Red Cross and other patriotic services, for in the hands of the home woman lies to a great extent the future of affective for in the mother, the conservation of food becomes a more complex matter. To provide herself with food sufficient and suitable to sustain strength and efficiency, appears simple enough, but it may be a problem to procure the proper kind of nourishment for her children, as they must have foods that build flesh and bone. Next to work of running the home twenty-second, use the Fort Cake in the center of table, and make the bonbon dishes of red, white and blue paper in the form of tiny cocked hats, instead of heart shapes. Paper hatchets with a small unmounted picture of Mt. Vernon, Washington's home, if obtainable, make interesting place cards and souvenirs.

FORT CAKE FOR WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY.

FORT CAKE FOR WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY.—
Cream butter the size of a walnut with twothirds cup of sugar; add one well beaten egg and beat hard. To one rounding cup of flour add one teaspoon of cream of tartar and half a teaspoon of soda. Add to the beaten egg and sugar a little milk, then a little flour, and so on until all the milk and flour is used, then bake in a loaf. Cover with white frosting, and on one side insert barley candy that can often be found in cannon shape. On top of cake pile chocolate-coated, round candles to represent cannon balls, and in the center stand a small American flag.

can flag.

Hearts of Toast.—Cut stale bread of any kind into inch slices and trim into heart shapes. Bent one egg, add one quarter of a teaspoon of salt and one cup of milk. Dip hearts into egg and milk and fry a golden brown. Have all prepared a taploca jelly made by washing quarter of a pound of taploca in cold water and adding cold water to cover two inches. Cook very slowly in double cooker until the taploca is clear and dissolved, then add two cups of sweetened fruit juice and let it remain hot until the taploca has absorbed the fruit juice. Cranberry juice gives the right Valentine suggestion. Have the jelly just cold enough so it will drop around the edges of hearts and remain firm until served. This dish is very delicious, as well as attractive, and takes the place of the old-time cake and candy valentine cookies.

VALENTINE JELLY.—This jelly is made in three

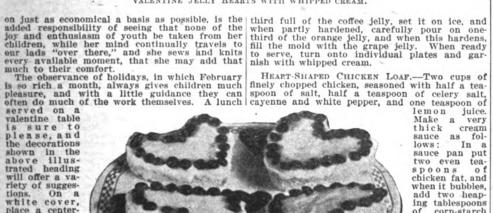

VALENTINE JELLY HEARTS WITH WHIPPED CREAM.

tions. On a white cover, white cover, place a center-piece of paper or real flowers in a basket or bowl. Surround it with large hearts cut from pink or red cardboard or paper, or tinted with water color. Smaller hearts are add two heap-ing tablespoons ing tablespoons of corn-starch or four heaping tablespoons of flour; stir until smooth, and then very slowly add two cups of scalding milk. stirring milk, milk, constantly. It should not stop aking while is cooking the milk

HEARTS OF TOAST AND JELLY.

with water color. Smaller hearts are placed in groups to nearly cover the cloth. The place cards may be valentines. The bonbon dishes are four hearts tied together with ribbon, and on these and the place cards are cupids with drawn bows. If a cake is preferred for a centerpiece, in place of the flowers, use the Fort Cake with its patriotic suggestions; only, before the frosting and decorations are added, insert a ring for the one to be married first, a coin for future riches, a tiny horseshoe for good luck, and a thimble for the one fated to single blessedness, the four prophetic gifts of Saint Valentine, who loved everybody and went from house to house showering his gifts and blessings. And while we celebrate in memory of good Saint Valentine, we have, today, our faithful gray. we colebrate in memory of good Saint Valentine, we have, today, our faithful gray-uniformed friend, the postman, the most generally looked-for visitor on the 14th day of February. Now to change the table decorations for the glebration of Washington's birthday, February ley on each and serve at once.

"By Using Royal Baking Powder You Can Make a Big Saving in Eggs"

Leave out one-half or more of the eggs, and in place of each egg omitted use an additional teaspoon of

ROYAL BAKING

Try this method with all your baking recipes. You will find it a most satisfactory way of economizing.

Also try the following recipes which save wheat flour as urged by the U.S. Food Administration.

Oatmeal Biscuits

1¼ cups flour
3 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
NO EGGS

2 cup water
1½ cups cooked oatmeal or rolled oats
6 tablespoons shortening

Sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar together. Add catmeal, melted shortening and enough water to make a soft dough. Roll out thin on floured board; cut with biscuit cutter and bake in greased pan in moderate oven about 20 minutes.

Prune Cake

'4 cup shortening
1'3 cups brown sugar or 1 cup corn syrup
'4 cup milk
1 cup rye flour
'4 cup white flour NO EGGS

3 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon

1/2 teaspoon nutmeg 1/2 lb. prunes (washed, stoned and cut into pieces)

Gream shortening; add sugar, or syrup, and milk. Mix well and add the flour which has been sifted with the spices and baking powder. Add the prunes and mix well. Put into greased loaf pan and bake in hot oven 30 to 35 minutes.

Send for our two economy books which are mailed free: "55 Ways to Save Eggs"; and "Best War Time Recipes," a helpful guide to food conservation.

ADDRESS ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO. 130 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK

Save Wheat by Substituting Coarser Flours and Help Win the War

CROSS CURRENTS

By Maud Mary Brown

Copyright, 1918, by W. H. Gannett, Pub., Inc.

FFORE she had given his number, her husband's last words repeated themselves in her ears. Good? Her eyes fell to the letter which was still clutched in her tense fingers. Good? The receiver dropped from her hand and swung, swinging idly.

What had she been about to do? Suddenly she felt like a cheat, an intriguer. She could not take advantage of her husband's weakness in this fashion. It was wrong and no amount of reasoning could make it right. She could never heal her bruised conscience with sophistry. Her face ashen, she sat down and broke the seal of Waverley's letter.

With shaking fingers, Marcia drew the closely-written letter from its envelope.

"Dear Marcia:"—it ran—"Since leaving you I have gone step by step over your decision, and you are right. You are not the woman to be contented with a compromise with life. Perhaps I am not that kind of a man. I don't know. Tonight I feel that only to have you, no matter how or where, would be enough happiness for me, here or hereafter. You have dedicated your life to service, and with your example before me I can do no less. Dear, all through my boylood and youth, I lived next door to a girl. Her name is Lois Temple. I think our parents expected as to marry when we had left off playing and quarrelling with each other. But our paths divided when we went to college. I was, from that time on, less and less at home. Then Lois' father lost his money in a wild speculation, and after he died, heartbroken, she moved to a nother city, where she taught, and we lost sight of each other. I saw her last year. Marcia, she has gone hame. 'Disease of the bone,' she told me, 'and incurable.' And her plucky chin quivered a little as she said it. Incurable? Perhaps. But money and science can perform miracles these days. If I cannot have the woman I love, I am going, if she will give her consent, to marry the woman to whom I can be of service. That is all. You have set the pace. Marcia, and always, somewhere, I shall be following along in my stumbling fashion, listening for a word about you, watching your work. Good luck, dear. And peace be with you. "Dear Marcia:"--it ran-"Since leaving Marcia scarcely could see through the shower of her tears as she took up her pen and finished the Oriental valediction, "And with you peace." This she placed in an envelope, and, addressing it to Waverley, she bowed her head on her folded arms and wept.

She felt alone and abandoned. She was, she thought bitterly, a piece of life's excess baggage. She had made a supreme renunciation for her husband, only to be told before her exaltation had subsided that he preferred another woman. It did not occur to her during those first moments of her emotional storm that, with her inherited principles, the absence of moral obliquity in her nature, she could not have done less. Her head was not yet high at the thought of a duty nobly done.

in her nature, she could not have done less. Her head was not yet high at the thought of a duty nobly done.

All she remembered was that now Saxon Waverley's thought—all the amazing warmth of his nature—would be lavished on another woman. That was the bitter draught which she must swallow. That she was the one beloved, afforded her scant consolation.

She was torn with her jealousy of this woman. This Lois Temple. She was glad she was lame—hoped she would never.... She snatched her thoughts back from their ugly course.

Her first spiritual tempest past, Marcia rose, bathed her eyes and powdered away the traces of her weeping. Then, going down-stairs, she carried her message to Waverley to the near-by mail box, and, coming back, she tapped at her husband's study door.

At his response, she entered. Coat off, he sat at a littered desk. All about him lay commentaries, books of reference. He looked up, frowning, at her entrance.

"I just paused to ask if there's anything I can do for you," she explained.

"No, thank you," he replied abruptly. "I should have done this work this afternoon. I seem to be in no condition now."

"Is something—vexing you?"

He hesitated. "It's this," he replied, pointing to a passage in Livy. "I can't seem to unravel it into good sense."

She glanced over his shoulder. "Oh, I recog-to a passage in Livy. it into good sense."

She glanced over his shoulder. "Oh, I recognize that of old, she said, briskly. "It is what your freshmen call a humdinger. Dad used to get impatient with me over that. Do you mind letting me see if I've forgotten it?"

He looked up, a trifle surprised. This was not Marcia's customary procedure. Usually she was

SO COCKSURE.

It was as clear to her as a page out of a primmer, nevertheless she puzzled over it for several minutes. cocksure.

primmer, nevertneiess sne puzzled over it for several minutes.

"Isn't this the way it goes?" she finally asked. Then, haltingly, but very clearly, she explained away the difficulty.

"That's it!" Stetson cried. "I should have unravelled it in time, Marcia."

"Why, of course. Is there anything else?"

"Nothing, and thank you. I wish I had had your father in the classics. You're a wonder."

"Oh, no, I'm not. But dad was, and I had exceptional teaching. If you are sure you want nothing more of me, I think I will say good night. I am rather tired.

Stetson was on his feet instantly. "You look positively ill, Marcia. Can't I do something for you? You ought not to be so pale after an after-positively ill, Marcia. Can't I do something for you? You ought not to be so pale after an after noon in the air."

Oh, I am quite all right. The first warm weather always enervates one, you know. Good night, Bentley."

He followed her to open the door. "And about Miss Canfield, Ben," she said. "don't let it trouble you. We will all try to see what is right. That's all one can do, isn't it?"

He took an impulsive step toward her, but she had fied.

He took an impulsive step toward her, but she had fied.

Stetson returned to his desk, but for a long time he sat idle. Marcia had been so dear! Gad! She was lovely, too, in that gentian-blue dress so like the color of her eyes! A woman to be proud of. Only....

Marcia went up to her room conscious that there had been a new humility in her treatment of her husband's classical shortcomings. She idly wondered why.

She lay wide-eyed through the night, wondering, wondering. Morning brought no peace, but it did bring a strengthened resolution to do, at all costs, the best thing for her husband.

She went down-stairs too late to see him before he went to his classes. The adoring maid, having noticed Marcia's pallor the night before, had done all the tasks and the house was in exquisite order.

After a pretence at breakfast, Marcia went upstairs. She tried to work on her uncompleted story. It was of no use. One infinitely more absorbing was being written in her own life. She contemplated a walk, but a glance at her gray face and lusterless eyes warned her that if she ventured out she must meet the curious questionings of a score of friends who would observe the dimming of her usual radiance. Finally, she sat down in a low chair by an open imagine that your husband has enjoyed that?"

Marcia ignored the thrust, save by a rising color.

"If I thought," she said, "that a permanent happiness could come to Professor Stetson through you, I would do whatever I could do to set things right. But it is not so. He will see it himself, straightway. I must decline to assist you, Miss Canfield. Is there anything further that you wish to say?"

"Nothing, Mrs. Stetson, except to apologize for having come. I thought you were broad-minded. I find you colossally selfish. You are clinging to something for which you have no use simply because it is yours. You have succeeded in getting yourself called clever. Perhaps you are clever, but the supernally clever woman in these days is the one who can hold her husband. And you haven't done that. It wasn't worth the trouble. You have kept Professor Stetson on mental tiptoe—an uncomfortable position for any man. I suppose you intend to keep him there till the end, while you, be-pedestaled and patronizing, bar his way to liberty. That, I believe, is all that I care to say."

She was gone with the last word to her credit. Alone, Marcia, half-laughing, half-crying, sank into a chair.

"Thank heaven that is over!" she breathed. "I wonder." she mused, once she had captured her control, "if I have failed as a wife."

At luncheon, Stetson was very quiet.

"How went the work this morning?" queried Marcia.

"It always goes fairly well at the close of the that you wish to say?

"Nothing, Mrs. Stetson, except to apologize for having come. I thought you were broad-minded. I find you colossally solfash. You'are clinging to something for which you have no use simply because it is yours. You have succeeded in get-clever, but the super-nally clever woman in these days is the one who can hold her husband. And you haven't done that. It wasn't worth the trouble. You have kept Professor Stetson on mental tipoe—an uncomfortable position for any man. I suppose you intend to keep thin the trouble. You have kept Professor Stetson on mental tipoe—an uncomfortable position for any man. I suppose you intend to keep thin the first of the super-nally clever woman in the wasn't worth the routing. but he was you have he had captured is all that I care to say."

She was gone with the last word to her credit. Alone, Marcia, half-laughing, half-crying, sank into a chair. "It all was gone with the last word to have a captured Marcia."

At luncheon, Stetson was very quiet. "It was simply took harrowing husband. The wasn't have the moody reply. "The barbarian are afraid I'll not pass them. Lord, how I hate it all, Marcia." "The harrowing of the properties of the wasn't in a chair." "The harrowing of the properties of the wasn't in a chair." "The harrowing of the properties of the wasn't in a chair." "The wasn't worth marcially took of the properties of the wasn't worth marcial till not pass them. Lord, how I hate it all, Marcia." "The wasn't worth marcially took of the properties of the wasn't worth marcially in the word wasn't in the wasn't worth wasn't in the wasn't worth marcially took of the properties of the wasn't wasn't wasn't worth marcially took of the properties of the wasn't wasn't worth marcially took of the properties of the wasn't worth marcially took of the properties of the wasn't wasn't worth marcially took of the properties of the wasn't worth wasn't worth marcially took of the properties of the prop he looked flushed and uncomfortable.

"So she came," he remarked. "Marcia, I'm sorry. And I am humiliated. It was an insuferable position for you."

"Never mind that, Ben. It was just as well to have things out. Now, as you suggest, we will forget it." They finished luncheon in silence.

If Marcia was unusually quiet during the last

"Ben, I'm sorry."

"It's all in a day's work. Don't forry about me. And, Marcia,"—flushing—"about Miss Canfield... Let's forget it. I think I must have been rather mad yesterday."

"You mean that you don't wish me to see her?"

"Certainly I do not wish you to see her. I have been abnormally discouraged this spring. Miss Canfield fitted into my mood of discontent, my antagonism to my work. It was nothing more than that. I see it now."

He had not communicated with Miss Canfield! Marcia was conscious of an ineffable sense of relief.

The telephone in his study rang, and Stetson rose to answer it. Coming back, a moment later, Marcia moved to more comfortable quarters.

In another three years, he was offered a sum which looked to them like opulence for a carburettor improvement which he had patented. He hesitated long over the offer, sitting up half of the night before the decision must be made. This hesitation puzzled Marcia. "Exactly why are you debating?" she demanded. "It looks to me like an amazing amount of money."

Wary Brown

without allews there, there can kneek chin capped in plan winter, allews the kneek chin capped in plan winter, allews and predicted force of all the plan the pl light from the lowering sun.

"Waverley and his wife."

She became so immovable that the life in her seemed, momentarily, to be suspended.

"Not really," she said at last, "How splendid! How did they look?"

"Oh, fine! His wife is charming."

"Pretty, Bentley?"

"Radiant, rather. One doesn't get beyond that."

He smiled down at her. "Stetson told as yesterday how wonderful you have been."
"Ben exaggerates. I only did what seemed to be right."

no right."

The old philosophy holds?"

She nodded. "Ben has been the wonderful one in this family, Saxon. Circumstances jailed him at St. Jules', and I had become his failor. I simply handed him the key and he walked out—and up."

"Nevertheless, my modest friend, it took some courage to hand over the key."
"You're wife is lovely," Marcía remarked, ir-

"You're wife is lovely," Marcia remarked, irrelevantly.
"Isn't she, Marcia? I want you to love her."
"Oh, I shall. There they are now, Bentley and Lois. They're beckening us to the rose garden for ten."
"I have thought so many times of your simple little code of happiness. It worked, didn't it, Marcia?"
"I think it always will." she replied, gravely.

Marcia?"

"I think it always will," she replied, gravely.

"We were simply caught by the cross currents, but we won back to the main channel, and now we're safe on a charted sea. Life is pretty indulgent, after all, Saxon."

"It is as soon as you have learned how to live it," he replied, as they strolled across the suatouched sward to join the two who smilingly awaited them.

is the most important service the women of America can render their country. Needless to say that, with high and rising prices, increasing scarcity of all the necessaries of life, restrictions on the use of certain foods and the need to save to meet the call of war charities and Government loans, the housewife faces a perplexing problem.

The Upkeep of the Home in War Time

Our great Household Number for March will deal with various phases of this pressing question of how to keep the family suitably clothed and properly fed in war time without too great a sacrifice of those pleasures and little luxuries that make the home attractive and keep husband and children healthy, contented and happy. "Clothes Conservation," "With the Home Makers" and "Little Charms for the Home" are the titles of a few of the interesting and instructive special articles that will make our March Household

Number a valuable help in any home. March Household Comfort Will Help Solve the Problem

Lincoln's Wit and Wisdom

By C. L. Cheever

Copyright, 1918, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

INCOLN'S life is filled with little incidents that show his affection for children. It is this part of his noble nature that made him so full of sympathy and tenderness. From the days when he rocked the babies to sleep in the humble log cabins of his acquaintances, to the days when he romped with his own children in the White House, his regard for children was ever noticeable. All his early pictures show him beardless; all his pictures after his election show him wearing a beard. That beard was due to the suggestion of a little girl in New York state; having seen and heard Mr. Lincoln in the days before the war, when he was traveling and speaking in the East, she thought a beard would greatly improve his looks, and wrote and told him so. He took the hint kindly, as he always did, and when on his way to the White House as president, his train stopped at the village where Grace lived. He asked if Grace were in the throng at the depot. She was, of course. She came forward and Mr. Lincoln said: "Well, Grace; you see that I have let my whiskers grow for you." Then he took her hands, bent down and kissed her.

def. Strainty.

The Boys who had come to Bos' begin the world, could not not the president had been defined the place. The boy could not not the president had been defined the president had been defined the president of the president had been defined to get a situation as come to Washe of Representatives. The boy how here defined the president his mind full of important affairs, told the little pages, but that he must see the head content of the pages and the was been defined to the president had been defined by the president of the president had been defined by the president of the president had been defined by the president of the president had been defined by the president plucking upon the president had been defined by the president affairs, told the little pages, but that he must see the head content of the president proof, the green from his pooked a president, too, that his mother was a good boy; and in proof, the green from his pooked a president, too, that his mother was a widow and that the must be the president proof, the president had been defined by the president proof, the president had been defined by the president and the president proof the green from his pooked a president proof, the president proof the president proof the president proof the green from his pooked a president proof the president proof the green from his pooked a president proof the president proof the green from his pooked a proof the president proof the president proof the green proof the president proof the president proof the green proof the president proof the president proof the green proof the president proof

Once, a country boy, who had come to Boston to begin the world, could not withstand temptation, stole money from the letters that he took to or from the post-office, he was found out, arrested and sent to prison. But some tender-hearted neople interested themselves in the boy and applied for a pardon, believing that if he had another chance he would be a better boy. The pardon was presented to the president, who, in the funny way he had, said if the petition were true, it would seem as if there were not many such boys as this one, outside the Sunday-school. Then, growing serious, he asked the boy's father what would be done if the boy were released. The father replied that the boy had had quite enough of the city, and would gladly go back to the farm. At once, the president signed the pardon, and the boy was set free.

Preferred to Err on the Side of Mercy fighting gallantly to the end fighting gallantly to the end.

But distress in others affected him. He could be stern if need be, though always just; but if he ever wavered at all, it was when some poor fellow's life was in danger.
"Go away, Swe

others affected him. He could be stern if need be, though always just; but if he ever wavered at all, it was when some poor fellow's life was in danger.

"Go away, Swett," he said to an old friend, who called on him in the White House. "Tomorrow is butcher-day. I must go through these papers and see if I cannot find—some excuse to let these poor fellows off;" and the tender-hearted president turned to the pile of papers which were the death warrants of soldiers who had failed in their duty; not because he wished to shirk the evidence, but to find one single loophole that would give them any chance for life through pardon. "The man must not be shot," cried the friend of a recreant soldier, whom Stanton, the just, but stern war-secretary would not pardon. "Well," said the president, if don't believe shooting cill do him any good. Give me that pen," and have passed oon. "The man must not be shot," cried the friend of a recreant soldier, whom Stanton, the just, but stern war-secretary would not pardon. "Well," said the president, "I don't believe shooting scill do him any good. Give me that pen," and the pardon was granted.

The Sleeping Sentinel

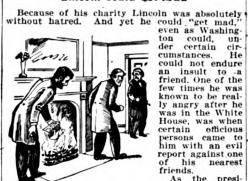

The story of William Scott, "the sleeping sentry," is one of the best known among all these tales of Lincoln's sympathy. William Scott had marched all day and then volunteered to stand as sentry, at night, in place of a sick comrade. He was found asleep on his post. He was courtmartialed and sentenced to be shot. Friends tried to save his life and went to Mr. Lincoln with the story. He heard it and made up his mind to save the boy's life. He was afraid to trust another with the message and went-himself to see the prisoner, who was under guard at Washington. Lincoln entered the tent where Scott was confined, talked with him of his home on the Vermont farm, his school and his mother. Then he said: "My boy, look me in the face. You are not going to be sbet tomorrow. I am going to trust you and send you back to your regiment. How are you going to pay me?"

Young Scott was overloyed, but worried. He did not know how he could pay Mr. Lincoln. A president would need a big fee, he thought the boys would club together, and perhaps they could raise five or six hundred dollars, the great president put his hands on the lad's shoulders and said: "My boy, my bill is a large one. Your friends cannot pay it. There is only one man in all the world who can pay it, and his name is William Scott. If, from this day, William Scott does his duty, so that if I were there when he comes to die, he can look me in the face and say, 'I have kept my promise, I have done my duty as a soldier,' then my debt will be paid. Will you promise?"

I'tterly broken down by the kindness and seriousness of the president, Scott promised: he was released, sent back to his regiment, and died, months after, fighting bravely in battle, where almost his last words were: "Boys, I've tried to do the right thing. If any of you get the chance, tell the president I have tried to be a good soldier, and true to the flag, and tell him I think of his kind face and thank him again that he gave me the chance to fall like a soldier in battle and not like a coward. by the hands of my comrades."

Lincoln Could Get Mad

capitol, "I don't see any nail on those columns to hang this on." Just then Stephen A. Douglas, for so many years his rival, stepped forward and took the hat, as he remarked with a smile, "If I can't be President, at least I can hold his hat."

smile, "If I can't be President, at least I can hold his hat."

In one of his speeches, before he was elected President, Lincoln paid this tribute to his adversary: "Twenty-two years ago," he said, "Judge Pouglas and I became acquainted. We were both young then, he a trifle younger than I (four years). Even then we were both ambitious—I perhaps quite as much as he. With me the race of ambition has been a failure—a flat failure. With him it has been one of splendid success. His name fills the nation and is not unknown in foreign lands. I affect no contempt for the high eminence he has reached, I would rather stand upon that eminence than wear the richest crown that ever decked a monarch's brow. The judge means to keep me down—not put me down—for I have never been up." In this tribute Lincoln showed in his own nature a modesty for which the world has always loved him.

Touching Farewell to His Friends of a century, and have passed from a young man to an old man. Here my children

You can obtain this handsome Dining Room furniture or these other beautiful pieces with your regular household expense money. The only change necessary is to buy some of your daily home supplies direct from the great Larkin Factories and save the middleman's expense. You get your choice of a thousand and one useful things like these illustrated, as the saving you make by

FACTORY-TO LARKIN

For over thirty years Larkin Co. has led the merchandising world in values given direct to the consumer. We carry as Premiums many Nationally advertised Lines such as Congoleum Rugs.

Oneida Community Service Plate, Seth Thomas Clocks, Universal Line, Elgin ·Watches and a score of others, all given to you with purchases of Larkin Products under an absolute guarantee of satisfaction.

OVER 600 LARKIN PRODUCTS

All necessary household supplies such as Foods, Soaps, Toilet and Pharmacal Preparations, Cutlery, Hardware, and Stationery, Dry Goods, Notions, etc., every one conforming to your highest standards.

NEW SPRING CATALOG FREE Just off the press. Brimful of splendid offers like these, including a special 30-day Free Trial Offer which permits you to try the goods

Laundry Soap 3½c Per Bar

Many customers take their Premium in the form of a double quantity of Larkin Products. This gives you the highest quality household supplies at remarkably low factory prices - Scouring Powder, 1 lb., 5c; Soap Powder, per pkg., 5c; Table Salt, 5 lbs., 5c; Corn Starch, 1 lb., 71/2c. Everything clearly explained in our latest Catalog.

Larkin	Con	Buffalo	Chicago	Peorie
	Blease send	i me your New Catalo	g No. 76	- 00114
Name
Address

CONDUCTED BY UNCLE CHARLIE

COMPORT for one year and admittance to the League of Cousins for only 30 cents. Join at once. Everybody weld

NEVER send a subscription to Uncle Charlie, nor to the Secretary of the League.

NEVER write a subscription order or application for membership in the body of a letter. Write the order a separate sheet from the letter, and then both may be mailed together in the same envelope.

ADDRESS all letters to COMFORT, Augusta, Maine. See Instructions at the close of this Department.

OW hop up onto my lap and give me your earnest attention. I'm going to give you a lessoon in history. Follow closely what I say and you will get a clear insight into, and a perfect consequence which made inevitable the bloody world war in which we are now engaged.

If you have got your atlases open and have a map of Europe in front of you, we will start away back at the very beginning. Sometime before Columbus discovered this continent, a support of the content of th ideals, worthy only of the dark ages, menaced the world.

The bloody struggle in which Prussia is engaged today is merely a continuation of that aggressive policy of blood, iron and conquest which she has pursued for the last five hundred years, a policy which she is determined to continue until the world is hers, a policy which her greatest men have summarized in four sinister words, "World Dominion or Downfall."

If you look at the map, the black cancerous growth of German despotic imperialism during the present war has gathered in Belgium and Northern France, Russian Poland and a huge strip of Russian territory which extends almost to Petrograd (the Russian capital). It has gobbled up Roumania, Serbia, and in its march southward its tentacles have hooked in Bulgaria and European Turkey; for you must remember these so-called allies are merely German vassals, the Czar of Bulgaria being a German prince and the Sultan of Turkey a mere puppet. The tentacles of the octupus have crept too, into Asia Minor, reached out almost to the Suez Canal on the west and dug down to the Pressian gulf on the southeast. Thus the Prussian sword has been thrust through the vitals of Europe, the hilt resting on the gray waters of the North Sea and its point piercing the very heart of Eastern Asia and resting on an arm of the Indian Ocean.

Nearly all European nations have engaged more or less in colonial conquests, opening up the waste places of the earth, and such colonizing has been necessary for world civilization. But it has been Prussia that has made a business of removing the boundary marks of her neighbors, doing her colonizing amongst old and settled states right in the very heart of Europe. We can forgive a man who pots a feroclous cannibal in the Tropies, but we send to the electric chair or the scaffold the dastardly criminal who plots to murder his next door neighbor, and it is this kind of murderous plotting that the Kaiser and the state of the control of the surround him have been neaged in folds that surround him have been neaged in the Pan-German. Soon, if this international burglar is not restrained he will sweep across the Suez Canal into Africa and across the roof of the world into India and China, and later on we are to be enslaved, and then the cry will be "Hamburg to Cape Town, and Hamburg to Hongkong, and Hudson Bay to the Straits of Magellan!" This looks like a very big world to you, but to the German General staff and the Kaiser it is a place little bigger than an orange, and they have decided, unless you resist, that they will swallow it all. Prussia has not attempted to conceal her intentions as regards this country. Listen to what our Ambassador Gerard, who represented this government in Germany for four years, has to say in his tremendously interesting book, "My Four Years In Germany." 'I had an audience with the Kaiser in October, 1915. At that time he rose, walked over to me and, putting his face three inches from mine said: 'Remember, when this war is over. I'll stand no nonsense from the Inited States.' Then liberty and freedom were to die, Prussian helmets were to be put upon our heads, and one of the Kaiser's multitudinous sons placed in the White House, and the world enhanced in the world enhanced in the world enhanced in the world enhanced in the said of the conception that the best government is the one that governs least we possess today. This will be l forth the joyous news of German victories, the German socialist forgot about his socialism, and joyously went off to cut the throats of his comrades and enslave the peoples of other lands. Saxens from the German forests more than a thousand years ago conceived the idea of democratic government and invaded England, conquered that country and made free government a reality. The Germanic tribes who stayed behind allowed their kings and chiefs to rule and enslave them and they have continued to do so to this very day. In 1848 the German people started a mild sort of revolution, but the Herr Professors got talking and talked so long that they gave the king a chance to come back and chase them all. If the German people had got the habit the British had, and the French got a little later, of cutting off the heads of kings, and acquired the French and British yearning for self-government, we should have the United States of Europe, world democracy, and there would be no kaisers and no war today.

Water of

Preserve this article, paste it in your scrapbooks; read it to your neighbors and you teachers take it to school and read it to your, scholars. It is what you and they need, for we cannot win this war unless the people know all of the causes back of this great war upon war, this great struggle of free men against the brutal tyranny of bloodthirsty, despotic kings.

Don't forget that Uncle Charlie's four wonderful beeks may still he had. Start in et once the brutal tyranny of bloodthirsty, despotic kings.

Don't forget that Uncle Charlie's four wonderful books may still be had. Start in at once to obtain them—they cost you no money, only a very little time and effort—and keep at it until you have the entire set. The book of Poems is beautifully bound in ribbed silk stiff covers; the Story Book is bound in two styles, the one in ribbed silk stiff covers like the Poems, the other in paper covers; the Song Book is bound only in heavy paper covers, and the Picture Book in handsome stiff covers. Poems or the Story Book in ribbed silk covers, either one for a club of four subscriptions; the Song Book or the Story Book in handsome paper covers or the Picture Book in pretty stiff covers for a club of only two subscriptions. These four books are a library of endless joy and merriment, the best medicine to drive away the blues and the best Christmas gifts in the world.

PERCIVAL A. HORTE AT THE LEFT NEXT THE FLAG

My picture book, too, has started a deluge of inquiries: Is Billy the Goat my daughter, is Maria her ma? Is there an Aunt Charlie? Is the big boy in the picture book my only baby? I have had a little leaflet specially printed answering all these questions fully, and those who are interested will find the same in every copy of the four Uncle Charlie Books sent out this season.

Now for the letters.

JEFFERSON BARRACKS, MISSOURI.

JEFFERSON BARRACKS, MISSOURI.

DEAR UNCLE CHARLE:

I'm a volunteer soldier, sixteen years of age. It was hard for my mother to consent to my enlisting, but she gave her consent at last. I'm a Canadian by birth, born in the city of Montreal. This place is not far from St. Louis. Have been there a few times but don't know much about it yet. This place is rather lonesome and if any of the cousins care to write to a soldier boy, I will answer, but I guess I will make a better soldier than a letter writer. I have three cousins serving somewhere in France. I hope soon to see France, England and Berlin; and before this war is over I hope to get a peep at the Kaiser. I wish I could get a punch at him, and there would be nothing left but a grease spot. If the people who abuse you for your patriotic stand, Unele Charlie, could only hear what is being said here about the Kaiser and his Prussian Huns, they would let up on you and crawl into their holes and keep quiet for the rest of their lives. These people may control in Germany, but they don't own the United States yet, and if I and my chums have a say in the matter they never will own it. I'm a League member and hope to hear from some of the cousins.

P. S. In the picture I am sending, I am holding the fiag.

world over. Thanks to this ideal, we have the self-governing. English-speaking commonwealths of Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. France took, the hint from our revolution, removed the head of Louis XVI, smashed the feundat system in western Europe and laid the foundation stone of the present great Funch Republic.

The German ideal of government is diametrically opposed to ours. There the individual is the servant of the government is diametrically opposed to ours. There the individual is the servant of the government and exists only for the benefit of the state—and the state is the servant of the government and exists only for the benefit of the state—and the state is made to the state—and the state is the servant of the government and oiled only so the machine will run smoothly and perform its work of killing or producing more efficiently. Such individual liberty as Germany enjoys is permitted only if it does not interfere with the Hohenzollern interests and the Kaiser's divine rights.

Both England and France at various times have tried a little bit of the Prussian governmental flies, but after a brief experiment they ideals. Germany's and ours, remember, are utterly antagonistic and cannot exist side by side in this world. It does not matter whether the paternal slavery practiced in Germany is benevolent on not, real, manly men have always risen against this form of state domination. Men, if docile will submit to tyrannical bossings for a time, but the experiment enforced upon them and controlled by others. The Germans vote, but their votes count for little and their self-the paternal slavery practiced in Germany is benevolent on not, real, manly men have always risen agazinst this form of state domination. Men, if docile will submit to tyrannical bossings for a sace of the proper is the paternal slavery practiced in Germany is benevolent on the real propersistic propersistic propersistic made to your measthe latest would you be made to your meas-ure, in the latest style, would you be willing to keep and wear it, show it to your friends and let them see our beautiful sam-ples and dashing new ples and dashing new styles?

You this Suit

Could you use $5.00 a day for a little spare time? Perhaps I can offer you a steady job. If you will write me a letter or a postal at once and say: "Send me you samples and styles to pick from and my surprising liberal effert. Address.
L. E. ASSER. President Banner Tailoring Go. Chicage, III, Banner Talloring Go.

Dept. 870, Chicago, III.

or abandoning them in open boats in the midst of the stormy seas, does he feel like saying, 'Never mind; let it all pass; * * It will all be the same in a hundred years.' For my own part I will never again use an article made in modern Germany if I know it. * * I will favor the exclusion of the German language and literature from our schools and colleges. I would drive every unnaturalized German from this country. We do not want their ideas or their methods. * * Their methods enslave the mind and lead to efficiency chiefly in the field of organized robbery. They invent nothing, but they add a Satanic touch to the inventions of others and turn them to infernal uses. They are without sentiment or imagination. They have broken completely with the old Germany of Goethe, of Kant and Lessing, to whom we all owe a debt. They, are learned in the roots of things but their learning is musty and dusty with underground conditions. They know the "Tree of Knowledge" at the bottom, but not at the top in the air and sun, where are its leaves and flowers and fruits. They run to erudition but not to inspiration. They are a heavy, materialistic, grasping race, forceful but not creative, millitary but not humanistic, aggressive but not heroic, religious but not spiritual; brave it may be, but not chivalrous; utterly selfish, thoroughly scientific and efficient on a low plane, as organized force is always efficient. None of the great musicians were Prussian. Luther threw his ink bottle at the devil, but the devil got even with him and made the Christian outlook blacker than it was before. They are at this moment taking means to increase their birth rate by methods identical with those of stock men and dog breeders. That the German women do not defend themselves with liquid fire and asphyxiating gas shows that their morals are as low as those of the men and that they are the victims of the same civit slavery. They have fought this war like sneaks and cutthroats; they have respected not (CONTINUED ON PAGE 14.)

Here is a thorough, complete, simplified High School Course that you can complete in two years. Meets college entrance requirements. Prepared by leading professors in universities and scademies.

Study at Home in Spare Time

A high school education FREE Book Send y

Women

Home Dressmaking Hints Forecasts for Winter Fashions

By Geneva Gladding

These dresses in velvet, satin or serge, require little by way of trimming. Just a bit of embroidery or lace in some bright contrasting color.

A blue serge dress is most attractive with a bit of gray wool embroidery.

A black velvet dress will be real smart with a rose satin sash or girdle.

Some pretty evening frocks are of black tulle or black lace overfoundations of flesh colored satin. Jet forms a very pretty and elaborate trimming for these frocks.

Pattern Descriptions ALL PATTERNS 12c. EACH Unless Other Price Is Stated

1947—Ladies' flouse Dress, with sleeve in either of two lengths. This model is good for serge, gabardine, flannelette, gingham, percale, linene and linen.

Cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. It requires six and seven eighths yards of 36-inch material for a 36-inch size.

1953—Ladies' Waist in Surplice Style. This model is nice for lawn, linen, linene, madras, batiste, taffeta, satin, and serge. The right front overlaps the left in surplice effect.

Cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. It requires two and three fourths yards of 44-inch material for a 36-inch size.

three fourths yards of 44-inch material for a 36-inch size.
2100—Ladies' Combination Garment of Corset Cover and Drawers. Lawn, batiste, dimity, crossbar muslin, crepe and silk, are all lovely for this bar muslin, crepe and silk, are all lovely for this style.

Cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. It requires three and seven eighths yards of 36-inch material for a 36-inch size.

2137—A Smart Little Dress for Mother's Girl. This model is good for soft woolens, crepe, gabardine and silk. The sleeve may be finished in wrist or elbow length.

Cut in four sizes; four, six, eight and 10 years. It requires three and three fourths yards of 36-inch material for an eight-year size. Price 10 cents.

2294—A Dainty Dress for Mother's Girl. This model is good for gingham, lawn, batiste, chambrey, repp. pique, serge, cashmere, velvet or cordurate.

Cut in four sizes; two, four, six and eight years. Size eight requires three and one fourth yards of 44-inch material.

2297—A Simple, One-piece Model. This style is excellent for home or porch wear. Satin or serge with braid or embroidery could be used. It is also nice for velvet and crepe, cashmere or gabardine.

Cut in six elegant 24.

or gabardine.

Cut in six sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires seven yards of 36-inch material.

2301—A Practical, Sérviceable Model. Muslin, cambric, lawn, crepe, flannelette, domet, and canton flannel are good for this design. The waist could also be of drill or jean.

Cut in five sizes; four, six, eight, 10 and 42 years. Size 10 requires one and five eighths yard for the waist and two and one half yards for the drawers of 27-inch material. Price 10 cents.

cents.
2305—A New Apron. This is a practical "housekeeping" model. It is good for gingham, seersucker, lawn, muslin, cambric, drill and al-

"housekeeping" model. It is good for gingham, seersucker, lawn, muslin, cambric, drill and alpaca.

Cut in four sizes; small, 32-34; medium, 36-38; large, 40-42; extra large, 44-46 inches bust measure. Size medium requires three and five eighths yards of 36-inch material.

2306—An Up-to-Date Dress for the Growing Girl. This makes a fine school frock.

Cut in four sizes; eight, ten, 12 and 14 years. Size 12 requires six yards of 36-inch material. Galaten, gingham, linen, khaki, serge, velvet and corduroy are nice for this style.

2307—A Set of New Collars. These styles are very attractive and smart, and suitable for silk, crepe, linen, batiste, velvet, satin and faille. The pattern includes all styles in strated.

Cut in three sizes; small, medium and large. Size medium requires for No. 1, one yard of 27-inch material; for No. 2, one yard of 36-inch material.

2310—A Smart Dress for Mother's Girl. Serge or gabardine is nice for this model. It is also good for satin, velvet, poplin, mixed suiting, plaid or checked woolen. The peplum may be omitted.

Cut in four sizes; six, eight, 10 and 12 years. Size 10 requires three and three fourths yards of 44-inch material.

2312—A Simple and Attractive Model. In blue serge, brown Jersey cloth, or plaid or mixed suiting, this model will be ideal.

Cut in three sizes; 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 16 requires four and five eighths yards of 44-inch material.

2314—A Popular, Practical Garment. In these days of physical training, a suit of this kind. is most appropriate. Serge, drill, khaki, gingham, gabardine, flannel and cashmere are good materials for this model.

Cut in five sizes; four, six, eight, 10 and 12 years. Size 12 requires four yards of 44-inch material.

years. Size 12 requires four yards of 44-inch material.

2315—A Practical Coat Model. This is suitable for tweed, cheviot, chinchilla, broadcloth, serge or vicuna.

Cut in five sizes; four, six, eight, 10 and 12 years. Size 10 requires two and three eighths yards of 54-inch material.

2316—A Smart Dress for the Growing Girl. This will be good for serge, gabardine, corduroy, velour, poplin, velvet or satin.

Cut in three sizes; 12, 14 and 16 years. Size 14 requires five and five eighths yards of 44-inch material.

2317 Waist. 2313 Skirt—A Good Costume for General Wear.

Waist Pattern 2317 is cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. The skirt 2313 in seven sizes; 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34 inches waist measure. A medium size will require for skirt and waist five and five eighths yards of 44-inch material. Two separate patterns, 12 cents for each pattern.

2318—A Popular, up-to-date Style. In satin, corduroy, velvet, cashmere, serge and poplin, this style is very attractive.

Cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and

USE THE COUPON

Special Offers. For one one-year subscription (not your mail you any one Pattern free. Or for a club of two one-year subscriptions at 25 cents each we will mail you any three patterns free. The cash price of each pattern is 12 cents (three for 25 cents) unless a different price is stated. Be sure to order by number and give size of age wanted.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine,

ELVET and serge are among the popular materials of this season.

One-piece models still lead and are to be recommended for comfort, grace and simplicity.

dresses in velvet, satin require little by way of Just a bit of em.

46 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires five and three eighths yards of 44-inch material.

2320—Girls' Dress with or without jumper and with sleeve in either of two lengths. For this model one could use batiste, lawn, mull, organdy, cashmere, taffeta, or a combination of silk and velvet. The overblouse or jumper could be of contrasting material.

Cut in five sizes; four, six, eight, 10 and 12 years. Size 10 will require two and three fourths yards of 44-inch material for the dress and one and three eighths yard for the jumper.

2321 Waist. 2319 Skirt—A new Autumn Frock. For a smart, dressy gown, one could have satin or crepe, or gabardine with fur trimming.

Waist Pattern 2321 is cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. The skirt 2319 is cut in seven sizes; 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32 and 34 inches waist measure. It will require nine yards of 44-inch material for the entire dress for a 36-inch size. Two separate patterns, 12 cents for each pattern.

2322—A Good School Dress. Blue or brown serge with trimmings, in white or self color, would be very nice for this style.

Cut in four sizes; eight, 10, 12 and 14 years. and the

Cut in four sizes; eight, 10, 12 and 14 years. (CONTINUED ON PAGE 23.)

Please Fill Out This Coupon And Send It With Your Remittance COMFORT, Pattern Dept., Augusta, Maine. I enclose $_____ cash, (or_) for which please send me Patterns No._ ... No..... Name__ R.F.D. No.____ Post Office____ Box No. ns write names on separate sheet and pin this coon to it.

All your heart secrets we're doing to guess. No use evading you've got to confess Who's yourbest girl or who's your best heav Is he soldier or sailor or man with a hoe? What is her name and where does she dwell? St. Valentine knows but he will not tell. Refusals forbidden, be sure you come-

Only a slacker will stay at home."

By Roslie Barton Cummings Copyright, 1918, by W. H. Gannett, Pub., Inc.

UST because we must take most things so seriously this war year is the very reason why an evening devoted to innocent diversion once in a while will do us a world of good. Let us put away our knitting and Red Cross work for a short time and give an hour or two to a celebration in honor of our good old friend Saint Valentine. A change is beneficial for everybody and after a little fun we can go back to our work with renewed courage and energy. If you, dear reader, are one of the painfully superior kind of people who think valentines are childish foolery, just remember the famous old couplet which tells that "A little nonsense now and then Is relished by the wisest men."

Why not have your Valentine celebration a complete change this year from those of past seasons by making it progressive? By this I do not mean progressive card games, but a new contest in which the guests progress from table to table thus affording a constant change of partners and adding greatly to the fun. Such an affair can be as large or as small as one wishes, it can be given to a few friends in a private house, or it can form part of an evening's diversion for the young people at the Grange hall or the church parlors. Now to make the party a real success everything should be a little out of the ordinary and even the invitations should be unique. Very effective ones can be made at almost no expense by cutting them from brown manilla paper such as bundles are wrapped in. Cut a large heart by folding the paper in the center and then cutting the shape of half a heart. This will ensure having each lobe of the heart the same size, for it would never do for Saint Valentine to send out a lopsided heart. When you have at last achieved a perfect shape, lay this on as many as ten folds of paper and cut to pattern.

Now take a fine pen and a bottle of red ink and write on each heart the following dog-gerel:

"St. Valentine's party next Thursday night!

"St. Valentine's party next Thursday night! Polish your wits 'til clear and bright. All your heart secrets we're going to guess. No use evading, you've got to confess. Who's your best girl or who's your best beau? Is he soldier or sailor or man with a hoe? What is her name and where does she dwell? St. Valentine knows but he will not tell. Refusals forbidden, be sure you come—Only a slacker will stay at home."

Only a slacker will stay at home."

In the point of the heart is written the name and address of the person giving the party. Thus if the house is on a street, write "19 Walnut St.," or whatever the address is, but if the party is to be given in a house some distance from the town, try to describe it in some unmistakable way. This is easy if the place has a name such as "Shady Lawn" or the "Ridge Farm" or something like that, but if it has no name or no number write on the back of the card a description of how to get there, thus: "Starting from the Grange Hall, you must walk north on Main St. until you come to Western Ave., turn into this and so continue until the Prairie Road is reached, turn east on this and St. Valentine awaits you at the white house on the left with the two big maples in the front yard."

begin. This is played at small tables with from four to six at each table; in the center of each table is a little mound of peanuts, on six of which are securely pasted tiny red hearts. These should be hidden underneath the rest.

After everybody is seated a, small hand bell or gong is placed on the table at the end of the room. This is called Saint Valentine's table and at the beginning of each game a small dish of the old-fashioned candies called "kisses," on which are printed mottoes, is passed to each player but it is not passed at the other tables. It serves as a reward for those who reach this table and an inducement to get there. Each player is then given a plain card on which to keep score. On each table is a pencil and in front of one of the seats is a big red heart pasted on the table. The person who has this set of the table. The person who has this set of the table. The person who has this set of the table. The person who has this set of the table. The person who has this set of the table that the person who has the set of the table that the person who has the set of the table. The person who has this set of the table that the person who has this set of the table. The person who has this set of the table that the person who has this set of the table that the person who has the set of the table that the person who has the set of the table that the person who has the set of the table that the person who has the set of the table that the person who has the set of the table that the person who has the set of the table that the person who has the set of the table that the person who were the person that the person the mound in the center, a few usually fall away and can be picked up without touching the others, because when the penuts are all resting, one on another, becomes apparent, and an inexperience person usually falls, for after accidentally moving another nut with the peanut he is trying to extract he will be greated with gleeful shrieks of "Lost"—and even if the five minute time in the person ha

"The rose is red, The violet's blue; Sugar is sweet, And so are you."

The consolation prize for the person who gets the fewest nuts should be a small egg beater purchased at the ten-cent store, with a card at-tached to it which says:

"Something that even you can beat."

Ave., turn into this and so continue until the Prairie Road is reached, turn east on this and St. Valentine awaits you at the white house on the left with the two, big maples in the front yard."

If on the other hand the party is to be given for a church or grange to make a little money for some worthy cause, the invitation should of course bear the name of the hall or the church parlors and also the price of admission. Front fifteen to twenty-five cents would be about right for an evening's festivity and from thirty-five to firth if there was to be a bean support be forchand. The party is given to make a little money for some worthy cause, the invitation should of course bear the name of the hall or the church parlors and also the price of admission. Front fifteen to twenty-five cents would be about right for an evening's festivity and from thirty-five to firth the tenth of the party is given to make a little money for some worthy cause, the hall or the church society a Valentine Post Office will pick up a good many nickels and make a tot of the church society a Valentine Post Office will pick up a good many nickels and make a tot of the church society a Valentine Post Office will pick up a good many nickels and make a tot of the church society a Valentine Post Office will pick up a good many nickels and make a tot of the church society a Valentine Post Office will pick up a good many nickels and make a tot of the church society a Valentine Post Office will pick up a good many nickels and make a tot of the church society a Valentine Post Office will pick up a good many nickels and make a tot of the full of the church society a Valentine Post Office will pick up a good many nickels and make a tot of the full of the church society a Valentine Post Office will pick up a good many nickels and make a tot of the full of the church society a Valentine's Post Office in the chu

The first person who steps up to the window should be asked his or her name by the postmistress, even though it is some one she knows quite well. When this has been given, she says: "Yes, there is some mail for you, but five cents postage is due on it." If the person at the window pays up he gets his mail, but if he demurs the postmistress says: "It's against the United States Postal Regulations to give you mail on which postage is due."

If the person asking for mail is known to be generous and open-handed, the postmistress can tell him that she has two or three parcels for him but he must pay the postage, and can then collect as much as she thinks is fair, giving him one of the best valentines, a small box of candy and a pocket pincushion, or something like that. It can be readily seen that a post office if carefully managed will bring in quite a little money and also can be made very amusing, but be careful who you select for postmaster or postmistress. If possible get someone who can talk well and also knows enough not to offend anybody. This is very important.

The Girl He Loved

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 4.)

"I married you for love, and nothing else," he had answered quietly, and she had watched him as he said it, then turned from him and spoke laboredly, over her shoulder.

"I'll do my best to be a good wife to you."

But even now he never imagined how at that moment she came of her own accord to believe in what was true, that he had known nothing of Sylvia's maneuvering. And her duty lay plain before her. To take up the life she had deliberately made for herself and be a good wife to the man who had always "been good" to her. Very barren, very dreary, in spite of Levallion's kindness, that life lay before her, but she would tread it faithfully to the very end. And unconsciously a great joy leaped to her eyes and ever since had burned there steadily. Adrian might be lost to her a thousand times more than ever, but in her soul she could worship him, for he had been true.

But Levallion, poor fool, had thanked God for that rapture in her eyes; a man, too, who was not in the habit of thanking God for anything.

"There's peace in her face," said the duchess shortly, having followed his eyes in that long pause. "Well, well! You're a better man than I thought, Levallion. Send Tommy to me with a tea cake. You make me nervous when you watch me eat."

Sir Thomas came without much alacrity. He had a better opinion of the duchess' shrewdness than Levallion; and he was not easy in his mind. He knew quite well that Ravenel's renewed beauty and the quiet of her face dated from that interview with Adrian Gordon, that he had not discovered in time to prevent. "He was uncomfortably conscious that for all he knew the household might be sitting on a volcano.

"And, how are you?" inquired his friend, with her mouth full. "I hear Lady Annesley is cutting a dash at Harrowgate. I don't suppose you miss her!"

"Not much!" stolidly, though he would rather a hundred times have been back under her lady-ship's rule and been sitting half-fed at Annesley. Chase with the old Ravenel, than here in Levallion's house with a sister who would not me

Chase with the old Ravenel, than here in Levallion's house with a sister who would not meet his eye.

"I'm not pining away for Lady Annesley."

"She'd give her eyes to be here," the duchess chuckled unkindly. "You seem to have an extremely cheerful collection. By the way, how's young Gordon? I hear he's been very ill here?"

"He's better," shortly. "He had a sort of relapse last week. But he's coming down to dinner tonight. We"—hastily—"haven't seen anything of him. He's had a nurse."

But the duchess merely murmured that it was a sad case, a man with a shattered bridle arm being of no further use in a hussar regiment; and passed serenely on. She had no intention of telling Tommy that she had found out all about that marriage that never came off. The curate at Effingham had talked, and the whole parish knew about the couple who had never, come to be married, but had wasted a special license and the curate's time. Ravenel's past was no business of any one's but Levallion, who would never hear it.

"If she has any sense she knows by this time the curate's time. Ravenel's past was no business of any one's but Levallion, who would never hear it.

"If she has any sense she knows by this time that Levallion's little finger is worth a whole string of lovesick soldiers," she thought. "I never saw a man so softened and improved in all my life. He looks twenty years younger. But, all the same, if he's wise, he won't press his distinguished young relative to an indefinite stay."

But even the duchess felt a shocked pity that night at dinner as she looked across the flowers and gold plate and saw how very ill and worn Captain Gordon looked. Why, the man was a death's head. A romantic, undesirable death's head, with its arm in a sling. She glanced at Ravenel and saw to her infinite relief that she was not so much as looking Gordon's way. Exquisitely fair in ivory satin and burned orange velvet, she was talking to the man on her right with her old child-like mirth. But the duchess was near-sighted. Sir Thomas Annesley could have told her that there was anything but mirth in Ravenel's steady eyes. And truly repentance, impotent pain and fear were doing their work. Under that smart bodice Lady Levallion's heart was aching dully while she made conversation, as many a better woman's has done and will do while the world goes round.

She knew quite well that the width of a white tablecloth separated her as utterly from Adriàn as a guif of a thousand miles. Knew that after dinner he would never speak fo her, except in the few sentences decently demanded from guests to hostess: that as soon as he could he would get away from the house.

"Oh, I've simply got to speak to him!" she thought. "If I have to make the chance myself," for there were two things she had forgotten to ask him, and one of them rankled. Why had he said he was too poor to marry her openly, and all

EVERYMAN'S GARDEN

EVERYMAN'S GARDEN

Eat Fruit and Save Sugar

Fresh Garden Supplies for your table. Memorial Day thanksgiving. Plant one of these Garden Collections your back yard—Takes only one square red and consists.

12 Superb Everbearing Strawberry
6 Ranere Everbearing Raspberry
3 Blowers Blackberry
3 Bowning Gooseberry
3 Fays Currant
22 Rhubarb
25 Columbian Asparagus
3 Grapes—Red, White and Blue
5 Columbian Asparagus
6 Grapes—Red, White and Blue
5 Sont Parcet Post paid, with blue print planting plants on your dependent of the spring, summer and fall you will bring you work of fresh fruit next summer. And through the spring, summer and fall you will reap
5,000 blessings from your allies, your country and your family.
Order to-day! One for your-self. Then if you will sell five additional collections to your neighbors, send us $12.50, you thereby getting your collection free.

eighbors, send us $12.50, hereby getting your colon free.

GLEN BROS., Inc.,

Glenwood Nursery, 1919 Main St., Rochester, N.Y.

the while was Levallion's sole heir? The probable successor to the richest earldom in England is not usually considered a bad match, even by more greedy people than Ravenel. And who was the woman who had come to ask after him; though she cared very little, or she determined to think so. She came out of her thoughts with a jerk, suddenly conscious that she had not the least idea what the man beside her was saying.

"I was thinking how pretty all the women are," she observed quickly, to avoid having to say, "I beg your pardon."

Lord Chaytor surveyed the table. It was quite true; every woman there was a picture in her way; and nearly all he saw were dark; and made a foil to the peachy loveliness, the curled bronze head of their hostess.

"My own wife's the only one of 'em I'd care to kiss, though!" he remarked, rather after the manner of Levallion, who was his dearest friend.

"That's very charming—and proper—of you!"

"No!" It's the 'hard kalsomine finish' that appals me," coolly. "Come, now, Lady Levallion, you don't mean to say you can't see it?!)

For Ravenel, who owned no rouge-pot and eschewed powder, was looking at him bewilderedly.

"I thought—" she began, and then laughed, but not too gaily, "was everything in the grand world a sham, even down to the lovely color on the women's cheeks?"

"That all things were what they seemed? Well, they ain't, unfortunately! You really ought to be "(CONTINUED ON PAGE 33.)

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 33.)

SEEDS Grand Trial Offer $2.00 Samples only 10c.
We will mail the following 22 Packets choicest Fresh, Reliable Vegetable and Flower Seeds for 10c.
Money returned if not satisfactory.
BEET, Grosby's Egyptian, best, sweetest early sorte GABBACE, New Clory, early, sure header. Large. CARROT, Portock, Hai-lears, best table sort.
GLERY, Brittle Winter, best, crispest. Keeps wellt GUOUMBER, Emerald White Spine, great favorite.
LETTUCE, Gream Butter, tender, popular heads.
MUSKMELON, Sweetest Gom, best garden melen.
WATERMELON, Deposit Early, earliest, sweetest.
ONION, Priteatker, weight 3 be, 1600 bus, per acre.
PARSLEY, Triple Gurled, best, most ornamental.
PARSNIP, Improved Guernsoy, smooth, sweet.
RADISH, White toleis, best, early, long, tender.
TOMATO, Creater Battlmore, best, large, smooth.
ASTERS, Show mixed.
WAVES OF COLD, fine.
ALYSSUM, Little Gom.
OOSMOS, Early Clont.
KOCHIA, Grand follage, MICHONOMETTE, Sweet.
Catalog and 10c check free.

DEPOSIT SEED CO., Deposit, N. Y. C.

D'15 packets Grand Large Flowering Sweet Peas, 10 cts.

10 Sample Pkts. SEED

OUR GREAT SPECIAL CATALOGUE

SENT FREE-OVER 100 FLOWERS SHOWN IN COLORS McGregor Bros. Co., Box531, Springfield, Ohio

American War Heroines

By Frances L. Garside

HE world," it is said, "knows nothing of its greatest men." It has never been said, but it is easily proyen, that it knows less of its greatest women.

Not greatest because of achievements in the arts and sciences but greatest in the denial of self; the surrender of personal comfort and ambition; the sacrifice of kindred and home; the silent, prolonged endurance of privation and pain; the story, in brief, told on the pages of history devoted to women in the days of the Civil War.

No medals were pinned on these breasts where under every condition of squalor and pain and frightfulness, there was pillowed the heads of the sick and the dying. They endured every privation cheerfully; they made every sacrifice willingly; their only reward the memory of the grateful look of some wounded or dying soldier.

The tablets devoted to the story of the Civil War will never be complete because some of its greatest deeds of heroism were those done in tent and hospital and ambulance, off the firing line, and done by women. The story will never be told of the thousands who in their homes in town and country made every sacrifice woman could make. For four long years they went thinly clad; they took blankets from their own beds and slept poorly covered; they they never tasted sugar, tea or meat; they left their own children in the care of friends that they might make children of an army corps; they risked their lives in field hospitals and tents and they slept in tents and ambulance wagons.

The state of Massachusetts gave more women to this great cause during the days of the Civil War than any other state, and the first woman to enroll in the name of humanity was Dorothea L. Dix of Worcester. She had spent thirty years in an effort to ameliorate the condition of women in prisons and insane asylums, and had retired to a quiet life at home when Baltimore became the scene of a disgraceful mob riot April 10, 1861. Miss Dix put aside all personal ambitions; she forgot she had earned a rest, and longed for it, and left at once for service for humanity. She reached Baltimore in the wake of the mob. Her services ended there, she appealed to the government for further work, and was made superintendent of all female nurses in government employ. She selected every woman employed, and some of her requirements sound amusing today when the good-looking nurse is the rule, and not the exception. Miss Dix demanded that the applicant be mature in years, plain in dress, and devoid of all personal attractions. She insisted on good health and morals, but should an applicant have these beyond question, and possess also a good-looking nose, she was refused work. One might infer from this that Miss Dix could never enter a heauty contest herself, but the inference is incorrect, for it is said of her that when she was young she had possessed great beauty.

MISS CLARA BARTON.

Clara Barton, of North Oxford, Mass., is known the world over for her life's work devoted to the service of humanity. Beginning as a school teacher, she soon rose to prominence as an educator, manifesting that talent for efficiency and organization, coupled with a power of initiative and persistency of effort, that commanded success through her long and varied career.

When a scandalous betrayal of trust caused the discharge of some of the men clerks in the U. S. Patent Office, she was called to fill an important position in that department. The outbreak of the Civil War found her thus employed, but when the first wounded soldiers reached washington she resigned her position in order to give her entire attention to their care.

The government was so unprepared for the war into which it was suddenly plunged that in the early part there was a lack of everything needed and confusion reigned in all departments. Nothing escaped her notice, and while she worked she thought and planned to remedy these deficiencies.

Packages from home, conta

Packages from home, containing much-needed majorts for the soldiers, piled up in Washing-

MISS MARGARET E. BRECKINRIDGE.

tom, and she took it upon herself to arrange to have them forwarded to their proper destinations. From the deplorable condition in which the wounded arrived in Washington, she soon decided that she was needed more in the field than at the capital. So she obtained a general pass to all posts held by the army and, after accumu-

Copyright, 1917, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

HE world," it is said, "knows nothing of its greatest men." It has never been said, but it is never been said, but it is under fire on the battlefields, regardless of dangerily reverse, that it knows loss.

MRS. NELLIE MARIA TAYLOR.

ger. She had many narrow escapes from death, on several occasions her clothes were pierced by bullets. Once a bullet passed between her arm and her body and killed the wounded soldier she was attending. But she seemed to bear a charmed life and no deadly missile ever troubled her. The soldiers called her the "Angel of the Battlefield."

Besides her ministration to the soldiers.

Battlefield."

Besides her ministration to the soldiers she had a care for the relief of anxiety of their loved ones at home. In answer to many thousands of inquiries from friends and relations, all the information the War Department could give was "missing."

Under government authority she organized the Bureau of Records of Missing Men, a work which was immeasurably valuable. She identified all but about four hundred of the thirteen thousand graves of Union soldiers who died in Andersonville Prison, and she placed Suitable markers on the graves and made a record of them.

died in Andersonville Prison, and she placed suitable markers on the graves and made a record of them.

Thus she served through the Civil War, using her own savings freely to augment the funds contributed by the government and others.

After the close of the war, exhausted by the strain, she went to Switzerland to recuperate her health. There she became acquainted with and joined the then recently organized Red Cross. While still in Europe the war between Germany and France burst forth with the suddenness and fury of a tornado, and Miss Barton took a prominent part in the Red Cross war work, for which she was honored by many medals and decorations, including the Iron Cross of Germany, bestowed by the grandfather of the present Kaiser. She returned to America too shattered in health to enrage in any work for several years. In 1881, President Garfield appointed her president of the newly reorganized "American Association of the Red Cross," in which position she served until 1904. Despite all her arduous labors and ordeals she lived to the ripe age of ninety-one, passing to her reward in 1912.

Mrs. Eliza C. Potter, a Northerner, living in Charleston, S. C., was the first woman in the South to go to the aid of the wounded. She found 400 Northern soldiers lying on the mud

$100,000 Style Book Ask Before It's Too Late

My beautiful new Spring Style Book—pictured here—brings to you 1001 of the season's prize styles. With this book comes a credit certificate opening your account. That means that you never have to wait for anything.

I will take my pay little by little. You may spread the cost of a purchase over many months. But my book is always in great demand. I never have enough copies. Send your request in today and be sure of getting your copy.

Credit Without Asking

With

Economy Prize Styles

My Style Book has always displayed the foremost fashions in the loveliest and most wearable fabrics. This season I have given prizes to the most famous designers for economy styles. These were judged by a committee of 17 experts. So when you get my Fashion Book you will be surprised to see perfectly stunning things at lower prices than even former seasons.

If there ever was a time when you ought to seize every opportunity of saving money it is now! My Style Book will cut clothes expense one-half. Here are some of its departments:

Suits-Coats-Dresses-Waists-Skirts-Hats-Shoes-Lingerie-Underwear-Children's Wear -Also 300 Kinds of Piece Goods

Use Your Credit Pay Little by Little

I send all selections prepaid on approval. I urge you to return them if not satisfactory. Then, in that case, I pay the return cost.

If you keep your selections you spread the cost over many months. I permit you to pay a small part of the bill as you can best spare the money. These sums are never very large—often as little as $1 a month. This naturally lightens the burden of clothes expense.

Prices So Low as to Seem Unbelievable

It has been my life's work to hunt bargains and search out good styles. I buy direct from mills and makers. My business is so enormous that I get lowest prices. I have no salesmen or expensive stores.

The best proof of my bargains is my Free Trial Offer. I couldn't afford that if many people sent things back. I simply have to give satisfaction. The dress shown here is a splendid example of my values.

So for all these reasons I urge you to ask for my Book now. I can't promise it later. Just a postal card will do. (1440)

MARTHA LANE ADAMS

3503 Mosprat Street, Chicago

$900 Monthly Silk Rajah Dress Looks like pongee and has the rough effect of Rajah. Contains a little cotton. Long shawl collar and broad belt of silk taffeta. Georgette vestee trimmed with tiny buttons. Turned back white cuffs. Bustle effect skirt, ruffled above loose belt. Swagger patch pockets, buckle trimmed. Full circular bottom. Looks like circular bottom COLORS: Rose, navy blue, tan, gray, green, or Copenhagen blue.
Misses: 14, 16 and 18 years; ladies' sizes: 32 to 44 bust measure—no larger.

Price, prepaid$10.98

No. E4N2200.

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE-10.)

who in civic life we rid ourself of by the aid of the sheriff and the hangman."

After that bitter but absolutely truthful arraignment of Prussia and her damnable methods, those who sympathize with our enemies cannot say that I have been too severe in my criticisms. Let the truth be told though the heavens fall.

Dear Uncle Charle:

I am sixteen years young, weigh 135 pounds, have dark blue eyes, dark brown hair, fair complected and am five feet, six inches low. I live on a farm of one hundred acres in the eastern part of "old Virginin," We moved here from the western part of North Carolina, have been in Virginia four years this fall. We have a good farm and raise most all kinds of farm products. I can do all kinds of housework and I work in the field when I am needed. We have five cows, my sister and I milk. We have three mules and one horse. I dearly love horseback riding. Uncle did you ever ride a mule? If you haven't you've missed a lot. I think it's grand to ride horseback on a mule." Uncle what do you think about this world war? Some people seem to think it cannot last longer than spring. I hope the Allies can give old Germany a good licking by then. I I wish I could help whip her. I'd not hesitate a moment about joining the army. I like to see the young men be patriotic and join the army without being drafted and made to go. I do several different kinds of fancy work. I like to go to school. I like speller and Latin best of all my studies. Oh! I detest Algebra. We have taken Comport a long time and it sure is a comfort. With love to Uncle Charlie and all the cousins.

Elzina Martin.

Elzina, you want to know if I ever rode a mule, and it sure is a comfort. With love to Uncie Charlie and all the cousins.

Elzina, you want to know if I ever rode a mule, and further state that if I haven't I've missed a lot. I did manage to get on the main deck of a mule once, but I can't say I stayed long enough to preach a sermon or write a book about it. Before I could say: "Nice Mister Mule, good old mule!" I was sitting on a blinking star up in the Milky Way, and I'd be up there yet if it hadn't been for another man who had been kicked up there by another mule and who insisted on pushing me off. No man who owns a mule need waste any time buying flying machines. As for missing a lot, I never owned any real estate and so never had to go through the mental agony of losing any. In monkeying with that mule however, I missed a perfectly respectable suit of clothes and all that goes with it. Among other things I lost all my hair except one, and I've never been able to decide whether that is regular hair or a souvenir from the mule's tall. Sometimes I think it belongs to me, while at other times. I'm more than half inclined to think if I went to law about it the jury would bring in a verdict in favor of the mule. One thing I would like to do is to take that old mule to Germany, back him up against the Kaiser's Potsdam Palace, when Billy and his six sons are all at home under the Hohenzollern roof tree sharpening their swords and concocting more schemgs for world conquest, and then tell Mr. Mule to open fire with his rear battery. That would be the last of the Hohenzollern family, the last of the apostles of brute force, of the bloody doctrine that might makes right, and that crowned lunatics can convert the world into a corpse strewn graveyard and drown it in seas of blood whenever they feel so disposed. The war may last for years, Elzina, chiefly because we took three with his rear battery. How wall, directly he speaking peoples and other freedom loving, democratic nations of the earth, would, directly he had fo

Thank you Ernest for your letter. The patriotism and common sense that rings in every word you utter, should breathe new courage into every patriotic heart and make the slacker and the traitor hang his miserable head in shame. Ernest Graf is living proof of the fact that a socialist does not necessarily have to be a traitor or a slacker. The Germans and Russian Jews who control that movement here have not been able to fool Ernest Graf, though they have been able to fool a good many half baked simps. Even a revolutionist does not necessarily have to be a fool. Meyer London, the Socialist representative in Congress is sponsor for that statement. The aim of Germany is to start a social revolution in this country by the aid of her paid agents and the German language press and hundreds of German societies, just as she has done in Russia, and nearly succeeded in doing in Italy. The German socialist is ready to betray his comrades the world over. His socialism is a fake and a humbug and means Germanizing humanity, just that and nothing more. When we have denuded the U. S. A. of its best fighting material, Germany by the aid of German sympathizers and two million reservists which she claims to have in this country, and with the assistance of the copperheads and disgruntled, disloyal aliens, expects to terrorize the U. S. A. (CONTINUED ON PAGE 30.) (CONTINUED ON PAGE 30.)

Comfort's League of Cousins Illustrious French Warriors Who Helped Us Win Our Independence

OW that we have sent our warships to European waters and our army to France to help the free nations of the earth in the world war for liberty it is especially interesting to review the inestimable service rendered by France in sending us succor in our war for independence.

Without the help of France we could not have won our 'liberty. For her generous sacrifices in our war France gained nothing and asked for nothing except the independence of America. So, aside from our interest in self-preservation and our duty to humanity menaced by her enemies in the present conflict, we are no more than paying a long deferred and sacred debt of honor in going to the rescue of France in her hour of peril.

See front cover illustration.

Copyright, 1918, by W. H. Gannett, Pub., Inc.

AFAYETTE, next after Washington, is deservedly the best known and most AFAYETTE, next after Washington, is deservedly the best known and most revered name connected with our war for independence. So illustrious was the service rendered by this noble Frenchman that to most minds it typifies the part taken by France in our Revolutionary War, forgetful of the fact France did not send him. He led the way which France follows him of the French people was in sympathy with America in her struggle for liberty, France was nominally neutral at the time Lafayette came to us, and the French king even tried to arrest him in order to prevent his departure. But escaping the king's officers and in defiance of the king's commands, he brought over a shipload of war munitions, voluntered to serve in our army without pay, was commissioned a major-general by Congress, though under twenty years of age, and at his own expense equipped the troops which he commanded. Bear in mind that he was an American general and commanded only American soldiers during our Revolutionary War.

The fame of his brilliant exploits and the letters which he wrote home fired the enthusiasm of the French people for our cause, and because of his exaliced rank in the nobility of France, his efforts were largely instrumental in influencing the French government to enter the wind the property of the city of the property of the property of the city of the property of th

American waters, which practically blockaded the coast and prevented the Americans and French from moving their troops by sea. Thus, whichever way Washington moved, he would have to simply the state of the could reach his objective, Clinton could despatch reinforcements by sea so to get there ahead of him.

On Rochambeau's urgent solicitation it was finally decided to make a joint movement against Cornwallis at Yorktown, on the Virginia coast, where Lafayette, with a small 'American army, was hanging with bulldog tenacity on the heels of the great British general, who had boasted that he would make short work of the "Boy General," as he contemptuously nicknamed Lafayette. Boy general though he was, and the youngest general America ever had—Congress having commissioned him major-general at the age of nineteen—Cornwallis found him a dangerous and troublesome antagonist.

The danger was that, before the combined French and American armies could reach and crush 'Cornwallis, Clinton would discover their purpose and send him heavy reinforcements from New York by water.

To prevent, if possible, such a catastrophe, Rochambeau had written to Count de Grusse ad-crush 'Cornwallis, Clinton would discover their purpose and send him heavy reinforcements from New York by water.

To prevent, if possible, such a catastrophe, Rochambeau had written to Count de Grasse, admiral in command of the powerful French fleet in the West Indies, explaining the situation and imploring him to hasten to Yorktown with his entire force and to bring a large sum of money for the use of the American government, even if he had to borrow it.

Admiral de Grasse had no authority to cooperate with the French forces in America. He had been sent to the West Indies with explicit instructions to meet the Spanish fleet there on a fixed date to engage in a joint undertaking. The time was short, and would he assume the responsibility of yielding to Rochambeau's request at the risk of failing to keep his appointment with the Spaniards?

It was before the day of steam navigation and the voyages of sailing ships were of uncertain duration, depending on wind and weather; besides he might meet disaster in battle with the British navy if he went. He had been sent on a special mission and failure to execute his orders on time meant punishment by court-martial and the ruin of his career. Few men in his position would have chanced a deviation from orders involving such dangerous possibilities. He could not have been blamed for playing safe by sticking strictly to his orders. Nevertheless, the fate of America was in the balance and hung on this man's decision, as we shall see.

When Rochambeau departed from Newport it was to join forces with Washington for a foint attack on Cornwallis at Yorktown. Marching from different directions, they met just north of New York City. This was to make Clinton believe their purpose was to attack him, and so prevent lim from sending reinforcements to Yorktown. This ruse worked to perfection and Sir Henry was completely deceived as to their plan of campaign, and while he was busy with his preparations to resist the expected attack the combined American and French armies quietly cross army by water transports to strengthen the forces of Cornwallis.

Would Admiral de Grasse come to their rescue? And would he arrive in time to head off Clinton? Troublesome problems these to Washington and Rochambeau until the thrilling news reached them near Philadelphia that the ships of de Grasse had arrived in the Chesapeake, blockading Cornwallis by sea while Lafayette's army in his rearcut off his way of retreat by land.

Washington, usually so calm, was quite overcome with joy and embraced Rochambeau.

The letter from Admiral de Grasse informed that he had been so impressed by the crisis in the affairs of America that he had exerted his utmost efforts to bring all possible help. Besides his entire fleet of warships he had brought 3,000 French soldiers on transports, and 1,200,000 francs ($240,000), which he had borrowed of the Spanish Governor of Havana.

There was great rejoicing in the camp of the allied armies. Good news travels fast, and as it spread from town to town the people went wild with rejoicing.

A few days later, on sighting twenty-seven British ships at sea, de Grasse slipped out and gave battle. He sunk three of them, after which the rest fled to New York, having lost 336 men killed or wounded. De Grasse lost no ship, but 21 officers and 200 of his sailors were killed or wounded.

On his return to the Chesapeake he found the French soldiers. But such was the conduct with the foliation. Signed by the most friendly and cordial relations. Dinners, receptions, dancing parties and other social functions, at which the French officers as were guests of honor, became frequent and numerous. The companionship of these sections. The companionship of these sections are guests of honor, became frequent and numerous. The companionship of these sections are guests of honor, became frequent and numerous. The companionship of these sections are guests of honor, became frequent and numerous. The companionship of these sections are guests of honor, became frequent and numerous. The companionship of these sections are guests of honor, became frequent and cheek accomplished foreigners made no conceins the section of the companion of the beauty and natural grace of the American Indies. Not was the entertaining all on one side, for the Count de Rochambeau are as the parting when Rochambeau led his army as few the next summer to join Washington in the sleep of Vorktown, Virginia. Of the French soldiers and showered them with flowers and more substantial gifts of food.

The goodly reputation of the French soldiers and showered them with flowers and more substantial gifts of food.

The compass of this article admits of giving only the briefest outline of the campaign, merely only the briefest outline of the campaign in the single of the state o which we hope they will accomplish with equal glory and success.

On entering the war as our ally, France had declared that her motives were unselfish and that she wanted nothing out of it for herself, and at the peace negotiations she maintained the same attitude, saying she wanted nothing for her trouble and expense but the freedom of America. America.

America.

The success of the American war for independence marked the beginning of a new era. It inspired the oppressed sons of liberty the world over with loope and aroused them to action. Until then, England claimed the proud distinction of being the only free country on earth.

Then as now England had a democratic government. Although they still retained their king as a much-admired ornament, he was as dumb and powerless as the carved figure-heads with which in those days they adorned their ships of war; for during a thousand years of slow, constructive struggle to complete liberty, the English people had shorn their monarch of one prerogative after another until they had taken to themselves all powers of government, which they exercised through their elected representatives in Parliament.

through their elected representatives in Parliament.

Not long previous, a reactionary king in the person of Charles I asserted the "divine right" to govern, but the English people, led by Parliament, deposed and beheaded him. Since then the English monarchs have made themselves popular by leaving politics and government severely alone. It was a strange paradox predestined to failure that the government of liberty-loving England denied its American colonies the rights and liberties of Englishmen.

The rights and liberties which Englishmen enjoyed in England was all our forefathers asked. It was what they fought for, and when they had won they modeled our government after the British government with the exception of omitting the useless king.

The French people were becoming restive under the tyranny of their despotic government and looked with longing eyes at the example of democratic England. So when Louis XVI intervened in favor of England's revolted colonies he hastened his own downfall and virtually signed his own death-warrant.

The French idolized Washington and Lafayette, and those who had fought in America returned to spread the propaganda of liberty through France, and in less than ten years the French people rose and shortly followed the example of their English neighbors by deposing and decapitating their king.

England, too, profited by the lesson of the their king.

England, too, profited by the lesson of the American revolution, for she ceased exploiting her remaining colonies and straightway began upbuilding on the foundation of liberty and self-government the greatest colonial empire the world has ever seen. Behold all her colonies today rallying to the support of the mother country in this war.

Since we have accurred colonies. Hawaii Porto.

Since we have acquired colonies, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippines, we have adopted the British method for developing and governing

National PATRIOTIC STATIONERY 50c per quire box

Prepaid to any address in the U. S. NATIONAL PAPETERIE CO., Springfield, Mass.

Sales Agent Sales Agent Sales Agent Sales Agent Sales Agent Sales Agent Sales Sales Agent

Urgent Need of Poultry Raising

NCE again I want to emphasize the very great need of everybody in the country hatching all the chicks they possibly can this spring. Meat isago ing to be even scarcer than it is now, and it is advisable for every one who can to take time by the forelock and provide food for themselves, and what more they can for marker. Chickens and other poultry will have to take the place of pork this summer and next winter. Don't say that grain is too high. Farm chickens that can have free range can feed them selves to a great extent during the spring and summer, besides which, forewarned is forearmed. This year we all know that the great weight of the policy and the war.

It is an easy matter for any one with even a small acreage to grow a few special things for the poultry. An acre of oats, a small patch of Canadian peas, soy beans and Kaffir, corn will provide a well-balanced ration for poultry for the next year, even if corn is too precious to be used. Besides which, it is an easy matter to kill off any surplus supply in the early fall and can them, which will save, the necessity of having to feed at all after cold weather destroys the natural supply of weeds and insects.

For several years I canned two-year-old hem, in September and October, just before the order of the forest year, even if corn is too precious to be used. Besides which, it is an easy matter for any one with even in September and October, just before the order of the forest year, even if corn is too precious to be used. Besides which, it is an easy matter to kill off any surplus supply in the early fall and can them, which will save, the necessity of having to feed at all after cold weather destroys the natural supply of weeds and insects.

For several years I canned two-year-old hem, in September and October, just before the order the power of the power o ore difficult than canning toma-

Last month I urged you to use incubators for early hatches. Once hatched, the great consideration for chickens is warmth and fresh air. There are many different makes of brooders. The fireless brooder is simply a padded box, which depends on the animal heat of the chicks for warmth. Others are heated by lamps. There are large brooders heated by coal stoves or boilers and a pipe system which runs through the entire house.

which runs through the entire house.

If large numbers of birds are to be raised, the brooder house and pipe system are most convenient, but when there are only two or three hundred to be considered, the individual lamp brooder is the best.

individual lamp brooder is the best.

If the fireless brooder is used, it must be operated in a room or house which is heated in some way, as when the outer air is very cold, the chicks will not take sufficient exercise to keep them healthy. The few who run into the brooder during the day cannot get properly warm, for it takes the animal heat of at least twenty-five small chicks to make any impression upon the air.

Most of the different makes of brooders on the market are built with two compartments; a chamber with a hover which is heated by a lamp, and an outer compartment for exercise and feeding. The price is from seven to twenty dollars. The machines are supposed to hold one hundred chicks, but seventy-five are quite enough, and this number should be de-by a lamp, and the process are supposed to hold one hundred chicks, but seventy-five are quite enough, and this number should be decreased fifty the second week and twenty-five the fourth week—that is, if the chicks are to be confined entirely to the brooder. If the brooder stands in a warm room, where a small outer enclosure can be made on the floor of the house for a playroom, fifty chicks can be carried through the squab or broiler age in one brooder.

The compartment in which the hover is situated must be heated up to inhety-eight degrees before the chicks are put in, and must be kept up to this point for the first three days and nights. Keep the door in the outer compartment shut for the same length of time. Then on the fourth day the door can be opened and the chicks allowed to run into the outer compartment, but the room in which the brooder stands should be warm, and the little ones should be warched a bedtine, as they are apt to remain in a bedtine, as they are apt to remain in a bedtine, as they are apt to remain in the advantment and become chilled.

And seit

Men the chicks are in a brooder, everything the product of the chicks are in a brooder, everything the sever used in brooders.

Men the chicks are in a brooder, everything the kept strictly clean and special care be when the chicks are in a brooder, everything the kept strictly clean and special care be when the chicks are in a brooder, everything the kept strictly clean and special care be when the chicks are in a brooder, everything the kept strictly clean and special care be when the chicks are in a brooder, everything the kept strictly clean and special care be when the chicks are in a brooder, everything the kept strictly clean and special care be a short time is fatal to the chicks are in a brooder, everything the same length of the chicks are in a brooder, everything the kept strictly clean and special care be a short time is fatal to the chick are in the chick a in one brooder.

The compartment in which the hover is situated must be heated up to ninety-eight degrees before the chicks are put in, and must be kept up to this point for the first three days and nights. Keep the door in the outer compartment shut for the same length of time. Then on the fourth day the door can be opened and the chicks allowed to run into the outer compartment, but the room in which the brooder stands should be warm, and the little ones should be warm, and the little ones should be watched toward bedtime, as they are apt to remain if the outer compartment and become chilled.

Being chilled even for a short time is fatal to chicks. If it does not kill them outright, it gives them bowel trouble, and causes a bad setback, if nothing worse, and that does not pay.

After the birds are three weeks old, the door in the outer compartment may be opened for them to run on the floor of the house. Let them have plenty of scratching material. If the weather is-fine and mild, it will do them good to have an outside run for an hour or two in the middle of the day.

Thirty hours must be allowed for the proper digestion and assimilation of the yolk, which is absorbed into the abdomen immediately before the chick breaks through the shell. After that, absorbed into the abdomen immediately before the chick breaks through the shell. After that, absorbed into the abdomen immediately before the chick breaks through the shell. After that, absorbed into the abdomen immediately before the chick breaks through the shell. After that, absorbed into the abdomen immediately before the chick breaks through the shell. After that, and the chick breaks through the shell. After that, and the content of the chick breaks through the shell. After that, and the content of the chick breaks through the shell. After that, and the chick breaks through the shell. After that, and the content of the chick breaks through the shell. After that, and the chick are in the case of the mout on clean proper in a moderately cool place where the a up at once, and left to cool in the water. Fed raw, it is too strong for little chicks. For a change, I mix the grain with scalded milk two or three times a week. No more should be mixed at a time than will be fed within the next few hours, as it sours and is then unfit for feed.

Once a day, chopped apple and lettuce or young, finely-cut oat sprouts or lawn grass should be given. Let the chicks have all they care to eat, for, confined in a brooder, they must be provided with plenty of animal and vegetable food.

food.

Chicks hatched from eggs laid by hens that are constitutionally strong and free from disease are naturally vigorous and easy to raise, but unfortunately there are many sources of contagion which are apt to cause serious illness in the brood. White diarrhea and pneumonia are the most serious. ne most serious.

White diarrhea springs from four distinct weather is fine and mild, it will do them good to have an outside run for an hour or two in the middle of the day.

Thirty hours must be allowed for the proper digestion and assimilation of the yolk, which is absorbed into the abdomen immediately before the chick breaks through the shell. After that commercial chick feed (which is a mixture of all sorts of small seeds and cracked grains) should be their sole diet for ten days.

When there is only a small number of chicks to feed, and cash is of more value than time, it will be cheaper to mix the feed at home. Mix together ten pounds of rape and millet seed, pinhead oatmeal and cracked corn, charcoal and sharp, fine grit. If you cannot get pinhead oatmeal, buy hulled oats and break them up fine. The grain must also be cracked up quite fine; in fact, it is safer to put the mixture through a sieve which will allow nothing larger than millet to go through. Then there is no danger of chicks being choked. To encourage the chicks to scratch and take exercise, feed, the mixture by scattering it among the hay sweepings.

Morning and evening make a mash by chopping fogether a hard-boiled egg, shell and all and green onlon tops or sprouts. Mix with stale bread crumbs and feed on a fiat ple-plate or strip of wood. After the chicks are two weeks old, the oats and corn may be about the size of a hemp seed. This, as well as cracked wheat or barley, can be added to the mixture. The mash can be made of ground corn and oats with onloss and scaled liver, chopped, three times and placed in the department of the strip of wood. After the chicks are two weeks old, the oats and corn may be about the size of a hemp seed. This, as well as cracked wheat or barley, can be added to the mixture. The mash can be made of ground corn and oats with onloss and scaled liver, chopped, three times and placed liver, the place of the contagino from diseased to healthy birds occurs of the same the contagino from diseased to healthy birds occurs of the same through the droppings in the same through the constant renewal of all scratching and bedding materials, are all of the greatest value in fighting the disease. In fact, they do more to check the ontbreak than any mere doctoring of a sick bird, especially as adult birds may have it in a chronic form for months without being suspected, and so contaminate the premises or other stock with their droppings. The first symptoms in fowls are dullness, sleepiness, often standing around without any desire to join their companions; later, diarrhea and loss of weight. Often such cases appear to recover after a few days or weeks, but are never really free from the germs, and occasonally such birds die suddenly without any apparent cause. Unless examination of the intestines is made after death, the small intestine will be found inflamed and thickened; the liver and lungs may show yellowish or whitish spots, but not always. The treatment, which is helpful for either fowls or geese, is: Three grains of copperss to every quart of drinking water; four grains of catechu; two tablespoonfuls of castor oil every day until they have had three doses.

G. R.—We have no descriptive catalogues of poultry or game. This department will furnish you with information on different branches of poultry work, and frequently gives the history of different breeds. I shall be very pleased to help you, if you will write me in care of COMFORT and name the specific points on which you desire information.

me in care of COMPORT and name the specific points on which you desire information.

J. L., Butler.—The lumps in the hen you killed must have been some sort of tumorous growth. It is much better not to use birds in such a condition for table, and it is safer always to burn the carcass of a bird found to contain any strange growth in the intestines. I don't think there could have been any connection between the birds which died early in the season and the one you killed. Highly fed hens frequently die suddenly after they enter their second or third year, for rich food, which stimulates the egg organs, invariably reacts on the liver as the hen advances in years. Nothing but close observation can prevent such cases, for individual birds are apt to get overfed on rations that keep the rest of the flock in good condition. When a hen is noticed to be getting heavy and, fat in the under part of the body, the best plan is to use her for the table whilst still in full health, and if she is a very good hen, and you wish to use her eggs in setting, it may be worth while to put her in a separate coop and gradually change her diet, eliminating corn and potatoes and other such fattening foods, and use half a teaspoonful of magnesia in half a pint of drinking water every second day until she gets back into condition.

M. F.—From your description of the hen which died last summer, and the ones now suffering. I am afraid ful of magnesia in hair a pint of drinking water every second day until she gets back into condition.

M. F.—From your description of the hen which died last summer, and the ones now suffering, I am afraid that vent gleet has been introduced into the fock. It is usually started by a hen meeting with some accident which breaks the egg just before it should be laid. This causes asepte poisoning, which develops into vent gleet if neglected. But the disease can be brought into a flock by an infected male bird. Better examine all the male birds. If any show signs of inflammation, redness or traces of discharge, dry sores or small pimples, you had better carry the examination to the rest of the hens, and discover how many have been affected. If they are just ordinary, common birds, kill them and burn the carcasses: if good thoroughbreds, each of them must be confined in a separate coop, and treated as follows: Into two quarts of warm water put one teaspoonful of crecity; hold the bird's feet and lower body in the water about twenty minutes, dry the parts on a soft rag and anoint with unquentine. Feed lightly with dry grain, and repeat the treatment every day until a cure is effected. Be extremely careful to burn the rags used, and to wash your hands in strong antiseptic before touching anything else.

R. J. W.—Young ducks must always have dry, clean sleeping nuarters. Drinking wafer should be kent anything else.

R. J. W.—Young ducks must always have dry, clean sleeping quarters. Drinking water should be kept in dishes that they cannot get their feet and bodies into, but so arranged that they can submerge the entire head in water so that they can rinse the beak thoroughly; otherwise the two small holes of the bill get stopped up with food or dirt, and the birds get sick because they can't breathe properly. The bacteria which causes roup cannot be banished without thefough disinfecting of the premises. They may remain dormant for varying lengths of time, but as soon as damp weather sets in, or any bird develops a cold, they have congenial conditions and immediately become active.

M. K.—Inbreeding always causes weakness. The congenial conditions and immediately become active.

M. K.—Inbreeding always causes weakness. The November number of COMFORT went into the subject of blackhead in turkeys, so you had better refer to that number, as you are a subscriber. Also, read answer to R. J. W. in this issue. One gander is quiteenough for five geese. No change should be made in a flock of geese after the early fall, for geese are strange, faithful creatures, and will rarely mate with strangers, or any strange surroundings.

S. W.—The hens are too fat. The lameness in one foot is an effect of liver trouble. You don't tell me how you feet, but I imagine you are using corn and table scraps too heavily. Bead answer to J. L. in this issue.

FREE CHICK BOOK tells how to Save Baby Chicks from dying of White Diarrhoa by using a simple home solution. It's Free, E. J. REEFER, Poultry Expert, 104 Reefer Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

57 Varieties Chicans, Ducks, Gesse and Turksy. hardy, northern raised. Fr Is a winning, pure-bred, low prices. Most inconservation in the harding stating free. Larkin & Herberg, 50x 35 Mankate, Mind.

Raise Poultry—Help Win the War

Every backyard should have chickens now. Requires small outlay. Big profits if conducted properly. These booklets tell how to get best recults. "Left S. POULTRY BOOK." SECRETS OF SUCCESS WITH SCHOOL STATES TO SUMMER BOOK." ALL ABOUT EGGS.
"POINTERS FOR SUMMER NO DOOKLES SEND TO SUMMER NO.
"POINTERS FOR SUMMER NO." SEND TO SUM THE SUMMER NO.
"POINTERS FOR SUMMER NO." SEND TO SUMMER NO.
"POINTERS FOR SUMMER NO." SEND TO SUMMER NO." ALL ABOUT EGGS.
"POINTERS FOR SUMMER NO." SEND TO SUMMER NO." ALL ABOUT EGGS.
"POINTERS FOR SUMMER NO." SEND TO SUMMER NO." ALL ABOUT EGGS.
"POINTERS FOR SUMMER NO." SEND TO SUMMER NO." ALL ABOUT EGGS.
"POINTERS FOR SUMMER NO." SEND TO SUMMER NO." ALL ABOUT EGGS.
"POINTERS FOR SUMMER NO." SEND TO SUMMER NO." ALL ABOUT EGGS.
"POINTERS FOR SUMMER NO." SEND TO SUMMER NO." ALL ABOUT EGGS.
"POINTERS FOR SUMMER NO." SEND TO SUMMER NO." ALL ABOUT EGGS.
"POINTERS FOR SUMMER NO." ALL ABOUT EGGS." ALL ABOUT EGGS.
"POINTERS FOR SUMMER NO." ALL ABOUT EGGS." ALL ABOUT EGGS.
"POINTERS FOR SUMMER NO." ALL ABOUT EGGS." ALL ABOUT EGGS.
"POINTERS FOR SUMMER NO." ALL ABOUT EGGS." ALL ABOUT EGGS.
"POINTERS FOR SUMMER NO." ALL ABOUT EGGS." ALL ABOUT EGGS.
"POINTERS FOR SUMMER NO." ALL ABOUT EGGS." ALL ABOUT EGGS.
"POINTERS FOR SUMMER NO." ALL ABOUT EGGS." ALL ABOUT EGGS.
"POINTERS FOR SUMMER NO." ALL ABOUT EGGS." ALL ABOUT EGGS.
"POINTERS FOR SUMMER NO." ALL ABOUT EGGS." ALL ABOUT EGGS.
"POINTERS FOR SUMMER NO." ALL ABOUT EGGS." ALL ABOUT EGGS.
"POINTERS FOR SUMER NO." ALL ABOUT EGGS." ALL ABOUT EGGS.
"POINTERS FOR SUMER NO." ALL ABOUT EGGS." ALL ABOUT EGGS.
"POINTERS FOR SUMER NO." ALL ABOUT EGGS." ALL ABOUT EGGS.
"POINTERS FOR SUMER NO." ALL ABOUT EGGS." ALL ABOUT EGGS.
"POINTERS FOR SUMER NO." ALL ABOUT EGGS." ALL ABOUT EGGS.
"POINTERS FOR SUMER NO." ALL ABOUT EGGS." ALL ABOUT EGGS.
"POINTERS FOR SUMER NO." ALL ABOUT EGGS." ALL ABOUT EGGS.
"POINTERS FOR SUMER NO." ALL ABOUT EGGS." ALL ABOUT EGGS.
"POINTERS FOR SUMER NO." ALL ABOUT EGGS." ALL ABOUT EGGS.
"POINTERS FOR SU

Ferris White Leghorns 200 E96 STRAIN. Eggs, chicks, bear, breeding males.

Satisfaction or money back. 40-page catalog free.

Poultry Supplies and equipment. Everything from catalog gives lowest prices on hundreds of articles.

GEORGE B. FERRIS. 943 UNION, GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

130-Egg Incubator and Brooder
Freight Paid Rockies Both $ 12
Hot water; double walls; copper tank; best construction. Write for free catalog;
Wisconsin Issubator Co., Bex 16

53 Varieties, Chickens, Bronze, White Turkeys; Toulouse, Embden, African, China Geese; Rouen, Pekin, Runner, Muscovy Turkeys; Toulouse, Embden. African, China Geese; Rouen, Pekin, Runner, Muscovy Ducks; Guineas, Incubators, Brooders, Catalog free.
THEODORE FRANZ, Box 97, Mankato, Minn.

64 BREEDS Valuable New Poultry Book Free - 108 pages. Fine pure-bred chickens, ducks, geese and turkeys. Choice, hardy, Northern failed. Fowls, eggs and incubators at low prices. America's greatest poultry farm. 25th year in business. Write today for Free Book. R. F. NEUBERT CO., Box 871, Mankato, Minn.

Keep Your Hens a Laying "SUCCESSFUL" Incubators and Brooders Used by the big money makers who stay in business year after year. Poultry Lessons Free, Booklet. "How to Raise 48 out of 50 chicks." 10 cents, Catalog Free, Write today.

Don't Feed Green Food! Do away with the bother by using ucculenta Tablets

Write for particulars, giving your feed dealers name, to SUCCULENTA CO., Box 405, K 15 Newark, N. J.

proposiderand of the British drawn by our or second was during a status, as

8.95 Champion buys 140-Egg

Belle City Incubator

The Prize Winning Model with Double Walls of Fibre Board - HotWater - Copper Tank - Self Regulator-Thermometer Holder-Deep Nursery—same as used by Uncle Samand America's most successful Poultry Raisers-that hasled the field for over 12 years—Over 650,000 sales to date. When ordered with my $5.25 Double Walled-Hot Water - Roomy 140 - Chick Brooder—Both cost only $12.95.

Both cost only $12.95.

Freight Prepaid East of Rockies Satisfaction Guaranteed—Handiest machines — Easy to run — Big in results. Startearly — Order Now on 1, 2, 3, Months' Home Test Plan — and share in my

$1000 Cash Prizes

Conditions easy to get biggest prize.
Or write today for my big Free Book, "Hatching Facts"—it tells all.
With this wonderful hatching outfit and my complete guide book for setting up and operating, you can make a big income. Jim Rohan, Pres. Belle City Incubator Co., Box 135 Racine, Wis.

Reg Incubator, we wall 6,009 at only 83 each. Guaranteed hatch as large a per e of strong, healthy this as any locubator margardless of nam make or price. Made polished etes! w double walled air chaber, 1917 improved d outer edges, water jucketed heat flue and satiomatic heat reculation insuring even temperature and moniture in every part of egg chamber, and prepare heat to eggs all the time. Full directions with cubator. SEND $120 grade, latest improved SMYTH'S all steel 60 egg incubator by express, subject to examination. Pay ablance $2.22 and express charges to agent after you find the incubator perfectly estisfactory and the greatest incu-TRY ITS all express charges to agent after you find the incubator perfectly estisfactory and the greatest incu-TRY ITS all reports and the greatest incu-TRY ITS all reports and the greatest incu-TRY ITS all reports and if you do not find it as greed a hather as ITS and the greatest incu-TRY ITS all reports and all for all reports and all regions are all regions are all regions and all regions are all regions and all regions are all regions are all regions and all regions are all regions ar JOHN M. SMYTH MOSE CO. 703-714 Wash-CHICACO

Profit With Chickens

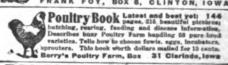

Money in Poultry Small Investment, and Squab's Our abook pays be at.

Thousands of prizes at big shows, best layers, lowest prices, all varieties. Big Free Book tells all about it. Write today, GRESCENI POULTRY FARM, Box 2, Des Moines, is.

Cubby Bear and the Shadows

By Lena B. Ellingwood

Copyright, 1918, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

THO can be knocking at our door this winter morning?" asked Mamma Bruin, raising her head from her comfortable pillow, and lifting her night-cap from her ear to listen. "Was it someone knocking, Cubby Bear, or did snow fall from the roof?" "I will see," answered Cubby Bear, springing

"I will see," answered Cubby Bear, springing out of his little bed. "Lie still and rest, Mamma Bruin, and I will go to the door."

So Cubby Bear, shivering, went to the door. Wollie Woodchuck stood outside.
"Put on your earmuffs and scarf and mittens, Cubby Bear," said Wollie. "I have serious business on hand, and I would like your help." "
"Why, what can it be?" asked Cubby, "in mid-winter?"

"It may be mid-winter, or it may be almost spring," sighed Wollie Woodchuck. "It all depends on whether I can find my shadow or

Cubby Bear stared in puzzled wonder. "Come in," he invited, "and we will talk it over." "I don't very well understand it myself," said

"I don't very well understand it myself," said Wollie gloomily, but today is Candlemas Day, the second of February, and always, on that day, I must crawl out of my warm house, no matter what the weather may be, and hunt for my shadow. If I find it, no one is pleased, for that means there will be six weeks more of winter. I am pleased, for then I can go back to bed again. If I find no shadow, people brighten up, and say, "The winter is nearly gone." Do not stand there staring so, Cubby Bear," went on Wollie beginning to lose his temper. "Get on your things, so you can keep warm. You on your things, so you can keep warm. You must go with me, and help me look for my shadow, and keep me from going to sleep, unless you want me to freeze."

"Oh, no, I would not want you to freeze," said Cubby, we have been friends for a long time. If there is any darger. I will go with your time. If there is any danger, I will go with you. Good by, Mamma Bruin, I will be back by and

"Good by," answered Mamma Bruin, "I will make a fire to take a little nap, and then I will make a fire to warm you both when you come back."

Outside, a chilly wind was blowing, gray clouds covered the sky, and now and then a few snowflakes fell.

Wollie plunged ahead gloomily through the forest, his eyes on the ground, and Cubby Bear followed, looking all around for Wollie's shadow. For some time they walked on in silence, then Cubby Bear spoke.

"Where would the shadow be likely to be?"

"Don't ask me," said Wollie. "I don't know, and I don't much care. If I find it, everybody blames me, and that is not pleasant, you may be sure." If you should happen to see it, just let me know, and we can go home again."

They met Bunny Rabbit, wearing his warm, white winter coat, but he did not care to join in

"I must get back home to my Baby Bunnies," he said. "I have left them alone for a long time. It is enough to do to find food through the winter, without hunting for shadows, which are useless things when you have found them."

I have seen shadows in the summer time,"
Cubby Bear told Wollie Woodchuck, "and I think they were always on the ground. If we were to dig down under the snow, perhaps we might find yours."

After going a long way, Wollie Woodchuck yawned, and lay down in the snow. "I am tired," he said, "and I am going to sleep. In five

"No, no!" said Wollie, "it falls wherever it happens. Just as well look in one place as another." yearly hunt of Wollie Woodchuck's. If you are happens, Just as well look in one place as another." on again. The wind grew colder, and the gray hunt of Wollie Woodchuck's. If you are happens, Just as well look in one place as another." animal who has so little wit he cannot keep track of his own shadow!"

"Wollie Woodchuck is my friend, and I

"WHY LOOK!" CRIED CUBBY BEAR. "THIS IS FOXY'S SHADOW COMING ALONG RIGHT AHEAD OF minutes you must wake me, Cubby Bear, so I shall not freeze."

Cubby Bear sat patiently by, waiting until the five minutes should have passed, when a harsh laugh sounded from a bare tree-top not far off.

"Haw, haw!" laughed Billy Blue Jay. "Go off and leave him—I would! I know all about this Cubby Bear had wakened Wollie, they started rabbits in March COMFORT. laugh sounded from a bare tree-top not far off.
"Haw, haw!" laughed Billy Blue Jay. "Go off promised to help him," was all the answer Cubby Bear made, but he thought with a sigh, "I do wish Wollie would stay awake—it would be more polite! My paws are cold and I am blue sky above.

"I think the sun will come out by and by," said Cubby Bear hopefully, but with chattering teeth. "Then it might, perhaps, be warmer."

"We will go back to Mamma Bruin's house, and get warm," declared Wollie. "I am shivering, and my claws are quite blue with the cold!"

"Let me see them," said Cubby. "Why, no, they are not blue, Wollie."

"Well, I am blue," sighed Wollie, and he turned and led the way back toward Mamma Bruin's house.

Bruin's house.

As they hurried along, the sharp wind blew in their faces, and Cubby Bear wrapped his scarf tightly about him.

The wind was blowing the clouds away, doing more than Cubby Bear ever could to help Wollie Woodchuck find his shadow.

Before they reached Mamma Bruin's house, the sun shone out, lighting up the forest, bringing out countless sparkles of diamond-brightness on the snow.

Cubby Bear and Wollie Woodchuck, walking along side by side, met Foxy Reynard.

"Why, look!" cried Cubby Bear. "There is Foxy's shadow, coming along right ahead of him!" "I saw him early this morning," said Wollie,

'and he had no shadow then. "Still looking for your shadow?" asked Foxy.
"Yes," answered Wollie, "and I can't find it, though Cubby Bear, and I have been looking

"What I can't understand, said Cubby Bear," pressing his mittened paws to his brow, "is, why, when your shadow runs on ahead of you Wollie's shadow doesn't do the same."

Foxy smiled—his sly, foxy smile—and looked beyond Cubby and Wollie. The bright sun madeshadows of all three animals, but, as Cubby and Wollie stood face to face with Foxy, their shadows were behind them, as Foxy could plainly see plainly see.

"It is strange!" said Foxy, and went off chuckling to hinself.

Mamma Bruin met them at the door, smiling kindly.

"The sun has come out," said she, "and you have a fine, strong shadow!"

"Oh, no," Cubby told her sorrowfully, "we have wandered about all these hours, but nowhere could we find Wollie Woodchuck's shadow!"

Mamma Bruin kept on smiling, "Look behind you," she directed.

They turned around, and there, to be sure, was Wollie's shadow, which had been following them, and Cubby Bear's, too.

They stared at each other in surprise, then laughed, and Cubby Bear was so pleased he standard the standard stood on his head in the snow.

"Come in now," said Mamma Bruin, "warm yourselves by my fire, and have some nice

"Then, since my shadow has been found, I can go home and go to sleep again," said Wollie, "for it is only mid-winter now!"

Instead of a "Cubby Bear" story next month we shall give our young readers "Billy Bun's Easter Escapade." It is a fine story, by Mrs. Ellingwood, and tells of the wonderful doings of the rabbits in celebrating Easter and the exploits of Billy Bun, the hero of the occasion.

CONTENTS

Page Editorial -Why Should the Magazine Postage Rate in the United States be 3 to 20 times the Canadian Rate? The Girl He Loved (continued) Adelaide Stirling Comfort Sisters' Corner Comfort Sisters' Recipes Sibyl's Influence (continued) Mrs. Georgie Sheldon St. Valentine's Day in War Time Violet Marsh Cross Currents (concluded) Maud Mary Brown Lincoln's Wit and Wisdom C. L. Cheever Comfort's League of Cousins Uncle Charlie Home Dressmaking Hints Geneva Gladding -11 A Novel Valentine Party Roslie Barton Cummings American War Heroines Frances L. Garside Allen's Sudden Second Marriage Carl Schurz Illustrious French Warriors Who Helped Us Win Poultry Farming for Women Mrs. Kate V. St. Cubby Bear and the Shadows Lena B. Ellingwood 16 Crumbs of Comfort - - - 16 The Pretty Girls' Club Katherine Booth - 17 The Modern Farmer - - -. 18 Aunt Lavinia's Valentine Elizabeth Moore Joyce 19 Comfort Kits Easily and Quickly Made for Our Boys at Home and Abroad Needed Knitting for Liberty Boys - - - 21 The Awakening (continued) Anna Bird Stewart 22 Manners and Looks - · · · Veterinary Information 26 Children's Happy Hour - 27 Talks with Girls A Corner for Boys Family Doctor Information Bureau • • 31 • 32 Three Wheel Chairs in January - - 37 The Emporium of Bargains and Opportunities • 39 Comfort's Comicalities - - -39

Our Household Number

for March will specialize on those questions of domestic economy which are taxing the ingenuity of every housewife who is burdened with the responsibility of the upkeep of the home in war time, and with its many useful suggestions will help her feed and clothe her family acceptably in spite of rising prices. In its fancy work department extra space will be devoted to knitting garments for the children and others.

Some Special Features for March

"Clothes Conservation" "With the Home Makers" An illustrated article telling how to cleanse Tells about the Home-Makers' Clubs and gives renovate, repair and make over clothing and many helpful hints for improving the home and millinery-practical and very useful. for best ways of doing things. "Little Charms for the Home" "Light and Power for the Farm" Describes simple and inexpensive ways in Tells how to install a power plant on the farm to save hiring farm labor now so costly and scarce, and furnish light, too. which any woman can decorate and beautify the home with materials at hand. "Household Conveniencies" "Easter Cooking" Describes, with illustrations, a variety of home-A timely article on food conservation and gives a lot of recipes for cooking food in season in made conveniences for saving time and labor in doing the housework. spring and summer. If the number over your name on the wrapper on this magazine is 353 or any less number, it means that your subscription needs to be renewed at once.

Take no chance of missing the useful March number. Renew today. Use the

SUBSCRIPTION RATES are: 25 cents a year, 50 cents for three years, 40 cents for a TWO-YEAR renewal, in U. S. and Cuba. (In Canada 50 cents a year.)

SUBSCRIPTION COUPON FOR RENE Publisher of COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.	WAL OR EXTENSION ONLY
I enclose cents for renewal and extension o date of expiration.	f my subscription full years from
Date
Post Office	eet No
R. F. D. No Box No State February, 1918.

Crumbs of Comfort

Live for something.

Confidence is a conqueror.

God is waking while we sleep. A pleasure may prove a prison. A fool at forty is a fool indeed. Heaven is the authority of falth. Throwing mud makes dirty hands. Courage can supply great failings. Empty stomachs are bad counselors. Great wits can also gloriously offend. A lover's eyes can gaze an eagle blind. Short retirements make sweet returns. The richest soul wears often poor attire. Glory is but the transcient blaze of fame. Choose an author as you choose a friend. Fear is the tax that conscience pays to gilt. They never pardon who commit the wrong. He who seeks truth should be of no country. A fool must now and then be right by chance. Exaggeration is more than cousin to falsehood. Seek not to wax great by the waning of others. The weakest fruit drops earliest to the ground. None think the great unhappy except themselves. Love reckons hours for menths and days for years. Dress can bring an empty cellar and a lean larder. Thank God for the mighty hopes that make us men. Experience shows us a short way by long wanderings. By one man's example kings have been taught to pray. Pure brains on a farm is almost as bad as pure muscle. Our duty is to tend from good to better-then to best., Great souls by instinct turn to each other in friendship. The generations unborn are the sovereigns of the world. Habit is the child of yesterday and the herald of to-

If you have built castles in the air, your work need not be lost; that is where they should be. Now put the foundations under them.

To Mr. Hoover

My Tuesdays are meatless,
My Wednesdays are wheatless,
I'm getting more eatless each day;
My home—it is heatless,
My bed—it is sheetless,
They're all sent to the Y. M. C. A.
The barrooms are treatless,
My cofee is sweetless,
Each day I get poorer and wiser;
My stockings are feetless,
My trousers are seatless,
My God, how I do hate the Kaiser.
—Grand Rapids Herald.

The Pretty Girls' Club

Conducted by Katherine Booth

The Girl of Fifteen

The Girl of Fifteen

UCH appealing letters as I receive from the very young members of our Club, all the way from twelve to fifteen! They seem to have quite as serious problems as we older folks, so this month I am going to talk to them, and our subject will be hair. Yes, hair, for oh, so many letters ask the question; "How shall I do my hair?"

The answer is "Just as simply as possible." The daughters of the very rich families are never allowed to "do their hair up" while they are of schoolgirl age, nor to dress it in any fashion but a very simple one. And this is one good thing we may follow, among many foolish things which we won't copy at all.

The first thing we want to remember, girls, is not to use curlnot to use curling-irons on our hair and break and dry it up, so that it will be rough and thin and begin to fall out. Shampoo it once in two or three weeks, shake and air it in the sun ence every day, brush it gently before going to bed each night, and sleep with it loosely braided. A pretty way to use curl

HAIR READY FOR

A pretty way to dress the hair is to part it in the middle, and also from ear to ear. This leaves two fron t strands of hair and one back

two of ront strands of hair and one back curling on Braiding. Strand. Brush the latter well, then tie close to the head with a bit of flat, narrow shoestring (you can cut a wide shoestring down the middle to get a narrow enough piece). Take one of the front strands, and brush it down from the part toward the ear, then roll the hair backward and fasten firmly with a hairpin just above the shoestring knot. Now gently loosen the hair at the sides of the part and pull it down a little on the forehead to give a wavy line, fastening it in place with an invisible hairpin. Do the same with the other half of the front hair.

Now the back hair is ready to be braided or curled. If braided, let the ends of the front hair joint with the back, and braid@loosely half its length. If it is to be curled, tie it with a big ribbon close to the head, and then brush the hair over the finger in two or three sections, thus making either two or three long curls. It is pretty to braid the hair half-way, and then curl the ends in this fashion.

Don't part the hair constantly, but if your forehead is not too high, change your hair-straight back from the forehead. To do this, part the hair from ear to ear, and tie the back haif as before. Then brush the front half back, and tie over the fastening of the back hair, pulling the sides of the hair slightly forward over temples and cheeks to avoid too severe a line. The reason for dividing the hair firm by drawing one half tight and tying, and yet have the loose effect which is becoming, by brushing half separately and fastening it to the firm foundation made by the back hair.

Try this way of doing your hair, and stick to it till you are sixteen or seventeen. It is becoming, fashionable, and I am sure you will like it.

Answers to Questions

Answers to Questions

M. T.—Any peroxide of hydrogen that you buy at your drug store will be all right for removing the superfluous hair, according to the directions I gave you. It is not injurious to the skin used in this manner. As to the length of time it takes to remove the hair, that varies with different people. It is a long process and takes a great deal of patience and perseverance. You say your sister has dark circles around her mouth. I do not know what may cause this unless there is a slight dark-colored down on her lips. Tell her to use soap and water thoroughly on her lips when she washes her face, but she must rinse her skin very thoroughly after, or it will chap. A little peroxide of hydrogen used occasionally will help to bleach the skin there.

Flossy Saskatchewan.—One hundred and twenty-three pounds is not at all too much for five feet, five inches tall—you could weigh as much as 140 without going over weight. If you are fifteen years old, you should do your hair quite simply. You say it is thin—do you "rat" or "rough" it? If so, you should stop doing this, as it kills the hair. Neither should you use curling-irons on the hair. Let it lay straight, but brush it gently many times on retiring, and shampoo it once in two or three weeks, drying it in the sun and letting it hang loose as long as possible. Drink quantities of water, and eat plenty of good nourishing food. Do not eat fried foods if you can help it; baked or boiled potatoes, roasted of broiled meats are good for you. And do not eat hot breads, as they are hard to digest, and if your body does not get the right kind of nourishment, your hair will not be healthy. Chew your food thoroughly before s wallow ing — it should be almost liquid. Eat plenty thoroughly before swallowing—it should be almost liquid. Eat plenty of fruits and vege-tables—apples, prunes granges. of fruits and vegetables — apples, prunes, oranges, grape-fruit, dried apricots, figs. Do not eat between meals. All of these directions, if followed, will help to give your body the nourishment which will improve your hair. In the meantime, massage the scalp every night. To do this, let down the hair, brush it gently, and shake it. Then slip the fingers them firmly against the scalp. Without raising or rubbing with the fingers, move the scalp back and forward on the skull. The fingers do not change their position on the scalp but simply are carried with it as it moves back and forth. You may find your scalp sticks rather tight to the skull, which would show that this massage is badly needed, for the hair cannot be healthy unless the scalp is kept loose. To do the hair, the daughters of some of the wealthlest families on Fifth Avenue, New York, wear their hair simply braided loosely in one braid, with the ends left loose. But read what I say this month about hair, and you will get some suggestions about dressing it.

Esther.—Keeping your body built up and strong is guite effective in lessening the number of freekles and the suggestions about dressing it.

Four tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, four tablespoonfuls of glycerine. These should be mixed thoroughly, and after applying allowed to dry on the skin. Keep this up until the skin begins to peel. Remember that when freckles have been removed the new skin exposed is very tender, and you should coat it with cold cream well rubbed in and powdered over before going outdoors.

is very tender, and you should coat it with cold cream well rubbed in and powdered over before going outdoors.

Anxious Virginia.—Yes, 150 pounds is a little too much for five feet six, but it should be easy to lose eight or ten pounds. Cut out some of your sweets, for the time being, do not eat between meals, and be sparing of potatoes, rice and white bread. Eat plenty of fruits (except bananas) and vegetables. Exercise daily. Cut down on the amount of food you are eating, also. You should lose those few extra pounds in a very short time. You say your bust is too high. Is it that your bust is high, or your corset high? Probably the latter. Any one with a large bust should wear a very low-bust corset—hardly any corset above the walst at all. My own corset does not reach the bottom of my bust in front, yet I have not a large bust, though a high corset makes it look so. You can always have a corset cut off to make it lower, but you will find plenty of low-bust corsets on the market which do not need this alteration. Buy yours of a make which reaches just about half an inch below the bust. The object of a corset is to make the waisf firm, not to compress the bust. You say you bite your, finger nails. My dear, they will never grow long, as you want them, while you have that habit, and nobody can overcome it for you. It is just a matter of your own resolution. Coating the finger nails with some bitter lotion will help to remind you, as when you start to bite them the taste will be a warning. Or get a tube of liquid court-plaster at the drug store and coat the nails with that, especially the finger-tips. That will be a protection for a time, though not particularly good for the nails. Then pay particular attention to manicuring. If you clean and trim and polish the nails daily you will soon get proud of them and be much more apt to remember to let them alone. Keep the skin pushed back at the base of the nails, all hangnails trimmed off with sharp manicure scissors, and the fingers in good shape.

member to let them alone. Keep the skin pushed back at the base of the nails, all hangnails trimmed of with sharp maincure scissors, and the fingers in good shape.

Dorothy M.—I am so sorry the answer to your questions could not be in the December issue, but you must remember, my dear, that magazines are ready for printing some four or five months before they reach you, and this issue is the first one in which your answer could appear. The blue taffets dress with Georgetic crope sleeves is not too old for you, at fifteen. It should make a very pretty gown. Now about "getting fat." If you only weigh one hundred and seven pounds and are five feet one inch tail, you are not in the least fat. In fact you could weigh considerably more before you would reach the weight which belongs with this height. It may be, however, that your bones are small, in which case 110 would probably be just about right. I shouldn't worry about my weight, except to decide that I shouldn't worry about my weight, except to decide that I shouldn't worry about my weight, except to decide that I shouldn't worry about my weight, except to decide that I shouldn't worry about my weight, except to decide that I shouldn't worry about my weight, except to decide that I shouldn't worry about my weight, except to decide that I shouldn't worry about my weight, except to decide that I shouldn't worry about my weight, except to decide that I shouldn't worry about my weight, except to decide that I shouldn't worry about my weight, except to decide that I shouldn't worry about my weight, except to decide that I shouldn't worry about my weight, except to decide that I shouldn't worry about my weight, except to decide that it shouldn't worry about my weight, except to decide that it shouldn't worry about my weight, except to decide that it shouldn't work to conserve sugar that there may be enough to go around for ordinary purposes; but even if there were plenty of sugar, you should eat candy only once in a small was a sonoth, clear complex of any and the sam

Oklahoma.—Indeed, my dear, I feel very much flattered to think you would like my picture, but I haven't one. The only one I have had taken for years is the one Comport used a little while ago in some advertising circulars. Perhaps if you wrote to the advertising department they might send you one of the circulars. So you, too, are going to learn to edit a beauty department. Good luck to you, though you may change your mind before you get through High School. I thank you for your very warm and friendly note, and I am glad that you like my department so much. note, much.

Green Eyes.—See answer to "M. T." To use the peroxide and ammonia, dampen the hairy portions of the skin with one, one day, and the other the next day. Keep up until the hair falls out. In the meantime, the peroxide bleaches it so it is not so visible. If the ammonia irritates the skin after a number of applications, stop the treatment for a couple of days.

applications, stop the treatment for a couple of days.

Mrs. E. M. G.—The health of the hair depends upon the health of the body, and if yours is coming out, the probability is that your body is a little below par. See answer to "Flossy Saskatchewan." Try to get plenty of sleep—eight or ten hours' continuous sleep. If you get the opportunity to lie down for a short nap in the daytime, do so. Nothing keeps the nerves in healthier condition, nor helps to build the body up so satisfactorily. The massage of the scalp is the best thing for you to adopt. In the meantime, use the following tonic:

For Falling Hair

One ounce tincture of cantharides; one ounce oil of rosemary; six ounces bay rum; one ounce olive oil; one ounce of rock sulphur (broken up). Mix the first four ingredients, then add the broken-up sulphur. Rub into the scalp each night, massaging with the fingertips.

on Fifth Avenue, New York, wear their hair simply braided loosely in one braid, with the ends left loose. But read what I say this month about hair, and you will get some suggestions about dressing it.

Esther.—Keeping your body built up and strong is quite effective in lessening the number of freckles which you may have to endure, and you can also afford to weigh more than 113 for five feet six. Try to get up to 125, at least. Cheer yourself by the thought that each added pound is apt to make your complexion better. Drink lots of water. Then, in the meantime, to get rid of those freckles, try using each night after a thorough bathing of the face, the following lotion:

Blue Eyes, J. A. K.—My dear, no wonder your hair is falling out, if you wash it in a strong soap solution every week! Stop it! Here are two treat-ments for an oily scalp;

For Olly Hair

After a good shampoo, using extract of green soap, and rinsing thoroughly, first with warm water, then lukewarm, and finally, after several rinsings, with cold water, dry the hair thoroughly in the sun. Then every other night, apply this lotion to the scalp, rubbing in well: Witchhazel, two ounces; distilled water, one ounce; alcohol, two ounces; resorcin, forty grains. The other treatment is quite a strenuous one, but was recommended by a scalp specialist, who says that excessively oily hair is caused by the scalp becoming infected with tiny microbes. A friend took this treatment and said it was very disagreeable but most effective: effective:

Ointment for Oily Scalp

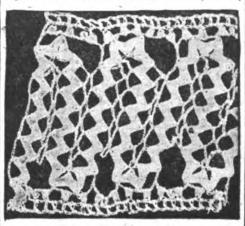

Vaseline, 50 grams; sulphur precipitated, 15 grams. This is to be rubbed over the entire scalp, but you must be careful not to throw the hair over the eyes or rub the fingers with the eyes while giving this treatment, as the fumes of the sulphur will make the eyes smart. Use this ointment every night for four weeks, then every other night for two weeks more. Shampoo the hair, then each night moisten the scalp with the following, for six weeks; Alcohol, 70 parts; distilled water, 50 parts; glycerine, two parts; salicylic acid, one part. Fill a medicine dropper with this lotion, and run, it through the hair hither and thither until every portion of the scalp has been moistened.

Address all letters containing quantical

Address all letters containing questions to KATHERINE BOOTH, CARE COMPORT, AUGUSTA, MAINE.

Diagonal Insertion in Rickrack and Crochet

This insertion is easy to make and its employments are varied. Catch hook in point, ch. 6, s. c. 1, in next point, repeat until there are 5 six chains, s. c. 1 in next 2 points, *ch. 3, s. c. 1 over ch. 6, ch. 3, s. c. 1 over next point, repeat from * over all 6 chains in row; ch. 9, turn braid and repeat from beginning. Chain 5 to cross and 5 to turn.

DIAGONAL INSERTION IN RICKRACK BRAID AND CROCHET.

Upper and Lower Edges

*Ch. 9, picot, ch. 5, s. c. 1 in next point, ch. 5, s. c. 1 in next point, ch. 5, s. c. 1 in next point; repeat from * to end of row.

2nd row.—Ch. 5, cluster st. over ch. 5, * ch. 3, cluster over next ch; repeat from * to end of row.

3rd row.-Spaces to end of row; fasten off.

World's Deepest Mine,—A mine in Brazil which has reached the vertical depth of 5,826 feet, one mile and one tenth below the surface, is said to be the deepest ever bored into the earth. The vein shows no diminution in size or value and the managers are considering means whereby work may be continued to an additional depth of about 200 feet.

A fracture-setting appartus has been designed which weighs only 35 pounds and may be packed in a small compass for easy transportation.

Easy Payments If you want anyone of the property of the payments of the paymen

This department, which is conducted by eminent specialists and experts in the various branches of agricultural science and practical, business farming, will keep our readers posted on the latest scientific discoveries and teach them the best methods of operating in order to obtain GREATER FARM PROFITS AND BETTER HOME LIVING.

Any COMFORT subscriber can have the advice of our Agricultural Staff free on questions relating to farming, live stock and dairying. The answers will be printed in this department and will be interesting and instructive to all who are concerned in farming.

Write your questions plainly on one side of the paper only; give your full name and address, and direct your letter to COMFORT'S MODERN FARMER, Augusta, Maine.

High Protein Roughages

First of all, there come the clovers—all classes—crimson clover in the South and medium red in the North, with sweet clover, alsike and mammoth clover thrown into the group. Then there is alfalfa, the queen of forage plants, and cow peas and soy beans and pea-vine hay and vetch and seradella. These are the best milk-producing-roughages.

and scradella. These are the best milk-producing-roughages.

FEEDS FOR THE SUCCULENCE AND RELISH.—
Corn silage is the best of this class and makes most mills. Then come roots like sugar beets, mangels and rutabagas, which make the cow relish her other food and digest the same easily, as well as provide good material out of which to make milk.

Grain Feeds the Cow Needs

Besides a hay rich in protein and a succulent green feed, the cow needs a supply of milk-producing grain. The best of these are bran, middling, ground barley, oil meal, cotton seed meal, ground corn and dried brewers' grains.

How to Make a War Ration

Select one feed from each of the above groups according to the following rule:

15 lbs. hay per day.

25 lbs. silage or roots per day.

1 lb. oil meal or cottonseed meal per day.

1 lb. bran, ground grain or mill feed for every five lbs. of milk the cow gives per day.

The ration will work out like this: The above is for the cow of average size—big cows will get more, small cows less. A cow giving 30 pounds of milk a day will get six pounds of bran, ground grain or mill feed, and one pound of oil meal or cottonseed meal, in addition to the hay and silage or roots; while the cow giving but 20 pounds of milk a day will get but four pounds of the grain. If the grain and oil meal is cut down, then the milk supply will be cut down. The least a milk cow should get under any condition is the high protein roughage and the silage or roots, and plenty of these. The farmer who can't supply them both can't expect to get much return from his cows.

Some War Rations for Dairy Cows

ILL it pay the farmer to buy feed for his dairy cows during the war? There are several things to consider in the answer to this question.

The Food Supply Must be Kept Up.—In the first place, it is of very great importance to keep up our food supply, dairy products especially. While the farmer might make more money right now by selling his cows and selling his feed, in the long run he would lose, as it would be difficult for him to get back into business again at the close of the war. If he is a patriot, and he should be, then he should stick to the business. In the long run it will pay.

THE FERTILITY OF THE LAND MUST BE KEPT UP.—Selling grain crops will soon deplete the fertility of the land. No good farmer will get rid of his dairy herd and sell his crop if he intends to remain in business after the war. It will only take two or three years to so exhaust the soil that several years will be necessary to restore this lost fertility. The wise farmer will maintain his soil fertility at all costs. Feeding grain to dairy cattle will do this.

MUCH ROUGHAGE UNPIT FOR HUMAN FOOD MUST BE USED FOR SOMETHING.—The best use that can be made of this roughage is to run it through the milk-making machinery of the dairy cow. She can use it to better advantage and convert it into more human food than any other animal. This argument leads us to but one conclusion: The dairy herds of this country must be kept at work at full capacity. This they cannot do unless they are well fed. Under these conditions, the best feed, of course, is a roughage is to run it through the milk-making machinery of the dairy excending food.

High Protein Roughages

First of all there come the clovers—all classes.

While rye commonly is seeded in fall, some goes in in the spring-time, according to the locality in which it is grown, and to all who have fields to put into this useful grain this season, we wish to recommend a new and most important item of practice. It is to perfectly rid seed rye of ergot, sometimes called "smut," and occurring as purple-black spurs protruding from the seed hulls of the ripening grain and easily recognized on examining the threshed grain. The old plan of cleaning the grain was to run it through the fanning mill, and this got rid of some of the ergot, but enough was left to perpetuate the pest in the fields. The new plan, devised by Prof. R. R. Jones of the Wisconsin Experiment Station, is to pour the seed rye into water containing 20 per cent. of common salt. The ergot floats to the top and may then readily be removed by allowing the surface water to strain through cheese-cloth into an empty barrel. The salt water may be used several times in succession. It is important to clean rye in this way for feeding purposes as well as seeding, as ergot causes poisoning, characterized by sloughing sores about the ankles and feet and dropping off of talls, ears or feet, while abortion also is a common result. In addition to ridding seed rye of ergot, it is well to rotate crops so that rye is seeded upon fresh ground each year. If this is done and the seed properly cleansed, there will be far less loss from ergot than ordinarily is the case.

Horses for War Purposes

According to the following rule:

1 b. bis. hay per day.
25 lbs, silage or roots per day.
1 lb. bran, ground grain or mill feed for every five lbs. of milk the cow gives per day.

The ration will work out like this: The above is for the cow of average size—big cows will get more, small cows less. A cow giving 30 pounds of milk a day will get six pounds of bran, ground grain or mill feed, and one pound of oil meal or cottonseed meal, in addition to the hay and silage or roots; while the cow giving 30 pounds of milk a day will get but four pounds of the grain. If the grain and oil meal is cut down, then the milk supply will be cut down, then the milk supply will be cut down. The least a milk cow should get under any condition is the high protein roughage and the silage can't supply them both can't expect to get much return from his cows.

Skim Milk as Human Food

There is a mistaken notion held by many people that skim milk is of little value as a food. This is not true. Skim milk is an excellent food worth just one half as much as whole milk containing three and one half per cent. fat. In other words, skimming Holstein milk removes just one half as much as whole milk is worth as much as a pound of the choicest beet sworth as much as a pound of the choicest beet way to use large quantities of skim milk is worth as much as a pound of the choicest beet sworth as much as a pound of the choicest beet sworth as much as a pound of the choicest beet sworth as much as a pound of the choicest beet sworth as much as a pound of the choicest beet sworth as much as a pound of the choicest beet sworth as much as a pound of the choicest beet sworth as much as a pound of the choicest beet sworth as much as a pound of the choicest beet sworth as much as a pound of the choicest beet sworth as much as a pound of the choicest beet sworth as much as a pound of the choicest beet sworth as much as a pound of the choicest beet sworth as much as a pound of the choicest beet sworth as much as a pound of the choicest beet sworth as much as Skim milk is the best food that can be fed to young animals. The first food of nearly all animals is milk, and skim milk has all the original food elements in it but the fat. Butter fat is so high-priced that we can't afford to feed whole milk to the calves and pigs, but after the fat is taken out, it is the best possible substitute for whole milk in raising calves.

Skim Milk the Best Feed for Pigs.—Young pigs thrive best when fed a liberal ration of skim milk. Pigs running on pasture, with skim milk and corn or some other grain, make very strong and rangy frames which take on fat rapidly when fed heavily on corn.

Skim Milk for Ducks and Chickens.—The milk-fed chicken brings a fancy price on the market. Skim milk gives very rapid gains in both chickens and ducks, and may well form at least half of the ration. It is a splendid feed and cannot be excelled for all young animals.

Checking as Deilling Corn

SKIM MILK FOR DUCKS AND CHICKENS.—The lik-fed chicken brings a fancy price on the mark. Skim milk gives very rapid gains in both ickens and ducks, and may well form at least and not be excelled for all young animals.

Checking vs. Drilling Corn

Answering numerous requests for advice upon is subject, we have to say, in a few words,

*Tarmers should breed a type of horse adapted for army use. A dual-purpose type is advisable and most useful, and such horses are being bought now. They are derived from crossing of the average pure bred draft stallion upon the somewhat undersized grade mares commonly found throughout the middle western states. Meanwhile the true heavy draft horse should likewise be bred for home use on the farm, in the city and in the lumber camps.

There is no sale for white or light grey horses for war purposes. Dark grey and roan horses are accepted in limited numbers. All horses intended for sale to the contractors must be sound and of good quality. Mares are only taken in exceptional cases.

and of good quality. Mares are only taken in exceptional cases.

Mature horses for cavalry and saddle horses for mountain artillery, signal corps, engineer corps, infantry and other purposes, should weigh 950 to 1200 pounds and stand 15 to 16 hands in height; light artillery and horse-battery horses, five to eight years old, weigh 1150 to 1300 pounds and stand 15½ to 16 hands; heavy artillery horses weigh 1400 to 1700 pounds and stand 16 to 17 hands, and should be smart, active, heavy draft type with plenty of bone and substance and enough quality to insure staying power in fairly fast work. Medium draft horses five to eight years old weigh 1200 to 1400 pounds, stand 15½ to 16½ hands, and must be sound, well bred, of superior class, gentle, thoroughly broken to harness, with easy mouth and free, prompt, straight and regular action at the walk or trot, free from vice and sound. Light draft horses weigh 1100 to 1250 pounds, stand 15½ to 16½, and must be sound, in good condition and of hardy color.

Percheron Color and Type

Percheron Color and Type

Answering an inquiry which is of general interest at the present time, it may be said that the old-time Percheron was grey in color, either light, dapple, or iron grey, and sometimes bay, sorrel or roan. The latter colors are comparatively rare. In type the Percheron originally was of light draft sort for work in heavy street busses in Paris and other cities of France. Many of them turned white in color as they aged, and the theory was that they sprang in blood from the Arabian horse. This idea of recent years has been discarded and it now is claimed that the district of La Perche, France, always had and really originated the breed for which it has become famous throughout the world. American demand for black heavy draft horses from France gave rise to the modern jet-black Percheron with white star and of true heavy draft type, great weight and easy feeding and keeping qualities. This horse simply is the product of selection and mating of the black draft horses always found in France but not so popular years ago as they now have become. They will be more popular than ever, now that so many horses are being needed for war purposes and army inspectors are rejecting all white and light grey horses.

The Percheron horse predominates in America and has created the hosts of grade horses bought by our allies and now being bought for our own army. So popular have our American grade Percherons become in France and Belgium that some 11 Percheron stallions and 33 Percheron mares have recently been bought for breeding purposes in England and those interested believe that even there, in the home of the Shire, Suffolk and Hackney, useful work can be done in the production of general purpose horses suitable also for army work.

Readers of Comfort certainly will be perfectly safe in continuing to patronize pure-bred Percher the production of general purpose horses suitable also for army work.

Readers of Comfort certainly will be perfectly safe in continuing to patronize pure-bred Percheron sires, but only selected, suitable, sound mares should be bred from, and then the colts should be fully fed to insure full development. No grade or scrub sire should be used where it is possible to use a pure bred. Breeding scrubs is a losing proposition everywhere.

The Spring Litter of Pigs

The Spring Litter of Pigs

With hogs selling for $15 per 100 pounds and up and every prospect that the price will continue, together with the equally significant and important fact that feed is scarce and dear, it becomes the duty of every farmer, and to his own interest as well, to save and develop every pig of good size and quality farrowed the coming spring. To that end the first aim should be properly to care for the pregnant sow before, at and after farrowing.

The annual loss of sows and pigs from pure carelessness and ignorance is deplorable and should be lessened by all means possible. Selfish interest demands this, but far above that must be placed the nation's need for every pound of pork that possibly can be produced in these dire times of scarcity and abnormal demand. Not every farmer can go to war or contribute sons for the firing line, nor would it be well to seriously deplete the work forces of our farms, but all who stay at home must do their bit manfully, intelligently and effectively, and that cannot be said of the man who neglects the animals that will bring forth young this spring. All that should be necessary in this connection will be to point out some of the reasons for "poor luck" with sows and pigs. Often it is mere thoughtlessness that explains failure, and jogging of the memory now should end the trouble on many a farm. We are certain that no farmer wittingly fails to do his best, and our President and the government in general gladly concedes that the American farmer has nobly responded to every request made of him and will continue to do his level best until democracy rises and stands supreme over autocracy throughout the world.

Let us look, therefore, at this question in a friendly way and see if we cannot improve matters materially. The improvement will come with certainty if on every farm the pregnant sow is made to take exercise every day to help keep her bowels active. Constipation is deadly to sows and pigs and one of the commonest causes of loss and poor success. Get the sow condition for successful farrowing; but if they cannot be had at reasonable prices, ground and effective, avoiding internal drugs, resolene relieves the paroxysms of Whooping-smodic Croup at once; It nips the common cold chance of developing into something worse, and ws that a neglected cold is a dangerous cold, ton Booth says: "No family, where there are n, should be without this lamp," ing the antiseptic vapor, inhaled with every breath, ng easy and relieves the congestion, assuring

Sold by Druggists. Send for descriptive booklet, pric Throat Tablets for the irritated throat, con bark, licorice, sugar and Cresolene. They can bark or from us. 10c. in stamps. THE VAPO-CRESOLENE CO., 62 Cortlandt St., New York screened oats and barley may form a part of the ration. Heavy feeding is not necessary. Muscu-lar condition is imperative and the bowels must at all times be kept freely moving; then the sow will have no difficulty in farrowing and her (CONTINUED ON PAGE 31.)

Progressive, or Superb Guaranteed to fruit this year and to reach you O. K. also Big 20th Century Catalog Free fully describing our millions of small fruit plants and how to grow them. Get the book at once making Townsend's Way your way. E. W. TOWNSEND PLANT FARMS, R R 10, Salisbury, Maryland, Strawberry Planta. Lowest prices. Catalog of 85 varieties including the Pall-Bearers Free. L. G. Tingle, Box 5, Pittaville, Md.

Strawberry FREE To introduce our Pedigreed Ever-PLANTS FREE bearing strawberries we will send 25 fine plants free. CORSOLIDATED NURSERY CO., ST. LOUIS, MO.

Dean planted. Plants grow strong and erect, branching out a slingle plant—all well filled, producing over 120 beans from 1 bearing their pods up well from the ground, which literally load the plants; beans being pure white and of best quality.

Plant in your garden or any good soil, only 1 bean in a hill, and they will mature a crop in about 80 days, ripening very evenly, and the growth and yield will simply surprise you. Just the bean everyone should plant this year.

My supply is yet limited and I can offer only in scaled packets doctaining 50 Beans each with cultural directions. Order early to be sure of them. Sealed packets 10c each 3 pkts 25cg 7 pkts 5cg 15 pkts except the seal of the sea

FULLWEIGHT 40 POUNDS. A pair 6-lb. Pillows to match, $1.75. Selected, New, Live, Clean, Sanitary Feathers. Best Feather-proof Ticking. Sold on money-back guarantee. DO NOT BUY from anyone at any price, until you get the BOOK OF TRUTH, our Write a postal card today. big, new catalog mailed FREE. Agents wanted.

American Feather & Pillow Co., Desk 240, Nashville, Tenn.

Copyright, 1918, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

UNT LAVINIA was poring over her treasure box, while outside the gray February day gradually settled into twilight. How she had always hated rebruary day gradually settled into twilight. How she had always hated gray,—gray clothes, gray days, all gray things.

Perhaps that was why, on this gloomy day, she had turned to the old box, her never failing panacea when the grayness of things outside seemed to be affecting even her soul.

The box, with its strange assortment of odds and ends that no one else would have thought of any value, to her brought back life and youth. When Aunt Lavinia took out the precious trifles, the years seemed to melt away and she was a girl again; a girl of abounding spirits and an intense desire to live.

She took out the old autograph album, with its youthful scrolls from school girls and boys, variously showering on her devoted head wishes for future joys or protestations of undying love. Here among the others was the name of the boy who years later had become her husband:

"David Martin."

"David Martin."

"David Martin."

It stood alone on the page with no verse or boyish sentiment above it; just the name and date, now so long past. How like David, thought Aunt Lavinia, and she sighed.

David had been a good husband. She could find no fault with him after forty years of married life. It was only that the years had made the boyish lack of sentiment and nonsense more pronounced, though Aunt Lavinia had never doubted that her husband loved her truly in his own serious and undemonstrative way.

She turned the leaves of the old autograph album slowly, now smiling, now sighing at the gay or foolish or tender sentiments expressed.

Here was a verse above a girl's daintily penned name. Aunt Lavinia's eyes dimmed as she read aloud the concluding line:

"And may we enchangide by side."

"And may we anchor side by side In Heaven."

How long ago the youthful writer had reached the desired haven; this sweet girl friend who had been the inseparable companion of her school days. What joy, if, at the end, the two friends, so long parted, might again, indeed, be hand in hand and "side by side."

Outside the gray day grew more lowering as Aunt Lavinia turned the yellowing pages. Then a tender little smile lit up her face as she stopped at a page on which was written the silly old verse:

"Roses are red, Violets are blue. Sugar is sweet And so are you."

Undermeath in round boyish hand was the name of "Joseph Olcott."

Her first sweetheart! The boy who had always brought her the earliest arbutus in the spring; who had taken her coasting down the schoolhouse hill and then washed her face in the snow when her tantalizing ways proved too much for him. The boy, who, when they trimmed the schoolhouse on Christmas Eve, always took the prickly holly from her that his hands and not hers, should be scratched. And on St. Valentine's Day the last year they went to school together had come to her the daintiest Valentine that she had ever seen. The handwriting was evidently disguised, but little Lavinia felt sure in her heart that Joseph had sent it to her. She had always treasured it, and now she laid aside the old album and searched in the depths of the box till she brought it to light.

It was one of those dainty things of lace paper and pink rosebuds, with a rosy Cupid peeping out from amid the lace to aim with his bow and arrow at a plump little heart in the corner. Within a wreath of the bluest of forget-me-nots was the legend:

was the legend

"To my Valentine."

Aunt Lavinia handled the fragile love token gently, while the gray day outside was transformed by the delicate brightness of the pinks and blues of the old valentine. Again she was living in the spring time of life, when all the world is tosy and there are no gray days. She saw in fancy the old schoolhouse and the patient teacher who had done so much to mold the young lives of his pupils. Again she strolled around the village with the girlhood friend who had so long ago dropped by the wayside. Again she heard Joseph Olcott's boyish laugh and felt her cheeks affame with the kisses of the snow. Almost she smelt the arbutus again, that intangible woodsy sweetness that is all its own. What a miracle worker was this old Valentine, to bring back the past with such vividness! With the odor of the arbutus now almost tangible in its sweetness and nearness. Aunt Lavinia leaned over and with wet eyes pressed her lips to the old Valentine. "Dreaming, Vinie?"

Aunt Lavinia started. There, by her side, stood her husband, tall and unbending as ever, but with a strange little embarrassed smile that

"Dreaming, Vinie?"
Aunt Lavinia started. There, by her side, stood her husband, tall and unbending as ever, bot with a strange little embarrassed smile that sat quite drolly on his serious fage.

He had always been immeasurably proud of his suishiny, sentiment loving wife, even though he hasself had been all engrossed in the serious business of life. Now, her wet eyes, together with the kiss he had seen her bestow on the old Valentine, had moved him greatly, and he laid his hand gently on her shoulder. "Thinking of the old days again, I see," he said, "Mighty strange now, Vinie, but do you know I met one of our old friends in town today, one of your old beaux it was, too,—Joe Olcott."

'How strange," exclaimed Aunt Lavinia. "I

At a time when all the available men were needed on the fire line, officials of the Forest Service say that Mrs. Schoenberg, who is the wife of Forest Ranger O. P. Schoenberg, took over the work of securing labor, handling the telephone exchange, and thus keeping the various crews in touch with each other, and running the commissary for the large force of laborers employed on the fire. She also arranged for the disposition of the men at the different fire-fighting crews and fed the newcomers on their way to the fire. It is stated that her excellent judgment and initiative were of material assistance in extinguishing the fire.

tive were of material assistance in extinguishing the fire.

The Misses Erickson, daughters of a Forest ranger, took an active part in the fire fighting. They organized and set to work one crew of men and aided in securing others. On one occasion, by actually fighting fire all night, they relieved a crew which was urgently needed at another fire. In addition, they carried food and water to the men on the fire line, who otherwise would not have had anything to eat.

CHINESE MATS.—For your flower pots, why not use Chinese mats? They come round, in several sizes, and in lovely-color combinations, beautifully embroidered. A lover of flowers had her sun parlor table laden with earthern pots, each standing upon a Chinese mat.

17 Cents a Day Pays

Symphonic Pianos Also Player Pianos and Grands

n liane, the by phase I over P note: an a year the by phase Bany Cock (No.). Write now fire

Larkitt Co. Desk PCT 218

Buffalo, N. Y.

WARNING YOU MUST FILE YOUR INCOME TAX STATEMENT BEFORE MARCH.

If you are single and your income from all sources during the year 1917 amounted to one thousand dollars or more, or if married and your income from all sources during the year was two thousand dollars or more, you must make a sworn statement of your income and file it with the Collector of U. S. Internal Revenue for your district before the first day of March, 1918.

In case the wife has a separate income a later.

In case the wife has a separate income, a joint statement should be made if the combined incomes of husband and wife equal or exceed $2,000.00.

This statement must be made on a blank form which can be obtained from the Collector of U. N. Internal Revenue for your district. To locate him, ask your employer, your Postmaster, or any Bank.

If you have not already received the blank write the Internal Revenue Collector at once and he will mail it to you. You need NOT ENCLOSE postage for return.

Your sworn Income Tax Statement must be mailed in time to reach the Collector before March first.

DON'T NEGLECT IT - for two reasons:

First: it is your patriotic duty.

Second: you will incur a severe penalty by your neglect or refusal.

You will be taxed, if single, on the excess of your income above $1,000.00, or, if married, only on the excess above $2,000.00; and the tax is not payable until June.

BUT YOU MUST SEND IN YOUR SWORN STATEMENT BEFORE MARCH FIRST. We publish this announcement to help the Government collect these War Taxes and to save our readers from getting into trouble through ignorance of misunderstanding of the law.—EDITOR.

Comfort Kits Easily and Quickly Made for Our Boys at Home and Abroad

Comfort Kits

COMFORT kit consists of a bag or pouch containing a collection of useful articles. The Red Cross ad-vises that they be made of stout khaki twill, such as will harmonize with a soldier's uniform.

How to Make Comfort Kit No. 1

Materials: one third of a yard of 27-inch material, 30 inches of tape for a draw string and an American flag for marking the outside.

The goods are folded and sewed up into a simple bag 12 inches square, with an inch hem at the top through which is run the gathering string or tape.

The sewing materials furnished with with C rials furnished with this kit are attached to a hemmed piece of Canton flannel 12 inches long by three inches wide. The upper edge of this string is sewed stoutly into the hem at the top of and inside the bag. A single snap sewed at the top and bottom of the strip, as shown at A and B (see diagram), brings the two ends of the string together, protecting 2 string together, protecting the contents.

This kit should contain 12"

This kit should contain the following articles:
Cake of soap in metal or small celluloid case, Small comb, metal, Small steel mirror, Se wing kit as shown in diagram, Toothbrush in case, Handker-chiefs, khaki color, Lead pencil, Playing cards, Writing pad, Envelopes, Tooth powder in tin container, Shaving brush and soap, Tobacco and pouch, Cigarette paper, Pipe, Foot powder, Wash-cloth, Heavy socks, Letter giving name and address of donor.

Other articles may be added from the "Suggestion List," if desired.

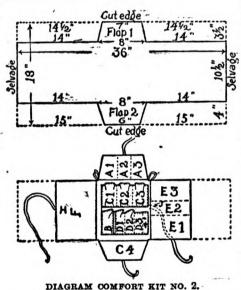

How to Make Comfort Kit No. 2 This Kit Is for Field Use

Materials: Half a yard of goods, 36 inches wide; 4 yards of tape for binding; one small American flag to be sewed on the outside of kit. These can be purchased cheaply in form of ribbon, about twenty-four flags to the yard.

If the material only measures 33 inches it need not alter the dimensions of the kit except by making the pockets E, E, E and F proportionately smaller.
Cut out sections A, B, C and D as indicated on the diagram. From these pieces make the applied pockets of the case, some flat, others slightly full, as shown.

Section A: Use for pockets marked A 1, A 2,

Section A: Use for pockets marked A 1, A 2, A 3 laid on Flap No. 1.
Section B: Use for pocket marked B.
Section C: Use in part for the series of three pockets marked C 1, C 2, C 3.
Section D: Use in part for pocket marked C 4 on flap No. 2, the balance for pockets marked D 1, D 2, D 3, 4.
Fold in selvage ends of goods to form series of pockets marked E 1, E 2, E 3 and large of pockets marked E 1, E 2, E 3 and large pocket marked F. Bind all edges neatly with gram. Stout tape. Attach ties of tape to flaps 1 and 2 to they can be brought together and tied over the strength. so they can be brought together and tied over the pockets. Attach ties of tape on outside of case at H and J. These ties should be long enough to go twice around kit; two loops of tape should be added as shown in the diagram, that the whole kit may be hung up evenly balanced. It is important that the openings of balanced. It is important that the openings of the pockets B, C and D face the loops, so that small articles will not fall out when the case is hung. Snappers sewed at the edge of the pockets E and F will make the contents more Arrangement of Articles in Kit No. 2

*A 1 and A 3: Thread, heavy white and waxed khaki color (sometimes called carpet or ribbon thread), wound on cards. On the outside of these pockets sew six khaki-color buttons, size these pockets sew six khaki-color buttons, size for uniforms; six khaki buttons, shirt size; also six white buttons for underwear.

- A 2: Needles, assorted large size in case; thimble, large-size celluloid; sewing wax.

B: Tobacco pouch and tobacco.

C1: Tooth powder in tin container.

C2: Folding knife and spoon.

C3: Soap in metal or celluloid box.

C4: Wash-cloth. On the outside of this pocket pin 12 No. 3 black safety pins and six khaki-color patent trousers buttons.

D1: Shaving brush.

D2: Shaving soap.

D3: Comb, preferably metal, in case.

Souvenir Pocket

H

A

B1 B2 B3 B4 B5 3

C2 :

D1 D2 D3 D4 D53

13/2

FOR HOSPITAL USE.

KIT NO. 3.

C3 4

212 212 2" 213

D 2: Shaving soap.
D 3: Comb, preferably metal, in case.
D 4: Pipe.
E 1: Pia ying cards or other game.
E 2: Mouth

E 2: Mouth organ.
E 3: Safety razor and blades.
F: Writing materials, pencile sender's name and address, hand-dress, hand-kerchiefs, two or three khaki color, and a pair of heavy socks, either hand or ma-chine knitted. *Buttons and thread are khaki colored for the Army, and black for the Navy. Comfort Kit

No. 3 This Kit is for Hospital Use

This kit is especially designed to be pinned to the side of a bed and contains the s mall things which a wounded man wounded man will want to keep near him. Materials:

Two yards of 33-inch to 36-

33-inch to 36inch goods will make three kits 11 to 12 inches wide, or two yards of 27-inch goods will make two kits 13 1-2 inches wide. The latter is probably the better width, but the others will be acceptable; 2 1-2 yards of tape are needed for binding and tie ends. Stock sheeting, 9 by 12 1-2 inches, is required to line the lowest pockets, which are for toilet articles which may be damp.

To make the kit, measure and tear the entire strip of goods lengthwise to the desired width. Then tear sidewise from the strip the following pieces for the pockets:

21/4 2" 14

ets:
1. Pocket A: 7 1-2 inches torn will be 61-2 inches fin-

Hem the upper end of the strips plait them and attach to kit case one inch above kit case one inch above pockets D 1-D 5 (A and C). Hem the pockets D 1—D 5 (A and C). Hem the strips "intended for pockets A and B and apply B to A, sewing the partition seams in B before attaching both pockets at once to kit case, one inch above pockets marked C.

Souvenir Pocket: Almost every soldier has a Souvenir Pocket: Almost every soldier has a little collection of souvenirs, often including the bullet or piece of shell which brought him to the hospital. The big pocket of this kit marked "Souvenir Pocket" is intended to hold these and other personal effects. To make this pocket, hem the upper end of the strip of which the kit is being made, and fold over a flap 12 inches when finished. While in use this large flap pocket is turned back and hangs behind the bag, but if the soldier wishes to take his kit. bag, but if the soldier wishes to take his kit the bag, but if the soldier wishes to take his kit with him on leaving the hospital its contents can be made secure by bringing the flap forward over the small pockets and fastening it down by clips sewed to x, y and z. The whole kit can then be rolled up and tied as the contents permit. Bind the side edges of the kit securely with the tape and attach tie ends on the outside of the point marked H. The kit is fastened to the mattress of the bed by two large safety pins at the upper corners.

paja mas), Bed
Socks, Operating Leggings, Hot-Water Bottle
Covers, Ice-Bag Covers.

These patterns are all issued in sizes medium and large.

In making garments for the American hospitals proportions should be two small to one large. For French hospitals no large sizes are needed.

Special points emphasized in the report of the Woman's Bureau by the committees in Safety pins at the upper corners.

Safety pins and sewing materials may be attached to the outside of these pockets, thous these supplies will not be much needed.

Extra Articles Which May Be Added at Option of Senders

Articles marked with a star (*) are especially desirable.

Blotting-paper; chewing-gum; chocolates (if wrapped in tin-foil); cigarette-paper in books; comb, preferably metal in case; compressed tea-tablets; compressed malted-milk tablets; corn-plasters; foot powder; garters; knife two-bladed, such as boy scouts use; "mirror, metal, in case; pin-ball with pins; playing cards; postcards; puzzles; "safety-razor; safety-razor blades; safety-razor strap; "scissors, (preferably folding, with pointed ends in sheath); "shaving-brush and shaving-soap; shoe-lace, black for the Navy, khaki-colored for the Army. Talcum powder; tape, white, black or khaki colored tobacco; toilet-paper; toothbrush in rubber case; "tooth-powder in tin case.

Articles in Kit No. 3

Souvenir pocket for personal effects.

A. Writing material, pencil, letter, etc.
B. Pipe and cigarette paper.
B. Tobacco pouch and tobacco.
C. Handkerchiefs.

Playing cards and metal mirror.

Tooth paste. Tooth brush.

Shaving brush and soap. Washcloth.

Don't Send Any of These

Because These Articles of Personal Equip-ment are Furnished by the Government

As the kit should supplement what the soldier already has, a list of the personal equipment issued by the War Department to each soldier is listed herewith:

Personal Equipment of Enlisted Men

The following articles are issued to enlisted men by the Quartermaster's Corps:

1 Hat. 1 Hat cord.

1 Coat. 2 Pairs of breeches.

1 Overcoat.
3 Pairs of drawers. 2 Pairs of shoes.

5 Pairs of stockings. 3 Under-shirts.

2 Blankets.
1 Pair of gloves, wool.
1 Pair of gloves, riding (for mounted men).
1 Belt, waist.

2 Pairs of laces, shoe.

2 Towels. 1 Cake toilet soap. Housewives (one to a squad).

Comb

1 Brush, hair. 1 Brush, tooth.

1 Pair of leggings. 1 Slicker. 1 Tag, identification.

1 Bar, mosquito.
1 Bar mosquito.
1 Bed sack.
1 Shelter tent, half.
1 Knitted toque.
1 Cardigan jacket.
1 Pair of rubber boots.

· For troops in France only.

Supplied by the Ordinance Department

Cup, tin, Meat can, Knife, and knife scab-bard, Fork, and fork scabbard, Spoon, 1 Pouch for first aid packet.

The following articles ("extra issues") are given out to organizations of enlisted men, "such quantities as the commanding officer may order as necessary:" Soap, Candles, Matches, Toilet paper, Towels, huck, Ice.

Where to Send Comfort Kits and Other Articles

Shipping Directions

Completed articles should be sent to the nearest Red Cross chapter if possible. When this can not be done they should be sent to the this can not be done they should be sent to the Red Cross Division Supply Service in the nearest of the following cities: New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, Atlanta, New Orleans, St. Louis, Chicago, Cleveland, Denver, Minneapolis, San Francisco.

Articles intended for a particular soldier should, of course, be addressed directly to him and forwarded by United States mail or express. The Red Cross cannot accept articles for delivery to any particular individual.

Red Cross Hospital Garments and Supplies

The illustrations on this page will give one an idea of the garments which are most needed for the hospitals.

The official models have been given the various pattern compa-nies, who have agreed to issue patterns in strict accordance with

They can be ob-tained from local Red Cross Chap-ters for 10c each, or at store carrying patterns.

The patterns now ready are:
Pajamas, Hospital bed shirts,
Hospital bed Hospital bed shirts (taped), Convalescent Robes (similar, but bathrobe is heavier), Bath-robes, Bed Jack-ets, Under-shirts, Under-drawers, Bandage Foot Sock, Operating Sock, Operating Cap, Operating Masks, Operating Gowns, Convales-cent Suits (lined pajamas), Bed Socks, Operating Leggings, Hot-Water Bottle Covers, Ice-Bag Covers.

HOSPITAL BED SHIRT.

Special points emphasized in the report of the Woman's Bureau by the committees in

1. Convalescent robes should be warm, heavy

1. Convalescent roces should be warm, heavy bathrobing preferred.
2. Pajamas should be made of good outing flannel for wintersuse.
3. Convalescent suits (lined pajamas) are needed, as the men wear them in the place of suits in both the American and the French bosoitals. hospitals

4. Both pajamas and lined pajamas are pre-ferred with a turnover collar with which a tie can be worn. Pa-jamas for French hospitals may be made in dark colors. 5. Convalescent suits (lined paja-mas) should be made of bright colored materials so that the convaso that the convalescent patient may be easily discernible.

6. Nightingales are not desirable for either American or French hospitals. Bed jackets are used in place of them and should be made of warm material.

7. Operating leggings are desirable made of fiannel or heavy Canton fiannel for winter use.

winter use.
8. Heavy warm machine-made sweaters with long sleeves are needed by men in the tuberculosis hospitals; no par-ticular color is' mentioned.
Report of the committee on the needs for hospital linen and supplies for which no pat-terns are given: 1. Sheets (both bleached and unbleached and unbleached) at least sixty-four inches wide and one hundred and two inches long.

2. Pillow-slips of bleached or unbleached muslin (those for French hospitals should be about twenty-eight inches wide and thirty inches long and should have three pairs of tie tapes stitched on the inside of the hem to hold the pillow in).
3. Plain towels are wanted in large quanti-

Plain towels are wanted in large quanti-

CONVALESCENT ROBE

Bath towels are wanted in large quanti-Wash-cloths are wanted in large quanti-

HOSPITAL BED SHIRT.

(either bath toweling or closely knitted ones.)

6. Handkerchiefs are wanted in large quan-

6. Handkerchiefs are wanted in large quantities (colored preferred; white acceptable).
7. Comfort pillows, all sizes and shapes.
8 Bright-colored bags, same size as comfort bags, but unfilled, for the men to use in the hospitals for their small personal belongings. Garments which will probably be needed in largest quantities are:
A. Pajamas; hospital bed shirts.
Those needed in the second largest quantities.
B. Convalescent suits (lined pajamas). Under-drawers; under-shirts; taped hospital bed shirts; bathrobes; bed socks; bed jackets.
Those needed in less quantities:
C. Operating caps; operating masks, operating gowns; operating leggings; bandage foot socks.

sheets, pillow-cases, etc., are needed continuously.

Packing

The committee suggests the desirability of packing the garments for American and French hospitals in separate cases, also that of packing only the same kind of garments in one case. The representatives of the Woman's Bureau will remain permanently in France to study the needs for all kinds of garments and supplies.

Shipment of boxes. Express companies will accept gifts to the Red Cross, for shipment, at two thirds their regular rate, when prepaid and addressed as above.

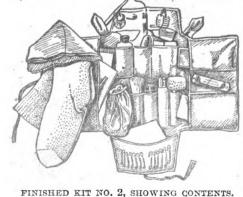

Red Cross chapters should ship to their Division Supply Depot in one of the following cities:

Boston Washington St. Louis Minneapolis

New York Atlanta Cleveland Denver Seattle

Philadelphia New Orleans Chicago San Francisco

Invoice. An invoice or notice of shipment, giving the serial number of the box or boxes sent, and duplicate copies of their inventories, should be mailed by all shippers to the chapter or Division Supply Depot to which the shipment is being forwarded.

Needed Knitting for Liberty Boys

Patriotic Relief Work

The First Things to Know About Knitting

UE to the unusual and pressing de-mands of the times every woman should have a thorough knowledge of nis useful art.
The knitting needle has had to replace the embroidery hook and knitting is now a very important branch of war relief work.

Workers all over the country are willing and anxious to help, but if they are to fulfill the requirements, every novice should aim to become an expert.

Much time and effort could be saved if each Much time and effort could be saved if each step were taken intelligently, each stitch with a perfect knowledge of what it meant in the development of the work as a whole. But frequently a knitter does not even know whether she is at work upon the front or back, the top or bottom until the garment is nearly completed.

It is this mechanical following of mechanical

It is this mechanical following of mechanical directions that causes the downfall of most knitters. Therefore it is the writer's endeavor to explain the different methods of working and lead the reader step by step over difficulties people.

In the German or Continental method the needles are held inside the hand, points between forefinger and thumb, wool passing to the left hand, thus crossing the needles and the fingers, where it is ever ready for work. In the English method

BACK OF HELMET.

BACK OF HELMET. to place a stitch upon the needles. The forefinger must throw the wool fully a couple of inches each time. In the German it is simply a little wrist movement, much less lacking in effort, therefore we will devote our time to this method.

time to this method.

Practice should be with coarse yarn and suitable needles on some simple work such as a wash-cloth. The first step in knitting is to place a row of stitches upon a needle. This is known as casting on. It can be done in different ways but knitting the stitches on is considered one of the best methods as a double threaded edge is secured.

Start by twisting the wool over to form a threaded edge is secured.

Start by twisting the wool over to form a loop and slip on needle, hold securely, insert the other needle in this loop, knit a stitch, drawing it out making a loop at least one inch long, hold two points of needles so they will meet at right angles, the loop being parallel with first needle. Now put point of left needle over the upper thread and slip the loop on this needle, draw stitch up closely. Insert right needle in this loop, knit another stitch and cast on to the left needle as before, repeat until the

as before, repeat until the desired number is secured. Casting on in this way can be done very rapidly after one just gets the knack of doing it. Even if the first few stitches are laboriously worked on, after a half dozen or so, one invariably says, oh, I see and af-terwards wonders at the simplicity of it.

The two primary stitches used in this work are spoken of as "to knit or plain knitting," and "to purl or seam," the second being just the reverse of the first.

To Knit

Hold needle containing stitches in left hand between thumb and forefinger, the yarn extend-ing up from last stitch over forefinger of left hand and

FRONT OF HELMET. down between it and the second finger then own between it and the second inger then out between third and center finger. It is between first two fingers tension is regulated.

Hold right needle in right hand between thumb and forefinger. Do not hold needles tightly but firmly.

Having needles in position insert point of right needle into first stitch on left, entering from left of first loop beneath the needle. With tip of point stretch loop as shown in our illustration, slip needle through, holding points at right angles, now throw yarn over right needle with a wrist movement then draw yarn through first stitch on left needle, thus forming loop on right needle, and drop first strict on left needle, and drop first forming loop on right needle, and drop first stitch from left needle. See illustration. Each stitch upon left needle is worked off in this way, and when all are on right needle, it should be placed in left hand and second row worked off exactly in the same way.

Purling or Seaming

This is nothing but doing everything in plain and rapidity will come very knitting backwards. Hold the needles and the method of working is correct.

yarn as in plain knitting, but let the yarn come 'Sleeveless Sweater for Army or Navy from in front rather than behind the work.

See illustration

as shown, pass yarn up between two points and down, then pass the point of right needle backwards through first loop, at same time slipping the latter from left needle. All loops are purled in this way. After knit-ting stitches remember it is important to pass wool to the front be-fore beginning to purl, that is, bring yarn be-tween the worker and the work, or in front of the work, then throw yarn back before beginning to knit the stitches.

To Increase and Decrease

increase in the first stitch on row, knit the stitch as usual, but without slipping it from the left needle. Hold it there, turn the right needle heek insert the point back, insert the point in the center of the stitch on the left needle, passing it from sleevelless sweater. for 19 inches. Purl 2, right to left; again knit 2 sts. for 4 inch-take up the yarn, and pull it through to form es. Sew up sides leaving 9 inches for armholes, a stitch, now slipping the first stitch from the left needle. There will be two loops upon the right needle, to one dropped from the left.

This mathed of widelying is very contraction.

This method of widening is used only when

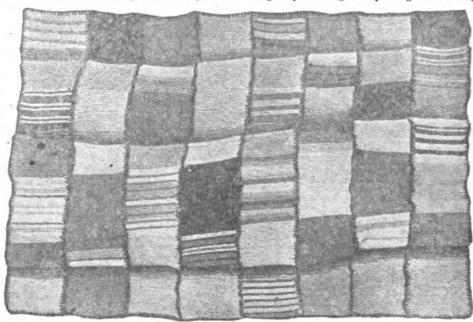

Begin by knitting and purling for ribbing,

York City.

Material required.

eightfold yarn. Use a needle which with less sts. make the

KNITTED AFGHAN FOR HOSPITAL USE.

RIBBING FOR TOP OF SOCKS, FIG.1.

Knit first stitch between this and second stitch, pick up loop passing from one to the other, cast on left needle and knit it in the usual way. Another method is to knit both the front and back of a stitch. When necessary to increase one or more stitches at end of row simply knit and cast on to left-hand needle as explained in cast-ing on heretofore.

To Decrease

The most common and simple way is to knit through two stitches as one. To decrease at end of row, knit two stitches, then slip the first loop on right needle over the second, the third way to decrease or narrow to decrease or narrow is to purl two stitches

To Bind Off

When a piece of work is completed, to dispose of stitches on needle, knit first two stitches and slip first stitch over second, knit one again, having two stitches on right needle, slip the first over the second, knit 1 row, narrow every 4th st., es on right needle, slip the first over the second, knit 1 row, narrow every ond, knit 1 row, narrow every e the work is to be increased in width without then purl and knit a row alternately, this will having the means employed show.

then purl and knit a row alternately, this will make the outside of the garment purled and inside knitted, and one's wool also will go a bit further.

To keep edges from rolling in about armholes, when work measures 12 inches knit the first five stitches of each row, this will make knitted band on either side; when work measures 20 inches knit each row from edge to edge for five

Bind off about one third for neck knitting seven ribs on each side for shoulders, then five ribs from side to side across front, then knit Ist 5 stitches of each, knitting and purling between.

For officers especially, is this sweater prefixer.

ly, is this sweater pref-erable as their unierable as their uni-forms fit very snugly, and a garment made in this way is less bulky.

Knitted Hospital Socks

1 1-2 hanks Scotch yarn (1 1-2 lb), two steel needles No. 12. Cast on 60 sts., k. 2, p. 2. Repeat for 17 inches, then knit 1 row, purl 1 row twice, k. 1 row, narrow by knit-ting 2 sts. tog. every 5th st., p. 1 row, k. 1

POSITION OF NEEDLES IN CONTINENTAL METHOD OF KNITTING.

remains, break yarn and pull through drawing up closely. A mastery of the foregoing is all that is necessary to enable one to do any piece of knitting, even the finest. Evenness of stitch and rapidity will come very quickly if one's

POSITION OF NEEDLES IN PURLING.

2nd st., p. 1 row, k. 1 row, narrow every 2nd st. Bind off and sew up.

Knitted Helmet

1 1-2 hanks Scotch (3-8 lb), two No. 4, double pointed celluloid needles.

Cast on 48 sts. (11 inches), knit plain for 25 ribs (6 inches) and k. 2, p. 2, for 35 rows. On the next row the opening for the face is made as follows: k. 2, p. 2, k. 2, p. 2, k. 2, k. and bind off loosely the next 28 sts. and purl 1, k. 2, p. 2, k. 2, p. 2. Run the sts., before the opening on a spare needle and on the sis. at other side on opening k. 2, p. 2 for 12 rows. The last row will end at the opening and at that point cast on 28 sts. to offset those bound off. Begin at the face opening of sts. on spare needle and k. 2, p. 2 for 12 rows. At the end of the 12th row continue all across to the end of other needle when there should be 48 stitches on needle as at first. K. 2, p. 2 for 24 rows.

Top of Helmet

will make the work firm, and work evenly as possible; of fourfold Top of Helmet

K. 2, n. (k. 2 sts. together), k. 14 n., k. 14 n., k. 12.

P. the entire next row. On the 3rd row k. 2, n., k. 13, n., k. 13, n., k. 11. P. 4th row. On the 5th row k. 2, n., k. 12, n., k. 12, n., k. 10.

P. 6th row. Continue to n. in the 3 places every plain knitted row with 1 st. less between narrowings until as possible; of four load yarn cast on from 80 to 84 sts., of eightfold from 72 to 76 sts. Knit 2, purl 2, until work measures 4 inches. Knit plain until work measures 21 inches. If 80 sts. were cast on, knit 28 stitches, bind off 24 sts. for neck. Knit 28 sts., starting between narrowings until 9 sts. are left.

Back of Helmet

Work in same manner as Knit 7 ribs (14 rows) for front but omit the face on each shoulder, cast on 24 sts. Knit plain for 19 inches. Purl 2, knit 2 sts. for 4 inchopening. Sew the sts. of upper edges together with joining stitch. Sew up the side seams leaving the plain knitting at shoulders open.

Khitted Afghans

These afghans which can be made of accumulated odds and ends of wool, are much needed in the hospitals abroad. The work is simply plain knitting in either square sor BED OR HOSPITAL strips. Cast on a sufficient SOCKS.

eight inches and bind off each square as fin-eight inches and bind off each square as fin-ished or continue to work with another color until a strip is eight or ten squares long.

Different grades of wool can be used by knit-ting with two or more threads of the finer to equal the coarser. Short lengths can be used hit-or-miss; bright colors should be worked in as much as possible in making the afghans that are needed nowhere more than among our wounded away from home.

wounded away from home.

Pupils, in our schools, all over the country are busily at work on these squares and if members of local clubs would meet and devote an afternoon a week to joining the squares and finishing the afghans, the result would be wonderfully helpful. derfully helpful.

Stocking Knitting

These are standbys, articles which will be continuously needed and in such quantities that every woman should consider it her duty to furnish a certain amount each month.

Materials required: Three quarters of a pound of Scotch, in light grey or scrubbed, yarn, as the less of dye there is, the better it is for the men's feet.

Steel needles, the short ones being more convenient, No. 12 or larger if one knits tightly.

1st. Always k. first and last st. on each needle tightly to prevent appearance of a gap or ladder

2nd. Count sts. after increasing or decreasing.
3rd. Never knot wool; when a joining is necessary lay the 2 ends reversely together and knit a few sts. with double thread. The seam st. should begin either with 1st round or 1st round after ribbing is complete, particular at-tention should be paid to keeping it straight, as the shaping of the sock depends on it. The seam st. can be purled in every round or purled in one and knitted in the next.

DUTCH HEEL.

See directions on page 29.

in one and knitted in the next.

4th. Loose knitters should use fine needles, and tight workers thicker ones.

5th. In decreasing each side of seam st. the st, either side should be knitted, therefore in decreasing before the seam, k, 2 sts. tog, k, 1, p.

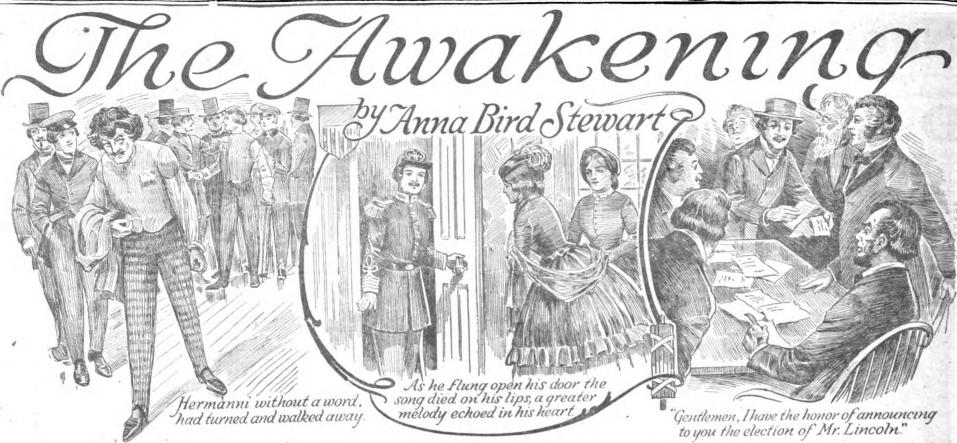

k. 1, take off next st. without knitting, k. 1 and sl. st. over k. st.

Fig. 1 shows ribbing begun on 3 needles or work can be done on 4 if preferred.

Cast on 72 sts., 24 on each needle in the usual way, k. 2, p. 2 until sufficient ribbing has been finished. K. plain, making 1 seam st. until sock measures 6 inches from top. Now n. on each side of seam st. by decreasing 1 st. see No. 5, k. 7 rounds plain. Repeat this narrowing in every 8th row until there are 70 sts. in round. K. plain until leg measures 9 1-2 inches.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 29.)

Copyright, 1918, by W. H. Gannett, Publisher, Inc.

T doesn't seem possible."

"Ask Hermanni."

The youth turned to the foreigner.
"You don't mean that the little fellow coming in the armory now is the man who is going to fence with the second of the the man who is going to fence with you tonight?"

Hermanni inclined his head in graceful assent. The admiring crowd around him turned to Jook at the contestant. A mere boy, small yet at once lithe and muscular, there was about his entire aspect an air of daring and of high ambition.

"A handsome fellow," said Starfield Johnson, one of Hermanni's favorites among the young men.

one or Hermann's favorites among the young men.

Hermanni bowed again. He was well pleased with the look of his adversary. As instructor in the noble art of the foil to the aristocratically pretentious youths of early Chicago, it was to his advantage to stage scenes of spectacular effect. His fencing matches made fashionable both by good luck and shrewd calculation, were his greatest means of advertisement and he overlooked no chance of a new competitor.

He knew little of young Ellsworth save that he was a recent arrival from New York, a law student in the office of a conservative member of the local bar. His challenge to the newcomer, whose skill had naturally been reported to him, was to add to the fencing master's own prestige. No one had a doubt of the outcome, least of all Hermanni.

"Signor" he murmured to Loboson "during"

The boy tossed back the masses of black hair from his forehead as its waves, worn long after the fashion of that day, fell into his eyes. As if obedient to his gesture, again his rival's foil

"That is the twenty-seventh time Elmer has touched him," said John Hay to the friend be-

"Hermanni is smiling, yet I'll wager he does not think it funny."

"What an unpleasant smile. Look at that boy now, hardly more than half the size of the lanky—there goes Hermanni's foil again."

"Yet the man is a wonderful fencer."

"I don't believe two men could beat Elmer," declared Hay. "Watch him. He is all grace, and skill and fire."

"Hermanni has skill. It's the youth and the fire that will win for Ellsworth."

"It's his spirit of undaunted and indomitable success," said John softly.

"Well, it's over now, whatever it was."

Hermanni, without a word, had turned and walked away.

walked away. He was outclassed, unexpectedly, before his pupils and his adherents. The unknown youth had hit him six times for every once he was able return. At the touche a touche the newcom-touched him in two places at the same alonge threw his foil several feet. exhibition, an overwhelming surprise to the en-

We are proud of you," declared Hay, as Ells-orth joined them.

"I am proud myself, to have won," said Ells-orth honestly. "That man can use the foils!"
Hermanni now came up all suaveness and com-

MONG all the imaginary heroes of war-inspired fiction you may search in vain for the equal of Ephraim Elmer Ellsworth who raised the first volunteer regiment and, as the youthful commander of the famous New York Fire Zouaves, was the first volunteer officer to give his life in defense of the flag in our Civil War. As faithful and ardent in love as he was true and brave in war, there is no more pathetic romance than the true story of his brief career, of which fhe tragic ending proved to be the needed shock for "the awakening" of the nation to meet the ordeal of war.

His inspiring example should strengthen us to meet the duty and sacrifice which the present war demands of each to the utmost of his strength and resources.

"Signor, you are a great swordsman."
"I had very good luck tonight, that's all," laughed Ellsworth.
He did not guess what good fortune and what white the might's contest would bring him.

Mermanni bowed again. He was well pleased with the look of his adversary. As instructor, the mobile art of the foil to the aristoratically protentious youths of early Chicago, it was to large the state of the protest of the mobile and the state of the

The boys let forth a cheer. This was their eam. Ellsworth continued. "It will mean no child's Filsworth continued. "It will mean no child's play, prompt obedience, unremitting drill, no gambling, no drinking under penalty of expulsion and publication of the offense."

Young as he was, there was something in Ellsworth's manner, in the very glance of his eye, which made men love, and fear, and obey.

The young captain did not give up his law studies, but in his cadets he found his one recreation,—relaxation, exercise, exaltation. He modeled them on the French Zouave system of organization and drill. To them he gave his time, his devotion and the impetus of his own success.

People began to talk about his Zouaves, they came to the drills, they watched for and criticized the comments of them in the papers. These, more or less malevolent, were not lacking, for all during the late fifties military organizations received but scant acknowledgment in Western cities. It was the natural reaction of the opposite element, the inevitable result of the spirit which had created the companies themselves. An active though cautious enemy could do much to increase the bitterness and contempt the papers were but too apt to show.

John Hay and young Henry Miller of the crease the bitterness and contempt the papers were but too apt to show.

John Hay and young Henry Miller of the Zouaves discussed the matter anxiously, upon reading the slurs and inuendoes of one report.

"This is personal spite, John. This is no mere general antagonism."

"We must work out not only a way to stop these notices, but to get at the bottom of their publication. I'll speak to Elmer."

But Ellsworth had forgotten Hermanni.

He sought only for a way to prove his words true when he had said that he would make his company second to none. He resolved to give a public exhibition on July the fourth to prove that this ambition had been fulfilled. The outcome of the drill meant much to him, more really than he knew. It made him, on that Independence Day of 1860, once again the most talked of man in the city.

CHAPTER II.

CHAPTER II.

After the drill was over, Elmer shook himself clear of the congratulating throngs and went to his own room. No one else knew how great the strain had been of the unceasing drill combined with the discomforts, hardships, privations and even insufficient food of his private life. He felt that he could stand no more. He must be alone. Yet for all the strain he had been under, the taste of victory was sweet. He ran up the stairs to the top floor room in his quiet lodging house singing a little tune.

As he flung open his door the song died on his lips, a greater melody echoed in his heart. There in the room before him, stood a girl.

He looked at her as though she were not real, but an image sprung into being from his own thoughts. In the glad surprise of her presence all the love for her he had so long repressed shone from his dark eyes.

"Mary."

He spoke her name quietly, with an intensity of feeling mere words could not express.

"Mother and I came." she began softly. Then she looked into his eyes and a soft flush crept up over her cheek. She went on in swift embarrassment. "We came—" again she paused. Words seemed so futile, so commonplace in view of the things neither said.

Ellsworth turned to the elder woman who had been standing beyond his first vision.

"Sit here, Mrs. Somers, and here, Mary."

Though he would have wished the finest in the world for them there was no awkwardness, no shame of his poor surroundings. Of what he had he gave them the meager best in a way a prince might envy.

"We saw the drill, Elmer, and we are proud of you," said the mother. Then she went over world for them there was no awkwardness, no shame of his poor surroundings. Of what he had he gave them the meager best in a way a prince might envy.

"We saw the drill, Elmer, and we are proud of you," said the mother. Then she went over by the window across the room. This was to be Mary's moment, and her heart was not so old that she could not guess what it meant to the girl. It was from her mother that Mary inherited her grace, her tact, her rich courtesy.

"Elmer," said the girl, "we came because you would not come to us. I felt that I could not go away without seeing you."

"Away?"

She gave him no time for questioning. These few moments were all she might have. Her very belief in him demanded his confidence. "What has been the matter? You have not been near the house for months. Yet you know we love you, and I know how you feel toward us."

Ellsworth flushed quickly at her first words. How sweet, how earnest she was, with her tightly clasped hands, and her troubled eyes searching his face. It had not been an easy thing for her to seek him thus but he thanked God for her trust in him.

"I'll be frank and honest with you, Mary, I have had a hard struggle merely to live, since I came here to Chicago. These last months I have gone nowhere, I have done nothing but study law, copy legal papers to make my little living. I have had a hard struggle merely to live, since I came here to Chicago. These last months I have gone nowhere, I have done nothing but study law, copy legal papers to make my little living. I have had a hard struggle merely to live, since I came here to Chicago. These last months I have gone nowhere, I have done nothing but study law, copy legal papers to make my little living. I have had a hard struggle merely to live, since I came here to Chicago. These last months I have gone nowhere, I have done nothing but study law, copy legal papers to make my little living.

"But it goes against me to take when I can make no return" be continued. "I have tried in the pleasure and encour-

"I know you are not ungrateful," she broke in gently.
"But it goes against me to take when I can make no return," he continued. "I have tried never to do it, no matter what I wished. You see how it is, Mary, don't you? I can't accept your hospitality and kindness when I can give you nothing. Why, I can only share with you a far off hope——" He stopped abruptly.
"This is foolish independence," she whispered tenderly.

tenderly.
"It is my nature," he answered simply are animals boy. Take wh tenderly.

"It is my nature," he answered simply.

"You dear quixotic boy. Take what little we can give you in interest, in companionship.
As for return," she smiled happily, "you give us the pleasure, the inspiration of yourself."
He shook his head.

"But all that is over now and we are talking of the might-have-been. What you think honor, in this case, Elmer, is a beautiful boyish dream.
Don't imagine I do not appreciate it, and you. I only want to show you how impractical it was,
and in the future, elsewhere, perhaps—." Her voice died away softly, her next words she hardly breathed, so low was her tone. "Oh, are we friends so little as to haggle over returns?"

"Friends?——More than friends."

The girl began to speak quickly, as if thus to break the strain the moment's silence had caused.

"Elmer, I have a confession to make. The woman who showed us where your room was suggested our waiting for you. She showed us your daily schedule hanging above your desk and said you never varied from it a single moment. She was just a plain woman, but so kind hearted, and she said such wonderful things about you. Elmer. When I looked at the way you disposed of your day, the purpose behind each moment, without a single instant for play of any sort, I almost cried. Why, you are only a boy in years. Then I found on the desk this little book, your journal."

journal."
"Yes, I was looking over it this morning before the drill." He grew red as he thought of her seeing it, yet he was not sorry.
"I did not read it all," she said in a half pleading tone, "and I felt like a thief stealing the secrets of your life and soul in what I did read."

"You need not. Mary. I might have told you all that it said long ago had I possessed the courage and the knowledge that you cared to hear."

courage and the knowledge that hear."

"It seemed so much of yourself." She picked up the little book reverently. "Poor boy, what a struggle you have had to get along, and all the time not one tiny bit of help. Why didn't you tell me before? Elmer, may I keep the book?"

"Of course you may, if you wish it."

"I like this at the beginning." She read the opening sentences in the little diary:

"'I do this because it seems pleasant to be able to look back upon our past lives and note the gradual change in our sentiments and views of life; and because my life has been and bids fair to be such a jumble of strange incidents that, should I become anybody or anything, this will be useful as a means of showing how much suffering and temptation a man may undergo and still keep clear of despair and vice.'"

The little uncomfortable feeling a man usually has when he hears his own words read aloud by some one else crept over Ellsworth. And her voice! He feared to trust himself should she utter what he knew was in her thoughts. He began abruptly.

"I am going away."

"Back to the East?" she asked, a look of eager hope in her face. The light died out with his words.

"First with my Zouaves. Do you know that we are challenging all the crack militia companies in the United States to competitive drills?"

"Yes, and then where?"

we are challenging all the crack milital companies in the United States to competitive drills?"

"Yes, and then where?"

"Then to Springfield."

"Springfield, Illinois? Where Lincoln lives?" she asked with a half note of envy in her voice.

"Do you think you will see him?"

"I am going into his office to read law."

"With Lincoln!" she murmured, half to herself. Then laughingly she went on. "No, sir, I don't wonder now, that you desert all your other friends the way you have us, these last few months, No associates but Présidential candidates, if you please!"

He fell in at once with her half-bantering mood.

"One presidential candidate who has more heart and feeling than almost all of your Chicago lawyers combined. They would have nothing to do with me, Lincoln took me in."

"You lucky Boy," sighed Mary. "Oh, you don't know how devoted I am to Abraham Lincoln."

"If you only knew him! I don't expect to study much law this year. Perhaps, though, I can help him a little, make a few speeches, or do something. Think of being able to help him!"

So had their mutual enthusiasm enthralled them that Mrs. Somers' low-voiced, "Mary," dropped them back with a start into their every day affairs.

The mother turned from the distant window where she had been sitting quietly looking out

The mother turned from the distant window where ske had been sitting quietly looking out over the dirty roofs and chimneys. "It is growing late." she warned.

"Yes, mother. Elmer, I spoke of our departure—" He reached for her hand silently as she went on, "We are going away, the family, I mean, going to New York to live."

"When?"

"When?"

"Next week. Father made the decision rather suddenly, and I thought every day that we would see or hear from you. F'nally when we did not, I asked mother if we sould not come here."

"To say good by?"

"Yes, to say good by."

"I wish you every happiness, Mary, and even though I should never see you again—"

"Don't say that," she begged. "Of course you will see us again. This is a good world, Elmer."

They were silent for a moment. Then her mother said good by to him and the two women went down-stairs. Ellsworth stood in the doorway of his bare little room looking after Mary Somers, a smile on her lips, loneliness in her heart, and his little journal clasped tight in her hand.

hand.

He shut himself in his room where her presence seemed to fill every corner. He could feel her beside him no matter where he turned. The sensation played havoc with his resolutions and his firmness of purpose. Her apparent spiritual nearness made him long for her real presence again, the sight of her face, the light from the west window striking her hair, as it had done that afternoon. He seemed to awaken suddenly to the fact that she was gone, not alone from his poor room, but perhaps gone likewise from his life forever.

For months he had battled with his love for (CONTINUED ON PAGE 26.)

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 26.)

There's enterprise for you—only two weeks in camp and already a Sunday school organized. It deserves to be rewarded by reading matter and suggestions.

suggestions.

Our how-I helped-my-husband discussion is coming along slowly but surely and I am anxious to hear from sothers. You did splendidly, Mrs. Poag, and your work out of doors must have been of physical help to you, as well as financial.—Ed.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington, D. C.

Dear Mes. Wilkinson and Sisters:

I have taken Comfort about two years, and find it the best paper for its price.

I have never written before, but now I want some of the sisters to advise me. I am the unhappiest woman living, and sometimes I think I would be better off dead, as I am afflicted with stammering. I started to stammer from fright about two years ago. I have a sunken chest and sometimes feel terribly weak, and all this is due to the stammering. I do not stammer badly. Strangers wouldn't notice it.

Now, what I want to ask is, would it be wise for me to go to a school? I know a school in the West, and the professor of this institute is willing to cure me for a fee of $300; I don't think it's too much, as he says that speech is a priceless gift.

Now, what worries me is, my husband doesn't want me to go and tells me to get that idea out of my head. He says that I don't have to get cured of this trouble. If I cannot get cured of stammering, I feel that I am wasting my life. I have asked my folks to help me, but they won't. They think it's my own fault. I get a certain sum of spending money each month from my husband. I have started to save this money, and I will until I get enough to go to this Institute. I have nobody to help me so I have to help myself. But the longer I let this trouble go the more money it will take and also more time.

time.

I am worried terribly. There is no way for me to make money at home as I have tried different advertisements. I was thinking that I could go out and work as I am a pretty good typist, but I have a baby two years old to take care of.

My husband will be drafted pretty soon, then I will be obliged to earn my own living, but I won't be able to hold my position if they find out that I stutter.

I stutter.

Are any of the COMFORT sisters in such a trouble is I am? I want to be cured no matter if it takes my lifetime to save enough money to go to this school. I want to learn stenography in case I am obliged to earn my own living, but how can I, the say I talk?

Please do not tell me that I can cure a manufacture.

way I talk?
Please do not tell me that I can cure myself by Flease do not tell me that I can cure myself by talking slowly or something of that sort. It's impossible as I can't cure myself. The speech muscles are too large and that's why I stammer. Any advice will be kindly appreciated. I have given my address to Mrs. Wilkinson.

Wish best wishes I remain yours,
Mrs. R. T. W.——.

Mrs. R. T. W. Please don't think me unfeeling or unsympathetic, but do you have to pay the Professor your $300 before or after you are cured of stammering? You say you are "worried terribly" and I think that is half the trouble. Stop worrying and give yourself a chance to get over stammering. I feel sure that you will in time if only you won't let your mind dwell on your trouble so much. What do the other sisters say about it?—Ed.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON:

Through a letter of mine which was printed in Compost over a year ago I have found my relatives from whom I have been separated twenty-two long years. Thanks to dear old Comfort and long life to Mrs. Wilkinson and all of Comfort's staff.

Vonta in Joy.

HAZEL BLACK.

Hazel Black. Weren't you just the dearest person to let me know of your good fortune and share it with you, and the knowledge that our little corner is doing some good once in a while is the very best valentine I could ever receive.

—Ed.

share it with you, and the knowledge that our little corner is doing some good once in a while is the very best valentine I could ever receive.—Ed.

MARTIN CITY, MO.

MRS. WILKINSON AND COMFORT SISTERS:

I have taken COMFORT for a long time and read each issue from cover to cover and derive much pleasure and benefit therefrom. The Sisters' Corner is an endless chain of thoughts, opinions and experiences, and by reading the letters each month one can always lead to the farmer got so strong within me that I just had to sit down and write a few facts about farmers and farm life. Now I do not blame City Sport for feeling the way she does, for when one has lived in the city all their life and has to buy high-priced food stuffs, it is natural to blame the farmer, and we are all narrow-minded to a certain extent, in certain things, and especially so when we show that the certain country, and so far as the people are concerned, find them all the same, "just human beings." Take it altogether, the classes are equally divided among city and country and so far as the people are concerned, find them all the same, "just human beings." Take it altogether, the classes are equally divided among city and country and so far as the people are concerned, find them all the same, "just human beings." Take it altogether, the classes are equally divided among city and country and so far as the people are concerned, find them all the same, "just human beings." Take it altogether, the classes are equally divided among city and country and so far as the people are concerned, find them all the same, "just human beings." Take it altogether, the classes are equally divided among city and country health and the should be classed together, but each taken as an individual and upheld on his own merit. City Sport named, all of the far and the should not be classed together, but each taken as an individual and upheld on his own merit. City Sport named, all of the far and the should not be classed to a factory so the should not be classed to a fact

Comfort Sisters' Corner

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 5.)

With a world of love to dear Uncle Charlie and all of Comfort's staff,

MRS. FANNIE POAG.

The people were expressing opinions of the farmers because the price of spuds was going up. This is one of the many incidents where blame comes to the wrong party.

Best wishes to Comfort and all the readers, MRS. ELIZABETH NEIBROOK.

Miss Neibrook. All the city-versus-country letters which I receive (and there are a lot of them from every state) lead me to the old remark that there are two sides to everything—our side and the wrong side; nevertheless, I enjoy the discussions, even if the farmer's side of it is very well known to me.—Ed.

PAWTUCKET, R. I.

DEAR MRS. WII KINSON AND COMPORT SISTERS:
Will some of you tell me how to cure my little girl of worms? She has had them for a long time and is very bad at times. I have stopped giving her candy or sweets of any kind and have given her worm medicine for some time but she is no better. I hope some of the dear sisters can help me.

Sincerely,

MRS. A. F. L.

one of the dear sisters can help me.

Sincerely.

LYNCHBURG, 402 Main St., VA.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

I am a young girl, nineteen years old last January.
I have blue eyes, dark brown hair, fair complexion, and am five feet, five inches tail—weigh 138 pounds.
I am a stenographer and assistant bookkeeper in a clothing store for men, and have lived in the country until I was eleven years old. But first left me tell you how I came to see your magazine. I am very, wery fond of magazine stories, so when the collector of the store came in this morning I very quickly spied a magazine in his pocket which I asked him to let me see. He said, "All right, but for heaven's sake don't let me go home without it tonight or my wife will have a fit." I was not busy that afternoon and I read most-of the magazine. The first thing was Mrs. Wilkinson's dept. I enjoyed it very much until I cad where the country lady had been speaking in the country lady had been speaking in the country sisters expected to see her extended to the store came in the country lady had been speaking blook boil to hear a country person run down a city girl. Oh! it just makes my blood boil to hear a country person run down a city girl blaces in the country. Perhaps some little frisk has been visiting in their neighborhood and not acted as modestly as the country sisters expected to see her act, but that is no reason why the Arkansas sister should judge all the rest by her. There are good and bad everywhere. The city girl is every inch as good in ccry respect as the country lassie. I know it. My honest opinion of girls, both of the country and city, is that they can be just what they want to be, it makes no difference where they are. You are just what you make yourself. I pity some of the poor little country girls who marry sporty—is bad city boys, who have to go to the country to get their wife because the girls of the city who know them won't have them. I know of two cases right there will be the proper of the poor little country girls who marry

A loving little girl,

MARY E. FARMER.

CHINOOK, MONT.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

CHINOOK, MONT.

A bridge and allow a Montana sisters of could suggest Indian names for our home. You see it is a part of the Battle-Field Reserve that was thrown open last year and as it was the last stand of the Indians I think an Indian name would be very appropriate. I enjoy the letters from sisters on child training and housekeeping hints. A young housekeeper has much to learn.

I like to crochet and I don't think it hurts one's character, as one sister thought. I'm sure if she were alone most of the time she would turn to some kind of fancy work to while the lonely hours away. What do you think, homestead sisters?

God bless you, one and all, Mrs. M. B. K.

DEAR SISTERS ALL:

I have been still for years and they say that it is impossible for a woman to do, so I want to be heard now.

I have been still for years and they say that it is impossible for a woman to do, so I want to be heard now.

Perplexed Mother, your letter appealed to me. I think you should consult your own choice in the matter of adopting a child. I believe I would talk with little daughter first. Tell her of the many little ones left alone, and, better still, take her to some institution and let her see them. Get her into the way of thinking, if you can, that she would be much happier if she had one to share with and make its life more pleasant. If I were in your place, and was taking a child from an institution or where I had several to choose from, I would let Camele choose the new sister herself. That is, of course, if you approved of her choice. She would probably feel more attached to one thus chosen. Perhaps her choice would be a child older or younger than you had supposed she would care for. It is so hard to find out exactly what pleases a child until we try.

Can any of the sisters help me. I wonder. Several years ago there was a rectipe published for breakfast food that we liked very much. The food was made with yeast, baked, dried and then rolled with a rolling pin or put through a food chopper. It was like one kind of patented food when finished but much cheaper. I would like to see this rectipe printed again, as I have lost mine, and there are probably lots of new subscribers who would be glad to know of it in these times of conservation of food. Mrs. H. F. Wagner.

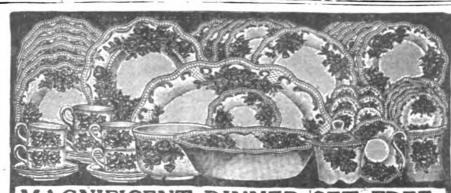

with yeast, baked, dried and then rolled with a rolling pin or put through a food chopper. It was like one kind of patented food when finished but much cheaper. I would like to see this recipe printed again, as I have lost mine, and there are probably lots of new subscribers who would be glad to know of it in these times of conservation of food. Mrs. H. F. WAGNER.

Staples, Minn.

Dear Mrs. Wilkinson:

I have been a reader of the Sisters' Corner for several years and like it very much.

I think the idea of Arkansas Grouch, that the conditions she mentions being prevalent among rural schools is rather a mistaken one. I live in a rural district in central Minnesota and have attended both rural and country schools. In the district in which

ENT DINNER SET

The Most Gigantic Offer Of The Century.
You Need No Money. We Trust You. We Pay Freight. distribution for our strictly pure, high-grade groceries and family supplied FELY FREE, a magnificently embossed, artistically floral decorated, for 52-PC. DINNER SET for sale of 10 BOXES OF SOAP of extra quality and finely perfumed, giving as premiums, with each box of 7 large cakes, Baking Powder, Perfumer, Talcum Powder, Ieaspoons, Shears and Needles (as per Plan 255) here illustrated, QUALITY as well as QUANTITY are in this offer, as we buy in such large lots that we can afford to give more good goods for less money than any other ey than ALL OF OUR PLANS SELL AT SIGHT. One pleased customer brings another and with our other Baking Powder, Tea, Coffee,

WE PAY THE FREIGHT

on Soap, Dinner Set and Premiums, allowing you plenty of time to examine, deliver and collect before paying us one cent, Write at once for FREE SAMPLE OUTFIT and other things. Write at once for FREE SAMPLE OUTFIT and other things. If, after receiving them, you decide not to get up an order, you may keep everything we send you FREE of charge for the trouble in answering this advertisement. No license needed. We protect you. Our methods are honest. Satisfaction guaranteed. Reference: First National Bank, Provident Bank, Postmaster,

SPECIAL FREE PRESENT.

We give a 6-Pc. High-Grade Granite Kitchen Set, or 12-Pc.

Silverine Knife and Fork Set, or Elegant Decorated Parlor

Lamp, FREE of all cost or work of any kind. Simply send us your name and address and ask for this FREE PRESENT.

We also give Beautiful Presents for appointing one or more Agents to work for us.

You advance no money. You have nothing to risk. Remember, the SPECIAL PREMIUM AND SAMPLE OUTFIT are both absolutely free. A 2-cent stamp or post card is your only expense. WRITE TODAY, THE PURE FOOD CO., 820 W. PEARL ST., CINCINNATI, OHIO.

THE RIGHT WAY Jim Riner and his wife were good, honest, industrious folks. Like a great many American families they wanted to have the best of everything. Jim loved his wife and would have given her anything in this world she wanted, had he been able to afford it, but although he worked steadily, it took all the money he earned to keep his family. If Mrs. Riner wanted a new dress or a piece of furniture for the home, it meant that they must deprive themselves of something else. One day she received a letter asking has to distribute meant high-grade household, articles around her works. high-grade household articles among her neighbors and friends. It only required a small part of her time and she accepted the offer. For her services Mr. Ricer received a handsome Dinner Set, then some linears, a pretty lamp, and many other substitution of the property lamp, and many other substitutions are property lamp, and many other substitutions. I get did the work in her spare time. If you want to know more about the way Mrs. Ricer fornished her home without cost to her, and have a few hours time to spare, send to for full information. I am Segretary of THE PURE FOOD CO., whose advertisement appears above. Write at once. PERRY G. MASON, 820 Pearl St., CINCINNATI, OHIO.

for toll information. I am Secretary of THE PURE FOOD CO., MASON, 820 Pearl St., CINCINNATI, OHIO.

we live we have one term of nine months, beginning in September. First-class teachers are hired exclusively—paying a good salary, of course, but I must say that we receive full value for our money, the teacher we have at present having had twelve years' experience. The school building has a splendid system of heating and ventilation and plenty of light and pure air—something not always to be had in the city. The compulsory school law is strictly enforced, no child being absent without a very good excuse, such as illness. No children are allowed to remain at home to work. There is a playground for the children, with toboggan slide, swings, croquet set, and a baseball diamond for the older boys. The classes are graded very carefully and never fail to enter high school upon completion of the eighth grade.

I cannot agree with City Sport either about conditions in rural communities, as I have tried both city and country life and like the latter far the best. I wonder if she realizes that people in the country who steal corn and chickens are looked down on just as much as the burglar who breaks into houses or the pickpocket who picks pockets and snatches purses, in the city.

I think all these evils are the fault of the individual communities rather than "the country" as a whole.

If I see this letter in print I'll write again and

If I see this letter in print I'll write again and low the pleasant rather than the ugly side of my

Dear Comfort Sisters:

After reading Mrs. V. M.'s letter in October Comfort, I couldn't be still.

I think Mrs. V. M. should stop thinking about not loving that good, trustworthy man and love him with all her heart and tell kim so. Has she ever stopped to think how happy she could make him by so doing? There is no such perfect bliss in this life as she seems to be dreaming of finding (and in some other man besides her husband) and the happiest people are those that forget self and make others happy.

About her husband not being educated—that has nothing to do with her loving him. One cannot help loving a man that is good and true. I married a man life Mrs. V. M.'s and after four years of man life if can say I am as happy as most people. But I have two children, a boy three and a girl ten months. There's nothing like children to weld two lives into one.

Dear Mrs. V. M., those first two years of married life can say I am as happy as most people. But I have two children, a boy three and a girl ten months. There's nothing like children to weld two lives into one.

Dear Mrs. V. M., those first two years of married life are say I am as happy as most people to two lives into one.

Dear Mrs. V. M., those first two years of married life are say I am as happy as most people two lives into one.

Dear Mrs. V. M., those first two years of married life are two children, a boy three and a girl your husband and be good and true to him as he is to you. Try it for another year or two anyway. And write again, won't you? Do your duty, I husband and be good she hand done and is doing. My sister and I have a dear. Christian girl friend who comes to see us every week, and she always leaves two happler girls than she found them, just by her dear, good ways.

I hope dear girl that you will fight against the two lives into one to the path of the process of the same and the same and two happier girls than she found them, just by her dear, good ways.

I hope dear girl that you will fight against the temptations that are always thrown in the path of a young girl, and I am sure you will come out victorious. If you will write to me, my sister and I will be glad to write to you.

I am twenty-one years old, weigh about one hundred and fifteen pounds and have blue eyes and light brown hair. I have been married over a year to one of the best Johns in the world and the only thing to make us unhappy is the war.

With best wishes to one and all, from your COMFORT sister, (COMPANY OF THE STATE OF THE ME AND THE STATE OF THE STA

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 27.)

Home Dressmaking Hints

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 11.)

Size 12 requires three and one half yards of 44-inch material. 2323—Simple.

Spice, Extract, Perfume and Soap Offers, you Spice, Extract, Perfumeand Soap Offers, you will get duplicate orders and earn some of our many useful premiums such as Dinner Sets, Toilet Sets, Linen Sets, Silvervare, Clocks, Lamps, Furniture, Graniteware, Rugs, DryGoods, Wearing Apparel, in fact, anything you need. We also pay large cash commissions.

2325—A Pretty New Shirt Waist. This will be a pretty style for crepe, chiffon, madras, linen, crepe de chine, satin or silk.

Cut in six sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires three and one fourth yards of 36-inch material.

2330—A Comfortable Suit for the Little Boy. For this model, the blouse could be of drill madras, linen or fiannel, and the trousers of serge, cheviot, or of wash fabrics. The suspender portions could be omitted.

Cut in four sizes; two, three, four and five years. Size four requires one and one quarter yard of 44-inch material for the waist and two and one eighth yards for the trousers.

2331—A Popular Model. Good for gingham, chambray, seersucker, linen, linene, khaki, percale and lawn. The fronts are reversible, a practical feature.

Cut in seven sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires seven yards of 36-inch material.

2337—A Splendid Dress for School or General Wear. Gingham, galatea, chambray, drill, linen, khaki, serge, gabardine, corduroy, velvet and satin may be used for this style.

Cut in four sizes; eight, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 12 requires four and one half yards of 36-inch material, with two strips 36 inches long and five inches wide for the sash ends.

ALL PATTERNS 12c. EACH

ALL PATTERNS 12c. EACH Unless Other Price Is Stated.

Get Wholesale Direct from manufacturers. Save money—Quick shipment—We pay Stove Prices the freight—30 days' trial. We kitchen kabinets and tables.

Write for Catalog No. 501 and mention article wanted.

KALAMAZOO STOVE CO., A Kalamazoo, Kalamazoo, - . - Mich.

RELIABLE TAILORING COMPANY 328 S. Pooria St. Chicago, III.

10 Cents a Day Pays for This Symphonola

Plays all records, Victor, Columbia, Edison, Pathe, Little Wonder, Emerson. Take a year to pay, after 30 days' trial. Compare its tone for clearness, volume, with more costly instruments. Return at our expense if it falls to make good. Ask today for the Beautifully Illustrated Symphonola Book FREE

Larkitt Co. Dosk SCI 218, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE MORLEY CO., Dept. 766, Perry Bldg., Phila.

THIS FREE

andsome Rings all fre-selling 12 pieces quick-ing Jowelry at 10 cent

Eagle Watch Co., Dept. 21, East Boston, Ma

CUSHION COMFORT with style and $365 tremendous saving. This ladies' shoe is Hand Turned, Cushion Inner Sole, Safety Heel,
Queen cloth top, soft kid. Fits like a glove.
Postage paid. Send for new catalog. Over 100 styles for women, children, men. Big bargains, Every shoe guaranteed.

Whales the Company of the same o Whalen Shoe Co., Dept. 1, Boston, Mass.

TO $10 A DAY easily earned taking orders for our high grade Soaps and Toilet Preparations. Our goods well known—nationally advertised. Ladies and men make 100% profit. No experience necessary. Write for sample case offer. Crofts& Reed Co., Dept.C-283 Chicago, IU.

SILK MUSLIN SCARF

"Virtue itself offends when coupled with forbid-ding manners."—Bishop Middleton.

In order to meet the demand for information made by COMFORT subscribers on the kindred subjects of Etiquestie and Personal Appearance, this column will be devoted to them, and all questions will be answered, but no inquirer shall ask more than two questions each month. We would suggest to readers to cut this column out and paste it in a scrap book. Address letters to Etiquette Editor, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Snow Bird, Ripley W. Va.—We think that if a man asked a girl to let him take her home from church and she refused, and the next girl that he asked accepted, that he would like the second girl better. This is probably the way of it with the Ripley young man you write about. Yet men, young or old, are strange and fickle creatures and there is no rule to regulate their actions where a woman is concerned. (2) It is always best to say a few pleasant words when your caller is leaving, and, if you really wish to see him again, to say that you hope you will. Blue Eves. Crisfield. Md.—You say that you now when your caller is leaving, and, if you really wish to see him again, to say that you hope you will.

Blue Eyes, Crisfield, Md.—You say that you now find you like a young man that you once thought you did not care for. We think that the best thing to do is to wait and see if he still likes you. If he does, you will not have to use any extraordinary means to show him that you have changed your mind. And if he does not—why it would be very foolish for you to go on liking him. (2) We do not think you could call a girl your friend that "dirted with" and tried to "win" a young man that was interesting himself in you. And don't say "gentleman friend," and don't spell it "gentelman."

Happy, Stoughton, Mich.—Your letter is well-written and well-spelt, and we were interested in what you said about yourself. Remember you are but fourteen and should not worry that boys do not seem to care for you. The reason probably is that you have been sensible and have studied while in high school—as your letter shows. You say that you are happy, and you should go on with your other two years of school—remembering that the best characters always make the best friends. If you are self-conscious, try and think more of others when in their company.

Evelyn, Shennington, Wis,—It is always proper to thank a your were a strolled.

think more of others when in their company.

Evelyn, Shennington, Wis.—It is always proper to thank a young man who takes you home. A simple "Thank you," or "It has been good of you to bring me home," is sufficient. (2) You should not be expected to furnish "fun" to Sunday afternoon callers. Talk about what you have been doing through the week and what you expect to do. Show something you have made or are making. Or perhaps take a short walk together and come back to tea or simple refreshments of some sort.

Willie Monree Ga.—Most certainly not is our

Willie, Monroe, Ga.—Most certainly not, is our answer to your question if a girl of fitteen should marry a boy of twenty-four. (2) Your mother may, if she wishes, ask a boy who calls at your house to stay to supper.

If she wishes, ask a boy who calls at your house to stay to supper.

Montine, Monroe, Ga.—This is another Georgia girl who asks as outrageous a question as her friend from the same town. This girl wishes to know if at "foreteen" one may go out at night with a boy of twenty-five. We cannot make our "No" too strong, and we wonder if the mothers of these two girls are too busy or careless to give them the spankings they need—and to see that they learn to write and spell instead of asking ridiculous questions about boys. Michigan Soldier's Girl, LaCrosse, Wis.—It is perfectly permissible for you to accept gifts of flowers or candy from the young man that has been paying attention to you for the past year—even if he sends these gifts almost every week. This is very nice of him, and shows that he is very fond of you and always thinking of you. If he is now in the army, you should make him something with your own hands for a present—and we suggest that the something be warm and wooly.

Lonesome, Nashville, Tenn.—This column is against Lonesome, Nashville, Tenn.—This column is against the marriage of cousins, and so we advise that you do not regard the young man you write about as a "sweetheart." (2) If a young man that has been paying you attention also pays attention to another girl, we cannot tell you which one he likes best. But it is sure that he is not very serious in either case.

Puzzled, Mexico.—We do not think you have wuch of a difficulty to settle. If the young man is two years younger than you, and you also do not "love him in the least" and have so told him, why that ought to end the matter. If he annoys you with his attentions, you are justified in ceasing to regard him even as a friend, and you should refuse to have anything more to do with him.

Kido Kennett Cal —You need make no reply when thing more to do with him.

Kido, Kennett, Cal.—You need make no reply when anyone says "Thank you" after you have passed them anything at the table. (2) You should certainly not marry a man twenty years older than yourself and whom you do not love, even if your parents are very anxious for you to take him as husband. If his attentions disgust you, it would be a crime for you to marry him. His money makes no difference in the matter. You must use your own judgment as to the young man. If he loves you and you return his love, and if his salary will support you, you should not hesitate because of your parents' stand in the matter of the older man. There should be no kissing except between those engaged to be married.

ried.

V. H., Odin, Ill.—Fourteen is too young for you to be corresponding with a "soldier boy," but as you say he writes only friendly, interesting letters, we will not say that you must cease writing to him, if you will let your mother read all letters that pass between you. And as so many are knitting for the boys that are fighting Uncle Sam's battle, there is no reason why you should not make something with your own hands to send to this soldier, if your mother approves.

wobbling in your thinking.

Peg and Pug, Morristown, Tenn.—When a girl has been proposed to by a soldier boy, her kissing him upon his return would depend upon what her answer was going to be. If you are but nineteen we think you should be guided by your parents' opinions regarding the young men that wish to pay you attention. If you feel that their objection in this case is a just one, it is all the more reason for you to do as they wish. We do not believe in long engagements—certainly not longer than a year, unless for excepthonal causes. (2) Two girls should not go auto riding at night with two young men without having some older woman in the party.

Sibyl's Influence

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 6.)

heart she could not fully endorse her sentiments regarding their being excellent friends, and she asked herself again and again why it was that such a strange distrust of one who seemed so charming in every way should take possession of her.

charming in every way should take possessed ther.

"How has the princess enjoyed herself tonight?" Raymond asked, as when the last guest had departed he drew her little hand within his arm and led her into the cozy library, where he put her into a luxurious chair and drew a hassock to her feet.

"Very much; how many delightful people there are in the world," she returned, with animation and charming naivete.

"Oh, the happy confidence of blissful nineteen!" replied Raymond, with a hearty laugh.
"Don't you think so?" demanded Sibyl, flushing.

ing.
"I might, my dear, if I could feel sure that every one was all that he or she professed to be," he answered, with a slight curl of his lip.
"Are you so skeptical as that? Do you mistrust everybody?" she asked, with a troubled look

"Are you so sapital as that: Do you misstrust everybody?" she asked, with a troubled look.

"No, there are some in whom I have the most entire confidence," he said, with a bright, earnest look into her beautiful eyes; then went on:
"I am glad, however, that you enjoyed your first taste of society so much. I suppose you will become a regular devotee now."
"Do you really think so, Ray?" and Sibyl searched his face somewhat anxiously.
"Why should you not, if you enjoyed it so much? Most young ladies, when they once get a taste of gay life, are rarely satisfied until they have been the whole round of excitement."
"Society, as you call it, if it is always as pleasant as our gathering of tonight has been, must be very enjoyable; but you mistake me utterly, Raymond, if you think I could be satisfied to spend all my time seeking only my own pleasure," Sibyl answered, very grayely. "I feel, somehow, as if I were leaving my girlhood behind me, and beginning to be a woman tonight."
"Does the weight of your nineteen years make you feel so venerable?" Raymond asked, looking amused.
"No. Ray." lifting her eyes and meeting his you feel so venerable?" Raymond asked, looking amused.

"No. Ray," lifting her eyes and meeting his more frankly than she had yet done since his return, "but I think that my early experience served to teach me that there is more in life, and more required of us, than perhaps most young people realize. I have received so much—these last six years have been so full of all that is good and precious to me, that I often wish I could dispense some of my own joy to others."

CHAPTER IX.

THE SECRET FOE.

Miss Ada Therwin did not appear to be in a very comfortable frame of mind upon her return from Sibyl's birthday reception.

with evident impatience she bore her maid's presence until she had accomplished her usual duties, then, abruptly dismissing her, she drew a chair before the fire, where she spent two long hours in troubled musings and murmurings. "That girl must be driven into obscurity again, or I am lost, and all my future prospects ruined," she asserted, with all the beauty gone from her face, and in its place a contracted, evil expression, which rendered her very unlovely.

"I would give much," she continued, "to find out where they got her, but their haughty reserve, whenever the subject was touched upon, was overpowering. That jewel is the missing link, and if they should discover the owner, I might as well give up all hope.

"The girl looks like her, too. The same expressive eyes and beautiful hair; the nose and mouth are a perfect counterpart, only I did not mind it until I saw that wonderful jewel; that upset me completely, though I was a fool to let it make me faint!

"Her haughty, imperial bearing, too, is like his. Strange that it should cling to her so, having been brought up in another family! I do wonder where they found her, and I'll find out yet. They believe that she was killed in that terrible railway disaster, and the nurse, Nannie, too, and I do not care to have them undeceived in the matter.

"That girl was a little shy of me," she said, with a sneer, "but I'll make her like me yet, and then I'll worm every secret she has out of her."

Then she sat for a long time thinking, her head bent, her fair forehead contracted, her eyes intent and glittering.

"If I could only estrange her from the Prescotts," she continued, at length, "and make her hide herself from society—make her believe something, anything regarding her birth which would keep her in the dark—I should be all right. But if she remains where she is they will take her everywhere, introduce her to everybody, and before I know it the mischief will be done."

But by and by her lovely face began to clear and resume its accustomed expression, a cold, fr any more.

Miss Therwin here arose and crossed the room to a full-length dressing mirror and began to study the reflection there.

A tall, commanding figure in loose, trailing

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 35.)

WOMEN

may earn $20.00 to $60.00 a week. Be independent. Learn at home. Age does not matter. Be a scalp, hair and facial specialist. Four out of five persons need scalp treatment. Millions of dollars are spent on fake hair tonics. Thousands of women may enter this attractive profession and attain success. Write to-day for Free

"The Road to Independence." THE PARISIENE INSTITUTE, Dept. C., 362-364 Fifth Avenue. New York City.

What 15c Will You from Nation's Capital Washington, the home of the Pathfinder, is the nerve-center of civilization; history is being made at this world capital. The Pathfinder's illustrated weekly review gives you a clear, Impartial and correct diagnostic transfer of the Nation's center, for the Nation; a paper that prints all the name of the world and tells the truth and only the paper that prints all the name of the name of the sound of the Nation's center, for the Nation; a paper that prints all the name of the world and tells the truth and only the paper that prints all the name of the sound of the name o

Liberty Globe Of The World!

For A Club Of Four!

PVERYWHERE you hear people talking about the war. But how much do you know about it? When you discuss the latest war news with your neighbors and members of your family do you feel sure of everything you say?

Mother, Why Don't You Take Nuxated Iron

And Be Strong and Well and Have Nice Rosy Cheeks Instead of Being Nervous and Irritable All The Time and Looking So Haggard and Old? - The Doctor Gave Some to Susie Smith's Mother and She Was Worse Off Than You Are and Now She Looks Just Fine

NUXATED IRON WILL INCREASE THE STRENGTH AND ENDURANCE OF WEAK, NERVOUS, CAREWORN, HACCARD LOOKING WOMEN 100 PER CENT IN TWO WEEKS' TIME IN MANY INSTANCES

THE CHILD'S APPEAL

"There can be no Beautiful, Healthy, Rosy Cheeked women without Iron." F. KING, M. D.

"There can be no healthy, beautiful, rosy cheeked women without iron," says Dr. Ferdinand King, a New York Physician and Medical Author. In my recent talks to physicians on the grave and serious consequences of iron deficiency in the blood of American women, I have strongly emphasized the fact that doctors should prescribe more organic iron—nuxated iron—for their nervous, run-down, weak, haggard-looking women patients. Pallor means anaemia. The skin of the anaemic woman is pale, the flesh flabby. The muscles lack tone, the brain fags and the memory fails, and often they become weak, nervous, irritable, despondent and melancholy. When the iron goes from the blood of women, the roses go from their cheeks.

"In the most common foods of America, the starches, sugars, table syrups, candies, polished rice, white bread, soda crackers, biscuits, macaroni, spaghetti, tapioca, sago, farina, degerminated cornmeal, no longer is iron to be found. Refining processes have removed the iron of Mother Earth from these impoverished foods, and silly methods of home cookery, by throwing down the waste pipe the water in which our vegetables are cooked, are responsible for another grave iron loss.

"Therefore, if you wish to preserve your vim and vigor to a ripe old age, you must supply the iron deficiency in your food by using some form of organic iron, just as you would use salt when your food has not

"As I have said a hundred times over, organic iron is the greatest of all strength builders. If people would only take Nuxated Iron when they feel weak or run-down, instead of dosing themselves with habit-forming drugs, stimulants, and alcoholic beverages, I am convinced that in this way they could ward off-disease, preventing it becoming organic in thousands of cases and thereby the lives of thousands might be saved who now die every year from pneumonia, grippe, kidney, liver, heart trouble and other dangerous maladies. The real and true cause which started their disease was nothing more nor less than a weakened condition brought on by lack of iron in the blood.

"Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you any good. You don't get the strength out of it, and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly looking, just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the fol-lowing test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous, run-down people, who were ailing all the while, double their strength and endurance and entirely rid themselves of all symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles, in from ten to four-teen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this, after they had in some cases been form. And this, after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron, 'iron acetate, or tincture of iron simply to save a few cents. The iron demanded by Mother Nature for the red coloring matter in the blood of her children is, alas! not that kind of iron. You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless. I have used Nuxated Iron widely in my own practice in most severe, aggravated conditions with unfailing results. I have induced many other physicians to give it a trial, all of whom have given me most surprising reports in regard to its great power as a health and strength ports in regard to its great power as a health and strength

"Many an athlete and prize fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance and filled his blood with iron before he went into the affray; while many another has gone down in inglorious defeat simply for the lack of iron."

Dr. Schuyler C. Jacques, Visiting Surgeon of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, New York City, said: "I have never before given out any medical information or advice for publication as I ordinarily do not believe in it. But so many American women suffer from iron deficiency with its attendant illsphysical weakness, nervous irritability, melancholy, indiges-tion, flabby, sagging muscles, etc., etc., and in consequence of their weakened, run-down condition, they are so liable to contract serious and even fatal diseases that I deem it my duty to advise such to take Nuxated Iron. I have taken it myself and given it to my patients with most surprising and satisfactory results. And those who wish quickly to increase their strength, power and endurance will find it a most remarkable and wonderfully effective remedy."

You can tell the women with plenty of iron in their blood---beautiful, healthy, rosy cheeked women full of Life and Radiant with Health.

> NOTE—Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians in such a great variety of cases is not a patent medicine or secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists and whose iron constituents are widely prescribed by eminent physicians both in Europe and America. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach; on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy in nearly all forms of indigestion as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in nuxated iron that they offer to forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under sixty who lacks iron, and increase their strength 100 per cent. or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed by all good druggists.—Advertisement. NOTE-Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed by all good druggists.-Advertisement.

Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author, tells physicians that they should prescribe more organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for their patients. Says anaemia—iron deficiency—is the greatest curse to the health, strength, vitality and beauty of the modern American woman—counds warning against use of metallic iron which may injure the teeth, corrole the stongch and do far more harm than good; advises use of the stomach and do far more harm than good; advises use of

SPECIAL TO PHYSICIANS:

Doctor, when you wish to prescribe a true tonic and blood builder, to give health and strength, try Nuxated Iron. If you have been using the old forms of metallic iron, without success; if you have had patients complain of discolored teeth, upset stomachs, without success; if you have had patients complain of discolored teeth, upset stomachs, we suggest, try Nuxated Iron. Nuxated Iron will be furnished by any druggist on an absolute guarantee of success or money refunded. It is highly endorsed by such physicians as Dr. James Francis Sullivan formerly hysician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York and the Westchester County Hospital; Dr. H. B. Vail formerly Physician in the Baltimore Hospital and a Medical Examiner; Dr. A. J. Newman, late Police Surgeon of the City of Chicago, former House Surgeon, Jefferson Park Hospital, Chicago; Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author, and others. In most cases physicians direct the use of two five-grain tablets three times per day after meals.

138 Columbus Ave., Boston, Mass

National Aluminum Shoes Value of the control Racine, Wis. Kational

VETERINARY COURSE AT HOME

Taught in simplest English during spare time. Diploma granted. Cost within reach of all. Satisfacing by correspondence twenty years. Graduates assisted in many ways. Every person interested in stock should take it. Write for catalogue and full FREE particulars

LondonVet.Correspondence School Dep: 6, London, Ontario, Can

TAIN PEN CO

TALKING MACHINE

New Non-leakable SAFETY FOUNTAIN PEN

Premium No. 2344

For a CLUB OF FOUR

The cut shows the pen in the exact size when opened and ready for use. The larger cap unscrews and when the pen is encased into its smallest compass it measures only four inches in length. By a late patented device it is an utter impossibility for there to be any leaking of ink and it is so constructed as to be carried in any position, either in a pocket of a coat or vest or in a lady's handbag or valiable contents or garments by daubing them all over with ink.

The ink bottles are fast being discarded. It is so much more handy to use a fountain pen than the old-fashloned penholder and bottle of ink which is either being constantly tipped over and spilled or frozen. Now all women in their homes, teachers and children at school, lawyers, doctors, clerks and persons in all walks of life prefer to have a bottle of ink always on tap in the shape of a good, reliable Fountain Penthese Pens will always be found in unleakable, workable condition.

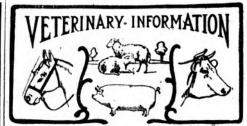

While the entire article is the petite size, it holds enough ink to write a lot of letters and does not have to be refilled for a long time. The holder is made of letters and does not have to be refilled for a long time. The holder is made from rubber and with its wavy lines of embossed engraving makes a beautiful

If you have been disappointed in previous fountain pens you may have owned or have been thinking of trying this handy way of using pen and ink, don't fail to take advantage of this offer.

Club Offer. For four one-year sub-scriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will squd this Safety Pen, including a Glass Filler with rubber bulb, and directions packed in sliding case box, free by parcel post prepaid. Pre-mium No. 2344.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Subscribers are invited to write to this department asking for any information desired relative to the treatment of animal troubles. Questions will be answered in these columns free by an eminent veterinarian. Describe the trouble fully, sign full name and give your address; direct all correspondence to the Veterinary Department, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

No attention will be given any inquiry which lacks the sender's full name and address, but we will print only initials if so requested.

Garger.—I have a cow that came fresh last April. One of the teats seemed as though there was milk in it, but it wouldn't come and I left it for the calf and it came all right. In the summer another teat was inflamed and the udder hard and sore, the milk coming in lumps. Is the milk good to use?

A.—The milk is unit for use and may be dangerous, as tuberculósis of the udder is to be suspected. The condition of the udder is incurable.

condition of the udder is incurable.

THIN MARE.—I have a fourteen-year-old mare that is very thin in flesh and has been for four years. She is too weak to work or ride. She is hearty and eats a plenty. Can you tell me how to put her in good flesh?

A.—The condition of the old mare's teeth probably is such that she cannot perfectly masticate her food. Have the teeth put in order by a veterinarian, then feed her a quart of blackstrap molasses night and morning, diluting it with hot water and then stirring it among cut hay, wheat bran and corn-meal. Feed whole oats at noon and long hay at night.

Worms.—What is good to give a kitten for worms? They are long and white and look like a piece of twing. She seems smart some days and dead others. I have been feeding bread and milk. I do not give potatoes or meat.

A.—Give the kitten raw meat once a day and mix limewater in the milk. When the bowels are normal, a grain of santonin may be given in a capsule and followed in one half an hour by a dose of castor oil. If the kitten is very small, Castoria would be a safer remedy.

PARALYSIS.—Is there any remedy for rheumatsm in hogs? I have a fine hog, seven months old, that cannot stand on its hind legs. The hog eats all right.

A.—Rheumatism rarely is present in such cases, nor are kidney worms the cause, as commonly supposed. In many instances the cause is constipation from overfeeding and lack of exercise, and when that is so the hog may recover if given a physic of Epsom salts in slop and then fed sloppy feed containing raw linseed oil. More often the hog has rickets from improper feeding, and worms may be a contributive cause. If the hog is in good flesh and does not improve after receiving the physic, we should advise you to slaughter it for meat.

LAME DOG.—I have a Spanish collie shepherd that is

It for meat.

LAME DOG.—I have a Spanish collie shepherd that is lame in his right shoulder. He limps. His right hind leg gets very sore between his claws.

A.—Without an examination we cannot be certain, but if you are sure that the right fore-foot is sound, the condition described probably is due to partial paralysis, which is incurable. Apply sulphur ointment daily to the sore hind foot. If that does not suffice, paint the sore places with balsam of Peru two or three times a week.

paint the sore places with balsam of Peru two or three times a week.

GARGET.—I bought a cow two months ago and when I milked her I noticed her bag was caked. I milked her a month and turned her dry. It is still caked. Is there anything that will take it out? C. W. W. A.—The condition is incurable and such a cow is worthless for dairying. If the tuberculin test has proved the cow free from tuberculosis, she should be fattened for slaughter. It is possible that the udder is affected with tuberculosis, and if so the milk would be dangerous to man or animals.

SCRATCHES.—What is the matter with my colt? He is eight months old and is in fine health. I noticed the other day that he was trying to walk upon one of his hind toes. He can't put it flat on the ground. It isn't bad in the morning, but it gets worse at night. Sometimes his leg or hock joint catches, and as he steps he wants to jerk up, and when he does his hoof pitches over bad. I find the back of the leg where the hoof parts is chapped and seems sore. What can I do about it?

A.—The sore condition of the skin of the heels may be the sole cause of the knuckling described. Poultice the sore part for two or three days with warm flax-seed meal and then apply twice daily a mixture of two parts of sulphur and one part each of spirits of camphor and compound tincture of benzoin and eight parts of lard. Twice daily force the foot flat down upon the ground.

PARASITES.—A very peculiar condition recently came to my attention, and I have so far failed to find any one who had ever heard of a similar case. A rabbit, which appeared in prime condition, well grown and fat, on being opened was found to be literally lined with glistening white spheres about one half the size of a barley grain. Each of these small spheres was surrounded by a pale, amber-colored, jelly-like substance, which did not readily separate from the sphere and was about four times its size in bulk. These spheres, contrary to their appearance at first sight, were not hard but cut open easily and seemed of a consistency resembling cooked tapioca or soft gumdrops. The meat and also the organs appeared all right. We did not use the meat but burned it. Was the meat fit for food?

A.—The vesicles seen probably were parasitic in origin and are also found in other animals, but there is a possibility that tuberculosis was present in the "millet seed" stage. There would be no remedy in either case and the meat would be unfit for use.

Chorea.—I have a stallion four years old that is "millet seed" stage. There would be no remedy in either case and the meat would be unfit for use.

Chorea.—I have a stallion four years old that is in poor flesh and will not get fat. When he was four years old, he had a swelling on his left front ankle. It broke, and when healed left the ankle a trifle larger. He stands with his hind feet far apart, and when driving hard jerks them up as though he had string-halt. He has three and four quarts of oats to a meal, according to the work he is doing, and all the hay he wants. I have only a small farm, so he is not worked hard. He used to make a mile in four minutes, and has taken first premium both times he was entered at a fair.

MRS. C. H. G.
A.—The stallion is unsound from chorea, which is akin to St. Vitus' dance, and incurable. It would not be legal or right to use him for public service. He may thrive better if you give him half an ounce of Fowler's solution of arsenic night and morning until a quart has been used, then gradually discontinue the medicine, taking ten days to do the work.

Poor Coat of Harn.—I have a seven-year-old cow medicine, taking ten days to do the work.

Poor COAT OF HAIR.—I have a seven-year-old cow that has had four fine calves. She has another, and it has very little hair. The calf appears to be all right. Last year, one of the cow's helfer calves had a calf just like it. What is the cause?

A.—This may be a family trait and therefore hereditary, in which case the animals should not be retained for breeding. In some instances, however, poor feeding of the pregnant cow is the cause, and generous feeding ends the trouble.

LAMENESS.—Have a four-year-old horse that ran generous feeding ends the trouble.

LAMENESS.—I have a four-year-old horse that ran away and hurt his hind leg. I cannot locate the trouble. It is three weeks now and he is but little better. He will walk a few steps and scarcely limp and then almost hop, it hurts him so. I cannot discover any soreness. We have no veterinarian here. O. B.

A.—Unfortunately, it is impossible for one at a distance to diagnose a mysterious lameness, so you should have expert horsemen see the case, as you cannot employ a veterinarian. We rather suspect that the trouble is in the ankle, and it would be well to put on a plaster of Paris cast if you locate the lameness there.

Cough.—Please give me advice about my cow. She coughs, especially when she eats or drinks, acting at though she had something in her throat. She doesn't appear to be sick. She will be fresh in a short time Would there be any danger in using the milk?

A.—As tuberculosis is the most probable cause of the cough, we can only advise you to have the cow tested with tuberculin by a trained veterinarian. Bet-

Revillon Frères Largest Fur Manufacturers in the World

> HIGHEST PRICES PAID FOR RAW FURS

453 West 28th Street

New York

ter postpone the test until after calving, as you say the cow will soon be fresh. Do not use the milk if she proves to have tuberculosis. The disease is contagious and incurable.

Spoiled Udden,—One side of my cow's udder is swollen, and the milk is not fit to use. I have kept it greased, but it doesn't do much good. S. D. G. 2. A.—Infective mammitis (garget) has ruined the quarter for milk secretion and milk from such an udder is unift for use. We cannot advise you to retain the cow for dairying. Slit the end of the affected teat or amputate a portion to allow drainage for pust then fatten her for slaughter. The disease is incurable at its present stage.

COUGH.—My parents have a cow which has a cough and which acts very much like a horse which has the heaves. She coughs worse when eating. She has been this way for quite awhile, but seems to be getting worse. She heaves at her sides, Is there any remedy.

B. S.
A.—Heaves is a possibility, but rare in cattle. In all probability, your cow has tuberculosis, which is incurable and contagious, and makes the milk danagerous for man or beast. Have the cow tested with tuberculin to make certain. Any trained veterinarian can properly apply the test.

COUGH.—I have been a reader of COMFORT for some time and could not do without its information. I have a nice milk cow seven years old, milking well and a very hearty eater. She has had a cough for several months, coughing worse when I feed her salt. I do not know any cause for it. Please advise me what to do.

R. W.
A.—In all such cases of chronic cough, we can only advise the application of the tuberculin test by a qualified veterinarian, as tuberculosis is to be sus-

then fatten her for slaughter. The disease is incurable at its present stage.

COUGH.—My parents have a cow which has a cough and which acts very much like a horse which has the heaves. She coughs worse when eating. She has been this way for quite awhile, but seems to be getting worse. She heaves at her sides. Is there any such thing as a cow having the heaves? Is there any remedy.

A.—Heaves is a possibility, but rare in cattle. In all probability, your cow has tuberculosis, which is incurable and contagious, and makes the milk dangerous for man or beast. Have the cow tested with tuberculin to make certain. Any trained veterinarian can properly apply the test.

COUGH.—I have been a reader of Comfort for some time and could not do without its information. I have a nice milk cow seven years old, milking well and a very hearty eater. She has had a cough for several months, coughing worse when I feed her salt. I do not know any cause for it. Please advise me what to do.

A.—In all such cases of chronic cough, we can only advise the application of the tuberculin test by a qualified veterinarian, as tuberculosis is to be suspected, and it is incurable, and contagious besides, making the milk dangerous for any use.

SWELLING.—I have a mare six years old. She has a swollen lump on the bone under her left eye. She making the milk dangerous for any use.

SWELLING.—I have a mare six years old. She has a swollen lump on the bone under her left eye. She had it last winter and I had her examined by three doctors, and they could not tell me what it was. She was all right during the summer months. As soon as cold weather came, the swelling appeared. Sometimes it gets larger, and then she will not eat. I had her teeth examined; they are in good condition. Will you tell me what to do.

A.—The tear duct may have become blocked and would cause such a lump and also a flow of tears over the cheek, or there may be a collection of pus in a sinus of the skull. Both conditions would require the services of a skilled veterinarian. We cannot suggest any home treatment that would help.

The Awakening (CONTINUED FROM PAGE 22.)

Mary Somers. What had he to offer any girl? The light he had that day seen in her eyes daz-zled him. Though he knew that the fight to give her up must go on, for this one hour he would Must it be always a dream?

Hardly daring to hope, Ellsworth worked on, and remembered.

· CHAPTER III.

CHAPTER III.

The tour of the Zouaves during the summer of 1860 was a series of triumphs. They defeated in turn all the smartest companies in all the Eastern cities. Hundreds of Zouave organizations sprang up in their wake. They acted as a leaven of interest in military matters. Ellsworth returned to Chicago the most talked-of young man in the country.

Here and there, as before, a harsh criticism might be heard, but his hidden enemy no longer thad the entire press to aid him. Ellsworth had won the newspapers.

New York he took by storm, yet in the mass of faces that stretched before him during the whirlywind drill, he watched for but one. Women split their white gloves in wild applause. There was an element in Ellsworth, in the vivid brilliancy of his look, in the swift and graceful energy of his bearing, which won to him both individuals and the masses. But the silent praise of one girl who sat motionless, almost breathless, shone into his heart:

He saw her only for a moment. The time of the Zouaves in any city was measured by hours, and the business of the tour took up almost the last free moment. In the whirl of events, he was grateful for even so little. Mary had dreamed of this meeting for weeks. She had planned all she would say. When the time came she said none of the glowing words of her thoughts. Later these came back to her with impotent insistence.

"But he knows, he knows without my words,"

"But he knows, he knows without my words," she comforted herself.

He had prophesied the truth when he said that he would read but little law that year. A more timely, a more vital question exercised his untiring energies. To the cause of Abraham Lincoln he devoted every fiber of his being. He campaigned through Illinois, speaking at the country towns, good-humored, straightforward talks, boyish yet convincing. Assured in his own mind of the result of the elections, he dreamed and planned of the great things that might be done for the army and the state militia. He was full of a project whereby the entire system could be

Though the strain was over, Edsworth worked incessantly during the whole winter with youthful prodigality of strength. To him Lincoln confided the preparations for the journey to Washington. That completed, and the inaugural ceremonies over, he discovered that he was worn out and ill monies over, he discovered that he was worn out and iil.

John Hay, who was now attached to Lincoln's personal staff, came to sit by his bedside one April afternoon.

"This is a fine way for you to act, Lieutenant," he chaffed. Ellsworth had already been given a commission in the regular army by the President, as a step toward his coming work in the War bepartment. "I told Mr. Lincoln what his commission had done for you, and he said if a slieutenancy could make you as sick as all this, he'd be afraid ever to let you get a higher rank. You're doomed, my boy."

"He may fear for my life," Ellsworth smiled wanly, "but he believes in my militia plans, at any rate."

"Here, you mustn't talk any more. I don't want a fever patient on my hands."

Ellsworth lay still for a time, looking with half shut eyes at the reddening western sky. Finally he spoke.

"War, John?"

"Yes, we all know it now."

"I have felt it coming for a long time, John. And it is going to be a long time, John. And it is going to be a long that struggle too. The country at large does not realize it yet, but the awakening must come soon."

They sat silent until Ellsworth spoke again. "You know I have a great work to do, to which my life is pledged: I am the only earthly stay of my parents; there is a girl whose happiness I regard as dearer than my own; yet I could ask no better death than to fall next week in defense of Sumter. I am not better than other men. You will find that patriotism is not dead, even if it sleeps."

When Hay brought the news that Fort Sumter had fallen, Ellsworth did not wait an instant.

"What are you doing?" cried John. "I heard the doctor fell you, with my own ears, that you must stay in bed for another week."

"There is work to be done."

"There is work to be done."

"There is work to be done."

"The going to resign my commission," declared Ellsworth, vainly trying to dress with his accusioned speed, but weak and unsteady from ill ness.

"Don't look so horrified. John. I'll warrant that from the President down, my plans will customed speed, but wear and illness.

"Don't look so horrified, John. I'll warrant that from the President down, my plans will have the approval of the authorities. I'm not going to run away. I'm going to get official permission to start for New York to recruit for volunteers."

TO BE CONCLUDED IN MARCH.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ½ oz. of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.—Adv.

31=Piece Violet Decorated Dinner Set

THIS OFFER NOT GOOD OUTSIDE THE UNITED STATES

For A Club of Only Sixteen We Will Give Any Woman This Beautiful High-Grade Dinner Set

Premium No. 46116.

High-Grade Dinner Set

This splendid set of dishes is full size for family use and consists of 6 Plates, 6 Cups, 6 Saucers, 6 Cereal or Fruit Dishes, 6 Individual Butters and large Meat Platter all handsomely decorated with clusters of purple wood violets surrounded with rich green foliage and bordered with lovely tracings of gold. Unlike the ordinary dishes that are usually offered as premiums, every piece in this magnificent set is (with the exception of the decorations) snowy white in color, dainty in design, light in weight and finished with a Haviland glaze which gives it that smooth, velvety appearance so much admired by every woman. The decorations will last a lifetime because being burned into the ware and undermath the glaze it positively will not wash, rub or wear off. Our illustration does not give you any idea of the real beauty of these dishes because it fails to show up the pleasing color combination of purple, green and gold which is so finely set off by the gleaming white of the ware itself. This is by far the handsomest, daintiest dinner set we have ever offered and we are positive that it will more than please every woman who secures one of them on the terms of our very liberal offer. No matter where you live (if it is not outside the United States), we will ship you this set direct from the pottery in Ohio by express or freight.

CLUBOFFER For a club of only sixteen one-year subscriptions to COMFORTAL 25 cents each we will send you this handsome 31-piece Violet Decorated Dinner Set carefully packed to prevent breakage, by express, charges collect.

Premium No. 48116.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Children's Happy Hour

The Uncle Sam Doll

Copyright, 1918, by W. H. Gannett, Pub., Inc.

HE little girl in the picture is Martha Rush. She is just as cute as she can be and does what her mamma tells her to nearly all the time, but some of her habits are not quite nice enough for such a dear as she is. Of course I don't blame Martha altogether, because she is so young, but I do think her mother ought to be a little more strict with her. Just imagine a girl of her size playing with a soiled wooly dog in bed and then running around the house without being fully dressed, on chilly mornings, too; why, it's perfectly ridiculous. That's Martha's worst fault. She's in such a hurry to get playing that she just doesn't care how she looks. The other morning when her mamma was brushing the snarls out of Martha's hair, the fittle dickens squirmed away and ran out of the black door and all the way around the house and then had to be coaxed in with candy. I think it's astful, but her mother just laughed and said: "Why, dearle, folks'll think your're a regular tomboy if you don't let me finish dressing you."

"I wish I was a boy," answered Martha, "and never had to wear stiff, clumsy old dresses."

Her aunt Julia was there, and she soothed her by saying: "When you come to visit me, honey, I'll let you wear boy's clothes if you want to."

This pleased Martha and she clapped her hands and cried out: "Oh, auntie when will it be. I'm swimming." But wait till I tell you what the prize was,—a regular boy's bathing suit. Doesn't that beat all?

prize was,—a regular boy's bathing suit. Doesn't that beat all?

Martha was as happy over it as you would be over a brand new dress with lace and embroidery on it, and early the next day she had it on and was in the water having a merry time.

A little boy came along and played with her for quite a while but finally he wandered off somewhere. His bathing suit was just like hers and his hair was the same color too.

Martha watched him till he was out of sight, then she sat down on the sand and presently she grew so drowsy-that she just curled herself up like a kitten and went to sleep. After some time a servant came looking for the boy for he had been away since morning. The servant was a new one and when he saw Martha asleep he thought it was the boy he was sent to bring home, so he gently lifted her up in his arms and carried her to the big house and put her to bed.

That night she woke up and began to wonder where she was. The wall paper and the bed and the carpet were strange and even the tick of the clock sounded different, and to make matters worse she was as hungry as she could be.

There was nothing else to do but cry, so that's

There was nothing else to do but cry, so that's what Martha did. Soon a nice lady came in, but when she saw a girl where her boy should be, she nearly fell in a faint. Of course our little friend expected to see her own auntie and when the strange lady picked her up she cried louder than ever. Just then the little boy ran in and wanted to know what was wrong. He had been sleeping in another room and did not know about the servant looking for him. Martha quieted when she saw film and soon the tangle was straightened out and she was on her way to her aunt's home. want to."

This pleased Martha and she clapped her hands and cried out: "Oh, auntie when will it be. I'm just crazy to!"

After that she kept teasing her parents until finally, during February, her kind aunt persuaded them to let her go and visit at the seashore. Yes, the seashore at Palm Beach, Florida, where it is so warm that they go in sea bathing all winter. This tickled Martha immensely.

On the night of Washington's birthday there was a tableau of children and she dressed like a boy in an Uncle Sam suit, and bless me if she didn't win the first prize for having the most appropriate costume. Yes, really she did. Everybody, even the judges, thought she was a boy, and when they gave her the prize they said, "Here, Tommy, have lots of fun tomorrow in safe again."

Cut-Out Doll Directions

Paste the whole picture on smooth cardboard and color them with crayons, chalk or water and rub with hands from the center towards the edges to press out all wrinkles. Use boiled flour paste. When neatly pasted put it in a big book for at least one day or night to dry. Next cut out each figure, hat and suit with scissors

Comfort Sisters' Corner (CONTINUED FROM PAGE 23.)

St.-Louis, 4332 Eichelberger St., Mo. Dear Mire. Wilkinson and Street I was not there by his side to help him. When we had a meat market, I cut the meat just as he did: I was not there by his side to help him. When we had a meat market, I cut the meat just as he did: In fact, we had two markets, and I had charge of in fact, we had two markets, and I had charge of mean of her country all say "give me the country girl raised by one of the South's dear old-fashioned mothers," and that the city girls know very little was time to say something in defense of the city girls. I was born and raised, in a large city, and I could not let such a slur pass. Seems to me, Arkansas sister, you know very little about the city people, or you would not make such a ridiculous remark.

There are just as many old-fashioned mothers may be read to be a slur pass. Seems to me, Arkansas sister, you know there was a live and a mental lives. She made it her business to see that we were always in good company, and taught us the many things a girl ought to know in caring for a home. So I don't see why we should not make suitable companions. Where do you suppose they all go-South for them? A little home of the girl is just as anatious to own as little home of the girl is just as anatious to own as inclusion of the city. I would show you thousands of little home of the girls is just as anatious to own and the suitable companions. Where do you suppose they all go-South for them? A little home of the city, rill and therefore know holesome food, and have gardens in which they girls. They keep their homes neat and clean, cook good wholesome food, and have gardens in which they girls. They keep their homes neat and clean, cook good wholesome food, and have gardens in which they will be contrained the country of the work of the will be contrained to the city. I would show you thousands of little home of the city report for the work of the country of the country of the proposed of the country of the

From This Ad →

Thousands will be sending for this bargain. It will be first come, first served. You may never again get the opportunity of getting such a wonderful value. We are only able to offer you such a value because of our large output, so set, but set quietly. This outfit must be ordered by your mother or father. Pill out the coupen and send it to is with $1,00\cdot 0.0 order. Also get our required. If no bargain bulletin of Men's, Woman's and Californ's clothing on credit.

Elmer Richards Co. W. 35th St. Chicago

Gentiemen: I enclose as a first payment, Please send the Girl's Outht, No. 5-20. $1.00 canh $1.55 monthly. Price, $5.56. Size.

If I am not estished with the Girl's Outht, I can return it and get payment back with all charges. Otherwise I will pay adverted by your mother or father.)

all and has never been sick since we were married. I weigh one hundred and fifteen pounds.

We have one child, a boy twelve years old, in the high school. He is taking a four years' general course, including the Spanish language. I am thankful to say that he has had no doctor since he was three years old and I think it is due to my careful watching.

I, too, am disgusted with the slow progress of Uncle Charlie's Home Fund. With the building material as it is now you could not build a home for less than $5,000.00. Lumber is sky high and so is brick. I make a motion that we give him a dime shower during this month. I am sure that the majority could afford that shuch. Just take an ordinary post card, and put the dime in the center, fold the edges over and stitch with a needle and thread so that the dime cannot slip out. Take a piece of writing paper and fold it the size of the envelope to be used, and put the dime into it, seal up your envelope, put on the stamp, and away goes our dime to help to increase Uncle Charlie's Home Fund. Now, sisters, let us get together and do this. The address is Charles Noel Douglas, Augusta, Maine, care of COMPORT.

Best wishes to all,

of COMFORT.

Best wishes to all, MRS. ED. TURCHECK,

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND SISTERS:

When I read Mrs. V. M.'s letter I was inclined to smile, for I think she is making a mountain out of a molehill. Sixteen years ago (I am now thirty-three years old), I married a man almost fourteen years older than myself. I, too, had been making my own way in the world and hag been for over two years, and am certain that I did not love him at that time. I had known him only about six weeks when we were married, after an engagement of a little over a month. I did not love him, although I could not help but respect him. He was a day laborer with no educations He had never been inside a schoolhouse. I did not, nor do I now, consider that a fault, but rather a misfortune. And as for his grammar, when we were first (CONTINUED ON PAGE 29.)

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 29.)

NEW MONITOR SELF- IRON

$30 to $50 a week actually being made now by men and women. The original—the best—the lowest priced. Nickle plated—looks good—makes good—sells fast—gouaranteed. No experience needed. Women do as well as men. Exclusive territory. Work all or spare time. Mrs. Nixon, Vt., sold 8 first half day. Evans, N. O., sold 2 doz. one Saturday. Liberal terms. Prompt Service. Write today.

920 WAYNE ST., BIQ PRAIRIE, 0.

FREE DIAMOND Just to advertise our famous Haw alian im. diamonds—the greatest discovery the world has ever known.

this left gold f. ring, set with a 1-2k Hawalian im, dismond—in beautiful ring box postage paid. If this is satisfactory pay Bostmaster St. Zio cover postage, boxing, advertising, hour expense and money refunded. Only 10,000 rings given away. Send no money. Answer quick. Send size of finger.

KRAUTH & REED, DEPT, 24, MASONIC TEMPLE, CHICAGO

AGENTS - MAKE $100 to $300 per month easy selling our new Triplicate Sauce Pan. Cooking utensi for 3 different foods on one burner. 400 Specialties—si which wind sellers. Write guick for exclu-sive territory and large catalogue. AMERICAR ALUMINUM MFG. CO. Div. H. T.

ALL THESE FREE

Sample Watch Free

J Phil sandschald engraved on back. Furthermole on disk, beavy B. B. style figures. Quantum numerals on disk, beavy B. B. style figures. To a local and set, fully GUARASTEKD for 5 YEARS, To a local and set, fully GUARASTEKD for 5 YEARS, To a local and the set of the local and the local an S YEAR

S YEAR

GUARANTEE

Guaran

Paint Artist's Box

For A Club Of Four

EARLY every boy and girl and many grown people, too, like to paint pictures of flowers, animal life, bits of scenery, etc.

To get the best results, however, you need a good set of colors like the one shown here. The box is 8½ inches long, 3 inches wide and made of black enameled metal. It contains eight regular colors in pans and ten moist colors in tubes, including Red, Yellow (two shades), Violet, Cerise, Green (two shades), Blue (two shades), Crimson, Lavender, Brown (two shades), Black (one tube and one pat), White, and Orange (two shades). There is also a good quality camel'shair brush 6½ inches long, two porcelain mixing cups and practical directions for mixing paints. Anyone who has a talent for drawing or painting should have one of these outfits because it is of good quality throughout and we know it will give the greatest satisfaction. You can have this Paint Box complete as described upon the terms of the following

For four one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each we will send you this fine Paint Box free by parcel post prepaid. Premium No. 7484.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine. MailaM

gotten wife

Once This Beauty Had Pimples

Stuart's Calcium Wafers Proved That Beauty Comes from the Blood and from Nowhere Else.

Prove This With Free Trial Package.

Plaster your skin all over and you'll stord breathing in an hour. There is only one way to remove pimples, blackheads, cruptions and eczema with its rash and itch, and that is by the blood.

In Stuart's Calcium Wafers, the wonderful calcium sulphide at meals serves to supply the blood with one of the most remarkable actions known to science. This is its activity in keeping firm the tiny fibres that compose even such minute muscles as those which control the slightest change of expression, such as the eyelids, lips, and so on. It is this substance which pervades the entire skin, keeps it healthy and drives away impurities. Get a 50 cent, box of Stuart's Calcium Wafers at any drug store and learn the great secret of facial beauty. A free trial package will be mailed if you will write the F. A. Stuart Co., 558 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

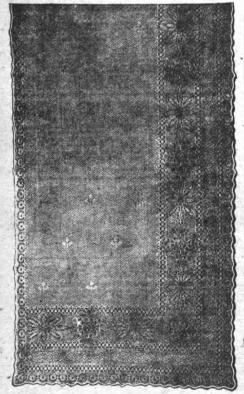

4 LACE CURTAINS SELL 8 BOXES ROSEBUD

at 25c per, box. A valuable house-hold article. Return the $2 to us and we will promptly send you d beautiful Notingham Lace Curtains, will fit largest windows, or choice from our big catalog of premiums. Rosebud is an easy seller. Write for it today. We TRUST YOU.

Lace Curtains

Nine Feet Long Thirty Inches Wide No. 4094

Premium

Given For A Club of Four

These Nottingham lace curtains are thirty inches wide and three yards long and are designed after the latest up-to-date pattern, with handsome wide border and firm well-finished edge. These beautiful curtains are suited to any room in your house whether it be parlor, sitting-room or chambers and there is an air of elegance and refinement about them which will dress up any home no matter how richly furnished it may be. We guarantee that every woman who accepts this offer will be proud of these curtains—proud of their real beauty and value and proud of the fact that she secured them without paying out one cent of money. We are now giving away these curtains free upon the terms of the following CLUB OFFER. Subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you one pair of these curtains free by Parcel Post prepaid. Or we will send you two pair for a club of seven one-year subscriptions, or three pair for a club of ten. Premium No. 4094.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Conducted by Cousin Marion

In writing this department always sign your true name and give your address. We print only fictitious names or initials, but we require true name and address for our own information so that we may answer by mail when, as often happens, we receive more letters than can be answered in this column.

ERE it is the second month of the new year and it doesn't seem more than a week ago that we drew up and signed our New Year resolutions. Notice, though, that I am not asking embarrassing questions about aforesaid resolutions—I really think my sixth sense, which, as you doubtless know, is tact, is rapidly developing. At least, I'm doing my level best to develop it, for I realize its importance. "Talent is something, but tact is everything. Talent knows what to do, but tact knows how to do it." Mind, I'm not saying a word against these good, plain-spoken sort of people, but we've got to admit that they ruffle our feelings dreadfully at times. I'm not advocating deceitfulness in the least, but I am a firm believer in the efficacy of tactfulness. Try it and see for yourself.

The first letter is from Peg of Ohio (though maybe she meant 'pig'') who has been engaged for two years and now her fiance wants her to marry him, but she doesn't "like the idea of giving up her freedoin," and furthermore the young man's work makes it necessary for him to live in another city, where he must room and board among strangers, and she thinks I will agree with her that 'such a life in a large city with only a limited circle of acquaintances is not very desirable"—for her own sweet self, she means. My advice is: Don't, with a capital D; for if you feel that way about it, you never can live up to the part of the marriage ceremony that reads: "You will love, honor, cherish and care for him, in sickness and in health, in prosperity and in adversity, and, leaving all others, you will cleave only to him, so long as you both shall live?' I'd release him from the engagement, if I were you, and let him find some girl less selfish than you who is willing to make him happy and comfortable and not regard it as a sacrifice. You want your happiness wrapped up in tissue paper, tled with ribbons and handed to you on a silver platter, don't you? I wonder wint you will do about it? Don't marry him unless you really want to, regardless of all I have said.

Betty, Thomaston, Ga.—''Why doesn't he propose?'' Goodness only knows. I don't. Perhaps you show of all I have said.

Betty, Thomaston, Ga.—''Why doesn't he propose?'' Goodness only knows, I don't. Perhaps you show too plainly that you want him to. Don't write to him every day, even if it is in answer to his letters, and see if that jolts him the least bit.

see if that joits him the least bit.

K. L., Oklahoma.—This letter is the very limit, and if it wasn't so pitiful it would be funny. Here's a woman of thirty-five who left her husband, even though he was kind and good to her, because she was taller than he was, and now she is "struck on a young man nineteen years of age" and wants to know whether to get a divorce and marry this Infant Wonder or go back to her husband and her thirteen-year-old son. And to think that such a fool woman should get a good husband! I don't think he shows very good judgment in being willing to take you back, but if he is kind and generous enough to forgive you, my advice to you is to hustle right back to him and spend most of your time making him happy and the rest of the time thanking God for such a husband. Incidentally, your son might need a little mothering. Console your youthful lover with a toy of some sort and he will be happy. Before long a younger and prettier girl will claim his love and you won't be eyen a memory.

Lonely Girl of Texas.—I greatly fear that you'll Lonely Girl of Texas.—I greatly fear that you'll be even more lonely than you are now if you, at seventeen, marry a man of forty-four. There is a time in nearly every girl's life when she is madly in love with a man many years her senior—I know all about it, you see—but it seldom lasts. Seventeen is too young to be married, anyway. Wait until you are twenty-one, and then if you want a husband 'most, fifty years old, I'll wish you joy and dance at your wedding.

A Waif, Bowie, Texas.—If you want to frighten Jimmie clear across the Rio Grande, you go right ahead and propose to him. Have patience. Maybe you don't love him as much as you think you do. How old are you?

Montana Kid, Montana.—If you were sixty-nine years old, crippled with rheumatism, and had false teeth, a glass eye and wore a wig, maybe Dame Grundy wouldn't have too much to say if you lived alone and entertained your men friends unchaperoned, but since you are young and pretty, don't do it; for the world—or the older and plainer feminine portion of it—will never forgive you. Don't you know of some companionable, elderly woman who would live with you? (2) Always thank everyone for every little favor, no matter if the other girls say it is childish. It isn't. (3) What a shame that your 'heavy, curly, gold-brown hair' tumbles in ringlets around your face and makes you look so young! If you feel so terribly about it, you might have it clipped off, but I don't think you will. I've known girls who felt 'just terribly' because they had curly hair. But thousands of others not blessed with the adornment with which nature has kindly favored you would envy you.

Three Chums, Delhi, Okla.—Here are three chums and all in love with the same fellow and want to know what to do to make him show which one he cares for most. Candidly, I don't think he cares so very much for any of you, but you might accept the attentions of three other young men and give this uncertain one a chance to think things over. (2) It certainly is wrong for a girl of sixteen, or any other age, to allow a married man to take her to places of amusement, even if his wife is away, and if he is, the right kind of a man he won't do it, any more than a girl will allow it if she is the right kind of a girl.

a girl.

Babe, Rockford, Ill.—Evidently you are all that your name implies, if you don't know that "get me" is a slang expression meaning "Do you understand?" (2) No, it isn't proper to ask a young man for a present—or anyone else, for that matter. (3) It is not only vulgar and silly for the young man to wink his right eye every time he meets you, but exceedingly dangerous; he should use his left eye once in a while and thus divide the strain. It would be a dreadful thing if he should wear his good right eye out.

Nellie, Clay Hill, Ga.—Forget all about both you mention and any others you meet, and pay strict attention to your studies for the next four or five years. Fourteen is too young for beaux, and your parents should know better than to encourage it, but it seems they don't, so it is up to you to show that you have better judgment than they have.

you have better judgment than they have.

Bunny Girl, Stoutland, Mo.—Most assuredly you should "quit" the man you love if he is "somewhat of a drunkard," but why force yourself to love another immediately, or have you just naturally got to love someone? Better take a vacation and rest up and then you can love all the stronger next time. (2) Yes, of course, go shead and use such words as "dearie," "sweetheart," and "honey" in your letters to men if you want them to laugh at you and call you foolish. Don't scatter your endearing words around so promiscuously, else you won't have any left when you meet the man. Let your motto be "Conservation."

An Indecided Friend Green Leaf Del—No. I don't

An Undecided Friend, Green Leaf, Del.—No, I don't think it right for cousins to marry. It is decidedly wrong, eugenically speaking, and it is forbidden by law in some states.

Skinny, Washington.—Courageous girl, to sign such a nom-de-plume as that. By all means, wait until the war is over before you marry your soldier sweetheart, if you are marrying him simply so he won't Dimples, Washington.—Don't, worry about being in love with a man who doesn't love, you, if you let another kiss you and still another put his arms around you. I am surprised that you allow such liberties. Your letter was very well written and I should think you'd know more. Some time you'll really love a man and he won't love you because you've cheapened yourself by kisses and caresses from other men. Please, little girl, don't do so any more.

Blue-Eyed Babe, Maryland.-How should you treat

Bue-Eyed Babe, Maryland.—How should you treat four fellows who spread molasses on your best friend's carriage seat? Unless there is a change for the better in the sugar situation, I'd treat them with the utmost respect and courtesy, and maybe they'd give you a jug of nice molasses. Seriously, my dear, it was a mean thing to do, and I'd forget they existed, if I were you.

There, all your questions have been answered, except a few that were too ridiculous to bother with, and I've tried to be nice to every one of you—and still be helpful—because I want you to regard each message as a little home-made valentine from me, and most assuredly I want this Saint Valentine's Day to be one of the best of the year for you.

Sincerely,
COUSIN MARION.

Gold plated Secret Locket and Neck Chain, Gold plated Pendant and Neck Chain, Gold plated Bracelet and 4 Gold plated Rings. 1918 designs, fresh from the factory. ALL Given FREE to anyone for selling only 12 piece of our Jewelry at 10c each. Write to-day. R. K. DALE MFG. CO., PROVIDENCE, R. I.

WRIST WATCHES

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM A tollet preparation of merit, Helps to cradicate dandruff. For Restoring Color and Beauty to Gray and Faded Hais 50c, and $1.00 at drummists.

If You Are A Woman Who Loves Crochet And Tatting Here Is A Set Of Books You Will Be Delighted To Own!

Any one of these books alone is a veritable treasure house of the newest, most beautiful designs. The seven books combined form a complete library in which you will find any pattern in crocheting and tatting you could possibly ask for You will fairly revel in the many handsome designs shown. There are edgings, beadings, insertions and laces for every conceivable use. The illustrations are actual photographs of the finished work and show every thread so plainly that they are almost as good to work from as the directions themselves. The directions are adapted for either beginner or expert. They tell stitch by stitch how each pattern is worked, also the quantity and size of material required and the correct sizes of hooks to be used. Following is a description of each book which is 8 by 10½ inches in size with the exception of Volume I which is 9½ by 12 inches. Please order by numbers and titles.

Volume 1 contains a beautiful assortment of envelopes, nightgowns, corset covers, etc.—fifteen all different, exquisite patterns superbly illustrated by photographs with complete directions for working including quantity and size of material required, and correct size of hooks to use.

Volume 2 is a real treasure book of hand-some crocheted edgings and in-sertions suitable for handkerchiefs, underwear, dresses and a multitude of other uses,—thirty-three different designs, all illustrated by photo-graphs with full directions including a complete table of all the principal stitches used in crocheting

Volume 3 tells how to crochet Cluny laces. It contains eighteen lovely patterns in Cluny insertions and laces for centerpieces, library scarfs, boudoir caps, corset cover yokes, plano scarfs, curtains, chemises, envelopes or combination suits. Each pattern is illustrated by an actual photograph and the directions for making are full and explicit, including quantity and size of material, and size of hooks required. This book also shows all the principal crochet stitches and tells how to make them.

Volume 4 contains twenty-five handsome patterns in artistic crochet for yokes, boudoir caps, candle shades, baby bonnets, bedspreads, doilies, library scarfs, pillows, centerpieces, portiere medallions, curtains, etc., etc. Complete directions are given for working each and every design, including quantity and size of material and size of hooks required. The illustrations are netural photographs, all the principal crochet stitches are also named and full instructions given for making them.

Volume 5 consists of twenty-five patterns in novelty crochet, including milea-minute and clover leaf crocheted yokes, primrose and sunflower yokes; doilles, centerpleces, boudoir caps, unique edges and insertions for serving trays; novelty-aprons and collars. Each design is illustrated by an actual photograph and the directions for working include a complete list of all the different crochet stitches, and how to make them.

Volume 6 is devoted entirely to tatting, Mal-tese and Irish crochet, containing a varied and beautiful assortment of tatted hand-kerchief edges, edgings, and insertions, tatted yokes, boudoir daps, towel edges, medallions; yokes, breakfast caps, centerpieces, edgings and lace in Maltese crochet and yokes in Irish crochet. The patterns are illustrated by actual photographs and the directions for making include the different stitches in tatting, Maltese and Irish crochet and how to make them, as well as quantity and size of material and size of hooks required.

Volume 7 shows a variety of thirty handsome crocheted designs each one illustrated by a photograph of the real work showing just how the finished pieces look. There are rose, sunflower, periwinkle, and Venetian yokes; boudoir caps, monkey face library scarf and lace pillow; large and small baskets, hat pin holder, jewel box, vanity tray, coin purse, utility bag, star fish doily, pineapple centerpiece; edgings and insertions in pillow lace; daisy edging; spider, bell, rick-rack, novelty and coronation braid laces. Full directions, accompany each design including quantity and size of material and size of hooks to be used, also all the principal stitches used in crochet and how to make them.

We advise you to order all seven of these splendid books before the assortment is broken, but if you do not care for the whole library at this time we have arranged the following special offers which give you the privilege of selecting any two or any four of the books as well as all seven of them. When ordering however, be very careful to state the number of each book desired.

Offer 8011: For one 1-year subscription (not your own) to COMFORT at 25 cents we will send you amy two books free by parcel post prepaid. Be sure to mention numbers of books wanted.

Offer 8552. For two 1-year subscriptions at 25 four books free by parcel post prepaid. Beaure to mention numbers of books wanted.

Offer 8013: For three 1-year subscriptions at 25 complete library just as described above-seven different volumes in all, handsomely bound, printed on high-grade paper and containing nearly 200 beautiful photographic illustrations of all that is new and pretty in crochet and tatting designs with complete directions for working. When ordering please be sure to mention number of each book wanted.

Address COMFORT Augusta, Maine.

Comfort Sisters' Corner (Continued Pron Pain 27) married I used to fell him when he made a very married I used to fell him when he made a very married I used to fell him when he made a very married I used to fell him when he made a very married I used to fell him when he made a very married I used to fell him when he made a very married I used to fell him when he made a very married I used to fell him when he made a very married I used to fell him when he made a very married I used to fell him when he made a very married I used to fell him when he made a very married I used to fell him when he made a very married I used to fell him when he was a very least and when he was a very least and he when a very least and the heavy married I used to fell him when a very least and the heavy married I used to fell him when he was a very least and the heavy married I used to fell him when he was a very least to fell him when he was a very least to fell him when he was a very least to fell him when he was a very least to fell him when he was a very least to fell him when he was a very least to fell him when he was a very least to fell him when he was a very least to fell him when he was a very least to fell him when he had a way to fell him when he was a very least to fell him when he had a way to fell him when he was a very least to fell him when he had to fell him when he was a very least to fell him when he had to fell him when he was a very least to fell him when he was a very least to fell him when he was a very least to fell him when he had to fell him when he had to fell him when he was a very least to fell him when he was a very least to fell him when he was a very least to fell him when he had to fell him whe

HIGHLAND, N. Y.

Dear Comfort Sisters:

As tomorrow will be wash day I will send along a few ideas that have helped me. I keep a pair of white wool gioves just for hanging out clothen in cold weather. I wash every dây except Sunday, not that I am so very neat but I have four small children and it is easier for me to wash a few things than so many in one day. I have to carry the water in and out of the house. While I am washing I put my clothespins in the warming oven and heat them quite hot before going out. All small pieces, like handkerchiefs, I fasten together, or pin them to a larger piece before going out into the cold.

I would like to get letters and will try and answer all i revelve.

Sincerely your sister reader. Mrs. F. W. MINNARD.

DEAR COMPORT SISTERS:

Not so very long ago I read a letter in our paper of a discontented wife who did not marry for love. She was afraid she was going to meet "someone" later ou whom she would love. I, when I was very much younger and sillier, thought I truly loved a man. He was in every way my beau ideal. Well, our romance didn't 'pan out' at all. So I made up my mind, having first read Rudyard Kipling's poem "De Vampire" that that was what I would become. I set about my task and married one of God's noblemen, really he was, but I didn't love him in the least. I was simply paying off my debt to all men Yor the way one of them had treated me. I didn't appreciate my husband's goodness and he worshipped me. Then I met another man who loved me too. In the first place it was only liking but I led him on. He was married. I broke his wife's heart and then threw him aside. In a year I woke up, or in other words I fell in love with my husband and I knew I had never loved the first man at all. Then I told my husband all, not shielding myself in the least. You will say, "It serves her right if he casts her off," but he didn't, he forgave me all my sin. So now I know what thrist must be like for I saw a small likeness of Him in my husband. We are very happy now. So this is my measage to all discontented wives—forget it: love your husband with all your heart, serve and honer him if he is worthy, unless you would know my sorrow. This confession really hurts but I am sending it in hopes it will help. Sometime I hope to be able to prove that I am not all had.

Best wishes to all the sisters.

EELANGER. KY.

DEAR MES. WILKINSON AND COMFORT SISTERS:

I think COMFORT is the best magazine printed and I enjoy every page from cover to cover—except the "fussing" letters. Sisters, why quarrel over which are better, city or country people? We are all children of the same dear God and one is of no more importance to Him than another. If we are not broad-minded enough to see both sides let's not write about it at all. I'm sure if Georgie had realized what strife she would cause by her letter she would not have written as she'did. Just-see what a few harsh words can do, sisters. I was born and reared, in the country but have honorable, refined friends in both city and country. We may search the world over and will always find both good and bad in every community, whether it be city or country.

Dear little M. B., may God bless and help you.

country.

Dear little M. B., may God bless and help you. am sure you have been more sinned against than sinner and if you will keep to your resolve "to be a lady from henceforth" you will finally live down your fail you.

Mistage.

fall you.

Wishing success to dear old Compost and Uncle
Charlie I will close by signing myself

A staunch friend of Compost.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND COMFORT SISTEMS:

I have just been reading your interesting letters but when I read Mary Heinsohn's letter I could keep silent no longer. You do not know what real country life is. Mary. I am twenty years old and have lived in the country all my life. There are six of us children at home and an older sister is married. We have a farm of one hundred and sixty acres and raise almost everything that can be grown in Arkanass. I work in the field and enjoy it. We have a fine peach orchard and I also, help there. We have a fine peach orchard and I also, help there. We have horses, cows, hogs and chickens on our farm, so you see we do not have to depend on sait pork for food as we are not so stingy that we do not have roast chicken and we don't go to a chicken supper for it, either. We have fine achoels here and while I do not attend school now, all of my sisters and brothers do. My father, older sister and I hold first-grade certificates. I have taught school three years. We have an Overland car and can go where we please.

Mary, I sinceptly hope when we hear from you again you will have learned more about the country and sweet country life and will be teaching those ignorant neighbors of yours.

Love to all,

SLICKFOO, IDA.

DEAR MRS. WILKINSON AND COMPORT READERS:
First of all I want to express my appreciation of

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 21.)

To turn heel, sl. the 1st st., k. to seam st., p. that; k. 5, sl. next st., k. 1, pass sl. st., over, turn, sl. 1st st., p. 11, p. 2 tog. turn *, sl. 1, k. 5, p. seam st., k. 5, sl. 1, k. 1, pass sl. st. over, turn, sl. 1st st., p. 11, p. 2 tog. and repeat from * till all the side sts. are in and 13 sts. are on Gussets. K. 13 sts. on heel, and pick up with same needle the loops along the side of the flap knitting each loop, knitting the sts. for the instep on to first needle. On another needle pick up the loops slong the other side of the flap and k. 6 or 7 sts. from top of heel. Then k. one row plain. On first foot needle k. 1, k. 2 tog., k. to with 3 sts. of the end of the second foot needle, k. 2 tog., k. 1, k. instep needle, then k. 2 plain rounds and decrease in same way again.

Continue these last three rows until the stitches have been reduced to the same number as were knitted round the ankle. Continue to knit until foot measures seven inches.

After purling seam st. k. one fourth of all the sts. in round; then turn, p. to seam st. and p. as many sts. on other-side of seam st. This will make one half of sts. with seam st, or needle and the other half on two needles.

On heel sts. k. 1 row, then p. 1 row, in turn p. the seam st. in the knitted row and slipping the first stitch in each row, for as many rows are there are stitches on needle. This is the

Have You Confidence in the Publisher

Watch the Womani

Do you think she is really working? Not a bit of it! Yet she is doing a big weekly washing. The real work is done by the 1900 Gravity Washer, which makes meet of its own motion. The thing that helps to make it go is under the tab.

If women knew what a wonderful help the 1900 Gravity Washer is, not one would be without it. It saves work and worry and doctor's bills. Taken away all the dread and drudgery of wash day. It saves soon, saves wear and tear on the clothes. Never breaks buttons or injures the most delicate fabrics, it pertainly does beautiful work.

Send No Money!

The Washer Pays for Itself

We'ask no cash in advance—no deposit—no notes. The trial is absolutely free. If you keep it, simply pay us a little each week, or each month, out of what it saves for you. pay us a little each week, or each month, out of what it saves for you. It, after a full month's free trial, you decide not to keep it, simply notify us to send for it. We will take it back without a word of complaint. The trial will not coet you appenny and will not place you under the slightest obligation.

of "COMFORT"?

Of course you have. For W. H. Gannett, Publisher of Confect, not only holds the key to over a million and a quarter of homes, but to the hearts of his readers as well.

The fact that you have such a high regard for the publisher of your favorite paper is all the more reason why you will be don't interested in a letter we have recently received from his wife. Mr. Gannett himself says that the helpfulness and good cheer that rades from the pages of Compost have much of their inspiration from her. Here is her letter, word for word, just as we received it:

Mrs. W. H. Gannett, Wife of the Publisher of Comport.

Writes that She Would Not Take $1,000 for Hor 1900 Washer AUGUSTA, MAINE, Nov. 2, 1208

The 1696 Washer Co., Bringhamton, N. Y.

GESTIFFEN -1 tell my friends I would not part with the 1.80 Washer for a thousand de lars. If works to perfect their washing my dottes as white and eclean as possible and dodge my washing very really and quickly. It begans the manifest came one of the lottest days of the year, and as no wash is common as late that day I thought it was a nice time for the to give it a good tria. I was earlied yeary happily surprised to find how quickly and carrier a large washing could be done without my getting so very tired. Thus I was a take for day washing home out my dottess and visit my friends out of the Cite at in the foreneous. At another time I strived home at ten o clock Monday me rating at a sine woman I had empased to bein my washing all done before used. The foreneous and I was able to get it washing all done before used, as the came to my resons and I was able to get it washing all done before used. It has saved the prace of the machine many times zod there is no what and tear on the oblifter washed in till way.

I am voluntarily writing you this letter hoping it will be the means of belying other house keepers to over once one of the difficulties and drudgery of washingly, for it they will only I IV, the flow Washer I know they will always use it, as I find It works just as well washing small linears as it does for heavy won blankers or best agreads and table it to. Hoping you will be able to place a 1900 Washer it wone to be selected and the care.

Yours very tooly. (Shaned) Mas. W. H. GANXATT.

How to Wash Without Work

Write for Free Book About the Wenderful Macher That Almost Runs itself

This Washer has a whirling motion and moves up and down as it whirls. No paddles or machinery inside. Yet it takes the dirt out so quickly that a tubbel is washed in six minuteral. Washes anything, from rugs to daintiest faces. Does it better than is done by hand or with any other washer. And actually pays for itself.

Women who have used the Washboard all their lives just rub. their eyes in amazement the first time they see a 1990 Washer at work. They exclaim: "Can it be true that it washes clothes clean in six minutes!". They take out the clothes when the six minutes are up, and sure enough they're white and clean, exactly as Mrs. Gannett says. You just ought to write and get one on Free Trial, so you can see for yourself.

Four Weeks' Washings Done FREE! Washers Shipped Everywhere on Trial

We pay the freight. We give you a genuine Free Trial. We don't ask for cash or notes. You get the Gravity Washer just to asking for it. An entire month's use of it of our weekly washings. FREE. This free trial will tell you more than we could in a page of this paper. How it saves backache and armache and perspiring over a straming tub, rubb ug the skin off your fingers. Thousands of women are now using the 1900 Gravity Washer. They tried if first int one risk. We simply sent the Washer and let it sell fixed? Send for the heautiful free book, "Washing a Tubful in 6 Minutes." This story of the 1900 Washer is of fascinating interest. You should read it. Address, The 1900 Washer Co., 1837 Court St., Binghamton N. Y. Or, if you live in Canada, send to The Canadian 1900 Washer Co., 356 Yongs St., Toronto, Can.

gussets half on instep needle, the other half equally divided on two foot needles. K. plain along foot needle, begin decreasing on 2nd needle. K. 8, k. 2 tog., and repeat all around, k. 8 rounds plain, k. 7, k. 2 tog., k. 7 rounds plain, k. 6, k. 2 tog., k. 6 rounds plain, k. 5, k. 2 tog., k. 5 rounds plain, k. 4, k. 2 tog., k. 4 rounds plain, k. 3, k. 2 tog., k. 3 rounds plain, k. 2, k. 2 tog., k. 2 rounds plain, k. 1, k. 2 tog., k. 1 round plain, k. 2 tog., all around.

Cast off remaining sts., break wool and fasten smoothly on wrong side. The foot should measure about eleven inches.

Next month illustrations and different meth-

Next month illustrations and different methods of turning heels and toes for socks will be

Be Careful in Using Soap on Your Hair

Dutch Heet

After purling seam st. k. one fourth of all the its. in round; then turn, p. to seam st. and p. is many sts. on other-side of seam st. This will less. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensedle and the other half on two needles.

On heel sts. k. 1 row, then p. 1 row, in turn b, the seam st. in the knitted row and slipping the first stitch in each row, for as many rows are there are stitches on needle. This is the lap.

Reand Toe

See that stitches are divided on a line with

A Clear Skin Or Money Back

20 DAYS' TRIAL

You really get benefit from Young's Victoria Cream or it will not cost you one cent. This wonderful cream will surely take away Freckles, Brown Spots, Pimples, Blackheads and will clear up your skin. Enough for 20 days with sample of Powder and Soap for 10 cents in silver and this adv. Send now and let us prove what we say. Large size at drug stores on same guarantee.

F. H. Young & Co., 32 Dorr St., Toledo, Ohio.

FREE

WRIST WATCH AND 10 YEAR GRARAUTEZ
Hem Wind, Pendant Bet,
Lesther Herap, Order 26 of our easy selling Art and Religious Piotures at 10c each.
When sold send us the money and elect your prise according to ser list. GAIR MFG. OO., Dept. 501, CHICAGO, ILL

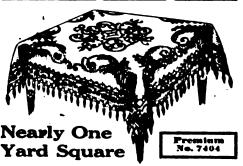

HAWAIIAN RING FREE Stone in matter of colors imachable. Bitte of real silver in the stone make A combination of colors beautiful is FREE A fine Take Camera and complete outfit, plates, chemicals, etc., with full instructions, Just sell 18 beautiful Art and Resignous pictures at special price 10 cle sects. (regular 25 st visics). All districtions of the plate of the pla GLOBE CO., BOX 11. GREENVILLE, PA.

lapestry lable Cover

Given For A Club of Four

A Law to Promote Ignorance Help Us Get this Stupid, Wicked Law Repealed

Read our editorial on page 2 and see Postal Zone Map on page 3. Then, if you favor a level second-class postage rate, one that will be uniform throughout the country regardless of distance, that will not favor some and discriminate against other localities, cut out the coupon below and paste it to the top of a sheet of writing paper. Thus it will serve as the heading to a petition.

Next fill in the date and the name of your congressman. If you don't know his name you can learn it from your postmaster. Then write your name and place of residence on the blank paper below the heading. Circulate the petition among your friends and neighbors and get them to sign, women as well as men.

Finally, mail the signed petition to your congressman at House of Representatives, Washing-

Cut this out and paste it to the top of a sheet of writing paper.

Date. 1018.

U. S. House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir:

We believe that the flat rate of a cent a pound for second-class postage has been of inestimable benefit by facilitating and promoting the dissemination of been of inestimable benefit by facilitating and promoting the dissemination of knowledge, and that the magazines, which by means of this low flat rate have been enabled to build up a nation-wide circulation spreading information to the remotest nooks and corners of the land, constitute one of the greatest, most unifying and beneficent educational forces in the country. We earnestly protest against grading second-class postage on any zone rate basis as being class legislation aimed against the magazines and an unjust sectional discrimination against the people dwelling in parts remote from the large centers of population.

Therefore, we respectfully request you to exert your influence and give your vote in Congress in favor of the repeal of the zone rate (before they take effect in July), and for making the second-class postage rate, thereafter as heretofore, one and the same, level and uniform throughout the Union regardless of distance.

RESIDENCES

THIS heautiful, fringed Tapstry Table Cover is nearly one which is a size large enough for any stand or amal lable and is very elaborately in ade up in handsome colors on an interworse have pup the may stand or amal lable and is very elaborately in ade up in handsome colors on an interworse any stand or amal fuble and is very elaborately in ade up in handsome colors on an interworse any stand or amal fuble and is very elaborately in ade up in handsome colors on an interworse any stand or amal fuble and is very elaborately in ade up in handsome colors on an interworse any stand or amal fuble and is very elaborately in ade up in handsome colors on an interworse any stand or amal fuble and is very elaborately in ade up in handsome colors on an interworse any stand or amal fuble and is very elaborately in ade up in handsome colors to color that harmonizes with the fringe one yate any stand or amal fuble and is very elaborately in ade up in handsome colors to color that harmonizes with the fringe of the any stand or an

Bell-ans

Absolutely Removes Indigestion. Druggists refund money if it fails. 25c

"EVERY FOWL A MONEY MAKER"-STEINMESCH. The secret of success is in making every Chicken earn money. My Book on Poultry tells how. Write for Free Copy. Address, HERRY STEIRMESCH Pres., 12 H. 4th Street, ST. LOUIS.

Wanted An Idea I Who can think of some simple thing to patent? Protect your ideas. They may bring you wealth. Writer or "Needed Inventions" and list of "Patent Buyers," RANDOLPH & CO., Patent Attorneys, Dept. 112, WASHINGTON, D. C.

Comfort's League of Cousins

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 14.)

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 14.)

and force us to sue for peace. This war is the last dying kick of divine right monarchs against the onrushing tide of world democracy. In this hour when every American, whether of foreign birth or not, and whether this is a war against the country of his birth or not (for he realized when he came here that a war against his native land was possible, and knew he had no right to come unless he was willing to defend his adopted land against all comers) should do his all, not merely his bit, if democracy and freedom are to live, and they must and shall live. If we falter now we go back to the dark ages, and Prussian brutality and bestiality, lust and frightfulness will scourge humanity and dominate the world. If we are conquered, Washington and Lincoln will be torn from their graves and their ashes scattered to the winds, and kings, princes and titled tyrants will lash our quivering hides with whips of scorpions. Ernest Graf knows this, and you too must know it. Humanity here will be put on the caps and crucified for the edification and amusement of blood-thirsty barbarians just as has been done in Europe.

BARNES CORNERS, N. Y.

Barnes Corners, N. Y.

Dear Uncle Charlie:

Like most American mothers I'm profoundly interested in this war, and deeply concerned about its outcome. I've always thought that if we lost this war it would be due largely to the activities of the enemies within our gates, who seem to be allowed to do pretty much as they choose. They have poisoned the minds of our people everywhere, turned them against their own country, turned them against everything and everybody except the Kaiser and his fiendish war machine. If our people had not had their minds poisoned, and knew what I know about this war, for I have loved ones in it, they would be bending every atom of their strength and energy in an effort to down the common enemy. In some cases the poison has gone so deep I fear nothing but actual invasion and the slaughter of their own kin would wake some of them up. Now some are waking up and want to know, and if we can get the truth into the hands of these people they can combat some of the lies of the traitors and spies who are doing such fiendish work. You are doing a wonderful work, Uncle Charlie. Thank God there is one magazine, good old Comporar, that is one hundred per cent American and willing to put its patriotism before its pocketbook. Won't you tell as where we can secure those pamphlets the Government is issuing about the war so we can combat the lies of our enemies, take the truth to those who have been deceived and put something in the hands of our school teachers that would help them to spread the truth in the schools, so that it can be carried home to the parents.

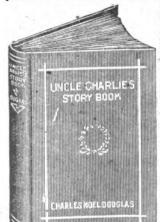

What Mrs. Murrock says is only too true. The

What Mrs. Murrock says is only too true. The national mind has been poisoned by our enemies and that poison must be met and combated or we shall be licked and subjugated right here at home without even one enemy soldier landing on our shores. Write to the Government Information Bureau, Washington, D. C., for war pam-

UNCLE CHARLIE'S LIFE & IN PICTURES

Uncle Charlie's Picture Book Good as a Visit to His Home

Visit Uncle Charlie in his famous chicken coop and see how he lives and works. Big, beautiful, full page, half-tone cuts equal to photographs, that show Uncle Charlie and his charming assistants Maria and the Goat in every phase of their busy lives. See Uncle Charlie sitting in a chair for first time in nineteen years, and get a peep at his big son, mother, school and church, school and church,

Uncle Charlie's Story Book

Full of the most delightful stories ever written. You will laugh one minute and cry the next or Help Wanted" the funniest story ever written. 160 pages of mirth and merriment, pathos and tears, illustrated and beautifully bound in silk cloth, siff covers, gold topped. Free for four subs at 25c. each—one dollar in all.

Also bound in heavy fancy blue paper covers for only two subs at 25c. each—fifty cents in all. Ideal birth-day presents. Comfort's greatest premium bargains. Work for them today. Secure one or both of these super bouvenirs of this remarkable man who devotes his time and talents to the service of humanity. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Note. Full particulars of how to secure Uncle Charlie's splendid poems and song book will be found at the end of the League of Cousins' Department.

phlets. Most of them are free; some of the larger ones cost a few cents. Now these are some of the free pamphlets you should write for to address given above. To combat those liars who say this war was made by Morgan, Wall Street and for the interests of Great Britain and other piffle, send for "How the War Came To America." This 32-page pamphlet is printed in German, Italian, Swedish and several other languages as well as English. "The President's Flag Day Speech, With Evidences Of Germany's Plans," and "President Wilson's War Message and Facts Behind It," are of vital interest. "The Great War" Series No. 4, is very helpfut, be sure and get it. Especially I beseech all those of German birth, German descent or German sympathies to send for "Pamphlet No. 6, On American Loyalty," written by citizens of German birth. Here is German truth from German lips, men who though loving the Fatherland, are heart and soul with America against the military monsters of Berlin, who have enslaved the people they love and made them their tools in their bloody adventures. The Government also gets out a very valuable pamphlet "The American Blind Spot," which shows the utter failure of the volunteer system in our military history. Try this on the slackers, the cultters and the pacifists and those who don't like the draft system because it forces cowards and soreheads to fight. Above all I want you to send two cents to the American Defense Society, 303 Fifth Ave., New York City, for "A Searchlight On Germany," by Dr. Hornaday. This is a 40-page booklet, written in simple, burning words for the man in the street, a pamphlet that will make the sleeplest American want to get up and fight and avenge his country's wrongs. All England haters, or those who want to make England haters, or those who want to make England haters look foolish, can by enclosing a stamp for postage, get from Geo. H. Doran Pub. Co., New York City, a splendid booklet entitled "The Character Of The British Empire." Doran has other valuable pamphlets on the war they w phlets. Most of them are free; some of the larger

League Shut-in and Mercy Work for February

"Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these ye have done it unto Me."

Written references from postmaster and physi cian must positively accompany all appeals from shut-ins. Appeals unaccompanied by written ref-erences will be destroyed.

cian must positively accompany all appeals from shut-ins. Appeals unaccompanied by written references will be destroyed.

Mrs. Laura Yow, R. R. I., Box 106, Stanfield, N. C. Widow. Unable to work. Has two small children to support. Very needy case. Give her a boost. Well recommended. Lulu Thornburg, Brunot, Mo. Helpless invalid. Unable to work. Send her a dime shower. John Robinson, 719 E. Adams St., Springfield, Ill. Sixty-seven years of age. Almost blind and afflicted with rheumatism and heart trouble. No means of support. Do not forget him. Mary Stafford, R. 3, Box 54, Vincent, Ala. Shut-in. Unable to work. Depends on the charitable for support. Send her some cheer. Mrs. Rosetta Craig, R. 5, Stuart, Va. Invalid. Has two small children. Would appreciate second-hand clothing and any assistance you care to send her. Mrs. Clara Crawford, Hartford, Mich., 71 years of age. Sick and penniless. Send her some cheer. Annie Arthur, R. 1, Box 63, Ona, W. Va. Invalid for many years. Needy and worthy. Send her a dime shower. Mrs. Mollie Burriss, Price, N. C. Shutin. Needy and worthy. Remember her. Mrs. Queenie Spencer, Spencer, Va. Invalid. Send her some cheer. Rebecca Whitfield, Finleyson, Ga. Invalid. Send some sunshine her way. Mrs. M. E. Glassbrook, Brace, Tenn. Eighty-seven years of age. Sick and helpless. Send her a greenback shower. Mrs. Ada Furnish, Klowa, Colo. Twenty-seven years of age. Crippled from rheumatism. Has three small children. Would be grateful for any help. Well recommended. Mrs. E. D. Stone, Holdenville, Okla. Great sufferer from rheumatism. Would appreciate letters from people who have been cured of similar affliction. No financial aid needed. Mrs. C. B. Merrick, R. R., Methuen, Mass. Invalid. Would appreciate outing fiannel pieces for patchwork. Also canceled stamps. Fred McKittrick, R. R. 1, Toney Creek, S. C. Invalid. Would appreciate outing fiannel pieces for patchwork. Also canceled stamps. Fred McKittrick, R. R. 1, Toney Creek, S. C. Invalid. Would appreciate outing fiannel pieces for patchwo

Uncle Charlie

Comfort's League of Cousins

Comfort's League of Cousins

The League of Gousins was founded as a means of bringing the scattered members of COMFORT'S immense circle of readers into one big, happy family. Its aim is to promote a feeling of kinahip and relationship ameng all readers. It was primarily started as a society for the juvenile members of COMFORT'S family, only, but those of more mature years clamored for admittance so persistently that it was deemed advisable to impose no age limit; thus all are eligible to admittance into our League provided they conform to its rules and are animeted by the child spirit.

Membership is restricted to COMFORT subscribers and costs thirty cents, only five cents more than the regular subscription to COMFORT which is included. The thirty cents makes you a member of the League and gives you an ittraptive continues of the League and gives you a member of the League and gives you and the continues of membership in your name in the letter its, also a crifficate of member will having your name in the letter list, also a continue and the continues are the continues and the continues and the continues are the continues and the continues are the continues and the continues and the continues are the continues and the continues are the continues and the continues are the continues and the continues and the continues are the continues and the continues are the continues and the continues and the continues and the continues are the continues and the continues and the continues are the continues and the continues and the continues and the continues are the continues and the continues are the continues and th and see him as an actor playing many parts. A beautiful interesting, artistic book 91-4 by 71-4 inches, 1ree for two subs. 1ree

How to become a Member

Send thirty cents to COMFORT'S Subscription Department, Augusta, Maine, with your request to be admitted into COMFORT'S LEAGUE OF COUSINS, and you will at once receive the League button and your membership certificate and number; you will also receive COMFORT for one year if you are a new subscriber; but if you are already a subscriber your subscription will be renewed or extended one full year beyond date of expiration.

Or, if your subscription is already paid in advance, you can take a friend's one-year subscription at 25 cents and send it in with five cents of your own, thirty cents in all with year bequest for membership, and we will expect to the product of the product of

Special Notice

Never write a subscription or renewal order or application for membership in the body of a letter. Write your subscription or renewal and membership application on a separate sheet of pater, separate from your letter. We have to put all subscription orders on our subscription file at once; so if it is written on the same sheet as your letter, the whole letter has to go on to the subscription file at once and thus can receive no attention from Uncle Charlie.

-

Never send subscriptions to Uncle Charlie nor to the Secretary of the League; they bother him and cause contusion and delay.

Address all letters to COMFORT, Augusta, Maine, and they will promptly reach the head of the department for which they are intended.

Uncle Charlie's Poems Will Make You Laugh, Scream and Yell!

This is exactly what they will do, and they are the best and cheapest medicine for the blues in the world. Only one in two hundred of our readers have availed themselves of the opportunity to secure this exquisitely beautiful 160-page volume of screamingly funny verse, bound in lilac silk cloth, free for a club of only four one-year subscriptions to Comfort at 25c each. This elegant book also contains splendid pictures of Uncle Charlie and his family and a touching account of his life. It contains, too, the funniest recitations ever written. It is a present fit for a king, and no home should be without it. If you won't get it for your-self, get it for your children and make them happy. Free for an hour's easy work. Start your subbing today.

Uncle Charlie's Song Book Is a Knock Out! The Best Ever!

A home without music is a home-without joy. Uncle Charlie's Song Book contains twenty-eight of the dandiest songs ever written, songs for church, parlor and concert platform. Here you have a great, big, beautiful music folio containing such gems of mirth and melody as "My Beautiful Queen of Dreams," "The Dream That Never Came Truc," "The Old Village Choir," and "Broke Again." Five dollars worth of music with full score for voice and piano, a splendidly gotten up folio with a handsomely decorated cover on which appears several pictures of Uncle Charlie, equal to photographs, and all free for a club of only two one-year subscriptions to Comport at twenty-five cents each. Both books free for a club of six. Work for them today.

Rat Skins Marketed

Rat Skins Marketed

In England and in India rat skins have become a commercial article and may be readily marketed. They are manufactured into purses and trimmings for furniture, gloves, belt parts, book binding material and various other articles of use and adornment. The value of the skin depends largely on the manner in which the rodent met its death. If shot or killed in a manner that punctures the skin it cannot be used, and if a plague or epidemic visits ratiand, which frequent. happens the industry wanes for a long time. Whole hides, free from laceration or holes or worn spots are the only kind that can be sold and these can only be secured in large enough quantities to pay by professional rat catchers. One good that might come out of the utilization of the skins, is the impetus it would give to the campaign against the pests. This has grown to be a matter of public welfare in cities, because scientists have proven that the nocturnal prowlers are carriers of disease germs and a menace to the health of the communities they infest.

Agents wanted to sell glasses. Send for catalog.

See The Wonders Of War Through The "Pan-Chro Scope"

Magnified, Life-Like Views Of Scenes And Events Of The Great War Taken With The Camera! Look At The Views Through The Scope And See Things As They Really Are-Not As You Imagine Them To Be!

THOUSANDS upon thousands of our young men have left their homes for the battle fronts in France. The mothers, the battle fronts in France. The mothers, wives, sisters, sweethearts and children left befrind are anxious to know something of what is to be seen and endured by these loved ones who have gone bravely forth to join the fight for humanity, justice and freedom. Newspapers, magazines and the "letters home" are eagerly read and re-read—but it remains for the "Pan-Chro Scope" to show things as they really are. The Pan-Chro Scope takes you direct to Belgium and France and shows you the actual scenes just as clearly as if they were happening before your very eyes.

Fascinating As Motion Pictures!

deck of an American warship;—the next moment you are "somewhere in France" looking into a trench where an anti-aircraft gun is working;—next you find yourself among the barbed wire entanglements in "ao man's land;"—again you are watching fierce house-to-house fighting in a captured town. Belgian field rartillery in action on the firfing line, and many other scenes, of actual warfare just as interesting and exciting. Of course you read about these things in the papers, in the magazines and in the letters the "boys" write home, but after all how little you know about what really happens.

Magical In Its Effect Upon The Mind!

The Pan-Chro Scope enables you to follow the boys "over across" with your eves—on the firing line and behind it—you can see what they do and where they go. The different views take you direct to Belgium, to France, or wherever the place may be, and show you the scenes just as plainly as though you were there yourself. One glance through the Scope and you find you have a real picture—an image—in your mind that will never be forgotten. Henceforth you will read every newspaper and magazine article about the war with a new interest—an understanding never before experienced.

Interesting! Instructive! Educational!

The Pan-Chro Scope should be in every COMFORT thome. It will prove a constant source of pleasure and instruction to every member of the family.

Boys and girls attending school should have one. It will enable them to visualize modern history with the show war as it really is. We will seel you will one with a set of forty-eight views if you will accept the following accept the following.

CLUB OFFER. For four one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each you are the complete the complete the following accept the following accept the following to complete the following accept the following to complete the following accept the following to complete the following the following to complete the following to comp

This Lad's Mind Is In Far-Away Belgium He is looking into a trench. One soldier is operating an anti-air-craft gun; another is feeding it with a ribbon of shells; a third, through field glasses is observing the effect of the bursting shells. This is only one of the If you have ever been to the "movies" and watched the magnificent spectacle of a fleet of Uncle Sam's huge battleships under full speed—or a thrilling infantry charge "over the top"—or gazed upon the melancholy ruins of a Belgian village—then you have some idea of what you see when you look at the same scene through the Pan-Chro Scope, only of course the objects are stationary—not moving.

The Pan-Chro Scope is a new invention—something like the stereoscope, but larger and more powerful, being fitted with twin stereo-lens of wonderful magnifying power. The war views are taken with a specially constructed double lens camera. One the back of each view is printed a complete and accurate description of the scene represented. You place the view in the Scope, adjust the focus to fit your eyes, and immediately you find yourself face to face with an astonishing lifelike scene that resembles a section of a moving-picture film. One moment you are on the deck of an American warship;—the next moment you are on the deck of an American warship;—the next moment you are on the deck of an American warship;—the next moment you are on the deck of an American warship;—the next moment you are on the deck of an American warship;—the next moment you are on the deck of an American warship;—the next moment you are on the deck of an American warship;—the next moment you are on the deck of an American warship;—the next moment you are on the deck of an American warship;—the next moment you are on the deck of an American warship;—the next moment you are on the deck of an American warship;—the next moment you are on the deck of an American warship;—the next moment you are on the deck of an American warship;—the next moment you are on the deck of an American warship;—the next moment you are on the deck of an American warship;—the next moment you are on the form of the barbed wire is feeding it with a ribbon of shells; a third, through field glasses is observing the effect of the bursting shells. This is only one of the 48 War Views only one 48 Views Free With The Scope!

New views for the Pan-Chro Scope are constantly coming out and we have made arrangements to send you a set of forty-eight views free with the Scope. Think of it! Forty-eight genuine war views—all different. Among them you will find such scenes as:
In a British Camp in France.
Deep Trenches Bitterly Contested in Battle of Deep Trenenes Entreis Vypres.

Marine Guard Drilling on Battleship Iowa.
French Military Camp Near Rheims.
Barbed Wire Entanglements Protecting German Trenches.

Allied Soldiers Firing From Trenches and Periscope in Use.

Allied Soldiers Firing From Trenches and Periscope in Use.

Aboard the "Brooklyn"—Looking Aft From Forward Bridge.

Anti-Aircraft Gun Being Worked in a Trench. Fighting the Germans House to House.

Beigian City Leveled to the Ground by German Bombardment.

Beigian Field Artillery on the Firing Line.

Crew and Great 12-Inch Guns of U. S. Battleship "Missouri."

And many other scenes just as interesting and exciting—forty-eight of them in all.

Send for a Pan-Chro Scope today! Entertain and instruct yourself and family with these realistic war views right from the camera—views that show war as it really is. We will send you one with a set of forty-eight views if you will accept the following

CLUB OFFER. For four one-year subscriptions

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine

GROCERY Save money.

MUSIC LESSONS FREE

At Your Mome. Write today for our booklet. It tells how to learn to play Piano, Organ, Violin, Mandelln, Guitar, Banjo, etc. Beginners of advanced pupils. AMERICAN SCHOOL OF MUSIC, 15 Labelds fidg. Chicago

FREE LARGE EASTMAN Premo Film Pack Camera, for selling 25 beautiful pictures or 25 pkgs, post cards at 10c each. Order choice today, Sent, prepaid. GATES MFG. CO. DEPT. 625 CHICAGO

BIC Lever Action Air Riffe Proc for selling 25 pkgs. Art and Re-ligious Post Cards at 10c. Past Sellers. UNIVERSAL SUPPLY GO., Dept. 102, Lewiston, Maine. FREE

BIRTH STONE RINGS FREE 14K Gold filled, guaranteed to give FREE satisfaction, with stone for any mount, to introduce our catalogue. Sendi 12c to cover that of advertising and mailing. Send size Engisteeriery Co., Dept. 50, East Boston, Mass.

Large List, Dialogs, Enter tainments, PLAYS Catalogue Free Enter tainments, PLAYS T. S. DENISON & CO., Recitations Drills, PLAYS Catalogue Free Enterpolity

Premium No. 4576 FOR A CLUB of six

Here is an Alarm Clock that you can depend upon—a clock that will keep good time all the time and having a patent shut off alarm which will never fail to ring, the same company which manufactures the famous "Big Ben" which is advertised and sold throughout the entire civilized world. This clock stands over 6 inches high, full nickel plated, and has a 4-inch dial with large Arabic numerals. It will run twenty-four hours on one winding. The movement is the best American made, including frictionless pivots, self-centered wheels and hard steel pallet escapement. It is a clock which we can heartily recommend, in fact, we would not offer it as a premium if we were not positive that it will give the best of satisfaction. You can have one of these guaranteed Alarm Clocks, and it will not cost you one cent, by accepting the following special Club Offer. For a club of only six one-year subscriptions to COMPORT at 25 cents each, we will send you this Alarm Clock exactly as described free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premisum No. 4576. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

3-Piece Silver Service

Premium No. 7239

This handsome silver set of three pieces consists of a Sugar, Creamer and Tray, each piece plated with pure coin silver, gold finish inside, and war-ranted to wear for years. The Creamer is of the pare cells silver, governments of the ranted to wear for years. The Creamer is of the elegant design shown in above illustration nearly two inches high and 2½ inches in diameter at top, with a beautiful floral decoration engraved on the side which does not show in the picture. The bottom is plain and bright polished the sides and handle are flushed with the frosted effect which is so much admired by everybody and top and handle are heavily beaded. This same description also applies to the Sugar which is of the same good size and fitted with two beautiful beaded handles instead of one. The large and handsome Tray is 61-2 inches in diameter plated with pure silver, plain and bright polished. We know that every lady or girl who receives this set from us will be simply delighted with it celves this set from us will be simply delighted with its susefulness it is certainly a beautipolished. We know that every lady or girl who re-ceives this set from us will be simply delighted with it for aside from its usefulness it is certainly a beauti-ful ornament for dining table or sideboard. Better order one of these sets right away for yourself or to give as a present to mother, sweatheart, wife or slater. She will most assuredly appreciate it. We will send you this set, consisting of Sugar, Creamer and Tray on the terms of the following

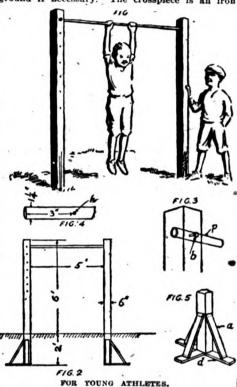

A Corner for Boys

By Uncle John

HIS month brings us the anniversary of the birthdays of Washington and Lincoln, the two greatest men America has ever produced. They not only served their 'country gloriously by bringing it safely through the perils which threatened its existence in their times, but by their wisdom, patriotism and force of character raised the ideals of humanity the world over. In the present crisis we can do no better than look to their teachings for guidance and their lives for inspiration. The great principles of liberty, justice and mercy, for which they contended so strenuously in their day, are eternal and unchangeable, the same now and forever. They loved peace and hated war, but worse yet they abhorred oppression and were willing to suffer any calamity of war rather than accept peace with dishonor and submission to oppression. It is against an equally dishonorable form of oppression that our country and its allies are now fighting in the world war. I hope you boys will read in this number the story of what France did to help us in our war for independence.

Turning Pole

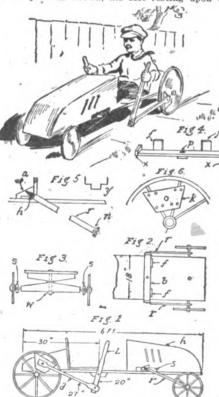

The turning pole is perhaps the oldest and most popular of athletic oewices. In this plan the posts are six by six inches and eight feet long. At least two feet should be underground. Fig. 5 illustrates the method of bracing the base to keep the posts rigid. The pieces "a" and "d" are three feet lengths of scantling. They are firmly spiked to the upright. It is some little trouble to dig a hole large enough to receive this flaring end but it must be solid. If possible set it in concrete and allow two weeks for hardening. Other braces may be placed over the ground if necessary. The crosspiece is an iron pipe of the size marked. Note in Fig. 4 that a hole is bored three inches from the end of the pipe to receive the boit "b" in Fig. 3. This keeps the pipe from turning. To make the device adjustable, holes are placed three inches apart. In one post they go all the way through and in the other one half way. To lower the pipe you remove the boit "b" and pull the pipe through the hole and insert it in the one underneath. The adjustability of the bar permits you to try a greater variety of stunts and makes the turning pole a veritable outdoor gymnasium.

A Hand-Power Racer

This wagon is propelled by working hand levers back and forth and is steered by manipulating a crossbar with his feet. The rider must sit in the position shown, his feet resting upon the

RARE SPORT FOR THE BOYS.

sister. She will most assuredly appreciate it. We will send you this set, consisting of Sugar, Creamer and Tray on the terms of the following Club Offer. For a club of nine one-year subweill send you this Sugar, Creamer and Tray free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 7239.

Address COMFORT. Augusta, Maine.

Bar, which is shown in Fig. 4. The heels press against the blocks "f, f." The center bolt or pivot which permits the bar to move is marked "p" and the end blocks to which the steering rods are attached are marked "x." Fig. 2 is a top plan view of the entire steering mechanism. The main part or crosspiece is marked "b;"

the heel rests "f, f;" the rods which run from the ends of "b" to the axle "r." The rods are of wood, preferably buggy spokes. Fig. 5 clearly illustrates how they are attached. The letter "r" is the rod itself; "n" is the notched end which fits over the axle; "h" is a hinge joint which allows the bar to move forward and back. Fig. 3 is a picture of the front wheels, to which the steering gear is attached. The letter "s" is an end view of the rod bolted to the axle, by means of the joint "n." A one fourth inch bolt three inches long is used for each one. The boit "w" is eight inches long and three fourths inches in diameter.

The drive or power levers are seen in Fig. 1. Shape two buggy spokes like "a" and "L." Drill three one fourth inch holes at the points shown. Leave the end hole until you have otherwise completed the double lever and tested it for length. You can then bore right through the spoke and the block attached to the rear wheel at once. Fig. 6 is a detail of the double one inch block bolted to each of the rear wheels.

The hood in front is for appearance sake only. The sides of it are made of wood and the curved top of sheet metal. Fix it up to look like an auto and paint it accordingly. The power wagon when finished is strong and reliable, the idea is simple and the work easy. In coasting, the drive levers can be used as brakes.

Puzzle

Divide this orchard into four equal parts with a different number of trees in each part and no dividing lines touching any.

Indoor Game

buckeye tree and told your part-ner so; the lat-ter would name

THE ORCHARD.

ter would name
a half-dozen
wrong species in order to puzzle the listeners, and then using exactly six words would say,
"Well, now, is it a buckeye?" If you are closely noting the number of words used, you will know at once that it is, and much to the surprise of the company will say, "Why, certainly." The one asking the questions must be careful not to use six words in any of the preliminary queries. This little trick is amusing and will puzzle folks who seem to be keen in solving mysteries. Never, inder any circumstances, divulge the method of discovering the right answer, and occasionally change the number of words in the key question.

Permutation

When a certain teacher attempted to size a class composed of 10 boys, she found to her surprise that they were all the same height. As it was considered an honor to be first, she told them she would permit one to have the place one day and another the second day and so on until all possible ways of arranging them were exhausted. Some of the boys thought this would take a month, some said a year, but when they asked the head professor to figure it out he told them it would take exactly 3.628,800 days, or in other words 13,000 school years. This principle of mathematics is called permutation. To find out how many different ways any number of things can be arranged, multiply all the terms together. In the case cited, multiply 1x2x3x4x5x6x7x8x9x10, which gives the answer above.

Try to earn and save some money to buy thrift stamps. To do so will help you as well as being a patriotic duty to help your country to win this war. Ask your postmaster or rural mail carrier for the stamps and for full information about em. Good by, and be good boys 'til we meet again. UNCLE JOHN.

The Modern Farmer

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 18.)

pigs should come strong and find plenty of milk for their sustenance.

Brought to the farrowing time in this desirable condition, given a clean, dry bed in a sanitary place and handled daily so that the sow will not fear man, there should be no need for pig forceps, but the attendant should refrain from feeding the sow for 24 hours after farrowing, should merely allow laxative, tepid drinks and should see that a wide board is spiked to the wall around the pen at such a height that it will protect the pigs when they get under it to avoid being laid upon by the sow. Only the cross, nervous, constipated, unprepared sow eats her pigs. Loss from that vice will largely be avoided by the treatment we have prescribed, but if any sow starts killing her pigs, let her have all the salt she will take. That often stops the trouble and it is better than feeding salt pork. Prevention is far more important.

Given the right start, the pigs should do well and develop quickly, if the sow is allowed her freedom with them, on clover, alfalfa, rape, rye or other green stuff, and if, in addition, sweet skim milk and meals are allowed. Stunting of pigs starts with poor feeding and care of the pregnant sow and is made certain and disastrous by inadequate feeding throughout the nursing period and after weaning of the pigs. Keep the pigs growing fast from "the word go." That it is made cheapest while pigs are growing fast during the first few months of life.

The Questions and Answers constitute one of the most waluable features of this department and we urge our larmer

The Questions and Answers constitute one of the most valuable features of this department and we urge our farmer subscribers to read all of them carefully each month, as you will find that they contain much useful information and advice on practical problems that are troubling you as well as those who have asked the questions. Gut them out and paste them into a scrapbook for future reference. This will save you the trouble of writing us and will avoid delay in getting your answer when you need advice on these same matters. We are glad to receive inquiries from our subscribers and to advise them on all matters pertaining to farming.

Questions and Answers

ALCOHOL FROM SAWDUST.—I have just read in COMFORT an article entitled "Alcohol from Sawdust." I would like to ask if alcohol can be made successfully from peat soil (which is all vegetable formation), and just where I could obtain full and detailed information concerning how to manufacture same.

A. R. Est Jacksonville, Ore.

A.—Write the U. S. Forest Product Laboratory, Madison, Wis., for detailed information relative to the manufacture of alcohol from hawdust. We do not believe that any effort has been made to make alcohol from peat. So far as we know the experiment is yet to be tried. Possibly some wood alcohol might be ob-tained by the destructive distillation of peat, as it is from wood in the process of making charcoal, but we doubt the possibility of obtaining ordinary alcohol (grain sicohol) from peat.

doubt the possibility of obtaining ordinary alcohol (grain sicohol) from peat.

CRAYTISH, MOLES, CARRAGE WORME.—Please tell me how to rid my garden of crayfish and moles. I would also like to know what can be used successfully, other than Paris green, to destroy cabbage worms—something to use when the cabbage is so large that Paris green would be dangerous to use.

A.—Moles can be caught in a "mole-trap." There is no poison for cabbage worms that is not dangerous to human beings if eaten. Arsenate of lead is a good poison, but sticks closer than Paris green and is quite as dangerous, if not more so. We have been told by some gardeners that they successfully destroy cabbage worms on large cabbage by sprinkling the cabbage worms on large cabbage by sprinkling the cabbage worms and leaves with common sait dissolved in water. We have never tried this, but it is such a simple remedy that it might be tried out first on a few plants without much trouble. We are unable to give a remedy for the crayfish nuisance.

PEACH TREE GUMOSIS.—Several of our peach trees exude gum and the peaches do the same, and the peaches do not grow to any size. Is there any remedy for it?

A.—Gumosis, is usually caused by injury of some sort to the bark of the tree or the skin of the fruit. The bite or sting of an insect may be sufficient. There is no remedy except prevention. Little peach is a disease not fully understood. Both these conditions are helped by promoting a more healthy growth of the tree by cultivation and the use of fertilizers.

A Peculiar Farm .

A mountain cave which is, in effect, a huge cellar, is the site selected by a Western man for agricultural experimenting. The unvarying temperature, the balanced state of humidity and the absence of light, greatly favor the growth of some kinds of vegetation, and with proper selection of plants and fertilizing it was bound to prove a success, which indeed it has done. The first work was to clear away the salty deposit left by vanished oceans, then on the hard limestone, compost was spread for a seed bed. Mushroom spawn was broken up and scattered and almost without care it matured and produced an abundant crop of the much-prized fungus. Next, celery and rhubarb plants were set in and they prospered prodigiously, the average growth of the latter being one inch a day. Another use to which the cave was put was that of a storage plant. It has every advantage which men try in vain to put into such plants and so admirably suited to the work did it prove that now farmers many miles away are using it. There are many caves in this country, but most of them are too cold or too inaccessible to be employed as plant incubators or public cellars either.

GRAY HAIR BANISHED

Kolor-Bak positively guaranteed to restore your gray hair to its original color. Not a dye or stain. Cures dandeuff in two applications, stops falling hair. Harmless, colorless, stainless. Pay nothing if it falls. Write Kolor-Bak Products Co., 68 West Washiagton St., Dept. 253, Chicago, for free book and positive proof.—Advertisement.

Whose Little Girl Wants

Cutest, Sweetest Baby Doll in Toyland and You Can FREE!

Have Me

Have Me

YEN, this beautiful, curly-haired doil is free to any little girl and on such liberal terms that we expect to give away thousands of them during the next few months. Don't think she is anywhere near as small as she looks to be in the picture for she stands over a foot tall. She has a real kid
body and her beautiful bead is almost indestructible because it is made of bisque. You can make her stand up or sit down in a chair, or bend over or tall. She has a real kid
body and her beautiful
body and her beautiful
body and her beautiful
hody and her beautiful har hangs in Ruxuriant curis, her eyes are blue as the sky, and taken altogether she is certalialy the cutest and sweetest baby doll in all toyland.
With exception of her handsome black openwork lace stockings and cunning little slippers with bow and buckle she comes to you undressed so that you can make your own dresses for her and dress and undress her to your heart's content. Fathers and Mothers just look at this beautiful doll in the picture as she stands smiling with arms outstretched waiting for someone to pick her up, hug her, kiss her and put on her gay little dress! Don't you think your own little girl would love to have her for her own? We will send her to you free packed in a strong box so she cannot possibly get broken if you will accept the terms of the following special

Club Offer. Serimions to COMFORT at 30.

Club Offer. For a club of six one-year sub-cents each, we will send you this handsome Doll exactly as described by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 4666. Address COMFORT, Augusts, Maine.

F. B. WARNER CO., Dept. C. T. 98 Chambers St., New York

10 WAR SONGS FOR 10c

THIS AIR RIFLE FRE

Full Size Bedspread

For A Club Of Ten

Premium No. 73310

A nice looking bedspread is a source of joy and a satisfaction to every good housewife. Sherelizes that it adds the finishing touch to the bed and dresses up the whole room. We have been offering the spread shown here for several years and it has never failed to please. Pure white in color, made of extra quality material, in a handsome figured design with deep bordered edge, and when carefully arranged on the bed it presents a very pleasing appearance. It is full length and width and therefore large enough for any standard size bedstead. We will give you this handsome white bedspread on the terms of the following.

Club Offer. For ten one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you this white bedspread free by parcel post prepaid. Premium No. 73310.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

The Family. Doctor

So many inquiries are received from COMFORT subscribers concerning the health of the family that this column will be devoted to answering them. The remedies and advice here given are intended only for simple cases; serious cases should be addressed to physicians, not to us. Address The Family Doctor, COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

NOTICE.—As the privileges of this and all other departments of COMFORT are for subscribers only, no attention will be given any inquiry which does not bear the writer's correct name and address. Initials only, or a flottique name, if requested, will appear in the published answer, but the inquiry must invariably be signed by the writer's

W. C. P., Iva, S. C.—The loss of voice may be due to hysteria, paralysis of one of the vocal chords—so that they do not approximate sufficiently for phonation—or some small growth on one or the other chord sufficiently large to prevent speaking aloud. The first condition should be treated by suggestion and cold douches to the spine, with gentle massage of the larynx. The local application of electricity also would be beneficial in either of the first two causes mentioned—using the galvanic current only. Any other condition must necessarily have competent medical assistance. The removal of growths from the larynx is now accomplished with ease and without discomfort to the patient.

Farmer's Wife, Oklahoma.—You may have an intramural fibroid tumor of the uterus, or you may have delayed involution of the womb after confinement, or a falling down of the womb after confinement, or a falling down of the womb due to being torn at labor, causing congestion, back-ache, etc. Tonics, operative procedures of some kind may be useful. You should not nurse your baby after the return of your menstruation as your milk lacks quality and the baby will not grow or thrive on poor milk.

"Old Timer." Calvert, Montana.—Your trouble is undowledly secalled urticatis. You should regulate "Old Timer," Calvert, Montana.—Your trouble is undoubtedly so-called urticaria, You should regulate your diet at once. Give up red meat and eggs. Eat green vegetables, fruit, and above all drink plenty of good spring water—not less than two quarts a day. Baths are of course useful, especially baths containing Epsom salts, one pound to the bath. Also the use of ordinary bran mixed in with your cereal.

Mrs. M. R. D., White City, Kansas.—Try putting some lycopodium in your stockings. A drying powder, not too fine, will sometimes work wonders in such cases. Undoubtedly change of climate has had much to do with your condition.

M. A. P., N. Pemona, California.—Keep your hands out of dish-water and use raw linseed or olive oil as a daily lubricant, as well as a cleanser for your hands. So-called cold cream will also do good especially if the cold cream contains a small amount of lanolin.

E. F., Victoria, Texas.—From your description, your shortness of breath is undoubtedly diatetic, as your physician evidently thinks. You should see to it that your constipation is remedied, your diet limited to those foods that agree with you and drink plenty of water. Use no pastries of any kind, but eat good ripe fruit and green vegetables, always leaving the table before your appetite is fully satisfied.

Mrs. H. D. S., Bend, Oregon.—Your symptoms point to a neuritis of the intercostal nerves. In other words to a neuralgia of the nerves located between the ribs. Sometimes large doses of quinine sulphate will relieve the condition. It should be combined with a good calomel purge.

Mrs. G. R., Plainville, Kansas.—You undoubtedly have several adhesions following your operations. Massage, electricity, and regulation of your bowels, with the addition of high-up enemas of some saline might relieve and perhaps cure you. These, however, should be done under the advice and care of your physician only. only.

only.

J. K., North Middleton, Ky.—Try a hot salihe bath at night, with massage of the hands and feet just before retiring.

Miss L. H., Canton, Miss.—You probably mean the Bulgarian Bacillus, used for modifying milk. This can be obtained of any good druggist. Your dry skin may be due to the lack of fats in the system. Try using cod-liver oil after meals in small doses.

Try using cod-liver oil after meals in small doses.

Mrs. May V., Lisbon, Ohio.—As we have noted several times in COMFORT, your trouble is neuralgia of the intercostal nerves, and not lung trouble. A good tonic would benefit you. This you can get by consulting your local physician.

Mrs. C. R., Nielsville, Minn.—You are a 'bunch of nerves' and magnify everything. Give up doctors, take good out-of-door exercise every day, eat digestible food, drink good spring water, give up your tea and coffee, and add a spinal douche, before you retire, as described often in COMFORT. Try, in other words, good hygienic treatment, and above all forget your many symptoms and imaginary troubles.

R. E. F., El Dorado Springs, Mo.—Your trouble

R. E. F., El Dorado Springs, Mo.—Your trouble may be of malarial origin, or due to the need of glasses. You should have your eyes examined by a good specialist las a beginning. Maybe this will be the one thing needed to correct your trouble, if not correct your crouble, if not the one thing ne cure you entirely.

Mrs. L. L. R., Roark, Mo.—Maybe your irregular menstruation is due to chronic malaria. Child-birth should have helped you if not cured you. You may have some displacement of the uterus which needs attention. Would advise the employment of some good local doctor, and operation if necessary.

D. H. R., Newark, New York.—You should consult a good doctor, and have him put you on a good aftipruritic diet, even going so far as keeping you on rice with milk and water for a time. Try this exclusive diet and see what it will do for your inchese itching. Add also when retiring a good hot bath to which is added a pound of baking soda.

W. O., Portersville, Cal.—You should go on a strict to which is added a pound of baking soda.

W. O., Portersville, Cal.—You should go on a strict diet. Omit all foods of the starchy variety as well as sugar, and pastry of all kinds. You should exercise daily. Take long walks, drink plenty of water. Hot vaginal douches also will be beneficial, especially combined with a teaspoonful of table salt to the quart of water. Possibly your appendix is at fault. Consult some good surgeon and if the appendix is at fault have it removed at once. Of course observe all the ordinary hygiente measures, such as quent bathing, looking after your teeth, etc.

observe hit the others, looking after your teeth, etc.

Mrs. R. R. S., Dolores, Col.—Your trouble is intense introspection, and no doubt many of your troubles are imaginary or directly due to your mental attitude. You should observe all the rules of hygiene, as to care of your tody. Eat only such foods as agree with you and are acceptable, never forcing your appetite. Get engaged in some activity or sport that will build up your physical condition and will lead you for the time being at least to forget your troubles mental. Cold baths are salways indicated and should be used as described often in this magazine. You are not exercising enough to make the skin active and thus relieve your kidneys. Drink more water and omit tea and coffee. Hygiene, exercise and the control of your mind by the ways indicated will cure you.

E. C. M., New York.—Some stages of consumption

E. C. M., New York.—Some stages of consumption are curable, but the treatment in a given case must be left to the skill and experience of the doctor immediately in charge of the given case. Pains in the chest may or may not have some significance. They may be simply of neuralgic origin. But-pains with slight cough plus temperature at times during the day with loss of weight, means more than pains without the accompanying symptoms mentioned.

F. F. Waunakee. Wisconsin.—You should be very without the accompanying symptoms mentioned.*

F. F., Waunakee, Wisconsin.—You should be very thankful that you have your father with you after passing through with such a condition as you have described. You evidently know the usual diabetic diet, but after the loss of a limb from gangrene, we should advise an ordinary diet free however from too starchy foods. The pain in the stomach might be relieved by the ordinary mustard plaster, or the use of the turpentine stoupe. A few drops of turpentine sprinkled on a fiannel cloth wrung out of very hot water. Let him eat little and often, and above all insist on his drinking a lot of water—at least two quarts a day.

Do You Like Good Books?

Look At The Titles. They Are The Greatest Most Popular Stories Ever Written By American and European Authors!

Augusta J. Evans Vashti Infelice A Speckled Bird At the Mercy of Tiberius

Beulah Inez Macaria

G. A. Henty

G. A. Henty
The Young Buglers
The Young
Midshipman
With Lee in Virginia
Orange & Green
By Sheer Pluck
True to the Old Flag
In Times of Peril
In Freedom's Cause
Jack Archer
For the Temple
By Pike and Dyke
By Right of Couquest
Dragon and the Raven
For Name and Fame
Among Malay Pirates
Bonnie Prince Charlie
Ouida

Ouida Under Two Flags Guilderroy Donovan

Emma E. D. E. N. Southworth

A Beautiful Fiend Brandoff Coyle's Wife A Deed Without a Name The Bride's Ordeal

Fair Play
For Whose Sake
For Woman's Love
Fulfilling Her Destiny Gloria Her Mother's Secret How He Won Her A Leap in the Dark

A Leap in the Lilith The Lost Heir The Lost Lady of Lone Love's Bitterest Cup
A Mysterious Marriage
Nearest and Dearest
A Noble Lord
A Skeleton in the Closet

Sweet Love's Atonement

The Test of Love To His Fate The Trail of the

The Unloved Wife An Unrequited Love When Love Commands When Shadows Die Why Did He Wed Her Why Did He Wed Zenobia's Suitors Changed Brides Bride's Fate Cruel as the Grave Hidden Hand Capitola Ishmael Self Raised Tried for Her Life
A Second Wife
Mystery of Dark
Hollow

Deserted Wife Allworth Abbey

Mrs. L. T. Meade Mrs. L. T. Meade
A Sweet Girl Graduate
A Gay Charmer
A Young Mutineer
A Ring of Rubies
A Bevy of Girls
A Very Naughty Girl
A Girl in a Thousand
Betty of the Rectory
Betty a School Girl
In Time of Roses
Good Luck
Light of the Morning
A Modern Tomboy
The Palace Beautiful
Red Rose and Tiger
Lily
The Rebellion of Li²¹
Carrington
A Madcap
The Girls of Mrs

The Rebellion of Little Carrington
A Madcap
The Girls of Mrs.
Pritchard's School
Bad Little Hahnah
Four ou an Island
The Children's Pilgrimage
The Girls of St. Woodes
The Children of Wilton Chase
The Manor School
Miss Nonentity
Girls New and Old
Girls of the True Blue
Out of the Fashion
Turquoise and Ruby
Polly
A Little Mother to
A Bunch of Cherries

A Bunch-of Cherries The Temptation of a Live Latimer Bob and The Duchess Lawrence J. Leslie

The Rivals of the Trail With Trapper Jim in the Northwoods Caught in a Forest Fire Lost in the Great Dismal Swamp
In Camp on the Big Sunflower
The Strange Cabin
on Catamount Island

Capt. Alan Douglas

Capt. Alan Douglas
The Hickory Ridge
Boy Scouts
Pathfinder, or the Missing Tenderfoot
Woodcraft, or How a
Patrol Leader Made
Good
Camp Fires of the Wolf Patrol
Endurance Test, or How Clear Grit Won
the Day
Great Hike, or the Pride of the Khaki
Troop
Margaret Vander

Margaret Vander-

Mary J. Holmes

Aikenside Cousin Hugh Cousin Maud Darkness and Daylight Darkness and Daylight
Dora Deane
Edith Lyle's Secret
English Orphans
Evelyn's Mistake
Family Pride
Homestead on the Hillside

Leighton HomeMaggie Miller
Marjon Grey
Mildred, or The Child of Adoption
Millbank, or Roger Irving's Ward
Miss McDonald
Rector of St. Mark's
Rosamond

Rosamond Rose Mather Tempest and Sunshine Lena Rivers Meadow Brook

Rosa N. Carey For Lilias Heriot's Choice Only The Governess Aunt Diana Averil

Horatio Alger, Jr. Rupert's Ambition Hector's Inheritance

Hector's Inheritance Andy Grant's Pluck In a New World Julius, The Street Boy Luke Walton Driven from Home Mark Manning's Mission Paul Prescott's Charge

Joe's Luck Sam's Chance Shifting for Himself The Store Boy Slow and Sure strive and Succeed
The Telegraph Boy
Tom Temple's Career
Tom Turner's Legacy
Tom, the Bootblack
Wait and Hope

Try and Trust
Young Acrobat
Young Adventurer, The Young Outlaw
Walter Sherwood's
Probation

Probation
Bob Burton
Risen From the Ranks
Tony the Tramp
Sink or Swim
Young Salesman Struggling Upward Mark Mason's Victory Jed, the Poorhouse Boy Facing the World Erie Train Boy Andy Gordon The Young Bank

The Young Bank
Messenger
The Red Cross Girls on the French Firing Line
The Red Cross Girls in the British Trenches
The Young Bank
Messenger
The Young Bank
Messenger
Frank Hunter's Peril
Lester's Luck
A Boy's Fortune

Frank and Fearless Digging for Gold Charlie Codman's Circus

Miscellaneous Try Again, by Oliver Optic

Miscellaneous
Try Again, by Oliver
Golden Heart, by
Charlotte M. Braeme
In the Golden Days,
by Edna Lyall
Won by Waiting, by Edna Lyall
Kidnapped, by Robert
Louis Stevenson
Ten Nights in a Bar
Room, by T. S. Arthur
Old Myddelton's
Money, by May Olil Hay
Arundel Motto, by May
Oldl Hay
Oldl Mam'selle's Secret,
by C. Marlitt
Gold Elsie, by C. Marlitt
The Minister's Wooing,
by Harriet Beecher
Stowe
Airy Fairy Lillian,
by The Dutchess
Arabian Nights by Anon
The Pleasures of Life,
by Sir John Lubbock
Oliver Twist, by Charles Dickens
Old Curiosity Shop,
by Charles Dickens
Robinson Crusce,
by Daniel Defoe
John Halifax,
by Miss Mulock
The House of Seven
Gables, by Nathaniel
Hawthorne
Marble Faun, by Nathaniel Hawthorne
A Terrible Case,
by Etta W. Pierce
A Terrible Temptation,
by Charles Reade
Twenty Years After,
he Alexander Dumas

by Charles Reade

Strongheart, by F. R. Burton

Club Offer. For three one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each we will send you any one book in the above list free and prepaid. When ordering be sure to write plainly the title of each book wanted.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine. The demand for these books has been so great that a few titles which appear in the above Hlustration are now out of stock and we cannot furnish them. Please make your selections from the printed list of titles only.

This pretty band WEDDING RING GIVEN for five WEDDING RING names of your neighbors and ten cants to pay postage &c. Gom City Supply Co., QUINCY, ILL.

ENSTRUCTIVE & POPULAR BOOKS ENTERTAINING Arlar's Jukas - 10; 75 Nat. Songs with Moste 10s Assatswr Elect. Islan - 16; 150 Parodice Jatest Songs 10s Astrology Made Easy 10s Astrology Made Easy 10s Eastern 10s Electron 10s Electro congratulated on your cook, Lady Levallion. I never ate better chicken done with almonds than never are better chicken done with aimonus than this."

The Girl He Loved

(CONTINUED PROM PAGE 12.)

"I hope you won't get tired of it," she returned. "Levallion is so fond of almonds. He arranges the dinners, you know. I should have roast beef and plum tart, he thinks—and so I

Lord Chayter thought she looked as if she lived on peaches and cream, but he did not say so, for something caught his attention.

"Do you never have the blinds down in this room?" he inquired suddenly. "Oh, I see, there are none. But don't you think it's rather uncanny to look over the table and candles and things, and the ladies' pretty frocks, to those blank, dark windows? It makes me feel creepy," frankly. "As if ghosts might be peering in!"

"We never use this room when we're alone. The windows must be a fancy of Levallion's. I don't see very well how we could have blinds on them."

For the state dining-room was on the ground floor in the oldest part of the castle, and the windows were sunk deep and narrow in the six-foot wall which slanted away from them till each foot-wide window-glass made the apex of a wide supple V.

"I should!" said Lord Chayter, who was fat and fair and screw-up eyed. "Makes me nervous. Now look, just opposite us! Couldn't you swear some one was looking in? though, of course, it's all fancy."

Lady Levallion's glance followed his and grew suddenly startled. For, though it was gone in an instant, even as she looked at it, there had been something like a white face, like gleaming eyes, pressed to the window-pane of the embrasured window.

window.

"There, you see! Though it's either imagination or a gardener's boy," said Lord Chayter.
"Don't look so frightened."

"I'm not frightened." quietly, "but I think you're right. Those blank windows make the room uncanny. I'll have something done to them tomorrow," but like lightning her thoughts had flown at the sight of that face against the glass to the strange woman who had come to inquire for Adrian; though there could be no earthly connection.

nection.

"Let her look!" she thought contemptuously.

"She won't see much to please her. And not a soul in the house knows anything about Adrian and me, and that's all I care about." Quite unconscious that Tommy and the duchess suspected what Sister Elizabeth knew; and that every wind that blew, every hour that passed, was pushing her nearer to the greatest horror any woman can face.

"Screens would do it," refurned Lord Chayter serenely, turning some attention to his dinner, and determined to drop a hint to Levallion. For there were windows on both sides of the big room, and it seemed a coincidence that if any one had looked in they should have chosen the side behind and not facing Lord Levallion's sharp eyes. He gave the subject what he considered a happy turn. "Captain Gordon looks pretty shaky! He ought to be careful, if he prefers earth to heaven," he observed. "Better keep him here and let some of these charming ladies take him in hand. He wants a course of petting, the platonic kind, you know!" Ravenel caught the duchess' eye, and rose thankfully.

wants a construction of the duchess eye, and those and build a niver in the stand coal and the fire will not slip down.

"Any one on earth to nurse me rather than you!" Adrian had said. But her punishment would be more than she could bear if she must stand by and see any of these women do it. She utterly forgot that white phantom face at the dark window.

"To Clean White Felt Hat. (Requested).—Mix a cup of gasoline and three tablespoons of corn-starch to a paste and rub on hat. Keep gasoline away from fire.

"CHAPTER XIX."

And yet it was not such a phantom, after all! Inside were women in satin gowns, sitting at their ease among lights and flowers and frivolous talk. Outside in the damp chill of the autumn rain stood another woman, raising herself uncomfortably to the level of that unblinded window. Cold to the bone, sick with envy and despair, she saw the lighted room as at the stage of a theater where she should have been among the actors, but had been cast out into the pit.

Read The Whole Story Now!

will hold you entranced to the very end. It is a wonderto the very end. It is a wonderful story by a wonderful writer.
Regular installments will appear in Comport each month
but you needn't wait in order to get the whole story as we will give you free the complete story in book form splendidly printed in a handsome colored paper bound edition. Send us
only one one-year subscription
(not your own) to Comport at 35 cents and we will send you a copy of the book free by mail postpaid. Don't wait for the installments. Read the whole story now by accepting this offer at once. story now b

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Ob, the sight, and the rain; What a fool shad been to come out in her house dress without a markintoni; the would be wet to the and shad been to come out in her house dress without and shor raised hereaff on tiptee on the stone territory. The stone of the come in the stone territory of the stone of the come in the stone territory of the stone of the come in the stone territory. The stone of the come in the stone territory of the come in the stone in embroidered skirts for every day, but just one for best. I have three baby blankets.

Comfort Sisters' Corner

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 29.)

This may not sound nice enough for some but I wish you could see my baby clothes. They are prettier than a great many I have seen and they keep baby warm and clean and are not burdensome. My motto is,—have plenty but waste nothing.

My youngest has nainsook dresses with allover embroidery yokes. I use quits a lot of lace edging and insertion for trimming. The little dresses do not cost more than twenty-five or thirty cents apiece.

Thanking everyone for the help I have received from their letters, I will close, Mrs. E. C. Hawley.

Best Ways of Doing Things Around The Home

Nails dipped into soap will drive easily into any ard wood.

To remove smoke from mica plates in stoves, wipe with a cloth wet with vinegar or alcohol.

To polish nickel on stoves, take cold wood ashes and add enough water to make a paste. Apply with cloth and when dry polish with a soft woolen cloth. Make a partition of bricks across middle of grate in stove and build a fire in one end. This will save heat and coal and the fire will not slip down.

If rose-water and glycerine is too strong for the face, use equal parts of witch-hazel and glycerine.

Apply after washing and wiping face and hands.

MRS. HELMA PASO, Lake Norden, S. Dak.

If silverware is washed quite frequently in hot soapsuds in which a little pulverized borax has been dissolved, and then rinsed in clear boiling water, it will not require so much cleaning with powders or silver polish.

An excellent way to keep mashed potatoes hot for anyone late to dinner is to place the pan in a larger pan of hot water and set it on the store. Cover. They keep hot and are still moist and light.

MRS. C. T. REESE, Trego, Md.

MRS. C. T. REESE, Trego, Md.

To MEND PROKEN CHINA.—The the broken parts together with stout string, being sure that the edges meet evenly; then completely submerge the dish in a pan of skim-milk and place on back of stove to gently simmer all day. Ho not remove from the milk until thoroughly cold and even then don't cut the string for another twenty-four hours. Hot water will not cause the pieces to come apart again.

MRS. L. F. AFFOLTER, Neskowin, Oregon.

Requests

Cure for milk leg. How to make vinegar of lemon peetings.

I would like to get pieces of cloth for quilts.

MRS. M. M. ELLIS, Beaumont, Texas. How to restore a white sweater that has been washed in too warm water to its former fluffy pretti-

Mrs. Ella Kyle, Wood River, Ill., would like to correspond with people in small towns having no newspaper.

Would like to know the whereabouts of Jacob Frizzell, or any of his children. Last heard of in Okolona, Ark. His niece, Mary L. Anderson, 108 So. 6th St., Alhambra, Calif.

New Feather Beds Only $6.50

New Feather Pillows $1.25 per pair. All new, clean san-thary Teathers. Best ticking. Write for illustrated catalog. SOUTHERN FEATHER & PILLOW CO., Dept. 201 Greensbore, R. C.

140 Egg Incubator $7.25
The Pieneer Hatcher of Quality made by expects of El years' yap. Heap better other The Pienser Hatcher of Quality made by capacits of Expense qual. Need better at any price. Double sydwood walls, dead air space, capper tast, self regulator, safety lamp, high navery. Miscet smap is and depubly and to prearly F. A. Roubert insubator Feetory, No. Manket

LEARN MUSIC

Music no longer difficult!
New plan makes it easy to learn by home study. Positively easier than with private teacher. Faster progress. You will be able to play your favorite instrument in a few short monthal More than 200, 000 men, women and children have learned by our method. You, too, can learn in your spare time.
We guarantee it.

Lessons FREE

We want to have one pupil is estimated to all the street our home study method. For short time, therefore, we offer a marvelous leasons FREE. On Louise Bowles, Epworte, Va., writes; Re-ceived my teachers cur-tificate. I high-by recommend weekly. Heghners or advance weekly. Heghners or advance yould. Write for amazing free book giving all the facts and per siculars. Send a poetal today!

Beacon FREE

Lights Your Home Like Day.

100 Candie Power Incondescent pure white light from (kerospe) cod

Oil. Beats either gas or electricity.

COSTS ONLY 1 CENT FOR 6 BOURS
We want one person in each locality to whom we can refer new customers.

Take advantage of our Special Offer to secure a Beacon Lamp FREEL, Write today. AGENTS WANTED.

WOMEN! -- DRESS WITHOUT COST

and earn a little spare money as well-simply by showing your friends and acquaintances a beautiful, illustrated portfolio of 100 charming New York styles in women's outer apparel. No investment required. For complete information address BECKETT VALUE CO., 141 PIFTH AVE., NEW YORK.

THREE Crochet and Embroidery
BOOKS FOR 18 CRNTS. Address,
J. F. Ingalls, Lynn, Mass. Box B.

How Many Words Can You Make ANDEOYRS

This pussle is a sure prise winner—absolutely everyone in this club wins a prise. It is not hard, either—just a little ingenuity and skill). The pussle is to get as many words as possible out of the letters betweith given. Use only the letters given and only as many times as they appear in this ad. For instance, the letter Y appears three times, so in all your words are you must not use Y more than three times. It you use Y twice in one word and once in another, you cannot use Y in any other word, as you have already used it as many times as it is appears in this advertisement of the content of the content was a statistic problem. The purile looks easy and the period with in the content of the content in the given looks easy wins "word building and prise content in connection with our big introductory and advertising campaign and want to send you assample copies and full particulars as to how you can become a member of this content club and share in the $100 00 in gold and the other valuable premiums. We give 100 votes in the content of the content we will give $00.00 in gold; to the second lighted $90.00 in gold; to the third highest $18.00 in gold; to the second lighted $90.00 in gold; to the third highest $18.00 in gold; to the second lighted $90.00 in gold; to the third highest $18.00 in gold; to the second lighted $90.00 in gold; to the third highest $18.00 in gold; to the second lighted $90.00 in gold; to the third highest $18.00 in gold; to the second light and the close of the content we will give $00.00 in gold; to the second light and the close of the content we will give $00.00 in gold; to the second light and the close of the content we will give $00.00 in gold; to the second light and the close of the content we will give $00.00 in gold; to the second light and the close of the content we will give $00.00 in gold; to the second light and the close of the content we will give $00.00 in gold; to the second light and the close of the content CAPPER CONTEST CLUB, 615 Capper Building, TOPEKA, KANSAS

WE GIVE THIS WATCH

For a Club of Six

Thirty Minutes is a short time, but many have earned one of these watches in less time than that. It is one of the very best watches for time ever oftered to our readers, no matter what the price asked for it. We know, of tourse, there are watches that cost more money, because they are in gold or silver cases, but for practical everyday use they are no better timekeepers. This watch does not keep perfect time, we never saw the watch that did, but it keeps as near perfect time as watches usually do. We have such faith in this watch as a timekeeper that we send with every one a guarantee just as binding as that given with any watch, no matter what make. We are willing to give you this watch if you will do us a slight service, which you can easily do in an hour. We wish to increase our subscription list, and we want the assistance of every reader of this paper to that end. We do not want you to do it for nothing, we will reward you for it. You can easily secure this valuable watch if you will accept the following

Snecial Offer

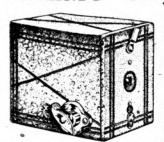

Special Offer. For only six one-year subscriptions to Comport at 25 cents each, we will send you this handsome guaranteed watch free by parcel post prepaid, Premium No. 7266. Or for seven one-year subscriptions we will send you the watch and a fine chain to go with it. Premium No. 7247.

Address COMPORT, Augusta, Maine.

Stylish

Club Of Three

PREMO CAMERA

Pure White

Bleached

Towels

Prem. No. 7193

For a Club of Six!

We will also include free of charge one Six Exposure Roll Film Cartridge and a complete Instruction Book, therefore you can depend upon it to produce the most pleasing and satisfactory results. It takes a picture 11-4 by 13-4 inches, is fitted with the best quality Meniscus lens and an automatic shutter adapted for snap shots and time exposures. The pictures may be taken either the long way or the short way of the camera. It uses the regulation roll film cartridge containing six exposures, and this may be put in the camera and taken out again in broad daylight, so that you don't have to go into a dark room every time you want to load the camera. Anybody can make good pictures with this camera. Being small and compact it is just the thing to carry with you to "snap" pictures of your friends, sports, etc., with. And remember, we send you not only the camera itself but also include One Six Exposure Roll Film Cartridge and Instruction Book, all packed together in a strong box and sent to you Free by Parcel Post, prepaid, on the terms of the following special

Club Offer. For a club of six one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you by Parcel Post, prepaid, this Premo Camera with one Roll Film Cartridge containing six exposures and complete Instruction Book. Premium

No. 7286. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Fine Shaggy Teddy Bear

FOR A CLUB OF FOUR!

EVERY little boy and girl wants a Teddy Hear and here is an opportunity for every father or mother who reads COMFORT to get one without expense. "Teddy" looks exactly as you see him in the picture above. He is a shaggy fellow, 10 inches tail, made of brown plush, paws lined with felt, carefully stitched and finished and his head, arms and legs are jointed in such a manner that you can place him in almost any position. He will stand up, sit up, stand on his head, go on all four feet, in fact, you can make him assume all kinds of positions that are so comical and lifelike that it makes the children scream with delight just to look at him. "Teddy" is so well made that no matter how roughly he is handled he cannot become broken and with ordinary care should last for years. We will send you "Teddy" free if you will accept the following special

Club Offer. For four one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you this Teddy Bear free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 7514.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Crying Infant Doll

THIS is the latest in crying dolls. It cries "Mams" so plainly that it actually startles everyone who hears it. No strings to pull. You simply press it gently in the back and the wonderful voice responds instantly. The vocal mechanism by which this doll imitates a baby's cry completely fills its chubby body. The marvelous contrivance is thoroughly made and its articulation of "Mams" is surprising, not to say bewildering to those who hear it. Including dress and all this little infant measuress 14 inches in length. The pretty white infants dress and hood is trimmed with lace and handsome blue silk ribbon bows. She has blue eyes and a cute baby curl peeps out from beneath the hood in a truly life-like manner. This doll is unbreakable, the head being made of a special indestructible composition of a natural fleshilke color. No mater how many dolls the

Of Four

a natural fleshlike color. No matter how many dolls the children now have, they will surely be delighted with this one and every this offer should take advantage of it at once. We will send you this new infant doll exactly as described upon the terms of the following

send you this new infant doll exactly as described upon the terms of the following Club Offer. For a club of four one-year subscriptions to Comport at 25c. each we will send you this crying infant doll free by parcel post prepaid. Premium No. 7284.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Yard Long Fast Color Red Border

Club Offer. For three subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each we will send you one pair (2) of these ready-made Towels free by parcel post prepaid. Prems. No. 7193.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

For A Club Of Three Where is the girl who does not want one of these handsome and stylish bracelets? Set with a perfectly colored imitation gem denoting the month of your birth—with two tiny flashing white solitaires nestling in the dainty filigree design of gold—all of your friends will exclaim "My, what a beautiful braceleti" the minute they see it. Filled with enough real gold to give it lasting wearing qualities, yet it feels light as a feather when worn. And you are assured of a perfect fit because it is self-adjusting. It will fit amy size wrist. Here is a list of the twelve different birthstones and the month represented by each: No. 7413. January, Garnet: No. 7423. February, Amethyst: No. 7423. March. Bloodstone: No. 7443. April, Diamond; No. 7453., May, Emerald; No. 7463. June, Agate; No. 7473. July, Ruby; No. 7483. August, Sardonyx; No. 7493. September, Sapphire; No. 7503. October, Opal; No. 7513. November, Topaz; No. 7523. December, Turquoise. You can earn one of these handsome gold-filled birthstone bracelets free by doing us a small favor as explained in the following offer. When you send for it be sure to mention number of birthstone wanted. CLUB OFFER. For three one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each we will send you one of these bracelets free by parcel post prepaid. He sure to give us the number of stone wanted. New Stylish Petticoat

Premium

7328

Refined and Will Fit Any

Gold-Filled

Birthstone Bracelet

Si (:0:0:0:41:0:

Premium No. 7374

you this handsome and stylish German sliver mesh purs free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 7374. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

German Silver Mesh Purse

Genuine Gold=Filled Birthstone Rings

Each Ring Absolutely Guaranteed For Five Years!

NOVEMBER No. 7732

APRIL

OCTOBER No. 7722 You May Have Your Choice For A Club Of Two!

The most popular lady's rings worn today are these beautiful birthstone rings. Not only is it considered lucky to wear one of them but they are now and always will be exceedingly stylish. There is a different stone for each month of the year and of course you should wear the stone that is symbolical of the month you were born. The following is a list of the twelve rings, names of the stones, the month to which each one applies and its symbol.

Given For Eight Subscriptions

THIS is one of the best bargains we have been able to offer this season. These handsome latest style colored petiticoats are of finest quality mercerized panne satin. They are well made in every respect with finished seams and come in a variety of different flounces one of which is shown above, but all of them are popular, up-to-date styles and will surely please the most exacting taste. We have them in colory of green, blue and black, and in sizes from 36 to 44. When ordering be sure to specify size and color wanted.

CLUB OFFER. For a club of eight one-year club OFFER. Subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you one of these fashionable panne satin petitionals free by Parcel Post prepaid. Be sure to mention what size and color you desire. Premium No. 7328.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

its symbol.

January, The Garnet, Symbol of Power, February, The Ameythyst, Symbol of Pure

ove.
March, The Bloodstone, Symbol of Courage.
April, The Diamond, Symbol of Purity.
May, The Emerald, Symbol of Immortality.
June, The Agate, Symbol of Health and Long

June, The Agase, symbol of Charity, July, The Ruby, Symbol of Charity, July, The Ruby, Symbol of Charity, August, The Sardonyx, Symbol of Happiness. September, The Sapphire, Symbol of Constancy, October, The Opal, Symbol of Hope. November, The Topaz, Symbol of Friendship. December, The Turquoise, Symbol of Prosperty.

Each ring is guaranteed genuine 12-Karat gold filled which looks exactly like solid gold and will wear for years. In fact we absolutely guarantee each ring for at least five years. The rings themselves are perfectly plain, the stones are solitaires and perfect imitations of the real gems. The setting of each ring is the ever popular "liftany". As a Christman, Birthday or all the year-round gift for wife, mother, sweetheart or sister nothing could be more appropriate and acceptable than one of these beautiful guaranteed rings set with the birthstone of the person to whom it is given. And not only the women and girls but men and boys as well are now wearing them.

Please do not class these rings with the cheap "electroplated" rings that turn brassy after they have been worn a month or two. Remember that every one of them is guaranteed to be 12-Karat gold-filled and positively warranted for five years. If you want a handsome birthstone ring for yourself or some dear friend or relative you will make no mistake in taking advantage of this offer at once. When ordering be sure to specify the size and number of ring wanted. You can easily tell just what size ring you wear by following the directions below.

BE SURE TO SEND YOUR RING SIZE!

RING MEASURE

By using the above diagram you can tell exactly what size ring you wear if you will follow these directions: Put a stiff piece of paper around the second joint on your ring finger. Cut the paper off so that when drawn tight around your finger the ends exactly meet. Then lay the paper flat on the diagram, one end at the line O and the other end will indicate correct size. By following these instructions your ring will be a perfect fit.

Club Offer!

FOR two one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25c. each, we will send you one of these beautiful gold-filled birthstone rings by parcel post prepaid. Please be sure to give size and number of ring

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

BIRTHSTONE PENDANT AND CHAIN Prem. No. 7283 Your We Own Give You Birth-Stone Set Both In This Pendant and Chain Beautiful For A

ONE of the most styments. Women and to date are now wearing and Chain in preference while those who can afknow that all who rependant and Chain fibe greatly delighted prettiest designs we assortment submitted largest jewelry manustates. It has a 16-inch plate cable chain, the rolled gold plate own birthstone and attached to the pendant underneath the stone is a beautiful imt. Baroque pears, Following is a list of the twelve different birthstones and the month which each represents. When ordering be sure to mention birthstone wanted. January The Garnet, Symbol of Power February The Amethyst. Symbol of Pure Love March April The Garnet, Symbol of Pure Love March The Aquamarine, Symbol of Pure Love March June The Pearl, Symbol of Long Life July The Ruby, Symbol of Long Life July The Ruby, Symbol of Happiness September The Topaz, Symbol of Hope November The Topaz, Symbol of Fiendship December The Topaz, Symbol of June September The Topaz, Symbol of Fiendship December The Topaz, Symbol of June September The Topaz, Symbol of June September The Topaz, Symbol of June September The Topaz, Symbol of Fiendship December The Topaz, Symbol of Posperity All of the above named stones are solitaires and are the most perfect and beautiful imitation real gems that we have ever seen. Following is our tree offer. When ordering be sure to mention birthstone

Rolled-Gold

Pendant!

CLUB OFFER. For only three one-year sub-cents each, we will send you a Birthstone Pendant and Chain free by Parcel Post prepaid. Be sure to mention stone wanted. Premium No. 7283. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Premium No. 2605

Sent Prepaid For A Club Of Five!

Latest Pattern Silverine Shields for Monogram. Beveled Mirror and Fitted Case. There does not live a girl whose heart would not fairly jump with joy at the sight of this swell dull black finish set. A man's heart is pleased, realizing well the beauty of work in the brush with its fine white bristles, the excellent fitted beveled mirror and finely made comb. A woman is still a girl, only grown up, and to think of really owning this set seems in many cases the realization of some fairly's dream.

The Brush is nine inches long, 2½ inches wide, firmly set with white bristles, with shield of Silverine. Mirror is eight and one-half inches long, 4½ inches wide on back, with a four-inch clear, finely beveled glass set with rich ebonized frame. Comb is seven inches long, ½ inches wide, with fine and coarse teeth. When ordering be sure to state that you want set No. 2605. Club Offer. Comfort at 25 cents each, we will send this Set Free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 2605. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Girl's Waterproof Cape A Great PROTECTOR From WIND and RAIN

A Great PROTECTOR From WIND and RAIN

Made of striped rubberized cloth with suitable lining, and the best feature of this cape is the bood.
Girls going to achool do not like to carry an umbrella and this cape can be worn either in hot or cold weather. If in winter a sweater or coat can be worn underneath, and the child is not only dry but perfectly warm. There are two openings in the cape for the arms, but the garment is large enough so the books or packages can be carried underneath, which makes it much bester tham a Rain Coat. The shoulders are absped so as to give it a very attractive look. This cape comes in a very dark drab color with lighter drab stripes. They are so pretty any girl will be proud to we ar one.
Sizes 6 to 14 years. When ordering better order it larger than necessary so to have it of sufficient size to go over a heavy coat or other garments.
Boys can easily get up clubs and thus get one of these Rain Capes for their sisters. Girls like to get subscribers to COM FORT where they can so easily
earn such a semsible
premium so as to keep
where they can so easily
earn such a semsible
premium so as to keep a warm and dry during the rainy season. When ordering be sure to mention size wanted. It connec in sizes from 6 to 14 years.

Special Club Offer.
For a club of only ten oneyear subscriptions to Compour these serviceable Rain Capes. State size wanted.

Premium No. 72310.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Yes—made from your own measure and tailored by experts. Return the suit to us if not satisfactory. No risk to you at all. The suit must satisfy you or we lose So you tee we must make it must satisfy you or we lose to you decide it all your result. You decide it all your results are you who can prove that we do not actually make every garment to order from customer's measure.

As Little As a Dollar Down

No big deposit. Only a little as evidence of good faith —and that back if you don't keep the suit. Pay a little sech month while wearing the suit. Get all the facts as explained in the Style Book. Sent free on request.

Save $1500 to $2500

FREE STYLE BOOK Send post card now wonderful Style Bo the cloth samples—al Stanley Rogers Co. 1015 Jackson Bivd. Dept. 237 Chicago

Total cost only to prove to you that this magnificent Royal has the magnificent Royal has to new and Clearest to new our that it is a large and handsome as 1 HONTHS TIME the trust machines that sell at $25.00 —

Parchase to prove to you that this sell at $25.00 —

to prove to you that it has the strongest motor, the best reproducer and tone arm and the most ingenious devices to start, stop and control the music. and control the music.
Shipped with a supply of 10-inch double disc records of your selection, so you can enjoy the finest entertainments for one whole month. Return the outfit AT OUR EXPENSE

KEROSENE (GOAL BURNER Makes Any Stove a Gas Stove

record book and other literature. They are free s. H. DAVIS, 62-S 6101 May St., CHICAGO

Free Sample

danger from Safe, Clean, Odorless, Cheap Every home a prospect. Low price makes quick sales. Easy to carry and demonstrate. Big profits. Your territory is open. Write today. Thomas Burner Co., 2530 Gay St., Dayton, Ohio You May Win This Gift

13 25 Each of these squares represents a letter — but we have used figures instead of letters. There we have used figures in the alphabet. Letter A is 1, B is 2, C is 3, erc. The SIX letters represented by figures SIX letters represented by figures 9 6 20 a slip of paper with a Se stamp to cover postare and i will send you a valuable GIFT and tell how got my our may win $350 IN GOLD. Auto, Piano, GOLD Pony, Bleyele, etc. Try to win this gift. Address:

NEW IDEAS, 611 New Ideas Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa.

Silver Tatting Shuttle

Given For Four Subscriptions

MADE of solid sterling affver beautifully finished and polished. A new idea is the book at the end as Made of solid sterling affiver beautifully finished and polished. A new idea is the hook at the end as shown in above illustration which easily and quickly picks up the loops. The illustration shows how the shuttle is held in the hand and the little arrow points to the patent hook in the act of picking up the stitch or loop. The free end of the thread goes through a small hole on the inside of the shuttle. A further description of this handy little device is bardly necessary for every woman who does tatting will see at a glance how really indispensable it is and how greatly superior to anything else ever designed for the same purpose. Being made of genuine sterling silver, you can have your jeweler engrave it with any monogram or initials desired. One of these shuttles engraved in this manner makes a very acceptable gift for any woman or girl who is a tatting worker. We will send you this tatting shuttle free upon the terms of the following.

Under this heading all questions by COMFORT subscribers on subjects not related to the special departments elsewhere in the paper will be answered, as far as may be. COMFORT readers are advised to read carefully the advertisements in this paper, as they will often find in them what they seek through their questions addressed to this Bureau. They will thus save time, labor and postage.

NOTICE.—As the privileges of this Bureau and of all other departments of COMFORT are for subscribers only, no attention will be given any inquiry which does not bear the writer's correct name and address. Initials only, or a flictitious name, if requested, will appear in the published answer, but the inquiry must invariably be signed by the

L. H., Northport, Wash.—No process of law is required for the adoption of a second Christian name, and if you wish to add a middle name to your signature, it only remains for you to pick out the one you like best. This department knows of a girl who was given a rather ordinary Christian name by her parents, and she pleased ierself in later years by annexing the middle name of Mercedes. Yet even that is better than Gwendolyn. Mind you make a good choice.

Mrs. C. G., Muskegon, Mich.—If you have friends that receive barrels of second-hand clothing and you wish to know where they get them from, we are sure you could find out much better and more easily by asking them than by inquiring in faraway Maine. Such barrels and boxes are often sent out by churches, but they go, almost without exception, to missions or societies in the large cities for distribution.

C. P. Buchane, N. D.—Many, COMPOUNT, readers.

out they go, almost without exception, to missions or societies in the large cities for distribution.

C. P., Buchanan, N. D.—Many Comport readers desire to aid in the war by taking up nursing and we believe that most of the inquirers do not realize that it is no light or simple task to learn to become a nurse capable of dealing with the conditions that must be met in the present conflict. The Red Crosshas uniform qualifications to govern the enrollment of its nurses. No training school is conducted, but the local committees of the society are empowered to enroll graduate nurses who fulfill the requirements prescribed by the National Committee. To be eligible an applicant must have had at least a two years' course of training in a general hospital which includes the care of men, and which has a daily average of fifty patients or more during the applicant's training. In states where registration of nurses is required by law, an applicant to be eligible must be registered. She must be a member of and endorsed by an association affiliated with the American Nurses' Association, have the endorsement of the training school from which she graduated, and must submit such evidence of her fitness for the work as may be acceptable to the National Red Cross Committee. Applicants must be at least twenty-five and not over forty. Health, strength and a good education are essentials.

H. L. R., Beebe, Mont.—See answer to C. P. Bu-

H. L. R., Beebe, Mont.—See answer to C. P. Bu-chanan, N. D. Your first step should be to obtain entrance to the training school for nurses of some large general hospital. Write to the superintendent of such an institution for information regarding the en-trance requirements.

Mrs. H. M. Higbie. Mont.—There would not be

Mrs. H. M., Higbie, Mont.—There would not be much value to your pearls obtained from mussels if they are very small. No one could judge of their worth without having seen them, as value depends on size, color and shape. Show them to your nearest jeweler.

on size, color and shape. Show them to your nearest jeweler.

A. Z. Y., Leedy, Okla.—Alf colleges and universities have four-year courses, and an education equivalent to that obtained in a high school of te best sort would be needed to pass the entrance examinations of the average college or university. Yale, Harvard, Princeton and Columbia, are four of the largest and best known universities, and at these the tuition charge averages about $200 to $225. With board and other expenses it costs at least $800 a year to attend these institutions—or as much more than this as one wishes to spend. Bureaus are maintained to help in securing work for those wishing to aid in paying their expenses by some sort of labor of hand or brain. A university might be considered a collection of schools or colleges. If you want to know what is taught in one of these institutions, write to the Registrar of Harvard University, Cambridge, Mass., and ask for a catalogue. And as to colleges, the state of Maine has several good ones, among them Bowdoin College—of which the poet Longfellow was a graduate.

V. F., Nebraska.—Government positions are not secured by mail, although courses to prepare one to pass civil service examinations for positions in the Federal service examinations for positions in the Federal service was given by mail, and we think this is what you mean. Write to the Chief Publishing Co., 5 Beekman St., New York City, for a sample copy of the paper which they publish dealing with the civil service.

the paper which they publish dealing with the civil service.

Mrs. R. M., North Bergen, N. J.—One of the best methods of treating small skins that are to be used for muffs and hats is as follows: Tack on a board, flesh side up, and remove all bits of flesh by scraping with a blunt instrument, and the skins can be also washed with a solution made of a pound of alum and a quarter of pound of salt dissolved in a gailon of water. Remove surplus moisture and sprinkle with a mixture of powdered alum and salt in the same proportions as the solution. Let this stand over night, and the next day sprinkle again if the skin has absorbed the mixture. Two or three days of this treatment should be sufficient—the idea being to have the skin given all the alum and salt it will soak up while still fresh and moist. When the skin is thoroughly dry after this treatment it must be worked carefully by hand to make it soft and pliable. If through accident or delay the skin becomes too dry, it may be softened by soaking for a short time in lukewarm water—care being taken to remove it from the bath as soon as possible after it is sufficiently softened. softened.

A Subscriber, Bonanza, Ark.—See answer to Mrs. R. M., North Bergen, N. J.

Mrs. M. W. C., Fidelity, III.—Total, eclipses are very infrequent in any one place, compared with their actual frequency of visible occurrence somewhere. During the 19th century, total eclipses of the sun were visible in some part of the U. S. in the years of 1806, 1834, 1860, 1869, 1878, 1880, 1889, 1900. F. L. M., Oakwood, III.—You are mistaken regarding the land to which a child of a soldier in the Civil War is entitled—as you have been told. Your nearest U. S. land office would be at Marquette, Mich. Write there for information, addressing J. L. Hefferman, Register. There are over 90,000 acres of government land in Michigan.

government land in Michigan.

Inquirer, Mo.—Marriage between a negro and a white person is prohibited by law in the following states: Ala., Ark., Cali., Colo., Del., Fla., Ga., Ida., Ind., Ky., Md., Miss., Mo., Neb., N. C., Okla., Ore., S. C., Tenn., Tex., Utah, Va., W. Va.

Mis. J. O. R., East Alton, Ill.—The Dictionary of the Bible, published by Charles Scribner & Sons, New York City, will give you a full history of Sabbath. This book is a standard on the subject, and one which is complete and authoritative.

A Subscriber, Martinsville, O.—Porto Pico, is one hole on the inside of the shuttle. A further description of this handy little device is hardly necessary for every woman who does tatting will see at a glance how really indispensable it is and how greatly superior to anything else ever designed for the same purpose. Being made of genuine sterling silver, you can have your jeweler engrave it with any monogram or initials desired. One of these shuttles engraved in this manner makes a very acceptable gift for any woman or girl who is a tatting worker. We will send you this tatting shuttle free upon the terms of the following

Club Offer. For four one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25c each, we will send you this sterling tatting shuttle free by parcel post prepaid. Premium No. 7394.

A Subscriber, Martinsville, O.—Porto Rico is one of the cleanest, the most sanitary, and the most healthful of countries, under Uncle Sam's new mannegement, and it is doubtful if another city in the world can compare with San Juan for cleanliness and health. As to climate, the average annual temperature is 76 degrees, with a mean winter temperature of 73 and a mean summer of 79. There are in well-defined dry and wet seasons, but in the winter the rains are lighter than in summer. The monthly average extends from February until May, after which the variation is very slight—until September of the following of the same purpose. There are mountains on the island as high as 4,000 feet,

27 YEARS THE ENEMY OF PAIN

FOR HEADACHES, NEURALGIAS, LAGRIPPE, COLDS.

10 CENTS

Women's Aches and Ills ASK YOUR DRUGGIST FOR "A-K" TABLETS THE ANTIKAMNIA CHEMICAL COMPANY, ST. LOUIS

25 CENTS

and the climate inland is preferable to that of the coastal region, which is inclined to be too warm and damp. There would be better places for a tuberculusis patient than Porto Rico, but the climate would be much better for the disease than that of Ohio. Lady Prescott now arose, saying, with her genial smile:

Sibyl's Influence

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 24.)

white robes, looked back at her—a woman with an abundance of shining, yellow hair, falling like a golden mist around her; a broad, low forehead, large gfny eyes that could be soft and languishing, or bright and hard as steel, and which were shaded by long, curling, silken lashes; a nose trather long and sharp, yet which, withal, had something, of patrician look, while the mouth, though a trifle large, was handsome and expressive.

Her skin was fine and white, without a speck or flaw upon its satin smoothness, and her arms, from which the large, flowing sleeves of her robe fell away, were perfect as a piece of rare sculpture. But her hand, though delicate in outline, rosy of fint, and soft of texture, had, nevertheless, a strong, wiry, cruel appearance.

"I have the advantage, though many might consider hers a richer style of beauty." she said, "but I have a thousand arts and wiles to attract, of which she is perfectly innocent.

"Yes, Miss Sibyl Prescott, I have the advantage over you: I am your bitterest foe, but I'll make you think that I am an angel of light. And as for your handsome knight, I'll pit my charms against yours, and we'll see who will win in the race. I, with my knowledge of the world, of men and things, do not fear much as to the issue; and it may be well worth the conflict, since I understand that the Prescotts are immensely wealthy. And now, since I have settled upon a plan for my campaign, I think I will go to bed."

And, suiting the action of the world, Miss Therwin was soon sleeping as quietly and sweetly

And, suiting the action of the world, Miss Therwin was soon sleeping as quietly and sweetly as if she had never thought of plotting the overthrow of an innocent life.

The third day after the birthday reception Miss Therwin made her duty call at Lady Prescott's.

She found the two ladies and Raymond forming a happy trio, sitting around a cheerful fire in a charming parlor, looking out upon a bright southern landscape.

Raymond could not fail to remark the two beautiful women, as Miss Therwin came forward and greeted Sibyl with every appearance of delight.

Miss Therwin at once made herself the center and greeted Sibyl with every appearance of delight.

Miss Therwin at once made herself the center of attraction, both by her right as a guest and by her brillhant conversational powers.

She had traveled a great deal; so also had Raymond, and, by degrees, she adroitly managed to monopolize him upon subjects concerning which they alone were familiar, while Lady Prescott and Sibyl, blissfully unconscious of the duplicity of which they were the victims, became delighted listeners to brilliant, vivid descriptions, anecdotes, wit and repartee, that were really very enchanting.

Their caller very unfashionably stayed an hour, and only started up in pretended dismay when the door opened, and a servant brought in lunch.
"I beg pardon," she said, flushing and laughing, as she looked at her jeweled watch. "I had no idea that I was overstepping the bounds of etiquette at this rate."

"No apology is necessary, Miss Therwin, when you have such power to charm the time away," Raymond said, gallantly.

A deeper color stained her cheeks, as she turned her expressive eyes upon him, saying,
"I shall charge all the blame to you for temptgayly:

"I shall charge all the blame to you for tempting me into such enchanted regions."

Lady Prescott now arose, saying, with her genial smile:

"Since you and Raymond have given us such a delightful 'feast of reason and flow of soul,' I shall insist that you bring your minds down to more substantial viands for a while, and join us at lunch."

Miss Therwin modestly demurred, but her hostess would not be denied, and she finally consented to remain, providing Sibyl would consent to accompany her upon a drive afterward.

The young girl gave the desired promise, and another hour passed as 'pleasantly as the previous one had done.

Then Sibyl donned her rich sables, and crowned her pretty head with a lovely white velvet hat, with its nodding, graceful plumes, and its three small scarlet poppies just touching her midnight hair, giving 'color and effect to the whole, and the two girls went gayly forth upon their drive.

"I think I never saw two prettier girls together in my life," Lady Prescott remarked, as she and Raymond stood watching them from the window, as they drove away, and waved them a smiling good by.

"They are very beautiful, mother. Sibyl has the purest, sweetest face, but how exceedingly talented and cultivated Miss Therwin is:" he replied; and his eyes lingered upon her face as long as he could see it.

"Yes; but remember that she has had the advantage of several years—four, at least, I should say—over Sibyl," Lady Prescott answered, with the shadow of a frown upon her fine face.

Somehow she did not exactly believe in the brilliant guest of General Maplewood, and it did not please her to have Raymond quite so enthusiastic over her accomplishments.

"We must give Sibyl a little change, in the way of travel, when it comes to warmer weather," he remarked, thoughtfully.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 37.)

ONE-THIRD OF GASOLINE saved to all users of Fords by our new HOT PIN MANIFOLD. Makes explosive gas of every particle of fuel. No condensation of fuel in cylinders. Vaporizes present percentage of Kerosene in all gasoline. Less wear and smoother tunning motor. Starts instantly on the coldest day.

30 DAYS' FREE TRIAL with our money-back guarantee. Write today for complete descriptive circular. K. B. C. Co., Dept. 130, 2015 Michigan Ave., Chicago

TO Play With You This Is "Josie" This Is "Johnnie" Premium No. 7345

We Will Give You Both Dolls!

FOR eight one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25c cach, we will send you both dolls—Josie and Johnnie—free by parcel post prepaid, (Premium No. 7389) Or for five one-year subscriptions at 25 cents each we will send you one doll—your choice of Josie (Premium No. 7345), or Johnnie (Premium No. 7345), free by parcel post prepaid, when ordering be sure to give the premium number of doll or dolls wanted.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

American Made Unbreakable Dolls With Life-like Indestructible Composition Heads!

Don't they look as if they were out for a good fime? And wouldn't you like to have them to play with? The little boy's name is Johnnie, his siter's name is Joste and they make the most charming pair of twin dolls you'ver saw. They are entirely different from the ordinary doll have at life-like head made of an indestructible composition, a new sayle cloth body and the latest improved jointed arms and legs which never get out of order. Neither doll can be broken because both head and body are indestructible. They are over a foot tall with rosy checks and blue eyes and fressed just as you see them in the picture. Josie has on a cute red-and-white checked dress with a handsome blue sash and trimmed, with lace around the neck. Johnnie is dressed in pretty blue-and-white checked ormpers with lace trimming and blue belt. You can dress and undress these dolls as often as you please, make them stand up or sit down or band over and by moving their arms and legs around in different positions you can get them to look exactly as if they were walking, running, stretching out their arms, waving their hands, in fact they will cut up most any antic that might be expected of a real live healthy two-year-old baby boy or girl. They look so life-like in their baby clothes with their happy smilling faces you would almost think they were alive and ready to talk to you in that baby language so dear to the heart of every little doll mother. We are sure no little boy or girl ever had a doll that could furnish quite so much real satisfaction and enjoyment as either one or Premium No. 7355 quite so much real satisfaction and enjoyment as either one of quite so much real satisfaction and enjoyment as either one of these two handsome twins. You may have either doll—your choice of either Josie or Johnnie—or both of them free as a COMFORT premium as we have bought a quantity of them to be distributed in this manner. Remember these are real American made unbreakable dolls—not paper "eutouts" or "rag" dolls—with a strong durable stuffed cloth body, jointed arms and legs and an indestructible composition head that will not break. They will last a long time.

26-Piece Daisy TABLE SET

Premium No. 73010

Sent To You Prepaid For A Club Of Ten

We have in the past made many offers of table ware, but this is the first time we have ever been able to offer a complete set of 26 Pieces in return for such a small club of subscriptions. And please don't think that because we are giving away this set on such liberal terms that it is plated on a brass base and consequently will change color and have that "brassy" look just as soon as the plating wears off. This Set which we offer you here is plated on a white metal base therefore each and every piece is the same color all the way through and will not show signs of wear, even after years of constant use. As shown in the above illustration there are 26 pieces in this set—6 Knives, 6 Forks, 6 Teaspoons, 6 Tablespoons, Sugar Shell and Butter Knife. Each piece is full regulation size for family use, the handles are handsomely emboased and decorated with the beautiful Daisy design which is now so popular and the blades of the knives and the bowls of the teaspoons and tablespoons are perfectly plain and bright polished.

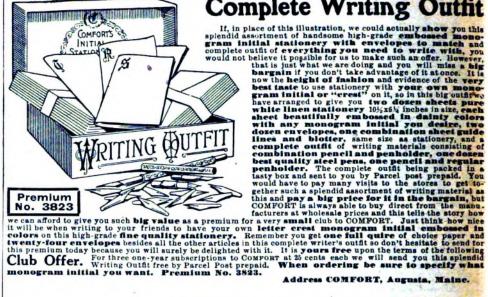

WARRANTED FOR FIVE YEARS

It is only because we buy this set in large quantities direct from the factory that we are able to secure it at a price that enables us to offer it as a premium for so few subscriptions. It is by far the greatest value we have ever offered, in fact we are so sure that it will please and satisfy all who accept this offer we are going to guarantee every Set sent out for a period of five years. We will send this beautiful 25-licee Daisy Set exactly as illustrated and described to any address upon the terms of the following special

Club Offer. For a club of ten one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each, we will send you this 26-Piece Daisy Table Set Free by Parcel Post Premium No. 73010.

Box Of Initial Stationery, Envelopes And Complete Writing Outfit

Illustrated with

In Bibbo

Premium No. 7444

Given

For A

Club

Of

Four

SMALL enough to be carried conveniently in the hand or in pooker or hand bag, yet complete and unabridged containing full books of both the Old and New Testaments, is self-pronouncing and handomely

Six Rogers' Silver Teaspoons

FOR A CLUB OF SIX

No woman ever has too many teaspoons—especially the "Rogers'" kind—so here is an offer that will surely interest thousands of our women readers. For a few subscriptions to COMFORT secured among your friends we will send you this handsome set free. They are the famous 1881 Rogers' A1 brand which is guaranteed to be a full standard silver plate upon a renuine 18% nickel base. Please notice the beautiful design—the new "Plymouth"—which is a splendid reproduction of the universally popular hand-hammered ware. You will have to see the spoons themselves in order to fully appreciate this latest fashionable pattern as our illustration does not do it justice.

We will give you this set of six Rogers' silver teaspoons on the terms of the following club offer. Remember—they are the genuine 1881 Rogers' A1 brand—the Rogers' trademark is stamped on each and every one. This protects you fully, furthermore each spoon is absolutely warranted for ten years.

CLUB OFFER: For six one-year subscriptions to contract the set of the surface of

Electric Flash Light

With Powerful Long-Lived Battery

Premium No. 7335

For Five Subscriptions

ARE you in the habit of stumbling around in the dark with the uncertain aid of lighted matches or dangerous kerosene lamps or lanterns? Don't do it any longer! It's dangerous as you very well know-and entirely unmeecessary. Get an Everendy Daylo or "flash light" and you have all the advantages of the incandescent electric light in portable form. It can easily be carried in the hand or pocket. It is always ready for use-a

Address COMFORT, Angusta, Maine.

Subscription

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine

Sent Prepaid For A Club Of Ten

THIS IS an offer which no good bousewife can afford to overlook. It is your opportunity to secure as many large comfortable bed blankets as you may need without a ceni of expense. These fine double blankets are six feet in length extremely well made and finely finished. The color is white or gray with border. Please notice that they are large enough for any standard size bed being of sufficient length to come up well on the pillow and wide enough so that they may be snugly tucked in at the sides. This is in reality one of the best bargains in a premium we have ever offered due to the fact that we buy these blankets in large quantities direct from the mill at a specially low price and therefore are enabled to offer them for a very small club of subscriptions. When you think of this big warm blanket on your bed or lying on a closet shelf ready for use when wanted, we believe that you will want to start a club at once for the sake of securing one or more of them free of all cost to you. We will gladly send you one or more of these splendid blankets upon the terms of the following

Club Offer. For a club of only ten one-year subscriptions to Comport at 25 cents each, we will send you one of these fine double bed blankets free by Parcel Post prepaid. Prem. No. 73210.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

LOCKET AND CHAIN

Rolled Gold Plate!

MOST every young lady wants a Locket and Chain. Other styles of neck ornaments may come and go but a gold Locket and Chain is always fashionable, can be worn with any dress and at any season of the year. The locket offered here is one of the latest designs. One side of it is beautifully engraved as shown in the illustration while the other side is plain. It measures exactly one inch in "diameter and on the inside there is space for two pictures. The cable chain is 16 inches long and both Chain and Locket are made of heavy rolled gold plate that is absolutely guaranteed to Address.

stand an acid test and warranted for five years. It is dainty, refined and attractive and we are sure that it will more than please everybody. This locket and chain guaranteed to be exactly as described is yours free upon the terms of the following. the terms of the following

Club Offer. For five one-year subscriptions to COMFORT at 25 cents each we will send you this guaranteed rolled gold Locket and Chain free by Parcel Post prepaid. Premium No. 7295.

7291

Warranted For 5 Years!

books of both the Old and New Testaments, is self-pronouncing and handsomely illustrated with colored maps showing different interesting portions of Patestine and surrounding country. It is 5½ inches long, 3½ inches wide and one inch thick, beautifully bound in black leatherette and contains over a thousand pages finished with round corners and red edges. The name "Holy Bible" is stamped in gold on back and front cover. This is an unequalled opportunity for Sunday School workers, teachers, in fact all Bible students at home or in church to secure a Bible without cost and we feel that among COMFORT'S readers there must be thousands who have been waiting for us to make just such an offer as this. Remember that you are not going to receive a cheap, paper-bound book, but a splendidly made Bible, finely printed, handsomely and durably bound, and absolutely refined and perfect in every detail. We will send to any address this self-pronouncing Bible exactly as illustrated and described upon the terms of the following special Club Offer. For four one-year subscriptions to Club Offer. For four one-year subscriptions to Club Offer. COMFORT at 25 cents each we will not this Rible free by mail postpaid. Premium all the advantages of the incandescent electric light in portable form. It can easily be carried in the hand or pocket. It is always ready for use—a simple movement of the finger turns the light on and of as desired—and it is absolutely safe. No matter what happens it positively cannot set anything on fire.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

In the night it shows you your way around the house without fuss or bother—it lights up the darkest rooms, stairways, closets, the dark corners in attic or basement. You can use it in the shed, stable, barn, around hay, powder, gasoline—in-fact, any and all kinds of inflammable material and explosives without the slightest danger.

The Eveready is just as useful outdoors as it is indoors. Neither wind nor rain can put it out. When riding or walking after nightfall, it throws a shaft of brilliant light far in advance, showing up every object long before you reach it. The lonellest road, the gloomiest depths of the woods, need have no terrors for you if you go prepared with an Eveready.

The Eveready is 6½ inches long, 1½ inches in diameter equipped with a strong reflecting lens, Mazda bulb and the latest improved Tungsten battery. This battery with average use will last from two to four months, the bulbs may be obtained from us or any hardware or general store at triding expense. The light itself—that is, the case and everything except the battery and bulb—is good for many years, in fact with proper care should last an ordinary lifetime.

We will give you this Eveready Daylo or "flash light" complete with battery and bulb, all ready for business upon the terms of the following.

Club Offer: For five one-year subscriptions to COMpan Everendy Daylo complete—as described above, free by parcel post prepaid (Premium No. 7335.) We can also supply you with extra batteries at the rate of one battery for three one-year subscription (not your own) at 25 cents each (Premium No. 7743) and extra bulbs at the rate of one bulb for one one-year subscription (not your own) at 25 cents (Premium No. 8131.)

Address COMFORT, An Premium For One

Prize Valentine

Here Is A Happy Valentine Surprise For You—A Big Package Of Handsome Lace Valentines, Dainty Cut-Outs, Cupids, Hearts, Folders, Turnover Cards, Lovely Gold And Color Embossed Valentine Post Cards.

ALL YOURS FOR ONE SUBSCRIPTION

W^E realize that it is hard for our readers to secure the latest up-to-date Valentine novelties so we have had made up for us at great bargain a special assortment of latest style Valentines, Carda and Novelties including a number of exclusive designs which are not to be found in the stores. Just see what this big assortment contains:

to be found in the stores. Just see what this big assortment contains a Large Lace Two Leaf Valentine Folder in a pretty Heart and Flower temposed Valentine Envelope, 1 large Lace Heart Canopy, Two Les Folder in Envelope, 1 large Novelty Lace Pergola Valentine in envelope 1 Magic Turnover Valentine, 2 Pretty Heart Folding Valentines, 4 A sorted Valentine Novelty Cut-outs, 2 Juvenile Valentine Hearts, 1 Hansome Embossed Valentine Folder, 1 Embossed Flower, Heart and Cupi Panel Valentine Bookmark, 5 Beautiful Gold and Color Embossed Valentine Post Cards.

Feb. 14 is considered as St.

tine Post Cards.

Feb. 14 is considered as St. Valentine's Day although Valentines are used all through the month. It is a beautiful custom that appeals to all, both young and old—the exchange of these tender Cupid dart missives between husband and wife, sweethearts, near and dear friends and relatives. And, of course, the children like to exchange with their little friends these dainty love tokens beginning on the fourteenth of February, the month when the birds are supposed to choose their mates. Most of the schools now have Valentine Boxes in which the children drop their Valentines to be distributed later in the day, an hour or more being set apart by the teacher for that purpose.

Our illustration is, of course, greatly reduced in size. The large beautiful lace Valentine is actually 6 inches long and nearly 5 inches wide, of pretty and fine lace work raised two inches on an accordion plaited standard with a heart and gold decorated base and a charming illustrated sentiment of verse on the inside. Then there is a dainty lace pattern on an embossed card over 6 inches long and nearly 31-4 inches wide, over the pretty face of a young maiden giving the fine Pergola effect so popular in the olden days. Another is a pretty heart-shaped canopy of elevated lace paper on a background on which is shown a childish figure on the inside and you find an illustrated verse of tender sentiment. A magic Turnover Valentine first appears to be an ordinary folder, then presto—a flip of the finger and it unfolds and shows a smiling little girl sitting on a stile and an expectant youth standing at a short distance. We also include in this remarkable collection two pretty embossed heart-shaped folders with verse inside, four choice assorted Valentine Novelty Cut-Outs of little children, two red and gold illustrated and inscribed Valentine Hearts, one beautiful embossed Cupid and Heart Floral Bookmark, printed in bright colors on a tinted background and five handsome Valentine Post Cards embossed in gold and many bright colors showing flowers and children at play each having the snitable sentiment expressed by an appropriate verse underneath.

We will send you this big Prize Valentine collection packed in a neat tasty envelope free and postpaid if you will accept our special offer printed below. Be sure to send in your order early so as to get it in time for St. Valentine's Day.

Free Offer. For one one-year subscription (not your you this prize assortment of beautiful up-to-date Valentines, Valentine Cards and Novelties free by mail postpaid. Premium No. 7291. Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Three Wheel Chairs in January 449 is COMFORT'S Total to Date

War conditions complicated by unprecedented bad weather are responsible for the decline in the volume of wheel-chair subscripions the past month so that three chairs is as many as I can award for January.

The three January wheel chairs go to the following shut-ins. The figures after their names indicate number of subscriptions sent in by them or by their friends for them.

Mrs H. B. Newell, 1824 E 27th St., Des Moines, lowa, 129; Susie Harbin, Kansas, Ala., 126; Florine Weldon, Rochelle, Ga., 113.

Mrs H B Newell, aga 34, is badly crippled by rheumatism in her lower limbs. Since June, 1916, she has been unable to walk. She has two small thildren to care for and her husband's wages are barely sufficient to provide necessaries for the family You can imagine what a blessing the COMFORT wheel chair will be to this poor woman.

Little Susie Harbin, several years a cripple, is a patient sufferer and in much need of a wheel chair. The one I have sent her will be a great pleasure to her and a help to her widowed mother in taking care of her.

Florine Weldon, age 10, has been a cripple from birth She is helpless, not being able to use her legs or arms, and has to be lifted and carried about when moved. The poor child is an orphan and is dependent on relatives for support and care. J M. Baker, Lillian Luke, Alice Weldon and other good ladies of the Woman's Mission Union have canvassed and procured the subscriptions for little Florine's wheel chair, which, as Mrs. Baker writes, she is "awfully" in need of.

On our list of applicants are many other unfortunates who are "awfully" in need of a wheel chair and have no hope of obtaining one except through COMFORT'S Wheel-Chair Club.

Of course I know that the Red Cross work and the other war charities are making heavy drafts on your time and your purses but, even so, we must not forget or neglect our home charities, and least of all the crippled shut-ins.

Surely you can spare a little time to get a few subscriptions on the wheel-chair account. Every little helps, and never was there a time when the shut-ins were more in need of help. Kindly do your best to help

Our Roll of Honor and the letters of thanks, printed below, are interesting.

Sincerely yours, W. H. GANNETT, Publisher of COMFORT.

P. S. For the information of our many new subscribers let me explain that for each and every 200 one-year subscriptions to COMFORT, at 25 cents each usent in either singly or in clubs by persons who direct that they are to be credified to COMFORT'S WHEEL-CHAIR CLUB instead of claiming the premiums to which they would be entitled, I give a FIRST-CLASS INVALID WHEEL-CHAIR to some needy crippled Shut-in and pay the trength; too. It is a large and expensive premium for me to give for that number of subscribers, but I am always glad to do my part a little taster each month than you do yours. Any shut-in who has friends to help him get subscriptions can obtain a wheel chair free. Write me for information.

Simply Delighted with Her COMFORT Wheel Chair

MAHL, TEXAS.

Mail, Texas.

Dear Sir:—The wheel chair for Mrs. Maggie Winder has arrived in good condition and I wish to thank you many times for your liberal offer that made it possible for me to help obtain it for her. I know there are many more needy shut-ins who would be delighted if they could obtain one of your wheel chairs. I shall tell others how we secured this one, and I shall help them to get one in the same way. Mrs. Winder is simply delighted and can use the chair all right. If any more subscriptions are due you on her chair I will try to get them soon, and if the account is square I will send what I can to help secure a chair for someone else. Thanking you again, I beg to remain, Yours respectfully, Mrs. Mollie Hogan.

Wheel Chair Received in Good Condition

KITE, GEORGIA.

DEAR MR. GANNETT:

I received my wheel chair in good condition, for which I thank you very much, and I thank all those who helped me get subscriptions. I will send you my picture as soon as I get one. Wishing you and Comront the success which your good work deserves, I gratefully yours,

MRS. W. T. McBRIDE.

Little Girl Proud of her COMFORT Wheel Chair

GAINSVILLE, ARK. DEAR MR. GANNETT:

DEAR MR. GANNETT:
We wish to thank you and the many friends who helped us get the wheel chair for our little Callie. The chair came in good shape, freight all prepaid. Callie is proud of her chair and sits in it nearly all the time. I will send you one of her pictures when I have them made. With best wishes to you and COMFORT, Sincerely your friend,

M. A. WILLIAMS.

COMFORT Wheel Chair a Great Help

FREDERICK, OKLA.

DEAR MR. GANNETT:

I received my wheel chair in good condition and am very proud of it. I want to thank you and my many friends who helped me get the 200 subscriptions in so short a time. I can now go to church in it,—what a great comfort! May there be many more of your wheel chairs go out to carry comfort to the shut-ins, and may you be richly blessed, as you deserve, for your good work.

Sincerely your friend, MARY BRYAN.

COMFORT'S Roll of Honor

The Roll of Honor comprises the names of those who have sent five or more subscriptions to credit of the Wheel-Chair Club during the month previous. Following each name is the number of subscriptions sent.

the Wheel-Chair Club during the month previous. Following each name is the number of subscriptions sent.

Mrs. Blanche Jamieson, Maine, for Eastern Maine General Hospital, 85; Louise Carpenter, Miss., for own wheel chair, 50; Susan Rumpf, Montana, for own wheel chair, 50; Susan Rumpf, Montana, for own wheel chair, 51; Mrs. Berry Jansen, Ill., for Carl G. Janisen, 29; Etta Clark, Ala., for Susie Harbin, 26; Mrs. 8. M. Hunnicutt, N. G., for Hazel Hunnicutt, 25; Mrs. R. E. Bennett, La., for Mrs. Louisa Myers, 25; Mrs. R. E. Schell, Colo., for Verna Dutro, 21; Mrs. S. E. Gothard, Texas, for C. M. Gothard's boy, 20; Eva Blythe, Tenn., for Blythe, 16; Mrs. Roy Wilson, Ga., for own wheel chair, 14; Mrs. R. W. Phillips, New Mexico, for Bernie Phillips, 12; Lucille Smith, Iowa, for Olive Stribley, 12; Miss Al. Strieber, Minn., for Mrs. Lawrence Olsen, 12; Mabel Wade, Indiana, for General, 11; Viva Proffitt, Ky., for Roscoe Proffitt, 11; Mrs. Sarah Elizabeth Jones, Texas, for Bernie Phillips, 11; Mrs. T. J. Ragland, Texas, for Mr. T. J. Ragland, 10; Lillian Luke, Ga., for Florine Weldon, 10; Edw. H. Obert, N. J., for Mrs. H. B. Newell, 9; Mrs. H. L. Henderson, Pa., for General, 8; Mrs. O. B. Williams, Texas, for Bernie Phillips, 8; Miss Julia Adams, Miss., for Jack Adams, 8; Mrs. Belle Olmstead, S. Dak.,—for General, 8; Mrs. John West, Texas, for Lovie Belle Taylor, 7; Mrs. M. E. Wilson, Ala., for Lovie Belle Taylor, 7; Mrs. M. E. Wilson, Ala., for Lovie Belle Taylor, 7; Mrs. M. E. Wilson, Ala., for Lovie Belle Taylor, 7; Mrs. M. E. Wilson, Ala., for Lovie Belle Taylor, 7; Mrs. M. E. Wilson, Ala., for Lovie Belle Taylor, 7; Grillie Price, N. C., for General, 6; Mrs. M. A. Spears, N. C., for Hazel Hunnicutt, 6; Mrs. Ma. Spears, N. C., for Hazel Hunnicutt, 6; Mrs. Ma. Spears, N. C., for Hazel Hunnicutt, 6; Mrs. Ma. Miss., for General, 5; Mrs. Martha Jenckel, N. Y., for Willle Price, 5; Mrs. R. P. Colbath, N. H., for General, 5; Miss Jewell Fox, Okla., for Mark

In this department will be carefully onsidered any legal problem which tay be submitted by a subscriber. Al.

may be submitted by a subscriber. All opinions given heretu will be prepared at our expense by eminent counsel. Inamuca as u is one of the principal missions of COM-PORT to add in upbuilding and upholding the sanctity of the home, no advice will be given on maliers pertaining to divorce. Any paid-up subscriber to COMPORT is welcome to submit inquiries, which, so far as possible, will be answered in this department. If any reader, other than a subscriber, wishes to take advantage of this privilege, it may be done by sending twenty-five (2), cents, in sitter or stamps, for a one-year subscription to COMPORT (thus obtaining all the benefits which our subscribers enjoy including a copy of the magazine for one full year.

Pull names and addresses must be signed by all persons seeking advice in this column but not for publication. Unseeking advice in this column but not for publication.

seeking advice in this column but not for publication. less otherwise requested, initials only will be published.

Mrs. T. L. H., Minnesota.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that the use of the wrong name by your annut at the time of her marriage would not invalidate her marriage, unless such use was for some fraudulent purpose, in which event it might be evidence in any action brought by her present husband to have the marriage set aside on the ground of fraud. H. S., New Jersey.—We are of the opinion that the laws of your state provide for compulsory compensation to all injured workmen for injury or accident arising out of and in the course of employment causing disability of over two weeks of each, unless intentionally self-inflicted or due to intextion; that all industries are covered in the absence of contrary election, and all employees except casual, non-resident aliens and certain public employees; that the entire cost rests upon the employer; that the rate and number of weeks for which the compensation must be paid is regulated by the nature and extent of the injury, the amount of pay of the person injured, and the number and age of the dependents; that the enforcement of the law is in the hands of the judge of the court of common pleas, who shall hear and determine any dispute as to a settlement in a summary manner, subject to review of questions of law by the supreme court.

Mrs. A. G., California.—Under the laws of your state we are of the opinion that, upon the death of a married man leaving no will, his widow would receive one half of his community property, and that the balance would be distributed as his separate estate. We think that in the absence of both a will and descendants, his widow would receive one half of his separate property, the balance going to his parents, brothers and sisters or their descendants, depending upon who is left, if none such the whole estate would go to the surviving widow.

Mrs. L. McK., Tennessee.—We think that if there was a defect in the marriage of the man and woman

Mrs. L. McK., Tennessee.—We think that if there was a defect in the marriage of the man and woman you mention, they should now have a new ceremony performed. We think if the man you mention does not wish his property disposed of as provided by the laws of intestacy, he should execute a will disposing of his property in such manner as he may desire.

of his property in such manner as he may desire.

Mrs. M. S., Missouri.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that upon the death of a married man, leaving no will, and leaving a surviving widow and one child, the widow would receive dower of a one third interest for life in the real estate and one half of the personal property, absolutely, after the payment of debts and expenses, the balance of the estate going to the child, whether or not the child was by the surviving widow or by a former marriage.

V. M. H., Nebraska.—We do not think the life tenant of the land you mention can convey any greater interest in the land than she herself possesses. We think that an absolute present title to the land could be conveyed only by the deed of the life tenant, and the deed of the person or persons entitled to the remainder interest therein.

Mrs. M. B., New Jersey.—We think that if there

mainder interest therein.

Mrs. M. B., New Jersey.—We think that if there is a survey defect in the title of the property you have purchased, you should reject the title before accepting the deed and paying the purchase price, unless the defect can be corrected in some way; but if you have already closed the title and paid over your money, you will have to proceed against the grantor upon the covenants of the deed for such damages as you have suffered by reason of the defect in title, provided your deed is a full covenant and warranty deed; if there is no covenant of warranty in the deed, we think you will be unable to recover any-of your damages. We think you should have had a survey and title search made of your property before taking title and paying your money for the property.

A. J. L., Minnesota.—Under the laws of your state,

A. J. L., Minnesota.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that if the woman you mention was legally committed to an insane asylum, it would now be necessary to get her discharged in order for her to return to her daughter's home; we do not think this should be a very difficult matter if the woman has recovered from her insanity. We think you should take the matter up with the authorities and have her examined, and then apply for her discharge.

take the matter up with the authorities and have her examined, and then apply for her discharge.

J. G. D., California.—Under the laws of your state, we are of the opinion that all property, both real and personal, of the wife, owned by her before marriage, and all that she may acquire afterwards by gift, bequest, devise, or descent, with the rents, issues and profits thereof, shall be her separate property, and may be sold, conveyed, mortgaged, incumbered, or assigned by her without her husband's consent; but that all property acquired after marriage by either husband or wife, except such as may be acquired by gift, bequest, devise, or descent, shall be common property; but whenever any property is conveyed to a married woman by an instrument in writing, the presumption is that the title is thereby vested in her as her separate property. We think that the husband has the entire management, with absolute power of disposition, other than testamentary, of the community property, except the homestead, and except that he cannot dispose of it with a view to defraud the wife of her interest therein, but he cannot make a gift of community property or convey the same without a valuable consideration, unless the wife in writing consents thereto; upon the death of the husband the wife succeeds to one half of the community property, after payment of debts and expenses of administration. In case of divorce, the common property shall be equally divided between husband and wife, except when the divorce is granted on the ground of adultery or extreme cruelty, in which case the court apportions the property in its discretion.

Mrs. E. I., Carpenter, Okla,—Upon your statements, we are of the oninion that if your husband voluntarily.

the ground of adultery or extreme crueity, in which case the court apportions the property in its discretion.

Mrs. E. I., Carpenter, Okla.—Upon your statements, we are of the opinion, that if your husband voluntarily performed the work you mentioned on the government land you mentioned, upon simply the verbal consent of some government agent and it thereafter turned out that the land in question was reserved by the government for some other purpose than that under which you propose to lay claim for same, we think he did this work at his own risk and that he should have made sure that he could get a government grant before doing so. But if there was any fraud in connection with the awarding of this land to some one else, we think you might have ground for contesting his claim to same. We think the question of your rights depends largely upon facts not submitted in your inquiry to me. We think it might be advisable for you to take this matter up with some one in your locality with whom you can go into greater detail. If you could interest your Congressman in your behalf, he might be able to prevail on the authorities at Washington to right matters for you.

LOOK YOUR BEST. Make sure of smooth white arms, face and neck in spite of sallowness, blotches, freckles, blackheads etc. If you want to be charming and attractive—Don't pay 50c but send 10c at once for sealed Package, which will transform your appearance instantly. Warranted. TOILET COMPOUND CO., Box 1927A, Boston, Mass.

Sibyl's Influence

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 35.)

"I intend to, Ray—indeed, she has been with me every summer somewhere. But I shall take her into society more this year, and I have no fear that, after she has seen a little more of the world, she will be even more attractive than Miss Ada Therwin. There are sincerity and truth in her every word and act, while to my mind her beauty is, by far, richer and more magnetic than Miss Therwin's pale, cold, glittering magnificence." "I intend to, Ray-indeed, she has been with Lady Prescott spoke warmly, and shot a shy glance at her son, to note the effects of her words upon him.

words upon him.

The tender smile that curved his lips when he spoke of Sibyl, as well as the soft light which shone in his eyes, assured her that, however much he might admire Miss Therwin intellectually, Sibyl was the one who alope could reach his heart—and she was content.

TO BE CONTINUED.

The Complete Story In Book Form

If you do not care to wait for the monthly installments of this new serial as they appear in COMPORT we will be glad to make you a present of the complete story in book form. You will enjoy this great story. "Sibyl's Influence," with an elaboration of interesting detail and thrilling incidents, tells the hardships and trials of two true lovers harassed by a flendish plot. This splendid romance, written in Mrs. Georgia Sheldon's best style, is strong throughout, tragic in parts and dramatic in its conclusion. Send us only one one-year subscription (not your own) to COMPORT at 25 cents, and we will send you a copy of sid.

FORT. Augusta, Maine.*

the book free and postpaid.

Address COMFORT, Augusta, Maine.

Gretna Green

Gretna Green

The name "Gretna Green" has for over a hundred and fifty years been applied to any place to which it is customary for eloping couples to repair for the purpose of being married. The original Greena Green is in Scotland, very close to the English border. In 1754, Parliament passed an act forbidding clandestine marriages, and thenceforth eloping couples were obliged to go to Scotland, where the marriage laws were less strict. In fact, a binding marriage was effected if the parties merely declared their wish to marry, in the presence of witnesses. For about a hundred years, runaway couples eloped to Gretna Green, thousands of "ceremonies" being performed by the toll-keeper, the blacksmith, and others. The toll-keeper alone officiated at about two hundred weddings a year.

In 1856, an act was passed which required residence of one of the parties in Scotland, and "Gretna Green" marriages came to an end.

10 Perfumed postcards, your name in gold, 10c

Send IOc for 15 Neatly Printed Calling Cards. GROW GINSENG! Roots $9.00 lb. Package seed $1.00 mich. Ginseng Co.. St. Joseph, Michigae, Dapt. E

CARDS, Dice, Magic Goods, Novelties. Catalog Free

